Therefore, it is bound to be very attractive to Barçaians who value military power.

-The temperament of a strong warrior comes from its mother.

That is the myth that the people of Barça firmly believe.

To them, it was probably a natural thought. What a child inherits from his father is not even a handful of his body. A child grows into a big baby solely in the mother's body.

So, isn't most of what makes up a child's body inherited from its mother?

This was also the reason why some warlike tribes of Barsha maintained a strictly matrilineal lineage.

"I wonder how reluctant the elders, who already view me as a thorn in their eyes, will be. "They hate it because it brings a strange color to the young people of the tribe."

"Is it necessary for you to please them by going that far?"

"If you combine all the Barsha tribes, the population is very large. How long are we going to continue this wasteful war with them? "If something is going to happen, whether it's too late or too soon, finding a path to peace as soon as possible will help reduce the damage."

While Alicia looked embarrassed, Owen quickly put on light armor and strapped the one-handed ax to his waist.

"Oh, now that I think about it, it seems like our priest has been visiting less often these days."

A high-ranking priest who appeared like a comet on the southern front in crisis two years ago.

Although he was very sick and could not do much outside activities, he would still visit the barracks once every week or two to check on Owen's health.

The reason why Owen's health was fine even though there were many days without a good night's sleep over the years.

This may be due to his healthy body, but it may also be due to the influence of the divine power showered on him by the priest who occasionally visits him.

"Even though he was busy sometimes, he never stayed longer than two weeks. "Where are you hurting these days?"

Owen's concerns were valid.

Isn't this a priest who is wrapped up all over because he is cold even in this hot region?

He even covered his face with a hood. Are you saying that the dusty wind of this desolate wasteland is bad for your respiratory system?

Isn't he truly a person of deep faith, who despite being so troubled, doesn't return to the imperial capital and steadfastly remains in the missionary group?

"Try sending some messages to the missionaries. "Is your health okay, priest?"

"Yes, I will, sir."

As Alicia bowed her head and left the barracks, Owen muttered with a worried look on his face.

"Please, it shouldn't be a big deal. Priest Bart... .."

Meanwhile, there was another person suffering from the aftereffects of playing games all night long.

"Now my stomach hurts... .."

Seongjin, who went to the training center a little later than usual, forgot to meditate and sat blankly on the floor.

"This is truly strange, considering the lower class of Aurors. "It seems that the ability of the Auror to restore the body on its own is weak compared to others."

Masain, who was examining Seongjin's aura with a worried face, carefully recommended.

"You will soon have to deal with the monster task force, so why don't you take a break from training today?"

"Uh, whatever."

As Seongjin nodded obediently, Masain's face became more serious. That prince, who is crazy about training, just takes a break just because he's told to?

"... "I will call Councilor Ninias."

Without even thinking of stopping Masain, who was leaving with a stiff expression on his face, Seongjin absentmindedly patted the head of Max, who kept putting his muzzle in his grasp.

How many days have you been playing the game? Did you miss a total of three nights?

'Did you say that the way my aurors move is a bit different from others?'

Logan had also pointed this out before.

Since Seongjin's auror completely follows his will, it does not seem to do any activities on its own when he is unconscious.

That's why the hangover is longer and fatigue builds up faster compared to Auror users of the same level.

'Auror's body recovery process is slow... ... '

Now, Seongjin is keenly feeling the difference.

Look at the resident knights. I heard that those drunkards stayed up all night drinking for several days, so did they ever get into such trouble?

'Today was the day of the audience. 'I guess I'll ask my father to look after it in the afternoon.'

By the way, how on earth has Owen survived living like this for so many years? Isn't this guy really amazing in stamina?

Wong wong!

Anyway, it was Max who was excited about the unscheduled break.

As if protesting that he had not been able to play properly due to his busy schedule recently, he pressed his body against Seongjin and showed affectionate affection.

[Get away from me! Please tell me what to wear and what not to wear! Don't stick your head in at any time, you stupid mixed breed dog!]

And the Demon King also became uncomfortable. Even though he knows it's unavoidable, he seems secretly upset that Seongjin went to Pangea Chronicle alone.

"Max, you guy! "Don't disturb your rest and come here!"

Fortunately, Manager Bruno stepped forward to help Seongjin.

He was holding in his hand a wooden plate covered in colorful paint, which Seongjin had specially ordered some time ago to play with Max.

Kiing!

Max, seeing the familiar wooden plate, opened his eyes brightly and wagged his tail.

"Okay, here we go! "Ask!"

Whick!

As the wooden plate draws a cool parabola through the air, the wolf dog runs towards the plate at high speed.

and-

Wow!

Max jumped high from the training ground, twisted his body brilliantly and caught the wooden plate the leader threw in his mouth.

Up!

"oh!"

"It's pretty good?"

It was so spectacular that the resident knights stopped training for a moment and were distracted.

But that was the end of the great scene.

Kiing?

Max, who had been watching Seongjin and the leader for a moment, took the plate in his mouth and suddenly ran away!

"... Ma, Max?"

Manager Bruno's dejected voice, whose plate was suddenly stolen, echoes throughout the training hall. Seongjin let out a soft laugh without even realizing it.

"haha."

Still, that's a lot of progress, Commander. At first, no matter what I threw at him, he just stared blankly.

Then Seongjin suddenly felt a strange gaze and raised his head.

Sure enough, Edith, who was standing at the window and staring at the sheep they were doing, comes into view. When she made eye contact with Seongjin, she flinched in surprise and quickly disappeared into the room.

"..."

What is that envious look?

Seongjin scratched his cheek, thought for a moment, and then called the leader.

"Hey, Director Bruno? If I have time, I sometimes talk to Edith..."

"yes?"

"... No, nothing. Forget it."

I asked you to throw a plate to the dedicated maid. Where else could you ask such a strange request?

'Next time, I'll take the opportunity and casually drop the plate, pretending it was a mistake...'

Seongjin, who had been worrying so much, immediately clicked his tongue in bewilderment.

Who else in this world would think of the right time to throw a plate at a dedicated maid other than me?

[There is no one else but you. It's obvious.]

Oh, it's noisy!

At that time, on one side of the training hall, a sparring match between two knights was just coming to an end. It was Sir Kurt and Sir Maria, old drinking friends.

The two, who were the only senior knights among the resident knights, liked to spar with each other over the price of drinks from time to time.

Cheaeng! visor!

A close battle that continues without either side losing an inch.

'Looking at it like this, the differences between the two seem more clear?'

Unlike Sir Maria, who used the standard, uncomplicated swordsmanship of the Imperial Knights, Sir Kurt, who was from the northern region, tended to use a slightly more complex and old-fashioned swordsmanship.

It is not something that was developed by Banahas, but is similar to old sword techniques such as Orden or Balthazar.

However, unlike how he usually took his time in sparring, today Sir Kurt was dealing with Sir Maria's sword with quite a bit of difficulty.

And the decisive final blow.

Banajas Type 5 Type 6, Beehive Sting.

Kwa-kwa-kwa-kwak!

Sir Maria's sword drew more precise concentric circles than before, and Sir Kurt, who was barely able to defend himself, lost the sword in his grasp.

Cheer up!

Sir Kurt is embarrassed by the unexpected and clean defeat, but Sir Maria confidently puts the sword under his chin.

"Today, I decided to drink high-quality distilled liquor for the first time in a while. "I hope you haven't forgotten that promise."

"Big... .."

Sir Kurt, who was sweating coldly and clutching his numb hand, suddenly made eye contact with Seongjin and shouted in appeal.

"Lowering! Why did this friend suddenly become like this? "Before, we could only spar with each other if I gave in, but these days, strangely enough, I end up buying alcohol every time!"

"Don't brag. "Who is saying that someone gave up on a move?"

When Sir Maria responded bluntly, Sir Kurt, who was always relaxed, became unusually excited and raised his voice.

"You must not pretend not to know! What on earth happened to you all in the north? "This guy didn't have this kind of skill!?"

What Sir Kurt said was not entirely wrong.

This is not just Lord Mary. The knights who went to Sigismund Territory with Seongjin, such as Calmen and Sir Claudia, all had noticeably improved their skills.

'After all, there is no such thing as actual training.'

The results of the difficult battles against the Demon Beasts, Glaturre Trolls, and countless Lycan Slopes were only now slowly appearing.

Of course, among them all, Calmen's Aura still has the worst brightness.

"... ..?"

As I looked at him with pitiful eyes, Kalmen, not knowing why, raised his eyebrows.

"The odds of winning before were definitely 7:3! Of course I am 7! "There are so many games that even that has been watched!"

"The exact odds of winning were 6:4. Of course I am 6. And you, who are trying to save money on alcohol, look after me. I swear to God, I have never done that before."

Lord Maria responded stiffly and looked back at Seongjin with slightly worried eyes.

"Anyway, you look somewhat tired since yesterday, sir. What makes you uncomfortable?"

"hmm? no. I had a bit of trouble sleeping. are you okay."

Seongjin waved his hand, but Sir Kurt suddenly made a joking promise with his face.

"I can't stand it like this! "The next time you go on a trip somewhere, I will definitely go with you!"

Then, Lord Maria snorted next to her.

"How can I trust you and entrust you with my honor? A talented guy can just stay in the capital and buy me a drink."

"what? Are you bragging just because your swordsmanship has improved a little? "And you're not afraid of the consequences?"

"What kind of regret! If you can beat it, try it."

"profit!"

Wow, this is crazy.

As I was listening to the two people bickering, I saw Sir Masain and Congressman Strawberry Nose hurrying towards the training ground from over there.

"Please take a break from training for the time being and rest comfortably."

Dr. Ninias' diagnosis was simple fatigue.

He prescribed some herbs and decoctions and gave Seongjin a few instructions.

"Eat regular meals and get adequate sleep. Aren't you naturally healthy and an Auror user? "It will get better soon."

"Ok, thanks."

However, Seongjin could not immediately guarantee tomorrow's condition.

Anyway, I decided to meet Owen and the silent villains at Pangea Chronicle today as well. The lack of sleep and fatigue were expected to continue for a while.

Seongjin headed to the monster department in a nervous mood.

But why?

Jangle, jangle.

Seongjin's condition, which was observing the search and seizure of the Milo upper, soon recovered so rapidly that even he was surprised.

"Sir, why do you seem to be in a better mood than usual?"

When the red-haired inquisitor who was reporting on the confiscated goods made a puzzled face, Sir Masain looked back at Seongjin with a worried face.

Seongjin smiled and raised the corner of his mouth at him.

"Ah, it's okay, Lord Masaine."

As you know, if a person works for a long time, physical pain becomes bearable.

Look there. The national treasury is filling up all the time. Who wouldn't feel excited when all those money bags are stacking up in front of their eyes?

The red-haired inquisitor carefully cautioned how Seongjin's happy smile was received.

"... "We are investigating, so please do not steal it without permission, sir."

No, Sir Valerie? What on earth do you see in people?

And afternoon. It was time for the long-awaited audience.

Although I've been in and out of the office occasionally, this is still my first official audience since my business trip to Sigismund.

"... .."

As he entered the office following Chamberlain Louis, the same elaborate tea table as usual was waiting for Seongjin.

I am looking at the steaming Melbourne tea with great emotion...

"Mores."

Seonghwang, who sang simply, looked at Seongjin for a moment and then gestured with his hand without saying a word.

Yeah, I thought this guy would recognize it right away.

Paaaa.

As I surrendered myself to the bright light pouring down from my head, my fatigue disappeared as if I had been washed, and my limp body instantly became refreshed.

'Oh, it's cool...''

I felt so refreshed that I seemed to have an expression like that of an old man who had just entered a hot spring.

Seonghwang, who was staring at Seongjin's face, eventually withdrew his hand and sighed with a confused expression.

"I don't know if I've developed a bad habit."

Uh, hmm. sorry.

While I was clearing my throat in embarrassment, an unexpected attack came towards Seongjin.

"Please stop by the office occasionally from now on. "It will continue like this for some time."

"... "Kek!"

Seongjin, who was offended by the words that caught him off guard, chewed his tongue without even realizing it. But at the same time, I also felt an unknown sense of relief coming from within.

Ah, as expected, there's nothing this guy doesn't know.

292. Justitia (4)

"I want to become more skilled at handling Aurors."

Seongjin, who had been savoring Lewis's perfect Melbourne for a while, put down his teacup and took his first chance.

"Aren't you still handling it to your heart's content? "I understand that you are far above the level of people your age."

"That alone is not enough."

Isn't this the aura layer that was barely built up after overcoming aura depletion? Now that I had learned it the hard way, I wanted to make a living by sharing the benefits that other Auror users enjoy.

For example, stamina that can be maintained even after staying up all night.

"... .."

Then Seonghwang closed his mouth and stared at Seongjin with slightly deepened eyes. A cold look in his eyes that makes it impossible to tell what he is thinking.

But now Seongjin knows that his silence is just a process of choosing words to provide an appropriate explanation.

"... "There was a bird flying freely on land, breathing the air."

Horok.

Seongjin sipped his still warm tea and quietly listened to Seonghwang's words.

"It was an extraordinary bird that could fearlessly glide from a cliff even in the distance and soar into the sky using the turbulent currents pushing its body as propulsion even in a strong storm."

"... .."

"Then one day it happened. For unknown reasons, the sky collapsed, and everything in the world was instantly submerged into the sea. Many others were thrown into the water and lost their lives, but fortunately this bird soon realized that it could make gills like a fish."

After speaking up to that point, Seonghwang paused for a moment, looking into the teacup.

"Mores. What would you do if you were that bird? Would you like to drink sea water with peace of mind? Or will you close your beak and try to save your breath as much as possible until you get used to it?"

"... ..!"

There was no need to intentionally imagine the bird's position. There is no way you wouldn't understand this explicit metaphor.

Seonghwang is saying that Seongjin has been living in a completely different world from Delcross, so he is not yet used to the atmosphere of Delcross.

Like a bird that suddenly fell into the water.

'okay. I am Seongjin Lee, who has lived on Earth for a long time, and I am a soul who has recently arrived in this world. That is an undoubted fact, and my father knows this well. But how could I... ..'

Then, in Seonghwang's eyes as he gazes at Seongjin, a mysterious silver-gray glow appears.

"Son. It's just an example. So, don't think about unnecessary things."

"Oh, yes."

A firm tone like never before.

Thanks to this, Seongjin, who was ready to roll his head, obediently cleared his mind of all his thoughts and nodded sheepishly.

Anyway, it's a ghost.

"Fortunately, the bird's extraordinary abilities were also demonstrated in the water. "The bird began to imitate the way its wings move like fins, and soon it was able to swim faster in the sea than any other fish."

The story of success continued.

The smart bird quickly adapted to life in the sea. This guy, who moved as quickly as a fish and knew how to use his sharp beak as a weapon, quickly became an outlaw of the sea, beating out other top predators.

However, not everything was smooth, because except for the gills, the other organs did not function as the bird intended.

His eardrums were still numb from the water, and the soft feathers were too dull to feel water pressure or temperature like fish scales.

"So does that mean it's an innate problem that the bird can never overcome?"

When Seongjin asked with a serious expression, Seonghwang slowly shook his head.

"It will be a slightly different story. Just as gills were hastily created out of necessity, birds also had the ability to adapt other organs as they wanted. "It's just that for him, the ocean water was still an external force that he had to overcome, and he couldn't recognize it as something to breathe naturally."

It was a bird that had never had a deep understanding of the underwater world throughout its life. So, I didn't know that something that immediately threatened my breathing could be a comfortable and natural flow of the world for someone else, just like the air.

Also, he couldn't even guess that there were sounds in the sea that he could feel, smells that he could smell, and temperatures that he could feel.

"Of course, he is an extraordinary child, so he will adapt successfully someday. But in order to gradually learn something so unfamiliar, wouldn't it take a certain amount of time?"

Seonghwang added that.

"You are saying that the problem is not caused by my inability to properly control the aurors. If so, is it still a matter of time? "Are you saying that I also need a long period of adaptation, just as birds accept water as naturally as air?"

"why. "Aren't you so reluctant to wait for some time?"

Then Seongjin nodded enthusiastically.

of course! I want to adapt to this world as quickly as possible!

I will continue to interfere with the Pangea Chronicle, while maintaining my health and leading the daily life of Delcross.

So, please explain the sounds, smells, or anything else in the water so that I can understand and adapt!

"... .."

Seonghwang, facing Seongjin's strong burning eyes, rubbed his chin as if he was a little embarrassed.

"okay. "If you do, I'll show you something fun, son."

After saying that, Seonghwang slowly closed his eyes. Then, the aura surrounding him also depressed the air around him and calmly sank.

'What is this guy trying to do again?'

That was when Seongjin blinked, not knowing why.

"... uh?"

Perhaps it was because of my mood, but I heard something that sounded like music from somewhere. It was so small that even Seongjin's sensitive senses could barely hear it, a faint sound.

'... Music box?'

The clear resonance of a percussion instrument, as if tapping a glass. Yet, it was a strange sound that continued continuously like a string instrument.

Tiring, ding.

container. container.

That inexplicable, mysterious chord enveloped the office, gently vibrating all the air around it!

"I can hear music from somewhere, father."

When Seongjin, who was looking around his head, said that, Seonghwang slowly opened his eyes and answered.

"okay. This is a song that Amelia often plays. "That kid seems to have quite an outstanding talent for musical instruments."

It was like that. It was definitely a song that remained in Seongjin's memory. One time, Amelia showed me her performance at Jinju Palace, and she said it was one of her favorite songs.

"but..."

The fact that the source is unknown has not changed.

Not only can there be no sign of anyone playing nearby, but this is not the sound of any musical instrument that exists in the imperial palace!

Moreover, the sound is coming from all directions, not just one direction -

"... Aura materialize!"

Seongjin quickly figured out the identity of the sound.

It was clear. The refined auras surrounding the Holy Emperor move delicately and vibrate the air!

Is it possible to use Aurors in this way?

"Uhm..."

Once you get to know it, it's natural that you'll want to give it a try. Seongjin furrowed her eyebrows and tried her best to vibrate the air like that, when she heard a soft laugh next to her.

"It's not that moving, Mores. "I do not move the auror by isolating the complex chords that Amelia played, note by note."

"yes? then..."

"It's just a matter of creating a strong thought based on memory and creating a perfect image. So that the aura contained there can flow naturally along the flame."

How to arouse curiosity.

If that were the case, I had learned it from Seonghwang only once, on the night of the birthday party, when I fell into a gap.

At that time, Demon King No. 2, created by Seongjin, created quite a spectacular fireworks.

Of course, that's because the gap is a very special space, and I tried it a few times later, but Demon King No. 2 never appeared again.

"There is no need to think too hard about your thoughts. It may feel like a special power to you, but in reality, everyone in this world uses it naturally, whether they know it or not."

Leading the performance of the air to its climax, Seonghwang spoke softly.

"Auror users protecting their bodies is not that different from this. "Everyone born into this world is surrounded by auras from the beginning, and they breathe and grow with them."

Children naturally try to protect their bodies like an instinct, and this tendency acts as a natural will.

All those weak thoughts pile up every day to create a solid thought. Before the auror user senses the auras and stacks them up, it is already considered a natural inertia to protect the body.

Seonghwang, who had said that far, looked straight at Seongjin and asked.

"But what did you think of Aurors until now? "Didn't you just think of it as a sharp weapon in your hand?"

"... ..!"

"Have you ever let it run free instead of taking complete control of it? "Have you ever felt a strong desire to protect yourself with it?"

"I am... .."

Embarrassed, Seongjin licked his lips for a moment before continuing.

"I thought we needed to control the Aurors better. "If you strengthen your Aurors through training, you will eventually be able to perfectly control them so that they do not harm you."

He believed that the reason his aurors were moving roughly was because he was immature at controlling them.

So, since I started later than others, I just thought I needed to be more alert and control it properly.

It's a little different, but didn't Logan give the same advice?

Seongjin's aurors obey Seongjin's will even while going against the natural process of protecting the body. So, in order to control even these unconscious movements, we have no choice but to speed up our training.

"That is not wrong either. Complete control is also a solution, and a kid with talent like Logan might be able to achieve it."

However, Seonghwang added that it is no different from disassembling all the notes one by one for one performance.

How about comparing it to the movement of the body?

Moving the respiratory muscles for breathing, and moving the involuntary muscles individually for digestion. This is equivalent to consciously controlling even endocrine functions that humans are not aware of.

"But you have the power to create stronger thoughts than anyone else, Mores. What you need to do is not to break down these notes one by one, but simply to recall strongly the memory of when you heard the music and to embody the impression you felt."

And release the auras accordingly. Absolutely natural.

'I feel like I'm feeling something... ... '

Seongjin decided to test it right away.

'I'm not sure about the intention yet, but I guess I just need to focus on losing my strength first, right?'

So, I relaxed my entire body as much as I could and slumped in the chair. Trying to let the aura flowing within her body run naturally without any interference.

He was so focused on losing all his strength that even his facial muscles seemed to have become flaccid.

"Sir, are you really that impressed by the taste of the tea? "Lewis, I truly feel rewarded for serving you."

Lewis, who happened to come into the office to pour a new cup of tea, was startled when he saw Seongjin's face, and turned his head with tears in his eyes.

"Uh, okay. "Thank you for always preparing great tea."

I guess this is not it.

In the end, Seongjin gave up and corrected his posture. Well, losing strength isn't as easy as you think. Anyway, you need some time, right?

"I can't help it. "Then, I will often stay in the office for a while until I get used to making up my mind."

"... .."

As expected, I developed bad habits.

Hearing the low muttering sound, Seongjin grinned.

293. Justitia (5)

The Volanta tribe's hunt that Owen participated in that day ended with unprecedented success.

This is because herds of buffalo and antelopes have returned to the grasslands where the fierce seawater and Nurmachi have completely disappeared.

"The hunting ground of our ancestors has come back to life!"

"Let's toast together to Owen, the warrior who kept his promise to expand Volanta's horizons!"

Hustle and bustle.

In front of the abundant fruits, the entire tribe was filled with joy and raised a toast.

However, Owen, who was at the center of it all, could not completely blend into the atmosphere. This was because a small quest window had suddenly popped up in front of his eyes earlier, obstructing his view.

[Surprise Quest – Preparation for tomorrow.]

[Quest Grade: F]

[You have successfully completed a tiring day's schedule. How about this? In the busy pace of daily life, have you perhaps forgotten how to relax in life? Well, now is the time to take a breather. How about going back to bed early today and taking the time to reorganize your body and mind for tomorrow?]

[Reward: 30 P Cash]

[*This product is available in the Pangea Chronicle store window.]

Is the person who robbed me of the leisure of life suddenly ordering me to reorganize? And it's not even 300, it's only 30 cash?

"The compensation is too salty!"

Owen, who was in the midst of the excitement of hunting, simply closed the window. Rather than returning home with this much reward in mind, he would rather have strengthened his friendship with the people of Volanta.

"A lot of this meat and skin is yours, Owen! I'm really worried about the way back. "I have seen many imperialists over the years, but you are truly the first time I have met a hunter as good as a Barsha warrior!"

"There is no need to worry, Chikutarku. As a token of my friendship with Volanta, I am willing to share my share with my friends."

"ha ha ha! How exciting! Now, hurry and get this drink!"

Owen smiled brightly as he accepted the drink personally handed to him by Chief Chikutarku.

However, the toast did not last very long. This is because a new quest window suddenly appeared before his eyes again.

[Surprise Quest – Comfort your subordinates!]

[Quest Grade: E]

[Your sweat as you do your best every day for peace is beautiful. But behind you, there is hidden the hard work of your subordinates who support and care about you. Are you so focused on achieving results that you are forgetting those who are precious to you? How about going back to work early today, at least to comfort and encourage them? Your reputation will increase further.]

[Reward: 50 P Cash]

[*This product is available in the Pangea Chronicle store window.]

Owen furrowed his eyebrows slightly.

'... reputation?'

No, did Sang Tae-chang have a good time today? Why are you suddenly worried about my reputation when you never used to be?

Anyway, Owen hesitated for a moment.

Even 50 cash is a shame now. Additionally, when Sang Chang-chang is this persistent, in my experience, there is usually a reason.

'I've roughly stamped my eyes with the elders, should I go back now...''

It was when I was thinking about that.

"Owe-n!"

Suddenly, a thick arm wrapped itself around Owen's neck. It was Chikudanka who was heavily intoxicated with horse liquor.

"What are you doing here now? There was a wrestling match in full swing, so why should Barça's best wrestler be left out? Come on, let's go!"

"Oh yeah. "That's how it should be!"

that's right. The festival has just begun, so does it make sense to leave now?

Thinking like that, Owen roughly pushed the spear away and walked towards the wrestling ring with Chikudanka.

But it was right then.

Beep beep!

Suddenly, an eerie warning sound rang in my ears, and a red text appeared before my eyes.

[warning! – Quest failure penalty]

[I am very sorry. If you can't understand something when you say it in a good way, you have no choice but to experience the results yourself. I wish you good luck.]

[Result: 70% reduction in total acquired P Cash for the next month.]

[*This product can be used in the Pangea Chronicle store window, but it is very doubtful whether cash will be collected properly in the future.]

"... 100 million!"

It was the sound of sobering up.

We are already suffering from a serious cash shortage, so what are you going to do if 70% of the acquired cash is taken away?

"I'm sorry, Chikudanka! "I forgot something, so I guess I'll have to head back for today!"

Owen hurriedly said hello to the people of Volanta and soon began riding toward the camp. He was in such a hurry that he didn't even get his share of the game.

'No, Sang Tae-chang! You can say it with nice words. 'Why would you threaten someone so cruelly?'

As Owen gritted his teeth and spurred on, a small text popped into his mind as if teasing him.

[It is a day to engrave in our hearts the old adage that a beating is better than a reward for a misbehaving child.]

ah! Stop being sarcastic, Sang Tae-chang!

I did everything wrong!

But when he came back in such a hurry, an unexpected guest was waiting for Owen.

"Lowering! "Why are you so late?"

As he enters the barracks, leaving Alicia behind, a familiar figure greets him and stands up.

A long robe that wraps around the loose body, and a thick hood that completely covers the face.

"... "Priest Bart?"

The high priest, who was said to be sick and unable to go out often, looked at Owen and nodded slowly.

"... .."

Soon, a foreign language was heard in a soft tone, and the attendant standing next to him spoke in place of Priest Bart.

"I thought we almost missed each other, and now I think it would be better to go a little early." "The priest speaks."

As a high priest, Bart always had one of these attendants with him.

His role was mainly to support him or interpret for him, but this was because Bart, from Ortona, could not speak the imperial language properly.

It was a bit surprising that a high-ranking priest couldn't speak the imperial language when masses across the entire continent were held in the imperial language.

"Ah, I'm a little late today because I have an important event. "If he had known the priest would come, he would have returned sooner."

Then Priest Bart silently nods his head.

Although he can't speak the imperial language, he still seems to understand simple words.

'Phew... ..'

Owen sighed inwardly.

If I had known this would happen, I should have listened to Sang

Sang-chang a long time ago. If he had known that this sickly man would wait until late on purpose for him, he would have come running in the middle of the hunt.

Look at the poor auror activity over there, like a dying person.

[It's no use pretending to regret things that are now in the past. The behavior you show today will have a huge impact on determining future quests and rewards.]

Sang Sang-chang, who has a bad personality, said sarcastically.

Yes, yes, I was wrong.

"Now, please don't just stand here, please take a seat, Father Bart. It's hard, but don't overdo it."

Anyway, Owen was happy and took long strides toward the priest. Then he grabbed his shoulder and tried to make him sit back down.

This was something Owen didn't usually do, but it happened because his mind was strangely relaxed now. This may have been because he was intoxicated with horse oil and also because he was grateful that Priest Bart had waited for him on purpose.

But the moment Owen's hand touched-

"... ..!"

Priest Bart's body suddenly felt stiff with tension.

"... ..?"

And Owen, too, was startled as he felt a creepy recoil from somewhere.

'Why do people weigh so much?'

A feeling of discomfort that can be clearly felt even when you just gently push your body. Doesn't this make the person feel so light that their body is completely empty?

Even making a scarecrow out of hollow sugar cane would have been better than this.

"... What is this? "Even if it's hard, eat well."

But Owen didn't have any doubts about him.

I heard that he was very sick, and this is the same Bart priest I have been seeing for several years.

Moreover, for some reason, there was a part of Priest Bart that reminded him of his godfather. Even though it seems strange to me to connect him, the strongest man on the continent, with the sickly man.

A person similar to your father could never be a bad person, right?

"... .."

Tuk-tuk.

As I sat him down and carefully dusted his shoulders, Priest Bart, who had been frozen for a moment, slowly relaxed his body. Soon a small sigh is heard from inside his thick hood.

And the unfamiliar Ortona language is softly recited.

"I am the first prince of the Holy Empire Delcross. He always had the awareness that he was in a noble position, and it was right for him to be careful and be on guard in everything he was around. "The priest speaks."

At the attendant's words, Owen tilted his head back and smiled brightly.

"Hahaha, Priest Bart. You don't have to worry about such things! Even though it's like this, I'm being careful not to disturb my father! Moreover, if people do not show faith to others first, how can they live properly in this world?"

Hwiik-

At that time, the priest's hand stretched out in front of Owen like lightning. The speed was so incredible that even Owen, who prides himself on being a fairly strong Auror user, missed the movement for a moment!

"... .. ?!"

I winced.

However, the hand that stopped for a moment in front of him soon slowed down and landed gently on Owen's forehead.

"Uh, lungs... "The priest says he will bestow his blessings on the prince."

At the same time as the dazed attendant spoke, a familiar divine power poured out from the hand that touched the forehead.

As always, it was an incredible, miraculous divine power that made fatigue and hangovers go away at once.

However, Owen internally tilted his head as he received Priest Bart's blessing.

'what? Did I see it wrong? At first, I thought there was a chestnut flying at my head... .. '

Hey, it must be my mood.

How could it be possible for Priest Bart, who is like a living saint, to throw a chestnut at the prince's forehead?

That evening, Owen accessed the Pangea Chronicle slower than usual. And he faced newbies and silent villains who welcomed him as always.

[Hey everyone!]

At the cheerful greeting, the silent villains and the small goat turn their heads at the same time.

[Owen! Containing welcome!]

[A little late today, but just in time, Owen.]

It was right then.

"Look at that! "They are the devil-possessed sheep and their gang!"

"That guy destroyed two intact guilds on the spot, right? "Who are you planning to sacrifice again this time?"

"Hey, let's avoid it! No matter how you look at it, that's not the color of a normal person's eyes."

As soon as the gaze of the small goat reached them, the users at the meeting point trembled and hurriedly left the place.

Oh, they are such unsophisticated people. To me, it's just cute, but why are they making such a fuss?

"Hello, newbie!"

For the sake of the poor newbie who was being misunderstood, Owen gave a firm greeting in Imperial once more.

OK-

"Uh huh."

The mountain goat answered sullenly and turned its head away.

Wow, my friend is more blunt than he looks.

"Come on, sit down. "We were having a meeting about the dungeon we were going to next, but because you were late, we couldn't talk about something important."

And then the words continue as if thrown out.

'It's not very polite to say that I waited.'

But look, he's not a good guy after all.

Owen smiled brightly as he looked at the baby goat who, despite being a newbie, had now become the leader of the team.

The silent villains' raid on the theme dungeon continued.

[The place we will attack this time is the C-rank dungeon, 'The Orc King's Maze.' From now on, the level of difficulty will change as your rank increases, right? There are a lot of rules to follow, and the patterns of the mobs are becoming more and more complex.]

And while Dexter was pushing me away, he suggested that we beat the themed dungeon to the end.

[Because in order to obtain the advancement item, you must eventually conquer the S-rank themed dungeon.]

After you clear the themed dungeon up to A rank without failure, you will be given the opportunity to challenge for S rank based on your time challenge performance.

As this S rank is quite difficult, it is famous for giving out rare items. Thanks to this, it is one of the dungeons that players who are eager to upgrade their skills have recently become very excited about.

[The time challenge records of the top ranked players are all similar. So, you should try it when you have the chance. If other parties come up, you have to try again from the beginning to qualify.]

It made sense.

The only problem was that most of our party members were guest ID users.

[I said it before, Dexter. Guest ID users should always put safety as their top priority.]

On the first day I logged in, Owen told a scary story to Seongjin to raise awareness.

-One day, there was a guest ID user who was covered in the flames of a desert dragon and was immediately disconnected. However, Sang Tae-chang said that even in his own world, he was found reduced to ashes.

Dexter shook his head at Seongjin's concerns.

[You don't play with other users, and your abilities aren't displayed properly, so you can't really feel it. However, when I evaluate it objectively, I think our party's current strength is considerable.]

Dexter said that even after Seongjin and the silent villains finished logging in, he remained alone and played for a while longer. Naturally, there were opportunities to compare them with other players.

This was a conclusion reached after carefully analyzing the strategy records of rankers posted in the community. By matching advanced enhancement weapons with appropriate level set items, silent villains can immediately rise to the ranks of rankers.

[Still, I am against anything that poses even the slightest risk.]

Seongjin's attitude was stubborn, but the situation was different for the silent villains, who were already completely intoxicated with the results of their successful strategy.

[Wouldn't it be okay to listen to it and decide?]

Red fox Owen let out a comforting sound next to him.

They glared at the immature guy, but the deer and octopus also noticed Seongjin's notice and quietly helped Owen.

[Isn't this a suggestion because the possibility is very high? If there is a risk, there are also appropriate measures for it.]

[Dexter, you are very smart! For the second time, memorize the long name!]

[of course! I already know all the main strategies of the theme dungeon! Even though it is just theory without practice!]

These are truly fearless!

Seongjin, who was angry, made an angry expression, but-

[Let's just listen to it, okay? I'm a newbie.]

[I will follow your decisions as leader. So, can you please just review it for a moment?]

[Lee Seong-jin, I apologize!]

It was difficult to completely ignore the gaze of the cute animals, who were looking at us pleadingly with their shining eyes.

[...] Well then, just listen to it.]

In this way, the group listened in detail to the strategy explained by Dexter.

[C rank, the setting is that 'The Orc King's Maze' has a unique story. The goddess Justitia left a prophecy to the king of the orcs about a hero who would appear someday. So he decided to build a huge maze to stop the hero... ..]

And surprisingly, Seongjin, who was indifferent at first, was also listening carefully to what Dexter was saying.

'This is quite... ..'

It's quite authentic since a genius engineer is serious about the game. Instead of simply memorizing the listed strategy, didn't you properly analyze the silent villain's abilities and create a strategy that can deal with various variables?

Also, sometimes there was a sharp perspective that only those involved in the development of the Homunculus engine could have.

'If I had met Dexter on Earth, I think I would have hired him on the strategy team right away.'

Even the picky Seongjin would have thought so, but what about the silent villains who are extremely sloppy? Even the slightest bit of anxiety that was left in a corner of their minds had already been blown away!

[If everything goes according to his plan, he can quickly gain the upper hand in the political war with the Barum Trees!]

[Group! Our compatriots suffering from the devil! The moment of liberation is near!]

Even Owen spoke brightly.

[With this, you can shorten the main stream produced by Sang Tae-chang! Then it won't be a dream to return to the imperial capital any time soon, right?]

Thanks to this, Seongjin's stubborn attitude softened a bit.

is it? Would it be better to take a little risk and achieve quick results as a shortcut to bringing this runaway teenager back home?

[Haha, leave everything to me regarding strategy from now on!]

Dexter confidently patted his stomach and gave all the silent villains the reinforced weapons he had prepared.

[I took care of it during the day when you guys were away. Now you can definitely feel the power increase.]

[Dexter...]

Everyone looked at him with moved eyes.

[You are a really good guy!]

[Dexter! How can I express this gratitude!]

[moved! The warrior's intestines shed hot tears... ... !]

The silent villains made a fuss for a while, then ran out to the field to test their respective weapons.

"Hehe, it was worth dedicating the day to the game."

Dexter said in a somewhat satisfied voice.

He said he played games alone during the day, and before he knew it, he had completed his first job change. Equipped with a fancy wizard's robe and a nice reinforced staff.

"You hated it so much at first, but you're more serious about the game than I thought, right?"

"Why not? When everyone needs my skills, I feel the greatest sense of accomplishment and joy. "I feel like I truly belong to everyone."

The mole who responded like that looked for a moment with faint eyes at the doorway where the silent villains had disappeared.

"okay. "Isn't that the time when people truly feel the worth of living in this world?"

"... .."

"... No, but isn't it strange? "Why do I keep saying such useless things to you?"

Seongjin looked at the shy little mole for a moment, fiddling with his goggles.

"Dexter,"

"huh?"

"Are you going to return to Earth someday? Or would you like to come visit Delcross when you have time?"

Even though I am like this, I am the son of someone who is quite high up in Delcross. I will treat you well.

Then, as if hearing something unexpected, the mole opened its eyes and looked at Seongjin.

"Well, it's not like I don't want to go see the sights. But the elders strongly forbade it. Are you saying that if I, who inherited Ionian technology, set foot in Delcross, there is a risk of greatly harming the causality of the dimension?"

"okay?"

Seongjin thought for a moment and then shook his head.

"I have a feeling that will be okay? don't worry."

"But the old man... .."

"Oh, it's okay, it's okay."

If it's that dragon old man, my father will definitely deal with it.

The man who stole the race key from the elder in a matter of hours is my father!

"Well, if that's the case."

Dexter answered hesitantly and asked Seongjin.

"Anyway, why don't you hurry up and change jobs? You've leveled up, right? You've passed the first hurdle to becoming a summoner. Do you want to become a summoner now? "It would be better to have a full range of professions in the party."

hmm. As a guest ID user with many limitations in career choices, this was a unique opportunity.

But Seongjin was reluctant for something.

"Or, become a warrior according to your talents. "I saw you use a sword quite well yesterday."

"well. Do I really have to change jobs?"

Then Dexter made a puzzled face.

"Why won't you do it? You have to change jobs to really use special skills! The difference in damage is huge, so is there any reason not to do it?"

"Yeah, but."

Seongjin was thinking hard, but soon the silent villains came back, very excited.

[Is this huge?]

[Preparation is perfect! Let's quickly enter the orcs' maze!]

[Everyone is dead!]

Ah, yes.

How can I stop those excited guys? Seongjin also sighed and prepared to enter the dungeon.

□Object - Skin 'Gather together, friends'□

□On/Off□

But it was right then.

Crackling!

Noise appeared in my vision, and a strange lamenting sound came from somewhere.

[Ah, □□□ □□. This is what happens in the end. You should never have come here in the first place!]

It was a very unfamiliar voice, not the thoughts of anyone Seongjin had heard so far.

'... ... ?'

But there was no time to wonder.

Kikikiki.

With a strange sound of laughter as if someone was whispering in my ear, my vision suddenly darkened and darkness came in an instant.

'What is this again?'

Seongjin stood alone in the dark.

In complete darkness, not only the silent villains who were right next to you until now, but also the scenery in front of you cannot be seen.

'Am I really awake?'

The body's presence was intact. When I quietly raised my hand, I saw ten faintly glowing fingers.

Not the small hooves of a goat, but his own proper hands with the calluses characteristic of a swordsman.

'... Isn't it a mountain goat?'

Chichik.

At that time, a crude noise appears in my field of vision again. After applying the 'Gather Friends' skin, I thought the graphical problem was completely solved, but was it just Seongjin's mistake?

'... ... !'

However, when Seongjin's vision became clear again, he was facing a woman he had never seen before.

It is a tall woman holding a long golden spear in one hand and covering both eyes with a red cloth. A dress made of thin fabric flowed down to her feet and flapped as if it were her wings.

'... Justitia?'

It doesn't look that different from the illustration on the site that Dexter first showed me.

Above all, that strong presence shining alone in the darkness clearly did not belong to an ordinary person. That woman is truly the goddess of the Pangea Chronicle.

[Be careful.]

At that time, a low, gloomy thought entered my mind.

[You have already disrupted the order of this world several times,
□□□ □□.]

What do you mean?

[It is no longer dangerous. Please do not stir up chaos any further than this.]

... that?

At that time, Seongjin realized that she was looking somewhere other than him.

Although the goddess's eyes were completely covered, Seongjin could clearly feel the direction of her gaze.

'Behind me?'

An eerie chill ran down my entire body in an instant.

And I felt a clear presence like never before.

Long black hair like seaweed gently reaching her ears, and a woman's pale arms wrapping around her shoulders and neck.

'This... ... !'

For some reason, someone has been sticking behind him like a spider.

Crackling.

He was even biting something hard behind Seongjin's back.

Although it didn't cause particularly severe pain, Seongjin could feel something, whether blood or vitality, slowly escaping through the wound.

I wonder why I've been feeling particularly tired lately!

'what's this?!'

Frightened, Seongjin quickly turned around and swung his arms, but it stuck like a leech and still did not come off.

Giggling.

An unpleasant sound of laughter flows down along with the thick blood.

'Why did I never notice the existence of this guy until now?'

But at least I could clearly see why his vision had been imperfect up until now.

Gigigigeek.

That's because the guy was covering Seongjin's eyes with his fingernails. Warm blood was also flowing from the area of his heavily wounded eyes.

[...] ... !]

Seongjin frowned and grabbed the guy's hand.

'Get away, you nasty bastard!'

Just then, the goddess in front of me warned me.

[You won't be able to shake it off. □□□ □□.]

Tdu-duk-duk.

Red blood also flowed from the eyes of the goddess who said that.

At that moment, Seongjin realized. The red cloth covering her eyes was not originally red...

[Justitia has already melted into the atmosphere here, and it can no longer be restored.]

... Justitia?

When Seongjin turned around at those words-

Another goddess with gaping eye sockets opened her blood-soaked mouth wide and laughed, as if she was happy that her presence had finally been noticed.

Kyakyakyakyakya!

295. Justitia (7)

[You were never supposed to come here from the beginning. Have you ever thought carefully about why there is a limit to the number of people entering the theme dungeon and why the number of guest ID users has never exceeded three?]

Seongjin looked at the woman in front of him who was complaining as if she was reprimanding him.

Elegant clothing, like a character from ancient mythology, and long, golden, wavy hair. Except for the creepy eye patch soaked with bloody tears, it was clearly the image of 'Justitia' on the main screen of Pangea Chronicle.

A noble hero who is said to have plucked out his own eyes to protect the laws of the world.

A goddess at the center of the Pangea Chronicle worldview who eventually became a divine being and managed the world.

'but... ... '

This strange woman who is now attached to Seongjin's back like a leech is also called 'Justitia'.

Black hair tangled like seaweed in the deep sea, skin with an unpleasant feel like wax.

This is not a goddess, but rather like a drowned body left in a low temperature state for a long time.

'Which one is the real Justitia?'

Maybe both.

For some reason, I had that feeling.

[So, why did you suddenly appear in front of me like this?]

Seongjin asked, tearing off the clammy hand that was hanging on with the intention of pulling out his eye at any moment.

Does it matter which one is real? First of all, it seems like I can't communicate with one side at all, so I have no choice but to try communicating with the side that seems more normal.

[Didn't you just say that? Please do not provoke Justitia by causing any more chaos.]

[Do not call someone else's name. You must be Justitia too, right? It seems like both of them have no eyeballs.]

The goddess kept her mouth shut at Seongjin's sharp response. But Seongjin, who had already become sarcastic, thought she was a goddess and a leech, and there was nothing more harsh about her.

[If the settings on the site are correct, you are the one who manages this world, right? But why mess things up and now blame others?]

[I am holding you responsible for the chaos you brought about.]

[Don't make me repeat the same thing. If you really wanted to prevent guest ID users from entering the theme dungeon, shouldn't you have specified the conditions properly from the beginning? Rather than lax measures such as limiting the number of people.]

[Since the upper-level conditions have already been restricted, it is meaningless to define the lower-level conditions again. All of this is chaos caused purely by your presence, so you have no choice but to put it to rest.]

[Then, why not ask politely? Besides, if you wanted to persuade people of anything, couldn't you have created a more appropriate atmosphere for conversation?]

At least it's not a place with blood-sucking leeches.

As Seongjin nervously ripped off a handful of the seaweed-like hair, the sound of someone biting something again was heard in his ear.

Crackling.

Oh, don't bite anything without permission, you!

[I am deeply sorry about this situation. However, originally, you and I, as guest ID users, would never have met unless a few restrictive conditions were met. Even I, the administrator of the world, cannot avoid the conditions that have already been established.]

Sleep, sleep, sleep.

The goddess said, taking a few steps forward.

[So the moment the illusion was put on and peeled off, I had no choice but to take advantage of that momentary twist. I had to avoid the rules imposed on me through the chaos you fostered. Of course, the price is not that small.]

At the same time, the blood flowing from the goddess's eyes spreads across her white dress, creating an eerie pattern.

this. There's a bloody show going on in front, and there's a drowned leech hanging in the back!

'This is the worst!'

Seongjin, who usually disliked horror movies, was disgusted.

Still, since these things can at least be touched with hands, it must have been some consolation that punches work.

[If you really don't like this situation, there is only one way left. All you have to do is leave this world right now.]

At that time, the goddess responded coldly and pushed her face right in front of Seongjin.

Then, a soft, seductive whisper follows from her red lips.

[Or are you still going to use your unique ID? □□□ □□. Just like before, I'm getting rid of everything that bothers me.]

[...] ... !]

This time it was Seongjin's turn to keep quiet. The moment she heard the goddess' words, she felt a prickling sensation in her heart, and immediately something stirred inside her.

Exciting

This was definitely a commotion that Seongjin had experienced at some point.

but.

'... No, it's not time yet.'

A strong premonition that is difficult to explain comes flooding back to me at the same time. Seongjin took a deep breath and tried to calm down the waves of unknown emotions.

[Don't make nonsense. Anyway, this was your best bet for the conversation, right?]

Then, as if she had lost some steam, the goddess slowly leaned back and answered.

[I won't deny that. So what are you going to do? Would you leave here now? This world is too imperfect and unstable to support your existence.]

Are you unstable? Pangyea Chronicle is a typical normal world, right?

Perhaps realizing Seongjin's doubts, the goddess added a blunt explanation.

[This world was forced to wake up from its egg before it was ready. So, to make up for the ridiculously weak tone, numerous rules were added in a disorderly manner. In such great chaos, the distortion of the world eventually arose.]

Tap, tap.

Even as she leaned back and spoke, bloody tears continued to flow from the goddess's eyes. If things continued like this, it seemed like her handmade dress would be completely stained with blood.

[And □□□ □□, you will accelerate this flood of chaos and eventually cause the collapse of the world.]

[So, please, for the sake of this world, get out of here right now.]

okay. I don't know, but you're saying it's a matter of the existence of the game, right?

'Leaving this annoying world is something I've always wanted!'

But before that, there was something that needed to be resolved first. Seongjin said, pushing back the leech that was grinding its teeth on his neck as chewing gum.

[There is a condition. First, promise me that you will meet a guest ID user, Justitia.]

[Guest ID user?]

[okay. And obediently hand over whatever item he wants. If you do that, there's no reason why you can't leave here right now.]

If he had to get out, shouldn't he at least get Owen out with him?

-The reason I keep logging in here is probably to meet Goddess Justitia and get the things I need.

Of course, there is no guarantee that meeting Justitia will completely complete Owen's quest. But at least, wouldn't he be able to avoid getting into trouble just because he met the goddess?

However, the goddess's reaction after hearing Seongjin's words was cynical.

[That is impossible. Didn't I say this before? Even I cannot avoid the conditions that have already been established. Guest ID users cannot enter the temple, and in order to meet me, they must meet several strict conditions.]

No, then what?

Now Seongjin was beyond annoyed, and his head was slowly starting to heat up with discomfort. If Seongjin wasn't willing to listen to this side's conditions, there was no reason for him to listen to that side's one-sided nonsense anymore.

[Then stop talking nonsense! I won't leave here until I achieve my goal!]

[This world will collapse because of you!]

The goddess screamed as if she were screaming, but Seongjin didn't even blink.

[What do I know? This is a world where strange things like this are obsessed. If we leave it like this, it might lead to bigger problems, right?]

[Such self-centeredness... ... !]

[The accusation of being egocentric should rather come from this side. If you want to at least have a proper conversation, you should do something right now, whether it's my life or my strength!]

Stop making people tired! I will never miss tomorrow morning's training!

Hwaak-

At that moment, as if reacting to Seongjin's mood, a strong spiritual pressure rose from him and swept in all directions.

[...] ... !]

Cheesy!

It was so powerful that in an instant, noise erupted from all directions simultaneously.

Goddess Justitia staggered and looked at Seongjin with an expression of surprise.

'... 'What did I just do?'

Seongjin, who first found out that he could do this, was also momentarily taken aback.

But what was even more absurd was that even in this situation, the leech was stuck behind him and did not move!

Crack, cluck.

'What a disgusting bastard!'

The goddess, who noticed Seongjin's disgusted gaze, spoke as if resigned.

[Didn't you say from the beginning that you wouldn't be able to shake it off? There is nothing I can do. It is another Justitia born in great chaos. He has become the law of this world in itself.]

Chaos or law, whatever, get away from me!

When Seongjin waved his arm towards the back again-

Woe! Woe!

The spirit force, which became sharper than before, struck the leech several times.

Kyakyakya!

Then, the leech narrowed its gaping eye sockets and laughed at Seongjin. As if she was making a futile attempt.

[Didn't you hear? I have already become the law of this world!]

Blood-soaked lips clenched, and an unpleasant voice was heard, as if rusty iron was being ground.

[Everyone can't avoid me! You are already seeing, hearing, and breathing through me! I am another foundation that supports this world, I am like the atmosphere of the world!]

'... atmosphere?'

It was right then.

There was one strong memory that came to Seongjin's mind.

-Mores, what would you have done if you were that bird?

A bird that fell into the sea.

A familiar voice quietly explained about it.

-Birds also had the ability to adapt other organs as they wanted. It's just that for him, the water in the sea was still an external force that he had to overcome, and he couldn't recognize it as something to breathe naturally.

My father said back then that I was like a bird in the water.

But did the atmosphere of another dimension mean only Delcross?

-It's not that moving, Mores.

Another memory comes to mind.

A vibration like a small laugh that resonated softly with the sound of music.

-It is simply a matter of generating a strong thought based on memory and creating a complete mental image. So that the aura contained there can flow naturally along the flame.

I know.

I have already learned how to create thoughts by creating thoughts.

Grumble!

And before Seongjin was even aware of it, a small flame bloomed in front of his eyes along with the memory that naturally came to mind.

He was very familiar with Gehenna's burning of everything.

'... 'Demon King No. 2'

At first glance, it was an insignificant flame, as if it were the devil's true form. However, its power was exactly the same as what was seen from the gap.

It's a shame.

Like dust falling, when Demon King No. 2 fell from the sky onto the leech's hand -

Grrrrrrrrrrrr!

The flame that caught the target grew bigger in an instant and quickly spread behind Seongjin.

[What is this! □□□ □□! What are you doing now!]

With the cries of the embarrassed goddess Justitia -

Wow!

Suddenly, the tearing sound of a leech rang out. A completely different reaction from his previous relaxed attitude.

But before Seongjin could check the results, his vision suddenly blurred and the darkness swept away.

"... rain!"

... huh?

"It's a newbie!"

And then he felt someone grabbing his shoulders and shaking him violently. Seongjin slowly blinked her eyes as if she was waking up from her sleep.

"what's the matter? Why are you suddenly standing blankly?"

My blurry vision becomes brighter, and I see copper-colored hair shimmering before my eyes.

"... "Owen?"

"For a moment, I thought I fainted while standing up. Are you okay?"

"Is it Owen?"

"What are you talking about all of a sudden? "Are you really in pain?"

Seongjin looked blankly at the person standing in front of him with a bewildered expression on his face.

That's because the guy who was supposed to be a red fox has now completely changed into something I've never seen before.

'what? The voice is definitely Owen's?'

The person in front of Seongjin now was a sturdy young man with an expression as cheerful as his voice.

The long, copper-colored hair looked like a rich fox tail, and the outfit was a bit unfamiliar, with brown feathers decorated here and there.

Seongjin slowly raised his hand and rubbed his eyes with his small hoof.

what? My avatar is still fine?

"Owen, you... .."

"huh? what's the matter?"

The young man asked back as if he was worried.

Ah, when I heard the voice, I was sure it was that stupid fox bastard.

But why did his skin suddenly disappear and the graphics become normal?

296. Code Zero (1)

'What happened?'

Seongjin played around with the status window for a moment.

□Object - Skin 'Gather together, friends'□

□On/Off□

□On/Off□

However, no matter how many times I turned the skin on and off, the situation did not change. It feels like not only external objects but even the player's graphic skin has been completely blown away.

Of course, even in this situation, Seongjin was still angry that he remained a small goat.

"Are you sure you'll be okay, newbie?"

Owen, who had an unfamiliar face, asked again with a worried expression.

That wasn't the only thing that changed.

Crackling.

Although there were unpleasant noises occasionally, the surrounding scenery seemed quite realistic, unlike before.

I guess the reason the graphics were so bad at first wasn't simply because the milestone was broken.

-You are already seeing, hearing, and breathing through me!

Suddenly, the voice of a drowned body that was viciously tearing out its eyes came to mind, and Seongjin felt goosebumps running down his spine.

It must be because of him, right?

Did Demon King No. 2 kill him properly?

[Lee Seong-jin, are there still any anxiety factors that need to be considered? If you, the leader, are against it, you can put off running the themed dungeon right now.]

Hatasu Titi. "No," asked the shield warrior with Hatasu Titi's voice.

This person also appeared to be a normal person on the outside. Of course, only the abnormally thin and elongated impression and the creaky movements of the limbs remained the same.

[I believe in Dexter, Seongjin Lee. Okay.]

The most unexpected thing was the group. She had the appearance of a very typical beauty, with flowing fine hair.

The flaw was that the limbs, which looked agile as a ranger, moved a little shakily.

'what. Originally, I was wondering why I left my legs in the world, so I thought the avatar was just a mollusk, but surprisingly, he's fine, isn't he?'

I almost got fooled like that for a moment.

If only Gureub's long hair had not moved alone and kindly held out a potion in front of Seongjin's eyes!

'... ... !?'

[Potion of abnormal status. Would you like to drink it?]

Seongjin, who was shocked, awkwardly accepted the potion.

'What is this again? 'Does the hair have powered joints?'

Group. How on earth did you become an avatar?

[What should I do, newbie? If you're not feeling well, would you like to take a break during this dungeon?]

In the meantime, Owen's appearance was truly a sight to behold.

He looks free-spirited, wearing armor roughly over his shabby clothes, and with his flowing copper-colored hair tied back tightly.

Seongjin looked at him disapprovingly for a moment while holding the potion.

'There are degrees of sloppiness. What are those feathers that bloom like a magpie's nest on your head? 'You're the first prince of Delcross, so can't you dress up more properly?'

However, in a situation where we haven't revealed each other's identities yet, we can't nag like this carelessly.

okay. Did you say you spent a long time on the battlefield with the heretics? Then maybe you should understand.

I guess he had assumed that Owen would be similar to him, having spent a long time interacting with the neatly dressed members of the imperial palace.

'I'll pass this time. But you bastard, just keep walking around like that when you return to the palace!'

[...] ... ?]

Tingling.

Owen, who received Seongjin's harsh glare without knowing why, scratched his messy hair in embarrassment.

[The C-rank dungeon, 'The Orc King's Maze', is not a very difficult dungeon overall. As the name Maze suggests, the structure is complex, but if you solve the 'conditions' well, the difficulty level goes down like previous dungeons.]

The little mole continued his explanation while fiddling with his goggles. Even though everyone's appearance changed, only Dexter still looked like a cute animal friend.

Is it because it is the account that purchased the skin directly? Or is the change in avatar proof that it is not just a matter of appearance?

[Long-range, close-range, and magic-type orcs are spread out evenly in all directions of the maze. The compatibility of each is quite clear, so if you work through it step by step, there will be no major problems.]

Then Hatasu Titi tilts his head. It still felt strange to see her suddenly change from a simple deer to that of a serious warrior.

[It's the same as the first explanation, Dexter. By mentioning this again, does it mean that you have no intention of attacking according to the previous plan?]

[okay. We need to discuss it with everyone.]

The mole nodded, adjusting his goggles.

[It's true that I came here and saw the records, but the other team's time challenge record was much faster than expected.]

[That means... ..]

[This means that if we follow the rules, we won't even come close to these records.]

The standard strategy for 'The Orc King's Maze' was to go through the complex mazes from all three directions and head to the boss room.

A tricky structure that requires you to sequentially step through mazes that change over time while avoiding traps and alarms here and there.

[Of course, you can give up part of the maze and go straight to the boss room, but in that case, although the time will be shortened, the clear score will be extremely low.]

[what? Then what on earth did the other guys do?]

[It's difficult to understand. Don't go through all the mazes. But it catches all the mobs. how?]

At that moment, Seongjin, who had been listening quietly, calmly said something.

[...] You're stepping on all the alarms from the beginning.]

[...] ... !?]

Everyone's shocked gaze gathered together.

Dexter also looks at Seongjin with surprised eyes, and then nods his head in confusion.

[okay. You noticed it well. That's exactly the conclusion I came to. The other party members probably intentionally drew mobs into their path to shorten the clearing time as much as possible.]

[But is that possible? If you attack the maze step by step according to your compatibility, if all the mobs in the maze come pouring out at once, the difficulty level of clearing increases to the extreme.]

At Hatasu Titi's words, everyone's expressions became serious.

Hundreds of mobs of all types pouring into one place at the same time. From then on, it is no longer a problem that can simply be dismissed as low-level mobs.

[Aren't there 'conditions' that need to be solved for each type? I heard that Justitia's conditions become quite complicated from C rank? Fighting hundreds of orcs while protecting them sequentially...]

Owen shook his head heavily.

[No matter how much I think about it, it's unreasonable. Ordinary users who can try it multiple times may not know, but for us, it is a reckless challenge that requires us to sacrifice our lives.]

Pangea Chronicle is a very realistic game in which high-level players can die unexpectedly due to the knife attacks of beginners.

If all kinds of attacks were coming from all directions at once, no matter how high their defense was, they wouldn't have the talent to hold out for long.

[But Dexter is smart. He definitely thinks there is a way.]

The mole nodded, feeling a little embarrassed at the group's point out.

[okay. According to my calculations, it's not completely impossible in theory. Would you like to take a listen?]

So what Dexter proposed was a kind of defensive warfare.

The idea is to run the shortest distance to the three-way intersection where the boss room is, and take turns blocking attacks coming from each direction based on that point.

[...] switch?]

[okay. It's the core of this defense. The 'condition' for 'The Orc King's Maze' is to inflict damage equal to 30% of total HP with an attack of the same attribute.]

In other words, you must start attacking close range mobs with close range, and attack wizard mobs with magic.

On the other hand, the tricky thing was that once you broke that condition, you had to use a completely different type of attack against the weakened mob to get any benefit in terms of defense.

For example, if a wizard weakens a wizard, then the ranger has to beat them to death.

[A close-range warrior is a good match for a ranger, and a wizard is a good match for a close-range match. So, you have to meet the troops coming from three sides, break each condition, and then quickly change the attack position according to the compatibility.]

[hmm...]

Although it seemed plausible at first glance, there were several problems with it.

Gureub asked, sweeping down the quiver with his hair.

[It's tight. What happens when the same mobs come pouring in from three directions at the same time? There may be overlap.]

[That can be solved by getting to the boss room in the shortest possible time and sounding the alarm. The Orcs' small units are spread out quite evenly, so if you think they are leaving for the boss room at the same time, there is almost no chance of them overlapping.]

Moreover, just because the compatibility is not right, it does not mean that the attack will not work at all. In the end, Dexter added that this is a problem that will naturally be resolved if the side that defeats it first supports the other passage.

[But what do you do with the guys you meet on the way? Ultimately, the structure of the maze changes over time. By the time we get to the boss room, the troops chasing us will be all mixed up.]

Dexter nodded at Hatasu Titi's point.

[You have to go out there by breaking the conditions you encounter. If possible, it would be a good idea to reduce their number as much as possible while running. Then, at least the passage we passed through will have much more room to defend later.]

[Still, it sounds quite tight.]

The response is that the worries are still not gone.

However, the faces of the silent villains were much brighter than at first. As I listened to Dexter's explanation, I began to think more and more that maybe it was really possible.

[Orc warriors have a narrow detection range and there is a slight delay in recognizing long-distance targets. Orc wizards also have the characteristic of switching to buff mode when there is a ranged unit in front. [I'm trying to make the most of that loophole.]

Dexter continued speaking with a confident face.

[Besides, everyone's power is different from yesterday. You all got your hands on advanced reinforced weapons, right? I think it's worth a try.]

[okay. In the end, the first key will be how quickly you can reach the boss room without getting lost in the maze.]

Owen, who was deep in thought with his arms crossed, suddenly asked Seongjin while secretly examining his expression.

[What do you do, newbie? To be honest, I think it's a pretty realistic plan.]

[hmm...]

Seongjin held the beginner's sword without answering.

Originally, I would have shouted opposition without even thinking about it, but-

'Do you think it's possible?'

For some reason, I had a strong feeling like that.

Dexter's plan was already being drawn up in elaborate drawings in Seongjin's head.

Occasionally, the rhythm may be off due to hands and feet not being in sync, but according to Seongjin's expectations, it was within the acceptable range that he could respond to.

'Now that there are no obstructions blocking the view...'

Perhaps, unlike before, I will be able to demonstrate my skills to my heart's content.

Moreover, because I was against it unconditionally, something about what I heard earlier bothered me.

-You will accelerate this flood of chaos and eventually cause the collapse of the world.

Considering Justitia's warning, Seongjin may not be able to stay here for very long.

In the meantime, if we don't do something about that fox bastard... ... !

[...] Let's do it.]

Eventually, everyone's faces brightened at Seongjin's heavy answer.

[Okay, well thought out, mo... Seongjin Lee!]

[what? Newbie. I thought you would be against it, but it's hotter than I thought.]

[If Seongjin Lee evaluates it positively, this plan definitely has a high chance of winning!]

okay. Think as you please.

Seongjin left the silent villains talking excitedly. It would be better to move without being nervous, which would further increase the success rate of the plan.

'Plus, if the situation arises, there remains a final means of escape.'

Seongjin looked at the group and smiled brightly.

[If there's a problem with the plan, Gureub-keul-lab-gurreub-bi-keul-leub will grab us and hang us from the ceiling. yes?]

Then, all you have to do is summon Hayes and wipe out all the mobs within range.

Then the beautiful ranger, who was dancing with joy, raised her slender arms and shouted confidently.

[The maze is not cold! Group, you can hang on strong forever!]

Okay, group.

At least you are the most trustworthy here.

297. Code Zero (2)

'The Orc King's Maze' is a three-pronged maze dungeon built on a huge square site.

The dungeon starts at one corner of the square, and a huge boss room is located at the end of the opposite corner.

[The time challenge starts as soon as you enter the entrance, so let's save time and decide on a general direction first.]

Dexter drew a brief picture on the floor with a staff. This was for Guest ID users who could not receive help from the minimap.

[I dictate the overall direction. Due to the nature of the maze dungeon, the path does not appear on the mini-map, but we can still determine our approximate location.]

[Group! Dexter is someone you can rely on!]

[good. Once you enter the entrance, everyone runs to the right. The leader goes to Owen or Hatasu Titi. The placement of the Orc subunits is determined randomly, but more than half of the first hitters are close-range fighters. and...]

[Why don't you go to the center?]

At that time, Seongjin cut off his explanation and asked.

Are you heading to the boss room at the end of the square? Well, it's common sense that the shortest distance is to just cross diagonally, right?

[They say it's quite easy to get lost and wander around the central area. It is said that there are many side roads and roads that go backwards are often created. If you follow one edge, the risk of losing direction is much reduced.]

[Hmm.]

[In addition, the central maze is a passage where the three mazes merge once the alarm goes off incorrectly. If you do something wrong, hundreds of mobs may pour in without time lag.]

okay? Then what?

Seongjin nodded, thinking nothing of it.

[Then isn't it the same for the left? Why are you on the right?]

To Hatasu Titi's question, Dexter answered clearly.

[On the right, the deployment of long-distance small units is relatively high. It is difficult to deal with them in large numbers, so it would be more advantageous to defeat them one by one when the opportunity arises.]

[aha!]

After completing this rough briefing, they entered the dungeon one by one, maintaining a somewhat pleasant level of tension.

But the last time was when Seongjin stepped into the dungeon.

Crackling-

For a moment, a subtle noise caught his eye and then disappeared.

'... ... ?'

Surprised, Seongjin blinked for a moment, but fortunately his vision didn't change much.

'what?'

He squinted his eyes, feeling something unpleasant, but Owen looked back at him and smiled cheerfully.

"What is it, newbie? Are you suddenly nervous? Anyway, you are part of the short-range team, so this time, don't run around alone. Stay quietly behind me or Titi. Because it's dangerous. Did you understand?"

Seongjin glared at him with a sullen face.

No, this fox bastard still treats me like a beginner?

"Leaving aside Dexter, who is a real newbie, why am I still treated as the youngest member of the party?"

"hmm? But isn't that friend higher level than you now? "Not only did I complete my job change yesterday, but I also found some full-strengthening items somewhere and am wearing them."

"... .."

I had nothing to say about him.

Dexter. They backed off and said they wouldn't do that, but ended up committing a considerable amount of money in one day. Isn't this the sprout of a truly excellent gamer?

And soon three passages appeared.

The group started running straight toward the maze entrance on the right, as instructed by Dexter.

No, I tried to do that.

If only Seongjin hadn't suddenly become startled and stopped walking.

"... "Are you a newbie?"

"Why are you doing this, Seongjin Lee?"

Everyone stopped and called out to him, but Seongjin did not answer and just stared down the dark central passage.

Tingling.

Immediately, I felt a strange pain around my eyes...

sparkle! Something like a solid silver line shines in the central passage and then disappears in an instant.

'That...'

This wasn't Seongjin's first experience.

When was it? When you were dealing with the demon beast using the demon lord's spiritual eyes, didn't you somehow feel something similar to this back then?

[middle.]

[Let's go to the center!]

In a strange, inexplicable confidence, Seongjin gave succinct instructions and immediately ran toward the center.

Bwak bwak bwak bwak!

There was no time for the group to stop them. Before we knew it, the little goat had completely disappeared beyond the darkness of the central passage, leaving behind only petal-shaped footprints!

[hey! Don't jump out, newbie! It's dangerous!]

Owen, scared, hurriedly follows him -

[Hurry! Or be left behind!]

The group that jumped out behind them began to run lazily after them.

[There's a change of plan! Let's go, Dexter!]

Finally, when Hatasu Titi moved his body without much agitation, Dexter, who was embarrassed, also hurriedly moved towards the central maze.

Hey, what on earth is this? What about our briefing?

Can anyone explain this situation properly?

The first small unit they encountered was, as Dexter expected, close-range Orc warriors.

The fierce, muscular monsters armed with sharp war clubs glared at Seongjin and the others with glowing red eyes.

Crrrrr...

Although they were Orc warriors with a relatively narrow detection range, it was still not enough for them to not notice the group approaching.

However, before they were ready for battle.

Phew!

The beginner's sword that flew in from afar pierced right between the eyes of the Orc warrior in the lead. Although the destructive power it contains is not that great, the attack is enough to get a vital point!

Wow!

With a loud scream, half of the orc's HP disappears in an instant.

[Ahh! wait for a sec! At least give me some time to prepare for a follow-up attack! At close range, you have to use a follow-up magic attack to be compatible... No, but did you throw the sword? So, is this a close range decision or a long distance decision?]

Dexter panics and struggles to find a disposable magic scroll.

Clumpy.

Suddenly, ominous black smoke began to rise around the mountain goat.

[Have you called this servant? Lord of my soul!]

Whoa!

The black smoke quickly expanded in volume, soon covering the passage and enveloping the orcs.

Gurgling.

Gurgling... ..

That was annihilation. The small unit of Orc warriors could not even scream properly and dissolved in vain, leaving behind only a few items.

[...]]

Dexter gaped in shock, but Seongjin picked up the beginner's sword that had fallen on the floor and spoke calmly.

[As expected, it is a close range decision. Seeing as they melt into nothingness more than a low-level Ice Banshee, it seems like they got a proper nerf to their magic defense.]

[No, mo... Seongjin Lee! You are real!]

It was at that time that Dexter, who was in tears, was about to pour out a bunch of complaints.

Kurrrrrr-

With a heavy noise, the entire dungeon shook violently. This is a signal that the dungeon will be reassembled after a certain period of time and that part of the maze will change.

Deukdeukdeuk!

The single path in front of them also split into two paths, with pillars rising and part of the wall collapsing.

sparkle!

For a moment, a strange silver glow appeared in the baby goat's eyes and then disappeared.

[This time it's the right path.]

Seongjin spoke briefly and turned around.

[Hey, you now... .. !]

[Time continues to pass. Don't hesitate and let's go to the next location. hey! Leave items that fall on the floor alone! I think it would be better not to touch that!]

[Group? Is that so?]

The beautiful ranger who was tapping the fallen war club with her foot straightened her posture and raised her head.

[Anyway, hurry up! Gureupppwalapgurureub bippuleulleup. I have a feeling that you will have to start the attack next time.]

After giving such rough instructions, the baby goat started running the maze again.

Bwak bwak bwak!

There would be no mini-map, but it was truly an unstoppable move.

[...] Does that guy even know what he's doing?]

Dexter is in a daze...

[Then I am next! The warrior's intestines are on fire!]

Meandering.

With movements that seemed strangely slow, the group quickly began to follow Seongjin.

[You're really buying and playing well today, newbie.]

Owen sighed and ran after him, asking.

[Anyway, group, what on earth do you believe in and why do you just do whatever the newbie tells you to do?]

[Lee Seong-jin never gets the name wrong! He is wise! His judgment is trustworthy!]

It was a very absurd reason.

[What is it? You have to make sure the name is correct, right? Isn't that too blind?]

Then, while maintaining its running speed, the group twisted its neck back more than 120 degrees and looked back at Owen. Her flexibility was so extreme that it was scary.

[If you doubt my judgment, why don't you just say my name, Owen?]

[Gurrppa...]

[you're right! That's why I never trust your judgment!]

[what? Hey, man!]

Behind the bickering two, Hatasu Titi, carrying a large shield, ran carefree and shouted.

[Both of you, please focus on the battle! Seongjin Lee ordered the group to take the lead next, so Owen and I, and our close-range fighters, should be in charge of the follow-up attacks!]

[Oh, that's right!]

[Group! I reflect!]

Dexter, who was listening, was dumbfounded.

Wait a minute, isn't Hatasu Titi the most blind person out there? How on earth can you completely believe such groundless instructions?

But something surprising happened. The small unit they encountered next was indeed an Orc longbow unit!

'... Really?'

While Dexter was shocked, the excited group took the lead and aimed an arrow.

[good! I've been waiting for this moment! I'm going with maximum power!]

The demonstration with thin arms pulling desperately was truly unreliable.

Wedge!

However, as soon as it was released from the guy's hand, the arrow shot forward with a terrifying booming sound.

Flutter!

And he pierced two Orc archers at once and pinned them to the maze wall.

[...] ... !]

A high-level ranger conversion skill that has been used in practice for a long time. There was no need to calculate the lost HP.

Slurp.

The orcs died, disappearing as a ray of light in the air.

Wow!

Oh my!

The remaining unit members protested with red eyes shining, but the necessary 'conditions' had already been met.

[Break through, Owen!]

[Okay, leave it to me!]

The two warriors who stormed into the unit next struck down the shower of arrows with relative ease and wiped out the unit. Thanks to this, the party was able to maintain their running speed and completely defeat the long-distance troops.

'If things continue this way, there will be almost no mobs left in the central maze, right?'

Dexter thought as he walked after them.

There was no doubt that it was sufficient power, but the current situation was going even more smoothly than Dexter had expected.

[Hey, Titi. Don't just lean against the wall.]

[I understand, Seongjin Lee.]

This time, Seongjin did not come forward. Silent villains do not stop you from picking up items. I just watched the silent villains in action and then spewed out pointless nagging.

And by then, Dexter was starting to have a reasonable suspicion.

'Wait a minute, Seongjin Lee. Are you avoiding the alarm right now?'

The key to this time challenge was to ring the alarm at the right place to drive away the mob. An alarm that was pressed unintentionally could have put party members in danger in an instant.

The problem was that in the case of trap alarms that occurred randomly, it was nearly impossible to completely avoid them.

These can appear out of nowhere on the floor or hide in walls, and sometimes exist in items dropped by mobs.

'I've tried to familiarize myself with all known alarms as much as possible...'

To be honest, Dexter was prepared to step on one or two trap alarms.

That was why he tried to avoid the central passage as much as possible. Because the total length is short, there are many side roads and many trap alarms.

Whether it's a standard event or a time challenge, there's a reason why most parties don't choose the center aisle.

[This time, everyone just follow behind me. Don't just walk around here and there. This road is on the left.]

Bwak bwak bwak!

As Seongjin started running again after giving concise instructions, Dexter's doubts slowly turned into confidence.

'Do you really think you know the location of the alarm? Seongjin Lee, what on earth is he doing?'

298. Code Zero (3)

Seongjin and his party, running at high speed, had already covered half of the central maze. Without any crisis situation or even without stepping on the trap alarm once.

Where is that? By following precise instructions and working closely together, they even cleaned up the mobs they encountered on the way!

'This is definitely not a coincidence!'

Dexter thought as he adjusted his crooked goggles from running.

How many crossroads have they passed so far? But running smoothly through a continuously changing maze without a set route, without encountering a single dead end?

'Lee Seong-jin, what on earth is he doing?'

Bwak bwak bwak!

Dexter looked at the back of a small goat running majestically, making cute footsteps.

Now that I think about it, did you say that that guy is the son of the highest person in the Delcross dimension?

'I thought he was a brat who fearlessly resorted to fraud based on the power of those in power...'

That may not be all.

Once I close the connection, I'll have to ask the old man in detail about that guy. Dexter promised that.

[This is going to be too easy, right?]

[Relax! Just organize everything as you go!]

[You can't let down your guard, but as the group said, there's no need to be overly nervous!]

At this rate, after arriving at the boss room, you only need to worry about attacks coming from the two remaining directions.

Everyone was relieved to think that, but surprisingly, the face of Seongjin, who was leading them, was not that bright.

"There are points of slight discrepancy... .."

"huh? Newbie, what did you say?"

"No, it's nothing."

Seongjin waved his hand at Owen and then looked back at Dexter.

"Even though it's faster than expected, we don't have that much time to spare. "You know that too, right?"

"... .."

Coincidentally, Dexter was thinking the same thing.

The reason they chose a defensive battle was probably for the safety of party members.

Move forward by defeating the mobs that gather along the way. And after completely passing through one maze, you fight a defensive battle against the mobs that come from there.

If you have enough power and luck, it is obvious which one will be faster.

'Lee Seong-jin is right. There won't be much difference in the time required for a defense battle no matter how many times you do it. In the end, the key to determining the success of our plan will be how quickly we get through the maze in the first place!'

In 'A Terrible Fraudster', he is a guy who has an uncanny talent and is also quite smart.

Dexter's perception of Lee Seong-jin was slowly changing in that way.

[Gurreubpplabgurlubrp.]

sparkle!

Seongjin, with a strange sparkle in his eyes again, calls out to the group.

[Is the longbow unit next? good night! This body, take the mound!]

Just by being called, this strange ranger understood Seongjin's words perfectly.

Meandering.

He pulled the strings while making funny gestures that I couldn't tell if he was dancing or a warm-up move.

[Go the strongest! Prepare for shock!]

It was right then.

Dudduddu!

A sudden change occurred in the dungeon. As soon as we were faced with a small unit from a distance, the maze changed a beat quickly.

[...] ... ?!]

[Oh! Blocked!]

[Just step back, group!]

[what? Change is too fast?]

Kurrrrrr...

And by the time the maze was finally re-established, the Orc longbow troops on the other side of the passage had already recognized them.

Peeing! ping! ping!

As soon as the road opens, arrows come raining down from them.

[this... .. !]

A longbow that is evaluated as extremely ineffective in narrow dungeons.

However, since they could not close the distance in a straight passage, there was no more threatening curtain of arrows.

[Group! First you have to attack them! Even if we move forward while blocking with a shield, we won't be able to last long there unless we resolve the 'condition'!]

Hatasu Titi held out his shield and shouted, but Gurup violently shook his hair in denial.

[It's impossible here! The longbow has a long range! I need to dig deeper!]

That's right, the group's weapon is a composite bow that has been modified to focus on power rather than range. It was an obvious choice to run through the dungeon.

[Then what? Are you going to jump in like this?]

[Let's ask wise Dexter! Is there some easy strategy?]

[huh? No, that's it... ..]

Dexter looked at the rain of arrows with a perplexed expression.

'what? As the maze changed, a long straight passage was accidentally created. Thanks to this, the Orc longbow units are making full use of long-range special skills. 'Is it possible for there to be a space within the maze that allows this much range?'

Moreover, their skill cooldowns had somehow been reduced, and strangely enough, the spacing between the arrows flying felt very tight.

"Your eyes are red... .."

"... ..?"

Suddenly, I turned my head to see Seongjin Lee rubbing his eyes with his hoof and making a serious expression.

"eye? What eyes?"

"Their eyes are gradually turning red. "Don't you know?"

Dexter looked in the opposite direction in confusion, but the evil eyes of the orcs staring this way were not much different from the first time.

You'll still earn it, right? What on earth has changed?

"But why do you keep rubbing your eyes? "Where does it hurt?"

"No, the noise... .."

"noise?"

At that time, Owen grabbed the ax and stepped forward.

[Why are you so embarrassed? Just because you've achieved some easy results these days, it's natural that you can't always get away with it, right?]

[Owen?]

Perhaps because he had been on the front line for a long time, he seemed completely unfazed even in this situation.

[Don't waste time looking for a way out, just do what you always do. First, Titi takes Gurup and approaches the guys as much as possible. Then, when it reaches the range, the group immediately leaves the shield and fires an arrow!]

Then Hatasu Titi looked straight ahead with a worried face.

[But the moment you leave the shield to attack, you will be defenselessly exposed to their special skills.]

[Don't worry too much about that. I will go with you by your side.]

Owen slowly turned his shoulders and raised the corners of his mouth.

[When the right time comes, I will first focus their attention with 'War Cry.']

War Cry.

A basic aggro skill possessed by melee warriors.

[...]]

Everyone was silent and looked at Owen. What he said was clearly a correct method, but there were two big problems with it.

Hatasu Titi's shield can additionally protect only one group. And the attacks of the Orc longbow unit are not that light to induce concentrated fire with War Cry.

In other words, Owen approaches the enemy's arrows with his bare body and makes dangerous noises that will eventually focus the attack on himself.

[What's wrong with you? are you okay. This is something that can happen at least once in a defensive battle anyway...]

Wow!

[...] 100 million!?!]

Owen, who had been talking cheerfully, fell backwards, clutching his forehead from the sudden shock.

'... what?'

He was hit so hard that some of his HP was blown away. For a moment, he thought he had been hit by an orc's blind arrow.

When he looked up in confusion, he saw a small mountain goat glaring at him with very murderous eyes.

[You man, do you usually go around like this?]

[...] Are you a newbie?]

[After all this, you've been nagging others like they shouldn't die and telling them to take care of themselves, which doesn't work? Isn't this guy completely lacking?]

It was an unprecedentedly harsh criticism.

[No, newbie. But there's no way, right? What would you do if you caused damage to a party member in a situation like this?]

Owen protested fiercely, but what came instead of an answer was another night.

[You deserve it even if you get hit!]

Wow!

[What!?!]

Owen rolled on the floor again, holding his forehead and making a puzzled expression.

what? It's just one night, why can't I avoid it? And it hurts like this?

Next to Owen, a potion bottle wrapped around his hair creeps up.

[Have you tried drinking the HP recovery potion?]

[ah. Thank you, group.]

Seongjin looked at Owen with pitiful eyes for a moment as he gulped down the potion, then turned his head towards Hatasu Titi.

[TT. What is the scope of War Cry? Can we influence them here too?]

Then the quick-witted shield warrior quickly nodded.

[Of course it's possible. War Cry is a skill that is mainly used in large fields.]

[Then there is no need to follow the group's range. Here, protect yourself with a shield and use your skills with that idiot.]

[But Lee Seong-jin. Even if we get their attention from afar, if the group moves closer, their goals will likely change. War Cry is powerful, but not to the point where it completely ignores enemies that come close.]

[But while the goal is changing, there will definitely be a momentary gap in that arrow curtain.]

After answering like that, Seongjin took out his beginner's sword and called out his name.

[Gureupkkeullabgurleup bikyoleulleup. follow me.]

[Group?]

[...] ... ?]

Before everyone even understood what it meant-

Wow!

The mountain goat hit the ground with force and shouted.

[Let's hit the ceiling like before! First, let's catch up with them!]

[hey! Newbie!]

Startled, Owen belatedly got up and shouted, but-

Wow!

Seongjin, who had already stepped onto the relief of the stone wall, slightly twisted his body to avoid an incoming arrow, and jumped straight up toward the high ceiling.

Wow!

Eventually he reached the corner of the passage. A blind spot that narrowly escapes the curtain of arrows.

Dexter was shocked by the unimaginable sight, but surprisingly, the other silent villains seemed quite familiar with the sight.

[Newbie guy, what are you going to do if you end up screwing up a lot of people and then getting out like that?]

[Owen. Think about it later and focus properly! Soon the group comes into range. In order for him to be able to use his skills, we need to get their attention properly at least once!]

After that, it was simpler than I thought.

A war cry that violently shakes the passage. That one-second gap where the Orc archers were momentarily distracted.

[now!]

At Seongjin's signal, the group clinging to the ceiling pulled the bowstring vigorously with its hair.

ping! Wedge!

Ugh... ... !

With a tremendous sound, the Orc archer in the lead died. The arrow that was aimed properly at Uldae pierced the guy's neck and cut it off!

[good!]

The condition has been resolved!

After confirming that the mob had completely melted, Seongjin easily kicked the wall one last time.

Wow!

And it gently landed at the rear of the Orc unit, which was shaking and confused about the priority of the goal. Just by running up and down the wall, I really caught them off guard.

After that, it's purely a close-range warrior's interval.

Seongjin kicked away the cumbersome longbow of the guy closest to him and plunged the knife right into his clearly exposed carotid artery.

Sigh!

Keke!

A critical hit appears immediately, and 2/3 of HP disappears in an instant.

Puff puff!

However, it was the arrows of other orcs that completely finished him off. Before the archers' arrows left the field, Seongjin pulled the sword from the man's neck and turned it into a shield.

Slurp-

The guy whose HP was low quickly melted into a handful of light. The cover that covered his body was gone, but Seongjin had already kicked off the floor and dug deep inside, sinking his sword into the heart of another guy.

Phew!

[Newbie! It's too dangerous! Don't dig in alone!]

[Lee Seong-jin! Please wait!]

Owen and Hatasu Titi came from behind Seongjin, and the battle situation took a dramatic turn. They literally started slaughtering their enemies like crazy.

puck! Flutter! Phew!

Owen smashed their heads with one sharp blow every time, and Hatasu Titi wielded his shield like a weapon and knocked down the archers.

In that way, the Orc small unit was completely eliminated in an instant.

[What is this...]

When the matter was resolved more smoothly than expected, Dexter slowly approached them with a blank expression on his face.

No, let alone the other guys. Seongjin Lee What on earth is that guy doing that makes him move like that? Are you saying that you are the well-bred son of a high being?

Perhaps aware of Dexter's suspicious gaze, the little goat, who was sharpening his blood-soaked sword, answered indifferently.

[They're all low level mobs, right? There aren't many off-beats in the attacks, and there aren't any complicated skills. The AI is very simple, so it is not difficult to respond.]

[...]]

As the saying goes, the things that appear in C-rank dungeons are relatively low-level monsters. Like elite mobs or bosses, they do not use complex skills such as 'skill absorption' or 'damage reflection'. That said, there isn't that much to calculate.

but.

'It's suspicious. 'You're so suspicious!'

Dexter repeatedly promised himself that he would definitely find out about that guy when he got back.

After that, there were no more situations that would hold them back.

Although there were times when the maze's deformation and the attack's tempo were slightly off, we were still able to continue the attack relatively smoothly.

Above all, as long as they followed Seongjin, they never lost their way. It also takes less time than expected.

So Dexter thought everything was going well. Except for the occasional muttering from Seongjin behind me.

"It's still within the range of response, not yet... .."

Every time he did that, a strange feeling of anxiety came over Dexter. Doesn't this guy who has shown inhumane tricks on several occasions keep repeating those words make people more anxious?

And unfortunately, Dexter's fears became reality the moment he reached the boss room.

Bleep-

With an ear-piercing alarm, the boss room suddenly opened and a huge orc came out.

Wow!

"... Orc king? Why all of a sudden now?"

thud! thud! thud!

Every time he takes a step with his heavy body, the entire dungeon shakes violently due to the recoil.

At the same time, Dexter's mind gradually turned white. what? What's this? I don't know anything about this situation... .. !

[Everyone come to your senses!]

Just then, there was a voice that seemed to pierce into his brain and awaken his mind.

[We expected attacks from three sides from the beginning! yes?]

[Lee Seong-jin... .. !]

[The center has been swept clean, so all that remains is the corridors on both sides, the boss, and attacks from three sides!]

Dexter couldn't stop talking.

No, that's not true, Seongjin Lee.

Bosses are different. AI is different. This is not a simple opponent that matches like rock, paper, scissors!

But even so, Seongjin's next words had a strange power that touched Dexter's heart.

[You just have to proceed with the defensive battle as planned! Leave everything else to me!]

299. Code Zero (4)

Uncertain factors appeared steadily from the beginning.

Crackling- Chicking-

Forgettable noise that disturbs vision, and timing that slightly deviates from expectations.

but.

'It's still within the scope of response, not yet...' ... '

Seongjin moved forward, checking the clear blueprint drawn in his mind each time.

Maybe I overdo it a bit and get scolded by my father. But in the end, if I were to take Owen out and attack him, wouldn't he be forgiven for giving me a single slap?

[Arrived!]

In this way, the group completely escaped the maze and finally arrived in front of the huge stone gate.

[This is the boss room of this dungeon, 'King's Hall.' According to the strategy book, Raigas, the orc king who built the maze, appears as the boss.]

The tightly closed stone gate was filled with ornate carvings befitting the name 'King's Hall'.

Bright golden torches were placed on both pillars supporting the door, and the elaborate relief shadows swayed as if they were struggling, drawn by the movement of the flames.

[Rigas is a boss with a fairly complex pattern for a C rank. Everyone, you remember what I explained about the Orc King, right?]

Then the silent villains quietly avoided Dexter's gaze and looked the other way.

[Hey, anyway, you can expect to be ranked, right? Passing the maze was faster than expected!]

[That was a good strategy, Dexter! Your plan is great!]

[Wait a minute, don't jump in, guys!]

However, unlike the party members who were noisy with relief, Seongjin's expression was not so good. He frowned and looked around the stone gate with a disapproving expression.

"hmm..."

Not good. From a while ago, I had a strange premonition that was getting stronger.

'It's still within the range of response, but...'

Crackling-

Just then, a strange noise sweeps through Seongjin's vision once again.

[Now that the central maze has been cleaned up, there will be more room for defense. Now, we're going to set off the trap alarm. Everyone, get ready.]

Dexter said that and walked towards the stone gate.

[Do you know where the alarm is, Dexter?]

[Of course. There are quite a few fixed alarms in front of the boss room. Just when you feel relieved that you have completely passed the maze, it is the final trap to catch the user in the back.]

[It is of very poor quality!]

[But they are already too well known to be a trap. These days, they say it's just used to check if there are any excessive mobs.]

After explaining this, Dexter placed his hand without hesitation on a gargoyle statue decorated to the right of the stone gate.

It was right then.

-Kiki kick.

A small laugh came from Seongjin's ear. It was just a faint noise, like the sound of the wind passing by, but-

'... Justitia?'

There was no way Seongjin could not recognize that unpleasant voice. A wet, faded voice of confusion followed him from the dark abyss.

Seongjin, who instantly grasped the situation, shouted.

"Hey, Dexter! for a moment... ..!"

But it was late.

At that time, Dexter had already turned the gargoyle's head completely to the side.

"huh? why?"

Dexter looks around in confusion.

Bleep!

A sharp, tearing alarm sound cut through the air.

[...] ... ?!]

Whoa!

At the same time, the surrounding torches, which had been shining gold, suddenly turned red. Even at a glance, you can tell that something is seriously wrong.

[W-what is it?]

[Dexter! It's a little strange! This doesn't seem to be a normal trap alarm!]

And then something unbelievable happened before their eyes.

Kurrrrrr...

With a heavy vibration shaking the entire dungeon, the untouched stone door to the boss room suddenly began to slowly open!

[...] ... !]

Due to the unexpected situation, everyone in the group froze in place.

[...] Why is the boss room suddenly open now?]

[The alarm pressed by Dexter was wrong?]

[Is that possible? Unless you open it directly with the key, there is no way the boss room will just open!]

Leaving the panicked party members behind, Seongjin stood still and waited for the enemy to appear. A powerful enemy arranged for him by the goddess, twisting the rules of the solid normal world.

-You who destroy the order of Pangea...

Eventually, at the completely opened entrance to the boss room, there was a huge orc standing over 5 meters tall.

Wrinkled skin symbolizing age and red eyes with a bright glow of anger. And a heavy double-edged ax slung over his shoulder.

It was the dungeon's boss, the Orc King Raigas.

Coo!

With a heavy vibration, the Orc King takes a step straight towards them. As soon as the boss room opened, it seemed like they recognized them as enemies.

-Ominous one who was once prophesied by the goddess...

thud! thud! thud!

Every time he takes a step with his heavy body, the entire dungeon shakes violently due to the recoil.

-Just as the goddess said, you ended up in front of this 'wise Raigas'!

Is this some kind of cut scene for the main story? It is a very intimidating appearance.

Every time he uttered a word in a low voice, his cold breath spread into the air and the auspicious energy grew stronger.

-You will make a clumsy excuse saying that the sins you committed were only for the sake of Pangea.

-Know the topic! The more you struggle, the more you become nothing more than an insignificant fish that pollutes the puddle...

Flash!

The Orc King's sharp gaze scans Seongjin's group.

'... That, that thing is a C rank boss?'

Dexter turned pale and took a step back without realizing it. Even though I know it's just a game, the guy's bloody energy makes my stomach tingle and my legs feel weak.

The problem was the silent villains who did not understand the Orc King's words at all.

[It's different from other dungeon bosses, isn't it? Talk to us. But why are you so angry?]

[He praised himself for being wise? It can never be wise!]

[First of all, conversation seems possible, but is it possible that they mistake us for someone else?]

The silent villains, very nervous about the unexpected situation, exchange urgent glances and thoughts.

Since they had never properly followed the main quest before, their confusion was probably natural.

[...] The Orc King tells us the main story. According to the game settings, the user is 'Thunderstorm Bone', who was prophesied to disrupt the order of Pangea. It could be said to be a kind of anti-hero... ..]

Dexter tried to explain belatedly.

[Don't worry too much about that.]

Seongjin immediately cut him off and stepped forward. The arbitrarily set main story is something I need to know.

[That's just data that recites the given lines like a play. It doesn't matter to him who we are. So everyone, get ready to fight!]

Bingle.

The Orc King's eyes turned to the side for a moment and looked directly at Seongjin. Red eyes that are filled with extreme anger, but also show calm wisdom at the same time.

But it was truly a fleeting moment, and the Orc King, who had turned his gaze, began to recite his last lines into the air.

-I will personally take away that feeble struggle! I, wise Rygas, great lord of the orcs!

Its loud cry resounded throughout the dungeon and echoed to the other side of the maze.

-This body rejects prophecy! I'm going to fight fate!

-So hurry up and attack, Thunderstorm Bone! The one who will bring a thunderstorm and destroy this world!

Wow!

The roar it let out caused strong wind pressure, and the surrounding torches shook as if they would go out all at once.

[That guy, that... what. Attack, I said it was very complicated, right?]

It doesn't look like it's easy to deal with. Owen decided so and made an urgent suggestion.

[I heard the ax grows and shoots some kind of magic? Then, how about retreating to the central maze and attacking slowly from a distance?]

Seongjin was a little dumbfounded.

That's all you remember about the Orc King's special moves? It was clear that he had completely forgotten Dexter's detailed preliminary briefing.

[Good idea, Owen!]

[Let's go back now! It's safe!]

Hatasu Titi and Gurup agree with that opinion and quickly turn around.

But things did not go as easily as they thought.

Crrrrr...

Kuok, Kuok.

A small unit of Orcs appeared from the maze on both sides, right and left. They probably all flocked here the moment the alarm went off.

[this...]

With a sigh, the silent villains hesitated and raised their weapons. For the first time, a faint sense of despair and urgency appear in their eyes, which had never lost their composure until now.

[...] What I touched was, of course, an alarm! But why...]

Dexter, looking pale, muttered.

[No matter how much I think about it, there is no way to do this! A boss invades a tightly planned defense battle. what? What's this? I don't know anything about this situation... ... !]

These guys are saying let's see now!

[Everyone come to your senses!]

Wow!

Seongjin took a powerful step forward and shouted, aiming his beginner's sword.

[We expected attacks from three sides from the beginning! yes?]

[Lee Seong-jin... ... !]

[The center has been swept clean, so all that's left is passageways on both sides, the boss, and attacks from three sides! What is the problem?]

Oh yeah. It did. The eyes of the silent villains slowly return to their original state.

Only Dexter had a desperate expression on his face, as if pleading, but Seongjin lightly ignored the minor anxiety of the personnel other than the power.

[You just have to proceed with the defensive battle as planned! Leave everything else to me!]

At the same time, a strange silver glow lingers in Seongjin's eyes and then disappears.

[Owen, take the right side! The group is on the left! Don't leave too much distance between the two of you so you can switch attacks right away!]

Seongjin briefly referred to the group's name for the first time, but there was no way there would be any objection to this.

Owen and Group grabbed their respective weapons and quickly ran toward the direction indicated by Seongjin.

[Dexter, you are in the center. Don't just approach and try to use the magic scroll, give instructions from the middle so those two can switch appropriately!]

Then Dexter stopped groping in his arms and answered with his chin shaking.

[Ah Okay!]

[good. TT. You take your shield and follow me.]

We'll take on the boss together.

Hatasu Titi, who clearly understood Seongjin's eyes, nodded with an ever more determined face.

The defensive battle, which was originally scheduled to involve three people, became very tight due to the absence of tanker Hatasu Titi.

Even though the central maze was completely cleaned, the gap between the mazes was too far to continue the attack and defense going back and forth between the two sides.

Especially when small units of the same type appeared on both sides at the same time, Owen and the group had to be very busy.

Plop! puck!

The group that fired fatal arrows at both sides of the longbow unit poking out through the maze's entrance lightly threw its body back and grabbed its dagger.

[Long range conditions have been resolved!]

[good! This time I take the left! I'll sweep it first, so just hang on for a moment!]

Their attacks had a great influence on compatibility, so when necessary, the group also joined in with swords. It was thanks to the fact that the weapons he had collected to defeat the Demon King remained in his possession.

On the other hand, in the case of the Orc wizards, both troops had to be dealt with by the arrows of the group.

[I apologize! I missed two!]

[HP is low, so I'll do something! Don't worry about that, just go here and solve the conditions first! This time, this is the archer unit!]

However, if the power of a wizard was needed, the two had no other option. All I can do is wait for Seongjin to help me appropriately.

[You are the true owner of my soul!]

Whoa!

Fortunately, black smoke came out from behind them with ghostly timing every time. The strange summoned beast, writhing as if it were alive, solved the conditions for the magician's unit at once and began mercilessly pounding close-range warriors coming from different directions one after another.

Kuok! Wow!

[Newbie!]

Just dealing with the boss must have been hectic.

Owen gets worried and turns around, but the stinging yell comes right back!

[Don't worry about this, mind your own business! You idiot!]

He was a really harsh guy who told me to be careful.

[Lee Seong-jin, be careful!]

Then Hatasu Titi warned. This is because the Orc King threw a huge double-edged ax towards Seongjin.

Kuaang!

A terrifying ax throwing technique that can kill you in one hit even with a decent amount of defense. 'The Fast and the Furious' shook the entire dungeon and created a deep furrow where the baby goat was standing.

Of course, Seongjin, who had sensed the attack, had already taken evasive action.

Wow!

Seongjin lightly got down next to Hatasu Titi and gave a warning.

[5 seconds after 'Fast and Furious', that guy completely absorbs all the impact. So don't attack for no reason and increase the distance! If you are too close, those skills may explode one after another like before!]

[I understand, Seongjin Lee!]

Hatasu Titi responds obediently and widens the distance to the other side of Seongjin.

Dexter, looking at the scene, inwardly stuck out his tongue.

'What is it, that guy? 'Are you fully aware of everything I briefly briefed you on?'

Unlike the defense battle, the boss battle ended relatively simply. Since it won't stick in your mind after passing the maze anyway, I thought I'd explain it properly in front of the boss room.

But do you remember the details that passed by in seconds?

Wow!

At that time, the baby goat hits the ground again. Hatasu Titi runs after the Orc King.

but-

Boom!

His mace was thrown back violently with a faint sound.

[sorry! I was a little fast!]

[no! It was exactly 5 seconds!]

Titi's attack had no problems at all. It's just that the time gap that surrounds the Orc King is getting worse.

[Considering a slight error, I roughly calculate it to 6 seconds!]

After responding like that, Seongjin turned around the Orc King counterclockwise. Then, when there was a momentary gap, he quickly slipped into the sword strike and swung his sword.

Sigh!

The excellently executed graphics clearly revealed the long torn wound on the Orc King's ankle.

-This scum!

Whoa!

The Orc King, who was screaming, suddenly thrusts his double-edged ax in front of his chest and his eyes flash.

[Ah, the 'Ring of Wisdom'! It is a wide-range magic that takes 1.5 seconds to activate and sweeps over 180 degrees in a circle!]

Then Hatasu Titi quickly ran towards Seongjin. This quick-witted shield warrior has learned that he can avoid a fatal blow once he is near the baby goat.

Hwaaaaaaa!

At the same time, the magic ring spinning around the blade of the shield began pouring out terrifying flames like a flamethrower.

Chijijiji-

A black, semi-circular mark is etched into the dungeon floor.

And after using a magic skill, there is a brief stiffness of 0.5 seconds.

Sigh!

Seongjin, not missing the timing, powerfully plunges his sword into the guy's knee. It is an accurate attack targeting the cruciate ligaments.

Kuuouk!

Thanks to this, the Orc King, who had difficulty moving, screamed in frustration and frantically swung his double-edged ax.

[Lygas is so huge! You can't easily inflict a critical hit with a beginner's sword!]

Quang! bang!

Hatasu Titi shouted, struggling to block the ax with his shield.

[are you okay!]

Because critical hits are being judged correctly.

Seongjin answered simply and immediately kicked his feet in search of the timing for the next attack.

Boop!

'After the Ring of Wisdom is activated, the time during which no magic is applied to the weapon is approximately 9 seconds.'

Bwak bwak bwak!

Seongjin ran diligently over the swinging ax and quickly reached the guy's nose.

The Orc King was startled by his sudden approach and bit himself, but-

Oh my gosh!

Seongjin slightly twisted his body and drew long cuts around the guy's eyes.

sparkle!

The wound briefly glows a faint light, indicating that it has been judged a fatal blow again.

'The one on the left is a wizard, and the one on the right is close range.'

Meanwhile, Seongjin's senses were also diligently detecting the orcs coming from the maze.

'The delay for the wizard to switch from buff mode to attack mode is about 1.5 seconds.'

And the moment the magician unit came out of the maze, Hayes' evil spirit was summoned again to solve the 'condition'.

[O Lord! It's your name!]

Woooooo!

A creepy evil spirit shedding black tears runs towards you with a distorted smile!

The only side effect I experienced after the graphics became normal was that the guy's creepy appearance was clearly visible.

'Melee warrior recognition delay 1 second.'

And before the orc wizards' screams could even end, Hayes' evil spirit attacked the close-range unit that had been defeated by Owen.

Wow! Wow! OMG!

'The time taken for annihilation is 4 to 6 seconds.'

Seongjin, who had timed well, immediately brought Hayes back. And he charges it straight towards the Orc King.

[Let the curse of hell be upon everything that stands in the way of my master!]

Whoa!

The orc king staggered after receiving a considerable blow from the black smoke shouting out excitedly.

Phew!

A fierce sword strike that does not miss the opportunity.

'Knockback for 3 seconds, additional damage applied during that time.'

Phew! Sigh! Phew!

The staggering Orc King wriggled and moved the forearm holding the axe. Then Seongjin quickly stepped back and thought.

'No, there are still errors, so let's keep it within 2 seconds.'

Then, he widens the distance just before he activates 'Fast and Furious' and throws haze into the maze behind him again.

[Owner of my soul!]

Sigh!

At the same time, a long, fatal sword slash lands on the legs of the pursuing Orc King.

"This is crazy... .."

Dexter, who had been watching all those scenes from the beginning, let out a soft groan without realizing it.

what? How can a human do that?

Seongjin, who thoroughly understood the brief and experienced even the slightest margin of error, looked like a precision cutting machine in Dexter's eyes.

Wow!

Meanwhile, the mountain goat that hit the ceiling was shot down at almost the same speed as an arrow.

Sigh!

A sharp sword that cuts the carotid artery.

The orc king finally fell to his knees on the floor, unable to support his heavy body due to the sword strike that was sure to be fatal.

Coo!

-why!

The orc king, drenched in blood, screams desperately.

-Why do you look at me with such pitiful eyes? Why on earth are the bugs crawling on the floor?

Then Seongjin raised the corner of his mouth and fiercely exposed his teeth.

Ugh, this twisted mass of data.

It's too bad to beat you any more, so just die now!

300. Code Zero (5)

Endless waves of orcs pouring out of the maze.

However, after repeated mechanical sweeps, they were left with only one last longbow unit.

[This is a group now, I'll leave it to you!]

At Owen's sudden shout, the ranger who was wielding the dagger was startled and started shaking with his arms and legs.

[What do you say? Owen! As you know, the archer unit's compatibility is close range... ..!]

[I'm almost at the bottom of my life. Group, you're pretty good at cutting, aren't you?]

[oh? for a moment! Wait, Owen!]

However, Owen was so desperate that he ran straight to the boss room, ignoring what the group said.

[Newbie! TT!]

But what awaited Owen was an unexpected sight.

The king of the giant orcs, soaked in blood, was kneeling in front of a small goat and reciting his last words.

-How could this not be deplorable, Thunderstorm Bone... ..

Its battered body was glowing faintly and becoming increasingly blurred.

-Is this inevitable? Or was it just my lack of strength? I tried to stop you by gathering all the wisdom of my clan, but the foretold wheel of fate ended up sending your star into the orbit of destruction!

Seongjin listened to those words without answering. I felt a strange sense of déjà vu from his dark, sunken eyes.

-Don't you dare be arrogant, Thunderstorm Bone. The sins you have committed and the sins you were destined to commit. All of these things never deviate even an inch from the goddess's prophecy.

[...]]

-Nevertheless, if you dare to defy God, I will gladly laugh at you! There will never be anyone more foolish than this in the world...

Unlike before, when he was screaming in pain, his tone was strangely calm.

So Seongjin asked the guy.

[Since when did you know?]

... What are you talking about?

[Don't act like a fool. You knew that your mind was going back and forth, right?]

Wasn't it like that when you first saw me, and didn't we go back and forth a few times during the battle?

As Seongjin questioned him, he looked into the right eye of the man who was barely intact. Those eyes that reminded her of the Lycan Slope Road, Nebraska, whom she once met in the labyrinth.

At the same time, a bright silver-grey glow appeared in Seongjin's eyes for a moment and then disappeared.

[It's clear that Justitia was the one who did something, but it was purely your will to rush out of the boss room that wasn't even open. Isn't that right?]

Then the Orc King blinked his eyelids a few times and brushed away the blood pooling around his eyes.

-Now what should I hide? Yes. When the alarm went off, I knew there was an enemy, so I willingly opened the door and went out to greet you. How can a person with intact limbs sit still and wait for the enemy to attack?

okay. Perhaps that would be an appropriate response. If this wasn't a normal world.

A door that does not meet the conditions is opened. Isn't that a phenomenon that completely violates the rules of this world?

Then the Orc King looked at Seongjin with a strange expression.

-Something that could never have happened happened? If you do that, isn't it all your fault in the end? Thunderstorm Bone. The one who destroys the order of Pangea and leads everything to destruction. It's just as the goddess predicted.

However, even though he was saying the same thing as the first time, there was no longer any trace of anger in the Orc King's tone.

The guy looked up into space with calm eyes and muttered.

-But this is truly strange. As I approach the end of my life, something strange happens. Things that were so clear are blurring and losing their shape, and things that were previously invisible appear so clearly before my eyes.

[...]]

-When did the goddess leave me a prophecy? In the end, what was the order of Pangea that I so desperately wanted to protect? It's all so vague now...

As he said that, his eyes twinkled. He returned to Seongjin again.

-On the other hand, Thunderstorm Bone. Now I can clearly see a different side of you. On the one hand, you are like a child who has just entered the world, and on the other hand, you are like a vicious evil spirit who has been wandering the battlefield for a long time.

Crackling.

Just then, a small noise appeared in Seongjin's field of vision again.

-... Ah, I see!

Then, suddenly, one of the Orc King's good eyes widened in shock. Its dilated pupils began to shake violently, as if it had seen something incredible.

-okay! That's how it happens! You must be ■■■... ..

[...] what?]

Seongjin asked back later, but-

Pass... ..

It was already too late. Before he could even utter those last words, the Orc King Rygas turned into a ray of light and completely disappeared.

At the same time, a small message window appeared in front of Seongjin's eyes.

☐Your party has cleared 'The Orc King's Maze' with excellent results. Depending on the party member's contribution, certain rewards are paid differentially. Would you like to receive your reward now?☐

☐Accept/Reject☐

'... ..'

Seongjin frowned and glared at the window.

Hey, wait a minute. Are you kidding me?

I think he was just trying to tell me something important, why now? uh?

At that time, Owen, who was quietly watching from behind, quietly placed his hand on Seongjin's shoulder.

"Don't be too discouraged. "Newbie."

"hmm? what?"

"no. "You look kind of depressed."

What kind of nonsense is this guy talking about again?

Seongjin, dumbfounded, glared at him with a sullen expression on his face, and his next words were even more shocking.

"It's okay, newbie. When I first came here, I had a lot of agony because I had to kill strangers I had no grudge against. But everyone said that. "These are not real lives."

"... .."

"It is true that the Orc King showed an unusually vivid reaction, but that does not mean that the mobs in the dungeon are alive. Next time you go in, the same guy will show up just fine, right? So don't feel too sorry about it."

Seongjin was dumbfounded by the guy's unexpected consolation.

What does this mean all of a sudden? Is there anyone who doesn't know that? Have you ever seen such a no-nonsense guy?

Seongjin's absurd feelings were reflected in his fingertips.

Wow!

"What!?"

Owen suddenly gets hit with an unexpected blow and rolls around on the floor. After a while, he gathered himself together and protested with a very hurt face.

"no! Why are you hitting me again? "What did I do wrong this time?"

"Who are you giving advice to now? "Stop talking nonsense and mind your own business from now on!"

"What? Who is really giving advice now? Newbie, since when have you been nagging me like that... .."

Owen shouted and suddenly felt his anger subside.

It's not just because of the cute hooves proudly sticking out in front of them.

Even if I try to repay Takbam, the mountain goat in front of me is a bit small. Moreover, isn't his defense the worst among the party members?

"I'm so nervous about this that I can't even hit him."

Of course, Seongjin snorted in response.

"It's something to live for a long time. "There are people in the world who take such slow punches?"

"what? Live long? "Where did this little bastard get such arrogance from?"

"Who is the kid? Man, do you really know who this old man is?"

"You like the elderly! If you are an elderly person, I am an elderly grandfather!"

Meanwhile, Hatasu Titi and Gurup smiled happily as they looked at the two.

[The young people seem to become friends really quickly. I guess it's because they're from the same neighborhood, right?]

[Evaluate positively! This is very helpful for team morale!]

Of course, it was a misunderstanding that occurred because I could not understand what Seongjin and Owen were saying at all. Because the two were in the midst of arguing in the imperial language.

Right then.

[hey! Everyone, check this out!]

Dexter, who was manipulating the window by himself, suddenly shouted in a very excited voice.

[Can you believe this? Our party is now in first place in the entire server time challenge! That's an overwhelming time difference from second place! We did it!]

That day, Seongjin and his group decided to close the connection a little early.

Originally, they had planned to run straight to the B-rank dungeon, but everyone was feeling very tired due to the tension caused by several unexpected events.

Dexter readily agreed to this. This is because various minor frictions arose with the strategy he thought was perfect.

In particular, we had to accurately investigate the situation where the boss room was suddenly opened.

Even if it passes this time, if an accident like this happens again in a higher-level dungeon, everyone's lives cannot be guaranteed.

[Besides, our record will not be broken any time soon.]

Dexter looked at the ranking window that opened in front of him with a very proud face.

[It was a benefit that the boss room suddenly opened. Because it was like a defense battle and a boss battle at the same time.]

You can press the alarm and come back, or run to avoid the alarm like Seongjin and his group. No party will get through the maze as quickly as they do.

Plus, there was a boss fight right away. If things continued like this, this time challenge would probably remain as a timeless record in the history of Pangea.

[The reward for first place in the time challenge is indeed different.

The results are better than running through a dungeon all day.]

[I agree. Hurry up and take these back!]

The silent villains were also very excited.

Except Owen, of course.

"It's a newbie. Do you have to go too? "If there's nothing urgent, can you just hang out with me?"

Seongjin looked at the big guy who was acting uncharacteristically pitiful with a puzzled look.

Hey, I'm busy.

"If you want to play more games, play alone."

"But Sang Chang-chang does not leave guest ID users alone. "If everyone leaves, it's obvious that I will also get kicked out."

"Then why don't you rest early today?"

Then Owen muttered with a sullen face.

"Oh, I don't like it. "If things continue like this, the dream will definitely be fierce."

"... ... ?"

It was a reaction that bothered me, but the issue at hand was too important to listen to his whining.

Not only because of the several unexpected accidents, but also because the words Justitia had told him earlier kept ringing in his head.

-You won't be able to shake it off. □□□ □□. Justitia has already melted into the atmosphere of this place and can no longer be undone.

Crackling. Chick.

After leaving the dungeon, the noise frequency also became more frequent. He can never feel it, but perhaps that irritating thing is trying to cling to him again.

"It's a newbie. huh? huh?"

"Oh, kinda!"

After Seongjin managed to separate the grown child who was struggling and clinging to him, he hinted to Dexter.

"Hey, let's hurry to the workshop. "I have something I need to discuss with you."

301. Code Zero (6)

The moment I felt strongly that I needed to wake up, the connection to Pangea Chronicle was easily terminated.

[hmm? What, you came back early today?]

When I opened my eyes in bed, the devil gave me a rare welcome sound. It looks like he was quite bored while alone.

But Seongjin didn't have time to deal with him right now. As I lifted the silver disk heading straight to the workshop, the Demon King muttered sullenly.

[Well, that's right. you are good I always go out to fun places alone...
... .]

No, I'm not playing. You just go and do what you have to do.

And even if you found out what kind of disgusting guy I met earlier, would you be able to say something like that easily?

'... Should I ask the chef if he has any bear meat left?'

But instead of scolding the guy, Seongjin said something outrageous. Perhaps it was because I had direct contact with his soul, but his lonely mood was conveyed without any filtering.

[What? really? good!]

Fortunately, the Demon King's mood shows a sharp upward curve.

[Bear meat~ Bear meat~ Bear meat with a strong aroma and fiery taste~]

'... ... !'

You've eaten so much, aren't you sick of it? Such a simple guy.

Anyway, Seongjin, who was internally relieved, hurriedly operated the key and opened the portal.

"Wow, you came quickly."

When we arrived at the workshop, Dexter had already come out of the dive capsule and was turning on his laptop.

"So what? "Is this something you need to discuss carefully with me?"

Instead of answering, Seongjin pointed to his laptop with his chin.

"Ah, yes. Time error compared to the guidebook. "I thought I should look into it a little more closely."

Dexter's expression was quite serious as he said that.

"It was a problem that the boss room was just opened, but there were too many other small timing errors. Due to the way the Homunculus Engine operates, once a user logs in, there can be absolutely no lag. But there were so many strange things today."

"It's not just about time, is it?"

At Seongjin's point, the dwarf engineer asked with wide eyes.

"what?"

"The detection range of close-range warriors increased, and there was a fairly large error in the range of archers. "The orc wizard even tried to cast impossible high-level magic on low-level monsters."

That's because the evil spirit Hayes destroyed them all before casting.

"It's not just time, Dexter. "Everything was a mess, from the physical distance to the level and door opening and closing conditions."

Fortunately, just as Seongjin had predicted, it was all within a range that could be responded to, so no major damage was suffered.

If it had been any other party than theirs, they would have inevitably been wiped out.

"... Yes, that's right. "There are those too."

Dexter, who was nodding his head, asked a bit absurdly.

"But no matter how I think about it, it's amazing. "How did you catch all of that?"

"What are you talking about all of a sudden? "You told me the strategy in detail at the beginning, right?"

"No, but..."

Are you memorizing it all?

Dexter looked at him with a skeptical look, but Seongjin easily ignored such unimportant suspicions.

"So what? "The 'Thunderstorm Bone' the Orc King was talking about."

"Ah, yes. There was something strange about the boss from earlier too. "Then shall we start from there?"

Dexter displayed the Pangea Chronicle main screen with a shocked expression on his face. It was a screen showing the goddess Justitia, standing majestically with her eyes covered by a cloth, appearing in the foreground.

The illustration stands out with the golden window and long blonde hair that are familiar to Seongjin.

"Thunderstorm Bone, as explained before, refers to a 'user.' An anti-hero who destroys the long-standing order and brings about the destruction of the world. Well, it is a setting that ultimately brings a new order and prosperity to the world."

"It's not that fresh."

Dexter nodded at Seongjin's honest impressions.

"That's right. In fact, Pangea Chronicles is a game that has nothing special if you look at its content. "The main story is so-so, and the worldview is a mass-produced game made up of things you've probably seen before."

Since it is the only online game made with the Homunculus engine, it differentiates itself from other games by providing an unprecedented sense of play.

Isn't this the same as creating an actual normal world? As a result, it will provide users with a vivid sense of reality without any room for 3D motion sickness.

"This is also the case with the goddess Justitia, the most important setting in this game. "He is an old-fashioned character who has caused concern several times in the past in games released by Impulse Soft."

"It's inevitable since the game director is the same," Dexter added.

Click, click, click.

After he clicked on the site a few times, a site introducing classic RPG games appeared before Seongjin's eyes. But really, there was a clumsy drawing of Justitia made up of dots!

"Chronicles of Astria?"

"It's another name for Justitia. Starting with Part 1, 'The Call of the Goddess', to Part 8, 'Astria of Darkness'. "It's a popular game that launched a fairly long series."

"Hmm."

Seongjin caught his eye for a moment on the title of the last episode, 'Astria of Darkness'.

"The same goes for 'Thunderstorm Born', which refers to users. Traces of similar games remain. "If you think about it, the monsters and dungeons, as well as the kingdoms and place names on the world map, are nothing more than slightly modified versions of previous games."

In addition, there is a system where you can collect NPCs and use them as subordinates, or a mini card game that can be played in a tavern.

All types of popular games were installed in the Pangea Chronicle system, with some modifications.

There were many people who were clearly sarcastic about that point.

Among the sites that Dexter shows in passing, one picture that someone posted as a joke stands out.

A scene from another game where a warrior wearing a bone helm is engulfed in flames and shouts 'Perstard Los!' And below that, an image of Thunderstorm Bone yelling 'Mustard sauce!' while caught in a thunderstorm is synthesized like a meme.

"If there are many similar things to this extent..."

As Seongjin trails off with a not-so-good feeling, Dexter also nods as if he understands.

"okay. You might be right. "Maybe this isn't just a borrowing, but a game that actually exists."

okay. Why not?

The Homunculus Engine is a system specialized in taking sources from other worlds and transforming them to suit one's taste. In that case, there was nothing strange about using an already existing game as is.

-This world was forced to wake up from its egg before it was ready. So, to make up for the ridiculously weak tone, numerous rules were added in a disorderly manner. In such great chaos, the distortion of the world eventually arose.

Suddenly, the words that Justitia had uttered like a lament appeared in Seongjin's mind. Did you mean it was literally a game of randomness?

"I had a deep suspicion that it would be so. "This won't be a game made through a normal planning process."

According to Dexter's explanation, it was so.

After the Homunculus engine porting was completed, the time interval between the actual Pangea Chronicle being officially serviced was too short.

"Can you guess how many people and how much work it takes to make one game? There is only one way to reduce that time. "We use old games as sources and put them all together with the Homunculus engine."

hmm.

Seongjin looked at the laptop screen and opened his mouth.

"But everything is just our guess. "Is there any way to definitely prove that?"

"well? Originally, this would have been unknown to anyone other than Impulse Soft insiders... .."

After muttering that, Dexter got up from his seat and approached one side of the workshop. In front of the [Homunculus Engine Editor], which was destroyed once before.

"But we have guest ID users and source editors! First, wouldn't it be a good idea to use an editor to analyze some of the items you stole from the game? "If anything comes from another game, traces of it will definitely remain in the source code."

"... Does that work?"

When I asked while looking at the tattered crystal boards that still couldn't find their place, Dexter frowned as if he was offended.

An engine editor that can be said to be the culmination of the Ionian civilization. Since Seongjin was the one who directly caused its destruction, his suspicions don't seem to be very pleasant.

"I just took a quick look. Even if editing is impossible, it is possible to read the source code, right?"

"Well, okay. good."

Then there's something appropriate.

Seongjin searched his pockets and took out several items he had acquired from the Pangea Chronicle. It was several types of binding potions and a small leftover fish cake.

"... Are you saying you are the son of a noble family? But how can you easily put this kind of unidentified food in your mouth?"

Dexter accepted the fish cake with teeth marks with an embarrassed expression.

"Even though I'm a picky eater, I'm not a picky eater."

"No, picky eating isn't the problem... "Anyway, what is left over after eating?"

"I feel fortunate that there is at least something left to analyze. "I enjoyed it quite a bit, but for some reason I felt like I shouldn't eat it all, so I ended up leaving it behind."

"... .."

Dexter looked very shocked at Seongjin's confident answer.

But in the end, it turned out that Seongjin's premonition was correct. Dexter, who had wasted all the binding potions, reluctantly pretended to be fooled and found something in the fish cake he analyzed!

"also! Seongjin Lee, come here and take a look at this!"

The following text appeared on the screen he analyzed:

□High Grade 2*8d# Fish Cake #% Warm Snack Shop□

□Item grade: B□

□Price: 2 Diamonds□

□*Current server cannot be checked.□

Price 2 diamonds?

"what? "Isn't this an item description from Pangea Chronicle?"

To Seongjin's question, Dexter answered in a very excited voice.

"of course! For items transformed by the Homunculus Engine, the essence of the source is changed, and the previous information comes to the forefront! "It's like molting and the remaining shell remains on the surface!"

In other words, this fish cake is really a sauce from another game.

And soon, through an Internet search, they were able to confirm that a restaurant management simulation called 'Warm Snack Restaurant' was released by the same company.

"This is a great discovery, Seongjin Lee! Indeed, many of the items in Pangea Chronicle may come from other games! Then, even for rare items, as long as you find the original source... .."

Then Dexter suddenly chewed his tongue as if he had been stabbed in the back.

"hmm? what?"

"why?"

"No, wait... .."

And Dexter started searching the Internet as if he was possessed by something.

"I feel strangely uncomfortable. I feel like we're forgetting something important... .."

"what?"

Then, Dexter soon showed Seongjin a user bulletin board.

"Do you feel anything when you see this?"

Coincidentally, the place was plastered with posts from all kinds of users crying in search of rare job change items.

-Where can I find the 3rd job change item? π π

-Information on the former essential item, Ice Heart

-Ice Heart Auction House Price

'... 'Ice heart?'

Naturally, the information about the ice heart he had been fiddling with with Dexter vividly appeared in Seongjin's mind.

□ Glacier Troll's Ice Heart □

□ A new item obtained from the Gerardu Valley dungeon boss, the Glacher Troll King. You can set the activity conditions of the registered entity and give commands with simple sentences. □

□ Item grade: A □

□ *Currently unable to check Northland server. □

"No, but that was source material for a completely different game? So what about the Northland server..."

And while Seongjin continued speaking, he realized something.

ah! Source for other games!

"Back in the early days of this company..."

Dexter opened his mouth with a trembling voice.

"We once released a free mini-game. "If I remember correctly, the integrated server at that time was probably 'Northland.'"

And the game title popped up on the screen.

A simple illustration of a giant ape fighting a white yeti-like monster.

-Kong: Jurassic Island

"Lee Seong-jin... .."

The dwarf engineer looked up at Seongjin with shaking eyes.

"What on earth did we do with that rare transfer item?"

302

302. Code Zero (7)

"Ahhh... .."

The dwarf engineer, who was holding his head and fidgeting, sat down and lamented.

"I should have quit when I thought the data was strangely heavy compared to the functionality. Or maybe I should have analyzed it more properly then... .."

Stop being blinded by milestones!

Seongjin asked, looking blankly at Dexter, who was completely panicked.

"But what does it have to do with us that the Ice Heart is a former item?"

"Are you saying that now?! "We have made all the items that are causing shortages around the world unusable!"

Why is that? Isn't it a game anyway?

What Seongjin was worried about was something else.

'Besides me and the silent villains, there are more people who can extract items from the Pangea Chronicle to reality!'

What that fact meant was obvious.

In Pangea Chronicle, there may be other Guest ID users they don't know about. Or, someone directly involved in creating the game may have used some kind of method.

-Have you ever thought carefully about why there is a limit to the number of people entering the themed dungeon, and why the number of guest ID users has never exceeded three?

Assuming that Justitia's words are true, the possibility leans towards the latter. The problem is that whoever it was, it has a deep connection to the demon who attacked Sigismund.

While Seongjin was deep in thought, Dexter jumped up from his seat and shouted.

"Do you not understand this situation? Let alone the crisis in operating the game, think about the losses we have suffered right now! "By playing a prank that doesn't work out, you're destroying something that can't even be valued in money!"

Considering the worldwide popularity that Pangea Chronicle is currently enjoying, it is impossible to know how much the price of the Ice Heart will skyrocket in cash. Maybe it will reach astronomical numbers.

Because there are more people in this world who are more serious about games than you think.

"hmm."

Seongjin crossed his arms and thought for a moment.

A refrigerator for the salmon business and a Sisley teddy bear. And a heart of ice that might sell for a huge price.

"What the hell is the problem? I think I went to the right place and got my money's worth, right? "If necessary, I would have paid money to make them."

"Aaaah!"

Dexter, who had been stamping his feet in frustration, eventually began tapping on the keyboard with a determined look on his face.

"It won't work!" I should at least contact an engineer I used to know! I'm sure the phone number is here somewhere... .."

"oh."

Well, it's rather strange that you can't make phone calls when the Internet is available.

-Dexter! Where have you been hiding for the past few years and are you finally contacting me now? No, rather, do you know what time it is?

After continuing a loud conversation with someone for a while, Dexter hung up the phone with a very despondent look on his face.

"It's ruined. They say that unless at least one person completes a job change, the Ice Heart will no longer appear."

"why? "Can't the game company just arbitrarily increase the drop rate?"

In response to Seongjin's innocent question, Dexter shook his head.

"It's not that simple. Because Pangea Chronicle is an independent dimension that functions alone. Things that have many variables to consider, such as the amount of currency or monster item drop rates, are completely left up to the system by the game company."

The same goes for the first and second job changes. The system is said to have carefully reviewed the game's floating population and job change achievement rates and increased the number of job change items within an appropriate range.

Preventing oversupply is probably the most important factor in extending the lifespan of a game.

"For items released on the server for the first time, it is important to have an indicator to understand the 'initial consumption speed.'

"Maybe the Ice Heart is stuck there right now."

The initial consumption rate plays a critical role in helping the system determine the demand for an item. So, if no previous cases appear, it may be concluded that there is no demand for ice hearts at all.

"In other words, unless someone consumes the previous item in the future, new items may be difficult to drop."

"hmm... .."

Seongjin thought to himself, remembering the ice heart he had luckily kept secretly.

'So then what I have now could be the one and only heart of ice?'

In this situation, even if you change jobs safely, you will still get everyone's attention. If I were to hand it over to Owen, I might have to be a little careful.

"Anyway, what on earth is your mother doing? Did they really not know that important items were leaking out? If things continue like this, we won't be able to avoid criticism that the game operation is a mess... .."

To Dexter, who was muttering worriedly, Seongjin said something.

"If you're that worried, you can just contact me."

"... huh?"

"Call your mother now. "Is it possible?"

"what? No, that's true, but... .."

He was startled, but immediately shook his head sullenly.

"Is it really necessary? You're not anyone else, you're my mother. "I'm sure you can handle it on your own without me."

Well, guess what?

There are people in this world who, regardless of their abilities, receive great comfort just by saying that they will not be left alone.

However, since Dexter looked very distraught with his head down, Seongjin did not offer him any further advice.

"By the way, I also got a clue about using other game sources from a colleague. "This is also a crucial reason why the company cannot directly control the item drop rate."

After a while, Dexter regained his energy and opened his mouth.

"I didn't go into detail because it was confidential, but it seems that during the game's development, the higher-ups suddenly and ignorantly urged us to hasten the release."

Thanks to this, game directors and engineers were able to create games in a hurry using all available sources.

However, as I crammed in as much sauce as I could get my hands on, the finished Pangea Chronicle ended up looking like a giant pot of spaghetti.

"The cord is so twisted? "It is said that the development team has already passed the stage where they need to take action, and that the system is somehow resolving its own errors."

Dexter, who was scratching his bushy beard, paused for a moment before continuing.

"At least in my opinion, as someone who was somewhat involved in engine development, there is only one technical way to solve this situation."

"what is that?"

"It is an expedient way to grant 'Code Zero' authority to the system control AI."

Code zero? What is that again?

To Seongjin, who still didn't understand, Dexter added with a serious face.

"The most mysterious code in the Homunculus Engine. "It is the authority called 'God's domain.'"

Numbering zero.

A strange code called 'Code Zero' among engineers.

Perhaps only Oracle, who first designed the Homunculus Engine, truly understands the exact identity of Code Zero.

In any case, Dexter recalled, Ionian engineers handled the code with great care.

Beings that humans can never control, or mysterious things beyond the scope of perception. Engineers used to assign zero codes with unique IDs only to these items.

"The game system and GM's numbering are unique. Numbering Zero is the strongest code that surpasses its authority. In other words, 'Code Zero' can also be called 'God's code.'"

God's code.

The resonance of that word was not simple.

"It's clear. In order to run so many randomly twisted codes without any problems, you need powerful authority that surpasses the authority of everything else. If not, Pangea Chronicles would have been recorded as the most buggy game in the world by now."

No, what are all the bugs? It wouldn't have worked properly from the beginning.

Leaving behind Dexter, who was hesitating, Seongjin slowly rubbed his chin and thought.

-Even I, the administrator of the world, cannot avoid the conditions that have already been established.

Justitia said so.

That means that the goddess herself is the system that manages the Pangea Chronicle.

-It is another Justitia born in great chaos. Zara has become the law of this world in itself.

He also said that the unpleasant drowned body was born in chaos and became the law of this world just like himself.

This is what made all of this possible.

'God's code.'

Seongjin made up his mind right away.

"I'll have to ask my father about this first."

"... what?"

Then Dexter asked with a dumbfounded look on his face.

"Who is your father and why do you ask such questions?"

"What is it?"

My father is a man who knows nothing in the world. He is truly the representative of God!

When Seongjin responded proudly, Dexter stared at him with the eyes of a crazy fanatic who could not be saved.

what? why? what?

"... No, just. Because it's fascinating. "Is a father someone you can rely on that much?"

"Teach me everything and give me strength. "Aren't all parents like that?"

Then Dexter made a sour face.

"well? I grew up in a single-mother household. And although my mother was a great person, she didn't always give me an easy answer when I asked her something."

Dexter's mother, Matilda, would ask him this every time he asked him something.

Dexter. Have you done the best research you can before asking me a question? Have you first guessed the context in which the question arose and checked the assumptions you made? Have you looked for enough information in books and on the Internet?

"... "It was a very rigorous education."

"Of course, this doesn't mean that my mother's education policy is necessarily bad. Her home education must have had a big influence on my growth into a recognized engineer. But I still think like this sometimes."

And Dexter raised his head and stared at the machines in the workshop with slightly faint eyes.

"Was I so unreliable that I worried that I would keep finding the easy way out?"

"... .."

"Couldn't you have just given me an answer, at least once, as if giving me a reward?"

Seongjin looked at the sullen face of the dwarf engineer.

An emotion he has never experienced and therefore cannot properly understand. There is no way words of comfort can come out hastily.

Before he even realized it, a clumsy suggestion came out of Seongjin's mouth.

"Dexter. Would you like to come visit Delcross? "At least my father would try to give you some kind of easy answer to your question."

Then Dexter looked back at Seongjin with an absurd expression on his face.

"what? "What do I have to ask a Delcrossian?"

"Well, guess what? "If you find out who my father is, you'll think differently, right?"

And Seongjin carefully revealed the secret in his ear.

-Actually, my father is the Oracle of Kornsheim. He is the one and only person who can create milestones that you dream of meeting.

"... ..?"

At first, the dwarf engineer did not readily understand what was being said.

But after a while, astonishment slowly spread from Dexter's face as he realized the meaning.

Quang!

When the door suddenly opened and Prince Mores came out, Haven, who had been dozing off, suddenly got up from his seat.

"... Lowering?"

What is happening all of a sudden in the wee hours of the morning?

But before he could properly ask-

"Uh, Lord Haven. Are you on duty tonight? Good luck then."

Prince Mores didn't even pay attention to what he said and quickly ran down the hallway.

"Um, my name?"

Haven, who was standing dumbfounded, only realized the situation after the prince's presence had completely disappeared and became pale.

"Lowering!?" "Where are you going alone this early in the morning, leaving your escort behind?"

No, isn't he now someone who freely uses Auror concealment? You may have to consider yourself lucky that you went out to visit.

Haven, who became impatient, hurriedly ran to Lord Masain's room. He was a nobleman who lived with the prince most of the time to protect him and even had his own room in Jinju Palace.

"Lord Masaine! Sir Masaine!"

When Haven knocks on the door, the door is immediately opened with greetings.

As a senior knight about to become a Dekaron Knight, he seemed to have noticed the approaching presence of Haven even from afar.

"What's going on, Lord Haven?"

"Lord Masaine! You, you have disappeared! "He suddenly opened the door and ran somewhere, but he was moving so fast that I couldn't even ask him where he was!"

"... .."

Lord Masain's face hardens.

However, he was well aware of the prince's skills, so fortunately he did not criticize Haven excessively for his mistakes.

"Where were you headed?"

"I'm not sure because he disappeared so quickly, but he's probably heading towards the northeast... .."

Then, a faint light of relief appeared in the eyes of the driver who was assessing the direction.

"Then you probably went to the main palace. Don't worry too much. "If he was heading to a really dangerous place, he would definitely have sneaked out without being noticed by you."

yes? Is that how it works?

While Haven was dumbfounded, Sir Masaine soon calmly began to arm himself.

"Good job. "I will take you to the training hall, so you can report to your superiors and change shifts on time."

Crash.

Lastly, Lord Masain, wearing the faintly golden Mysra, took a long stride and disappeared right before Haven's eyes.

"her..."

At his unexpected reaction, Haven stood there for a moment and gaped.

'That guy has changed a lot too. When I first came here, I think I acted carelessly when it came to the prince. I mean, people have suddenly become that calm.'

Anyway, I thought it would be a big surprise, but it's a good thing. Haven felt relieved and headed to the knight's quarters.

But his peace did not last long. After all, the head of security that day was Sir Maria, who was known for being strict.

"You idiot! So now you're telling me you left your guard over to Sir Martha and just came back?! You bastard, won't you come to your senses? huh!?"

'... Well then. There's no way I can just get over it.'

Haven, who suddenly received a cheer at the dorm, sighed as if the ground was sinking.

303. Demon King No. 2 (1)

Meanwhile, Seongjin, who ran out of Jinju Palace, quickly arrived in front of the main palace. This is because he increased his speed by swinging his aura to his heart's content.

The demon king was embarrassed and asked several times, but Seongjin's heart was so anxious that he couldn't answer properly. Because there were a lot of things that needed to be discussed with Seonghwang right away.

-father! Looks like Owen is caught up in something strange! As we wait and see, the increasing level of danger seems to be the influence of something called 'God's code'. What should I do? Would it be better to just get Owen out?

-ah! But something really strange happened earlier. I was captured by something I don't know if it was a goddess named Justiti or her system, but suddenly Demon King No. 2 appeared there! It is clearly a normal world, but flames could also exist. Just like that [niche] from before! What happened?

-really! By the way, Dad, do you remember the dwarf engineer you met at the old man's workshop a while ago? This is a friend named Dexter. Is it okay if I bring him to Delcross? It's because I find it fascinating. If he can come here, he will definitely be of great help to the empire in the future!

However, the moment I arrived and looked at the dark view of the main palace, I realized something.

'Oops! It's dawn now!'

I was so anxious that I didn't even think about the visiting time.

"... "Your Majesty Mores?"

"What are you doing without an escort at this hour?"

The knights of the Royal Guard were on high alert, but soon realized the identity of the visitor and asked in confusion.

"... .."

Seongjin, who was at a loss for an answer, hesitated for a moment whether to go back. This would have been the case if one of the attendants had not suddenly approached him.

"I was waiting for you to come, Your Majesty Mores."

Seongjin was greeted with polite courtesy by a tall servant whom he had never seen before.

"What about you?"

"My name is Raphael, sir. "At this time, I am assisting His Majesty the Holy Emperor on behalf of the Chief Chamberlain."

Well, old Louis won't be able to stay by Seonghwang's side all day.

"Go ahead and eat it. "Your Majesty is waiting."

I went up to the second floor with Raphael's guidance, and fortunately, the office was brightly lit. And Seonghwang was sitting in his office waiting for him as usual.

"Mores."

"... .."

Seeing that neat appearance as usual, Seongjin forgot to say hello and inadvertently asked a question.

"No, what are you doing if you're not sleeping at this hour?"

Then Seonghwang looked at him blankly, tilted his head to one side as if he was a little puzzled, and asked a question.

"Weren't you looking for me at this hour?"

"... .."

Does this mean that he was simply waiting for his arrival?

Seongjin was speechless for a moment.

'In Delcross... ..'

In this dimension, there are people who are willing to welcome you even if you knock on their door unexpectedly.

Seongjin, who had been dumbfounded for a moment out of strange emotion, came to his senses when Seonghwang made a quick gesture and approached him.

Wow.

With the pouring out of divine power, the fatigue of the whole body is relieved and fatigue comes. Only then did Seongjin realize that her condition was not that good.

I was so excited that I forgot about it for a while, but today I had a really hard time going through the dungeon and got bitten by something that looked like a leech.

Tuk.

When the treatment was over, I felt a shock to my forehead that was difficult to even call it a shock.

"... ..?"

As I looked at Seonghwang in confusion, Seonghwang lightly tapped Seongjin on the forehead again and spoke.

"He may seem a little immature to you, but he is still your senior, Mores. "Do you think you can use it without using your hands like that?"

"... ... !"

"Since that child has shown generosity in willingly forgiving your rudeness, you should also respect that child."

Seongjin felt a little dispirited.

Oh yeah. Of course my father knows. There was no need to rush like this, right?

"But am I mistaken? "Father, do you somehow feel refreshed?"

Then a firm answer comes back.

"Not like that. "Of course, it's your mistake."

"but..."

"No, Mores."

"ah... yes."

Seongjin gave him a suspicious look, but Seonghwang politely tilted his chin and pretended not to see him.

"Sit down."

As soon as I sat down, as if he had been waiting, Raphael appeared with warm tea.

Rattling.

Although it was not comparable to the Chief Chamberlain, his Melbourne was also very good.

After taking a couple of sips of the fragrant tea, Seongjin soon felt the excitement from earlier subsiding.

"I'm so sorry for interrupting your rest at such a time, Dad."

"No, it's okay. "There was probably something he wanted to ask me urgently."

"Uh, yes. That's right."

Seongjin nodded, feeling a little moved for no reason.

-Couldn't you have just given an answer, at least once, as if giving a prize?

Even though Dexter said so.

Look at this, Dexter. My father is a man who willingly accepts questions from his children even in the wee hours of the morning!

"Your father already knew that Owen was guided by the State Window, right?"

When Seongjin asked a question with a strange sense of satisfaction, Seonghwang slowly nodded.

"How could you not know? "He told me directly before he left."

Oh, it was like that.

Seongjin also heard from Dasha the story of Owen running away from home.

-Father, Soja is trying to become stronger with the power of this status window. So, unfortunately, I will have to leave my father and brothers and sisters for a while.

By the way, did you really say that out loud to your father? Owen, isn't this guy even more screwed up than you think?

It seems like those thoughts were clearly expressed on his face. Seonghwang looked at Seongjin with slightly stern eyes.

"Remember, Mores. "That boy is your senior."

"Ah yes."

Seongjin answered hesitantly, paused for a moment, and then continued.

"Then, the milestone that Owen has, is that something left by his grandmother?"

Then Seonghwang obediently said yes again.

"okay. I gave the sign to his mother and personally blessed the newborn Owen."

"Then what about others? Pangea Chronicle, there are other people called Guest ID users. "They all have their own signposts from the Oracle."

"It's probably someone else's milestone. "For some reason, it must have been left behind by previous Oracles."

After answering like that, Seonghwang rested his chin and thought for a moment before continuing.

"Normally, there are not many milestones that one oracle can create. Although he was also a strong oracle, he only left three milestones in his life. "Mores, don't you know better where each of them is?"

Seongjin nodded.

Seongjin and Amelia's broken milestones. And Owen's milestone, the only one left intact. There were three in total.

"Opportunities are limited. Therefore, oracles always create milestones with important and clear goals. If those milestones remain even after death, it is because the future that the oracle who created them foresaw and sought to prepare for has not yet arrived."

"... .."

Hatasu Titi, and Gurreupppwalapgurureub Bipyelleup.

This probably means that they were all arranged in advance by an oracle of Kornsim in an unknown past.

Seongjin tilted his head.

"What is the purpose of bringing them into the Pangea Chronicle now?"

"Well, that's fine. At present, it is difficult to fully understand what the Oracle of the long past was thinking. one... .."

Seonghwang, who had said that far, slowly raised one corner of his mouth.

"If he was a proper oracle, he would at least not have tried to make arrangements against my will."

"... .."

Seongjin, who felt a creepy feeling for a moment, trembled and thought.

This guy laughs really scary sometimes. Have you never once in your life heard someone laugh so viciously?

[...] Who are you saying that to now?]

At that time, a low muttering sound comes from Seongjin's head. He was a devil bastard who never opened his mouth when he was with the Holy Emperor.

'... Hey, devil? 'What are you talking about all of a sudden?'

[...]]

However, the Demon King once again locked himself inside the flame crystal and kept his mouth shut.

Seongjin was dumbfounded.

'I'm going to see all these boring guys...''

Seongjin grumbled internally and continued asking questions to Seonghwang.

"Are you saying that Grandmother arranged the future for Owen?"
"Why?"

A signpost that shows the path Oracle must take.

Just three chances to change the future. But why did she leave a milestone for her godson, not Seonghwang or anyone else?

Then Seonghwang looked at Seongjin blankly for a moment.

"I cannot fully understand the deep meaning of Eomamama. "One thing is certain."

"What is that?"

"If something were to happen to Owen, Mores, wouldn't you do whatever it takes to protect the child?"

"No, well... .."

Embarrassed, Seongjin pouted his mouth shyly.

Of course, there are many things I dislike about him, and the more I look at him, the more foolish he becomes. Still, it's not like I have no intention of helping the people of Seonghwangga.

"So, the arrangement for that child is ultimately an arrangement for you as well as an arrangement for me."

"hmm."

Right. It seems that my wise grandmother decided to take care of the poor boy instead of my busy father.

Seongjin came to that conclusion clearly.

"But there's still something I don't understand. The Pangea Chronicle that I experienced, that is, the normal world that Owen got caught up in. "Unlike the normal world, it was a very unstable and dangerous place, father."

"okay. "It seems like that."

In the eyes of Seonghwang, who answered calmly, a faint silver glow lingered for a moment and then disappeared.

Maybe now, in his eyes, he can really see the various incidents that Seongjin and Owen went through. Seongjin continued asking questions with such strange confidence.

"Then what is the real reason Grandmother dragged Owen there? He said he needed to find something important, but the status window didn't give him a specific way to get it."

"... .."

"That's why I have this suspicion. Perhaps the purpose of the status window is not to focus on items, but simply to keep Owen in the Pangea Chronicle for as long as possible. And father... .."

After pausing for a moment, Seongjin looked directly at Seonghwang and asked the question he had really wanted to ask from the beginning.

"Don't you already know that, father? So even though Owen is wandering around such a dangerous place, you are just leaving him alone, right?"

Seonghwang then looked at Seongjin with a strange expression, and then slowly lowered his eyes without answering.

Seongjin was confident about this.

Yes, this gentleman's silence is positivity.

"... "There are two reasons why I leave the imperfect normal world alone."

After a while of silence, Seonghwang finally opened his mouth quietly.

"First, unless the safety of Delcross is greatly threatened, I cannot step forward and interfere with other dimensions first."

"... "It's an agreement."

Seongjin immediately pointed out what he had not said.

Of course, that doesn't mean it's literally impossible. Isn't he the type of person who can create new dimensions whenever he puts his mind to it?

This is probably a strict restriction from the 'Council of Six' to not carelessly interfere with other dimensions unless there is a proper cause and effect.

Seongjin's words seemed to be correct, and Seonghwang continued without further comment.

"And the second thing, Owen, is because he unconsciously wants it."

"... yes?"

Seongjin blinked at that unexpected answer.

"He wants it? He's putting himself in danger?"

"Is that possible? "Owen just wants to lose his mind in the normal world."

"If you don't, you'll never be able to sleep properly."

304

304. Demon King No. 2 (2)

"One day there was a very large fire in Rohan. "Most of the buildings are made of wood, and with the long drought, the damage is said to have grown out of control."

Seongjin also heard about it from Dasha. A nobleman's estate was completely burned down.

At the time, Rohan's ambassador said that he had accused Owen of arson.

"Luckily, Owen, who happened to be outside the territory at that time, escaped the attack. However, she lost both of her parents in a fire. Perhaps that is why, even after she entered the imperial palace and became stable, she was unable to sleep properly."

Owen had openly said that he was not his biological son, but neither Seonghwang nor Seongjin paid any attention to that.

"... "I have nightmares about that time."

I could guess the reason right away. Didn't Owen say that to Seongjin before terminating the connection?

-Oh, I don't like it. If things continue like this, the dream will definitely be wild.

I wondered why the grown-up was suddenly whining in an unusual way, but it seemed like it was a desperate reason of his own.

"okay. It must have been extremely painful to vividly experience the loss of your parents every night. So, isn't that why the child sent me that gift?"

After saying that, Seonghwang turns his head and looks at the desk for a moment.

As I followed his gaze, I saw a white rabbit eye patch lying there. This is a limited edition eyepatch of the mental attack resistance S+, similar to the one Sisley showed earlier.

It was a whopping price of 3,999,000 P Cash.

"Sisley said it was something that would ward off nightmares. But why did I tell my father... .."

When the puzzled Seongjin asked, Seonghwang slowly shook his head.

"There is one reason I can think of. "I once said this to that child in passing."

Seonghwang, who was busy with construction work both in the face and at night, sometimes called Owen, who could not sleep, and showered him with divine power to pass the time.

-lung... Isn't your father sleeping at this hour?

It is said that to the boy who was still unfamiliar and hesitant, Seonghwang at that time casually answered:

-There is no need to sleep because you have divine power. Since my dream would be messy anyway, I think it would be better to finish at least one task during that time.

Seongjin, who was listening, became bewildered.

"... Just because of that?"

"okay. "Owen is a child with a quite delicate side."

Come to think of it, Sisley also said this before.

-Owen may seem like he goes around without thinking, but when you get to know him, he is a very attentive and kind person. I once told him that I had a nightmare, and he kept forgetting about it for years and then sent me this.

Since nightmares are what he struggles with the most, it seems like he didn't listen to what other people said in passing.

However, after purchasing two such expensive items with the cash I saved, and sending them off, I am actually afraid of nightmares? Does that mean he still hasn't found anything for himself?

"Why don't you write it first...?""

However, Seongjin was able to guess the reason as soon as he spoke. The day we first met at Pangea Chronicle, Owen said this to him with a serious expression.

-Now they are the only ones left to me in this world. You can't lose your precious people twice. Now I can do anything to stop it.

Needless to say, he was putting the people of Seonghwang family above his own safety.

'Besides, I wasted the cash I didn't have enough to buy another animal skin that wasn't available.'

He was truly an idiot fox who only did stupid things from start to finish.

Since then, Seongjin spent quite a long time in the office. Thanks to this, when the conversation with Seonghwang was completely over, dawn was already breaking brightly outside the window.

"I don't know if I made you wait too long."

Seongjin, who was leaving the office, heard Seonghwang muttering worriedly.

"... ... ?"

I was puzzled for a moment, but Seongjin soon realized that it would happen. It must have been a day or two before that guy said something incomprehensible.

Anyway, it was a leisurely morning after a long time. As he left the office under Raphael's guidance, Seongjin thought happily.

'Thanks to my father, I'm in good shape. Shall we devote ourselves to swordsmanship training today for the first time in a while?'

Sir Masain said that we will soon be able to completely remove Banajas Type 8. Seongjin, who at first only knew how to use his fists, has now joined the ranks of full-fledged Auror practitioners.

Seongjin, who was so preoccupied with other things, only when he arrived at the entrance of the main palace did he sense a familiar presence.

"... Sir Masaine?"

"Lowering."

Masain, who happened to spot Seongjin at the same time, takes a step forward and bows.

'No, a gentleman who should be warming up in the Jinju Palace exercise hall by now, why did he suddenly appear at the main palace?'

However, Seongjin, who was walking towards him at a brisk pace, soon flinched in surprise and stopped. As expected, in Masain's hand he was holding the nutcracker he had left in the room.

Because of this, it was impossible not to know who Masain had been chasing all the way here since early morning.

"hmm... .."

As Seongjin was secretly observing him, a knight with a grave expression approached him and politely offered him a nutcracker.

"Lowering. No matter how busy you are, you must not forget this important weapon."

"Oh, thank you. Lord Masaine."

As Seongjin received the sword and put it on his waist, Masain turned and continued speaking.

"I apologize for taking your sword without permission. First, I prepared in advance because I thought I would go to the morning training right away. "Then shall we take you to the training hall like this?"

"Well, is that so?"

Seongjin thought as he followed him obediently, feeling a strange sense of guilt.

Why does this guy seem to be getting used to my unexpected behavior? Is this okay?

[Are you okay, you troublemaker? Look at that face that looks much older than before!]

... Oh, shut up!

"Are you talking about Prince Owen's nightmare...?"

On the way back to Jinju Palace, Seongjin was able to hear more about Owen from Masain.

"The prince has been like this since he first came to the palace. "He couldn't sleep well at all."

Sir Masain is actually of royal blood, but has now become a mere knight. It would be easy for him to ignore Owen, but I guess it's characteristic of him to be polite and not forget to use an honorific.

"I remember waking up screaming almost every night. So, the other princes and princesses at the time were very worried."

It is said that the children of the Seonghwang family made a lot of effort for Owen.

Amelia, who had a lot of knowledge about miscellaneous things, would always bring herbs and scented herbs that were said to be good for sleep, and Logan, who lived with her in the Blue Rose Labyrinth, would spare no effort in giving him hush tea every evening.

Sisley, who followed Owen very well, visited him every morning and gave him divine power with his small hands.

Then, it was almost a year after he came to the imperial palace that Owen began to stabilize. No, rather than finding stability, he was closer to the onset of another insanity.

-I had a very strange dream yesterday. I have been hunting hard in some unknown place. But it was a very strange place where money appeared out of thin air when you killed game.

Owen, who had had a quiet night for a long time, continued speaking while pointing his finger in the air.

-But can you still see the letters you saw in your dream? Can't you see these letters?

Could it be that the stress caused by the nightmare has reached its peak and he is finally going crazy?

Everyone was worried about him, but surprisingly, Owen brightened noticeably from then on. As the depression caused by the nightmare completely disappeared, his naturally cheerful personality began to surface.

Except for the occasional growl with Mores, daily life in the imperial palace continued peacefully for a while.

I thought everything was resolved like that...

"... "He suddenly left for the southern front, saying he wanted to become stronger."

Masain nodded at Seongjin's words.

"Yes, that's right. And he actually became very strong."

From then on, Owen continued his brilliant performance as if he were possessed.

Defeat the marines, reorganize the front lines, rescue stranded missionaries, etc. I made small achievements. And since when did you start cutting down enemies at the forefront of the front line?

One boy who had not even signed a contract completely changed the situation on the southern front, which was in decline!

"You have truly fulfilled your 'noble man's duty'. He is a person worthy of being a member of the Seonghwang family. Sometimes unscrupulous people try to diminish his achievements, but that is purely... .."

That was when Masain spoke up to that point.

Wong wong!

Max, who recognizes Seongjin from the training ground in the distance, comes running towards him, wagging his tail excitedly.

This guy was disturbing the training knights for a while, and he seemed to think it was some kind of game that was repeated every morning.

"Max!"

Seongjin barely caught the guy who ran at him with all his might without falling and hugged him tightly.

"You man. Why are you disturbing the knights? "Didn't the leader play properly?"

Then, from afar, Director Bruno raises his empty hands with an aggrieved expression. What he wanted to say was clear.

'I would like to play, but now there are no dishes left.'

In the meantime, it looks like he ran away with all the newly made plates in his mouth.

[Aren't we all asking too much of a stupid mixed breed dog?]

The Demon King sarcastically said.

I know? Isn't it time to properly 'ask'? I wonder if he's a bit stupid for a dog.

"Max, you guy! Where did you hide all the dishes? huh?"

When Seongjin scolded, Max tilted his head with innocent eyes.

Kiing?

'... Hmm, since she thinks she's cute, I guess she's smart too.

In the end, Seongjin gave up trying to retrieve the plate and gently scratched the boy's ears.

"Okay, okay. What if I'm a bit stupid? "It's so cute."

Meanwhile, I catch a glimpse of Sir Haven cheering on one side of the training hall.

Of course, Seongjin didn't care much. Since you are Lord Haven, you must have made another big mistake.

[I think I know what that mistake is. how about you?]

'okay? I have no idea.'

[...] Seongjin Lee. How is it that you're getting better at acting like a fool?]

'shut up!'

What is pretense! Don't start slandering people for no reason in the morning, you devil!

Tap, tap, tap.

Owen's nightmares always began on a shaking cart.

It was a day not much different from usual. The day I regularly went to town to sell skins with my parents, who were hunters.

-Wake up, Owen! Are you planning on coming to town after a long time and sleeping in?

The voice of his father who wakes him up from his slumber, rolling around in his cart.

Now that several years have passed, his face has become blurred in my memory, but his strong arms and copper-colored hair, just like Owen's, still remain deep in my mind.

-Owen, wake up quickly, take this and go to a nearby church. I guess I'll have to ask the priests for a blessing.

My mother's face as she said that was also blurry. Her mother's worried voice and the bright red color of the pendant she holds out are so vivid.

-Bart's gift? Why is that?

-These days, I have nightmares every time I sleep with this necklace on. It's a scary dream where everything is engulfed in flames.

-okay? Nothing like that has happened until now, right?

-huh. So, first, let's get Owen to show it to the priest. There may have been something wrong with it.

After his parents' quiet conversation, the scene quickly changed, and before he knew it, Owen was at a church on the outskirts of town. In one hand, she was holding a bright red pendant that her mother had given her.

Tuk!

However, Owen bumped into a strange person at the entrance of the church. A man wearing luxurious clothes and a strange half-mask that did not suit him.

[...] What is this again?]

Behind the half-mask, eerie eye lights glowed yellow.

[Why is this here? Why is this guy who should be dead walking around just fine?]

The moment he met that gaze, an indescribable fear came over Owen.

305. Demon King No. 2 (3)

Owen froze in front of the man. It was probably the fear instinctively felt by a creature facing an absolute predator.

This strange man wearing a half mask reminded Owen of the huge seawater he had once encountered in the mountains.

-Owen. Lower your posture and hold your breath. Don't let it find us.

His father's hand was pressing down on Owen's head, wary of the saber-toothed bear that made a threatening low-frequency sound every time it exhaled.

Even my father, who I thought was the best hunter in the world, had memories of a terrifying predator that could only lower his head and quietly wait for it to pass by.

-Why is this guy who should be dead still walking around?

Above all, what the man said. It was familiar to Owen in a different way. His parents had a habit of repeating this to Owen whenever he forgot something.

-If it wasn't for Bart that day, mom wouldn't have been able to give birth to you safely. Isn't all of this the Lord's care? So Owen, don't forget to be thankful for everything.

What is interest? How do you know about yourself? Above all, why can't my whole body stop shaking like this?

I winced. As Owen became thoughtful and took a step behind her, the man smiled, tearing the corners of his mouth beneath his mask.

[He's a kid with pretty good sense. But there is no need to be so nervous.]

Fortunately, the man didn't seem to have any intention of harming Owen right away.

[I love the little sparks that young children like you have. Even though it is a weak thing with no possibility of burning, the slightest possibility it contains shines truly brilliantly.]

Tuk-tuk.

[Of course, that may have been a while now.]

The man who tapped Owen's shoulder half-heartedly left behind those incomprehensible words and disappeared far away.

However, Owen, who got goosebumps even at the slightest touch, stared blankly in the direction where the man had disappeared for a while.

Afterwards, Owen went into the church with the man and met the priest, but he did not remember the details of what exactly they discussed with him.

The next scene that came to mind clearly was a town engulfed in massive flames.

A yellow and red fire was burning fiercely, engulfing the entire village. People who can't even bring themselves to fetch water due to a long drought can only stare at the scene in shock.

-... mother...

The sea of fire burning like the hell in the scriptures and the smoke spreading thickly are extremely unrealistic.

Owen headed toward the fire as if possessed.

-Ah, father! mother!

Hey, what is that guy?

Wait, you want to go in? Hurry and catch it! Stop me!

Owen, who was hurriedly running toward the fire, was caught by Wen Janghan's hand and violently thrown to the floor.

Tuk!

It was right then. A flint sticks out of Owen's pocket. It was an object that even Owen himself couldn't figure out why it was there.

... What is that?

And at the same time, there was a strange voice ringing in everyone's head.

[Did that huge fire just happen by accident? Coincidentally, a guy with a flint appeared at the scene of the fire. Very suspicious.]

In an instant, the villagers' eyes changed.

-That's no ordinary flint! It is a precious stone found in some parts of Ortona!

-Why does a child have such expensive things? Is that guy an arsonist?

-I don't know what it is, but catch it first!

Owen struggled with all his might in the hands of suddenly rough people.

-Let go of this! My parents are in there... .. !

However, the agitated people's dissuasion soon turned into merciless violence directed at the boy.

That was when Owen was helplessly reaching out for the fire.

Grumble!

Suddenly, a scene slightly different from his original memory unfolded before Owen's eyes.

The fierce fire that had burned the village and the people who had beaten him were gone, and now there was an unfamiliar sight of hell where the whole world was covered in fire.

-... What's this!

The sky and the ground, everything is just as dark red as blood.

Owen took a deep breath and looked around.

Now he is no longer the young boy he was back then. Owen of Delcross. An invincible warrior who stands at the forefront of the southern front and slaughters the enemy.

Nevertheless, in this scene of complete hell, Owen had no choice but to be as completely helpless as he was then. It was so infuriating and despairing.

-... ... !

But for some time, a boy had been standing in front of Owen.

Even though it feels like I'm seeing it for the first time, the back view feels strangely familiar. A dark red aura bloomed from the sword the boy was holding, and his light blonde hair also reflected the fire and glowed with an ominous dark red light.

Jeez.

As the boy took a step forward, Owen desperately shouted at him.

-Don't go in! Where are you now... ... !

Owen, whose body was now free, was running, calling out to him without realizing it.

-hey! Stop right there! Newbie...

"... rain."

"Lowering."

"I'm a newbie."

"Lowering!"

Flashing.

When he opens his eyes to the sound of an urgent call, Alicia, who was shaking Owen, asks in a worried voice.

"Sir, are you okay?"

"... Alicia?"

"Yes, sir. That's me."

"... .."

The feeling of extreme desperation disappears like the ebb of the tide at the same time as one becomes aware of reality.

When Owen regains his composure and stands up, Alicia quickly picks up a blanket and wipes his forehead, which is covered in cold sweat.

The escort driver who had been assisting Owen for the past few years was well aware of the nightmares he sometimes suffered from.

"Sir, if you're being rude, I think you should go out for a while."

After seeing that Owen's breathing had calmed down, Alicia spoke in an urgent voice.

"Some Barcelona people have been looking for you since morning."

"I am a warrior of the Purma tribe, Bartoja! "I have come to ask Owen of Delcross for the price of the clan leader's life!"

A group of Barça warriors were gathered outside the fence. It was a majestic general and many warriors guarding him.

Janghan Bartoza, holding an ax and having a bushy beard, was screaming so loudly that the entire Delcross camp rang.

"So come out quickly! Come out and join me in arms! "I hope you're not a lousy coward who avoids a duel that demands blood justice, Owen!"

As Owen approaches the fence, a middle-aged knight bows his head politely. This is Sir Abigail, the leader of the 4th Knights of the SS and the person in charge of the southern front.

"That ignorant heretic has been saying such nonsense since a while ago, sir. "Even if I warn you to go back, you don't listen at all. Isn't that truly reckless?"

"hmm."

Owen nodded, stood side by side with her, and looked down at the outside of the wooden fence. Then, Jang Han's spirit becomes even stronger when he spots him outside.

"Come down here right now! Owen of Delcross!"

Then Alicia got angry and shouted in Barça, which she was quite good at.

"Do not call the name of the Precious One carelessly! Your tribal leader lost his life on the battlefield. Do you think it is justifiable to demand payment for that blood now? "Don't cause any unnecessary trouble and go back!"

But it didn't work for Jang Han.

"Shut up, Owen's dog! You moved like hands and feet next to him, and now you even want to speak for his mouth! "Isn't it shameful for a proper warrior to voluntarily become a dog!"

Puhahaha!

Behind him, other Barçaians are laughing heartily. They were people with whom I could not communicate at all.

"They are not from the Purma tribe. "It's Karazhan."

Owen, who was looking at them closely at that time, said.

"Are you sure, sir?"

"okay. Except for the guy holding the ax and screaming, everyone in the back are warriors from the Karazhan tribe. Although the appearance is well disguised, the fingering method of holding the axe is clearly different. "Seeing them make mistakes like that makes them look like they're still kids."

Although Barsha's tribes were mostly similar, there were sometimes unique differences depending on tribal traditions.

Owen, who has been with the Volanta tribe for a long time, is able to clearly perceive the subtle differences that the imperial people can easily overlook.

"Is this Karazhan...?"

Lord Abigail's face became a little more serious at that.

"If what you say is true, you need to be careful. Wakana Tusai, that old fox is up to something again."

Aside from occasional local clashes, the southern front has been showing a lull recently.

There is also regular exchange of cultural goods with some gentle tribes. The Volanta tribe, whom Owen frequently visited recently, was one of these moderate tribes.

On the other hand, in the case of Karazhan, the situation was different.

The most powerful and warlike tribe in Barça. In particular, their chieftain, Wakana Tusai, was someone who consistently maintained a hard-line stance against Delcross. They are quietly waiting with bated breath for the embers of battle to be lit again at any time.

"How disappointing, Owen! "Is the eldest son of the Delcross tribe a coward who hides behind a woman and trembles!"

Owen grabs the ax from his belt as he sees Janghan yelling loudly. Then Lord Abigail stopped Owen.

"Lowering. There is no need to respond to their childish provocations one by one. "If only young warriors had been sent, it means that Wakana Tusai would have been prepared to be annihilated as well."

But Owen shook his head.

"Barsha's Thanksgiving is coming, Lord Abigail. "Sooner or later, a grand meeting will be held where all the tribal leaders of Barsha will gather."

From what I have observed on the battlefield for many years, Wakana Tusai was a man who was as intelligent as he was warlike.

Even now, when I think about how much sabotage Owen received from her before he could properly interact with the Volanta tribe, I still feel angry.

"Karazhan's position remains firm. If you don't respond, it's as if you don't respond, and if you're annihilated, you're annihilated. "They will insist on starting a war with us once again under the pretext of a just blood price."

"That is just a far-fetched claim."

"But it will work effectively for other elders who have antipathy toward the empire. Ignoring them like this will only end up playing into Wakana Tusai's will."

"... .."

Sir Abigail's eyes briefly land on the handle of the ax that the prince is stroking. However, she did not go against the prince's will any further.

Who is Owen?

In a chaotic battlefield, isn't he the prince who easily breaks through Barsha's elite warriors on his own and cuts off the head of the tribe leader?

There is no need to fret over such poor warriors.

"... hmm?"

Suddenly, Owen's eyes narrowed as he noticed something.

"What does this mean all of a sudden? "What do you want me to collect?"

Although invisible to others, a new quest window was flashing before Owen's eyes.

306. Demon King No. 2 (4)

Purma's Bartoja.

He was shouting confidently in front of the Delcross camp, but inside he was full of anxiety, contrary to his appearance.

'... I didn't want it to get this big!'

The Purma tribe is in decline after losing its chief twice in a row in the last war.

Although he was pushed out of the race for the tribe's leader, Bartoja was a rather ambitious man. Accordingly, he decided to abandon his tribe and entrust himself to Karazhan, one of his most powerful tribes.

-Now our tribe has become shameless cowards and is falling into decline!

Of course, when he came face to face with Wakana Tusai, Bartoja did not forget to show off his betrayal in front of the old fox.

-So I abandoned the tribe to avenge the tribe leader! I even gave up my pride as a warrior for revenge!

-Ho... ..

-This Bartoja, riding with the bravest brothers of Karazhan in Varsha, seeks to completely drive the hordes of the Empire from the land of their ancestors! So give me another chance to take up arms!

However, the Karazhan chieftain, who was quietly listening to him, said this with an amused expression on his face.

-excellent. Bartoja.

Contrary to its reputation for being stubborn, it is a compliment that only sounds pure. Bartóza looked up with a glimmer of hope. And, he just froze in place.

The old tribal leader, Wakana Tusai, was looking down at himself as if he were giving a final review of a sheep about to beheaded. He had beastly eyes that reflected a dangerously shiny light.

-Have you abandoned your pride as a warrior and even thrown away the opportunity to stand before the souls of your great ancestors? That would mean that his desire for revenge against the empire was enormous. If you do so, I have a suitable way to help you.

... This isn't it.

His chin began to visibly tremble due to an ominous premonition, but the old fox above his head added patronizingly:

-It just so happened that a young man from the tribe created something very interesting. If this were the case, he would be able to kill Owen of Delcross right now. So that you can pass on your feats to future generations, I will also give you our warriors.

-Well, Chief... ..

-What. It is a tribute to a steadfast warrior who is determined to be lonely forever even after death. As a brother of Barça, this is a natural help, so please do not hesitate.

-... ..

He even received a cup of wine from the chief, and was forcibly brought here along with a group of warriors who could not tell if they were there to help him or to watch him.

I looked for opportunities to escape several times along the way, but there was no other way. The moment he shows any signs of strangeness, the weapon aimed at Owen will be fired straight at him.

"Come out quickly! Owen of Delcross!"

So, even as he calls out to Owen to leave, he keeps repeating this to himself.

'Don't come out, Owen! Please don't come out!'

Bartóza's eyes looked around anxiously.

Coincidentally, there were not only people from the empire around them, but also a few people from the Barsha tribe interacting with them. That may be why the warriors sent by Wakana Tusai disguised themselves, however clumsily, as Purma warriors.

'Success or failure, what happened today will eventually spread throughout Barça!'

For him, it was best for Owen not to respond to this provocation. If that happens, Karazhan can be trusted with the reputation of scaring the famous Owen.

But if Owen says he wants to duel-

'Even if we succeed, the people of the empire who lost the clan leader's son will not want to keep us alive...'

And unfortunately for Bartoja, Owen was a brave warrior who lived up to his reputation.

Creak-

Soon the door of the wooden fence opens, and a tall young man wearing light armor approaches Bartoja. He was holding a large blunt weapon in one hand.

The young man's long hair had so many feathers fluttering in the gentle breeze that it was hard to believe that it was a battle over a short period of time.

'This is what happens in the end!'

At that moment, Bartóza prepared to die.

Hehehehe.

Every time Owen takes a step, the blunt object in his hand drags on the floor, raising an acrid cloud of dust.

A heavy war hammer with clunky decorations attached to it. It was an item that was quite familiar to Bartoza's eyes.

"that... ... ?"

"Do you recognize this? "Of course it should be."

Owen grinned, showing his teeth.

"At least the four of you who proudly mentioned the blood price of the tribe leader should not be Karazhan."

"... ... !"

Do you already know the identity of the group?

As Bartoza broke out in a cold sweat while aiming the axe, Owen roared at it! He threw her to the floor and released her shoulders.

"This is the trophy I got after defeating the Purma tribe leader. If you can kill me and avenge the tribe's defeat, I will gladly hand this over to you. "Take it back to your tribe and let us all honor the spirit of our chieftain."

An indirect promise that even if he dies, he will not kill Bartoza, who won the duel.

'... Is it true?'

The Imperials cannot be completely trusted. But now the only thing Bartosa can cling to is Owen's light words.

"Aaaah!"

Finally, Bartoza made up his mind and desperately rushed towards Owen.

Pow!

Bartoza's ax strikes senselessly at the chieftain's hammer standing on the ground. This is because Owen jumped into the air to avoid his attack.

Bingle.

Owen, holding the handle of the hammer with one hand, turned around and kicked toward Bartozza's head.

Although it looks light, it is a heavy blow loaded with aura.

'... ... !'

Bartoza managed to avoid the attack by lowering his body. Of course, I couldn't help but have a bunch of decorated feathers fall off along with the hair on the top of my head.

Anyway, my body was already covered in small wounds, so it was just a hair like that.

'... 'There's this much difference?'

Bartosa took a step back, taking a deep breath. Then Owen doesn't chase him, but just looks at him blankly.

It was a car that felt strange from a while ago. Owen wasn't too desperate to attack him. That's right, he was moving without taking his hand off the chieftain's hammer stuck in the floor.

It uses the handle as a shield or as a support to turn its body and never neglects to be alert to its surroundings. An attitude as if he didn't care about things like Bartóza at all.

'I'm sure they didn't notice the poisonous sting...'

Who in the world would have expected the Barça warriors to make a sneak attack? This must be purely belittling Bartóza!

What's even more infuriating is that Owen shows no signs of picking up his favorite disease yet!

"Ugh..."

As I let out an exasperated groan, Owen spoke up.

"I'll give you one last warning. Are you going to continue this meaningless fight? "You and those young warriors have become nothing more than Wakana Tusai's discarded members."

"... .."

"If everyone becomes a fugitive and wanders the plains, at least they can survive."

Although he was speaking to Bartoza, Owen's eyes were focused on the Karazhan warriors standing behind them, holding their shields. It looks like they are already figuring out who is in charge of this situation.

"Don't be ridiculous, Imperial! "Don't you dare insult the honor of a warrior!"

Bartoza, sensing that the atmosphere among the Karazhan warriors was becoming more sinister, grabbed the ax with his numb hands and shouted.

If they had all been killed horribly, it wouldn't have been so funny. Owen's intention is to completely tarnish the warriors' honor and make Wakana Tusai's plot meaningless.

'If things continue like this, even if I survive here, I will die! Die at the hands of Wakana Tusai!"

Bartoza, who hit Bae Soo-jin, lunges at Owen again-

The split second when Owen's eyes turn to his axe -

The Karazhan warrior in the lead holding a shield puffed out his cheeks without warning.

Shoo!

Accompanied by a slight sound of wind, a sharp poisonous needle shoots towards Owen. It was a timing that even Bartóza could not have expected at all.

"... ... !"

But then, the handle of the hammer that Owen was holding slowly tilted forward.

Tang! Tang! Tang!

As if being sucked in, all the memorized energy that hit the wide sack is thrown outward.

"Uh, how... ... !"

Bartoza's eyes widen...

Hiss! Whoosh!

Two Karazhan warriors nearby threw additional poisonous needles. It was a thin, small memorization that could not be seen by the average person, but-

Bouncy!

Owen seemed to have expected it again and deflected all the poisonous needles with the handle of his axe.

"It's memorization! "They use memorization!"

Sir Abigail, who realized the situation a little too late, fired an arrow from behind the fence.

Wedge- Puck!

One of the Karazhan warriors behind was hit squarely in the forehead and fell backwards.

The archers and Alicia who soon joined in fired arrows without giving the remaining warriors a chance to remove their weapons.

Plop! Buck!

The gathered warriors fell to the ground without even being able to do anything.

"... ... !"

Arrows raining down on my head.

Bartoza was at a loss due to this sudden situation, unable to do anything.

At that moment, a warrior who had fallen on the ground slowly raised his head and put a poisonous needle in his mouth. The intention was to completely destroy the evidence that they were Karazhan and not Purma.

Flutter!

However, his attempt was thwarted by a flying one-handed axe. Owen, who had already put down the hammer handle, pulled out his ax and threw it at the guy's head.

"How is it? "Do you think I received blood money for saving your life?"

Owen grinned as he caught a glimpse of the frozen Bartoza, then bent down and diligently collected the poison needle and weapon. She then raised her head and checked the newly popped up quest completion window.

[Surprise Quest - Collecting Amazing Poison Stings]

[Quest Grade: A]

[General comment: You detected the poisonous stinger hidden by the enemy and successfully collected it. However, if it had been possible to stop it before it was launched, it would certainly have been possible to collect complete memorization. I am sorry for your lack of quickness, and I hope you will work hard to build your skills further in the future.]

'Sang Sang-chang's warning was true.'

Owen stuck his tongue out.

Using a poisonous needle in a fair duel was something that would have been impossible for the original Barça warrior.

Thanks to that, if I let my guard down, I could have been hit by a poisonous needle at a critical time. What if there wasn't Sang Tae-chang's quest.

There is only one case where Sang Chang-chang's compensation was so blatantly low. It was a warning quest thrown to you as if you were being generous.

'Thank you, Sang Tae-chang.'

As Owen expresses his gratitude and expresses his gratitude, a spear appears again.

[Nothing extra will be dropped even if you say something. I am sorry for your extreme lack of quick thinking, and I hope you will work hard to improve your skills in the future.]

Ah, yes. I feel so grateful.

"Now these weapons are rightfully mine. "I will collect this as is and show it to the elders of Volanta."

Owen looked down at Bartóza, who was still stiff, and spoke softly.

"You go. "Go and tell Wakana Tusai."

For a moment, to Bartoza, Owen of Delcross seemed a more threatening beast than the old fox of Karazhan.

"If you want to embroil all Barsha tribes in war, then do whatever you want. "I swear on Owen's name that no one in Karazhan will survive that battlefield."

Meanwhile, at the same time.

Seongjin arrived at the Silver Rose Labyrinth at Amelia's call and met an unexpected person in the reception room. It was Isabella Scarzzapino, whose eyes widened as she drank tea.

"Huh?"

When Seongjin glares at her with evil eyes, Isabella hastily spits out the tea with a pale face and spits it out into the teacup. Such undignified and degrading behavior that you would never imagine seeing a social queen.

Cluck cluck!

Hearing the frantic coughing that followed, Seongjin furrowed his brows.

'What kind of reaction is that again?'

But more than that, why on earth is that bastard in the Silver Rose Labyrinth?

307. Demon King No. 2 (5)

It was almost noon when Seongjin received Amelia's visit request.

Seongjin, who was working on the monster task force at the time, was contemplating a few minor monopoly transactions that the Milo merchant group had.

'Should we just intercept the good ones from 'Bertrán & Lee'...'

Originally, it would have been handed over to the administration to review applications from other parties, but it was obvious that if it were delegated to that side, it would either end up in the network of high-ranking priests or become an excuse for bribery.

That should be it.

'... 'No.'

But Seongjin soon changed his mind.

Since it was a small and medium-sized top company, I didn't really care about it, but there was a high possibility that if I intercepted it for no reason, I wouldn't get much benefit and would end up in the middle of a rumor.

'If I'm going to take a big hit, I should intercept something decent when it comes out.'

Moreover, now is the time to pour all the tight funds into the northern project. In addition to the salmon business, we must make every effort to secure the northern distribution network safely!

[How long are you going to stick with that pointless business?]

'shut up! After all, Bertran & Lee's first business is a salmon specialty store!'

Seongjin, who scolded the devil, was lost in thought as he gathered the documents one by one.

'Now that I think about it, do you think you will ultimately receive Amelia's approval for this matter?'

I heard that Amelia, who has recently been prominent in political affairs, has taken over a lot of the miscellaneous tasks of the Holy Emperor. In that case, it might be better to hand it over directly to the main palace rather than through the administration and let the older sister wield authority from the beginning.

It seems like my sister wants to expand her influence within Delcross little by little these days.

"Your Majesty Mores. If your schedule allows, Princess Amelia would like you to stop by for a moment."

At that moment, a maid from the Silver Rose Labyrinth comes to visit Seongjin. So, with a happy heart, he took the documents for Amelia and left her monster task force.

"... hmm?"

However, when Seongjin arrived at the Silver Rose Labyrinth, he met an unexpected person in the reception room. It was Isabella Scarzapino, Sigurd Sigurdsson's doll.

"Huh?"

Isabella, facing Seongjin, held the tea she had just sipped in her mouth and made a sound of deflation.

'Why on earth is that bastard in the Silver Rose Labyrinth?'

When Seongjin glared at her with a sinister look, Isabella hurriedly spat out the tea with a pale face and spat it back into the teacup. It was a very disrespectful act that one would never expect to see from the queen of society.

Cluck cluck!

Hearing the frantic coughing that followed, Seongjin furrowed his brows.

'What kind of reaction is that again?'

Isabella, who noticed Seongjin's discomfort, shouted urgently without even wiping the tea from her mouth.

"Oh, I'm mistaken!"

"misunderstanding? "What misunderstanding?"

"that... Whatever it is, any illusion! "What you are thinking is a misunderstanding!"

"What, you bastard?"

How do you know what I'm thinking right now?

As Seongjin smiled cruelly and took a step closer, Isabella trembled and clung to the back of the sofa.

"Aren't you thinking that I'm trying to harm Princess Amelia right now?!"

"... Isn't it?"

"no! So you're not saying that's not the case!"

"Then why are you here?"

"There are circumstances that make this all unavoidable!"

Seeing him desperately shouting with his chin shaking, it looks like he has no clue about plotting something.

Anyway, what happened to that tone of voice?

"Dude, if you don't agree, didn't I tell you to pretend to be Isabella Scarzzapino? uh? "Do you think what I'm saying right now is funny?"

When Seongjin reminded her of the previous warning, only then did Isabella make an expression of regret and soon became tearful.

"... Heep!"

"... .."

"Hi! Whoop! Hi! "Huh!"

It was truly an explosive hiccup.

'... 'What on earth is this guy doing?'

I was so dumbfounded that I just watched, but fortunately for Isabella, Amelia came into the living room just in time.

"Ah, sorry for leaving you for a while after calling you, Mores. An administrative priest came to me with an urgent approval request... .."

"Ah, sister."

Seongjin frowned and looked back at her.

"it's okay. "I just arrived too."

"You're busy with work, so I didn't call you for no reason?"

"no. "I also have something to discuss with my sister."

"That's a good thing. however... .."

Amelia, who was approaching with a smiling face, suddenly noticed the strange atmosphere of the living room and stopped in shock.

"... "You two, what happened?"

"Your Majesty Amelia!"

Slap!

Isabella suddenly got up from her seat and quickly hid behind Amelia as if she had found the only rope.

"Hey, look at this. Prince Mores... .."

"huh? "Mores?"

"that... .."

Isabella pursed her lips as if about to say something more, but then froze. Because her Seongjin narrowed her eyes and gently gave her her gaze.

"eww... Hi! Hi!"

"... ..?"

"... Well, I'm sobbing after not seeing you for a while! You've become so devoted, haven't you? I'm so overwhelmed... Heep!"

Isabella tried to remember an excuse with tearful eyes. She couldn't possibly confess that she had been threatened.

okay. Unless he was out of his mind, he wouldn't have dared to slander another royal family in front of the royal family without any evidence.

The problem is whether this half-baked excuse will work for a smart woman.

"Hehe."

It was all Seongjin's luck. The princess, who was looking at the two while tilting her head, smiled brightly as if a flower had bloomed as soon as Isabella finished speaking.

"As expected, it's the Lady Scarzzapino! As I heard, you have great insight. "As expected, the right thing to do was to ask you for help!"

"... ..?"

"Our Mores looks a little too admirable. Hehehe."

This time, it was Seongjin and Isabella's turn to keep an eye on Amelia.

Is that serious now?

[...] It seems that having a protruding arm is after all hereditary.]

In the awkward atmosphere, the demon lord sighed as the flame crystal disappeared.

"Yes, Mores. "I specially invited Lady Scarzzapino today."

Anyway, the refreshments continued haphazardly.

Seongjin looks very uncomfortable, and Isabella looks visibly hesitant. And Amelia sits between them, happy alone.

"Lady Isabella has been receiving help in many ways recently. "No one knows more about the latest trends in the salon or new artists she should keep an eye on than she does."

"Is that so?"

Then Isabella pursed her lips with an aggrieved expression towards Seongjin.

"I didn't say there were circumstances that made it unavoidable!"

Of course, when Seongjin frowned, he quickly averted his gaze and started hiccuping again.

Hiccup! Hi! Hey!

He looks so dazed that I want to make a body gag right now. Seongjin looked back at Amelia, feeling her pounding headache.

"... By the way, if you are a new artist, are you looking for someone to support you?"

"That's not true. I was just looking for a good painter. "If possible, it is better to entrust the work to a painter recognized at the salon."

"Are you angry?"

"Well listen, Mores. Lady Isabella happens to be sponsoring the most famous portrait painter in the imperial capital? So she was specially invited along with her painter. When asking a painter who has a personal sponsor to work, it is customary to ask the sponsor for permission whenever possible."

portrait? Someone's?

As Seongjin blinked, Amelia smiled proudly and stood up.

"Well, now that you're here, there's no need to waste any more time. "Why don't you go to the painter together?"

"... yes?"

And Seongjin, who was taken to Amelia without knowing why, soon found out who the owner of the portrait was.

I had to strike a cool pose while holding the black Henesys longsword in front of the huge emblem of the main god. He even wore a black cloak of unknown origin!

'Why on earth am I doing this?'

I was looking at the painter across from me in bewilderment, and he gave an order to Seongjin with a big smile.

"Please ease your expression a little, sir. "Can you give me a confident smile worthy of a handsome gentleman?"

"... .."

"How about changing it to a more dynamic pose? Mores, could you please try the Banajas 5 formula that I showed you earlier one more time?"

I don't know what this is all about.

But for now, it's my sister's request.

Seongjin endured the rising embarrassment and swung the Henesys long sword in a convincing manner in front of everyone.

Immediately, loud praise pours in from all directions.

"That's it! Lowering!"

"Ah, that looks like a really cool portrait, Mores!"

"It is exactly as you said, Amelia!"

"Kyaa! "You look great, Prince Mores!"

Even the maids of the Silver Rose Labyrinth joined in and made such a fuss that the back of my head started to tingle.

The only person who took a step back from this commotion was Isabella, who, as expected, looked at this scene with a cold expression.

I never thought I would form a consensus with that guy in a place like this.

Fortunately, the embarrassing time didn't last too long. This is because the artist, who only understood the rough composition and atmosphere, took all his tools and disappeared.

It seemed like he had a lot to prepare to set up his studio in earnest.

"Would you please stop by the Silver Rose Labyrinth from time to time in the future? Just take a moment when you have free time. "Because the artist decided to stay at the imperial palace until the portrait was completed."

Seongjin sighed inwardly at Amelia's request.

Uh, okay.

That doesn't mean it's all over in one day.

'But if you are a member of the royal family. It would be right to leave at least one portrait in your lifetime... ... '

If you're going to get hit someday, it might be better to get hit quickly.

"But can't I just hold a nutcracker? Why the Henesys longsword?"
"This sword is purely a gift to my sister."

When Seongjin asked while handing over the sword, Amelia smiled meaningfully.

"Hehe, Mores. Do you know why I cherish this sword so much?"

... Isn't that what you like?

As Seongjin was confused, his delicate fingers took the black Henesys long sword and lightly grasped it.

"Because this sword is a sword that suits someone I know very well."

After saying that, Amelia held up her long sword and slowly took a stance.

The sight of an angel-like girl wearing a white dress, elegantly swinging a sword with hideous protrusions that could easily be called a magic sword.

At that moment, everyone in the room held their breath and looked at the sight.

"I also wanted to be like that person. I decided to become that strong. That's why I always chase after that figure in my memory and keep imitating him."

At that moment, the beautiful girl seemed to be enveloped in a bright glow. Even the ugly sword, which barely reflects light, gave the illusion that it was glowing black.

While the scene was very heterogeneous, there was a place where it harmonized exquisitely, like a still life carefully arranged by a painter.

This is probably the absolute beauty that catches everyone's attention!

'... Wow, sister. amazing!'

Seongjin thought with a strange feeling, not even paying attention to what she had already said.

'In fact, isn't this the scene that the artist should really leave in his paintings?'

And for a moment, Seongjin thought he had said that thought out loud. This murmur was heard right next to me.

"... Wow, Mr. So cool! This must be left as a portrait... ..!"

"... ..?"

When Seongjin looked at Isabella, she was startled and blushed furiously.

"Why, why do you look at me like that?"

"... .."

"ah! There is absolutely no other meaning! Don't misunderstand! As someone who pursues dramatic aesthetics that make one imagine a narrative, I mean that the princess's appearance is very inspiring to all artists... ..!"

Uh, no. Don't be nervous. It's just that, for some reason, I just felt like you really looked like Isabella.

'Anyway, I have to get what I get from this bastard.'

Seongjin, who had made up his mind, spoke softly.

"Stop talking nonsense and just give it to me."

When Seongjin suddenly gained weight, Isabella became very nervous and asked back.

"what... "What do you mean?"

"That painter. First, hand over his recruits to me."

Then Isabella became thoughtful and whispered urgently.

"What do you mean all of a sudden? The author has nothing to do with Sigurd Sigurdsson! He's just a talented painter! Even if you torture them, nothing will come out!"

No, what on earth does this bastard see in people?

"What nonsense are you talking about? That guy is the best at drawing portraits in the ecliptic? The client for the next portrait is me. "I'm going to draw my sister."

"... .."

Then Isabella looked at Seongjin with a puzzled expression.

what? why? what?

308. Demon King No. 2 (6)

After some wrangling, Seongjin succeeded in completely taking over the job of painter from Isabella. Instead of fully supporting him, they decided to commission a painting first.

Since this is a world without cameras, I decided that it would be a good idea to have at least a skilled painter by my side.

"Good for you, Mores."

Amelia, who had no idea that she had been chosen as the model for the next tentative portrait, was overjoyed that Seongjin had an artist he liked.

"Now is the time for you to pay attention to culture and arts. "You should start going to famous salons and start your own social gatherings."

"Is there really a need for me to do that?"

When I asked again reluctantly, Amelia answered with a stern expression.

"Of course, Mores. "In order to attract young talents who will become the mainstay of the imperial capital in the future and to properly listen to their voices, we must not neglect such meetings even from now on."

"Uh, yes... .."

"Our Seonghwang family members all have such tendencies. "While they try to look out for and protect their subjects, they actually neglect the physiology of the nobles and high-ranking priests who will act as their hands and feet in the middle."

So, you must become a politician who knows how to look everywhere. Amelia added:

"... .."

Seongjin looked at Amelia blankly without answering.

I've been thinking about it for a while, but strangely enough, this sister seems to have no doubt that I will become the crown prince.

Why?

"Of course, that may not be what I want to say. I've only recently started paying attention. "I'm still clumsy in many ways, but I'm still getting a lot of help from Lady Scarzzapino."

To that guy?

When Seongjin turned around, thinking it was unexpected, Isabella showed a sullen expression.

'Now, did you hear? Even so, this body is Isabella Scarchapino, the queen of society. He is such a great being that the princess asks for help.'

Seongjin was dumbfounded by his confident expression. Where on earth has the guy who was shaking with fear gone just now?

Anyway, even after the portrait case was concluded, Seongjin continued to stay in the Silver Rose Labyrinth and spent some time.

Although she seems very sloppy now, Isabella has a personality that is almost identical to Sigurd Sigurdsson. He was too anxious to be left alone with Amelia. Needless to say, Isabella's face crumpled every moment.

Of course, Amelia, who did not know such circumstances, expressed pure joy that Seongjin stayed for a long time.

"Lowering. Magistrate Dorian requests to see you."

How much time has passed like that? One of her maids spoke carefully to Amelia.

"Administrator Dorian?"

"yes. He said that if I tell you that it is about the latest events in Cyprus, you will know."

"... okay."

Amelia nodded and stood up with a slightly serious expression.

"I'm sorry, but I have to go now, Mores. "If he came all the way to the Eunjang Labyrinth in person, he would definitely be saying that this is an issue that needs to be discussed urgently."

As for Administrator Dorian, Seongjin also knew him to some extent. He was so trusted that the Emperor sometimes entrusted him with the royal seal.

Amelia seemed to be diligently helping her father with his work recently, but it seems that Amelia is involved in more political affairs than expected.

"Don't worry about me and just go now, sister."

"okay."

Next, Amelia's sorrowful gaze landed on the embarrassed Isabella.

"Anyway, I feel really sorry for Lady Scarzzapino for having to leave early. He planned to spend time until evening and then go to the salon together. "Maybe this is a good thing."

what? You're going to stay with that bastard until evening? That was something that should never have been said.

Before Isabella could say anything, Seongjin quickly answered Amelia.

"Don't worry, sister. "I will take Lady Isabella to her mansion on my way back."

"... ... !?"

While Isabella was shocked, Amelia smiled.

"Oh my, would you please?"

In this way, Seongjin and Isabella left the Silver Rose Labyrinth together.

"Come to think of it, it's been a long time since you two saw each other, right? "Let's have a leisurely chat on the way."

Isabella stiffened and reluctantly got into the carriage where Seongjin was riding as the princess, who knew nothing, sent her off happily. Her confident attitude from before was gone again.

Seongjin smiled without even realizing it.

'Such a simple guy...'

It is so insignificant that one naturally loses one's guard.

If Sigurd Sigurdson is acting with intention, I feel like I have no choice but to admit this.

Many, many, many.

In that awkward atmosphere, the carriage began to move.

"..."

Isabella hesitates and looks at Seongjin.

It seems that she is now worried that she missed the opportunity to pretend to be Isabella by meeting Seongjin before she could prepare herself.

Seongjin, who was looking out the window sullenly, furrowed his eyebrows at the anxious gaze.

"what? "If you have something to say, say it."

Then Isabella cautiously opens her mouth.

"I... "I'm not usually like this."

"what?"

"It was a mistake that happened because I was in a hurry today. "As you know well from what I heard from the princess earlier, I am living as the flawless Isabella."

okay. It seems like that.

Seongjin answered half-heartedly without looking away from the window.

"okay. I'll just skip it this time. "First of all, it looks like you can be useful to Amelia."

"... .."

But that wasn't the end. She quietly looked at Seongjin's expression and then asked again.

"Why don't you ask me anything?"

What does that mean?

When Seongjin turned his head and focused on Isabella, she spoke with a very determined expression.

"Why don't you try to get any other information from me? "You probably have a lot of questions about Sigurd Sigurdsson."

"... .."

"I understand Seonghwang's attitude of leaving me alone. Since he is an oracle, there is nothing more you need to know about the dimensional storyteller. The reason you kept me alive is nothing more than an act of generosity out of sympathy for Isabella, who was used as a doll. "But aren't you different from him?"

"different?"

"exactly. "You have no memories of the past, do you?"

The question was valid. Sigurd Sigurdsson is almost like a parasite that only carries souls without any substance. There is no way he would leave any traces on the world.

Currently, Isabella will be the only clue to catch him.

"The vast amount of knowledge he left behind is gradually being forgotten, and memories also fade with time. If you want to ask me about the Storyteller of the Dimension, now would be a good time."

Then Seongjin looked at Isabella with a sullen face.

Of course that's true. Since Seonghwang's father will already know what he needs to know anyway, wouldn't it matter?

Besides, I have a feeling that if I try to find out something from you, it won't turn out very well.

What Seongjin was curious about was something else.

"Why are you deliberately bringing this up to me?"

Then Isabella answered with a somewhat desperate look on her face.

"In exchange for my cooperation with you, I want my safety guaranteed. "I don't want to worry anymore about when I might die by your hands!"

What kind of boring sound is that again?

"Who said they would kill me right away? I told you this before. Just become Isabella properly in front of me. Or at least pretend to be her. Then everything will be resolved."

Then Isabella screamed in disgust.

"That's really unreasonable. "It might not be possible in front of other people, but at least in front of you, it's impossible!"

"what? why?"

"Think about it carefully. Don't you know and I know who I really am? But you're telling me to pretend not to know anything and act coquettishly, pretending to be your fiancée? "Isn't this really embarrassing for both of us?"

... Coquettishness? Originally, Isabella didn't do that to me either? Plus, we're not even officially engaged.

Seongjin was taken aback, but he realized that there was no need to miss this opportunity since the other person was willing to answer anyway.

"Well then, let me ask you one question. Do you know who the doll Sigurd Sigurdsson is currently hiding in?"

Then Isabella answers firmly.

"I know, but I can't tell you. He also provided minimal protection to his dolls for his own safety. "The moment you try to say that, Isabella will lose her consciousness and turn into a complete idiot."

"... "So can you tell me what his next plan is?"

Then Isabella shook her head again.

"Of course, I have a guess. Likewise, Isabella would become an idiot the moment she attempted to directly interfere with his actions. So I can't tell you."

Such a useless guy.

That thought seemed to be clearly revealed in Seongjin's expression. Isabella shot back with an angry look on her face.

"Can you please use a roundabout way of reasoning or a metaphor? "People are willing to cooperate at best, so ask in a more noble way!"

Uh, I don't know. Something like that.

Seongjin fiercely raised his eyes.

"There's nothing I can answer for you anyway, so why are you willing to cooperate?"

"Or what about things that happened a little earlier than the immediate problem? "If that's the case, you'll probably be able to answer without any restrictions."

"What is the standard for 'old days'? Do you really think we should at least conduct a census of this guy? "Do you want me to dig into your family relationships step by step?"

"Sigurt."

"what?"

When Seongjin asked again because he did not understand the meaning, Isabella spoke again in a low voice.

"His family. Her father, who was her only family, made a living by selling stories to people. "She was called Sigurd by the people, just like the storyteller of the dimension."

"... .."

"His father, and his father's father. Everyone was Sigurd. Sigurd Sigurdsson does not just refer to a storyteller, but is a historic name that has been passed down from generation to generation."

I don't know when his ancestors started passing down his name.

Sigurd's son, Sigurd.

Also his son Sigurd.

The name that lasted for such a long time was on people's lips and gradually transformed into something like a byword for a storyteller.

So, by the time the dimensional storyteller was born, the name Sigurd Sigurdson itself had become imbued with powerful power. As long as he is part of the story he creates, he has the power to even cross the boundaries of other dimensions.

"Every story has the powerful power to evoke imagery. "In particular, an image that arises strongly becomes a solid dream and also a meditation."

The storyteller, who had the ability to freely create desired images in those who listened to the story, used this power to travel through various dimensions and perform numerous miracles.

A power that can easily raise a country with just three inches of tongue, and can also cause the world to flounder in complete collapse. This power, which is beyond the scope of humans, can probably be compared to a king of one dimension.

Sigurd, who became arrogant, had no hesitation in calling himself the 'Demon King of Dreams'.

"Then one day, as he was walking around the world of flames as usual, he discovered it. "In this world, there are great rules that create and maintain the dimension itself, rather than simply creating a single thought."

"... "The normal world."

When Seongjin answered indifferently, Isabella nodded.

"Your guess is correct. While Sigurd wasted his time playing with the power of dreams brought about by stories, the laws that make up the beautiful world called the normal world were born in this world. and... .."

After a brief pause, Isabella continued speaking with slightly deepened eyes.

"There was a mysterious being who created this, the Oracle."

309

309. Demon King No. 2 (7)

Sigurd traveled through all sorts of dimensions and experienced extraordinary miracles.

I saw a prophet create solid prayer images as easily as if he were breathing.

I have personally witnessed the scene where a faint sigh uttered by a high-ranking demon lord transformed into a strong flame and eventually became a complete dimension.

"But nowhere in the world have I seen anyone who creates the laws that form the dimensions themselves."

The laws of the normal world were truly amazing.

Let there be light.

If you specify the code like that, light of a certain intensity will shine down on the world forever.

Let there be life here.

By manipulating the code like that, strange life forms that had completely skipped the process of origin and evolution came to life.

The codes didn't even have physical limits.

If you specify coordinates, it will happen as you specify, and if you accelerate time, it will accelerate as you specify. Infinite worlds that expand as far as the creator wishes.

"Do you know what the most mysterious thing is? "The truth was that the Oracle who created those beautiful codes was just a human being."

It is not a god, or a high-ranking demon lord somewhere.

Oracle of Kornsheim.

A spiritual leader of a small clan who was overlooked as one of the ordinary prophets.

"Oracle. "For Sigurd Sigurdson, who had no doubt that he was the most special being among humans, he was like a profound challenge thrown in front of him."

The code designating fire means fire, and the code designating water means water. The same code always produces the same image.

As Sigurd observed the standardized rules, he couldn't help but think of the people who were fascinated by his story.

'Singing a comedy brings excitement and joy, singing a tragedy brings sadness and frustration... . 'Everyone had exactly the image I wanted.'

So Sigurd thought like this.

'Maybe it's possible for me too?'

The images evoked by those who hear the same story are always similar.

So, wouldn't it be possible to make my story itself function like a piece of code?

'Couldn't we collect and collect stories and finally make them into a grand rule that constitutes the world?'

That glimpse of possibility was a fascination strong enough to immediately captivate the heart of the storyteller, who was feeling a kind of boredom from the long pastime.

'okay! I want to become a great story that will be remembered forever, not a player chasing a one-time dream! 'I want to be the only story, the only rule that penetrates the world!'

In this way, the storyteller who walked through a thousand dreams began to passionately travel around the world of reality in search of material for a story.

Seongjin clicked his tongue after hearing that. The more she listened, the more dumbfounded she became.

What on earth is that supposed to do?

"That's Sigurd Sigurdsson's ultimate goal? "You're kidding, right?"

"... "Isn't it grand and beautiful?"

In response to Isabella's question, Seongjin frowned and snorted.

"no. No matter how much I think about it, it seems like I'm obsessed with something so useless? "If I had just slept during that time, at least it wouldn't have been a waste of time."

Then Isabella looked at Seongjin with a bitter smile.

"I don't think that reaction has changed. "Before you lost your memory, you didn't seem to empathize with this story at all."

"... .."

"But have you ever thought about it this way? The reason your heart doesn't move is probably because you are the next Oracle. Since he has already been promised to go beyond the limits, he may not be indifferent to all of this."

Well, guess what?

Seongjin looked out the window with a sullen expression. As we talked, quite a bit of time passed, and the carriage had already reached the corner of the road leading to the townhouse.

"Sigurt Sigurdsson has lived for a long time. He accumulated more knowledge than any other prophet, and he was able to create artistic images that were unrivaled by any demon lord. But from the perspective of kings from other dimensions, his limitations were clear."

Just an exceptional human being.

No matter how much he calls himself the 'Demon King of Dreams', no one seriously listens to him.

"So he lived his whole life refusing to be just a human being. But if there is an even more special person called the Oracle, wouldn't we have to overcome him first to truly advance to the next level?"

At that time, Seongjin sensed the faint feeling of self-deprecation mixed in her voice like a ghost.

"You, too, think that that child's dream is a bit foolish. is not it?"

"... ..!"

Then Isabella closed her mouth and looked at Seongjin with round eyes.

"Sigurt Sigurdsson is an irredeemable idiot. He made so many mistakes for a goal that wasn't even meant to be. But at least now that you've stopped doing that, you're in a much better position than that guy."

"... .."

"So, forget about such trivial dreams! How long are you going to be influenced by that kind of psychopath's thinking? "He's never coming back again."

"... I don't think it's that foolish. "I, too, was once strongly fascinated by that ideal."

Isabella answered with a trembling voice and followed Seongjin's gaze as she gazed at the scenery passing by outside the window.

"Besides, the most intense passion usually comes from simple motivation. "It is not incomprehensible that Sigurd Sigurdson, who lived a boring life for many years, became so obsessed with that dream."

"... .."

"Now that things have turned out this way, I feel like everything is pointless. As you said, it looks like the storyteller will never come back to me again."

And with that, the two stopped talking and each fell into silence.

This is because the topic of Sigurd Sigurdson was not a very pleasant topic for both Seongjin and Isabella.

Rattling.

Soon the carriage arrives at the townhouse mansion and stops. Seongjin got off the carriage first and silently extended his hand towards Isabella, who was late to get up.

Etiquette is nothing special. However, it was a moan that had a slightly different meaning to Isabella.

Isabella, who had thought that she would never truly be treated as a lady, hesitantly took Seongjin's hand with a surprised expression.

"Let me ask you one last question."

Seongjin, who lightly lowered her to the floor, opened his mouth.

"The gray plague that spread across the ecliptic some time ago, was it the work of Sigurd Sigurdson?"

Then Isabella looked at Seongjin with strange eyes for a moment.

"You pretend not to have any questions, but you don't miss the most important questions."

"... .."

"Well, that would be good."

Isabella let out a small sigh and paused for a moment to choose her words.

"I cannot tell you in detail what I know about the Gray Plague. This is because it is also closely related to Sigurd Sigurdsson's future plans.

however..."

Bright blue-green eyes, reminiscent of summer greenery, meet Seongjin's gaze directly.

"At least the ignorant act of planting monster eggs directly on people was not his doing."

Then the demon king, who had been listening to him with bated breath, gave an answer before Seongjin could ask.

[It's the truth.]

'... okay.'

Seongjin instinctively realized that Isabella's answer just narrowly missed the line set by the puppeteer.

At least what that guy said about cooperating with Seongjin was true.

"Lady Isabella."

Seongjin slightly lifted her hand close to her face and let go.

"I hope that you will continue to provide a lot of help to Amelia's work in the future."

As she gives such a polite greeting and raises one corner of her mouth, doesn't Isabella's face suddenly turn pale?

"Hey, hey! Heep!"

"... ... ?"

Seeing Isabella starting to visibly tremble, Seongjin tilted his head.

what? They say they will save you for a while. No, why does he peck at me like that even when I treat him well?

[Please, why don't you look in the mirror first before smiling at others?]

What are you saying? Anyway, you didn't threaten me outright, right? Then it's done, isn't it?

[...] You said that wasn't a threat to kill you if you don't become your sister's slave and take care of yourself?]

Shut up, you ungrateful devil who can't even pay for the bear meat you got!

Whose side are you on? uh?

That night.

Owen, who stayed up late at the Volanta tribe discussing the poison sting incident, accessed the Pangea Chronicle a little later than usual.

When I arrived at the meeting place with the group, I was greeted warmly by friends I saw all the time and by a mole rat engineer who had recently joined the group.

[Owen, you're a little late today.]

[Welcome! Waiting!]

[Nice to meet you, friend!]

[Woah, everyone waited!]

Owen waved cheerfully and took a seat.

[But what about newbies?]

Then the group suddenly raises its hair and points to the opposite corner of the restaurant.

When Owen turned around, he saw a small goat sitting by the window in the corner, staring blankly outside.

[Lee Seong-jin said earlier that he had something to think about!]

[I told them to call me when everyone is gathered, but they seem to be concentrating so it's hard to touch them.]

[...] okay?]

Just as they said, the air wrapped around the baby goat was somewhat serious and heavy.

'It's a newbie's topic, but sometimes you put that weight on it... ... '

Creak.

Owen stood up and slowly walked towards the mountain goat. He was a little concerned about the guy.

'Newbie guy. Do you have any concerns? In that case, it would be better if you didn't suffer alone and confide in everyone.'

Meanwhile. Contrary to everyone's worries, Seongjin was just spending time recalling various things in a stream of consciousness. She was filled with a strange feeling that something would happen soon.

'Isabella said that. The same code always creates the same image... ... '

That's what she said. The shape of the normal world is a perfectly standardized image.

Its essence is also a solid image.

'Come to think of it, my father also told me that story some time ago.'

It was probably the day Seongjin suddenly visited me at dawn.

Seonghwang told a story about a wizard who was famous on Bertrand Street a long time ago. Before he disappeared due to controversy over heresy, he was said to have gained popularity as a famous figure in the imperial capital.

-He used to show off powerful magic that spewed out five-colored fire from his hands. He was quite a spectacle.

-But there is no magic in this world, is there?"

At the time, Seongjin thought strangely. At least he had never seen a phenomenon that could be called 'magic' in the original dimension of Delcross.

Even the items in the imperial palace treasury, which are said to be magical items, are all items from the normal world made in Ionia.

Sure enough, Seonghwang nodded.

-okay. In reality, he was a skilled Auror user. The flame created by mixing the drugs was created simultaneously with the external air to deceive people.

-what. Isn't that just a scam?

Seongjin looked dumbfounded, but Seonghwang added with a faint smile.

-Never forget this, Mores. In every world, there exists a fundamental power like these aurors. If you see a mysterious phenomenon that appears to be of extraordinary power, always think carefully about what lies beneath it.

okay.

Seongjin looked blankly into space and thought.

'There is magic in this world, like a game. There are special skills such as aurors. But the root of it all is just burning. That's all there is to it.'

Just like my father's salmon that I saw in a crevice a while ago.

Like my Demon King No. 2, who burned Black Justitia.

Grumbling.

At one point, a vivid flame rises before Seongjin's eyes. It's small and insignificant like the devil, but once it catches fire, it's a dark red fire that never goes out.

It was Demon King No. 2.

[omg? It's a newbie!]

Owen, who was approaching, was scared and ran -

[Magic? Is it magic?]

[Lee Seong-jin! Is it someone's attack? But this is a green zone?]

The other silent villains also look at Seongjin in shock.

"ha ha ha... .."

Seongjin laughed at the phenomenon that occurred more easily than expected.

'okay. If the normal world is structured by an oracle so that standardized images can easily be realized... ..'

There is no reason why Demon King No. 2, who has become completely standardized in my consciousness, should not appear easily!

310. Underwater (1)

"Send a punitive force and schedule a regular inspection of the church. "This is Amelia's idea?"

"Yes, Your Majesty."

Seonghwang was sitting in his office looking through a pile of documents. Next to him, as always, Administrator Dorian is bowing his head, waiting for his final approval.

It was about the Cyprus Union, which has been whining and sending messages with frequent frequency recently.

"It's not just a day or two that they request a maritime demonic beast subjugation team. "There is no clear damage yet."

"Hana, Princess Amelia, paid particular attention to this fishing suspension situation. Of course, she said that sending a punitive force from the empire would do more harm than good."

"So you're saying you're conducting a church audit in parallel?"

"Yes, Your Majesty. It is expected that costs can be significantly reduced by carrying out the work simultaneously. In addition, since their unreasonable request is being granted, they said that even if a high-intensity audit is involved, there will not be a big noise from the union."

Seonghwang rested his chin and thought for a moment.

Amelia, I had no idea that the child knew the truth of what was happening on the coast of Cyprus.

But Amelia clearly said that she returned from the future to the past.

If so, she may be preparing the child for something of her own.

'I tried to move Sir Leandros first, but it wouldn't be a bad idea to set Amelia up like this... ..'

It seemed like a good idea to conduct a church audit without giving any time to prepare. It will be an opportunity to tear apart the Cyprus union and church forces, which have recently been trying to come together.

Seonghwang's thoughts were moving positively, but Dorian hesitated and added a word.

"Plus, what happened to Prince Logan... .."

"Logan?"

"yes. "If Prince Logan finds out about this, he will not just sit back and watch, but will organize a punitive force."

"... .."

That's right.

No matter how much they persuaded him to increase his allowance, the upright child had the temper to ignore the hardships of his subjects.

Seonghwang, completely convinced, nodded.

"Execute it immediately."

"If you do... .."

"If Amelia judged it that way, then so be it. "It seems like there is no need for the administration to reconsider her."

"... .."

thud.

A royal seal that is stamped very easily. Dorian was speechless for a moment and looked at the castle.

Even Dorian was skeptical about the princess's political skills, which were not appropriate for her age.

However, no matter how I looked at the success, I felt that it was going too far. They sometimes show an incomprehensible level of trust in their children's judgment.

"If you do, we will immediately create a budget and execute it together."

"I know."

It was just as Dorian was about to hand over the documents that had been approved.

Startle.

Seonghwang is suddenly startled by something and stares blankly into space with a stiff face.

"... ... ?"

Thanks to this, Dorian, who had been holding out his hand, hesitated and raised his head in confusion.

In the past, I would not have dared to look directly at the representative of God, but after working closely with him for a long time, I now sometimes feel bold enough to look at the Holy Emperor's expression.

And there, there were strange eyes that Dorian was familiar with. Eyes that give off an inorganic glow and are somehow out of focus.

The air in the office suddenly freezes as Seonghwang stops moving. An eerie silence, as if even a speck of dust sparkling under the sunlight had been stuffed into the air.

'Has something big happened...?'

Under heavy pressure, Dorian doesn't know what to do and just breaks into a cold sweat.

Tuk.

Only Chamberlain Louis, who was standing behind him, accepted the royal seal that was about to slip from the Holy Emperor's hand with a calm face.

How much time has passed?

Blink.

Eventually, Seonghwang blinked once, and his eyes returned to focus, and the silver glow slowly faded away. At the same time, the frozen air in the office becomes light as if it were a lie.

"Phew... .."

I don't know what it is, but it looks like it's over.

When Dorian, relieved, let out the breath he had been suppressing, Seonghwang opened his mouth and handed him the document as if nothing had happened.

"Dorian, are you getting married soon?"

Dorian lowered his head in sadness at that unexpected question.

"yes. "Yes, Your Majesty."

It's still just a covenant between the parties, so how do you already know? Such questions would be meaningless in the face of God's representative.

The person with whom Dorian promised his future was a fellow employee in the administration, and unlike his weak self, she was a very confident young woman. He was drawn to her and committed a speeding violation, even though she was belatedly making her hasty wedding preparations.

However, as Seonghwang looked back at Dorian, a strange joy appeared in his eyes, even if it was only for a moment.

"okay. From now on, prepare your heart well. "Children are always beings who far exceed their parents' expectations."

"... yes?"

"When you teach them one thing, children are able to think through their application skills to the point of feverishness. "When I taught him how to draw with tree branches, he stopped drawing the picture I was told to draw and before I knew it, he was trying to play with fire with the tree branch in his hand."

"... ... ?"

I don't know what to say and my mouth is gaping...

"Puuk," Seonghwang sighs deeply and adds softly.

"So, I wish you good luck too."

"..."

Dorian hesitated, not knowing what to say. Then, my eyes met with Louis, the Chamberlain, who was standing behind the Holy Emperor.

Then the old man smiled warmly and slowly shook his head at Dorian. Even though he didn't say anything, the meaning of that smile was clear.

-Don't worry. Could it be that there are other people in this world like the princes and princesses of the Seonghwang family?

ah.

Suddenly, I felt very sorry for the representative of the Supreme God, but-

'No, what am I thinking!'

Dorian quickly shook his head hastily, shaking those unholy thoughts away.

[What is it? Is it magic?]

[Lee Seong-jin! Where did this fire come from? Have you checked the opposing wizard?]

[Magic? Was there such magic in the Pangea Chronicle?]

Little Demon King No. 2 blazing, revealing an alien presence in the air.

The silent villains and the mole engineer approach in a panic. Seongjin looked at them and smiled a little proudly.

How do you feel? The power of this body. Very surprising, right?

[Newbie. It's dangerous, so get away from there.]

At that time, Owen pushed Seongjin away with a worried look and tried to put his hand on the flame. It may have been an attempt to roughly scatter it, but-

Wow!

He fell backwards before he could even touch the flame. Because the baby goat's hoof hit Owen's forehead hard.

"100 million!"

Owen screamed and fell backwards.

Degurrrr-

"Why are you hitting me again?"

After rolling a few laps, Owen jumps up and shouts with an aggrieved expression. But instead, Seongjin raised her voice and she became angry at him.

"men and horses! Now you know what this is and you're trying to mess with it! uh?"

"... huh?"

No matter how much my father told me to be polite, what can I do when his behavior is so poor! If you do something wrong, you should get it right!

"Do you know what happens once this gets on your body?"

"What happens?"

But even without Seongjin explaining, everyone soon knew the answer.

Grumble!

While Seongjin was turning towards Owen, Gureub gently touched the flame with his hair.

Dark red flames quickly spread through the beautiful ranger's hair.

[Ugh!?!]

[this? Group!]

Everyone was shocked, but the solution was quick. This is because Seongjin, who had pulled out his sword, swung his arm towards him like lightning.

Shukang!

As the beginner's sword drew a long solid line, the ranger's long hair instantly became stronger.

Hood!

Hair fluttering in the air is engulfed in flames and quickly disappears.

Eventually, Demon King No. 2, which completely burned the group's hair, burned alone in the air for some time before finally disappearing without a trace.

[...] ... !]

Everyone gaped at the sudden situation.

[Damage was inflicted on a group with high fire defense! That seems to be a higher level magic than it looks!]

[But my leg was cut off by a party member? how? This is the green zone, right?]

[for a moment! Now it's not hair, it's legs?]

For some reason, the hair had moving joints, and it seemed like the group had attached one of its remaining legs to the avatar's hair.

"Now, did you see it? "What did you just almost touch?"

Seongjin frowned at Owen. But for some reason, Owen was staring blankly into the empty space where Demon King No. 2 had disappeared with her hardened face.

Why is that guy acting like that all of a sudden?

"... Newbie, are you hurt anywhere?"

Eventually, Owen comes to his senses and approaches Seongjin and asks.

Seongjin glanced at him, then responded with a sullen expression.

[The accident occurred because it was Gurreup-keul-lab-geul-leub-bi-keul-eul-leub, so why are you asking me?]

[Ah, that's right. Are you okay, group?]

Then the beautiful ranger, who was tracing the back of her hair with one hand, smiled. Luckily for her, there didn't seem to be any major damage to the group.

[No need to worry! As long as I have one leg left, I will always be alive and well! Thank you for your quick judgment, Seongjin Lee!]

[Good luck, friend. But what really was that fire just now?]

On the other hand, there was someone who was looking at them with a rather serious expression. It was Hatasu Titi.

[Group. It's really strange that you didn't react at all to Lee Seongjin's attack.]

Of course, Seongjin's actions were purely to help the group. But that's just a consequential story.

Didn't he swing the sword first without any hesitation? It seemed like Gureub, the hero of the reversal, would react in some way, at least reflexively.

Doesn't this seem like he firmly believes that Lee Seong-jin will never harm him?

[No matter how you look at your reaction to Seongjin Lee, it is not rational at all.]

Among the silent villains, Hatasu Titi was the one who obediently followed Seongjin's words from the beginning.

However, it was based on a reasonable judgment that it was worth following him. Surprisingly, among the current silent villains, he was the one who was treating Seongjin the most selflessly.

'Lee Seong-jin is a strange being...'

A fourth guest ID user that did not exist before.

A strange flame that suddenly appeared and disappeared.

Hatasu Titi could not have known that every time she was with Lee Seong-jin, completely unexpected things would happen.

However, Lee Seong-jin's response to this is also understandable every time, so I have followed him without any hesitation until now.

'But everyone's reaction is somewhat strange.'

Look at Owen, who treats Lee Seong-jin, a beetle, as his neighborhood brother, saying it's his hometown.

Before, I thought he was a pretty strong person, but now he's still laughing and thinking it's cute even after being hit on the head by a baby goat several times.

Contrary to their sloppy appearance, the same goes for the group that rarely gives their hearts to others. For some reason, I sincerely believe in Lee Seong-jin so much.

'Isn't this like being fascinated by something?'

A terrifying ability possessed by evil things that the elders always warned about. Somehow, Hatasu Titi had no choice but to think carefully about Lee Seong-jin's identity once again.

At that moment, the beautiful ranger's glass-clear eyes stared at Hatasu Titi.

[Hatisu Titi. [I can understand what your concerns are.]

[Group. Are you aware that the current situation is a little strange?]

[Know. But I believe what my gut says inside me. A warrior's intestines never lie.]

[...] Is that so.]

Hatasu Titi is a purebred Mashu tree. There was no way I could understand the feeling of my internal organs pounding.

I just felt that the group's almost blind attitude made my wariness towards Seongjin melt away.

'but. So far, Seongjin Lee's judgment has been extremely trustworthy. Besides, don't the rewards and records so far speak for themselves? It would be difficult to have preconceptions about him out of unnecessary anxiety.'

Meanwhile, the mole engineer fiddled with his goggles and opened his mouth.

[Anyway, how long are you going to spend your time here? This time, I brought a perfect strategy without any errors! Let's quickly conquer the next theme dungeon?]

The Orc King's Maze had many variables.

Plus, the strange accident that just happened.

[...] Is it okay?]

The eyes of the silent villains, including Hatisu Titi, naturally focus on the baby goat.

[are you okay.]

And Lee Seong-jin's strange answer, as if he had expected it.

With that, the party's path to the dungeon was decided. Hatasu Titi's eyes deepen as she sees everyone standing up from their seats casually.

[...]]

It's also strange. It's really strange.

Hatasu Titi thought so for a moment, but before he knew it, he too was gathering equipment along with the other silent villains.

okay. Seongjin decided, 'It's okay.'

The moment I stepped into the themed dungeon, I knew that someone impatient would immediately contact me.

[What are you doing! □□□ □□!]

Suddenly, darkness enveloped his son-in-law, but Seongjin was not embarrassed at all. She soon saw a goddess appear before her eyes and shouted in a trembling voice.

[Woman, Justitia.]

[How have you accepted my warning so far! Good luck to you in this unstable world! Well... ... !]

The goddess's golden spear and bloody eyepatch were the same as before. The only thing that has changed is that my complexion has become whiter than before.

Is it okay to go back to a themed dungeon where something unexpected might happen?

Oh, it's okay. I'm going to kill the guy who is the root of it anyway.

Ugh... ..

You can also feel an unsightly presence rustling in the back.

Justitia of Darkness.

The guy who had tasted the bitter taste of Demon King No. 2 before had parts of his body and seaweed-like hair disappearing in clumps.

The parts that were still intact were soaked in black blood. Physical damage, not burn marks.

okay. If I hadn't cut off the healthy part, Gehenna's fire would probably have burned to the end.

[You managed to survive?]

The guy gritted his teeth in response to Seongjin's light greeting. It's amazing how you can feel the gaze of hatred in the gaping eye sockets.

But when the guy tried to approach Seongjin again-

Grumble!

Little Demon King No. 2 appears in front of Seongjin again.

Kieeek!

The dark Justitia could not bear to approach again and widened her distance.

okay. I think we're finally in the mood to have a proper conversation. Seongjin looked at the two stiff goddesses alternately and raised the corner of her mouth.

[If you have anything to say, let's finish it quickly. I have to go quickly and go through the dungeon.]

311

[Didn't I ask you not to disturb the order of this world any more?!]

In the pitch-black darkness.

The goddess's voice cries out as if screaming, making the son-in-law cry loudly.

[I told you so, please don't provoke it and bring about chaos! □□□
□□, do you really want to hasten the collapse? Are you really trying to see the end of this world?]

The sharp feeling of resentment contained in that voice is conveyed vividly, as if it were a dagger piercing the skin.

However, Seongjin glared at Justitia without any response.

[If things keep going like that, neither of us will get very good results, right?]

[What? What is that... ... ?]

[I'm saying don't blame others for nothing. If you keep acting like that, do you think your position will be at least a little bit advantageous here?]

[...] ... !]

At the unexpectedly strong reaction, the goddess is speechless and opens her mouth blankly.

Grumble!

In the meantime, Seongjin moved Little Demon King No. 2, checked the leech crawling from behind once more, and then continued.

[For now, without further ado, let's just look at the immediate results. I am the only one in this world who can harm it. Isn't that right?]

[...]]

It seems like it was the perfect answer. As proof of that, the goddess's fierce momentum suddenly subsided.

Justitia pursed her lips and glared fiercely at Seongjin through her probably gaping eye sockets.

'also...'

Seongjin laughed inwardly after confirming that his guess was correct.

-This world was forced to wake up from its egg before it was ready.

Pangea Chronicle was created by running out of time and randomly cramming together existing game sources.

-In order to make up for the ridiculously weak tone, numerous rules were added in a disorderly manner. In such great chaos, the distortion of the world eventually arose.

A huge pot of spaghetti where source clashes with source and code misaligns.

Perhaps the dark Justitia can be said to be chaos itself, born from errors and growing by eating errors.

The problem was the method Impulse Soft chose to solve it.

Didn't Dexter say that too?

-There is only one technical way to solve this situation.

-what is that?

-It is an expedient method to grant 'Code Zero' authority to the system control AI.

Code zero.

A mysterious authority that is at the highest level in the normal world, also called the realm of God.

-Imagine if an ideal world consisting of only ideas or concepts exists.

Early that morning, I ran to the main palace as if I was possessed.

Seongjin talked with Seonghwang for quite a long time. And he was able to get a glimpse of 'God's code'.

-Everything in the world can exist only through designated ideas. But what would you do if something appeared there that absolutely could not be defined by a single idea and whose limits could not be grasped?

A designated idea? I guess it roughly refers to the codes that make up the normal world.

Seongjin, who guessed that, answered appropriately.

-Can't we just define it as a similar concept or ignore it altogether?

Then Seonghwang scolded Seongjin with stern eyes.

-You're saying something really dangerous. Have you already forgotten, Mores? What was the result of a book I defined incorrectly the other day?

-uh...

You mean that day when you exploded a book in the air and even did a self-harm show?

When Seongjin looked at Seonghwang with a cold expression, he cleared his throat and slightly looked away.

-It is too large to be contained within a border, and its existence is too obvious to ignore. However, if we do not define it somehow, the foundation of the world made up of ideas will collapse in vain.

No, but how do you define something that cannot be defined?

When Seongjin made a puzzled expression, Seonghwang gave the answer easily without any further annoyance.

-Wouldn't it be better to create a separate concept called 'things that cannot be defined'?

-Something that is impossible to define...

-okay. By pushing it completely outside the boundaries of ideas, the world inside the boundaries can maintain complete stability without ignoring it.

Something that is impossible to define.

God, or the unknown force that moves the world itself.

Naturally, 'Code Zero' was bound to remain a mysterious code to engineers. It itself contained the concept of 'something that cannot be defined'!

-Pangaea Chronicle. The system that manages the normal world was given zero code and gained 'divine authority'. But why, even with such strong authority, has it been unable to completely resolve the error on its own, increasing chaos?

Then, Seonghwang looked at Seongjin with deepened eyes for a moment, and then asked in a low voice.

-okay. What is the real name of this thing called 'chaos'?

-... ... !

From that question, Seongjin was finally able to understand everything.

Justitia. Or dark Astria. A goddess of chaos with the same name as the goddess borrowed from the classic RPG game 'Astria Chronicles'.

Impulse Soft not only indiscriminately added the source code of Astria Chronicles to the game, but also committed the atrocity of granting 'Code Zero' authority to that lump of error along with 'Justitia', which was designated as the system AI!

Ugh...

The leech, no, the dark Justitia, is struggling to approach Seongjin with less than half of its body remaining. However, the guy was frightened by Demon King No. 2, who swung at him again, and retreated backwards.

Seongjin, who had been looking at that pitiful figure without much emotion, turned his head back to Justitia in front of him.

[If my guess is correct, you would have expected this result from the beginning.]

Justitia had clearly made this recommendation to Seongjin that day.

-Or would you like to use your unique ID now? ☐☐☐ ☐☐. Get rid of everything that bothers you like before.

As if hoping for a collision with 'chaos'.

[Do you think this is a pointless reprimand? As I said before, all of this is chaos caused purely by your presence. So it makes sense that you have to put it to sleep.]

Unlike the first time, Justitia protested in a calm tone.

[Well, how about that?]

It is probably true that the growth of 'chaos' has accelerated slightly with the appearance of Seongjin.

However, it is ultimately a collection of errors that were created along with the Pangea Chronicle.

Moreover, on the day he first encountered it, Seongjin set a fire in 'Chaos' that could never be extinguished. That alone would have drastically weakened its power. Because I could no longer cling to Seongjin or obstruct his vision.

Now Seongjin was no longer experiencing graphics problems. Still, the only reason he was sticking to his infant skin was because he still felt uncomfortable revealing his identity to Owen.

[okay. That guy can no longer use his strength like before. But strangely enough, the number of errors in dungeons has increased since then. The system is not correcting errors properly. [It's as if he's intentionally encouraging a conflict between me and that.]

[...]]

[So don't go round and round and say what you want to say straight away, Justitia.]

Seongjin now spoke firmly towards the goddess, who was clearly looking frustrated.

[Please completely get rid of that thing that is not good enough for you!]

[...] ... !]

Grumble!

As if reflecting Seongjin's mood, Demon King No. 2's flames flicker wildly.

Wow... ... !

While the leech was frightened and writhed around its body, Goddess Justitia was silent for a while with a stern expression on her face.

How much time has passed like that? With her small sigh, the goddess finally quietly opened her mouth.

[...] Do you know? In a place where even the smallest breath of the most insignificant life is determined by code, how unusual is it to create and use a new flame image? That's purely because of the code given to you.]

[code?]

[exactly. Apart from having a guest ID, you are assigned a unique code and ID from the beginning. That's it... ..]

[stop! Enough about this, let's talk about our transaction.]

Exciting-

Seongjin consciously calmed down something that was beating violently and roughly cut off Justitia's words.

[I will get rid of that completely. We will immediately wipe out the errors you are neglecting without being able to do anything about it. So, you too, pay the appropriate compensation!]

[...]]

Justitia had a shocked expression on her face, but there was no way she could dare refuse the offer when the survival of the world was at stake.

It was actually the leech that reacted violently to Seongjin's words.

[Whatever you want! Don't decide things like that on your own! Why should I die obediently?]

No matter what he did, he seemed to think that he had no talent to defeat Demon King No. 2, so he bit his body helplessly and shouted at Seongjin.

[I, I was just born! Someone gave me power, and I just became the rule of this world and acted according to my nature! But why is it my fault?!]

The leech's argument also had a point.

The one who made the mistake was the game company that didn't take proper measures, and they probably didn't want to be born like that from the beginning just because it was a leech.

However, Seongjin just responded with an expressionless expression despite the desperate scream.

[If you stay like that anyway, you won't last long. If this continues, you will completely collapse the Pangea Chronicle, and you too will meet a meaningless end along with the world. What does that mean to you?]

At the same time-

Grumble!

Demon King No. 2 burns even more fiercely and moves towards the leech.

Then, black tears of blood poured down from the gaping eye sockets facing Seongjin.

iced coffee... ... !

A soft sigh flows from blood-soaked lips.

[Even so, the brief moment given before destruction is completely mine... ... !]

[...]]

A being that is bound to be wrong from birth. A being inevitably destined to ruin everything. Suddenly, Seongjin felt deep empathy and compassion for the guy.

However, because of that, Seongjin was able to speak more firmly to the guy.

[I guarantee it. Whatever it is, it's good for you to just end it here.]

[what... ... ?]

And those questions were his last words.

Grumble!

Demon King No. 2 quickly rushed at him, instantly creating a huge flame and engulfing the dark Justitia.

Kyaaaaa!

A terrifying scream echoes through the darkness. The guy struggled like crazy, tearing at his own body, but the flames didn't retreat at all and consumed his body step by step.

... ... !

The 'chaos' covered in dark red flames soon completely disappeared, leaving behind only a handful of black ash.

The enormous errors that had been accumulating disappeared at once, and Pangea Chronicle instantly regained complete stability.

[...]]

Seongjin, who had been looking at the remaining ashes for a moment, turned to look at Justitia, who was silent.

[This won't be the end, right?]

[...] As long as this world lasts, it will not completely disappear but be reborn. Didn't you tell me? It is already the law that makes up this world, the atmosphere that has dissolved here.]

As Justitia said that, a single tear flowed from her red eye patch. Only you can know whether those are tears of relief or mourning.

[And as long as you remain involved in this world, it will grow rapidly again. So, can you completely leave this world right now?]

However, Seongjin complained and shook his head.

[You need to think carefully, Justitia. Would it be better to ostracize me from this world just because the growth of chaos accelerates a little? Or would it be better to politely ask them to sort it out periodically?]

[...]]

[It's very shameful that they put pressure on me and made nonsense, such as saying that it was because of me that chaos was caused and that I was going to destroy the world. Still, if you see that you're pulling tricks like that, you're a pretty smart guy. So, why don't you show your gratitude to me now and prove it with a proper reward?]

[...] I guess you've become more clever than I thought.]

Justitia lowered her head in resignation.

Rather than engaging in a pointless fight, he decided that it would be more advantageous to please Seongjin as quickly as possible.

[Yes, good. What kind of compensation do you want?]

Then Seongjin grinned and raised the corners of his mouth.

[What I want is...]

"... rain!"

... huh?

"... It's a newbie! Wake! are you okay?"

Seongjin opened his eyes to someone shaking his shoulder roughly. And then she flagged down, facing Owen, who had his face right in front of her.

Wow, what is it?

Out of shock, my hand reflexively went out.

Wow!

"100 million!"

Owen, who was hit defenseless, rolled around on the floor. Owen immediately stood up and shouted at Seongjin with a face full of resentment.

"No, what! Why are you hitting me again? Even if you worry, it's a mess!?"

"Uh, sorry."

Seongjin, who had inadvertently let go, apologized obediently.

I feel a little sorry. I think it's become a matter of inertia to give a damn to your guy.

312. Underwater (3)

"You did that last time, and this time you're losing your mind again. Newbie, where are you hurting?"

Owen followed Seongjin and asked persistently.

"Because it's no big deal. don't mind."

"but... .."

It wasn't just Owen who was worried about Seongjin. The silent villains and Dexter were also watching him with concerned faces.

Since the so-called party leader was mesmerized as soon as he entered the dungeon, their concerns were not something I could understand.

"What should I do? "Do you want to just rest this time?"

Tsk, what a fuss.

Seongjin didn't even look at Owen and just waved his hand as if he was annoyed.

"Say what makes sense. You heard it from Dexter earlier, right? The role of the wizard is the most important in this dungeon. But how are you going to clear this place without me?"

Theme Dungeon B Rank, Witches' Coven.

Unlike the 'Orc King's Maze', where mobs of various classes were evenly distributed, this was a dungeon mainly dominated by wizard-type mobs that used mental magic or summoning.

Naturally, the magician's power is absolutely necessary to solve 'Justitia's conditions'.

In terms of type alone, it would be similar to Ice Banshee's dungeon. In that D-rank dungeon, didn't Seongjin and the silent villains almost die?

'Besides, the strategy Dexter came up with this time was probably supplemented based on my abilities. It would be absolutely impossible to clear it without me, right?'

Seongjin snorted inwardly and added.

"Don't forget, Owen. "We are still in the time challenge."

"That's true, but. If you overdo it and something dangerous happens...
... ."

"Ah, don't you worry needlessly? are you okay. "This dungeon will actually be safer than the Orc King's maze."

Seongjin's words were sincere.

He was confident that he could wipe out any dungeon in one go. No matter what anyone says, his condition is at its best right now.

Justitia of Darkness.

That thing that had been making errors big and small and gnawing at Seongjin like a leech, has now completely lost its power. So, no unexpected situations would occur for a while, and Seongjin's fatigue was also expected to be much less than before.

'Plus, there are things I stole from Justitia.'

However, despite Seongjin's confirmation, Owen's expression did not ease.

Why? The moment I saw the newbie standing next to the dark red flame, I suddenly felt a strange sense of déjà vu.

'what? 'Have you ever seen a scene similar to this?'

Owen thought through his memories, but no matter how much he thought about it, nothing came to mind.

[Now, stop concentrating.]

Seongjin warned Owen, who was still thinking about something else.

Meanwhile, they finally encountered the first mobs. They were witches wearing black cloaks.

Hehehehe...

Women emitting a cloud of black energy with ominous laughter.

Perhaps, the moment they enter their range of perception, mental magic will be poured mercilessly towards the party.

[Now, please. Seongjin Lee!]

As Dexter ordered in a nervous voice, Seongjin confidently stepped forward. This is to remove the condition through a magic attack.

Wow!

However, what Seongjin brought out this time was not Hayes' evil spirit.

"Ignition."

A short phrase that I have heard for the first time from the mouth of a baby goat is recited.

[...] ... ?]

Everyone was confused and didn't know what was going on, but then something amazing happened right in front of their eyes. Dark red flames erupted from the group of witches all at once!

Grumble!

Kyaaaaa... ... !

The fire burned briefly and fiercely. The witches burned up and disappeared into thin air before their death spell was even over.

Without any conditions or anything, damage leading to instant death was inflicted.

[...] ... !?]

[Hmm, the problem is that the damage is too strong? There's no point in party hunting like this, right?]

Everyone was bewildered and their mouths were wide open, but only Seongjin checked the skill window with some strange worry. There, the new skill I had just acquired from Justitia was blinking.

□new! Unique Skill - Ignition□

□When the caster designates a target, spontaneous combustion occurs in an instant, regardless of the target's defense, reducing HP to 0.□

□Maximum number of possible targets: 5□

□Acquisition conditions - □□□ □□□

□MP consumption: 1□ per object

□Rank: SSS□

□Proficiency: SSS□

A skill that has no class or level requirements and is only available to Seongjin.

It doesn't matter how much life the enemy has or how much defense they have. There was almost no MP consumption.

It was a truly fraudulent instant kill that did not even require precise aiming.

[...] Just now, what is that?]

Dexter, who has finally come to his senses, asks in a trembling voice. However, Seongjin answered roughly and walked forward.

[Eh, no big deal.]

[wait for a sec! It's nothing special, hey!]

This skill, whose performance was so extreme that it was even crude, had just been created by Justitia with considerable effort. Seongjin didn't ask for it, but he voluntarily gave it to me.

-There is no need for this. Because I have Demon King No. 2. Just fulfill the requirements I mentioned.

Seongjin thought that his current strength was sufficient, but Justitia's position seems to have been very different.

-This is a gift from me, independent of your request, □□□ □□.

-gift? Without conditions?

-exactly. There are no conditions. So please, get these skills and never bring out that dangerous flame in Pangea Chronicle again!

A voice that seems quite desperate. Justitia was clearly extremely wary of Demon King No. 2.

Why not? Didn't he just witness a leech with the same name and status as himself disappearing in vain?

If we can eliminate the errors that have accumulated and become laws, then we can eliminate not only the correct laws but also the world itself without difficulty.

"Hey, Seongjin Lee!"

At that time, the mole engineer approached at a hurried pace and whispered urgently in Seongjin's ear.

"What happened to you? "You didn't have this skill before, right?"

However, Seongjin only responded calmly, gauging the distance to the next group of witches.

"There are other things too, so it's still too early to be surprised."

"... what?"

okay. Even the skill that Justitia had was [Ignition].

□new! Unique Skill – Lava Field□

□Creates the floor in the area designated by the caster into a lava field. It can be activated not only on the ground, but also on ice or water. Once trapped in the field, the target cannot escape, and regardless of fire defense, it receives additional damage of 30% HP upon activation and 10% HP per second thereafter.□

□Acquisition conditions - □□□ □□□

□MP consumption: 5□

□Rank: SSS□

□Proficiency: SSS□

This is also a trick that completely ignores the game's balance.

If 30% is cut when activated and an additional 10% per second, this means that it is possible to capture any target within 7 seconds.

'Shall we try it?'

There is no need to delay.

Seongjin muttered softly as soon as the witches came into view.

"Lava field."

Then, in the distance, the floor where the mobs were standing turned into an extensive lava floor.

Grumble!

Kia... ... !

This time too, the witches were wiped out before they even found Seongjin and his group.

[...] ... !?]

A sight you cannot easily believe even when you see it with your own eyes.

Dexter and the silent villains could only watch dumbly as the group of witches suddenly turned into light.

'Is it quite useful?'

okay. The only way to prevent Seongjin from bringing out Demon King No. 2 is to give him a morale skill equivalent to that.

Even if the balance is messed up, it seems like they thought it would be better than Demon King No. 2 unfolding indiscriminately again.

□new! Unique Skill – Flame□

□Applies a flame aura to the caster's weapon. Magic properties are added to the weapon's unique properties. 200% damage of attack is added.□

□Acquisition conditions - □□□ □□□

□MP consumption: 1□ per second

□Rank: SSS□

□Proficiency: SSS□

Kyaaa! Wow!

A beginner's sword engulfed in red flames slaughters witches.

[Lee Seong-jin! Not close range! To solve the 'condition', you have to use magic... ... !]

Dexter, who was embarrassed and tried to stop them, soon closed his mouth after seeing the witches disappearing into light.

A buff skill that allows you to receive a magic judgment even if you hit at close range. Of course, the damage increase is far outside the range of the buff.

'Anyway, if I have this, I can solve Justitia's [conditions] without a wizard.'

These were skills sufficient to run through themed dungeons. The intention seemed so transparent that I almost laughed.

'Aren't you telling me not to bring out Demon King No. 2 at all costs?'

Seongjin, who tested the last skill, was satisfied. First of all, I like that the startup language is intuitive and not grand. Probably because it was made in a hasty manner.

[Sorry everyone. I think I should take the test first when I have some free time.]

Seongjin asked for understanding from the group who were looking at him with wide eyes. He held his small hooves forward out of habit.

[Lee Seong-jin...]

[I'll give you a detailed explanation later, so for now, let's finish the dungeon. Because I'm still in the time challenge.]

Then, the tense atmosphere of the group softened like a lie.

[Yes, that's right! We need to save time now!]

[I understand, Seongjin Lee.]

Seongjin, who was looking at the group hurriedly maintaining the equipment, suddenly felt dumbfounded.

'no. I'm the one who said it, but why is everyone so obediently believing without any doubt?'

The mental world of thugs is sometimes really difficult to understand.

Anyway, Seongjin summoned Hayes' evil spirit as originally planned. The skill test was almost over, and I was about to follow the strategy that Dexter had worked so hard to plan.

'Besides, that guy is so quiet...'

Strangely, every time Seongjin fires a flashy flame-type skill here and there, Owen's expression gets worse. That has been on my mind since a while ago.

[Owner of my soul!]

Hayes' evil spirit appeared as if it had been waiting, and shot towards the witches, flowing black fog.

[let's go!]

With the baby goat's signal, the group began to run vigorously toward the boss room.

"All errors in the game have temporarily disappeared... .."

"Yes, it is."

Matilda frowned after receiving the report from her subordinate.

She is a senior executive at Impulse Soft and the chief engineer of the Homunculus engine development department. It was natural to receive real-time reports of events occurring in Pangea Chronicle, the first game to use the Homunculus engine.

"What is the cause?"

"We are still figuring it out."

"okay... .."

Matilda answered indifferently, as if she wasn't expecting much.

This is because I know better than anyone else that the game is already so twisted that investigating the logs is not easy.

"Let's just go. If there is anything unusual, report it and post it right away."

Matilda gestured to the employee and suddenly felt the concentration of nicotine in her blood drop sharply. Her beautifully lipsticked lips flick on her new cigarette.

"Phew... .."

After inhaling a few puffs of smoke, the headache subsides a bit and the body relaxes. It was a sign of strong addiction.

As I've been paying attention to the precarious Pangea Chronicle, my smoking has noticeably increased recently.

"You sound like a damn director... .."

It was a purely lazy game director's mistake that caused this huge mass of errors to become a god.

In the process of refining the hastily created game, the author was ultimately unable to let go of the settings for his earlier work, Chronicles of Astria.

He loved his work and world view. I was particularly attached to his last series, 'Astria of Darkness', because it received favorable reviews for providing new tension by exposing the duality of a good goddess.

It was the golden age of that old-fashioned author.

"Isn't that why the hastily created world almost ended in vain?"

In any case, it was fortunate for both users and Impulse Soft that the error was resolved.

Matilda, who had been thinking for a while, suddenly realized that her subordinate had not yet left and turned her head.

"Is there anything else you want to say?"

Then the employee hesitated before opening his mouth.

"I... It's none other than the former item, the Ice Heart... .."

Ah, heart of ice.

That's a huge headache as well.

"They said they were asking the VIP carefully, but they said it would be difficult to return it in the near future."

"this... .."

Although it was expected to some extent, I was even more disappointed after hearing the results. I firmly believed that VIPs would not cause any problems.

But you can't blame only him. It was Matilda's arbitrary decision to rush the completion of the game even by pouring in sources from other games.

"I will try to find a solution. "Just leave now."

Matilda, who waved her hand to bite a subordinate, silently smoked a cigarette and looked at the pictures on the monitor for a moment.

It was a screenshot of the game taken by an observation drone from afar.

Sometimes it was hard to see because the focus was blurry, but anyway, the main character taking up most of the photo was a small mole wearing goggles.

"okay. "It seems like you are doing well after leaving Earth."

Matilda's short fingers carefully caress the monitor. It was a gesture that seemed fearful at first glance, but even so, what was contained in her fingertips was clear affection.

"But why, even with your new body in this new world, are you still as small as before, Dexter..." .."

313. Underwater (4)

Seongjin and his group arrived at the boss room in an instant.

Since there were no forking paths like in the 'Orc King's Maze', they were able to take a single path and conquer the dungeon as expected this time.

[The ranking is certain, and if we do well, we can aim for first place again.]

Dexter says, looking around the window.

The time challenge results so far have been very good. Dexter's strategy was effective, and Seongjin's greatly reduced time at the beginning of the dungeon must have had a significant impact.

[As I explained earlier, the boss here uses a variety of mental magic. Among them, there are three ultimate skills that can kill a user in one hit. So everyone, be careful not to fall within the witch's attack range...]

Dexter stopped explaining and suddenly turned to Seongjin. A carefree baby goat with not the slightest trace of nervousness.

"why?"

"Well, it's nothing...""

Dexter shook his head and picked up the keys.

'Is there really a need for a detailed briefing? That guy would already know everything about the boss.'

Moreover, isn't this one the best when it comes to fraudulent instant fraud?

[...] let's go!]

The key to the boss room is inserted and the huge stone door opens.

Drurr-

Along with the dull noise of internal organs moving, a chilling wind came out from the crack in the door.

Wooooooo...

What follows is a gloomy sound that cannot be distinguished whether it is moaning or crying.

With gray dust blowing in the air, the huge dungeon boss that was crouching slowly rises.

[...] ... !]

Eventually, the person standing straight towards the group was a huge woman, as skinny as a mummy. Her white-powdered face and black eyelids are extremely grotesque, as if she were a rotting corpse.

[...] B-rank boss, Hexenjavat of Remorse.]

gulp.

Dexter muttered, swallowing dry saliva. He was walking backwards, shaking his legs without realizing it.

Why not?

The ominousness emanating from Hexenjavat. It was different from the powerful force that Orc King Rygas exuded, and it evoked a feeling of suffocating fear that was slowly eating away at the body.

-Thunderstorm Born...

Creak.

Staggering like a broken doll, Hexenjavat approaches the group. With each step he took, a thick cloud of dust rose from his old lace-covered muslin dress.

-The one who will mercilessly kill this world and also cruelly revive it from death. What on earth did you hope for that brought you to this place full of regret?

An unpleasant voice, as if scraping old metal.

It's probably about the main story.

However, just because he was reciting the given lines, Hexenjavat felt a strong sense of discomfort somewhere.

Seongjin carefully observed the boss's movements and soon found the cause of the discomfort.

'eye... ... '

okay. Hexenjavat's eyes, filled with deep intelligence, are fixed straight on Seongjin. Like Raigas, this would not be a typical boss mob reaction.

Seongjin, realizing this, took a step forward and said.

[I'll do it. There's no need to hit me for a long time.]

Strange reactions from boss mobs. Until now, I thought it was simply the work of the dark Justitia.

However, seeing as it continues to do this even now that it has completely lost its power, there may be a fundamentally different reason for their strange reaction.

[It's good.]

[Then please, Seongjin Lee.]

The group immediately understood Seongjin's words. It must have been reminiscent of the extremely cruel end of the Orc King Raigas.

As everyone retreated to the entrance of the boss room, Seongjin glanced at Owen's face.

Sure enough, his face as he looks at Seongjin is stiff with tension, unlike usual.

'I guess I'm not afraid of fire anymore... ..'

Even when the Orc wizard threw a huge fireball at him, he rushed at him without even blinking an eye.

Where is that? Just before coming here, didn't we make a bonfire together and talk about strategy? I couldn't even guess why it was happening.

-I have nothing more to lose, but a deep resentment remains in my heart. If you are truly going to carry the world, you must be able to handle the resentment, regret, and even anger of this world.

Meanwhile, Hexenjavat, who has become quite close, is muttering a very insincere line. Seongjin hesitated for a moment, but soon made up his mind.

'okay. '7 seconds at most.'

Let's learn about Owen slowly.

First, let's kill the boss quickly and gracefully.

"... "Lava field."

At the same time as the small starter word is spoken-

Grumble!

The entire boss room, except for part of the entrance, was surrounded by red-hot lava. A fraudulent floor vending machine with no specific scope limitations.

Rattling!

In an instant, 30% of Hexenjavat's HP disappears. The old witch, completely engulfed in her flames, stared at her true form without even thinking about unleashing her incredible magic.

-It is merciless kindness...

2 seconds.

Hexenjavat seemed to have completely given up on reciting the set lines and spoke to Seongjin, raising the corners of his mouth. The black mouth that curves over the white face is truly bizarre.

-Don't be so sad.

4 seconds.

Nevertheless, her appearance evoked strangely sad feelings in Seongjin. The hem of a thin dress, engulfed in flames and burning, flutters as if it were wings.

-Now I know what awaits at the end...

7 seconds.

HP goes straight to 0.

Wow.

The boss is transformed into light and completely disappears, and the lava field that was boiling on the floor disappears in an instant.

The boss room was empty, just like it had been from the beginning, leaving behind only a hollow sound.

[...]]

Seongjin and the group fell into silence for a moment, looking into the empty space where Hexenjavat had disappeared.

Although they cleared the dungeon easily without the slightest crisis, none of them showed signs of joy.

[...] It's a really strange feeling.]

Finally, Hatasu Titi opened her mouth quietly.

[They are just one component of the dungeon. Still, for some reason, I sometimes get the feeling that they are really alive.]

Then the group also nods its head.

[I understood. I too am strange! When I hear of the boss's death, my insides are pounding hard!]

At this point, Seongjin became very curious.

What on earth do the intestines of a group do? Isn't it just a digestive system? Or is it a translation problem?

[Okay, everyone, stop talking nonsense.]

Pointy!

Seongjin clinked his hooves together, somehow drawing the attention of the gloomy group.

[Everyone, make sure you have enough inventory. The reward will be quite good this time.]

I personally trained Justitia, and my ranking is probably quite high.

Now it was time to check the results for myself.

[First place! 1st place again!]

Dexter looked out the window and shouted excitedly.

[The time gap with second place is quite big, right? I don't think our record will be broken for a while!]

This is probably a natural result. Because I defeated the boss in 7 seconds.

Thanks to this, the rewards they received were also spectacular.

[Golden Lion Shield! The best armor in existence, surpassing the Red Lion series!]

Shield Warrior Hatasu Titi shouted in surprise.

[Golden Lion Bow! The best bow has arrived! There is no problem in using it. Now Dexter strengthens it!]

The ranger, Gurup, also danced, waving his arms and legs.

[Oh, the golden lion axe! It's been a while since a very rare weapon came out?]

Ax Warrior Owen's face also brightened a little after receiving a good weapon.

[hmm? however...]

Dexter's face, who was smiling brightly at the party members' achievements, suddenly distorted.

He looked at his inventory with a serious look, and then took out a golden staff shining from there.

[Golden Lion staff...]

It was from then on that the group began to feel something strange.

[what? Does this actually come up this often?]

[I heard that it is difficult to even drop one per day. So, as soon as it goes up to the auction house, it sells out quickly.]

[Plus, I heard that he always avoids the acquired user's class...]

[What is it? How does it fit so tightly? Is this a bug?]

The group, who were chatting with their heads together, all looked back at the baby goat as if they had made a promise.

At that moment, Seongjin was just taking out a golden sword from his inventory.

[Oh, the golden lion sword! After all, good weapons are different! Even though it's not reinforced, it's much better than a full-strength beginner's sword?]

Seongjin, who was happy, suddenly felt the gaze of the group and turned his head.

[what? why? what?]

[...]]

[Everyone, don't worry about unnecessary things. We won first place in the time challenge, right? I have to give this much.]

Is that so?

The group tilted their heads at Seongjin's shameless attitude.

But they soon became preoccupied with their respective inventories. The remaining rewards were also very satisfying.

[There are only rare potions. So many potions instead of useless junk! At this rate, there will be no problem with the clan's land for a while!]

[Is that interesting? I only have bound weapons? First off, it's good! Take it all back and share it with your colleagues!]

[okay? I got more cash than items.]

Only Dexter, who has game knowledge, looks at Seongjin with very suspicious eyes.

But Seongjin didn't have time to really pay attention to him. He thought for a moment and was just about to hand something to Owen.

[ruler. Take this. Something strange came out, but I don't need it.]

[...] huh?]

Owen, who was frantically checking the reward, held out his hand without any doubt upon hearing the baby goat's words. And when she touched the cold block of ice, she held it in her hand and blinked her eyes blankly.

[What is this... Huh?]

Owen, who was checking the item information without much thought, was startled and let out a strange scream.

what? What is that lame reaction?

[This is... ... !]

[Why are you doing this, Owen?]

[What is it? I see it too.]

Silent villains approach with curious eyes. Dexter, who had been looking at Owen's hand, sighed and sighed.

"Wait a minute, Seongjin Lee! Why did you give that to that friend...
"No!"

Dexter, who was shouting in panic, was soon stepped on by Seongjin and rolled around on the floor.

"Kwaaah... ... !"

Meanwhile, the silent villains shouted in excitement.

[Look at this! It really is a heart of ice!]

[Could it be that precious job change item?]

[How on earth did this happen?]

Everyone looks at the baby goat, hoping for an explanation. But Seongjin just shrugged her shoulders with her usual expression.

[I know. That really came out. I don't need it, but Owen, don't you need it? You said you were meeting a goddess?]

Then Owen looked at Seongjin with trembling eyes.

[I really... Even if you give me something so precious...]

Oh, what do you say? Are you saying it's useless to me?

As Seongjin frowned and waved his hand, the silent villains patted Owen on the shoulder and each said congratulations.

[Good, Owen. I was finally able to meet the goddess!]

[Congratulations! I believed that Owen would never achieve his goal! I reflect!]

Nevertheless, Owen still looked at Hatasu Titi and Gup in turn, as if he couldn't believe it.

[everyone... We all went through the dungeon together, is it really okay for me to have this?]

[This is what Seongjin Lee got. Of course, Seongjin Lee has the authority to dispose of it.]

[correct! I am not changing jobs. Goddess, we will not meet.]

Owen bowed his head with a very touched face at that selfless answer.

[every... thank you!]

So Owen quickly manipulated the quest window to meet the goddess. And then he soon disappeared from the spot without a trace.

After completing the pre-received job change quest, you were automatically moved to the reward zone.

It seems that after meeting the goddess, you will return to your original place. So Seongjin and the silent villains sat in the boss room for a while and waited for Owen.

[This is a really good thing.]

[I confess honestly. Owen thought he would never be able to leave this place.]

[Okay... Oh my, my feet!]

However, after a while, Owen's expression appeared in the boss room again and his expression was unusual.

[Owen! Met a goddess?]

[Is there a problem? Why are you doing that?]

"Sniff... .."

Owen kept his mouth shut and did not respond. Seeing him even with tears in his eyes, the flagship Seongjin gritted his teeth.

'what? Justitia you bastard! You asked for the right conditions! 'What on earth did you do to that guy?'

But it was Seongjin's luck.

"at las... .."

Eventually, Owen opened his mouth and his voice trembled. His voice was clearly agitated, as if he had completely forgotten to speak out of resignation.

"I can finally go! "The quest is completed, and I received a new quest!"

... what?

Everyone was confused, but Owen suddenly raised his head and shouted in a voice filled with joy.

"It's a quest that takes you to the ecliptic! know? "I can finally go home!"

314. Underwater (5)

It was some time later that Owen calmed down.

[I still can't believe it. This damn quest has really been completed! If I couldn't get a job change item in this theme dungeon, I was thinking of moving to the capital and at least following the main story.]

Owen looks into space with a voice full of emotion. Perhaps in his eyes, there is a new quest window that is invisible to the party.

[You know what? I-I've been really wanting to go home for so long! Did you say that the faces of your father and the people of the family, especially our cute little Sisley, flashed before your eyes every day?]

[...] But why don't you just come back?]

Seongjin asked with a sullen face. Instead of inadvertently asking, 'Why didn't you go?', the question became, 'Why didn't you come back?'

Because it was so natural, Owen didn't notice anything strange and shook his head.

[Newbie, you wouldn't know. There are many miscellaneous quests that Sang Tae-chang gives me every day. This is mostly what needs to be done on the southern front.]

Defeat the sea creatures living near the power lines. Attend events of the tribes of Barça, especially the Volanta tribe. Boost the morale of soldiers serving on the southern front.

With all these quests pouring in, Owen couldn't leave the southern front at all.

Moreover, the status window showed the future main stream.

[Main Stream 3 – Save Castle□!]

[Main Stream 4 - Save Castle□!]

[Main Stream 5 - Let's defeat □□□ □□!]

For some reason, these are contents that are expected to have a significant impact on the well-being of the people of Seonghwangga in the future. How could Owen know this clearly and then ignore it?

Thanks to this, Owen had no choice but to carry out the miscellaneous quests presented in the status window. His only comfort was that the stream's achievement gauge was slowly filling up.

[Is that all there is? If you fail to perform these within the deadline, there is a huge penalty every time!]

Threatening to cut Cathy, who was the size of a rat's tail, into pieces was a good thing.

If anything goes wrong in the quest, a huge friction will suddenly arise in the relationship with the Barsha tribes, or an incident will occur where the trust that had been built up will be in vain.

There were times when Owen's life was in immediate danger.

[amazing! My status window just tells me to get a certain amount of items. It sets you free!]

[If there is a penalty, it is definitely tight. Well, thinking about the events so far, Sangtae Chang, who leads Owen, seems to have a particularly formidable temper.]

Seongjin, who was listening to their conversation, secretly frowned.

'What on earth was Grandma thinking?'

I simply thought that Owen was doing something for his family. Now that I look at it, doesn't it seem like her grandmother had a higher stake in Owen's runaway from home than expected?

No, what are the criteria for the status window to issue quests in the first place? How can a guest ID user be enforced in such detail?

[Anyway, how was the goddess? Was she really covering her eyes and holding a golden spear like in the picture in the book?]

At Dexter's sudden question, the silent villains looked at Owen with curious eyes.

Why not? Since everyone had been working on the Pangea Chronicle for quite some time, she had some basic curiosity about the absolute growing goddess of this world.

However, since they are Guest ID users who cannot use high-end facilities, they will never be able to meet the goddess in person in the future.

[hmm...]

However, Owen's expression became a little more subtle.

[okay. It's exactly the same. I was covering my eyes with an eye patch, but somehow I felt like I could see clearly. Plus, he looked very strong. He definitely deserved to be called the strongest person in the world. but...]

[but?]

[I'm not sure if I should really call it a goddess? Rather, I had a strong feeling that it was like a business.]

... Business? It was quite an unexpected sentiment for Seongjin.

Isn't Justitia quite a temperamental person? Moreover, although it was a bit vague, it had its own absolute 'class' that was worthy of 'Code Zero'.

[When I gave her the change item, the goddess praised her excessively, saying she was the first on the server. And aren't you going to try to sell me something by talking about specials and all?

They said it was a never-to-be-received opportunity, so they gave me a huge discount. So I politely declined and returned.]

"... "What, man?"

Seongjin jumped up and shouted. It was so absurd that I didn't even realize that I had uttered the imperial language without realizing it.

"hey! Why miss that great opportunity? "If you don't have anything to buy, just take a look!"

"hmm?"

Then Owen looked at Seongjin and blinked.

"But 1/10th of the regular price, isn't it too suspicious? Does that make sense? It somehow seems like a scammer to keep trying to get you to buy something... .."

"what... ..!"

"Is that so? No matter how good the conditions are, the essence of business does not change. Anyone who wants to sell something always aims to get the most benefit from the customer. "Would a bastard like that sell a decent product for 1/10 the price?"

Seongjin was speechless at that bold answer.

'No, this guy always shows his sloppy side, but why is he so strangely strict in important places?'

I pressured him into handing over the items he needed and handing over the limited edition eye patch and other necessary items at a low price. So then my hard work is now useless!

As Seongjin held his head, which was giving him a headache, Owen asked him worriedly.

"what's the matter? "Where does it hurt, newbie?"

"Okay... .."

Oh, it's noisy. You are the cause of my headache!

Ah, you idiot. How on earth do they do this?

Seongjin, who thought for a while, held out a small hoof in front of Owen with a feeling of desperation and said.

"I'm sick and I'm going to die. "You don't need anything, I'll buy it for you, so just give me your cash."

"... .."

Then Owen looked at Seongjin with an unknown expression.

Well, they are trying to force you to hand over money, but is there any way it will work? No matter how stupid this kid is.

however-

"hmm? Do you need cash? "Okay, how much can I give you?"

Absurdly, this guy, Owen, is responding obediently and manipulating the trading window again! In the end, a blood spurt appeared from Seongjin's forehead.

"Hey, you stupid guy!"

Wow!

"Ahh!"

Owen, who had suddenly been hit hard, cried out while rubbing the dark petal marks left on his forehead.

"Why are you hitting me again?!"

"You man, do you want to keep talking nonsense like that?"

"Why do you get angry when I give you cash?"

"Who in the world would give away cash just because they asked for it? "I'm telling you, you better come to your senses!"

"What, is that the reason? I just can't figure it out! Then don't ask for it in the first place!"

"You man, you don't understand at all! The problem isn't that I asked for it, the problem is that you just gave it to me! "Don't you know that yet?"

Looking at the two people pressing their foreheads together and shouting, the silent villains who knew nothing laughed happily.

[good night. Are we getting closer?]

[okay. Young people seem to make friends very easily.]

Of course, it was a misunderstanding that occurred because I could not understand the imperial language at all. Only Dexter, who receives full translation services, looks at them with a dumbfounded expression.

'What on earth are they doing? 'Why are you fighting over such useless things?'

Fortunately, Owen's chance to make up for his mistakes came quickly.

Taking advantage of the moment when the party left the dungeon, the goddess summoned Seongjin back to her space.

[...]]

As I looked back into the darkness that I had become quite accustomed to, Justitia, facing Seongjin, blurted out this.

[I tried!]

[what?]

[I tried to sell the items you mentioned to that guest ID user as much as possible!]

... Uh, okay.

Let me admit that you worked hard. How dare you think that Owen would think of you as a complete fraud and not a goddess?

[are you okay. I will buy it, so just sell it to me.]

[...]]

At Seongjin's answer, the goddess looked very disappointed.

I was just trying to sell one item, but now it looks like I'm feeling a strong sense of skepticism.

[Wouldn't you have just bought it from the beginning?]

[Isn't it strange that I suddenly buy him an item? Besides, I didn't have much money earlier.]

Are you there now? Of course.

In the end, despite all the fighting, Seongjin managed to steal an appropriate amount of cash from Owen. The guy was very embarrassed when he handed me the money.

-Why on earth did I get hit?

Anyway, Seongjin searched the store menu provided by Justitia and quickly found the item he wanted.

☐Would you like to purchase this item?☐

[*Verification is cancel =

Seongjin clicked the button while inwardly sticking his tongue out.

'Wow, this is still evil even though the price has been reduced by 10%.'

After quickly making the payment and putting the items into the inventory, the goddess looked at Seongjin in confusion.

[Why do you need that? ☐☐☐ ☐. There is nothing in this world that would dare interfere with your mind...]

Noisy.

Suddenly, he felt a chill in his heart, but Seongjin cut off the goddess's words without thinking.

[Isn't it cute? It's a limited edition...]

[...]]

[what? why? what? Don't meddle in unnecessary ways.]

It was when I was glaring at Justitia who looked dumbfounded. Suddenly, something moving behind her caught Seongjin's eye.

Wiggle.

[That...]

It was a black lump the size of a finger. It was changing direction and moving slowly, like a small lump of dust rolling in the wind.

But it was clearly a conscious being. As soon as I met Seongjin's gaze, I was startled and hesitated, and then quickly disappeared into the darkness.

The goddess, who noticed Seongjin's gaze, opened her mouth.

[Originally, it would have taken a little longer for that thing to move. However, thanks to unreasonable manipulation of the probability at your request, it grew faster than expected. It will take shape soon.]

okay. Justitia of Darkness.

As long as this game runs and as long as errors accumulate, it is a being that continues to be born and grow.

Grumble!

Demon King No. 2 reflexively appeared in front of Seongjin. However, instead of throwing fire right away, Seongjin quietly stared into the darkness where the bastard had disappeared.

[...] Why don't you get rid of it this time?]

Justitia asked, looking a little pale as she faced Demon King No. 2.

[Well, there will still be time for you to grow out of control, right?]

So, wouldn't there be a need to make people experience death one after another within a short period of time? He's a guy with a predetermined outcome, but when I think about it, it's a bit pitiful.

Slurp.

As if reflecting Seongjin's will, Demon King No. 2 suddenly disappears in thin air.

[you are...]

Seongjin spoke to Justitia, who seemed to have a lot to say.

[It's okay. Anyway, the business is over now. So hurry and let me out.]

When Seongjin came to his senses, he once again faced Owen, whose face was right in front of him.

This time, the guy was in the middle of a fuss, saying that the newbie was still mesmerized even after leaving the dungeon.

'... ... !'

Wow, that was just dangerous.

I almost reached my forehead out of habit!

And Owen opened his mouth dumbly when he saw an item suddenly thrust in front of him.

"Limited edition rabbit eyepatch? Newbie, how did you do this..."

"Oh, there's a way to everything."

It was like that.

The baby goat was suddenly holding out a black limited edition rabbit eye patch with a proud expression.

315

315. Underwater (6)

[Now, everyone, open the status window.]

Seongjin focused the attention of all party members.

[There was another perk of getting a job change item for the first time on the server. If you look out front here, there will be a temporary discount store opening. Without having to go to the village store, you can immediately purchase items at a low price through the status window.]

[what? I looked carefully, but there was nothing like that before... Sigh!]

A mole engineer gets stepped on by a baby goat and falls on the floor.

[So I chose the most expensive item there. It seems like you only get one chance, so everyone choose carefully.]

Then the silent villains hurriedly opened the status window.

[really! Just like what Seongjin Lee said! There is a store!]

[There are also rare items that are not sold in regular stores! I thought I wouldn't even be able to see it if it weren't for the auction house!]

The silent villains who discovered the store shouted with joy. Hard to find items are gathered together, and the price is also 1/10th of that, so where else can you get an opportunity like this!

Even Dexter eagerly searches the store while lying on the floor.

Seongjin looked at the scene happily.

'Regardless of shame, it's rewarding to have cleaned Justitia again.'

Thanks to Owen, who threw away a golden opportunity, all party members now have the same privilege.

Thanks to this, Justitia of Darkness, which was just the size of a bean, has now grown to the size of an adult's fist.

"Now, take this too, and quickly open the status window."

Seongjin held out his eye patch and urged Owen.

Unlike other silent villains, Owen did not even think about opening the status window and was looking at Seongjin with a strange expression.

Why not? Coincidentally, a newbie would bring out the item he needed the most. If it were a coincidence, it would be a truly strange coincidence.

"Newbie, why are you buying this eye patch?"

However, despite Owen's doubts, Seongjin was confident.

"Isn't it best to discount and buy the most expensive items?"

"... "But why do you do this to me?"

"When I actually bought it, I realized I didn't really need it. "I bought this with the cash I received from you from the beginning, so just keep it."

"what? but..."

"It has high mental resistance, so it prevents things like nightmares. So, stop talking nonsense and use this from now on. Don't whine like you did before about why you're losing your dreams. "It's annoying even for me to play along with the rhythm."

"hmm..."

Then Owen carefully took the eye patch and lowered his head to play with the rabbit's black ears.

"... For now, I'll take it well. Thank you very much. "It happened to be exactly what I needed."

It was nothing.

Seongjin looked a little smug and raised his nose.

"As expected, looking at it again, it's a cute eyepatch. "But why did you choose black?"

"uh? just. "That seemed the most plausible?"

In fact, Seongjin didn't think much about the design of the eye patch. He just picked the one that stood out the most.

Maybe Amelia's tastes have changed without her knowing it all this time.

"And shouldn't it be black so it doesn't get dirty easily? "If you can't wash your clothes often, there's no other color that matches it."

"That's right. I happen to be in an environment where I can't do laundry often... .."

Owen, who spoke awkwardly, looked at Sangjin carefully with new eyes.

"It's all a coincidence, right? "There's no way you, newbie, know me."

"... .."

"Now that you think about it, it's really strange? "Why does the more I look at you, the more I feel something familiar?"

Seongjin, who was feeling annoyed for no reason, was secretly trying something different, but Owen looked straight at Seongjin and asked in an unusually serious voice.

"It feels a little strange to ask this now. It's a newbie. "Have you ever met me in Delcross?"

"... .."

Seongjin thought for a moment.

It wasn't that I was trying to hide my identity, but now that I had revealed myself as Mores, it was somewhat of an ambiguous situation.

From what I heard, it doesn't seem like they had a friendly relationship in the past either.

If I mentioned Mores for no reason, wouldn't it be possible that Owen might be suspicious of Seongjin's intentions and insist on not receiving the eyepatch?

"well? Maybe we really met. But at least not in my memory."

So Seongjin decided to quietly pass over this place. It's not like I'll be seeing it in Pangea Chronicle for long anyway.

Well, this isn't a complete lie.

"okay? I see... .."

Owen had a puzzled look on his face, but he nodded in understanding. And he belatedly opened the status window and started looking around the store.

Of course, when the item list was revealed, his expression suddenly changed and he whistled.

[Hwiyu! Is this really amazing? There are so many good ones that it's hard to choose what to buy, right?]

[That's right, Owen! The limited edition potions here will be enough to sustain the land of whatever clan you choose for many years!]

[There are also limited edition weapons that are sold out! The power against the Demon King becomes enormous! Courage is surging!]

Hustle and bustle!

It is truly ironic that the nickname of those guys who make noise with their thoughts is 'Silent Villain'.

Seongjin, who was looking at the group with satisfaction, suddenly felt a strange feeling as if his vision was being pushed backwards.

It was truly strange. Neither he nor his companions moved from their seats.

'This...'

At the same time, a strange feeling of weakness arose in my body. The reins, which were held tightly in one hand, suddenly lost their strength and felt slack.

Seongjin felt it right away.

'... That's it for now.'

Enlightenment came naturally.

That most of what he could do for Owen and the silent villains was over. I know that I won't have to deal with them anymore for a while.

And Seongjin's half-signpost will never lead him here again.

'Well, it doesn't really matter anymore?'

If you think about it, Seongjin's purpose of accessing Pangea Chronicle has been fulfilled. I helped Owen complete the quest, and ultimately succeeded in getting him to come to the imperial capital.

'It was quite fun to see the foolishness of those guys, but...'

It would be a lie if I said I wasn't a little disappointed. However, Seongjin knew well that it was right to end anything when you felt the time was right.

Anyway, the longer you stay here, the faster the dark Justitia will grow and the sooner you will die.

Also, I didn't want to face any more boss mobs that seemed strange when they were in front of me.

Wow.

Seongjin took a step forward toward the group and calmly opened his mouth.

[Okay, everyone got their rewards, right? So, let's end the Theme Dungeon Time Challenge here. From now on, I'll only focus on safe dungeons like before. okay?]

Did he sense the strange atmosphere contained in those words? The silent villains took their eyes off the store window and looked at Seongjin with serious faces.

[...] ... ?]

[No challenge today? Or will it continue to be like that in the future?]

Contrary to its flaccid and sloppy appearance, a group with a rather sharp edge asked with a serious look on its face.

[Lee Seong-jin, you're not coming anymore?]

[...] ... !]

Everyone in the group was startled by that question and rushed towards Seongjin.

[what? Really? Newbie, why all of a sudden? why? why?]

[What's going on, Seongjin Lee? Has something big happened to you? Or is your status window leading you down a completely new path?]

[What are you talking about out of nowhere? hey! Does it make sense to bring people into a game and then not actually come? huh?]

Owen grabs Seongjin's neck and shakes him wildly, and Gureub also wraps his long hair around Seongjin's arm. Even the gentle Hatasu Titi was clutching one of Seongjin's hoofs.

[Newbie!]

[Lee Seong-jin!]

[Lee Seong-jin! Seongjin Lee!]

The fuss is incomparable to when you look at the special gift shop.

As I looked at all these confusing faces, I realized once again that my role among them was not that small.

Seongjin tried to hide his awkward feeling and answered in a blunt voice.

[wait for a sec. Why is everyone making such a fuss? I'm not saying that this is the end forever. Because you can see it again at any time.]

[but...]

[Just because I have achieved my urgent goal for now. Now, I and you all need to focus more on our own work. don't worry. I will come back later when I have the chance.]

These were not empty words. Because I had that strong feeling for some reason.

Although we will be separated from them for now, the strong relationship once formed will continue in the future.

[So, never do anything dangerous when I'm not around. okay? If I need to conquer a dungeon in the future, I often seek Dexter's help.]

[Lee Seong-jin...]

Then, realizing that Seongjin's decision could no longer be changed, the group fell silent for a moment.

How much time has passed like that?

[...] right! This is not the end!]

The beautiful ranger, who was sniffing, raised her head and shouted.

[Lee Seong-jin will always be my friend! So believe it! A warrior's guts never lie!]

There were tears welling up in the eyes of the silent group. No matter what the avatar looks like, his insides are probably shedding hot tears right now, to use the group's expression.

[We will not forget our leader, who always shined in moments of crisis. Pureblood Mashu Tree, this Hatasu Titi will always remember you, Seongjin Lee.]

The serious shield warrior also seemed resigned, clutching the baby goat's hoof and declaring in a solemn voice.

[It's a newbie. No, Seongjin Lee.]

And Owen.

With an unusually serious expression on his face, the guy repeated the same thing over and over as if he was making a promise to himself.

[You said you live in the ecliptic, right? I'm waiting for you. okay? When I return to Delcross this time, I will definitely find you!]

Uh, well? How about... ..

Seongjin thought with a shocked face.

'There's no need to go out of your way to look for the wrong place. I'll be in the imperial palace anyway.'

Of course, even if I meet him, I have no intention of revealing my identity.

Perhaps Owen's search for newbies will become a never-ending search.

[Then Dexter, please take good care of these guys in the future. Now you are the only one who can create a proper strategy. Because you can always trust the strategy you created.]

[Uh, uh...]

Let's even say hello to the mole standing blankly holding the goggles

Crackling.

As if I had been waiting, noise appeared in my vision and I suddenly began to feel drowsy.

This phenomenon occurred every time I closed the connection. But Seongjin intuitively knew that this time it felt a little different.

Perhaps Oracle's milestone was the decision to completely expel Seongjin from the Pangea Chronicle.

[Lee Seong-jin... ... !]

At the same time, the group's presence began to fade.

No, maybe it's just Seongjin's vibe that feels that way, but what's actually blurring is Seongjin's own avatar.

[Keep this in mind. Everyone, don't ever think of challenging A or S ranks without me. okay?]

Finally, Seongjin gave another request and smiled brightly at the group.

[It was fun so far. see you later!]

Hwiik.

At the same time, consciousness is suddenly pushed away, and the world of Pangea Chronicle becomes far away.

[Connection terminated. The deletion of the guest ID has been confirmed.]

Gurreub-lab-gurreub Bi-keul-leub opened his eyes in reality, feeling tears overflowing from his intestines.

'... ..'

Degurrrr-

When I turn the biggest pupil in the back of my head and look around, what comes into view is my hometown, devastated as always.

The sky turned red like blood after the Demon King descended, and the black earth was covered with turbid mud.

'Someday, I will see Lee Seong-jin again. A warrior's intestines never tell lies.'

After contemplating his emotional turmoil for a moment, he immediately raised his heavy body from where it had been lying.

Kurrrrrr-

Then the mud stirred by hundreds of feet shook, and a dizzying commotion arose in the humid air.

'So, I believe in the destiny ahead of us and will silently continue the warrior's mission.'

It is the mission of the one who has the most legs among those who survived and the one who leads them all with the hottest intestines.

Gurreub-keul-lab Gurreup Bi-keul-leub resolutely opened the inventory. Now it was time to reorganize the power of myself and my colleagues with the weapons brought from the Pangea Chronicle.

As soon as Hatasu Titi opened his eyes, he realized that his henchman was staring at him from the side.

"... "What's going on?"

Creak-

When the long body stands up, the joints that have not moved for a long time crumple and make a stiff friction sound.

"Sorry to disturb your rest, Hatasu Titi. "I had no choice but to come to see you because an urgent meeting of elders was being held."

"A council of elders? "At this hour?"

"yes. "It is said to be a request from Yanara Tale, the head of the Barum Trees."

Yanara Taleh is his long-time political enemy. Lately, no matter what efforts they have made, they are ignoring some of the elders and are becoming more and more arrogant day by day.

Hatasu Titi frowned.

"Do you mean to hold a meeting and look at it before reviewing the appropriateness of the request? Now the authority of the Council of Elders has fallen to the ground."

Why not?

The 'oldest tree' that once led the clan has now lost all of its former wisdom. All that is left to him now are the twigs shaking loosely and the faint thoughts that occasionally escape as if they were the sound of the wind.

[If you can't turn it back, at least I hope your heart is at peace...]

I couldn't rely on him anymore.

So what should we do? Even though it's cumbersome, you have no choice but to move your body yourself.

"let's go. "Now is the time to put an end to the political war with the Barum trees."

"That means... .."

"okay. Put everything I brought on the cart, leaving nothing behind. Now the elders of the clan will know in detail which of us is contributing the most to the clan."

Hwiik.

Hatasu Titi, wearing a briar crown, wrapped her golden-brown cloak around her and strode her long legs.

"And in the end, the one who will inherit the [key] to the clan will be none other than me, Hatasu Titi!"

Another guest ID user returned to reality.

But instead of opening his eyes right away like he always did, Owen stirred for a moment and then fell back to sleep.

My first proper sleep in years. How could one not be helplessly dragged along?

"Lowering. "Did you cough?"

After a while, the tent is lifted and Alicia carefully comes inside.

Normally, it would be time to wake up early and warm up outside the barracks. Strangely, the quiet prince became concerned and came to check.

"... ... ?"

And what Alicia found was Prince Owen, asleep on the bed, oblivious to the world.

A strange black cloth that I had never seen before covered his forehead, and he didn't even move even when she walked right next to him.

It was absolutely impossible for the prince, who was a skilled Auror user, to allow the presence of another person so close to him.

"... Lowering?"

At first, Alicia was secretly worried that she might be unwell.

However, upon closer examination, the prince was sleeping more comfortably than ever before. This is a very rare sight for someone who often suffers from nightmares.

'What should I do with this? You said earlier today that you had business to do with the Volanta tribe...'

However, after thinking for a moment, Alicia decided to let the prince rest a little longer.

"... Hmm. Newbie..."

The prince mumbles something unintelligible in his sleep for a moment and then exhales evenly.

Alicia looked at him for a moment and then quietly left the tent.

And to prevent the slightest bit of sunlight from coming in, we carefully covered the entrance with a windbreak.

316. Change (1)

Dusky dawn.

Four wagons were running at high speed through the wasteland, which was becoming increasingly desolate as fall approached.

Rattling rattling.

Even though the road condition was not that good, the carriages remained stable without much shaking. It was clear that the bottom of the carriage was equipped with a simple shock absorber. Advanced equipment that is too high to be used as a wagon.

Above the pure white packaging of those carriages, you can see the clean name of the top where the paint has just dried.

-Bertrand & Lee

The place where the carriage is running is an old trade route connecting old Ortona and Regina. It was currently an abandoned road with few passers-by.

It is very unusual for a cart from the upper level to travel to such a deserted place without an escort.

just as expected. There was a group of bandits lying low under the sparse bushes, waiting for the carriage to approach.

"It's true! "The upper carriage is really coming this way!"

"okay. "The Marquis d'Arciano's information was correct."

"That's true, but are you sure there's no harm in stealing that, boss?"

Then their leader, the hairy boy, reassured his ragtag group of untrustworthy subordinates.

"Don't worry. I heard that it is a small merchant ship that has just started to ascend. Moreover, a carriage traveling on a remote road like this would definitely not be trading honorable goods."

"Is that so?"

"Of course. Now, look over there! The only people left are the four drivers who drive the carriage. "How badly would you want to keep it a secret?"

It certainly was. No matter how much I wash my eyes and search, I can't see any sign of anyone except the coachmen at the top.

In particular, the coachman driving the lead carriage is a curly old man who is dying! The tension disappeared from the thieves' faces, and a hint of hope slowly began to appear.

"Even if I end up completely penniless, I won't be able to go anywhere and complain that it's unfair. Now, stop worrying about things and let's go!"

With the furry boy in the lead who jumped out of his seat, the thieves quickly ran down the street and blocked the front of the carriage.

Hee hee hee!

The old coachman was startled and pulled the reins, and suddenly the bit was tightened and the horses let out a pitiful neigh.

After confirming that the carriages had come to a complete stop, the furry boy took a step forward and shouted triumphantly.

"Inspiration! Leave those carriages and get out of here right now! Then I'll spare your life!"

But at that moment, something very surprising happened right before the thieves' eyes.

Fight! Tuk!

Suddenly, the packaging was torn violently, and large boxes popped out one by one from each wagon.

"... .. ?!"

They were not surprised by the box flying in the air -

Slam! Slam! Coo!

The carriages gathered in one place twisted around and merged, eventually transforming into a gigantic giant. A terrifying ice monster that appears to be almost 10 meters tall!

Wow!

The thieves were startled by the beast's furious roar that spewed out into the air, and looked up at the monster with their jaws hanging open.

"Huh?"

"What, what! "What about that?"

But that wasn't the end.

Meeeee!

The coachman, who suddenly looks like a small goat instead of an old man, rises into the air and glares fiercely at the thieves.

Long horizontally slit pupils and sharp horns sticking out from the top of the head. The body exudes a full black demonic energy, which is clearly a sign of the devil.

"What on earth has this been like? Why do you keep attacking Bertrand & Lee's carriage? "The packaging doesn't last properly!"

Goats are the devil's lower class.

His master is the lieutenant demon Glumgos, who currently serves as the branch manager of the logistics relay station under the identity of Wilhelm Schmidt.

The goat was on its way back from Barletta, north of Ortona, driving a cold wagon at its owner's command. It was a carriage loaded with expensive, perishable foods, including the precious salmon.

"Once this is combined, it's very difficult to undo it!" "If you're bothering me like this, you all have to be prepared!"

"Ugh... .."

"Ugh... .."

The thieves let out an inarticulate groan and hesitantly stepped back. Because I couldn't believe the nightmare-like reality I was facing before my eyes.

But they weren't the only ones surprised.

"ji... "What, what came out of the carriage just now?"

"monster! "It's a monster!"

"Ugh! "It's the devil!"

The three drivers behind him were also so shocked that they jumped out of the carriage. Not only was their boss a devil, but they seemed to have no idea what they were moving.

Then the goat looked back with a very disappointed look on its face.

"this... Should we erase the memories of the coachmen again? Not once or twice, but how long do we have to keep doing this?"

Upon encountering the strange eyes of the goat, the white-faced coachmen desperately rushed towards the thieves who had attacked them. I decided that was the best place to lean on.

"Hi! Also, run away!"

"Die! "We're all going to die!"

In this way, a serious situation occurred where the attacking thieves and the attacked coachmen grouped together and ran away.

And the ice monster chases after them with a clumsy run!

Boom boom boom!

Every time the giant steps forward with his heavy legs, the weak ground caves in and the entire ground shakes unstably. The goat was scared and quickly flew towards the ice monster.

"for a moment! Come back now! "All the things inside are all messed up!"

In the midst of the chaos, fortunately, there was no situation where the ice monster trampled people miserably.

It is adjusted to automatically attack the enemy, but since it is two Glacher Trolls combined into one, its movements are not as smooth as before.

Meanwhile, the little goat hurriedly found the controller and ice heart that had been given to him by his owner.

Let him manipulate it-

Jiing-

Crash! Crash! thud!

The giant ice monster disintegrated into four boxes with a loud noise. And then they all flew into the carriage as if nothing had happened.

Whisper - boom! thud!

"... ... !?"

The son-in-law suddenly becomes quiet.

Now the only traces of the earlier commotion were the tattered pavement of the carriage and the floor, dented from the immense weight.

But the distraught people did not stop running away.

"Ah, it's the devil!"

"It's a glamor troll!"

"Oh my god!"

Meeeeee...

The goat, looking at that scene, became tearful and sighed.

"Now, when I go back, I must tell my master. "Wouldn't it be much better to form a proper bodyguard?"

The dejected devil lightly jumped up and blocked the people who were running away.

"Ugh!?"

"Well, then there will be more people to clean up after, so it might be more troublesome..."

The goat's horizontally slit eyes stare at people in fear.

What followed was a loud voice that shook their minds.

[Now, everyone, look into my eyes. You guys are happy!]

"... ... !?"

While the eyes of the thieves and the coachman turned hazy as they encountered the goat, the sun, as bright as usual, was rising on the other side of the wasteland.

"Sir, you are very focused today! "What happened yesterday?"

Early morning training ground.

Masain, who was watching Seongjin's training, asked with a surprised face. That's how much Seongjin was focusing on his morning training like never before.

Why not? The troubling problem of the Pangea Chronicle has been resolved, and the progress is in the 8th and 10th forms of the Banahas exercise.

The end of the tedious Auror tying was in sight. From now on, Seongjin will no longer be lacking in the ability to call himself a proper prosecutor.

"Phew... .."

After completing the training satisfactorily, Seongjin wiped his sweat and asked.

"So, Sir Masaine. What's next for Form 8 and Form 10? "Am I now learning the old sword techniques?"

Old swordsmanship is the prototype of the standard swordsmanship of the Imperial Knights. However, even with Seongjin's experience, it was assumed that the two sword techniques had quite different methods for binding Aurors. I think it would be a good idea to try learning it at least once as an experience.

But Masain thought for a moment and then shook his head.

"The old sword method has already been completely refined by the genius swordsman Banajas. The standard swordsmanship of the Imperial Knights and the Banajas technique are already complete swordsmanship in themselves."

"okay?"

"yes. I also didn't learn the old sword techniques in depth. "Especially for someone like Ha Hae who easily focuses on one thing, it would be more efficient to dig one well to the end."

And that opinion was also shared by the unofficial Sword Master, Logan.

"I believe that the standard swordsmanship techniques of the Imperial Knights are in no way inferior to the old swordsmanship. If you have time to learn another sword, it would be better to learn a new Henesys technique with me."

"... "You really don't know how to give up."

Uh, Logan.

I understand very well, so don't secretly sell Ortona's swordsmanship.

"Anyway, what are you doing here this morning?"

Seongjin asked as he walked towards Jinju Palace. Normally, wouldn't this guy be busy with the knights' work by now?

"I was supposed to go to work at the monster task force today. I'll take a look at your condition while I'm on my way."

"me?"

"okay. You've been feeling really tired every morning lately, haven't you? Sisley is very worried about you."

With those words, a hand filled with white divine power touches Seongjin's shoulder.

'Now there will be no more staying up all night playing games. 'Because the business at Pangea Chronicle is roughly finished.'

Seongjin thought about declining for a moment, but soon changed his mind. Although she mentioned Sisley, she also read a faint look of concern on Logan's face.

Moreover, although not as strong as his father's, Logan's divine power is also quite refreshing. He felt like his tired muscles were quickly recovering from the intense morning training.

"Anyway, what have you been doing these days so busy that you don't even have time to come to the monster task force? "What do the Knights of St. Bastian usually ask the prince to do?"

But the answer that came back from Logan was unexpected.

"Strictly speaking, it was an extension of the work of the monster task force. "I personally observed the search and seizure of the Milo upper terminal."

"Observing? "You yourself?"

"okay. "In particular, when the Inquisitors were arresting employees and laborers, I had to stand by and supervise each one to see if any demon energy was detected."

Logan responded calmly and kindly added another explanation to Seongjin, who still had no idea.

"As you know, merchant Giacomo Milo is suspected of being a devil contractor. Then what will happen to the remaining people at the top?"

"... ..!"

Oh, come to think of it, I hadn't thought of that.

I only thought about the law enforcement agencies of the old Earth, and thought that the devil worshipers would be filtered out on their own during the investigation. So they were only focusing on the properties and monopolies that were being confiscated.

'But if you think about it, it's natural.'

Delcross is a theocratic society. Isn't this a place where demons would react extremely excessively? Anyone involved in the Milo clan would probably be taken to the Heresy Tribunal and tortured to death until they confessed falsely. That's why Logan volunteered.

It may not be just because of his title as the second prince of the empire. Logan is secretly rumored to be the youngest Sword Master, and he is a famous paladin who personally leads the Lilium Detachment and watches over his subjects.

Logan personally guarantees that he is innocent, so who would dare accuse an innocent person of devil worship?

'but... ..'

Nevertheless, Seongjin couldn't shake the feeling that Logan worked too hard.

Giacomo Milo's crimes were spread across the continent, and his quick-witted employees had already fled in all directions for fear of being implicated in the incident.

Is it really possible to go through the arrest process without any effort?

'Even though they are subjects of the imperial capital, if you think about it, to this guy, they are just citizens of an enemy country...'

Does this guy have high morals, or is he just a mindless brat?

Seongjin, whose mind had become complicated, was looking at Logan blankly, and Logan, noticing his strange gaze, turned his head as if puzzled.

"... why?"

Uh, just.

I was worried for a moment about how far you could be caught.

317. Change (2)

A trial date has been set for the Giacomo Milo case.

The criminal had not yet been arrested, but that did not really matter. In fact, his death sentence was already confirmed, and the cleanup of the Milo family was also coming to an end.

Rather than a trial, it was just an announcement of his disposition.

"Thanks to Prince Logan, the current interrogation of the criminals is going very smoothly. If this continues, we will probably be able to find additional charges and evidence against Giacomo Milo before the trial date."

Logan's face darkened slightly as he listened to Inquisitor Valery's report. Because I knew very well that the 'smooth interrogation' that Sir Valerie was talking about was a terrible process filled with blood and screams.

Moreover, the fates of the criminals currently being interrogated are in fact drastically different depending on Logan's nomination.

But Sir Valerie smiled and added without even noticing.

"Didn't you drastically reduce the number of suspects? Thanks to this, the interrogators, who were nervous that they would be busy for a while, were completely let down."

"... .."

"It's hard to say it's a substitute, but the weaker interrogators are concentrating their time and effort on torturing a small number of criminals... "Huh?"

The Inquisitor suddenly stepped on his foot and rolled on the floor.

While everyone in the monster task force was shocked by the sudden situation, Seongjin grabbed Valerie's report with a nonchalant expression and criticized it.

"That's pointless. Is that something worth reporting on purpose? Sir Valery. Keep it simple and to the point. "To begin with, you say too much nonsense."

"No, sir... .."

"I'll take care of the rest, so you can take a break."

It will be difficult to move for a while. I stepped on it a little hard because I had an Auror on it. Of course, you don't have any special feelings.

Sigh-

While Rep. Djibril sprayed some sweet perfume on Sir Valerie's feet, Seongjin flipped through the report and confirmed the main details.

Maybe it's because I focused on fabricating the Articles of Grace, but now I have the literacy skills to read official documents like this without any problems.

Meanwhile, there was a part in the prisoners' confession records that particularly caught Seongjin's attention.

"uh? "Is there any mention of a workshop here?"

"work place?"

"huh. They say they received raw materials from the merchant once a month. "You delivered it to a place called a workshop, but you didn't know what it was used for?"

"It means that there are products produced and distributed by the upper level."

Seongjin carefully recalled the details he had received so far. All items and transaction details handled by Milo Merchants are known. There is only one item whose acquisition route has not been disclosed.

Then, Logan quickly realized what Seongjin wanted to say.

"... 'It's a medicine car thing."

"Oh, I guess that's true too?"

Until now, the route of obtaining medicinal tea was surprisingly shrouded in mystery. This was because it was only supplied in small quantities to the Sigismund Territory, and no one within the trade knew the source of the tea.

The only place we could hope for was the Scarzzapino family, who first arranged the exclusive deal between Sigismund and Milo.

'When Orden first requested the medicine truck, he said that there were circumstances in which he received the product directly from Ricardo Scarzapino in the early stages of distribution...'

But it was a strange thing. Despite the intensive investigation so far, there is no evidence linking the Milo merchants to Scarzapino. As if someone had erased all traces in the middle.

'Of course, Sigurd Sigurdsson would not have handled the job so sloppily...'

Giacomo Milo's wanted order was issued after he unexpectedly abandoned Riccardo and Isabella and ran away. There's absolutely no way it was the bastard's doing.

My guess is that Scarzzapino's breath has reached him. It would be correct to think that the Scarzapino family, the wealthiest family on the continent, has eliminated the possibility of being implicated in the crime of devil contract.

Perhaps there was also help from within the Heresy Tribunal, which did not want to intrude on a powerful family.

'Who are you? 'Who did Scarzzapino's work?'

At that time, the face of Scarzzapino's eldest son, Dominic, whom he had met at the birthday party, suddenly flashed through Seongjin's mind. That face resembled Isabella's but did not resemble her, and was extremely cold.

'Let's touch on that bastard first.'

Seongjin, who was organizing his thoughts for a moment, opened his mouth.

"Anyway, this is the only clue we have about the medicine cart. "I need to dig a little deeper into this place called the workshop before the trial date."

Then Logan responded as if he had been waiting.

"I will look into that."

"Uh, you? Aren't you busy? "What about the knights' work?"

"I can manage to do it in parallel. I just need to sleep a little less and deal with it whenever I have time. The knights of Lilium are also helping me a lot."

"... .."

Seongjin, dumbfounded, looked at Logan blankly. Even so, a guy who only believes in divine power and Aurors and is overworked gets more work done here?

"Furthermore, seeing as it is so tightly hidden, it probably won't be an easy place to find even if there is an open investigation. "It would be faster for me to move alone than to mobilize the Inquisitors."

Of course, Logan is very sensitive to demonic energy and can sense lies like a ghost. Moreover, since he is a Dekaron Knight, he will be able to hide and hide himself better than any other veteran informant.

But is it because of my mood? For some reason, I got the feeling that this guy was rushing the investigation unreasonably. So Seongjin asked directly.

"What's so urgent these days? What's wrong with you? Are you going to subjugate outside the imperial capital again?"

Then, as expected, Logan flinched and looked at Seongjin.

"How did you know that?"

... what? Really?

"It hasn't been decided yet. However, these days, requests to exterminate maritime monsters are steadily coming in from the Cyprus Union. After all, the only force that can move lightly right now is the Lilium Detachment, so it will be a foregone conclusion that I will form a punitive force."

"... .."

"If official approval is received from the Holy Assembly soon, I will be even busier than I am now with preparations. So, I thought I should finish what I could as much as possible before leaving."

"No, you are the only talented person in this big empire?"

This is truly absurd.

He may say it to himself that he is in his 70s, but no matter who sees him, Logan is still a young kid! How long has it been since he's been home that he's sent all the way back to subdue it?

"Tell the others to go! "There are a lot of knights playing around, right?"

Then, Logan cautioned Seongjin with a puzzled expression.

"Lee Seong-jin. The prince must not say such things in front of others. The knights of the empire are all working sincerely on their assigned missions. "Don't insult their hard work."

"what? Is it time for you to think about the other knights' positions?"

"Not only that, but the empire's position is also at stake. Think carefully. We must also take into account the fact that a large maritime power as large as the Cyprus Union would ask the empire to subdue the demonic beasts."

As if comforting an upset Seongjin, Logan spoke calmly.

"They don't want half-hearted help now. "No matter what the actual strength is, we hope that the most famous punitive force on the continent will come."

"The reputation of the punitive force is more important?"

"okay. Only then can the side that asked for help save face, and the empire can easily maintain its political advantage over them. The reputation of the Lilium Detachment in other countries is no different from the reputation of the empire itself. and... .."

After hesitating for a moment, Logan smiled a faint but somewhat sad smile.

"It is also important to me that many of the Ortona refugees came to Cyprus. They work at the lowest level of the fishing industry and make a difficult living from day to day. So, subduing sea monsters and stabilizing the fishing industry is ultimately for their own good."

"... .."

Seongjin was completely speechless. It's not because I understood Logan's explanation. This was because it was even more absurd than before.

'No, what are you? Why on earth are you carrying the reputation of the empire and the fallen people all by yourself?'

Is that a lot of weight for one person? It's so valuable that a talented guy like you is completely buried without even being able to live his life!

At least you got a new life! Don't you plan on living a life of your own security, relying on your father's prestige, enjoying your status as a prince?

Seongjin could not understand Logan at all. Only the irritated feelings welling up inside me were expressed in unfiltered criticism towards him.

"... "It's foolish."

"huh?"

"You, man! "You're so foolish!"

"... .."

Then Logan blinked and looked at Seongjin. For some reason, I felt a strange sense of déjà vu from Seongjin's words.

But the thought didn't last long.

-It means that you are needlessly foolish.

A long time ago, a boy criticized me for being foolish in a sharp voice. Isn't the boy with the same gray eyes as back then right in front of me right now?

"haha."

Logan smiled with a somewhat relieved expression.

"I guess that was true. I've heard something like that from someone before. "Seeing as the evaluation is still the same, it seems that people do not change easily."

Of course, it goes without saying that Seongjin's stomach was even more upset by that carefree response.

Don't laugh, you bastard!

"Lord Sharon!"

At Seongjin's sudden name, the exorcist, who had been struggling with documents with his head down, looked up. As always, he looks haggard with dark circles around his eyes.

"Yes, sir?"

"You will be free for a while after Giacomo Milo's trial, right?"

"yes. Probably yes. Of course, unless you tell me to do something else... .."

"good. "Then I will give you a new mission."

Seongjin nodded and spoke firmly.

"I order you to investigate the Cypriot maritime magicians. Follow the Lilium detachment. Go and investigate everything you can about the demonic beasts that appear at sea!"

"... yes?"

Investigating magical beasts?

The exorcist blinked in confusion at Seongjin's unexpected instructions.

"excuse me. Lowering... .."

At that time, the red-haired Inquisitor, who was healing his own feet with divine power in the corner, raised his hand.

"With all due respect, the Monster Task Force is a department with a clearly defined field of responsibility. "It's about [monsters] in general, and not about demon beasts, right?"

"so?"

"Of course, we have no hesitation in following your orders, but cooperation with other knights is a slightly different matter. "If we do not properly specify the tasks we are responsible for in seawater subjugation and also clarify our cooperative relationship with the subjugation force, big problems will arise in the future."

It was definitely a valid point.

The same goes for the trial of Giacomo Milo. Now, how displeased is the Heresy Tribunal that the Monster Task Force has secretly intervened in the devil contract case?

"What nonsense? Sir Valery. What do you think of me? "Do you think I am someone who manipulates departments under the executive branch for personal purposes?"

... Then isn't it?

Sir Valerie, who could not bear to ask that question, made a shocked expression. But Seongjin was confident.

"The investigation of sea monsters is an extension of the work of the monster task force. "Isn't it natural?"

"... yes?"

"Now, think about it carefully. Sir Valery. "How can you be sure whether the sea monsters that have appeared so far are really monsters, or monsters that have not yet been properly understood?"

"yes? Lowering. But a demonic beast is a demonic beast. Sea monsters have been around since ancient times... .."

"It has been known as a demonic beast for a long time, so it must be a demonic beast. That is a very narrow view. The same goes for the Glacher Troll, for example. Although it has been classified as a demonic beast for a long time, can we still say without a doubt that it is a simple demonic beast? "First of all, they don't have any magical energy at all?"

"... uh?"

After listening to it, it seems like that?

Seongjin spoke in a cold tone to the Inquisitor, who had lost confidence.

"Lord Valerie. It hasn't been long since reading the Other World's Apocalypse was allowed. "It is only now that the Holy Assembly has acknowledged the limitations of interpreting the scriptures and has given the name [monsters] to the evil things that deviate from the standards of demon beasts."

"... .."

"Then what is the ultimate mission of the monster task force? Do you still think that we are simply a department that handles monster-related incidents?"

Before I knew it, not only Sir Valerie, but also Logan and Sharon, and even Councilman Jibril were listening to Seongjin's words with an overwhelmed expression.

"No, absolutely not. We are like pioneers setting foot on a horizon where no one has walked before. So, isn't the true mission of our department to clarify the ambiguous boundary between demons and monsters, and to present that standard to others and move forward?"

At that time, I heard a voice like a sigh in my head. He was a devil bastard who had become less talkative recently.

[This is my first time seeing a crazy person put this much effort into nonsense...]

shut up!

Seongjin was pricked on the inside, but did not show it on the outside and added to Sir Valerie.

"how is it? Would you like to follow Sir Sharon? Sir Valerie, you are the one who has the best understanding of the [Apocalypse Now].
"Wouldn't you be the best at comparing and analyzing monsters and beasts?"

"uh..."

The Inquisitor made an intrigued expression.

"... ... ?"

While everyone was quiet, Seongjin looked triumphantly at Logan, who still hadn't figured out the situation.

Come on, Logan. So, this time, you should meet Sir Sharon and his father.

Every time you overwork yourself or do something foolish, your father will probably be happy to give you a hard beating.

318. Change (3)

Suddenly, half of the monster task force's staff was sent on a long-term business trip.

Nevertheless, Seongjin felt uneasy for some reason. I know well that Logan goes out every year to subdue the sea, but this time, I felt particularly uncomfortable.

[If it bothers you that much, you can go together too, right?]

Is it because I have an excuse to escape the stuffy imperial capital? The devil bastard asked vaguely.

'Well, I'd like to do that too, but... ... '

But Seongjin still had a lot of things to sort out.

It would be great if we could catch him before Giacomo Milo's trial. We also need to separately investigate Margrave Sigismund's scheme.

Where is that? The investigations into groups entrusted to Dasha are slowly showing visible results.

'Plus, Leonard of Lohan... ... '

The thing that bothered me the most was, of course, him. A moody bastard who hangs around his sister.

At the last birthday party, I thought he was acting too close to Seongjin, but as expected, as soon as he returned to the imperial capital, he was sending me letters requesting a meeting every day.

It was clearly visible that he had impure feelings for Amelia and hoped that Seongjin would build a bridge in the middle.

'As expected, I have to be in the ecliptic now. Owen will come back soon too.'

[Owen? You mean the 1st prince? How do you know she's coming back?]

'Oh, there is such a thing.'

Seongjin responded roughly and quietly frowned.

Oh, it's really uncomfortable. I guess I'm anxious. We need to come up with some more measures.

But surprisingly, it seemed that Seongjin was not the only one who received such a premonition.

It's been a while since I had some free time, so I went to the training hall of the Knights of St. Marsyas to check out Sisley's training.

Cough!

Before you even reach the entrance, you see armor flying powerfully into the air with a loud noise. Perhaps Sisley is accelerating his training.

"wow! "That's really cool, Sisley!"

On one side of the training hall, I saw Seo Yi-seo cheering with excitement.

What is he doing here? You're a saint in name and appearance, but don't you have an official schedule?

"... ah? Brother Mores!"

At that time, Sisley, who noticed Seongjin's presence from afar, waved his flail and gave a fierce greeting. I could see that the little boy's mood had improved significantly.

"Aren't you busy with the task force these days? "What's going on here?"

"Well, I was just passing by and stopped by."

It seemed like a lot of changes had occurred in Sisley's training while I hadn't seen him.

First of all, the little boy has thrown off the cumbersome saint's clothes and is wearing proper knight's attire.

Additionally, held in a small hand, was an ugly flail with spikes sticking out here and there.

Seeing that his posture was quite stable even while holding a weapon that seemed heavier than before, I was able to guess how intensely the little boy had been training.

"The distance of the armor has increased 1.5 times compared to usual. "That's incredible power."

"Your hitting is becoming more and more accurate. "It's increasing every day, so what's new?"

"But today I feel particularly strong. "Is something troubling the saint?"

"Now that I think about it, I feel an impatience that has never existed before regarding the use of Aurors."

The biggest change is, of course, the Inquisitors training together. They must have gotten used to this sight, and now they have enough time to chat about trivial things.

And Seongjin was able to immediately hear from Sisley the reason why he was impatient with the training.

"I'm going to follow Brother Logan this time."

"you? "You're applying to the punitive force?"

"huh. Although it is still far from sufficient, I think it is sufficient to not interfere with the activities of the punitive force. Even if I can't do the job of a single knight, there are ways to contribute to the subjugation team as a healer."

"hmm."

"Don't even think about stopping me, brother. There is no other reason why I usually do not neglect training. "It's all to prepare for something like this."

Seongjin took a close look at Sisley's determined expression.

Of course, the little girl had done volunteer work as a saint before. However, I could not shake the feeling that this decision to carry out the subjugation was sudden.

"why? "Did you have a precognitive dream or something?"

Sisley then flinched and looked at Seongjin.

"ah? Well, not really..."

"then?"

At the series of urgings, Sisley looked worried for a moment and then let out a small sigh.

"Well, the only person who can fully understand my current situation is you."

"It's about the Delcross Chronicles?"

"huh. that's right."

Recently, Sisley has not had nightmares disguised as precognitive dreams. Seongjin strongly advised me not to believe it, and the rabbit eye patch that Owen gave me was working properly.

However, the contents of the Delcross Chronicle, which he had pondered over and over for years, still remained a strong memory in Sisley's mind.

"I know that? "Since my brother started working on the monster task force, a lot of things have changed since the Chronicles."

According to Sisley, from what he had read, there were no incidents of Lycanslopes on the move in the north. Instead, during the same period, a large number of sea demons occurred disturbing the coast of Cyprus.

So, instead of going to Sigismund territory, Logan in the chronicle seemed to have formed a punitive force and headed to Cyprus as usual.

"Are those the same demons that caused the problem this time?"

"I don't know that. Since the chronicle mostly revolved around the imperial capital, only the simple results of the subjugation were described. But since the timing is similar, I think it's highly likely."

"What is the result of the subjugation?"

"That's what Brother Logan does, right? Of course, I came back after cleaning up."

After responding like that, Sisley continued speaking with a slightly more serious expression.

"But it is said that during that subjugation, two Liliun knights who followed my brother passionately lost their lives. So, it is said that Brother Logan was depressed for a while after that."

"okay?"

These are knights who follow with enthusiasm.

The first thing that comes to mind is the extreme trio of Otto, Ellie, and Duchamp.

"Anyway, it's unusual for there to be deaths in the punitive force."

The biggest reason why the Liliun Detachment's reputation is so high is that the number of casualties is almost non-existent. Every year, we take the lead in carrying out large-scale seawater suppression, but the damage is so small that it can be considered a miracle.

The world often talks about this as proof that the Lord's blessings are with Lilium. Of course, Seongjin knew very well Logan's true power, so he thought it was a natural result.

'But even though Sword Master Logan's eyes are still open, the knights of Lilium have lost their lives?'

This had great implications.

Considering that the Delcross Chronicles was created based on reality to some extent, the recent actions of the sea monsters may not be ordinary riots that occur every time.

Perhaps the scale is much greater than reported.

"Or, even though it is not specifically stated in the chronicle, it could be that something happened to Brother Logan himself."

After saying that, Sisley raised his clear gray eyes and looked up at the distant northeastern sky.

"Is that why? Brother. Ever since I heard that a punitive force was being formed, I've been feeling uneasy. "I have a feeling that something evil is lurking on the black coast of Cyprus, trying to devour Brother Logan."

"... .."

"Of course, it might be a needless worry. But rather than staying like this, I thought I should do whatever I can."

Seongjin was able to fully understand Sisley. Until just now, wasn't he also anxious due to a somewhat uneasy premonition?

'but... ..'

I realized this the moment I heard Sisley's decision. There are clues to a solution.

"Whatever is waiting there, you want to see it with your own eyes and stop it."

"huh. I trained hard for times like this. "I'm building my strength to protect myself and my family."

Sisley nodded and tightened his grip on the flail.

Although the boy's small hands were already red from the arduous training, although he was unlikely to get hurt thanks to his powerful divine power.

"I know that? At first, I thought you were the key to all these changes. So he thought he should help his brother somehow. However, after joining the Knights of St. Marsyas and devoting himself to training every day, he gradually came to realize this."

Sisley, who had said that much, turned his head and looked straight into Seongjin's eyes.

"Just waiting for someone to bring change is not the way to go. When I think about it, who would be the horse I could most easily move to change the Delcross Chronicles? "It's me, right?"

"... .."

"So how can I dare expect positive change in the Chronicles if I don't change myself first?"

Seongjin silently looked down at his younger brother, who sounded quite dignified.

What can I say, until now I just thought of him as a little boy who needed to be looked after. Now that I see it, I see that he is a more reliable ally than I thought.

"... Sisley."

He did not want to remind people of the contents of the Delcross Chronicles as much as possible, but after thinking for a moment, Seongjin soon made up his mind and opened his mouth.

"Actually, there's something I've wanted to ask you for a while."

"huh? What?"

"Perhaps. "Does the Margrave Sigismund also appear in the Delcross Chronicles?"

"Margrave Sigismund?"

"okay. The current margrave, Hendrik Sigismund. Since he is the father of the main character, Or Den, he probably appears often."

Then Sisley, who had been reflecting on his memories for a moment, shook his head.

"well? Was there sometimes minor friction with the Archduke?"

"Given the fact that I don't remember much of his actions, it seems like he hasn't been a very important character until now."

hmm. Is that so? I thought there might be a clue to the Margrave's plans.

-I am just standing by and watching him commit a serious and irreversible sin.

My father definitely had those thoughts at that time.

-If you knew that, you definitely wouldn't try to stop me.

In that case, it means that you must first find out what the Margrave's intentions are, so that you can prevent what your father has planned in advance.

However, Sisley, who noticed Seongjin's dejected expression, spoke carefully.

"Is it important? "Then shall we take a look at it from now on?"

"hmm? how?"

"I'm having a precognitive dream again. "Go into that dream and read the Delcross Chronicles from beginning to end."

... what?

When Seongjin opened his eyes, Sisley smiled softly.

"In order to change the future, you must first fully understand the intended future."

"But Sisley. As I said before, that's not the right future. "It's just a ploy by a bad guy looking for your destruction."

"If it's not really a precognitive dream, then yes. "If it's just someone's prank like my brother said, then knowing all the details will be a clue to what he's aiming for."

It's not that Seongjin didn't think of that, too.

There was just something that bothered me about recommending it, because I knew better than anyone else what the Delcross Chronicles meant to Sisley.

It must have been a truly merciless sentence of death. The little boy in front of you must have endured the fear of death alone for years without being able to confide in anyone.

But going through it all over again?

"It's okay, brother."

Sisley, perhaps understanding Seongjin's complicated expression, answered calmly.

"I'm already dead in the chronicles anyway, right? "Now that the most nerve-wracking story is over, all you have to do is feel a little more comfortable and read the process of the world being destroyed."

"... .."

"Of course, it is still scary to face the end of each Seonghwang family member."

Still, if you repeat that it is not true and that it is something to prevent the future, it will become bearable.

Sisley said that and tried to comfort Seongjin.

'uh... ..'

Seongjin realized something again. The fact that our little boy is a child with a really strong spirit who does not give in to external pressure.

In the end, Seongjin decided to let me do whatever I wanted, and had no choice but to respond to the little boy like this.

"But don't push yourself too hard."

"of course. As long as you sleep well, it won't interfere with your training. "I will sleep without the eye patch only once a day when I have free time."

Sisley, who burst out laughing, continued speaking.

"Now that I think about it, is there a story I heard before? Before His Majesty carried out a large-scale subjugation, that is, when the power of the Dark Church still existed in the imperial capital. "I heard that the apostates of the church at that time volunteered to become victims of human sacrifice on a large scale in order to enjoy eternal [rest]."

Clearly, human sacrifice is an unacceptable heresy.

Sisley added, though, that he thought about how difficult life must have been at the time and how he would have hoped for salvation from death.

"I'm only saying this because you are my brother, but sometimes I feel that death has the same meaning as 'rest.' Same goes for me. Once I experienced death once in the Chronicles, I felt a little more at ease... .."

It was right then.

[Nonsense!]

Someone's sharp voice interrupted their conversation.

[Do not fall for the deception of false things, my descendants! How can something as ominous as death become 'rest'?]

At some point, Seo Yi-seo was glaring at Seong-jin with fierce eyes. Her eyes, which were originally dark brown, suddenly changed to bright gold and began to sparkle.

Cadmus appeared.

[What are your intentions? How far are you trying to control and sway my descendants!?!]

However, the yelling from the old man in the back room did not reach Seongjin's ears at all. An important realization struck my head in an instant.

'... Oh my!

When Seongjin chuckled and raised one corner of his mouth, Cadmus, who was startled, got angry again.

[Why are you looking at me like that! What kind of plan are you planning again, you evil bastard!]

'Yes, Cadmus.'

Now I feel like it's finally coming together.

If Sisley goes, that guy will end up being part of the punitive force, right? This would be a pretty solid appointment, right?

319. Change (4)

Cadmus.

The first great emperor who was once even called a demigod.

Although he is currently trapped in a human body in the normal world, his power cannot be underestimated.

'When we first confronted each other at the main palace, it felt like his energy was almost equal to that of my father.'

Still, I didn't think my father would lose.

'But that won't be all about Cadmus.'

There is something more. For some reason, Seongjin was sure of that.

Although it is difficult to clearly understand due to numerous restrictions, the faint sign of something shaking below is clearly a storm of enormous and barbaric power.

'If Cadmus can completely escape from Seo Yi-seo's body... ... '

No, not just Seo Yi-seo, but if he could escape from Seonghwang's coffin altogether. If that happens, how strong can the author become?

As he was looking at Cadmus blankly and assessing his potential power, he shouted at Seongjin again.

[This! Are you listening to me now!? How dare you ignore me now!]

"Uh, sorry."

Did you say something important to me?

Because your usual words and actions were the same, I didn't pay much attention to what you said.

But before Seongjin could say anything more, Sisley got angry at Cadmus.

"Lord Cadmus. "Why do you show up out of nowhere and start a fight with the wrong person?"

Sisley's cheeks, which were usually as red as a crystal shard, turned red. In rare cases, he is truly indignant.

Cadmus was embarrassed without realizing it and stuttered.

[No, a fight... Descendants! I will do everything for your safety...]

"If there is anyone here who poses the greatest threat to my safety, isn't it you, Cadmus?"

[that...]

"And what on earth did Brother Mores say that you're trying to frame by saying it was all a trick or a ploy? "Onii-sama was just listening to my advice!"

Cadmus gaped stupidly. Looking back, it's true that Seongjin didn't say anything.

In the end, he rolled his eyes awkwardly and muttered in a slightly weakened voice.

[...] You must not look down on their power, descendant. The very existence of false things deceives humans and ultimately clouds their judgment. so...]

But his excuses had no effect on Sisley.

"At least it becomes clear who the person with the most impaired judgment here is. "You should be ashamed of yourself for being indebted to me so much and not being grateful!"

[No, what does that mean? What do I owe to that...]

"Then think about the food expenses Cadmus spends every day at the Pearl Palace. "To whom do you think the Jinju Palace budget, which covers such enormous costs, comes from?"

[...] ... !]

oh. Seongjin was a little impressed.

There is nothing more sad than mistreating people over what they eat.

"Excellent, Sisley. "Do you know how to properly stick a dagger in a painful spot?"

"It's not the time to talk like that, brother."

As Sisley said that, he pursed his lips. She had a face that was somewhat unfamiliar to a saint, and seemed somewhat sullen.

It's a good thing that she has moved away from her previous doll-like appearance and has been able to make various facial expressions recently. Where did you learn that weird expression?

"You said that before, right? Before the enemy attacks me, first seize power and bring the enemy down. But why are you actually putting up with such a ridiculous slander?"

"hmm..."

Actually, rather than putting up with it, it's closer to not paying much attention to it.

Seongjin put his hand on Sisley's shoulder with a serious face.

"Sisley. "I will teach you another important lesson."

"what is that?"

"Please understand. "It is a dagger of words and actions. The more you wield it in public, the duller the blade and the less powerful it becomes."

Then the little saint tilted her head.

"It's just a word, why does it happen like that?"

"That is because it is a double-edged sword that erodes your character and reputation the moment you use it. So you have to aim at the most valuable target at the most appropriate time."

"The most valuable target... .."

Seongjin nodded his head seriously, looking into his bright, clear eyes.

"If you live as a member of the royal family from now on, you will often get caught up in useless gossip. Even homeless beggars walking around in the slums can be criticized for no reason. But are you going to respond verbally to them every time that happens?"

"then?"

"You should ignore it. No matter how hard they try to sharpen their blades, the attacks they receive are so insignificant that they can't even cause a scratch. If you react in vain, your reputation will only be tarnished. So it's not even worth worrying about."

At this point, Cadmus couldn't tell who Seongjin was criticizing.

[What? How dare you... ..!]

His face wasn't even red right now. Seongjin, who caught a glimpse of Cadmus, raised the corner of his mouth and made a comment.

"Do you understand, Sisley? So, when a poor, helpless person who can't have any influence on the world barks, all you have to do is look at him warmly and with pity."

Wow!

Cadmus suffered deep internal injuries and stumbled.

"Is Cadmus pitiful and helpless? What a success!"

"Why not? Its very existence is already dependent on Seo Yi-seo. No one but us knows of his existence, and as a result, he has virtually no political presence. "All I can do is shout and swear at his descendants."

"hmm..."

"Even without Seo Yi-seo, you're the type of person who can't even eat properly on your own, right? It's a waste of time to respond to people like that one by one. "It's difficult to even exhale or move your tongue to make a sound."

[...] ... !]

Sisley then looked at Cadmus, whose complexion had turned dark from shock.

"okay. "When I think about it that way, I feel a little pitiful."

big... Wow!

A shock hits my heart again.

Cadmus, who finally came to his senses after stumbling around for a while, felt anger rising again the moment he made eye contact with the siblings in front of him.

[Ugh... ... !]

That's right, two pairs of identical gray eyes, as if they were molded, were looking at him with a light of deep compassion!

-It's tight.

-huh. That's right. It's really pitiful.

[Hey, look at those irreverent faces! That evil thing is really putting a bad strain on my descendants! Such elegance... ... !]

Seongjin and Sisley resumed their conversation, leaving the angry old man in the back room jumping in place.

"Anyway, is it okay? "If two saints are absent at the same time, will the Holy Assembly obediently give approval?"

"of course. "The cause of helping Cyprus is clear, and the Crusade will be hoping that I will have made a tangible contribution by now."

[Hey! Listen to me, you guys!]

"From the church side? why?"

"Think about it, brother. It hasn't been long since you recognized me as an 'apostle,' right? So the Holy Assembly will need more solid evidence to support their decision. "Proof that I am a special person given by the Lord."

[Don't you dare ignore this body!]

"Right. "I still don't know much about the physiology of the Orthodox Church."

"That's because your brother has rarely encountered Orthodox people. Besides, I guess this time, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs will probably give me strength."

[Kaaaaaaaa! Whoops!]

"Ministry of Foreign Affairs? "Cardinal Cesare?"

Head of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Cardinal Cesare.

They said he was probably the person who took the lead in framing the kid in the Delcross Chronicles. Why is someone like that suddenly?

When Seongjin asked curiously, Sisley answered with a confident voice.

"huh. Isn't it a matter of temporarily getting rid of the thorns in the Orthodox Church's saints? "Maybe Cardinal Cesare will be happy?"

"But if you actually make a contribution and come back, wouldn't that ultimately give the Orthodox Church and Archbishop Wesker even more power?"

[You guys...]

"Do you really expect me to perform well? Even if you make an insignificant contribution, it will likely be buried under the brilliant reputation of the Liliun Punitive Force."

"..."

Seongjin closed his mouth for a moment and stared into Sisley's deepened eyes. Without losing sight of the slightly childish heroism hidden beneath calm eyes.

"... But you're planning on majoring properly and coming back, right?"

Then Sisley burst into a light smile.

"huh. Just wait and see. "It will surprise Cardinal Cesare and the elders of the Orthodox Church."

[Tch! okay. As for your helpless and pitiful ancestors, get the hell out of here! These shameful things...]

"Then what if I buy into his vigilance for no reason?"

"After all, it's someone I have to face, right? In that case, wouldn't it be more advantageous to explore this area carefully and prevent it from being touched for a while?"

Are you planning to attack head on instead of hiding? Seongjin looked at her little saint with new eyes.

"I've been thinking about it since the accident at Tansinyeon, but are you secretly reckless?"

"huh. "This is all thanks to you."

... Yeah, really?

"It's not just that. I'm always working hard to learn things from my brother. "Because one day, like my brother, I will work hard until I can carry out propaganda and fabrication as naturally as breathing."

"... Uh, um. Well, I'm glad I can be of help."

Seongjin felt a strange sense of guilt.

Although it wasn't his intention, it seems true that he had a strong influence on the innocent little boy.

"Anyway, be careful. "If you install it for no reason because you are so obsessed with publicness, if you do it wrong, your forehead could be on fire."

"Yes?"

A bright face tilting its head and rubbing its forehead.

"What does that mean? Why is my forehead suddenly on fire?"

"Uh, no. nothing."

Seongjin thought as he glanced at Seo Yi-seo's eyes, which had already returned to dark brown.

Well, Cadmus will accompany you, and it looks like it will be an easy subjugation in the end, so there's no need to tell you about Sir Sharon in advance, right?

That night, the Green Zone of Pangea Chronicle.

As always, Dexter and the silent villains who had gathered at the meeting point sat for a moment, feeling extremely empty.

[...] Seongjin Lee, you really don't come. Very lonely.]

[Isn't there an old saying that says, "I don't know where I am, but I know where I am?"]

[Is there a saying like that there too? It's similar to Earth. If you look at it, it seems like the proverbs are all there, right?]

With those words, the group was silent for a moment.

How could the empty space for a small baby goat be so big?

[...] But what about Owen?]

[I logged in briefly earlier and then left. He said there were a lot of things he had to sort out before leaving for his hometown.]

[Is Owen also slowing down now? My insides are filled with loneliness!]

In a calm atmosphere, the group walked around the field for a bit and then parted ways earlier than usual.

"... .."

And the old man's workshop.

Dexter, who opened his eyes on the full dive machine, slowly got up and recalled Lee Seong-jin's words.

-Dexter. Would you like to come visit Delcross?

I know. If she had known that they would break up so suddenly, she should have at least made a proper appointment to visit.

-Actually, my father is the Oracle of Kornsheim. He is the one and only person who can create milestones that you dream of meeting.

I also wanted to properly check the truth of what he said. Not only was Lee Seong-jin showing off his extraordinary abilities recently, but the more you got to know him, the more suspicious he was.

'Originally, I was going to ask the old man about Lee Seong-jin right away... ..'

Coincidentally, the elderly have rarely been here recently. As if something urgent had happened, he was busy wandering around somewhere all day.

Thanks to that, I didn't have time to talk to him face to face.

'But it's not something to put off any longer.'

Dexter, who was fiddling with the half-signpost in his hand, soon composed himself and started walking.

'As expected, I should properly ask the old man about Lee Seong-jin. If I can't see you right away, I'll have to leave a quick note.'

I also need to find out if I can visit Delcross.

After making that decision, Dexter took off his goggles and walked out of the workshop.

"... Ah, old man!"

But maybe I was lucky.

Dexter, who was heading to the old man's room, happened to meet the old man who was busily walking somewhere.

[Oh, yes. Dexter. Has anything happened so far?]

"Yes, it's all thanks to the old man taking care of me."

As Gongsun bowed his head towards the majestic ancient dragon, the elder smiled with satisfaction. Because he cared for this talented dwarf engineer enough to give his entire workshop to Dexter.

[But what happened? It's a big deal that you found me first.]

"Oh, it's not a big deal. "I just have a little question."

However, the smile was short-lived, and the old man's face soon hardened to the point of being scary when he heard about Dexter's business.

[...] What did that creepy thing say to trick you?]

"yes?"

[No, it's nothing.]

Hmm.

The old man quickly calmed his expression and opened his mouth politely.

[Dexter. Let me make this clear for now. There is nothing good about staying close to it, so just forget about it. I don't want to go into too much detail about that either.]

"yes?"

Although I was taken aback by the unexpectedly strong reaction, the dragon continued speaking firmly.

[And you are not allowed to visit Delcross.]

"... "Why?"

When everyone told me no, my curiosity arose.

"Elder, can't I just watch from afar? I swear that I will not allow the people of Delcross or their technology to be affected in the slightest. As you said before, so as not to harm the causality of the dimension in the slightest."

When Dexter added that, the old man looked a little embarrassed.

[You're misunderstanding something, Dexter. This is all for your safety.]

"My safety?"

[That's right. How should I explain this... ..]

The old man frowned and thought for a moment, then sighed softly.

[Dexter. Unfortunately, the souls of Delcross are already subordinate to high-ranking demon lords. Still, would you carelessly step into that dangerous place?]

... Are you subordinate to a high-ranking demon lord? What does that mean?

When Dexter blinked at the incomprehensible sound, the old man smiled bitterly at him.

[Do you understand? Although things seem to be going pretty well now, that fragile world is already collapsing little by little from the inside!]

320

320. Change (5)

Thousands of years after the era of gods and demon dragons ended.

People called the period when powerful ancient dragons ruled the Delcross dimension, 'the era of the three ancient dragons.'

In a way, the disorderly era that lasted for a long time was also the time when the power of the Delcross dimension was the strongest. It was a time when the boundaries between history and legend were blurred, and mythical creatures were alive and breathing.

However, the era of the three ancient dragons, which seemed like it would last forever, eventually came to an end. As the dragons began to gradually lose their power as they got older, the invasion of the dimension by high-ranking demon kings, who had been waiting for an opportunity until then, began in earnest.

[Repentance], one of the five demon kings of the Apocalypse, descended, and in the aftermath, the sleeping demon dragon was resurrected. The continent fell into great chaos, and mythical creatures urgently fled to another dimension.

Only humans.

Until then, only the humans who had lived in a sparse gathering without any significant power were about to be driven to death and fall into the hands of the demon kings.

-How could you not feel pity for it?

The last god remaining in Delcross at the time could not stand by and watch the miserable end of humans.

However, if you actively confront the high-ranking demon kings, not only can you not guarantee your odds of victory, but the entire dimension is likely to be shattered in the aftermath of the struggle.

In the end, after much deliberation, Shin came to make this proposal to the remaining four demon kings.

-Stop the invasion. If you do that, I will hand over to you the souls of all humans who die in the future.

In any case, there was a difference between late and early, and these were souls that the demon lords could extort right now.

-It won't be such a bad offer for you either. If you include souls that are constantly being reborn, the total amount of souls you can obtain will be much greater than now.

It was a pretty good proposal even for the demon lords to hear. Because I was able to easily obtain souls without fighting with God.

From their perspective, whether it was a hundred years or a thousand years, it was only a moment, so waiting was not that difficult.

-So, please allow us to maintain this dimension for a thousand years from now, just a little longer. So that humans can enjoy complete peace at least as long as they live.

Thanks to that mortal contract, Delcross was able to gain some reprieve until the demon lords descended.

[That is the original [agreement]. In exchange for that contract, the main god of Del Cross lost his name and disappeared completely from his world. Now, the only evidence that he existed is the occasional display of divine power in humans.]

"Is that so?"

[okay. Since then, all human souls in the Delcross dimension have been subordinated to the Demon Lords. If you try to steal even one soul of the dead from them, you will have to pay an equally large price.]

During the time when the original agreement was signed, there were tremendous changes in the Delcross dimension. A new barrier that resonated with Ionia was created, and the border races took charge of its management.

Some of the Kornsheim clan even crossed over to the Delcross dimension.

It was at that time that the human hero, Cadmus, appeared, defeated the demon dragon, and established an empire.

"Uhm. "I see."

Anyway, it's a different level of history.

The old man hurriedly continued his explanation to the dwarf engineer who was gradually losing focus.

[The agreement applies not only to souls that existed at the time. All souls born after that, or even souls who visit Delcross by chance. All souls belong to high-ranking demon kings.]

"hmm."

Dexter nodded half-heartedly. I wasn't that interested in the afterlife or the afterlife anyway.

Wasn't the reason he came to believe in the existence of the soul thanks to meeting Ionian engineers and being exposed to various new knowledge?

There was only one thing he was curious about now.

"Then wasn't Delcross a dimension that would be destroyed in a thousand years anyway? But you create a barrier that resonates together. Did Ionia obediently allow it?"

[Why not? The resonance of two dimensions is a very powerful force. Besides, isn't it obvious that once Delcross falls, the next invasion will be Ionia's turn?]

Additionally, it is said that the oracle of the Kornsim clan at the time actively supported the creation of a new barrier.

-If there is a delay of a thousand years, there is a possibility that the invasion can be overcome somehow.

He was considered the wisest person in Ionia, so it would have been natural for a consensus to gather around him.

Anyway, at least one thing was clear.

[At the time, no one thought that Ionia would fall first.]

How much less would they have thought that they would be swallowed up not by the invasion of the demon lords, but by a [disaster] of their own making. The old man sighed softly, and then added the final explanation with a confused look on his face.

[Do you understand? Dexter. If you are heading to Delcross now, the original 'agreement' will most likely apply to you as well. Even if you die, you will never be able to escape the hands of the demon lords. So don't ever say that you want to go there again.]

However, despite the elder's stern warning, Dexter was having strange thoughts inside.

'The destruction of the Delcross dimension is just around the corner? Then doesn't that mean there isn't much time left?'

If you don't go to Delcross as soon as possible, you may never be able to meet the Oracle like this. You may not be able to find out more about the milestone.

'And Lee Seong-jin... ..'

Although he was an unpleasant conman, Lee Seong-jin still didn't seem like a bad guy. No, has he already gotten the point about being a fraudster?

Anyway, I thought that if a big crisis had come to the Delcross dimension, I should also warn Lee Seong-jin, who lives there. I tell him all the stories the elder told me.

'Well, even if I can't go, there is still a way to meet Lee Seong-jin.'

The dwarf engineer tightly grasped the half-signpost in his hand.

'Because the rental period is fixed. As long as he has this, Lee Seong-jin will definitely return to the workshop someday.'

That night, Seongjin meditated leisurely for the first time in a long time.

And Seongjin, who went to bed quite late, tried to sleep while hugging Lee Jeong, just in case.

Of course, instead of waking up in the Pangea Chronicle, I just heard the following hard electronic sound.

[Check the user's access history. Complete erasure of ID has been confirmed.]

As expected, I can't use the guest ID anymore. While I was a little disappointed, a faint electronic sound continued to hit my ears.

[The user's unique ID has been confirmed. Would you like to activate the frozen ID?]

no? Speaking of unique IDs, for some reason I don't feel like it.

Seongjin clicked his tongue and stood up.

'At best, I gained some fraudulent skills. Have all the levels and skills I raised so far disappeared like this?'

I'd be lying if I said I didn't feel sorry for it. If I wanted to, I could probably wipe out all the rankers in Pangea Chronicle and monopolize the rare items.

Of course, if you do something like that, the dark Justitia will eat your errors and grow even faster.

'Once you go to the workshop, there won't be any solutions... ... '

Seongjin thought as he found the silver disc lying on the nightstand.

There may be a full dive machine in the old man's workshop, and maybe it will be possible to create a formal user ID rather than a guest ID.

But Seongjin soon changed his mind.

Why? Strangely enough, I had a feeling that it would be a good idea not to see Dexter for a while from now.

'Well, Owen will be back soon, and everyone will be having fun. You can visit Dexter slowly later...'

As Seongjin changed his posture and lay down comfortably, the demon king in his head asked a puzzled question.

[hmm? Are you gone yet? Is there anything special happening at this hour?]

'uh. just.'

[Then go quickly. It's time for me to start too.]

Now that I think about it, the devil's whining has noticeably decreased these days. Is that it? I feel like I've become particularly quiet and less talkative lately.

'why? 'What are you going to do after I'm gone?'

To Seongjin's question, the demon king answered in a bright voice.

[huh. I was trying to play around the corner.]

'Play around the corner? what is that?'

[It spins around the edge of the salt crystal. It's a game where you go around every corner without missing a beat, with minimal overlapping paths. Since this is a concave 24-sided shape, there are more routes than expected. When you do this, you lose track of time all night long, don't you?]

'...'

[So I was waiting for you to go to Pangea Chronicle. If you go around thinking about burning crystals while you're awake, don't you think you'll be quite crazy?]

It was somehow a miserable game. While Seongjin has been neglecting reality lately, it seems that the demon king, unable to overcome his boredom, has come up with a self-help plan to kill time.

I couldn't say anything more, but the demon lord added excitedly.

[That's not the only creative play I've made. After all, the ending of the game is the seven arched protrusions on the flame crystal.]

'... 'What is that again?'

[Yes, it is a game where you go round and round seven rings at once while gradually accelerating. Since each curvature is different, it kills the sense of drift when turning a curve, and when the acceleration increases, it feels like riding a roller coaster!]

'uh...'

... I'm sorry, devil.

You've been really bored!

Seongjin changed his mind about going to bed and jumped out of bed.

'well. Let's put off playing with salt crystals for a while. 'I'm going to take a walk around the imperial palace for the first time in a while.'

[what? Aren't we going to Pangea Chronicle today?]

'uh. 'Not just today, it won't happen for a while.'

[okay...]

The Demon King answered faintly.

My heart is pounding.

In my head, I could clearly feel the sense that his soul was shaking with joy.

[Hmph! Are you not going out alone anymore? Well, then there is nothing we can do about it. I have no choice but to put off the exciting salt-and-pepper racing for a while.]

Seongjin slowly opened the terrace door, grumbling like a demon king trying to hide his true feelings through one ear.

To test the level of Auror concealment for the first time in a while, should we go to the Blue Rose Labyrinth this time? Let's see how close we can get without being discovered by Logan, the Dekaron Knight.

'By the way, you. How do you know what I mean by drift or roller coaster? 'You are the Demon Lord of Gehenna, right?'

[hmm? well?]

Then the Demon King also wriggled his soul as if he was puzzled.

[I haven't really thought about it until now? Come to think of it, I already knew about Sigurd District 34 well before the invasion.]

Is it just about the Earth? When I think about it, there was another interesting thing.

Considering that it has been built up since he flew to Delcross, isn't the demon lord's understanding of humans also inexplicably high?

[Well, it's nothing that strange. Because knowledge is deeply related to the state of the soul. Isn't it because I am such a great Demon King?]

Seongjin, who was dumbfounded by the devil's strange response, let out a laugh.

It's great, but it's shit.

Anyway, Seongjin, who started his midnight walk, was able to wander around the palace quite freely.

In the meantime, his auror concealment skills have improved dramatically. He leisurely passed by the knights on guard at night, so he said everything.

Even the senior knight, Sir Kurt, was able to fool him so well.

[Wow, this is really exciting!]

Kongdakkongdak.

The Demon King enjoyed the walk, concentrating as if it were a thrilling game.

[Isn't there a good chance of success against your nanny at this level? Would you like to try it somewhere?]

'Who's the babysitter, who's the babysitter!'

But it was as expected.

No matter how good the Auror concealment was, it was impossible to completely avoid the senses of the former Sword Master and Dekaron Knight. Not long after heading to her office's labyrinth, Seongjin was able to face the tired face of Logan who came to meet her.

"... "What are you doing without sleeping?"

Logan didn't even take off his knight uniform, and even had Arjuna on his belt.

I guess this guy hasn't been working all this time?

"I'll give it back exactly as it was said. Seongjin Lee, what on earth are you doing this late at night?"

"Well, just. Since I couldn't sleep, I thought I'd take a walk for a while... .."

Then Logan looked at Seongjin with a worried face.

"okay? "Are you in any pain?"

"Oh, isn't it?"

"Then go back and sleep. "You need to sleep well when you are growing up."

"what? "Is it because of the age difference between you and me that you treat me like a child?"

When Seongjin, who was offended by the sarcasm, responded sullenly, Logan rebuked him in a calm voice.

"You should also consider the position of the knights guarding Jinju Palace for you. Also, what about Brother Masain? "If he finds out you're gone, he'll definitely be very worried."

"Uh, um... .."

As expected, Seongjin had nothing to say to that point, so he turned his head away with a sullen expression. However, what Logan said next was not surprising.

"Now, listen to me, okay? I'll take you there now, so shall we hurry back to Jinju Palace? "If you can't sleep, I'll give you some lullaby tea."

"... "What, man?"

A gentle soothing form, no matter who sees it, dealing with a child who does not listen.

Seongjin's eyes suddenly became sharp.

Oh, this guy secretly pretends to be his superior whenever he gets the chance? So, don't treat me like a child in public!

321. Workshop (1)

"Let's go to Jinju Palace, Lee Seong-jin. "It's still too late."

"I'm going in after a walk? So, go ahead and get some rest."

"Listen to me. "If you go to bed, shouldn't I go back to the Blue Rose Labyrinth and rest in peace?"

Despite Seongjin's insistence, Logan's appeasement continued.

"So, have a cup of warm hush tea and go to sleep. I have to wake up early tomorrow morning and focus on training again. "Maybe it's because I've been busy with work these days, but the speed at which your aura levels build up has become much slower than before."

But the more Logan did, the more Seongjin's doubts grew.

'Why is this guy trying so hard to appease me? He always pretended to be a superior, but he never treated me like a child to this extent.

And around that time, Seongjin felt the presence of a stranger. A faint trace of Aura concealment was following them from the Blue Rose Labyrinth.

My head spins quickly.

'There's no way Logan doesn't know about that presence, which I also know.'

In other words, he was someone Logan knew.

'You're quite good at hiding Aurors. Keeping your level as a senior knight in mind, keep your distance so you don't get caught by me.'

Then there is only one possibility that can be thought of. Logan's exclusive informant, whom I had only heard about.

'At this distance, it would probably have been impossible to detect Lord Masaine.'

Considering the level of Seongjin's Auror class, it could be said that he is being overly cautious.

The problem was Seongjin's sensitive senses. His aura was already far beyond that of a high-ranking knight or even a Lord Masaine.

'You probably have no idea that I'm noticing it... ... '

Anyway, Logan, we're not done yet. You're going to do something with your informant now!

'Moving secretly alone with a confidential informant means that there is business outside the palace, not inside. Of course, it's not the official business of the Knights of St. Bastian.'

So, is it also related to Ortona? Or maybe it's the monster task force work.

Seongjin, who was so sure, pretended not to be able to win and started walking after Logan.

Then, Logan is visibly relieved and strides toward the Pearl Palace.

"Logan."

It was around the time when the fence of Jinju Palace could be seen in the distance that Seongjin opened his mouth again.

"Where are you going again?"

"huh?"

"Are you trying your best to get away from me quickly so you can sneak out somewhere alone?"

"... ... !"

Then Logan stopped walking and looked back at Seongjin with a new expression.

"... "Is that a sign?"

It's true. But is it really that easy to confess?

While Seongjin was dumbfounded, Logan nodded as if he had understood something on his own.

"Well, you've had a good sense of useless things since you were young. "I was wondering why I suddenly came for a walk to the Blue Rose Labyrinth in the middle of the night."

Well, it's just a coincidence.

Seongjin didn't really refute anything and waited for Logan to explain the situation.

"It was like that before. "I was always amazed at how the maids found the hidden tapestry like a ghost and wore it every time."

... Mores, or rather, what was I doing back in the day?

Anyway, Logan seemed to have given up hiding it any longer and confessed it.

"You're right, Seongjin Lee. "I still have some research to do."

"After all, it's not official business for the Knights, is it? So, this late at night, I waited until the fierce Lilium Knights were completely gone."

"okay. So, why don't you just pretend not to notice today?"

At that time, Seongjin was able to get a rough idea of what Logan was trying to do. So he flatly refused.

"no."

And then, to the guy's embarrassed face, he recited it clearly.

"I will follow, too."

"Lee Seong-jin."

"That's the monster task force's job, right? Aren't you planning to secretly go to a place called 'workshop'?"

"... ..!"

Logan then visibly panics.

Tsk. Who on earth are you going to fool with that innocent face that can't control your expressions? uh?

"Listen carefully, Logan. Investigation into the workplace is the job of the monster task force. You are just helping us with our work, but I am an official advisor to the monster task force. So of course you should take me!"

"That's true, but... .."

"Oh, and you. Don't even dream of using your auras to escape alone. I will put the imperial palace on emergency alert right away."

"... what?"

"I'll tell the neighborhood that the 2nd prince has disappeared! Shouldn't all the off-duty Royal Guard knights be suddenly called out? "Why is that so pitiful?"

Heng! Seongjin looked confidently at Logan, who was puzzled. He's taking the Royal Guard knights hostage, so it's a threat that's almost too far-fetched. Still, I have the confidence to commit face confiscation!

[...] Are you proud of being shy now?]

The demon lord, who was no better, muttered softly.

Nevertheless, since Logan had a complicated expression as if he was hesitating, Seongjin made one last push to help him make a decision.

"Of course that's not all, Logan. "Should I run to the main palace right now and tell my father?"

"... ... !"

"How do you feel? "If you don't want to be called to the main palace at night and spend the night, wouldn't it be better for you to just take me with you?"

Then Logan looked at Seongjin in astonishment. He seemed to be wondering if he had just heard correctly.

However, Seongjin remained confident.

"I will tell everything to my father. "Why do you think I can't do it?"

"Ah, I understand. Okay, please calm down! "We can go together!"

Only then did Logan come to his senses and hurriedly comfort Seongjin. Considering Seongjin's usual personality, it seemed like he judged that the possibility was quite high.

Moreover, the waves felt from Seongjin are truly genuine.

[A shameful person no matter where you put him...]

In my head, I heard the demon lord's soft sigh.

Shut up!

You devil bastard, an outsider who races in people's heads!

"The location of the workshop where the prisoner confessed is near the Imperial Capital. "Even if we move diligently from now on, we probably won't be able to arrive until close to dawn."

Logan walked at a fast pace and explained to Seongjin.

They had to travel only on foot. Even if the words were spoken without the guard knowing, it was impossible to completely erase the presence of the words.

"Couldn't you run faster? Don't try to match my pace, just go as fast as you can. "Logan."

I run pretty well.

Seongjin is plump to prove that point! Using the aura like a spring, it rose into the air. The purpose was to help Logan's investigation, not to interfere with it.

Then Logan looked at Seongjin with puzzled eyes.

"You're performing an amazing feat. Is this the principle of focusing the aura on the feet? "That is also a method of operating Aurors that I have never seen before."

"Call me Schneeshuhe. "This time, I went to Sigismund Territory and learned."

"... "The Schneeschhe I knew wasn't like that."

Of course, if Orden or the Wolf Knights had heard this, they would have reacted in bewilderment. This isn't a typical schnee shuhe after all.

But the point wasn't much different. All you have to do is change the shape of the intention that guides the Auror from snowshoes to springs. It's so simple!

[Lee Seong-jin.]

It was a time when I was feeling proud. Suddenly, the demon lord whispered cautiously in my head.

[Now a soul bead is behind us. It's a small terminal that doesn't communicate with words.]

'Ah, as expected.'

Arenja has arrived. Although she guessed that if she went out of the imperial palace, she would usually follow her.

In any case, this probably means that our movements are being heard in real time by our father.

'Actually, the threat of reaching my father was of no use... ..'

Because you probably know everything anyway.

As he was looking at Logan with slightly pitiful eyes, the guy who had no idea what Seongjin was thinking made a soft signal.

"Okay then, shall we go?"

Logan slowly increased his speed, conscious of Seongjin. Of course, Seongjin followed behind him without much difficulty.

How much did the speed increase like that? Before they knew it, they were galloping down the streets of the Imperial Capital faster than a horse.

Occasionally eluding the capital guards on night patrol, they passed through Via d'Este in the blink of an eye and entered the road leading to the outskirts of the Imperial Capital.

'At this rate, we'll be able to go outside the ecliptic sooner or later, right?'

Of course, this may not have been the Sword Master's best. Seongjin also still had quite a bit of leisure time, but he didn't intentionally say anything about speeding up.

That's because they sensed that Logan's informant was following them at a fairly close pace. It's a pretty good skill, but it looks like it's all there in the end.

'If it were us Dasha, we would have followed sooner. After all, there is no informant like Dasha? 'I must tell you later!'

[Are you serious? I don't think he would be very happy if I praised him like that, right?]

Seongjin felt sick to his stomach at the devil's point.

Why not?

-Lowering. And you went out of the palace without even telling me? This is not why I taught you about Auror concealment! Are you really trying to watch me burst to death? yes?

Oh, I can already see Dasha's face full of resentment.

'... I have to hide it until the end.'

[okay. Well thought out.]

While they were chatting with the Demon King, Seongjin and his group had already reached the vicinity of the western gateway of the imperial capital.

As we left the ecliptic, the number of buildings rapidly decreased, and a panoramic view of wide fields and sparsely standing farmhouses unfolded.

By that time, Arranger's soul terminals following Seongjin and his group had also increased to three.

"Logan, do you know the exact location of the workshop?"

Seongjin cautiously asked Logan, who was running without hesitation between fields. According to the contents of the statement I saw during the day, the location of the 'workshop' was described very vaguely.

It wasn't really the fault of the prisoner or the interrogator. In the first place, this happened because accurate addresses were not given to each temporary building in a nearby farmhouse.

But Logan nodded without even looking back.

"Of course. Only after we had already completely compared the contents of the statement with the farms reported residing in the vicinity. There were a few empty buildings nearby without residents. "We are heading there now."

Hoo. He boasted that he would take charge of the investigation, and the work was done quite efficiently.

"But there has been so much effort so far that there should have been a large-scale investigation into the top. Wouldn't everyone have withdrawn on their own by now? "There may not be a single piece of evidence left."

"Even if the evidence disappears, it's okay. "If there was some unsettling movement there, there would most likely be a faint intention to remain."

... Intention to remain?

Seongjin blinked his eyes.

"You can specify a workplace just by using your remaining thoughts?"

"okay. That alone is enough for me. Because disturbing thoughts are bound to have at least a little bit of demonic energy mixed in. And you know, I am a demon, no matter how small... .."

After speaking up to that point, Logan paused, taking a deep breath as if something was bothering him.

"Logan?"

"... huh. "I never miss a suspicious sign, no matter how small it is."

hmm.

It felt like he changed his words in a hurry, but Seongjin decided not to ask any more questions. This was because Logan, who was a little downcast, seemed to be carefully observing her feelings.

After running for a long time, the group arrived at a shabby barn at a remote farmhouse. And before they even stopped there, both Seongjin and Logan noticed something strange.

"... Didn't you say it was empty? "Is there someone inside?"

"Did you feel it too? Besides, it looks somehow familiar. "It definitely seems like someone I've met somewhere before."

I'm sure the workshop is still in operation.

Seongjin and Logan exchanged glances for a moment and then quietly approached the building as if they had made an appointment.

And with a small wink as a signal -

Jump up!

The barn door was suddenly opened.

OK-

"Uuhiiik?!"

The person hiding screamed as if the wind had been knocked out of them. Then, I saw him crawling to the other side of the barn, struggling with his limbs.

"... ..!"

A dark night without the moon.

Seongjin, whose eyesight was enhanced by aura, was able to see the man's face clearly even in the dark.

"... Belinda?"

It was like that.

Surprisingly, there, the remnants of the Penitent Church, all completely disfigured, were crouching in fear.

322. Workshop (2)

Belinda.

He is the branch leader of the Penitent Church and the person who summoned the Demon Beast and wiped out the Milo Sangdan.

She should be being tortured at the Inquisition right now, so why is she hiding in the workshop like this?

"... Belinda?"

At the sound of her name being called, she flinched and shrank further into the corner of the barn.

"Why are you here... .."

As Seongjin asked a question and took a step closer, Belinda screamed, shaking her twisted limbs in a panic. A harsh, animal-like moan escapes from her blood-covered lips.

Uhhhh-

"Whoa! calm down!"

When Seongjin stopped and held out both hands, she could barely keep her mouth shut.

However, he still looked anxious as he rolled his eyes and examined Seongjin. The appearance that once proudly shouted at Inquisitor Valery's torture is now completely pitiful and unsightly.

"Do you know?"

In response to Logan's question, Seongjin explained quietly without taking his eyes off Belinda.

"Uh, they are the remnants of the Penitent Church. "He was taken to the Heresy Tribunal for investigation for the crime of summoning the Demon Beast from the North."

"ah... .."

Logan seemed to think of her then too.

"okay. Come to think of it, he came down from Sigismund with a group of prisoners. Was it managed by Inquisitor Valery? "Among the prisoners, the author remains in my memory because he had a particularly strong spirit."

And Seongjin and Logan closed their mouths at the same time. Because my mind was very complicated with various thoughts.

'Escape from the infamous Heresy Court, where once you enter, you have to die to get out? no way?'

One thought that immediately came to mind was whether it was a trap set by the Heresy Tribunal.

The goal is to make Belinda, a fairly high-ranking member of the Penitent Church, run away, and follow her to find the headquarters of the underground religious order.

It was assumed that it was probably to track Giacomo Milo's whereabouts.

"... "It's really strange."

Logan must have thought that too, as he concentrated for a moment and then opened his mouth.

"If it was intentionally released, there will definitely be a pursuer nearby. But no matter how much I look, I can't sense any sign of anyone with military force, let alone an Inquisitor, in the vicinity."

It is the Sword Master's judgment, so it must be accurate. Seongjin had also not sensed any significant presence, except for Logan's informant.

'He really escaped on his own?'

But no matter how much I thought about it, the possibility seemed slim.

Just look at Belinda's condition. He doesn't appear to be in his right mind, and there's not even a single trace of his body intact. But how?

"For now, treatment seems to be the priority. "After that, we will ask you how you came here and take you back to the Heresy Tribunal."

Logan said and slowly walked towards Belinda. Because her condition was too bad to ask questions or investigate anything.

"Do not be afraid. "I won't hurt you."

Perhaps because she controlled her presence as gently as possible, Belinda did not react as violently as she did at first even when Logan got closer.

As if influenced by the gentle aura the guy was wearing, he just stared at him in a calmer state than before.

But just as Logan was about to receive treatment, something unexpected happened. When Belinda saw the divine power shining white in his hand, he turned pale and then his eyes widened!

Argh!

"Belinda!"

"Aaaah! stop! Please stop! "You devils!"

"Calm down. "I'm just trying to heal."

"Kwaaaah! go away! go away! "Go away!"

Belinda, who was screaming like crazy, soon started foaming at the mouth and having a seizure. As it seemed like he was going to die at any moment at this rate, Logan hurriedly withdrew his divine power and stepped back.

"What on earth happened in prison?""

Well, isn't that obvious?

Considering the meaning of the act of healing to the prisoners imprisoned in the Heresy Tribunal, it was not an understandable reaction.

The same is true in the case of Inquisitor Valery. Didn't they carefully pull out the prisoners' teeth one by one and then use sacred power to implant them one by one? So that I can pick you again next time.

"... That prisoner is clearly a criminal who drove many people to death. But is it really right to hand it over to the Heresy Tribunal and subject it to endless torture? It would be better to end my life here...
... ."

Logan mutters with a very confused expression. Looking at Belinda in front of him, he seems to be reminded of the prisoners he had previously singled out and handed over to the Heresy Tribunal.

As someone who is not a master at digging, that guy is once again falling into needless guilt.

'Well, what about...'

Seongjin just looked down at Belinda's pitiful appearance and thought.

'Who would dare to judge the appropriate punishment for human sin? At least Logan, you don't have to decide and take responsibility for that now.'

Now that I think about it, my father once said something to me.

-There is no need for you to be forced into that choice yet.
Sometimes, wouldn't it be okay to leave that burden to someone else?

Perhaps Mores was saying that since I am his family, you are willing to take my place.

Seongjin thought for a moment, then made up his mind and called Logan.

"Logan."

"huh?"

"Would you like to go to the imperial palace now?"

"... what?"

"If you were alone, you would be able to get there and back much faster than before, right?"

Logan seemed quite taken aback by Seongjin's sudden words. But Seongjin paid no heed and continued his explanation with a calm expression.

"I think it is in order to bring Inquisitor Valery here. We must first clarify whether there were any operations or discussions regarding Belinda within the Heresy Tribunal. "It's not a matter for us to decide."

"... .."

"If Belinda really escaped from prison, that also needs to be properly investigated. "It means there is a serious flaw in the functioning of the prison."

Logan hesitated for a moment. However, in his opinion, there was no flaw in Seongjin's words.

Whatever the reason, it was right to leave Belinda's treatment in the hands of the Inquisition.

"why? Is there something wrong with you?"

"... no. Seongjin Lee, I will do that."

When Seongjin urged him again, Logan responded weakly.

Then he looks outside for a moment and clicks his mouth silently. It seemed like he was secretly giving instructions to the informant.

Seongjin listened out of curiosity, but he could not hear any details, as it seemed like Logan was controlling the sound with his auror.

What on earth are you talking about?

"Get back as quickly as possible."

Finally, as if he had finished giving instructions, Logan turned to Seongjin and made a serious request.

"I don't think anything special will happen, but just in case, I'll leave my informant here."

"What?"

Seongjin pretended to be surprised and looked around, blinking excessively.

"Is the informant here? where? where?"

"haha."

Then, Logan finally broke free from his gloomy expression and laughed softly.

"Don't pretend not to know. "You knew from the beginning, right?"

"huh?"

"Even though it's pretty close now, you're not surprised at all. This means that they were aware of the existence of the informant from the beginning. "You could have gone faster earlier, but did you intentionally keep pace with him?"

"... .."

Oh, I thought he was just a cool guy, but this guy is sharper than I thought?

When I looked at Logan blankly, he narrowed his eyes.

"Are you thinking of being very rude to me right now?"

"uh? no? at all? "Why do you think that?"

Because everything you say now is a lie.

Logan thought so, but didn't say it out loud. He just cautioned Seongjin.

"Bring Sir Valerie. "I will come back quickly, so in the meantime, don't cause any trouble and just stay calm."

In conclusion-

Hwiik.

The Sword Master hit the ground and instantly disappeared from nearby. Seeing that it escaped Seongjin's detection in the blink of an eye, it was incredibly fast.

'I need to hurry... ... '

Seongjin roughly estimated the distance from Logan in his head and slowly placed his hand on his waist.

Sereung-

The nutcracker's blade, pulled from its scabbard with a clear sound, catches the faint starlight and sheds a faint reflected light.

"Hehehe... ... "

As the long blade slowly approached her eyes, Belinda let out a bizarre laugh as if she had guessed her fate. She seemed relieved or sad.

"Belinda. "Is there any last thing you want to say?"

Seongjin's eyes were extremely quiet as he asked that question.

Belinda's eyes began to slowly return to reason, as if she was sympathizing with Seongjin's aura.

"Prince Mores... .."

It looks like he finally recognized the person in front of him. After staring at her face blankly for a moment, she continued speaking in a trembling voice.

"okay. I thought that I could one day approach God beyond the pain. "I had no doubt that there would be a perfect other side."

"... .."

"You who are prepared. Aren't you wondering why I'm here? "Why don't you ask me how I escaped that hellish place?"

okay. I don't ask.

There's no need for me to know that now, and my father already knows everything.

I'm sure you will take the most appropriate action. I can definitely see that.

Seongjin raised the blade towards Belinda's neck without answering. Then she continued her words, shedding a single tear.

"Hehe. Do you know what? You who are prepared! I have received a calling from the Lord! At a moment of extreme pain, a bright light and strange letters appeared before my eyes. "It was a letter from God saying he would send me wherever I wanted!"

... God's letters?

"You accepted? Of course I accepted! "Because I finally knew that my repentance had reached the Lord, and that the path to Him had been opened!"

accept?

It was a somewhat familiar word.

[Lee Seong-jin. This can't be... ..]

Perhaps remembering something similar to Seongjin, the demon lord in my head opened his mouth in a serious voice.

Why not? Doesn't it seem like the laws of the normal world were deeply at play in Belinda's prison escape?

'When I came back from the maze before, or when I went to and from the dragon's workshop. A confirmation message appeared asking if I wanted to move with a bright light.'

If he had used the [portal] of the Gyu-sang world, it would be understandable that he would have escaped the prison without difficulty.

'Did they try to get Belinda out of the Penitent Church? Or someone else... ..'

Seongjin continued to think for a moment and then shook his head.

okay. Who cares who it is. There's no way to find out now anyway.

Belinda seems to firmly believe that this is a calling from the Lord, so no matter how many times she asks, nothing will come out.

'If we don't end this now, Logan will be back soon.'

Seongjin, who had composed himself, spoke one last time to Belinda.

"Belinda. I really don't like you guys, the Dark Church. "You are cancerous beings who are eating away at the empire and this continent."

but.

"That said, I don't think it's reasonable to continue living a life filled with only pain. So, I can end everything here and help you find rest."

"Everything... "Finish it?"

The blade slowly rises. Belinda's eyes, staring at it, sparkle with strange heat.

"Finally, I come to the Lord's side... ... !"

Well, guess what? Wherever you go when you die, it probably won't be by the Lord's side.

Seongjin was just about to swing the nutcracker while thinking such nonsense.

"Lowering!"

Someone suddenly appeared and shouted urgently, blocking Seongjin's path.

"Please wait, sir!"

Prostrating in front of Seongjin was a short man wearing a black stealth suit. He is Logan's secret informant who has been keeping an eye on him.

"What about you?"

When the young prince asked without the slightest agitation despite his sudden appearance, the informant paused for a moment and then slowly bowed his head.

"I apologize for not showing proper courtesy. 'I am Number 19, Logan's exclusive informant.'"

'No. 19? 'It's a very strange name, isn't it?'

But regardless of whether that was his real name, his behavior could be said to be very unexpected.

Dasha told me that informants rarely reveal themselves to anyone other than those they serve.

The prince probably felt that the matter was quite urgent as he personally drew his sword towards the criminal.

"Didn't you also say that the order of treatment for escaped prisoners is to hand them over to the Inquisition? So, can you please calm down and wait for Prince Logan and the Inquisitor for a moment?"

I felt like he was quite loyal to the royal family, to stand in the way of the prince who was about to kill him at any moment.

Of course, I had no intention of listening to him.

Jeez.

As he passed by him without answering, No. 19 quickly backed away and prostrated himself in front of Seongjin again.

"Lowering! This is Prince Logan's earnest request to prevent the decline. Please count!"

"... ..!"

At those words, Seongjin couldn't help but pause for a moment.

Logan.

Although he was somewhat suspicious of my intentions, he said he would back down obediently. To ask an informant like that, he's a strangely sharp guy.

"As the prince of the Holy Empire, I cannot release the remnants of the Dark Church. However, handing it over to the heresy court like this is too cruel. "Don't you think so?"

Number 19, who glanced up at the cold voice, was startled to see that the prince's eyes looked unexpectedly unimpressed.

For a subject who speaks as if he sympathizes with the prisoner, isn't that an overly dry point of view?

'I guess I can't stop this person somehow... ..'

Number 19 realized this and made one final plea in a desperate voice.

"If you do, can you at least allow me to get my hands dirty?"

"... .."

"I have been personally ordered by His Majesty the Emperor to assist the prince and princess with all my heart! So please be generous so that I can fulfill my mission!"

Yes, there was a father too. Somehow, even though I'm causing this mess, Sir Sharon hasn't shown up.

Seongjin somehow felt relaxed.

"... "I allow it."

"Thank you so much."

When permission was given, No. 19 slowly stood up. As he turned towards Belinda-

Wow!

Hot blood spurted from the prisoner's neck and sprayed in all directions.

323. Workshop (3)

A long time had passed before Logan arrived at the workshop with Inquisitor Valery.

This is because after first confirming that the Inquisition Prison was truly empty, the horse was properly led back from the stable.

"Oh my, Belinda..." ... !"

Valerie ran into the barn, found Belinda's body, and was momentarily speechless. It was as if he could not believe it even though he was seeing it right in front of his eyes.

"There was no arrest, just surveillance. I feel like I'll die right away if I even touch it. But wouldn't he suddenly lunge at me while I let my guard down? "It was so sudden that my escort had no choice but to quickly take action."

Valerie blankly looked to the side at Seongjin's explanation.

As he said, a strange man was standing next to the corpse, holding a blood-stained dagger. Even at a glance, it is impossible to know who did the work.

"Because my safety was at stake, I had no choice but to end the prisoner's life. "If the Inquisition holds me accountable, I will gladly accept the punishment."

No. 19, who had just taken off his stealth suit and was wearing a beard on his nose, bowed his head and apologized.

When a person appeared in such a low manner, Valerie also had no choice but to face him indifferently.

"Above all else, the safety of Seonghwangga members is our top priority. "I understand your position."

First of all, the red-haired inquisitor did not particularly take issue with the prisoner's disposition. He just seemed very heartbroken over Belinda's death.

Only Logan, who guessed the inside story, looked at Seongjin with a slightly confused face.

"Together with Lord Valerie, I came to check the prison where the prisoner was imprisoned."

In the heavy atmosphere, Logan opened his mouth softly.

"They say she was imprisoned in a small, windowless cell. But I really couldn't understand it. "The guards were in good condition, and the inside of the prison was a completely secret room with no blemishes."

I asked the guards and guards simple questions, but none of them said they had any clue about the circumstances of the prisoner's disappearance.

Perhaps Logan's investigation is true. Because he catches people's lies like a ghost.

'As expected, the portal to the normal world was at work. 'Who on earth opened the portal?'

Whoever it was, Seongjin could not guess his intentions.

Either he was trying to save Belinda, or he was trying to kill her and destroy the evidence. How could it be possible to deliberately summon someone to a remote barn like this and then leave them there without doing anything?

What on earth were you planning to do?

"... "It is truly a shame that Belinda lost her life."

Gently closing the wide-open and cold prisoner's eyes, Inquisitor Valerie said sadly.

"Even though things are like this, they haven't revealed anything about the headquarters of the Penitent Church. "Isn't it easy to guess how strong her spirit is?"

It straightens out twisted and disheveled limbs and straightens wrinkled clothes. At first glance, it seemed pious, as if it were commemorating the death of a saint, so Number 19 became puzzled and asked Valerie.

"Aren't they just remnants of the Dark Church? But it looks as if the Lord mourns her with all her heart."

Then Valerie nodded solemnly.

"Why not? "Belanda had a way of capturing people's hearts in many ways."

"... Captivate?"

"That's right. I have yet to see anyone who endures her tortures with such courage as she does. Oh, of course she has Seo Yi-seo, who recently became a saint, but she can't think of him as an ordinary human... .."

Sir Valery paused for a moment and made the sign of the cross towards the blood-soaked Belinda with somewhat sad eyes.

"Of course, Belinda is an unquestionable heretic. He is a sinner. However, no matter how wrong the belief may be, wouldn't it be possible to evaluate uprightness as being quite noble at this point?"

"... .."

"That's why I hope that at least after she dies, she goes where she truly wanted to go. Of course, it is a very blasphemous idea to hope that the Lord's lost lamb falls into the hands of the devil."

Number 19 closed his mouth as if speechless.

If it were any other paladin, I wouldn't have dared to say it for fear of being brought to trial for heresy. But this Nalali Inquisitor picks up such scary words without any hesitation.

Seongjin looked at Valerie blankly with a new feeling.

"Are you in a position to say something like that now? "He was the one who was most eager to torture her until now."

"I will not deny that, sir. But at least I didn't want her to die this way. "She wanted to be influenced by me, the cause of her pain, instead of her demons controlling her."

Valerie, who answered in a quiet tone, raised her head and looked up at Seongjin with a smile on her face.

"Belinda definitely deserved that much. He was a high-ranking member of the Penitent Church, which meant that he still had many secrets that he had not revealed. But perhaps that's why someone truly wanted her dead."

"... .."

"Belinda probably had an assistant who helped her escape. If she really escaped prison on her own without any help, wouldn't she deserve a more detailed investigation into the circumstances? But now with her death, the whole truth has become a mystery."

Valerie, who had shed her usual inertial smile, had a rather cold-looking face.

"Lowering. "It would be presumptuous of me to ask you now, but I am well aware of your skills."

"... Sir Valerie."

Logan, who guessed what he was trying to say, tried to dissuade him, but Valerie did not hide her suspicions toward Seongjin at all.

"I do not dare to believe that the prisoner, who was completely injured due to torture, would have felt a threat to his life if he suddenly attacked him. And yet you had to kill her anyway?"

At least it seemed certain that this Inquisitor was truly heartbroken by Belinda's death. Otherwise, there would be no way for him to reveal his fangs, which he had been hiding so skillfully, so defenselessly.

Seongjin responded by making a complaint.

"Even if you think so, I have nothing to say. "I may have let her guard down, but there must have been a better way to stop her."

"... .."

"But know this, Sir Valerie. I also feel very sorry for her death. "She had so many things I wanted to ask her."

"... "Is there something you want to ask?"

Yes, Sir Valerie.

I still vividly remember how you blocked my path the other day and forcibly covered Belinda's mouth. Belinda definitely said that back then.

-No, I'm dumbfounded to hear such a question from you, not someone else. Don't you know anything about yourself?

Also, didn't you ask Seongjin this before you died?

-Prepared one, aren't you curious why I am here?

If you carefully reflect on those memories, there is only one keyword that can be identified. Seongjin, who had come to that conclusion, opened his mouth in an awkward manner towards Valerie, who was still giving him a suspicious look.

"Is that so? Finally, as Belinda lunged at me, she shouted: So, obviously, you told me she was [prepared] or something, right? But before I could even wonder that, my escort cut her throat... .."

Breathe!

Valerie suddenly came to her senses and attempted to resolve the situation by hastily interrupting Seongjin's conversation.

"no! That is a misunderstanding after all, sir! It's not that I particularly suspect degradation. I just meant that someone in the Inquisition might have this suspicion! So, don't pay any more attention to what the remnants of the Dark Church say!"

Well, Seongjin also had that level of risk in mind early on.

Could it be that that prince has some connection with the Dark Church? So maybe they tried to kill the prisoner and destroy the evidence?

Isn't it suspicious that he was the first to find the missing prisoner? Could it be that he was the one who helped escape?

'It's obvious that suspicion is predictable.'

What should I do? I knew it and did it anyway.

As I once said to Sisley, fanaticism can only be covered with more fanaticism, and doubt with more doubt.

"okay. If anything catches you, do whatever you want. I will also obediently participate in the investigation. "If possible, I want to be cleared of the charges."

"... yes?"

"So it would be best to properly publicize this matter, Sir Valerie. To do that, we must first let the world know that a prisoner who was on the verge of death succeeded in escaping from the tight prison of the Inquisition."

"that... .."

Valerie's expression becomes mysterious.

Why not? If that were really the case, there would be concerns that the high status of the Inquisition would be seriously damaged.

Seongjin clapped his hands towards him, who seemed to be thinking about something complicated, and continued speaking.

"Now that I think about it, I was a little suspicious about how Belinda escaped from prison, right? "If there is a helper, wouldn't the inside of the Heresy Tribunal be the most suspicious?"

"Oh!"

"So, the Heresy Tribunal's own investigation cannot be trusted. Should we just file a formal complaint with the Holy See and request a large-scale investigation and audit?"

"No, sir. for a moment... .."

The red-haired Inquisitor's complexion turned pale.

Even so, after the Demon Gate was opened in the Imperial Capital, the Heresy Tribunal went through a difficult time hunting down the remnants of darkness.

But repeating that crazy thing again?

"Wasn't he a precious prisoner with many secrets that he hasn't revealed yet? So, I highly doubt who stole her on purpose and tried to cover up everything about her. "I'm sincere."

When Seongjin repeated exactly what she had heard earlier, Valerie stared at Seongjin with a bewildered expression.

-No sir, are you openly threatening people now?

-Then you don't think so? Everyone is self-employed. First of all, who was it that went against my will?

After a moment of silent glances, the Inquisitor began to laugh weakly.

"I understand what you mean. But I am only an Inquisitor. "I have no authority to ignore such a big incident."

"Well, how about... .."

Of course, Seongjin didn't believe him at all.

In addition to freely reading banned books that others were afraid to even mention, he also resolved the issue of the Knight of Grace against the strict Cardinal Benitus without making a big fuss.

Where is that? He even had the audacity to arbitrarily place the god's symbol on the chest of the magical beast, the Glacher Troll. How can someone like this just be a lowly Inquisitor?

"Well, it seems like the Heresy Tribunal has more power than I thought. Is it just my imagination?"

"... .."

"So make the most reasonable choice for the Inquisition, Lord Valerie."

Unless you plan to completely overthrow the Inquisition starting tomorrow.

"If you are going to conduct your own investigation, stop at the line of re-inspecting the prison and preventing escapes. Let's not tire each other out with unnecessary doubts. Or, from this side, I can show you for myself how far your doubts go."

Parr.

Seongjin looked straight into the eyes of the Inquisitor, who was shaking with embarrassment, and smiled warmly.

"Do you know? I have a lot of faith in your abilities and rely on them. Sir Valerie."

At least what he said was Seongjin's sincerity.

Sir Valery, feeling discouraged, quietly returned with Belinda's body.

Seongjin stayed behind with Logan to investigate the workplace.

I wondered if the matter would end so peacefully. If only Logan hadn't carefully started talking to Seongjin, who was looking around the barn.

"Lee Seong-jin. "You can't just live in this world like that."

"... what?"

Seongjin blinked his eyes. She had heard something she never thought she would hear in her life.

But doesn't Logan's eyes look sad and he smiles softly as if he understands everything?

"I can completely understand your sympathy for the prisoner's situation. I guess he wanted to help her in any way possible. But in such times, it is more important to have a cool-headed attitude to properly consider the position you are in."

"Huh?"

"Being kind is not the answer. You must also know how to be selfish in everything you do. "How are you going to get through this difficult world from now on?"

"... .. !?"

It was so absurd that my mouth fell open without me realizing it.

wait for a sec. It would be sad to be the second-best child in this world. What are you saying to someone now? uh?

324. Workshop (4)

"Are you in a position to show off like that in front of your elders?
"He's a world-class martial arts master!"

"Look at this, he's climbing up arbitrarily again! "If your superiors are worried, be obedient and listen like a younger brother!"

"You like your superiors! Who says what to say now! "You're still 640 years too early, you brat!"

"Oh, Seongjin Lee! "Can't you let go of this right now!?"

There were some difficulties, such as Seongjin and Logan taking turns putting headlocks on each other, and in the meantime, there was a bit of a rough argument.

However, the situation was soon resolved, and the two soon began to steadily investigate the workplace as if nothing had happened.

"... .. !?"

Only No. 19, who received a huge shock during the process, just stood there for a while with a dumb expression on his face.

-There is no way my prince could be this childish!?

It was a naked emotion revealed on his pale face.

Number 19 had just witnessed the unbelievable appearance of his gentle master, whom he had served with pride for the past several years. How could you not be shocked!

"hmm? Are you uncomfortable? "I will treat you now, so speak comfortably."

"... Oh, no. Lowering... .."

Poor Number 19 answered with a trembling voice and crawled into a corner of the barn.

"hmm... .."

An old table and a few empty baskets. Broken junk and bits of dried grass rolling around here and there.

At first glance, the 'workshop' seemed to have nothing special about it.

"It seems like everyone has withdrawn as expected. Well, there's no way he left any evidence... .."

As Seongjin muttered in disappointment, Logan picked up a few intact blades of grass and asked.

"No. 19. What kind of plant is this? "Can you find out if it is commonly grown on farms?"

"Yes, sir."

Number 19 took the grass and held it to his nose for a moment, but then frowned slightly. The entire barn was vibrating with the smell of Belinda's blood, and his sense of smell was not functioning properly.

"It seems like a type of herb, but the scent is very weak. At least it doesn't seem to be the type commonly found in Delcross. "For now, let's take it and investigate separately."

Meanwhile, some time passed, and a faint dawn began to break out in the dark sky. It was enough time for the three people to thoroughly inspect the narrow barn.

"As expected, there doesn't seem to be anything special, sir. "How about you return to the imperial palace at this point?"

But Logan's thoughts seemed a little different. He calmly looked around him, pushing his spirits to the limit.

"Not like that. Something related to [monsters] definitely happened here. "That unique feeling, different from Magi, still vaguely lingers in the air."

"okay? "Maybe it's just my mood?"

Seongjin was skeptical about that opinion.

Even I, who prided myself on being more sensitive to the spirit of monsters than anyone else, still couldn't feel anything special.

It was right then. A broken piece of porcelain caught Seongjin's eyes.

Somehow, possessed by a strange premonition, Seongjin picked it up as if possessed.

And the moment-

"... ... !?"

Seongjin could feel it too. In that small piece, the spirit of the monster remains, even if only slightly.

"Ah, there it was! "It was so sparse that it was difficult to determine its location."

Logan approaches with a smile on his face.

"What is this?"

"It looks like a vessel containing something. "I can't tell the exact truth from this piece alone."

When I gently sweep the porcelain surface, a little bit of dust-like powder comes out. According to Seongjin's guess, this would be a monster, or rather the powder of Loferum eggs.

This is probably the item that the prisoner who testified about the workshop said he received from the Milo merchant and brought to the workshop.

"Anyway, there seems to be no doubt that this is Milo Merchant's

'workshop.'"

"Okay, Logan. "When the sun rises, it would be better to conduct an official investigation, even if it is only a procedural matter."

Seongjin responded like that and called out to the devil in his head.

'How do you feel? Demon King. 'Is this powder the egg of Loferum?'

Then the demon lord thought for a moment and answered in a slightly uncertain voice.

[hmm. If you look closely, you can feel a bit of the monster's spirit, right? But I'm not sure if this is really Loperum's egg or the traces of another monster. Because there is so little remaining.]

Why not? It's just dust-like crumbs, so how can you determine the type of monster using this?

If I were to find the presence of a monster here, I would rather... ..

flinch!

Seongjin, who suddenly remembered an unpleasant fact, turned his head towards Logan, overcome by an ominous premonition.

"What's wrong, Seongjin Lee?"

Logan blinks his eyes in confusion.

"uh... Logan. Just in case, you... .."

"huh?"

"You can detect this small amount of powder, right? So, if there were more traces of [monsters] nearby, maybe it would be easier to spot them, right?"

"hmm? iced coffee. "What else can I say?"

Logan smiled brightly at Seongjin, who was very nervous.

"You mean the one you always carry with you? I already know about that medicine cart. "Because I can feel the evil energy of the monster well."

"what... ..!"

Wow, is this real!

Seongjin flinched back without realizing it and fumbled for the item he was carrying in his arms. As Logan said, it was a small bag containing medicinal tea powder.

After a large number of medicinal vehicles were confiscated in the Sigismund Territory, Seongjin stole some of them and always carried them with him.

The reason was simple. This medicine cart was like the last bastion to prepare for emergencies.

Didn't my father say that before too?

-Don't you know, Mores? Now that you have activated the channel, you are no different from a complete oracle. Even if I didn't tell you, you would have gotten all the answers just by asking questions.

okay. The medicine cart is currently the only means of turning Seongjin into a complete oracle.

If something happens that cannot be overcome by ordinary means, and unexpectedly, you cannot rely on your father.

'This medicine cart will definitely be the last means to properly tell me the path I should take.'

Considering its utility, my father never told me not to touch the medicine tea from now on.

I just warned you not to drink it carelessly if possible.

"Uh, Logan. So this is... .."

While Seongjin was flustered, not knowing how to explain, Logan smiled faintly.

"What's new... .."

"huh?"

"You only showed off your 'unique presence' once or twice."

"... ..!"

At that moment, Seongjin was able to immediately realize the reason why Logan had changed his words in such a hurry when he came to the workshop earlier.

-You know, I am a demon, no matter how small... ..

-Logan?

... huh. No matter how small the sign, I never miss a suspicious sign.

Ah, I see. This guy has always sensed a certain amount of demonic energy from Seongjin!

Didn't you warn Seongjin before Sisley before? You can feel the evil energy around you, so be especially careful when meeting high-ranking priests.

At the time, Seongjin thought of himself as an evil spirit, so he didn't think much of it and just moved on. I was just amazed and thought, 'They left the demonic alone. The children of the Seonghwang family are not as devout religious people as I thought.'

'but... ..'

I was in a completely different position now than I was then. Anyway, Seongjin was Mores, and he was the prince of the Holy Empire Delcross.

Therefore, a strong sense of obligation to somehow explain this situation in a way that was understandable dominated Seongjin's mind.

"Uh, Logan. So, that's right. Well, this Magi... .."

... But how? How do you explain it?

This was when Seongjin, whose mind had turned completely white, was stuttering.

"haha. don't mind. "Because you've always been like that in the past."

... Even before?

Seongjin looked at Logan with surprised eyes.

'What does that mean? 'When before?'

While he was taken aback by the unexpected answer, Logan narrowed his eyes and smiled at Seongjin.

"Lee Seong-jin, you have been unique in many ways since you were young."

It was a smile that was so vague that it seemed as if it would disappear into the early morning air at any moment.

The outskirts of the ecliptic. A small cabin on the side of a mountain.

In a dark basement without even a faint torch, three people who rarely get together were groaning with their heads together.

"doesn't exist. "You didn't come to me?"

As the old man in old priest's clothes frowned and spoke, the small blonde girl also slightly shook her head.

"I don't see any new souls in my area either. Romain, did you check properly?"

Their identities are great high-ranking demon kings who are worshiped by all demons. It was [Sowing] and [Greed].

Of course, there was not a single speck of dignity visible in the unsightly form squatting on the dusty ground.

"That can't be possible. "We confirmed that the target's life was definitely ended."

And in front of them, a half-masked Romain was struggling to properly operate a large crystal ball.

"Are you sure it's working properly?"

"Yes, Sowing. "I have used it several times before."

"Maybe it's broken? "Knock once and see what spring is like."

"No, Greed. This is not broken, and knocking on it will not fix it. "It's just something from the normal world, so it's a little difficult to apply it to the real world."

They were now struggling to control the 'temporary portal generator', one of the old Ionian legacies. It was a rare item that Romain stole from a puppeteer a long time ago.

"Is there any reason to test humans within the ecliptic as targets? "It's troublesome to check whether it was successful or not."

"Have a little more patience, Sower. "Isn't the ultimate goal for this machine now in the imperial palace?"

The final target Romain was thinking of was the rose of the imperial palace, Princess Amelia.

I needed a way to get her out somehow. Even if the relationship between the princess and Prince Leonard comes to fruition, I don't think the Emperor will just sit by and watch.

"Isn't the problem of targeting too far away in the first place? "I wish we could just take this to the ecliptic and test it right next to the target."

"Ah, greed. If you did something like that within the imperial capital, wouldn't you be discovered by the guardian of Delcross right away? He will probably be very angry and destroy this precious machine in one fell swoop."

After responding like that, Romain lowered his head and carefully inspected the machine once again.

I looked at the point where the portal first opened and looked at the record of the target's movement. And we confirm that his life ended naturally.

Well, there's nothing wrong. How did this happen?

"Why did you choose a prisoner from the Inquisition?"

When things were not going smoothly, Pajong raised an objection with a dissatisfied face.

"Well, if you suddenly offered to move somewhere, who else would accept it without hesitation?"

It made sense.

The prisoners of the Inquisition, who are currently in a situation worse than death, would be willing to run away even if it were hell.

"And in the real world, even if we know the starting point of the portal, it is not easy to specify the destination point."

So Romain had to use a quite cumbersome method.

First move the target somewhere and then check that the target's condition is stable. And it naturally kills the target by summoning only the soul.

The soul in this dimension becomes the property of a high-ranking demon lord the moment it dies, so the demon lords intercept the soul and check where it died.

Therefore, there was no reason not to select prisoners for whom sudden death would not be a problem as the first test subjects.

"Please take a good look, great demon lords. According to the records, the target died naturally shortly after moving. "The spirit must be wandering around somewhere."

Then Pajong frowned and responded in an annoyed voice.

"Do not be ridiculous. After all, newly dead souls have not come to our realm."

"Is that so? That's really strange..."

Romain looked into the crystal ball in his hand with a serious face.

"I thought this was the only way to steal the princess without her knowledge, but the results are disappointing. "Maybe we should find another way."

325. Days of No. 21 (1)

It was relatively recently that Seongjin learned about the existence of the 'workshop.'

However, going back in time, when he was struggling against the great Lycan Slope army in Sigismund Territory, there was an informant who had already looked around the place and reported to the Holy Emperor.

Enrique, another name is No. 21.

As an informant directly under the Emperor, he had toured empty farmhouses on the outskirts of the imperial capital at the Emperor's order.

-Check for any suspicious signs.

-yes? your majesty. Why are the farmhouses suddenly empty?

-Just take a look and return to the palace immediately. Do you understand? Fighting and pursuit are absolutely prohibited.

-... ... ?

That was all the order was. Since there were no separate instructions, even the purpose is unknown.

Number 21 walked out of the imperial palace with a shocked expression on his face. It had already been several years since he had assisted Seonghwang, but there were many times, like now, that No. 21 had no idea what he was doing.

'What on earth does he want me to do? I mean, say everything properly!'

Although I thought he was quiet in the past, it was not easy to guess the intentions of Seonghwang, who has been extremely reticent recently.

But what can you do? I have no choice but to at least pretend to do what my boss tells me to do.

Number 21 finally sighed as the ground gave up and began wandering around the outskirts to look at the farms.

'hmm?'

But soon after, No. 21 was able to discover a truly suspicious barn.

In the dark of night, a group of men had gathered and were busy packing their belongings without turning on the lights. Also, some of them are collecting items that cannot be moved, burying them deep in the ground, and frantically pouring dirt on top of them.

'What are they doing again?'

Even if you wash your eyes and look, it is a suspicious nighttime escape scene!

Realizing that something unusual was happening, No. 21 tried to make his way towards the barn cautiously, avoiding any traces.

'... ... !'

Unless you suddenly felt an eerie feeling running down your spine.

A sign of extremely skillful auror concealment!

'... assassin?!'

It was like that. Among the men, there was one strong assassin who seemed to be in total command of the nocturnal escape.

At the same time, the other assassin must have sensed No. 21's presence, and quickly turns his head to shoot him.

Whick!

In the pitch-black darkness, the round eyes facing him directly shed a murderous glow. It was a strange woman, with bare eyebrows standing out beneath the black hood that was tied around her head like a scarf.

'He's not an average person!'

Before he could even recognize it, No. 21's body was reacting quickly.

Shoo!

At the same time, the opponent's sharply fired stiletto grazes No. 21's shoulder. Without even having time to feel the stinging pain, No. 21 rolled his body forward and blindly launched the dagger. There was no time to aim properly, it was simply an attack to keep things in check.

Hiss!

Naturally, the blind dagger flew in the wrong direction to avoid the assassin. Instead of piercing the opponent's body, a sharp noise like something like a bowl being broken was heard.

Cheer up!

"omg?"

"Oh no, we've been found out!"

"Hurry and run away!"

The startled men began to run hurriedly carrying their luggage.

Tsk.

Number 21 clicked his tongue and stood up.

If things continued like this, it was clear that I would miss them with my eyes wide open. I want to chase him right away, but there is no way the other assassin will just sit there and watch.

Whirling- Whirling-

As expected, the assassin remained behind alone, standing there, twirling his pointed stilettos. The stilettos she twirls in her hands reflect her moonlight and give off a menacing metallic glow.

'We have to kill that assassin first! But how?'

At that very moment, a memory flashed through No. 21's mind.

-Firefighting and pursuit are absolutely prohibited.

iced coffee. this.

'There was a reason why he gave that order!'

Number 21 bit his lip and faced reality. With his own skills, engagement and pursuit were probably impossible.

If there was a person with skills comparable to that assassin, it would probably be his distant senior, number 13.

'... ..'

Take a peek.

As No. 21 quietly bit the body while being wary of the other person, a strange look appeared in the eyes of the woman with fair eyebrows.

"like? "He's a guy who understands topics quickly."

The woman grinned and raised the corners of her mouth. Of course, her eyes were not smiling at all, so her bizarre impression only became even more dreary.

"Throw that dagger. "Children, are you from the [Oberon's Hand] faction?"

"... .."

"It seems like there are a lot of really cute kids there these days. Ah, you. Do you know a girl named Sabrina? I think he's probably a few levels above you... .."

The viciously spinning stilettos are ready to pierce No. 21's neck whenever an opportunity arises. And yet, that woman was calmly asking about people's well-being.

As No. 21 slowly took a step back, very nervous, the woman narrowed her eyes and examined him closely.

"hmm. I thought he was just a kid, but does this mean he has reached a level of his own? Well, okay. "I don't have time to waste your time here either."

"... .."

"I'll let you go. So, let's go our separate ways. "Go to sleep, relax."

There was no way I could easily believe those words.

No. 21 did not let his guard down in the slightest and slowly retreated to a position where he believed he would not be able to reach her even if she threw the weapon.

Right then.

Flash!

The assassin with a murderous glow in his eyes suddenly threw a stiletto without any warning.

Thanks to its strong aura, a weapon with a significantly increased distance is aimed at his legs!

Tang Gang!

"... ... !"

But No. 21 struck it down with ease, as if expected. This is because the teachings that I have been hearing from others for years have already become deeply embedded in my mind.

-When encountering the same assassin, the time to be most nervous is when you think you are just out of the opponent's range. In particular, assassins from [Kaya's Breath] do not miss that moment of opportunity and specialize in neutralizing the opponent's feet from a long distance.

"Tsk! Not fun... ..!"

Leaving behind the sound of the woman clicking her tongue in annoyance, No. 21 ran away with all his might, without even having a chance to stop the bleeding from his wound.

"You broke it properly. "Good job, Enrique."

When I returned to the palace exhausted, the Emperor, who did not seem surprised at all, greeted No. 21 with a deceptively calm expression.

"... "Did you know everything?"

Of course it is. Because that's what you do.

Then, the Holy Emperor looked at No. 21's face, unable to hide his bitterness, and then placed his hand on his wound and personally poured out divine power.

Just like it always was when I was young, so naturally.

"Why do you make that face after you finish your work well?"

"... .."

"Now, let's listen to the report. "What did you see there, Enrique?"

well. Do you really need to take the time to listen to my report? You probably already know everything.

"... "It's number 21."

Number 21 responded bluntly and tried to contain the inexplicable emotions that were surging in tears.

"Would I really be useful as his informant? With his power, he could have done everything on his own without me... .."

Number 21, who returned to the Monkey Watchtower in a slightly depressed mood, heard a lament that felt somehow familiar. His senior, number 19, was hitting his head on the table and moaning.

This senior is in a state of self-destruction. I wonder if it's only been a day or two.

"What is it? What happened with Prince Logan again?"

No. 19, Prince Logan's informant,

He was a veteran with quite an age gap with No. 21, but he had been living in quite an awkward position recently due to frequent encounters at the Monkey Watchtower.

"It's blasphemous. No. 21. "Can't you use honorifics properly?"

"yes yes. Logan Hwang, here you go. and what happened?"

If it weren't for his excessive loyalty to Prince Logan, he'd be a pretty good senior.

Then No. 19 turned his downcast face and looked at No. 21.

"hmm. Nothing happened. "I was just wondering whether someone of Prince Logan's caliber would be worthy of a poor informant like me."

"... .."

It wasn't a day or two.

Since he was first assigned to Prince Logan, No. 19 had been frustrated that he was serving someone he could not handle.

Why not? He is a prince who is better at killing people than informants, and his military power is incomparably superior.

Thanks to this, every time Prince Logan left somewhere with a punitive force, he was left alone in the imperial capital and wasted time investigating useless groups of traitors.

At that point, you couldn't help but wonder, 'Am I really of any use to

Him?'

"Senior No. 13 proudly followed Prince Mores to Sigismund Territory."

"It's no use complaining."

Number 21 responded sullenly.

"No matter how good my senior is, how can I be the only one? "I am His Majesty Seonghwang's direct informant."

Then No. 19 suddenly showed a pitiful expression.

"Oh, well... . Cheer up."

'shit! 'I feel bad for being pitied by that senior!'

If I didn't do that, I wouldn't have time to fool around with No. 19 anymore. If we don't leave for Asean right away, it will probably be difficult to keep up with the success and schedule.

"... "Are you on a business trip to Asin again?"

Number 19, who was staring at Number 21, who was hastily packing up his women's clothes, asked.

"yes."

"You are also very diligent. Can't we just leave the work to the agents at the Assin branch? "You don't have to go there every time, right?"

But No. 21's attitude was stubborn.

"Don't talk nonsense. When Your Majesty encounters the Homunculus, isn't it when His life is most at risk? But how can he entrust his side to just anyone?"

"... ... ?"

Number 19 made an absurd face.

Why not? I know better than anyone else the antipathy toward the success of No. 21.

Number 19, who was silent for a moment as if at a loss for words, gave this evaluation in a low voice after a while.

"You know what? "You're a really weird guy too."

It's noisy. I will literally return it to my senior.

Even though I was number 21, I was not very happy about the business trip to Asean.

Cayenne Klanos. This is because every time I met Seonghwang's hidden illegitimate child, I had to have an extremely unpleasant experience.

There was no exception to that this time too.

"your majesty!"

Cough!

Seonghwang, who was eating normally, suddenly started pouring out blood from his mouth, and No. 21 got scared and ran away.

"... ..!"

-No, it's okay.

Instead of using his damaged vocal cords, Seonghwang slowly waved his hand at No. 21. In the meantime, Cayenne, the actions of that crazy bastard were unbelievable.

Percussion.

Kaien turned over the hourglass next to him and looked at Seonghwang, who was coughing up blood, without blinking.

"One, two, three... .."

He was leisurely counting the numbers.

'You crazy bastard!'

Number 21 gritted his teeth and glared helplessly at the boy.

If that murderous bastard had not been His Majesty's son, No. 21 would have driven the dagger into that young boy's forehead without any guilt.

'What on earth were the other guild members doing! 'Did you properly monitor that bastard?'

Fortunately, it did not take long for the corroded esophagus and airway to fully recover. Looking at Seonghwang, who quickly returned to normal condition, Kaien clicked his tongue slightly.

"Wow, you recover in just a few breaths? "With this, I was completely unable to escape today."

"... You somehow poisoned the food. "What kind of trick did you do?"

The guild members must have been keeping an eye on him at all times, and he was truly a talented child. As Seonghwang is thinking this, Kaien smiles brightly at him.

"That's a secret. "I just mixed it well."

"How did you get this poison? "It must be something that doesn't come around easily even in Asin's dark poetry."

"That's a secret too, father."

The boy who responded like that got up from the table and stretched leisurely.

"Anyway, what's going on these days? "Why do you come here more often than before?"

After Kayen settled in Asein, Seonghwang visited once a week for at least a month.

Then, around New Year's, the visits became quite rare, and recently, as if to make up for it, I have been maintaining my visits twice a week.

Thanks to this, only No. 21 was dying while traveling to and from the ecliptic.

"You seem to have some free time during the regular audience recently. "Why don't you like seeing me often?"

"It's not like that. "Playing with my dad is quite fun."

Cayenne answered like that and twisted the corner of her mouth as she looked at the blood stains on the tablecloth. It's an eerie smile that makes it easy to guess what the scope of 'play' is.

"Anyway, dad. What are you going to spend time with me today? Are you playing chess or something again?"

The boy's face, asking the question with strong curiosity, seemed unusually innocent.

"Are you not interested in chess?"

"huh. To be honest, it's not very fun."

"For that matter, he seemed quite focused."

"It's a game. "Because I don't like losing anything."

Kaien pouted innocently and slowly walked towards the castle.

"Rather than that, how about we have a more in-depth conversation about something important that will happen in the future?"

And the boy flexed his black three-white eyes and made a rather gentle smile.

"huh? Tell me, father. "When are you going to kill me?"

"... .."

"I plan to kill you eventually. yes? So hurry up and say it. "Then, wouldn't I be able to prepare my mind and make various plans beforehand?"

iced coffee.

Number 21 closed his eyes tightly and thought.

'I feel like I'm going crazy just listening to that rich man's conversation!'

326. Days of No. 21 (2)

Cayenne's attitude wasn't like this from the beginning.

When he found a nice mansion in the Principality of Asein in accordance with his wish to enjoy life in a prosperous big city, the boy seemed to be happy with the help of the prosperous emperor.

He took full advantage of every opportunity given to him. Once decent clothes, good food, and basic education were provided, the transformation from a dirty country boy into a noble nobleman took place in an instant.

There were times when I looked at that pretty face and extraordinary hair and thought, "That person's child must be different."

Of course, when I happened to make eye contact with the boy, there were times when I felt that the endlessly dark three-white eyes were very creepy.

However, No. 21 was considered insignificant. Again, she thought it was just because she grew up rough and without her parents' care.

Rather, what was strange was Seonghwang's attitude at the time. The request was excessive to the extent that it seemed excessive not only to the guild members who took care of the boy, but also to No. 21, who frequently came and went to the mansion.

-Treat your child as businesslike as possible. There is no need to attract unnecessary attention by showing unnecessary emotions. Above all, you must be careful not to hastily make physical contact with that child. Do you understand?

At that time, No. 21 could not understand Seonghwang's impatience.

In his opinion, Cayenne was just an uneducated brat. That's probably why she behaves rudely with people and sometimes shows off her sharp side.

Then one day it happened.

As usual, Seonghwang, who entered the body of a homunculus at the appointed time, suddenly looked serious and called Kaien over and began scolding him harshly.

"Cayenne. How dare you disobey my orders? "Why did you do that?"

Everyone was puzzled. It seemed to them that the boy had been quietly following his routine all day.

But Seonghwang does not stop at this, and takes up a stick himself and harshly punishes the child!

"My sister emphasized this. This means that you should never cause harm to others. Nevertheless, since you violated this, shouldn't you now pay the appropriate price?"

Everyone could not help but be taken aback by the sudden situation.

But what was even more surprising was Cayenne's attitude. As if he knew something, he protested to the Holy Emperor like this.

"I was just a little bored. I needed some new stimulation! And take a look there. I didn't do him any harm. "I didn't disobey my father's words!"

"It didn't cause any harm, didn't the person's hair disappear altogether? "Did you think you could still avoid my eyes?"

"No, it's not the limbs, it's the hair too? What if that goes away? "What does it mean to live?"

At that time, No. 21 had no idea what the rich man was talking about.

It was like that when Seonghwang punished a child several times and hurriedly diverted one guild member to another task.

'... ... ?'

But not long after that, No. 21 realized something was strange.

The guild member who moved from department to department began to lose his hair one by one, despite his young age, and soon his forehead became noticeably refreshed.

If things continued like this, sooner or later, it was clear that he would become completely bald.

-No, it's not the limbs, it's the hair too? What if that goes away?

Number 21 suddenly remembered Cayenne's protest and quietly broke into a cold sweat.

Only then did he understand why the Emperor had cracked down on people so severely.

'... There is something! Cayenne sees something that others don't, and she has the ability to use it!

Anyway, such minor incidents continued after that. Since she was a young boy, no matter how much attention she gave her, she would not have been able to behave well in everything.

Cayenne sometimes got into physical fights with other kids his age, or sometimes ripped off something invisible from guild members based on their perception.

And every time that happened, Seonghwang without fail received a beating. Naturally, Cayenne's antipathy toward him grew stronger.

"How on earth do you know everything that happened during the day? Even the people watching didn't notice! "Aren't you just passing it on?"

"Didn't I tell you? Cayenne, you can't deceive my eyes."

However, what was surprising was that although the Emperor strictly disciplined the child, he did not attempt to lecture or lecture him in any particular way.

He simply strictly considered the harm caused by the child's actions and adhered to the method of punishing the child in the same way as he or she had hurt others.

Of course, Cayenne's temperament couldn't have accepted this gently.

"Mr. Lee. "Why are you hitting me?"

"You've been saying this all this time, haven't you? "Everything you do always comes with a price."

"But what I ate was someone else's finger! But what right does my father have to beat me?"

"I am your father, Cayenne. I have a duty to properly police you. But I can't rip your soul out in the same way. "Did you really want that?"

Then, Kaien would glare at Seonghwang with his fierce three-hundred eyes filled with resentment.

"Woo! It would have been better if I never met a father like him in my life! "You're the worst!"

"Well, guess what? As long as I kept my eyes open, you wouldn't have been able to hide from me your whole life. So just give up and listen obediently."

"shit!"

However, there was a part that No. 21 could not understand. Are the minor mistakes a child makes really so difficult to correct?

Cayenne was smarter than her peers and was able to have everything she wanted without having to conflict with others.

But why do you pick a fight with someone if you can forget it, and cause unnecessary problems so that the king can beat you up?

'... Could it be that you are intentionally inducing His Majesty's corporal punishment...? Surely that's not true?'

It was probably around that time. Seonghwang's corporal punishment policy began to change little by little.

Instead of punishing Kaien directly, he began to lock him in a room according to the amount of time he did wrong, or order him not to go out for a certain period of time.

When No. 21 wondered about this, Seonghwang sighed softly and gave a short answer.

"It's because Cayenne is using herself to get revenge on me."

"... yes?"

"He probably thinks that the damage he inflicts on me is much greater than the corporal punishment he receives. Rather than being punished, I feel like I'm being punished. So this will never stop trouble."

At that time, No. 21 could not understand Seonghwang's words at all.

But surprisingly, as the time he was locked in his room instead of corporal punishment increased, Cayenne's troubles began to subside little by little.

'I really wanted to punish His Majesty... ... ?'

Whatever the truth, it seemed like peace came between them for a while.

However, this did not mean that Cayenne gave up rebelling against the Holy Emperor. Instead of decreasing the amount of trouble directed at others, direct criticism and backlash aimed at Seonghwang has increased.

Then, this smart kid gradually started to get a feel for how to deal with Seonghwang.

"This is not fair! You're being abusing me for not looking for me until now! "But why are you so anxious now that you can't interfere with me?"

"I told you this many times. Your soul has already reached its critical point. "If you commit any more sins or attempt to feast, I can no longer guarantee what will happen to your soul."

"Then it's all your fault!"

"... ..!"

"The reason I see spirits is because I resemble my uncle! The reason my soul is in this state is because of flattery! So why do I have to pay the price for you!? "That's so absurd!"

"... .."

For the first time that day, Seonghwang was unable to give any response to Kaien. And No. 21 could never forget the three white eyes that flashed so brightly at that moment.

From that day on, Cayenne slowly began to express her aggression directly towards Seonghwang.

-Never harm others first.

The only rule that Seonghwang presented to the child.

However, the homunculi that were flourishing were not 'humans'. And among the father and son, it was none other than Seonghwang who committed the mistake first.

The only thing that escapes his rules.

Cruelly enough, the child quickly realized this fact.

* * *

"Phew... .."

"Mr. 21. What's wrong? "Why are you sighing all of a sudden?"

Asean branch of the guild.

Today again, No. 21, who stopped by there briefly before heading to Cayenne's mansion, was delighted when he spotted Aslan approaching from afar.

"It's been a while, Aslan. How do you feel? "Are you doing well with your swordsmanship training these days?"

"haha. well. "I don't know if I'm good at it, but I'm working hard anyway."

Aslan comes to the side with a bright smile.

The more I got to know this boy, who was concentrating on training with the goal of taking the Imperial Knight Exam next year, he was a really kind and friendly guy.

Because their first meeting was very special, even No. 21, who was not very friendly, was gradually becoming attached to the boy.

"You've grown a lot lately? "You will soon be like me."

"It's thanks to the guild being so kind to me. "I eat delicious food every day."

"okay. Branch leader Justin teaches you how to use the sword well?"

"Uh, um..."

Let's talk about the branch manager. Aslan looked embarrassed and looked away.

"He isn't really attached to the branch these days. "He must be very busy."

"okay?"

"But thankfully, they told me I had natural talent. So, he said that training on my own would be more important to me than the teachings of a teacher. "A genius has to figure it out on his own?"

"Well..."

okay. How could that damn branch leader so obediently call himself a swordsman teacher?

It seems like he hasn't been seen in the imperial capital's dressing room lately, so what on earth is that person thinking?

"But, I... .."

Number 21 frowned and was lost in thought, but Aslan, who was watching him, quietly opened his mouth.

"Bart... .."

"huh?"

"No, how is your Majesty doing these days... .."

As No. 21 stares, Aslan suddenly loses his temper and scratches his head as if embarrassed.

"I feel like it's been quite a while since I haven't seen him."

"... okay."

'Is he that good?'

Although they had only seen each other for a few days, it seemed like he had left quite a strong impression on the boy.

but. Didn't No. 21 know better than anyone else what it meant to be the first guardian for a child who had no one else in the world to rely on?

"He asks how you are all the time. "I heard that you are receiving reports from Paula every time about your accomplishments."

"Well, really? "Then I'll have to work harder so I don't disappoint you!"

Perhaps it was the answer he was looking for, but the boy's face beamed with joy, unable to hide it. He is genuinely happy about Seonghwang's trivial attention and wants to repay it.

Number 21 thought bitterly.

'It's completely different from anyone else... ..'

How much better it would have been if this boy, rather than Cayenne, had been His Majesty's child.

I couldn't help but think that way.

327. Days of No. 21 (3)

A long time ago, there was a time when No. 21 deeply followed someone he had only known for a short time as a protector.

At the time, he was not yet called Enrique, but by his nickname, Cike. At the time, with the help of the Astros mercenaries, he was hurriedly fleeing the battlefields of the civil war to the south of the continent.

The journey quickly across the wasteland is not easy, even for the mercenaries accompanying you. Naturally, young Kike had to endure each day with all his might.

But to make matters worse, there was someone who made his life even more difficult: his father, Prince Benicio.

-Now even you, my son, look at me that way! Yes, I was jealous of my brother's throne and split this country in half! So do you think my appearance is funny too?

Pow! Kike was suddenly hit by a flying bottle of liquor, and fell to the floor and was unable to come to his senses for a while.

-You ungrateful bastard! I don't even want to look at it! Can't you just get out of here?

Benicio was drunk every day and tried to slap Kike.

I had to sacrifice the friend I trusted the most, and ended up hearing the news of his death. From then on, Benicio, who had been the spiritual leader of the Republican Party, collapsed horribly, unable to regain his former intelligence.

-Ah, father... ... !

-No, no. Let's just end it here. Please die with me so that I don't have to see this misery any longer! Well, how do you feel?

Although he was drunk, the moment in his father's eyes was that he was living with a clear spirit. Kike, who was very frightened, stumbled and ran outside, trying to control his dizzy head.

-Come here, Enrique.

The only comfort to Kike was Seonghwang, a boy called 'Bart' at the time.

-brother! Bart! listen! My father just tried to kill me!

-He was just very drunk. I absolutely don't mean it. Now, I'll treat your wounds, and from today onwards, sleep next to the mercenary campfire.

Bart was a mercenary I met at the front, and he was an amazing boy who was fluent in the Ortona language and even had healing powers.

Moreover, he was not at all bothered by Kike who followed him around, and in fact, he took good care of him instead of his father.

It was only Bart who always called him 'Enrique' instead of his childhood name.

'It would be better if Bart were my real father or older brother... ..'

Every night, Kike would wrap himself in a blanket next to his trustworthy guardian and fall asleep while imagining such absurd things.

Then one day it happened. One of the Astros mercenaries who was taking a break during the move witnessed something strange.

-Oh, look at that fox! They're all dying, but it looks like they managed to crawl all the way to the cave like that.

-That wound... Did you get hit by a weasel?

Hearing the noise of the mercenaries, Kike also looked at the small crypt with curiosity.

Indeed, there was a fox there, deeply wounded and bleeding, staggering and slowly crawling into the burrow.

'Poorly. You wanted to close your eyes in your own nest... ..!'

It was a time when Kike was immersed in such pitiful sentiments.

Kyung! Keying! king!

Suddenly, a faint scream began to be heard from inside the crypt. It was a death sentence for little fox cubs.

-Uh, wait a minute! That, that... Are they biting all the babies to death?

-Tsk. Are you taking out your anger at the weasel on the cub? That's why they are beasts!

... what?

Kike's eyes widened in shock upon hearing the unbelievable truth.

'You get injured somewhere else and then kill your own babies who have nothing to do with it?'

I'm crying.

Kike felt strong anger welling up in his chest. So he picked up the biggest stone around, gritted his teeth, and threw it with all his might toward the crypt.

Perhaps it was because the fox that had bitten and killed its cub in a dying state reminded him of his father, Benicio, who had hysterically thrown a bottle of alcohol at him not long ago.

-You dirty beast! Just bury yourself in the dirt and die!

Pow! Patter-

The soil at the entrance to the crypt crumbled after the impact.

Nevertheless, Kike, whose anger had not subsided, had just picked up the second stone while grinning.

-Enrique.

Tuk.

Bart's hand lightly touched his shoulder.

-Don't do anything you'll regret later. Even if you don't do that, that mother fox will die soon anyway.

-So what? What about that?

Can something like that be forgiven just because you are about to die or because you feel pity? Does this mean that it is truly acceptable to take out one's anger on innocent children just because one's life is in danger?

-Brother Bart! Such a wicked beast deserves to die! You don't deserve to be a mother! I can never let you die in peace!

Kike shouted indignantly.

But Bart, who was looking down at him, smiled faintly without answering. The polite smile that Kike usually gave whenever he gave a wrong answer, as if he was saddened.

At that moment, Kike instinctively realized something.

Ah, I guess I did something wrong again.

- Think about it. Judging by the timing, those fox cubs may have just opened their eyes. Of course, I wouldn't have been able to wean it off. In this situation, what would happen if they lost their mother?

-... .. !

-okay. Shouldn't they cry next to their mother's corpse until they wither and die? Or, they will be cruelly eaten by predators who come after hearing that sound. Maybe the weasel that attacked its mother will come visit us in person.

A voice that continues quietly.

The strength suddenly left my hand holding the stone.

-So what is the last thing a dying mother can do for her babies?

-uh...

-Isn't the situation of the mother fox who had no choice but to make that choice truly pitiful?

-that...

'I never thought about it like that... ... !'

Patter.

Perhaps because the intensified emotions were accumulating again and again, tears suddenly poured out of Kike's eyes without warning.

Looking back now, No. 21 couldn't remember exactly what he felt at the time.

I just felt sorry for the mother fox in the den, and I also felt sorry for my father Benicio's situation, so I couldn't bear it.

Perhaps it was mixed with sadness for his father, who was so deeply buried in his own pain that he could not understand his son's suffering at all.

Tears were pouring down endlessly.

I still vividly remember the calm hand patting my head as if to comfort me.

-But everything in the world always works that way. So there is no need for you to be so sad.

"female! Kike! "You see me often these days?"

As he left the branch, a familiar person waved his hand warmly in front of him. His behavior did not match his magnificent body, and he was so light that he seemed as if he would fly away.

"... "It's not Kike, it's number 21, Chief Justin."

"Okay, okay, Kike."

Justin Astros.

Former leader of the Astros mercenary group, and currently serving as the head of the Asean branch after the mercenary group was transformed into a guild.

Just like Seonghwang, it could be said that it was a fairly old relationship for No. 21. Of course, despite all those years, he was still a person I didn't have much affection for.

In the past, if the Emperor had stubbornly called him Enrique, that person was also steadfastly sticking to his childhood name for Number 21, who had grown up as he had.

It seemed like he was secretly treating people like children, so No. 21 would feel unpleasant inside every time he encountered him.

"I don't understand why I see you so often. I think it's been a few months since I've seen the branch manager. "I heard that you don't come to the branch often these days."

"what? That's because everyone doesn't know! "I was always attached to the branch!"

"But so did Aslan. "I said it's been quite a while since I've seen you, branch manager, right?"

"Haha, that's because she doesn't know. I come here every day and keep an eye on Aslan, right? "It's just that he either doesn't notice me or doesn't remember meeting me at all."

"... ... ?"

Don't you remember meeting? What on earth is this person talking about?

Number 21 furrowed his brows.

If you think he's serious, he suddenly says something nonsense, and if you think he's joking, he immediately looks straight. Although he had thought about it since he was young, Justin Astros was a person who could not easily understand his true feelings.

"Anyway, how are you? I heard everyone is busy these days with Bart's troublesome son? how is it? Do you two seem to be getting along well?"

"If that were the case, why would I go through this trouble?"

Number 21 sighed softly.

"There is so much trouble every day that the mansion is never quiet. Several guild members in charge have already changed."

"If you are having a hard time, leave it to the Asean branch. Is there a need for such tight security from the side? "It's not like Bart's personality told you to do that, so why do you voluntarily go through the trouble of going back and forth between the imperial capitals every time?"

"But can you leave it to just anyone? "If I don't see it in person, I become more anxious and can't rest comfortably."

"hmm..."

Then Justin narrowed his eyes and looked at number 21.

"But I've been thinking about it for a while, but it seems like you really like him being 'Bart'."

"yes?"

"Every time you use this guy's homunculus, your face gets especially bright. "Don't you know that yourself?"

"... "Not at all!"

Number 21 responded firmly.

There are so many things to worry about every time you move a homunculus, so how can you say that you enjoy the hardships?

'Of course, the burden on my mind to assassinate that person as soon as possible is somewhat reduced.'

In any case, the Homunculus is not the true body of the Holy Emperor, so there is no use in trying to take his life.

So, all you have to do is perform your duties as an exclusive informant by your side. That's all.

"Branch leader, don't you know how weak a homunculus' body is? However, it's not like His Majesty really cares about that. Thanks to that, there are more than a few times when I feel nervous just watching him do what he does next to me."

"What?"

"I don't know how many times I've warned you not to use dolls because it's dangerous. But every time, you don't even pretend to hear."

Then Justin Astros' smile disappeared and he asked in a very serious tone.

"Hey, Kike."

"This is number 21. "Branch manager."

"Yes, Kike. "Aren't you making a big mistake?"

"... yes?"

"Do you, Bart, look like he's really weakened? "Just because I'm in the body of a homunculus that breaks easily and I can't use my aurors properly?"

"... .."

"There is no one else in the world to worry about. Hey, since he seems to be being incompetent on the outside, do you think you should do the opposite and help him this time? "Are you thinking that you are Bart's protector?"

Number 21 was unable to answer that question readily.

'Guardian... . Yes, it would have been better if that had really been possible.'

No. 21 filed a complaint.

This was because I had never felt so helpless since I started walking the path of an assassin.

328. Days of No. 21 (4)

Branch Manager Justin held on to No. 21 tenaciously until the very end.

-A hundred guys like you should attack him all at once. Bart doesn't even blink! So, just relax and leave this guy to the Asean branch!

Of course, No. 21 snorted inwardly.

Could it possibly be so? He is quite excellent in [Oberon's Hand] and is the only one among the same trained riders to have received a 'number'.

Of course, this is not to look down on Seonghwang, but the limitations of the homunculus' body were very clear.

The load is too small and the durability is so poor that it is almost pitiful. Thanks to this, if you want to hit someone properly, you have to spin it around and around several times to get a usable hit.

Even so, if the other person gets bruised, the person who hit him or her will end up with cracked bones. At this point, there is a limit to how much divine power can be used to block it.

'More than anything, my senses have become seriously dulled. If I decide to hide, there are many times when I can't detect it properly even when I get close.'

So No. 21 was confident. For the Holy Emperor who is a homunculus, his presence is absolutely necessary. He said there was no doubt about it.

Nevertheless, there was another reason why No. 21 felt helpless recently.

The biggest threat to Seonghwang, who had now become a homunculus, was his own son, whom Number 21 could never touch.

At first, Kaien charged directly at Seonghwang, brandishing his weapon. As for attacking Seonghwang himself, it was the result of confirming several times that he could not hold any books.

"After defeating my father, I can control the other guys' souls and get out of here!"

The weapons Cayenne wielded were diverse.

Sometimes it was a sword stolen from someone, sometimes it was a large rock picked up in the yard, and sometimes it was a small dish knife.

In this way, he hides the weapon without the guild members knowing, and attacks Seonghwang while he is at his most unguarded. The timing was so exquisite that even No. 21 sometimes clicked his tongue in admiration.

Quadang! Cheonggang!

Fortunately, before No. 21 or the guild members could step in, Seonghwang successfully subdued the boy every time.

"Tch, it's a waste! "It's almost done!"

"That's your mistake, Cayenne. "You will never succeed in the future, so why not give up now?"

Seonghwang used to gently scold him each time, but at the point where he was competing with the young boy on equal terms, he was already very unreliable.

'If more time passes...'

Number 21 naturally couldn't help but think of that assumption.

What if Cayenne grows up and one day surpasses the homunculus's physical capabilities? And even then, if the relationship between father and son does not improve at all. Will the attempt to assassinate Seonghwang, like now, end up as a simple incident?

If Seonghwang gets to the point where he can no longer control the child, how will the others, who have difficulty even contacting Kaien, stop him?

In this way, the days of successful practice continued, day after day, amid complex thoughts.

Around that time, some changes occurred in the relationship between Seonghwang, Kaien, and No. 21.

At some point, No. 21 began to feel that he and Cayenne were making frequent eye contact.

'... what?'

At first, No. 21 was a long time ago.

Before and after attacking Seonghwang, the boy seemed to be watching him, but he thought it was just his mood.

I guess the Cayenne doesn't have any reason to do that. She has never even spoken directly to me.

But it didn't take long to realize that it wasn't an illusion.

So, it must have been some time after Prince Logan led the Lilium Detachment to rescue Lord Sigismund, who was in danger.

For some reason, Seonghwang missed the morning political meeting and suddenly ended up going to the prayer room.

-If you see a guild informant who always comes here, tell him. I don't think I'll be able to go see 'that kid' for a while.

Number 21, who heard such a message from Chamberlain Lewis, wondered to himself.

Due to Seonghwang's nature, there was no way he could put off matters related to children unless it was quite urgent. Isn't it a promise to Cayenne, whom he has been especially concerned about lately?

'What on earth is it? 'What is going on around that person?'

Even after a full day, the Holy Emperor could not come out of the prayer room.

Number 21, who was looking around the palace with a nervous feeling, suddenly remembered the words that guild leader Greta had said with a serious face.

-Kike. There are some big conspiracies happening on the underside of the continent right now.

-Big conspiracy?

-okay. Without maintaining at least the form of this unreasonable empire, huge tasks that may be impossible to handle... ..

Were her concerns truly credible? If so, what is this conspiracy, and what is the Holy Emperor doing against it?

Going to the prayer room unexpectedly is becoming more and more frequent, but is it really something that he can handle on his own?

and-

'In this situation, trying to assassinate Seonghwang might be... ..'

Feeling a sense of intangible anxiety creeping in, No. 21 spent the entire week circling around Seonghwang.

Naturally, during that period, No. 21 also had no time to look at Cayenne. Just like that, several days passed by, leaving the boy's care solely to the Asin branch guild members.

If it's short, it's a short gap.

However, it was probably enough time for the brilliant Cayenne to come up with a small plan.

"It's been a while, dad. "I was pretty bored during that time."

Kaien was especially happy to welcome the arrival of a homunculus in his body after a few days.

"I'm sorry I couldn't keep my promise. "Whatever I say will be an excuse, but I've been very busy with important work."

"no. It's okay, don't worry. Your uncle is the majesty of the Holy Empire, right? There must be a mountain of things more important than me, right? "I understand everything."

Kaien responded with a natural smile and invited Seonghwang to sit at the table with him.

"Anyway, dad. Would you like to have a meal with me after a long time? "If I think about it, I don't think I've ever eaten anything with you, except for the first day I came here."

"... .."

"You're family, right? However, don't just pretend to eat in front of people like you did before. "I didn't say much, but I was quite disappointed with my father that day."

Seonghwang stared at Kaien for a moment, then slowly sat down with a slightly stiff expression. That attitude was somehow unusual, so No. 21 quickly glanced at the guild members.

'Did anything happen while preparing the meal?'

'Yes, nothing happened. We were keeping a close watch without any leaks.'

'okay.'

Number 21 nodded, but still had a very ominous feeling.

Was it because Seonghwang's face looked unusually bloodless than usual? Or maybe it was because of Cayenne's pitch-black three-white eyes, which showed no sign of laughter even as the corners of her mouth were raised.

"... Cayenne."

Seonghwang, who was holding his breath for a moment while looking at the food in front of him, eventually opened his mouth in a slightly cracked voice.

But before he could say anything more, Cayenne quickly cut him off.

"Wait a minute. Before that, do you want to hear what I have to say first, father?"

"... .."

"While my father wasn't coming, I was thinking about a lot of things on my own. About the situation I am currently in. And about how to solve this. "I worked hard to figure it out with the limited knowledge I had."

Kaien paused for a moment and looked quite innocent, resting his chin on one hand.

"Your father said that before, right? Because I am deeply hurt somewhere in my head, I am completely unaware of the natural emotions that other people feel. So, I have no choice but to carefully observe how ordinary people live and learn their reactions over and over again."

No. 21 also remembered hearing something similar. This was when he was asked why he punishes children but does not preach to them.

At that time, Seonghwang said it was not much different from Cayenne being born blind. So, he said that no matter how much he taught people about human emotions and good and evil, it was the same as asking a blind person to explain and distinguish colors.

"Honestly, I didn't feel good when I heard that. In my view, 'ordinary' people living in the city are also not that different from bandits in fundamental ways, except that their behavior is a bit calm. "They were all just thoughtless idiots."

"... .."

"But I have to observe and follow those guys? Does that make sense? If that's 'normal' and 'normal', then I don't need any of that! There's no way you'll be motivated at all, right? So I thought."

And Kaien pulled his body closer towards Seonghwang and raised the corners of his mouth with a grin.

"Who do I resemble to be like this? Isn't that flattering? So who is best to follow? Of course it would be flattering!"

"... .."

"To me, Abuji seemed quite different from other idiots. So I thought it would be quite fun to imitate you. Anyway, out of all the people I've met so far, I thought my father was the best!"

At first glance, it seemed like he was friendly. However, No. 21 could not take Kaien's words literally.

When a boy who doesn't know much about emotions says 'I like it', does it really mean the same thing as 'liking' or 'affection' that ordinary people use?

"But you know what? I definitely thought so at first. "If I decided to observe you for a long time, wouldn't I be able to see some pretty interesting facts?"

In the cold silence, only Cayenne's bright voice spreads with a strange resonance.

"Why on earth is my father so anxious that he always comes to see me? Why am I so anxious to control my actions? Why do you insist on punishing me even though it's so hard for you? why? "What does that mean?"

"Because you are my father? Because you have a responsibility to me? Do you cherish me as your son? There's no need to say things like that. "I don't understand it anyway, and I don't really believe it."

"Instead, I thought I should make a judgment that only I can make, based on what I can see."

Kaien, who had said that, slowly raised one hand and spread it wide before the Emperor's eyes.

It's hard to believe that he's had a rough life, and his hands look clean and without a scratch.

"Now, look. There is gold in this hand, father. "It is a large crack that was created after swallowing Jerome completely, and will no longer heal."

... gold?

Number 21 couldn't understand anything Cayenne was saying.

But it occurred to me that perhaps there was something unseen there. This was because Seonghwang's complexion worsened as he stared at Kaien's hand.

"As I continued to observe you, I found out automatically. "What are you so worried about and why do you look anxiously all the time?"

Seonghwang looked away from the hand and looked at Kaien's face with sunken eyes.

"Cayenne."

"Yes, that's right! I finally realized why these cracks appear! It's not just about devouring souls! If I do something you tell me not to do, that is, if I commit that 'sin'. "Even then, the crack was still small, but wouldn't it be getting bigger little by little?"

"... ..!"

"And I often get the feeling that something is stirring a little inside! So I thought. If the cracks are left to open like this, won't something incredible come out of it someday?"

Wow.

Kaien clenched his fist as if he was clutching invisible gold, and bared his teeth as he put his face close to Seonghwang's nose.

"how is it? Father. Am I right? "A person's soul isn't just a layer that appears on the outside, right?"

"that... .."

"If one day my soul is completely broken and torn apart, that won't be the complete end, right? "Is there something else hiding inside, just waiting for it to reveal itself to the world?"

I thought No. 21 had to be stopped now.

I couldn't completely understand their conversation, but I could tell just from the atmosphere that things were going in a not very good direction.

"Now, tell me honestly! That's what you're really scared of, right? I'm anxious because I don't know when it will pop up, and that's why they keep trying to control me! how is it? "Am I wrong?"

Above all, the face of Seonghwang.

Even though his expression is still sparse, his face strangely carries an uneasy atmosphere, as if he could disappear somewhere at any moment.

"your majesty... ..!"

That was when No. 21 took a step forward and tried to call him.

Rattling.

Slowly, Seonghwang, holding the silverware in both hands, opened his mouth in a calm voice.

"Don't spin the story around and say what you want to say, Cayenne. "Seeing as you're asking for a meal, you probably have something to offer me."

"... ..!"

Kaien opened his eyes wide for a moment and looked at Seonghwang.

And then soon after-

"Puhahahaha!"

I laughed out loud and went back. She laughed so excitedly that in the end, tears appeared in the corners of her eyes.

"Ahaha! The more you watch, the more fun it is! Actually, I don't really care what happens to my soul, but are you really willing to do anything for my soul?"

Kaien, who had said that, calmly closed his eyes and placed a hand on his chest.

"okay. I thought my father would have noticed a long time ago.

"Sometimes this gold grows, and sometimes it shrinks a little."

"... .."

"As you said before, I don't know what my soul really wants. So until now, I have been feasting on anything and everything and allowing my soul to be ruined. But looking at this gold, I knew at least one thing for sure."

Between the slowly lifting eyelids, pitch-black eyes that did not look human flashed eerily.

"My soul probably wants to repay my father for all these things, right? So, if I think that I have vented my anger on you even a little, this gap narrows noticeably."

Rattling.

A plate containing a strangely blue dessert was slowly pushed in front of Seonghwang with a gesture from Cayenne.

"And you know it too. So even though you know I'm going to attack you, you always pretend not to notice, right? "I know that just by making up my mind to harm my father, my soul is moving forward little by little."

Kaien, who had said that much, spread his arms wide and smiled brightly at the crowd.

If it weren't for the dark eyes that couldn't tell what was inside, it was a smile so pure that it could have looked like an angel in a sacred painting.

"So, I've prepared something for both of us! Come on, father! "Would you like to eat with me?"

That day, Kaien succeeded in poisoning the Holy Emperor for the first time.

At the same time, No. 21 became acutely aware that Cayenne's gaze, which he sometimes felt, was not just unfounded.

"your majesty!"

Number 21, who ran towards the crowd in panic, was met directly with the gaze of Kaien, who was openly laughing at him.

329. Days of No. 21 (5)

Even though they are guilty of neglecting their young son, how can a child do this to his parents?

Why does Seonghwang go to such lengths to keep Kaien by his side?

And every time Seonghwang gets poisoned and vomits blood, why does Cayenne's ridicule towards No. 21 become more intense?

"... shit!"

As time passed, No. 21 became so anxious that he almost died. No matter how much I monitored Kaien's every move and harshly criticized the guild members, it was of no use.

The time the father and son ate together increased, and each time, Cayenne would inevitably mix poison into Seonghwang's food. I had no idea when or how he was doing such a thing.

"It probably won't be prevented by ordinary means. Binding the soul and controlling it is something that is far beyond the scope of human knowledge. "If you know, stop harassing the poor guild members from now on."

When Seonghwang, who had just come back from death, reached the point where he was gently giving advice, No. 21 finally exploded.

"You are the problem, you! Even if your guild members don't know, don't you know it clearly? So, every time you choose poisonous food, you eat it and finish your meal quickly. "Where am I wrong?"

"no... .."

"First of all, forgive me for my disrespect, Your Majesty! "But are you crazy now?"

Are you crazy?

Seonghwang looked at No. 21 with slightly surprised eyes. Although he sometimes shows that he lives cautiously, he has never once openly crossed the line.

But that was just the beginning.

"If scolding and cracking down harshly isn't enough, what on earth are you going to do if you're being treated with poison? Are you kidding me? "Why don't you know that Your Majesty's attitude is further encouraging Cayenne's recklessness?"

"Enri... .."

"And you're telling me not to even try to stop it because it's useless? This is absolutely ridiculous! What on earth does your Majesty think of those who follow you? Do you really want to see those below you explode and die? yes?!"

Grinning. Grinning.

Number 21, who poured out as many harsh words as he could think of to the most noble person on the continent, continued to wheeze for a while as his anger did not subside.

"... .."

Seonghwang was deeply embarrassed.

However, when his eyes landed on No. 21's face, which had been strained after being on high alert for several days, he quickly came to a conclusion.

'okay. I've been a bit rough on people lately.'

Tuk.

As if to appease, white light poured down on No. 21's head.

Now I was wondering what this was all about, but funny enough, his fraudulent divine power was quite effective. As the fatigue from his body slowly melted away, No. 21's anger began to subside, as if it were a lie.

"... "What should we do with all these blasphemous sins?"

Upon hearing Seonghwang's soft voice, No. 21's mind became clear as if he had been doused with cold water. The next thing that swirled through my mind was an indescribable feeling of self-destruction.

"..."

Fortunately, Seonghwang didn't seem to care much about his rudeness and asked again in a calm voice.

"Yes, Enrique. I admit that I did not understand the position of you and your guild members. "Then what on earth should I do with that child?"

-Just cut it down with one sword right now. Don't let that crazy guy commit any more crimes. Wouldn't that be best for both of us?

No. 21 truly wanted to say that to Seonghwang.

However, no matter how angry I was, I couldn't bear to say those words to the person who devoted so much devotion to his children.

"I just..."

"Having experienced it so far, you are well aware that Cayenne's abilities are extraordinary. So, I think you will understand that I cannot leave that child alone like this."

These guild members literally boast some of the best skills on the continent. Avoiding the eyes of those people, he proudly serves poison to His Majesty's table.

If Cayenne puts her mind to it, she will bring strong winds and waves wherever she goes in this world.

"Isn't it really fortunate that he just sits here quietly and focuses on personal revenge?"

No, say that now!

Number 21 was about to get angry again, but Seonghwang continued speaking bitterly.

"And at first I had some expectations, too. "I wonder if this method will completely restore the child's spirit."

Number 21 refers to the 'gold of the soul' that can never be seen, but that rich people always talk about.

"your majesty."

"I won't ask you to understand Cayenne. But the punishment that the child's soul is receiving now is so painful and heavy that an ordinary person cannot dare to imagine."

And it must all be my fault. So it is only natural for that child to want revenge.

Seonghwang added that.

"But I don't think it's as fundamental a solution as I thought. We confirmed that the collapse was delayed, but that was all. So, I thought it was time to stop playing this game."

"... "Then how long do you plan on playing with that rhythm?"

When the true 21st asked with a cracked voice, Seonghwang slightly looked away and said something unintelligible.

"Well, how long will it last? "Perhaps you would be less impatient, or less angry with that child."

"... yes?"

Seonghwang once said this to No. 21:

-Because Cayenne is using herself to get revenge on me.

At the time, I thought it was something completely unknown.

However, recently, as he continued to come face to face with Kaien against his will, No. 21 slowly began to understand the crazy guy's unique ways.

As Kaien was busy preparing the poison and did not cause any trouble, Seonghwang naturally reduced the corporal punishment and seemed more at ease than before. If it was simply antipathy towards Seonghwang, Cayenne could have found other efficient methods instead of taking poison.

'Then who on earth is that crazy guy taking revenge on now using Seonghwang?'

Where is that?

As I thought about the blatant ridicule that was being directed at me with increasing intensity each time, a not-so-pleasant realization dawned on me.

... Surely, me?

"No, anyway, that's too much of a leap, right? Why did that guy... Yeah, no way. Even when I think about it, it doesn't make any sense... .."

"What nonsense are you talking to yourself? Are you out of your mind, number 21? "I thought you were on business trips a lot, but you seem very tired these days."

As No. 21 was shaking his head, No. 19, who came in carrying an armful of documents, scolded him.

"It's noisy. What is it all about anyway? "It seemed like you were a little free these days."

"iced coffee. This is a request from senior No. 13. Don't you think Prince Logan and Prince Mores will return to the imperial capital soon? "When you come, I'll tell you that you're starting a restaurant business, so I'll ask you to look for a good place in the downtown area."

"Restaurant business?"

Number 21 blinked.

What kind of nonsense is that all of a sudden?

"okay. "I hear His Majesty Mores is opening a salmon specialty restaurant soon."

"... A salmon specialty restaurant? "What is that?"

"I don't know either. "It's a business that imports expensive salmon from the North and sells it at a low price in the Imperial Capital."

"Is that business? Not charity? It would be much more practical to just scatter money on the street. "Why do you do such crazy things?"

"Well, do you understand? "That's what Prince Mores does."

Ah, yes. That Prince Mores.

Number 21 furrowed his brows slightly.

Although it has only now been overshadowed by the enormous nuisance that is Cayenne, if one were to point out the biggest problem of Seonghwang before then, Prince Mores would naturally be at the top.

I was able to painfully remind myself of the truth that, no matter how great a person's status, his or her life is ruined the moment his or her child's farm fails.

'If you think about it, that person is also quite unlucky in having children.'

This could be seen as he was always by Seonghwang's side. Compared to how much he cares, his relationship with his children is deteriorating.

Prince Owen ran away from home and did not return for several years, and although Princess Amelia and Prince Logan also showed a respectful attitude, they did not treat him very warmly.

The twins clamored every week to play chess, which he did not like, and the youngest princess also seemed to be secretly having a hard time with her father.

'I feel like I've become a little closer with Prince Mores recently... ..'

Then what should I do? Isn't Prince Mores a troublemaker like no other in history who causes trouble for the Emperor?

'Cayenne, not to mention that crazy guy.'

On the other hand, what about people who had nothing to do with him?

The image of Aslan, with a flushed face and joy at the slightest attention from Seonghwang, comes to mind.

-Yeah, really? Then I'll have to work harder so I don't disappoint you!

okay. I couldn't help but feel that way.

What would it have been like if there had been others like Aslan by that person's side, rather than his current children?

'Even though he is an enemy of my country and a great betrayer of Ortona's compatriots.'

If that weren't the case, I... ..

Number 21, who had thought that way without thinking, quickly shook his head vigorously.

Reality never changes. And he was no longer the Kike he had been as a child, comforting himself with wild imaginations.

No. 21 did his best to maintain his composure.

However, on the day I visited Cayenne's mansion again, this time I finally reached my limit when I found a black bottle lying openly in the middle of the table.

Now you're telling me to drink that out loud, without any intention of hiding it?

"Get that thing away now!"

Number 21, who ordered the guild members, glared at Kaien with burning eyes.

"Kayenne, what are we going to do now?"

"what? haha."

Then, Kaien shrugged his shoulders with a puzzled expression.

"Why are you arguing for no reason? Anyway, you know it, I know it, we all know it. "Do you have to work hard to hide that in your food?"

"... I beg your pardon?"

"No, my father says it's okay, but why are you, a subordinate, so loud? "You dared to covet what was mine and climbed on it without even knowing how to use it. Have you finally lost your mind?"

"... ... !"

There was no communication at all.

'It just can't go on like this!'

I can't keep watching this madness! If you don't make a deal with His Majesty right now!

After making that decision, No. 21 hurriedly ran towards the inner room where the homunculus was placed. At that moment, Seonghwang, who had just become a homunculus, was rustling in discomfort.

"your majesty! Finally, a situation has arisen where poison is openly served on the table! Are you satisfied now? "How long are you going to let this happen?"

Quang!

When I opened the door and shouted loudly, Seonghwang looked up at No. 21 in a bit of confusion.

"... "What else happened?"

"yes! There was! What could happen? "Your son didn't even hide it this time, and put his entire vial of poison on the table!"

"Oh, I see. "What else can I say?"

... what?

At that moment, No. 21 felt like something was snapping in his head.

"Do something! I'm telling you to stop now! "Does this ease your guilt at all?"

"Okay. Now that you understand, calm down."

Seonghwang waved his hand and casually walked towards the door. I am planning on sitting at the table where the poison is placed.

This guy is real!

"Didn't I tell you to please do something about it?"

Wow.

In his haste, No. 21 grabbed Seonghwang's arm as he was about to turn the doorknob.

"... .. ?"

And before he could even turn around, he wrapped his other arm around his shoulder, crossed his arms and walked with his wrist bent behind him. As I was trying to quickly stop the movement, the joint suddenly popped out.

Seonghwang, who was suddenly stopped from doing so, looked very puzzled.

"Something? "This clumsy technique."

As he said, the technique was a little awkward because he was in a hurry. However, No. 21 had a corner of belief.

The opponent was a homunculus. You absolutely cannot twist away from this technique with force.

"Do you remember? This is a skill you yourself taught me as a child. Once you get caught here, there is no way to escape... .."

But at that moment, something surprising happened.

Tdu-duk-duk.

An eerie bursting sound is heard, and before I can even recognize it, my arm loses its support and falls down.

The force that had been pressing down on the other person's shoulder came back, and before he knew it, No. 21 was flying in the air. The floor and ceiling change in an instant.

Quadang!

"... "Wow!"

Before I even realized what had happened, I felt a sharp pain in my back.

When I finally opened my eyes, enduring the pain, I saw Seonghwang with a calm expression, patting one of my shoulders.

"You only remember what you like, Enrique. "Didn't I tell you time and time again that you can't escape only if the other person's joints are normal?"

"... ..!"

Number 21 looked in disbelief at Seonghwang's tattered elbow, which was bent in the opposite direction.

'This is crazy! 'A whole joint?'

There is no way that an average person's joints would bend that easily when force is applied. This feat is literally possible because the durability of a homunculus is weak!

'It's a way to use even a body that breaks down easily... ..'

Suddenly, he remembered Branch Manager Justin, who had been whining at him.

-A hundred guys like you should attack him all at once. Bart doesn't even blink!

At the time, I thought it was just nonsense from a no-nonsense branch manager, but maybe it was true. That sudden sense of self-destruction swallowed No. 21's head mercilessly.

Did he end up like this? Despite everyone's opposition, he became an assassin and worked so hard to become stronger?

And yet, is that person not even able to reach his toes when he is at his weakest?

"You're still clumsy, Enrique."

Slurp.

As Seonghwang spoke, slowly turning the joint that had quickly returned to its original position, No. 21 glared at him while rubbing his numb back.

"But, Your Majesty. "If it had been you, it wouldn't have been so easy to get out."

Then, a faint, pitiful look appeared on Seonghwang's face.

"If you were my true self, would you have even had a chance to use a technique? "That sounds absurd."

"... .."

"Anyway, it's getting worse. "What on earth should I do about these many blasphemous sins?"

Damn, do you guys understand?

While he was stubbornly keeping his mouth shut, Seonghwang quietly looked down at No. 21 and opened his mouth.

"Enrique."

"This is number 21, Your Majesty."

Even though he knew that he would never call himself that, that stubbornness had already become something like inertia. Then Seonghwang smiled faintly.

"okay. This is what happens in the end. So, didn't you warn him from the beginning to treat him in a business-like manner? "I can sense your hostility so clearly. How could Cayenne not be interested in it and be satisfied with it?"

... interest?

While he was taken aback by the unexpected words, Seonghwang let out a small sigh and patted No. 21 on the shoulder. A strong divine power flows in, and the pain in my back disappears in an instant.

"Do you understand? "That child is now trying to give back to you what he received."

"... ..!"

No. 21's face turned pale.

Could it be that all of Cayenne's actions were aimed at herself? It was the moment when the ominous premonition that I had been thinking about for so long was finally confirmed to be true.

330. Days of No. 21 (6)

"This is not your fault. It's the child's problem who arbitrarily concluded that the fact that he was only watching out for and cracking down on Cayenne's trouble was an act of hostility towards him."

Seonghwang added as if comforting him, but No. 21 could not raise his head.

He had no doubt that his presence would be needed, but instead, it became an excuse to turn Cayenne's blade towards the Holy Emperor.

"I am... So how do I... .."

"Leave the matter here to the Asean branch, and you return to the imperial capital right now."

"... ..!"

Absolutely not!

Leaving Seonghwang alone with that crazy bastard?!

Number 21 stubbornly kept his mouth shut. But he also knew deep down that there was no other way.

In the end, since we can't do anything about Cayenne, it would be right to eliminate the cause of his trouble.

Just as corporal punishment decreased and the number of troubles decreased, he hoped that the number of times he would poison his father would naturally decrease.

"Your Majesty, I... .."

Nevertheless, No. 21 hesitated. Seonghwang looked down at him for a moment, then changed his tone and gave a soft command.

"Enrique. Once again, this is not your fault and it is nothing for you to worry about. So, just go back to the imperial capital."

The success was like this every time. After No. 21 officially started working as an assassin, at first it seemed like they treated him like other guild members.

However, sometimes, when I let my guard down or something urgent happened, the same tone of voice I used when I used to scold Kike as a child suddenly popped out.

At first, I thought it was because we had been together for such a long time. But when I came to this situation, I had no choice but to realize it painfully.

To Seonghwang, No. 21 is not a proper source of information, but is still just a baby that needs to be taken care of.

Number 21 was completely resigned.

"I follow orders. I will return to the imperial capital and wait. But, Your Majesty, if things continue like this, you... .."

To No. 21, who was unable to take his feet even after getting up, Seonghwang spoke calmly, as if reassuring him.

"Don't worry too much about Cayenne. Don't you guess it too? "In the end, this end is decided."

"... ..!"

"If I end up not being able to handle Cayenne, I will at least make the best choice I can as a father for that child. "I am prepared to do so."

No. 21's eyes trembled slightly.

In fact, every time he came to this mansion, he would think about this.

-I wish you could cut down that crazy guy who is harassing you right now.

Maybe that was the true nature of the hostility that Cayenne felt.

However, when the words he had been waiting for came out of Seonghwang's mouth, he felt as if he would suffocate at any moment under the weight of the tragedy.

"your majesty. that... .."

Seonghwang slightly raised the corners of his mouth towards No. 21, who was stuttering with a distorted face.

It was an expression similar to the dangerous smile he always showed when young Kike gave the wrong answer.

"It's already something that can't be undone. Cause and effect in the world always works that way. So there is no need for you to be so sad about that child's future."

After No. 21 left like that.

Surrounded by guild members with blank stares, the father and son quietly ate their meal.

Seonghwang just stayed where he was without even touching the dishes, but Kaizen no longer urged him to eat because of the wind.

"In the end, he left like that? You didn't last as long as you thought, right? Not fun... .."

When the boy opens his mouth with a somewhat relieved expression, Seonghwang gives him a stern warning.

"Cayenne. "It is very disrespectful to speak with food in your mouth."

"Uh, um. okay."

Kaizen nodded obediently, chewed his food diligently and swallowed

it.

Mutter, gulp.

"... "Was it necessary to push him that far?"

Eventually, Seonghwang waited until the boy's mouth was completely empty before asking a question.

Then, Kaien furrowed his eyebrows and glared at Seonghwang as if he were displeased.

"of course! That kid is so cocky. "Why is it that he always looks at me and grumbles, saying he doesn't know why someone like me is his father's son!"

"... .."

There was no way Enrique would swear like that out loud. It's just that Cayenne can easily pick up the voices of other people's souls, so she may have been exposed to her true intentions that she didn't even know about.

"Where is that? Since I started torturing my father, from then on he was so anxious that he couldn't eat me! Are you crazy? "Daddy's mine, not his?!"

"That's because it's his job to protect my safety."

"What? Do not be ridiculous! "Do you really know how that child's soul views his father?"

Kaien, who shouted like that, openly pouted, as if he felt bad even thinking about it again.

"Besides, that bastard somehow resembles Aslan! "That annoying guy who always bothered me in the slash-and-burn village back in the day."

"... .."

"He's going in and out and causing a stir all over the mansion! Plus, his skills are so useless that it's not easy to touch his soul. Of course, it's also because my father steps in and stops me every time I do that... .."

Kaien, who had been talking up to that point, narrowed his eyes as if he had realized something again.

"Oh yeah! Now that I think about it, the way my father walks around next to me seems somehow similar to Aslan... .."

"... .."

"I don't like that bastard either! "I didn't just send it back gracefully!"

Seonghwang looked at the table without much response. To be exact, the black poison bottle placed proudly in front of him.

Enrique ordered it to be cleaned up immediately, but as soon as he disappeared, it came back on the table intact. This is evidence that most of the guild members in the mansion have already followed Kaien's orders.

"That's enough. "It probably hurt a lot, so why don't you just forget about him now?"

Then, blood-

Cayenne, who was taking a sip of her drink, spilled arsenic.

"wait for a sec? What a wound. Dad shouldn't say things like that.

"Isn't it flattering that you obediently took the poison I gave you in front of him?"

"... .."

"No, no. Did you need an excuse to completely get that bastard out of here?"

Kaien muttered like that, furrowing his brows and becoming lost in thought.

"difficult. It seems like my father really knows, but it's difficult.

"Every time I do something, there is not just one purpose, so I often get confused."

"My father's soul clearly wants to atone for me. And tell me I can do anything to heal my soul. I thought it was just that, because the soul never tells lies... .."

"At the same time, you're trying to protect that arrogant bastard? He willingly participated in harassing me on purpose so that I would quickly lose interest. And as soon as I decided the time was right, I smuggled him away. how is it? "Am I wrong?"

Seonghwang did not make any effort to deny it. Because it was the same for everyone.

Cayenne also had a tendency to achieve multiple goals at once whenever she did something.

The boy wanted to torment Seongwang very much, and he quickly realized that he hated food and, above all, poison. At the same time, I wanted to treat Enrique badly and send him out far away.

There may have been things Enrique didn't like, but more than anything, it was probably because he got in the way of his guild members being able to follow his own tastes.

Although only the outward expressions were different, the ways of thinking of these rich people ultimately had some similarities.

Rattling.

Seonghwang picked up the black bottle with one hand and opened his mouth softly.

"It doesn't seem to matter much whether he's here or not. "The 'problem' that remains with us is still the same, and the 'treatment' is a temporary measure, but it is effective."

"That's right."

"Then what? "Is this all you have to eat today?"

Then, Kaien paused a little and then shook his head.

"Well, that's enough for today. Why don't you feel like it now that that bastard is gone? "It's not fun anymore because my dad doesn't seem to be as sad as before."

"... .."

"Anyway, if I ask you to eat it, you will always do it. yes?"

Cayenne, who asked that question, raised the corners of her mouth confidently without even listening to the answer. It was truly strange to see the smile of a child who did not know the affection between people seem so gentle.

"okay. Dad should do that to me. "You took my only mother, Martha, from me, right?"

"The woman's soul has rested safely. I didn't steal it. Now no one can have her soul or disturb her rest."

"... What is that?"

Kaien tilted his head.

"Rest? "What does that mean?"

"At least it means a lot to her soul."

"Nonsense! Martha is my mother, not your father's mother. She should have died and become completely mine! But why are you arbitrarily disposing of her soul? "Father, you have no right to do that!"

No one has the right to own someone's soul.

But instead of preaching like that, Seonghwang opened his mouth as if soothing a wheezing child.

"okay. That means there is no need for poison today. So now what do you want me to do for you?"

Then, Kaien quietly glared at Seonghwang with his pitch-black eyes and spat out an answer as if he could not resist.

"Let's just play chess today and then go."

"Chess. "Didn't you say it wasn't that fun the other day?"

"hmm. But... .."

Kaien trailed off, then shrugged his shoulders and smiled spitefully.

"It's quite fun to see your father's soul being disgusted. Regardless of whether you win or lose the game, isn't the fact that you're playing the game the same as if you've already won?"

"... .."

The imperial palace's office.

At noon, the chief chamberlain, who was preparing refreshments as usual, was stopped by a sudden crowd.

"Wait, Louis."

"Yes, Your Majesty."

"... .."

The Emperor was silent for a moment, looking at the old man who was bowing his head respectfully.

This is someone who does his best to serve the best Melbourne food every day for someone who doesn't even eat food. I was so impressed by his sincerity that I almost didn't want to turn him away.

'As expected, I'm reluctant.'

To be honest, lately I don't even want to worry about anything that goes into my mouth, whether it's drinks or food. Just by looking at it, I could feel the bloody smell coming from my nose.

So I was going to say that.

"Lewis, for the time being, the car... .."

If only I hadn't felt a familiar figure rushing towards me from afar.

Ah, now that I think about it, that kid really liked Melbourne.

"No, forget it. "Would you please prepare another cup of tea today?"

"yes. I will do so, Your Majesty."

Not long after Lewis left the office-

Da da da da da!

Sure enough, someone approaches the office at a fast pace, almost like running. He was his immature son who was always causing incidents and accidents.

"father!"

Jump up!

The child confidently opened the door and walked towards him, holding a small box in one hand.

"Look at this! "Do you know what this is?"

When I glance down, a small, luxuriously packaged tableware catches my eye.

"It looks just like a lunch box."

"Yes, that's right. Today, a salmon specialty store finally opened in Hwangdo! "This is Bertran & Lee's historic first business!"

okay. Come to think of it, there was such a plan.

I expected that it would be difficult to proceed due to the lack of profitability. It seemed that this child, who excelled at only doing what he wanted to do, had really opened up the salmon distribution channel with his gear.

"Yes, you are great. Good job."

"Haha, nothing to say. But do you know what? Our restaurant has already become a hot topic in the capital. Customers with reservations are waiting in line! Of course, this is thanks to the large-scale advertising banners that were put up a few days ago!"

The son's subsequent explanation was roughly as follows.

-Enjoy the freshness of the state-of-the-art low-temperature carriage. Fresh salmon recognized by Ortona locals! The very taste that even His Majesty the King praised! The food is friendly and the staff is delicious!

It was absurd to listen to the advertising slogans that the child muttered. Above all, the 'His Majesty' who praised the taste hasn't even tasted it yet.

When I pointed that out, my son smiled calmly and began unwrapping the lunch box by hand.

"So, as soon as we opened, the first thing I did was pack my father's. "You haven't eaten yet, right?"

"... .."

"Now, come on and try it."

Soon, a salmon steak neatly placed in a small box appears.

But Seonghwang could not look at it in peace. He eats something. Just thinking about that made me feel nauseous, as if I was going to suffocate at any moment.

'but... ..'

His son is looking at him with a very flushed face. Isn't it possible to crush those innocent expectations so cruelly due to one's own insignificant circumstances?

Hoping that the child would not notice the slightest sense of nausea, Seonghwang slowly put a piece of salmon into his mouth.

"... ... !"

At the same time, all kinds of residual thoughts about cooking flooded into my head.

-The Empire is buying salmon for you? Without even going after the price like the Cypriots do?

-okay. What if you are an enemy of your country? After all, if you can feed your family with this, there's no reason not to sell salmon or anything else.

-Meeeee! Stop coming back! If you don't undo the combination quickly, the contents will be all messed up!

But nowhere in those frantic thoughts did he feel the intense murderous intent he had received through food.

-Give me the freshest and best parts! I'm going to take it to the imperial palace right now!

-How should I cook this, my dear?

-What menu are you most confident in? First, let's start with the basic yet delicious menu!

Surprisingly, even among the various thoughts that came to mind during the cooking process, there was nothing that reminded me of the terrible smell of blood.

-This day has finally come! There was a time when I thought about giving up.

And the only emotions my son felt as he brought it to the office were great joy and a sense of accomplishment.

When I finally get out of my thoughts, all I can feel in my mouth is the crispy grilled exterior and the soft, savory interior.

There was no feeling of nausea.

"... "It's delicious."

At his words that came out naturally, my son smiled brightly.

"Haha, I thought so too! "I thought this would suit your taste just right!"

"okay."

It fit surprisingly well in my mouth. Just like the foods he tasted while freely wandering around the continent a long time ago.

As I was savoring another dish with such strange emotion, my son personally poured some sauce and continued talking.

"You can look forward to the future. Tomorrow we will bring something even greater! "We invited an expert in cooking salmon, which is said to be the most famous in Cyprus."

Soon, all kinds of grilled, stewed, and smoked fillet dishes flowed out of my son's mouth. Even Seonghwang, who boasts that he once tried some salmon, would become dizzy from the variety of menu items.

But isn't the son who has been bragging for such a long time now pretending to be proud and making a big noise!

"Haha, anyway, now that your father has had a taste, Lord Valerie won't be able to nag you anymore, right?"

"... Sir Valerie."

"yes. That Nallari Inquisitor from the Monster Task Force. Well, they were so offended that it was 'apostasy' and 'blasphemy' to make advertisements that were not true with His Majesty the Holy Emperor, who is God's representative. "He was so loud all day long that I thought he was going to die."

"... ... !"

"I tried to stuff the guy's mouth with a piece of salmon, but it was a waste of ingredients. "I need to get paid for each serving properly."

Seonghwang was momentarily speechless. As for Sir Valery, it was almost acceptable that he was not immediately taken to the Inquisition.

It is an arbitrary fabrication of the words of the 'representative of God.' You did such a good thing in front of the hidden powers of the Heresy Tribunal, son!

It was late at night.

I couldn't sleep for some reason, so I was leafing through a book while a guild member cautiously knocked on my door.

smart-

"Cayenne, I brought you the late-night snack you mentioned."

"huh."

The guild member quietly opened the door and entered, quietly placing a tray filled with snacks next to him and looking at the boy.

"... "Then I'll leave it here, Cayenne."

"okay. "Go ahead."

Kaien nodded roughly without even looking at him.

As soon as permission was given, the guild member quickly ran away from the room. He seemed to feel an instinctive discomfort from Cayenne after some interference with his soul.

Sweet.

As the door was quickly closed, Kaien raised his head and looked in the direction where the guild member had disappeared.

'It has become so awkward. It would have been better if I could completely control the soul like Rodrigo.'

Kaien took quite a long time to take control of the entire mansion, but even so, it was impossible to completely control the souls of the guild members. This is because the Holy Emperor has placed a kind of protective veil over the souls of everyone who enters and exits the mansion.

Even if they managed to rip out the soul by avoiding the obstruction of the veil, the moment the deficit grew noticeably, the personnel were immediately replaced and a ban on going out was issued.

Because of this, Kaien had to exhaust himself by eating small amounts of the invisible parts of his soul.

'Well, my father already knows everything, but... ... '

Still, judging from the fact that this level of interference was left alone, it seems that they judged that it would not cause much harm to the guild members.

Even if new personnel are brought in anyway, it is common for both of them to have their souls eaten by Cayenne.

So, rather than trying to control the soul in earnest, the boy who felt frustrated probably thought it would be better to maintain balance by giving him some breathing room, even if only in a clumsy way.

'Or did your father deliberately induce you to do so? Interfering with souls without harming them is much trickier than controlling them completely... ... '

In any case, the current Cayenne's limitations were clear. All it did was temporarily impede the awareness of guild members or make them forget simple commands after executing them.

It may be possible to secretly poison the Emperor's meal, but it is impossible to run far away to avoid them.

'He's pretending to free me and shackles me like this. He's such a man that he can't let down his guard.'

Currently, there is only one soul that Cayenne is completely controlling. It was Rodrigo who was controlling it from the slash-and-burn village.

He was a person with a quite complicated background. To summarize, he was a refugee from Ortona, and after the fall of his country, he committed himself to the Principality of Carthage, received special training for several years, and then secretly hid again in a slash-and-burn village, and became a sergeant for the Kingdom of Flanders. Could it be something like a 'double spy in secret'?

Of course, because he caught Cayenne's attention early on, he ended up being his limb.

Anyway, the servant from Sejak was useful in many ways. It was he who infiltrated Asin's dark city and rescued rare poisons.

So, I was planning to use it as a last resort card when I had to escape from Seonghwang, but...

'If you look at the fact that your father directly mentioned dark poetry the other day, you already know about Rodrigo.'

If so, why do you just leave him alone?

Kaien could not fully understand Seonghwang's thoughts. It's just that lately I've been getting the feeling that Cayenne wants to be thought of as 'free'.

'Are you saying that if we adhere to the minimum social norms, our behavior will not be greatly restricted?'

In Cayenne's opinion, these were truly cumbersome and useless things.

'The more I look at my father, the more complex he is. He said it was difficult to understand the principles of conduction.

In any case, since there were no particular complaints about the current situation, Cayenne was thinking that it would be okay to maintain this precarious balance for a while.

'Anyway, tomorrow is the day my father comes. So shall we call it a night? 'I also have to play with my dad and do various things.'

Percussion-

As I closed the book and lay down on the bed, a pendant around my neck rolled out.

A gem that reflects clear light even under dark lighting. It was an item that Seonghwang personally gave to Kaien not long ago.

-Please keep it safe. This is the last milestone I will ever make, and it will be the only opportunity I will ever give you.

It didn't seem like an ordinary item. If you look at the spirit of Seonghwang who made that request, he had a very serious expression on his face.

Anyway, I really liked the bright, shiny thing, so I was always wearing Cayenne around my neck, even though I usually don't have much interest in accessories.

Yum Yum.

Before closing his eyes, Kaien put the jewel in his mouth as was his habit.

As soon as I first saw it, I immediately wanted to eat it. So, as soon as I received it, I chewed the jewel in front of the Holy Emperor, and he looked very shocked.

-Why are you trying to eat that? Was it because I failed to take care of him that he spent his childhood starving like that?

My dad's reaction at that time was really funny.

'Anyway, what on earth is this gem? I don't think it's just a stone. When you bite into it, you feel something fragrant, and it is quite chewy... ..'

After mumbling like that, I was about to fall into a light sleep.

[...] You bastard, behave yourself properly from now on. I'll wait and see... ..]

Suddenly, I heard a faint voice in my ear.

'... ... !?'

Creepy.

Cayenne, startled, jumped up from her seat. I definitely thought that someone's spirit had approached me and talked to me.

But when I looked around the room, there was nothing around. Just the bright moonlight shining from the open window, breaking white onto the bed.

'... what? It was definitely the voice of a soul?'

There was absolutely no way it was a mistake. Although it was only a fleeting moment, the intimidation implied by that warning was enough to make all the hair on her body stand on end.

gulp.

Kaien, who was very nervous, put the bedding over his head and quietly swallowed dry saliva.

Fear stemming from the unknown. It was a somewhat unfamiliar feeling for a boy who could easily control a person's soul.

'what? 'Who are you?'

Thanks to this, Cayenne was unable to sleep properly that day as she was alert to her surroundings all night.

tweet. tweet.

Seongjin could barely lift his heavy eyelids while listening to the birds singing at the same time.

Since he didn't wake up right away, he lay in bed for a while and rubbed his eyes. It was something out of the ordinary for Sungjin.

'what? I feel strangely tired...'

These days, I don't play games and am sleeping soundly, but why do I feel so tired?

[Did you have a bad dream? Yesterday, my sleep was particularly rough.]

At that time, the demon king's spirit stretched and asked.

'okay?'

[huh. Recently, I haven't slept at all for a while, perhaps because I've been visiting a different world. But you were really cruel yesterday.]

Oh, I see. Maybe you had a nightmare. Anyway, I don't remember it at all, so it doesn't really matter, right?

Seongjin, who barely managed to get up, yawned and thought.

'Anyway, will Logan come to the training ground today? When that guy comes, I'll have to tell him to use his divine power or something cool.'

[What is it? Now people are treated like automatic massagers?]

If you think about utility, there isn't much difference. But how does this damn devil use an automatic massager?

As I stood up and slowly warmed up, I could feel the demon lord moving around in my head.

'what? 'I'm crazy.'

[Hold on a moment. I'm currently going around the corners of the 24-hedron.]

'... 'Do you still play that game?'

[This is not just a game! After doing it a few times, I felt like my soul was lighter and I was getting healthier.]

'Oh, really?'

While I was preparing for morning training with a cursory reply, the Demon King added in a proud voice.

[You also practice every morning, right? So, from now on, I will also regularly exercise in the morning like you.]

'What does that mean to you?'

[The idea is to make it a lifestyle habit. They say that maintaining exercise is harder than starting it, right? So, I will make this a complete habit and continue to maintain the health of my soul in the future!]

Seongjin clicked his tongue.

The soul is not a muscle, what kind of bullshit is this?

At the end of the morning training, Logan actually came to the training center.

As if it was natural, Seongjin headed to the monster task force with him. Of course, I didn't forget to receive a share of her divine power before that.

"Oh, it's cool."

He turned his heaving shoulder and made a small groaning sound, and Logan asked with a puzzled look on his face.

"What kind of old man are you talking about, Seongjin Lee?"

"I'm telling you, I'm an old man."

There are many hardships that a lively kid like you doesn't know about.

When they arrived at the task force, Sir Sharon was waiting for them with an armful of reports.

As a result of investigating the workshop that Seongjin and Logan found the other day, they found traces of something buried in the ground. So they dug deeper into the place and found a corpse along with various work tools.

"It seemed like a long time had passed since death."

The body had already begun to decompose, but that did not mean that the scars covering the body disappeared.

Wounds that were inflicted at different times gradually accumulated over a long period of time.

"... "Are you a remnant of the Penitent Church?"

"Yes, sir. It was clearly a trace of their penance. I also confirmed that he was wearing a medal from the Penitent Church. "Based on the belongings found together, I am guessing that he is a fairly high-ranking official."

"hmm."

Seongjin looked over the report carefully.

'In that case, rather than saying that it was a Milo workshop from the beginning, would it be better to say that the manufacturing of medicinal tea was carried out at a place that was already used as a meeting place by the Penitent Church?'

So Belinda must have visited there too.

Of course, there is no way this corpse would have opened the portal directly to save Belinda. It seems she died long before she escaped her Inquisition.

'In fact, Belinda didn't seem to know that she had used the 'portal'.'

So who is it? Who is the person who boldly stole prisoners from the Heresy Tribunal using objects from the normal world?

While Seongjin was deep in thought, an unfamiliar grumble was heard from next to him.

"Will there be any significant progress now that the body has been examined? "The people who can tell us the answer are already dead."

"..."

Sir Valerie has been looking particularly sulky since Belinda died like

that.

Moreover, a few days ago, there was another conflict with Seongjin under the pretext of advertising a salmon specialty store.

"what? Sir Valery. Are you still angry?"

In response to Seongjin's question, the red-haired inquisitor firmly shook his head.

"no. "How could a lowly paladin like me dare to commit such disrespect towards you?"

"Then what is it?"

"I'm just sad! I gave you advice out of concern that you might be caught by other priests. "It was all done for my sake!"

"Oh, I see."

Seongjin gave a cursory answer and flipped through the report.

"But what did you do to me? "You stuffed salmon into a loyalist's mouth without saying a word!"

What, you're angry, right?

"So the salmon wasn't tasty?"

"... Of course it was delicious, but he said he would get money from me later! "It wasn't even a proper dish for one person!"

"Materials are expensive. "Originally, its value is equivalent to the same weight of silver."

When I responded sullenly, Sir Valerie looked blankly into space and grumbled.

"Tsk! You truly know nothing. "What a great help I am on a daily basis!"

""

"You wouldn't guess! If it weren't for me, I don't know how much you would have suffered from the Heresy Inquisition's backlash by now...
... ."

Uh, okay, okay.

I'm not getting any money, so please just shut up!

Seongjin, who finished his work on the monster task force early that day, stopped by a salmon specialty restaurant at early lunch time. He wanted to personally pack the food to take to the main palace.

-Bertrand & Lee Cham Salmon Restaurant

This restaurant, which opened in the busiest part of Rue d'Este, was already gaining popularity despite its small size.

The second floor, where high-quality dishes are served to guests with reservations, is already full for lunch.

"oh my god! The Scarzzapino family is here! "Hurry up and tell the manager so he can say hello!"

"You're so busy right now! "There are two cardinals sitting at the table over there!"

Although it was a high-end section created with the intention of making a profit, it is still true that it is much cheaper than the previous price. Imperial officials had no choice but to flock in large numbers.

The condition on the first floor was even more serious.

"How long do we have to wait in line?"

Because they sell good-cost-effective dishes by collecting lower-quality cuts, the line of customers was pushed out of the restaurant, filling up one side of the street.

Where is that?

-The very taste that even His Majesty the King approved!

Despite Sir Valery's opposition, many citizens of the Imperial Capital gathered and chattered under the proudly displayed banner.

-Cham salmon? It sounds like just a fish, but is it really that expensive for one person?

-This person doesn't know anything! If it weren't for that restaurant, where do you think people like us would have been able to see salmon for a lifetime? Originally, it was a rare dish that only nobles could eat once on a good day!

-aha! That's why people are lining up like that.

-That's right! Our Prince Mores sells salmon, which is more expensive than silver, at a low price for the subjects of the imperial capital!

I thought we brought in quite a lot, but at this rate, we have to worry that we will soon run out of salmon.

'I thought I'd just make a profit, but maybe this could be a profitable business?'

Seongjin thought happily.

'I guess I'll have to give it to Branch Manager Schmidt. I'm telling you to fill the cold wagon with only salmon for a while.'

I don't know how long this heat will continue, but now that the water is coming in, it's time to paddle properly.

I need to quickly recover my investment and invest in other businesses soon.

"Do you really need to come get it yourself? If you wish, I will have a waiter deliver the food to the imperial palace every day."

The chef said as he prepared the lunch box by hand. This time it was a moist steamed salmon dish with various vegetables and spices.

"Or, I'll give you the recipe, so it would be better for the palace people to cook it themselves. "If it cools down while it's in transit, it's bound to taste worse than when it was first served."

It made sense.

Seongjin also thought that way at first. As for the good salmon we brought in this time, we made it a priority to stock the palace refrigerator.

However, when I actually ordered them to be put on the table, I was surprised to hear that my father barely touched the dishes.

'But if I take it out and bring it to you, you eat the same dish, right?'

The salmon gravlax salad I brought for lunch yesterday was completely cleaned out again.

Maybe this wasn't a problem of picky eating. Could it be that my father doesn't like the food prepared in the main palace?

'Next time, instead of just salmon, should we try taking out other dishes as well?'

I think it's a pretty good idea. How can someone live by eating only fish all the time?

Seongjin made up his mind and spoke to the chef.

"For now, just leave it packaged like this for a while. "I think my father will like it if I carry it myself."

Then the chef from Cyprus looked very touched.

"How can we not admire the beautiful heart of the Prince who cares for His Majesty the Emperor! "Your Majesty must be well aware of this, which is why he is so happy to have your lunch box, right?"

Even though my skills are limited, I will continue to cook with passion and sincerity!

The chef shouted that and started packing lunch boxes.

'Now that I think about it, when will your mother return to the imperial capital?'

While waiting for the package to be packed, Seongjin suddenly thought of Empress Elizabeth, who had left for the Principality of Assin and had no intention of returning.

If you think about it, the day Seongjin ate salmon for the first time was at a dinner at the imperial palace, which she also attended.

'I thought you'd be back at least by the time the restaurant opens... ...

As the Principality of Assin is located completely inland, it was clear that salmon would be more valuable than imperial salmon. However, I can't have the lunch box delivered from here to the Principality of Assin.

'Of course, I doubt that my mother will be happy if I bring it to her.'

For some reason that Seongjin couldn't guess, his relationship with her seemed to have completely broken down.

However, even though he wants to try to improve the relationship, he has no memory of the past and is at a loss as to where to start and how to start.

-Mores! baby! Do you recognize her mom?

Nevertheless, Seongjin couldn't help but think of the tearful face the moment he first opened his eyes here.

-Your mother is so happy that you woke up so healthy.

The warmth of the Empress's hand as she held it was still vivid in my memory.

And like this, when I have something to share with the royal family, I sometimes feel regretful and think, 'It would have been nice if Empress Elizabeth had also been there.'

Da da da da da!

When I ran to the office a month later with a packed lunch, Director Katrina and Francis were there together.

"I meet Prince Mores."

Katrina showed courtesy with her extremely restrained movements.

As the leader of the Knights of Saint Aurelion, she was busy with construction work every day as she was responsible for various tasks as the right hand of the Holy Emperor.

Thanks to this, despite his nickname 'Shield of Success', it is surprisingly difficult to see him staying by his side.

"I see you."

Francis, who was standing behind him, also lowered his head awkwardly. That slightly profane appearance was truly an arrogant lieutenant.

"Ah, that is the famous salmon dish."

When Seongjin put the lunch box on Seonghwang's desk, Katrina smiled happily and asked.

"That's right, leader. "Did you hear the rumor too?"

"Yes, sir. "It's truly a shame, but most of the paladins under my command have forgotten about training and are so obsessed with talking about that new restaurant."

That's right.

Since they are priests who are tightly bound to the unity of the government, I thought they would be somewhat resistant to the unfamiliar culture of low-temperature carriages. This doesn't seem to be the case when it comes to delicious food.

"It's a shame. "If I had known you guys would be there, I would have brought a little more packed lunch."

Then Katrina hurriedly waved her hand.

"Such absurd words! How dare you put me through such trouble?"

"What trouble? Oh yeah. While we're at it, stop by the restaurant with Sir Francis. I'll tell the manager to treat you well."

"Hehe. no. "Just saying these words makes me feel very happy."

After answering that, Katrina gathered the documents on her desk, handed them over to her adjutant, and bowed her head to Seonghwang.

"If you do, I will proceed with the savings related matter as you instructed."

"Of course. "Good job, Katrina."

"yes. your majesty."

However, Katrina, who had expected him to leave, stood next to Seonghwang and looked at him with very expectant eyes.

"... .. ?"

Francis also pushed up his glasses and glanced at the crowd with sharp eyes.

Where is that? Louis, the chamberlain, brought in refreshments for Seong-jin, and as expected, he quietly took a seat behind Seonghwang!

'what? These people are somehow... .. '

Somehow I felt like I knew what they wanted.

Seongjin, who had been observing the success for a moment, quietly unwrapped the salmon lunch box and spread it out on the desk in a silence that felt strangely heated.

"... .. "

It was a very burdensome atmosphere with four people, including

Seongjin, watching.

Seonghwang paused for a moment, but fortunately, he just sighed softly and didn't seem to care much. He carefully moved the dishes alone and soon emptied the slightly cooled steamed dish cleanly.

"The chef seems to have good skills."

When the evaluation of the taste finally came out of his mouth, the people surrounding Seonghwang let out the breath they had been holding.

"Ah, Lord... .."

Director Katrina placed her hand on her chest as if she was very moved.

"As we live, days like this sometimes come. "This is by far the first time I have seen His Majesty eat something properly in the imperial palace since I secretly brought him walnuts from the warehouse when he was younger than Prince Mores."

Seongjin blinked.

"... walnut?"

"yes. At that time, His Majesty was wary of all food. "So you don't know how hard I worked to get you to eat anything."

As if recalling a long memory, there was a warm warmth in Katrina's eyes.

Now that I think about it, she said she had been by my father's side and assisted him since he was young.

"I searched for all the food available in the imperial capital. In the end, I even brought him some walnuts and told him that it would be safe if he cracked them himself and ate them, but he barely held out his hand. From that day on, it became a small pleasure of mine to occasionally bring walnuts to the imperial palace."

"uh... .."

wait for a sec. I heard that my father had a strange habit of cracking walnuts with his beloved sword when he was young, and now I see that it was a habit that this person created!

"... Katrina."

When Seonghwang shakily stopped him, the leader finally came to his senses and straightened his posture.

"this! You were so happy that you were talking nonsense. Then I'll just leave. your majesty. Prince Mores."

Quickly.

Director Katrina retreated with a very restrained step. However, from the back, Seongjin couldn't help but laugh because he seemed strangely excited, unlike usual.

"Then you two, please talk."

When Louis, who lowered his head and tried to hide the tearing corners of his mouth, retreated, Seongjin looked at Seonghwang with meaningful eyes.

No, father. I wonder why everyone reacts this way because I have had great eating habits since I was a child. yes?

"... "It's all a misunderstanding, Mores."

"yes? "I didn't say anything?"

"... .."

The abundance brought by true salmon continued at the lunch at Jinju Palace. This is thanks to the chef's skill with rare ingredients for the first time in a long time.

"I can't believe that a salmon dish can be this bland...""

"It's because there is no need for strong salting, Sisley. "This is all thanks to the low-temperature carriage introduced by Mores."

"okay? "Cryogenic carriages are truly amazing!"

Thanks to this, the lunch meeting, which had recently shown signs of slowing down, was actively resumed.

Sister Amelia and Sisley were there, as well as Logan, who had been busy with various tasks recently. Even the twins Herna and Kadesh, who don't come to the imperial palace often!

"What about you guys? "Do you think salmon would suit your taste?"

When I asked with a proud heart, the twins looked at Seongjin with a somewhat puzzled face. He had a very dissatisfied expression.

"why? "Is the cooking bad?"

Aren't these guys who are usually so excited that it seems excessive? But today he spoke little and seemed particularly lethargic.

While Seongjin was wondering, the twins stared at him with strange eyes and then sighed deeply.

"Do you think cooking is the problem now?"

"okay. "That kind of thing is probably fine."

So what's the problem?

"I already knew that Mores had a bad temper, but... .."

"I knew well that when I got angry, I would run wild without seeing anything, but... .."

... huh?

"Please change your tendency to rush at anything without hesitation."

"Do you know how hard it is for people around you to stop you?"

"You usually consider cause and effect so thoroughly."

"When you're really angry, you're saying it's cause and effect and it's useless?"

Seongjin was very embarrassed.

"what? You rush at me without hesitation, when did I do that?"

But the twins didn't even pretend to hear the protest, just shaking their heads and mumbling amongst themselves.

"You almost ruined everything because of Mores, right?"

"When I think about all the hard work I had to do to dry it, my back still hurts."

"I will never go to that kid again. never!"

"that's right. "What if something like that happens again?"

"..."

Seongjin was speechless.

I don't understand the meaning, so it feels very unfair, but it doesn't seem like the twins are making a completely groundless complaint.

'What on earth?'

Is it because of my mood?

Somehow, the day after I drank too much, I felt like a drunkard who had forgotten everything.

Fortunately, Masain quickly relieved the upset twins.

After the meal, when he returned from the handicraft class after a long time, he secretly handed two pouches with pretty patterns embroidered on them to Herna and Gades.

Did you make it whenever you had time?

"Are you really giving this to us?"

"Didn't you make this for your brother's use?"

"I have mine. "So far, there are only two people who have not had a 'pocket pocket'."

... Old man's pocket is becoming a proper noun.

Anyway, the twins seemed to really like the gift. The two swept the embroidery on their pockets with the same motion, as if they had stamped it.

"The petals are so pretty! "Did your brother Masain engrave all of this?"

"Isn't the embroidery delicate? "Brother Masain, you're good at these things, aren't you?"

It was like that. Surprisingly, Sir Martha was very dexterous.

He learned so quickly that Mirabelle, who taught him embroidery, was surprised.

What's even more surprising is that he seems to have become more at ease since he started embroidery as a hobby.

"If you concentrate on each stitch, it seems like you will somehow gain mental discipline. "My mind naturally calmed down and I began to contemplate myself calmly."

Seongjin unconsciously nodded, looking at Masain's calm face. I knew very well how impatient he was and how hard he accelerated his training right after returning from Sigismund.

However, it is truly fortunate that I found peace of mind through embroidery.

[Have you ever thought about why that guy was so impatient? It's all because you made a big deal out of it.]

Uh huh! Don't frame me, you devil!

"These days, Lord Martha gets less angry than before when we have an accident. 'No way!'

[That's because I just gave up on you.]

'... shut up!'

Logan, the unofficial sword master who was busy embroidering leaves, also agreed with Masain's opinion.

"As I become absorbed in the elaborate movements of my hands, I gradually forget about Pia. "It doesn't seem to be much different from the training that prosecutors do to overcome walls."

"Is that also true?"

"Yes, embroidery is a good practice that requires a high degree of concentration. I'm embroidering two small leaves, and it feels like I've already finished conquering the sea. "I'm sure it will be of great help to your Auror training."

'Isn't that because, Logan, you are struggling to make up for your poor skills by maximizing your sword master's five senses?'

Logan usually had a lot of work to do, so he didn't have time to embroider, but he always attended the irregular embroidery sessions. Thanks to this, crooked leaves are already growing in his old man's pocket one by one.

Logan smiled proudly as he touched the blue tree branches that were blooming.

"Not only is it a process of mental training, but it is also very rewarding to see great results. "At this time, we should actively encourage embroidery to Lilium knights as well."

... These people are serious about their embroidery.

If things continue like this, Sir Masain may become the first high-ranking knight to overcome the Dekaron Knight wall through embroidery.

On the other hand, there were people whose skills did not improve at all compared to the effort they put in.

"oh!"

As Amelia screamed softly, Sisley, who was waiting next to her, poured divine power into her fingers as if waiting for her.

"What number is this? If this continues, your fingers will become needle holders. Sister Amelia. "Why don't we just leave it to Mirabelle?"

"No, Sisley. "I do it because it's fun."

Amelia is unable to practice her favorite swordsmanship to the fullest because she devotes time to various classes and work. Seeing how she devoted herself to embroidery, which she had no interest in doing, it seemed like she was sincere when she said that she was having fun.

The problem is that it is not very effective.

"Everyone's skills are improving day by day, so why is it always like this for me?"

Seongjin thought inadvertently, looking at Amelia who looked a little sullen.

'well. 'Isn't it a bit absurd to say that my skills are improving?'

Among the members of this handicraft class, only Lord Masain showed superior talent. Even though Logan focuses his superhuman senses, the results are not very impressive.

Seongjin is not interested at all so he just watches from the side, and the twins are making a lot of mess in the water room and doing origami with pieces of cloth.

'Among my brothers and sisters, Sisley is the only one with even average dexterity.'

So what is the difference between Lord Masain and others?

The conclusion was quick.

"I guess everyone takes after their father."

I can't even imagine a father who sews meticulously.

But Amelia tilted her head at Seongjin's answer.

"huh? That's not true, Mores. When I was young, my father, His Majesty, would often make Belle new clothes... .."

Then, Amelia, who is startled, stops talking and glances at Seongjin.

Seongjin could roughly guess her situation.

A dream that Amelia often saw through signposts during her childhood. Maybe she got confused between that dream and her real past for a moment.

"milestone... "No, have you talked to your father about that 'dream necklace'?"

Then Amelia blinked for a moment, then smiled softly as if relieved.

"Hehe, it seems like you know everything without saying anything,

Mores."

"... .."

"okay. After hearing your recommendation at that time, I immediately tried to find my father, His Majesty. But when I almost arrived in front of the office, something really strange happened to me."

"Is this something strange?"

"okay."

Amelia's gray eyes sank deeply, as if she was deep in thought.

"Mores. "You said earlier that this 'dream necklace' was definitely something your grandmother left behind, right?"

"Yes, it is."

"Then for what purpose do you think Grandmother gave me this?"

well.

Seongjin also had doubts about that. Even his father said he wasn't sure what the previous oracles were thinking.

At first glance, it seemed as if he had saved my sister's unhappy childhood by showing her a beautiful dream.

'That can't be it.'

The milestones that a single oracle can create are limited. My grandmother alone left only three things in her life.

A milestone is a kind of opportunity created to change the future. It has the potential to almost reach the power of God, to the point where it can easily implement items from the game into the real world.

You used such an amazing item just to show your sister a dream?

-Everything the Kornsim clan says to someone is an expression of their will to predict the future and change the outcome. Therefore, everything they say has a clear intention and is completely false.

Didn't my father also warn me once?

Even if someone guesses their intentions and makes a move, the Oracle of Kornsheim predicts that judgment one more time and prepares for it.

And my father also said this.

-If those milestones remain even after death, it is because the future that the oracle who created them foresaw and sought to prepare for has not yet arrived.

What it means is that my grandmother's dream necklace is still intact. It meant that the future she had foreseen had not yet arrived.

However, Amelia's words that followed immediately pulled Seongjin's pensive mind back to reality.

"Mores. "It could be purely my imagination, but somehow I think I saw my grandmother at the imperial palace that day."

... yes?

* * *

When was it?

A day like today when we had a friendly lunch at Jinju Palace. Amelia heard this story from Mores.

-I heard that this gem is called a milestone, sister.

-milestone?

-yes. It must be a keepsake left by my grandmother. The person who knows this best is probably your father, so why not have a little chat with him when you have time?

At the time, Amelia thought her sister's words were valid. Wasn't she the one who didn't hide even the fact of her regression from Seonghwang?

So why is it difficult to talk about small memories from childhood?

Amelia headed to the main palace with excitement.

'that's right. That beautiful dream world is only for me and my father, His Majesty. So, I definitely want to tell this story to you!'

As she climbed the stairs of the main palace, Amelia was struggling to calm her pounding heart.

But she had just reached the second floor hallway where the office was. Amelia suddenly felt a strong cold coming over her, and for a moment, she stopped in place.

"... ... !"

A black woman was standing right there. She hadn't changed one bit since she was a child when she came to see Amelia.

'who? It doesn't seem like he's a user of the main palace, so why are he doing that over there?'

Because it was an unexpected encounter, I did not realize it right away at first.

But its unique appearance. A long black dress, black hair, and even a black veil that completely covers her face. Amelia couldn't help but think of that bizarre outfit that didn't suit the mild weather of early fall.

'no way... 'The black veiled sister I met before?'

Is it because of my mood? Amelia quietly broke into a cold sweat, feeling that a mysterious gaze hidden behind a veil was somehow staring at her.

"Why are you doing this, sir?"

When the princess suddenly stopped walking and froze, a surprised guard cautiously asked her from behind.

"excuse me... .."

Amelia slowly raised her hand and pointed at the woman.

"That woman is blocking the front of your father's majesty's office. It looks like he has some business to do, but he doesn't move from his seat at all. "What on earth is going on?"

But the knight who turned his head to follow the hand immediately asked this question as if he was puzzled.

"yes? Lowering. You mean a woman? "Except for the servant who just passed by, there is no sign of anyone in the hallway."

'... what?'

But the surprise was short-lived, and Amelia could clearly feel it as well.

An auror that every living person should feel. However, the woman in black could not sense the activity of the auror at all.

'... what?'

Just as the eerie guess about her identity was about to arise, the woman in black suddenly moved her body.

Raise one hand and point to your mouth -

'mouth?'

Slowly shake your head.

'no? what?'

But Amelia soon realized her intentions.

What was the reason you came here?

-Never say never.

A cold shiver ran down my spine.

'Father, I'm not allowed to tell your Majesty about that dream?'

A secret message delivered only to Amelia.

But amazing things happened one after another.

Amelia was standing there doubting her eyes, and as she blinked for a moment, the woman disappeared from sight as if it were a lie.

"... ..!?"

And after a while, when I headed to the office with trembling steps-

"Amelia. "How could you have been standing outside instead of coming in right away?"

"... .."

"Why are you shaking so much? "Did something happen on the way here?"

God's representative. Your Majesty, the most supreme and powerful father on the continent.

'You were completely unaware of her presence right outside the office?'

Amelia felt a grim premonition creeping up in her heart.

Who on earth was the woman in the black veil? Did she just see something in vain, or is she really the spirit of her deceased grandmother?

As a child, Amelia's words that she would have a large family in the future eventually came true.

So how on earth should Amelia accept the warning that appears before her eyes again?

that day.

Amelia, who was immersed in complicated thoughts, was ultimately unable to utter a single word about her dream to Seongwang.

"You think that woman is your grandmother?"

"okay. Even though my grandmother passed away a long time ago, I have a strong feeling that she will. "It was she who entrusted me with her dream necklace."

"hmm..."

"A black veil covering the face. The look of that old-fashioned dress. "This is definitely the woman I saw when I was young."

Seongjin rested his chin for a moment and thought about the possibility that the spirit of his grandmother, Empress Bethsheba, had indeed appeared.

My grandmother left a milestone for the future. A woman who did not feel any aura at all came to entrust it to her.

And, Sister Amelia, the daughter of a father who can see souls.

'what? 'It's not that unlikely, is it?'

After coming to a conclusion, Seongjin tilted his head.

"Then what on earth is Jomo's purpose?"

"Hehe."

Then Amelia did not answer but asked Seongjin an odd question.

"Do you really believe that your grandmother's spirit has appeared? "Don't you think I've just seen something wrong, Mores?"

"yes?"

Seongjin stared at Amelia's question blankly.

If you ask me if I believe in the soul, of course I will answer that I do.

Didn't Seongjin himself once wander around with only his soul?

Moreover, if I put my mind to it, I can summon a fanatical evil spirit shedding black tears right now.

"You clearly saw it, right? I believe it. "You have a very good memory."

"Mores..."

Then Amelia looked very moved.

Of course, it didn't last very long.

Stinging!

Seongjin, who couldn't see Amelia flinching after getting her finger pricked again, took the sewing tool from her.

"Just rest for a moment, I will finish it. sister."

"Mores you? Have you ever sewed?"

"Approximately."

Well, I've never done any embroidery, but I've done quite a bit of rank insignia. When I was in the military, there were no Velcro rank badges, right?

As Seongjin carefully began to move the needle with the yellow thread threaded through it, Amelia rested her chin on both hands and looked at him silently.

"So, you're not going to tell your father about your dream for a while?"

"okay. "I think that would be good."

Amelia nodded obediently.

"There is no other reason. Just, that's what I thought at the time. "If the woman in the black veil is really her deceased grandmother, I believe that she will probably serve her father's majesty."

"... .."

"Just like your father, your majesty, your grandmother will surely love you deeply from her heart."

Seongjin could not easily answer those words. Amelia may have a firm belief in her grandmother, but she may not be her real father.

-Remember this well, son. The Kornsheim clan are the most untrustworthy people in this world.

His stern face as he gave that request was still vivid in my memory.

"But Mores... .."

Amelia, who was looking at the butterfly that was slowly being completed, tilted her head.

"You don't seem to be very talented at embroidery either. As you said, do we all resemble our father, His Majesty?"

No, isn't this great for a first try?

But is your sister saying that to me? yes?

Whoa whoa!

After the handicraft class, Seongjin came out to the training room a little later than usual and smiled brightly without realizing it. Because he heard a familiar crying sound greeting him.

Max, you cute guy!

Wong wooooo!

-Why are you so late? Where are you going every day, leaving me alone?

Seongjin rushed over and lightly patted the guy who was wagging his tail.

"Okay, Max. Sorry sorry."

Wong wong wong!

-play with me! play with me!

"But now I have to practice. So, just wait there for a moment."

Whoa whoa!

-Play with me!

"hmm..."

At this point, I thought it might be okay to just play with him for a little while.

Seongjin was extremely averse to disrupting his training, but who wouldn't fall for such a cute puppy's determination and cuteness?

'... yes? 'A puppy?'

Of course, in the eyes of the other resident knights, the giant wolf dog only looked like a threat to the young prince.

"Okay, okay. Let's play for a moment. "But how should I play with you?"

You say, 'Ask!' You can't even play? Even if you try to play 'bite and pull', they tear everything to pieces with their sharp teeth.

Wong wong wong wong!

-Ride me! Let's ride on the strong and gigantic me and go have fun like before!

"No, I guess that's impossible... .."

Kiing-

Max, who clearly understood Seongjin's words, stopped pestering and licked Seongjin's cheek.

[go away! You stupid mixed breed dog!]

Thanks to this, the Demon King, who hates Max, suddenly became uncomfortable.

"That's an abomination... "Just look at how calm he is in front of the prince."

"I know I'm loved too, right? "If it weren't for Prince Mores, that would be so simple!"

It wasn't just the Demon Lord who hated Max. A small grumbling sound from a distance vividly reaches Seongjin's ears. These are Sir Kalmen and Lord Haven, who are usually bullied by Max.

I feel a little sorry, but what can I do when the officers are at the bottom of the hierarchy according to Marx's standards? So, I guess I'll do some training a long time ago.

"Isn't the imperial palace boring and uninteresting? I wonder if I might like you, Max... .."

Seongjin sat down and gently stroked Max's head.

This guy was originally a guy who freely ran around the Sigismund Territory like a wild wolf. So Seongjin still wondered whether it was a good idea to bring him to the imperial palace.

'If we stay together, won't we become more and more accustomed to the imperial palace?'

So at first, I would take him with me around the palace and let him sleep in my room all the time.

Then one day, Edith spoke with tears in her eyes. I can't handle that guy's trouble.

It turned out that he pretended to be polite when Seongjin was next to him, but the moment he left, he started chewing up all the expensive furniture and art pieces.

So one time, I showed him the tattered items and scolded him, and he looked up at Seongjin with innocent eyes and whined.

-All the other kids play with it, right? There are so many amazing toys, why do you do this to me? huh?

To Max, the palace workers busily cleaning seemed like they were playing with toys.

We had no choice but to send it out, and now we have temporarily set up a kennel in one corner of the training ground.

'But if winter comes sooner or later, wouldn't we have to bring him into the palace? If we do not provide proper education... ..'

Tsk tsk tsk.

Max, unaware of Seongjin's complex nature, immaturely licks his hair.

This guy sometimes enjoyed playing with Seongjin's hair. He seemed to secretly like shiny things, as he only picked expensive items and broke them at the Jinju Palace.

"Okay, okay. "That's fun."

It's a bit unpleasant to be wet, but if you like it, it's just my hair.

Seongjin, who left Max to play alone, quietly closed his eyes and concentrated. At this point, he was thinking of meditating in his spare time. That way, he can finish training early and play with Max more later.

"no... .."

And not long after, Masain and the resident knights encountered a very strange sight.

The young prince is immersed in meditation, with a large wolf dog on his head and the light aura wind blowing around him.

"... Are you meditating? really?"

"In this situation where the dog is covered in saliva? "Does that make sense?"

It was truly a shocking sight that shook common sense. I wonder if former Dekaron Knight leader Bruno would have been so embarrassed.

"I don't know how you maintain concentration in such a situation. "As a Dekaron Knight, I once thought I had quite a bit of enlightenment, but I feel like I can't keep up with the decline in mental power."

While everyone was shocked, only Masain smiled bitterly. He had once witnessed the prince squatting alone in a flower bed and completing the fifth floor of Auror.

It was a great joy to see my younger brother, whom I had particularly admired since childhood, grow up so quickly.

but-

'I don't know how long I will be able to help you, as I am so inadequate.'

It was right then.

Startle!

Masain and Leader Bruno tensed at the same time and pulled out their swords from their belts.

"... ..!?"

visor! Cheaeng!

At one point, it felt as if the size of the wolfdog holding down the prince had swelled.

The dog's aura is explosively amplified, and its presence grows uncontrollably.

Whoop-

Everyone in the training hall was taken aback by the sudden situation. However, their gaze was not towards the wolfdog, but towards Masain and Leader Bruno.

"Lord Martha?"

"... "Why are you two acting like this all of a sudden?"

It was such a fleeting moment.

When the two people looked again, sweating coldly, they saw that the wolf dog looked the same as usual, just calmly applying its saliva to the prince's hair.

'what? 'Is it because of my mood?'

'no. It was only for a moment, but I definitely felt it, Lord Masaine.'

'Chief Bruno. What about that dog... ... ?'

As the atmosphere in the training hall became too chaotic, Seongjin sensed this and opened his eyes after meditating.

"what's the matter? "What happened to everyone?"

Seongjin tilted his head, looking at the two people who were somehow turning pale.

"... .."

Hehehe!

While the two embarrassed people remained silent, Maxman, who seemed to be in a good mood, just waved his tail cheerfully at Seongjin.

"... Louis."

Seonghwang, who was flipping through documents in his office, suddenly raises his head and calls the chamberlain.

"Yes, Your Majesty."

"Could you please call Deputy Francis right now?"

As Seonghwang said that, his gaze was not directed at the documents, but toward one side of the office that was blocked by a wall.

However, the Chamberlain, who noticed the silver sparkle of courtesy in his eyes, realized that the Emperor was not looking at his office, but somewhere in the distance.

"Yes, I will take action right away. your majesty."

Lewis answered politely and hurriedly walked out.

Seonghwang, who couldn't look away from there for a long time, eventually sighed softly and picked up the document he was reviewing.

It's not like I didn't expect this situation to happen ever since my son brought me a wolf from Ionia to raise it.

'I thought we should get ready soon, but it's earlier than I expected. Son, how on earth were you going to explain the wolf from the Demonic Sutra to the Orthodox Church and the Inquisition?'

Was it just an intention to tame it like a normal dog?

My son, who knew nothing about Ionian wolves, may have really intended to do that.

'Francis is going to complain a lot about having more work to do.'

But don't you want your child to do that?

So what should we do? All you have to do is make it a dog you can raise with peace of mind.

"Edith. "Are you sure you have collected all the letters addressed to me?"

Late evening. As always, Seongjin, who was appreciating the Melbourne team that Manager Bruno was giving away, asked.

"Yes, sir. "Even after cutting out all the miscellaneous things, it's enough to fit three large sacks, right?"

... That many?

"Can you get it now?"

"Yes, of course, sir."

Edith left the room with brisk steps.

After Director Bruno took charge of Seongjin's refreshments, she seemed to feel much more at ease recently, freed from the burden of having to drink bile-flavored tea.

These days, I feel like it's not my job, but Max's job.

"Is there a letter in particular you are looking for, Your Majesty?
"Didn't you order us to put it out of sight unless it's important?"

Manager Bruno pours more tea and asks.

Well, I did say that. This is because the number of useless letters sent to Jinju Palace, as well as flowers and gifts, has increased explosively recently.

After a series of monster incidents and the Battle of Sigismund Territory, it was natural that Prince Mores's status within the ecliptic had increased significantly.

Thanks to this, we received a huge amount of invitations for banquets and social gatherings.

I was just ignoring it because it was annoying, but it seems that the repercussions eventually extended to Amelia.

-Recently, there has been an increase in letters asking if I can attend meetings with you.

-To you? why?

-Even though I sent you an invitation, I heard you never responded?

Seongjin clicked his tongue as he knotted the embroidery.

'No, they invited me arbitrarily, and they dare expect me to respond?'

However, unlike Seongjin, who found it annoying, Amelia seemed quite pleased with the attention showered on her younger brother.

-Everyone is curious about you. Not only did you save the Sigismund Empire from a crisis, but you are already leading a department of the administration at a young age.

what. The person who was really active at that time was Logan, and I was just an advisor to the monster task force.

-In addition, there is a lot of interest in your recent businesses. If successful, Bertran & Lee will grow into the largest business in the North, both in name and reality.

However, there was another essential reason why they were looking for Seongjin or Amelia.

Until then, the most famous social gathering in the imperial capital was by far the one led by Ricardo Scarzapino.

However, as he suddenly became mentally ill and became bedridden, other social gathering organizers who were trying to gain the status of mainstream gatherings were scrambling to invite the children of successful families.

-The wealthy Murray family of Anatolia and the Sorcha family with enemies in Cyprus are competing fiercely. But either way, once you get to know each other, there will be quite a few benefits.

-okay. But you don't have any social gatherings that you attend regularly, right? How do you get that information?

The personal informant who would take care of every little detail was not with her right now.

Not long ago, I heard that the sister who was assigned to be an informant at Monkey Watchtower sent him on a long-term business trip overseas.

Where did they say it was?

So maybe it was Rohan?

-Hehe. Lady Scarzzapino is helping me a lot. The same goes for Lady Valois. How can you be so smart even at such a young age?

Oh, I see.

'But how did it happen that all of the candidates for Mores' fiancée became close friends with your sister?'

Anyway, there must have been a hint from Amelia, so now I'm thinking of picking out some useful invitations.

There was just one thing that bothered Seongjin.

'What if it causes trouble again?'

[what?]

'I have a jinx, right?'

[Jinx?]

okay.

There is a jinx known as the 'curse of social gatherings', where you get caught up in a huge accident whenever you go to a gathering... ...

335. Salon (5)

The invitations Edith brought were more diverse than expected.

It seemed as if every regular meeting in the imperial capital wanted Prince Mores to attend. It was only a few months ago that Lord Masaine was pondering over just three invitations.

[Are you really going to go to a social gathering?]

As Seongjin began to rustle through the invitations, the Demon King asked back in disbelief.

[Lee Seong-jin of the world, who knows nothing but training whether he sleeps or wakes up? Are you willing to waste time like that?]

'Then, I'm watching to attend. 'Isn't it obvious?'

What can I say? Isn't the position a little different now?

In the past, I thought it was just a bonus time, practiced swordsmanship to my heart's content, and then returned the body to the owner when he returned.

'Now I have to live properly as my father's son. In that case, at least the prince of the Holy Empire should do everything he needs to do.'

I don't want anything grand like a Caesarean class.

Wouldn't it be enough to just engage in appropriate social activities, volunteer in moderation, and show a non-embarrassing appearance as a member of the royal family?

[Then isn't it already too late? Seongjin Lee, you're embarrassing no matter where you put it... ..]

'shut up!'

Anyway, not long after, Seongjin was able to easily find the invitations that Amelia had mentioned.

'You said it was the Murray family and the Sorchia family...? . If you're going to attend, it's a mainstream gathering!'

But even after picking out all the invitations, for some reason I couldn't get my hands on anything.

"hmm."

Should I ask my sister which of the two is better? If there is no difference, just go to the one that opens first.

"What shall we do with the rest, sir? "If there is anything else you would like to reply to, I will let the administrator know."

In response to Edith's question, Seongjin looked at the pile of letters.

Many imperial figures sent useless greetings, but among them, the two people received the largest share.

Lady Valois, Chloe.

Although the frequency has decreased significantly since he started meeting regularly with Amelia, the little boy still continues to send Seongjin various bouquets of flowers and cards asking how he is doing.

And another one -

'Leonard of Lohan... ... '

Seongjin's eyes darkened.

okay. I was so busy that I forgot about that kid.

- Bethelah.

The unlucky swallow child of Rohan, who gave a secret greeting. Although he must have had everything he needed as a member of the royal family, he was a man who had a dry, bloody smell.

-It's no big deal. I'm sure you guessed it, but I have some connection with them, so I thought I'd just tell them the news. Do you know that? Our forgotten brothers of old are anxiously awaiting your command.

At that time, the guy approached Seongjin with some insidious purpose. It seemed to have some kind of connection with a very suspicious force called 'Old Brothers'.

And didn't he act like he was anxious to have Seongjin meet them?

-Then, would you like to meet my friend? I think that would definitely be of great help.

-friend?

-exactly. It is he who has direct contact with your brothers. It's difficult, but I'll try to create a place with him.

As if to prove his words, Seongjin sent a letter asking to meet every day as soon as he returned from Sigismund Territory.

'What should I do... ... '

Originally, it wasn't very polite to flirt with the prince of a country like this.

To be honest, Seongjin was not at all interested in meeting Leonard. The moment he met the 'brothers' he was talking about, he had a feeling that something very bad would happen.

'Those 'brothers' definitely have a deep connection with the past Mores, or rather, my actions.'

Now that I think about it, I can't help but wonder what that 'organization' was. And what kind of connection does it have with Seongjin?

Exciting-

Seongjin suddenly felt his heart pounding violently and quickly erased the thought of him from his mind.

"... Let's do it this way. "From now on, Leonard, please collect all letters from the author separately in one corner of the gym, Edith."

"yes? "A training ground?"

The fierce, dedicated maid tilts her head at the unexpected, unexpected instructions.

"okay. "Next to Max's dog house."

Seongjin responded with a sullen expression.

I should throw all those unlucky things to Max as toys. It will be torn to shreds without a trace!

"If you are Prince Leonard of Rohan, he is the one who has been rumored recently."

While filling Seongjin's teacup, Director Bruno glanced at the letters.

"rumor?"

"yes. It is said that the second prince of Rohan stays in the imperial capital even after the birthday party, and always attends banquets and social gatherings. There is a rumor going around in the world that he may have been pushed out of the succession competition with the first prince and is looking for a good wife to trust himself to."

Whatever the reason, thanks to his flashy appearance, he is warmly welcomed by ladies wherever he goes?

"... what?"

Wait, wait. So, no matter which meeting I go to, Leonard is sure to show up?

It was a situation that had never been imagined.

'Besides, considering that that swallow bastard flirted with Amelia at the birthday party...'

Seongjin's face became quite serious.

'Change the plan! I was only planning to show up at one appropriate gathering, but for now, I'll have to go to all the gatherings that my sister attends!'

[...] Are you serious?]

'of course! I'll show him what an impenetrable defense is!'

But then a problem arose.

It's been several months since Seongjin stayed at Delcross. Now, he thought he had mastered the common sense of this world to some extent, but it was difficult to say that it was a level of sophistication that would not be ignored in the 'salon' of high-ranking people.

'They say it's just a one-time meeting and they say hello and move on...'

The thought of hanging out with the pretentious imperial officials and chatting about noble topics for days on end made me feel like my head was already cramping.

"I heard there are stories going around that control the continent's economy. In addition, in terms of culture and art, you have to be familiar with everything from Delcros to Ortona's classic literature and Brittany's latest performing arts, right?"

"Uh, just listening to it is already starting to bother me..."

The purpose of this was to attend considering his reputation as a prince, but if he made a mistake, his reputation, which was barely being made up for, would be eroded.

"Then how about a hunting party? As fall approaches, it seems like many small festivals are held even in the vicinity of the Imperial Capital."

"Speaking of hunting, what kind of useless thing would you go to that place for?"

Unlike the South and North, where hunting parties were relatively free, hunting as a 'social activity' was not viewed very favorably in Delcross. This is because the Lord who gave us life, not livelihood, called it 'sin.'

So even if hunting groups are not banned altogether, it is difficult for them to grow into mainstream groups.

'I'm sure you will choose to attend one of the salons held by the Murray or Sorcha families. 'Is there no way to simply cram in 'liberal arts?'

However, the Demon King, who had been listening quietly until then, suddenly made an unexpected opinion to Seongjin.

[If nothing else, how about asking some idiot about the latest performing arts?]

'huh? 'Chief Bruno?'

Then the leader pulled his mustache and asked awkwardly.

"Lowering. Why are you immediately convinced that the 'stupid' you're talking about is me?"

"hmm? That's it..."

[Who else but you is the idiot here? You idiot.]

"You're really being too generous, Mr. Red."

The leader's stiff mustache noticeably droops down.

I've been thinking about this recently, but isn't this man still supporting his pointy beard as an auror?

'But why, Director Bruno?'

To Seongjin's question, the Demon King gave an unexpected answer.

[You didn't know at all? This guy sings pretty well.]

'... ok?'

[I sing whenever I have time, going back and forth between the female and male parts. When I see the lyrics roughly continuing, I get the feeling that it's like some kind of performance.]

'okay?'

Seongjin tilted his head.

At least in the Jinju Palace, I pride myself on having the most sensitive sense of energy, but even though I have lived with Director Bruno, I have never once heard him sing.

But doesn't the leader's face turn red at the devil lord's words?

"... "You mean you can hear it all?"

[I'm singing the song to leave like that, but of course I can hear it. What do you think of this great Demon King? You idiot.]

"... .."

And Seongjin soon found out the full story of this incident.

"Sing it in your head?"

"Yes, sir. "I swear to the Lord, I never thought anyone would hear that!"

Director Bruno stroked his face, burning with shame, with one hand.

After suffering from the Gray Plague once, he was left with an incomplete flame crystal in his mind. From then on, he became able to receive thoughts from other people, but on the other hand, he became a half-psychic person who was unable to send thoughts to others.

However, it turned out that the song he was singing in his head whenever he was bored was spreading around the neighborhood in the form of pure thoughts.

"I feel like I want to dig a grave and lie down right now. Who else besides Red would have heard those shameful things..."

"hmm."

Seongjin gave him a confirmed kill with a sad expression.

"Maybe with my father...""

Cough!

"Sir Sharon must have heard."

Gagging!

Director Bruno suffered deep internal injuries and stumbled.

[Such a cruel guy...]

'shut up! Who do you think started first? uh?'

Anyway, the leader told me the whole story with a desperate look on his face.

When you were working as a knight commander at the imperial palace, you were obsessed with opera and theater? So it is said that he went to see all the performances on the rue de Bertrand while receiving a salary.

"Even recently, I occasionally watch performances when I have time.
"I am truly sorry."

No, he says he spends his time and money on his hobbies, so he should even apologize.

'Director, you were serious about Melbourne tea, but were you also quite knowledgeable about performing arts?'

The more I look at it, the more fascinating it becomes.

I heard that he was the only knight commander in the imperial palace who was a commoner, and to be honest, he seemed to have the most noble taste among the knight commanders I've ever met.

How on earth have you lived in the slums for so long?

'Can I listen to it too? 'That opera song.'

[Should I try broadcasting in a crystal clear sky? As if relaying the spiritual eyes.]

'Ok, fine.'

So Seongjin said this to the leader with a very bright face.

"Then, leader. Would you like to sing a song here and now?"

The leader's face turned pale.

Even if only for one moment in your life

If I could drink her flower-like breath

If only I could feel her pitiful beat

Ah, I wish I could just die-

There will be no more leisure in life-

An earnest love song rang out from the living room. Of course, it is a voice that only the Demon King and Seongjin can sense, and cannot be heard by others.

"Oh oh. "Is it great?"

Seongjin honestly expressed his impressions.

Strictly speaking, this song was not sung by Director Bruno himself, but was just a song played from his memory like a tape recorder.

Still, seeing that the pitch tempo was quite accurate, I thought that the leader's musical talent was quite good.

[not there yet. The woman's answer in the next part is the real highlight. Now, idiot, go ahead and continue.]

"Yes, leader. "Do more."

"... .."

Then, Director Bruno was overcome with deep agony.

Although he decided to dedicate his difficult life to his benefactor, Prince Mores, in some way.

'Is this really a good thing?'

However, I cannot bear to look away from the young prince's eyes sparkling with anticipation.

The director worked hard and sang the highlight of the most popular opera recently.

[good. This is it!]

"This is really amazing, Captain!"

Clap clap clap!

While the Demon King and Seongjin are cheering enthusiastically -

"What do you mean, great, sir?"

Edith asked as she brought Max into the living room. This is because there were instructions from Seongjin that it would be a good idea to spend the evenings at the palace for training.

"Uh, just. "I was listening to some music."

"... yes? "A song?"

While the dedicated maid, who cannot hear any thoughts at all, tilts her head -

Wong!

Max barked vigorously and tapped the letters piled on the floor with his nose. He is looking to see if it is a toy he can play with.

"okay. are you okay."

After Seongjin gave permission, Max excitedly jumped into the correspondence.

Patter-patter-

Colorful letters are scattered here and there on the living room floor.

"Ah, cleaning..."

As Edith is sighing, Max, who has noticed her, approaches Seongjin with a letter in his hand.

Seongjin, who was looking at the sight as if it was cute, checked the contents of the letter and lightly tapped Max on the head.

"huh? Yes, Max. Do you like this?"

Wong!

"I see. Do you want to go hunting? "Do you want to come here with me?"

Wong wong!

"Okay, let's go!"

"... "Hey, you?"

You said earlier that you don't go to useless hunting parties...

Director Bruno lamented with a pitiful face.

"Then why on earth have I been..."

336. Salon (6)

Take Max with you to a proper hunting party. And I will definitely go to the salon where Amelia attends!

Seongjin made that decision, but surprisingly, the salon that Amelia chose was not the Murray or Sorchia family's salon.

"Cadogan?"

"okay. "I developed a bit of a friendship with Baron Cadogan at the birthday party."

Baron Cadogan is the leader in the publishing business in the imperial capital. He mainly publishes 'Biblical Fairy Tales' commissioned by the Holy Assembly, and imports various books from the Kingdom of Brittany and the Duchy of Assein.

Thanks to this, her salon is mainly attended by administrative workers related to the western part of the continent and children of small and medium-sized businesses.

"... .. ?"

"The salon hosted by Baron Cadogan is quite a fruitful gathering. "There is a lot of up-to-date information about the situation in the West."

However, even with that explanation, Seongjin could not hide his embarrassment. It felt like a surprising choice considering that he had been recommended to a mainstream gathering from the beginning.

Of course, Amelia thought of her younger brother as the next crown prince, so she hoped to expand her influence in the large gathering from the beginning.

On the other hand, she herself had no intention of exerting influence even on the high-ranking members of the imperial capital. Not only is she not practical, but she could easily give them the impression that she is aiming for the throne.

Amelia had enough connections to understand the situation in western countries, including Rohan.

'Because I will become Klanos anyway.'

One day, like Sir Martha, he will escape the competition for the throne and work purely for Delcross. That was Amelia's simple dream.

Most imperial officials have no doubt that Amelia will become queen of Brittany or Rohan. But she had no intention of getting married to a foreign country in this life.

The Holy Empire, which was already heavily interfering in the internal affairs of neighboring countries, saw that the advantage it could gain from its own national marriage was not significant.

'Furthermore, if you marry a royal from a foreign country, the path of revenge against Leonard will become even more distant.'

We'll probably waste years there trying to build a new foundation.

Even if you are lucky and secure a strong position, how much influence can a queen from a foreign country have over Rohan?

On the other hand, there were many people in Delcross who could support Amelia. Not to mention Mores, who will become the crown prince, and your father, His Majesty, will also help you in both material and spiritual ways.

'So, I will become Klanos, take the selection test fairly, and gradually improve my skills at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. In the past, he would oversee Rohan's internal affairs alone, so that he could apply strong pressure at the right moment.'

It never occurred to me that riding on Delcross's power was a cowardly act. Is there any need to save the famous sword that was rightfully in her hands?

'Wait a moment, Leonard. For the empire, for Mores who will ascend to the throne, and for myself. I will completely take away everything you have!'

And I will give you the most miserable death imaginable.

Once all revenge was over, Amelia planned to spend the rest of her life with her family in Delcross.

'Precious family is never far away. Mores, my father, His Majesty, and everyone in the Holy Family will be by my side!'

Amelia clenched her fists and quietly strengthened her will.

Meanwhile, looking at her like that, Seongjin had a slightly strange thought.

'Sister, somehow you seem very motivated? Are you fantasizing about destroying a castle wall somewhere?'

Cadogan's salon was held in a townhouse. Since all of the imperial capital's most prominent figures had houses there, most meetings and banquets were often held in townhouses.

"Your Majesty Amelia, your Majesty Mores. "I am truly honored to have found you here."

Baron Cadogan was a woman with a sad appearance. Even though two children of the Seonghwang family were present, she led Seongjin and Amelia to their seats in a relaxed manner.

"The recent growth of Lohan's liquor industry is amazing."

"But we still can't surpass the wines of Brittany, whether in terms of quality or quantity."

"Well, what do you think? There is no country that can match Rohan in terms of distilled beverages alone. Just wait and see. "Maybe within the next 10 years, Lohan will lead the continent's alcohol industry."

The meeting had a fairly informal and comfortable atmosphere. Since most of the members are working-level members, their first-hand impressions of the industry atmosphere and the situation in the West come and go without hesitation.

Thanks to this, Seongjin, who had expected the sharp, aristocratic speaking style to be used as a shield by all kinds of cultured common sense, was at a loss. I felt a little sorry for Director Bruno, who had been enthusiastically singing the latest operas over the past few days.

"Baron Cadogan buys many rare books that are hard to find in the imperial capital. Where is that? When a new 'scriptural fairy tale' is published, it is the first to be sent to the Silver Rose Labyrinth."

"okay."

It seems like it's thanks to this person that my sister has so many children's books.

While the owner of the salon and Amelia were chatting amicably, Seongjin sipped a non-alcoholic drink and comfortably listened to their conversation.

Surprisingly, printing technology was relatively developed in this world. Although the price of books is quite high, it is still nothing compared to the era of copying.

There were even elaborate illustrations carved into engravings. It was the influence of old Ortona, where literature and ideas were actively flourishing.

"It was a true cradle of humanities like no other in history. "Nowadays, Brittany is playing part of that role."

It is said that Baron Cadogan, who was saddened by the fall of Ortona, expanded the size of his publishing company by accepting many printing technicians who had run away from there.

"Oh, Amelia! Now that I think about it, you came at a good time!"

The Baron, who had been talking for a while, suddenly glanced at the butler as if he had remembered something.

What the old butler, who had received instructions, brought to them a short while later was a children's book of a type that Seongjin was also quite familiar with.

"I brought you a new publication with me today."

"Another biblical fairy tale?"

"Yes, it is."

Unlike Ortona, which was the cradle of the humanities, or Brittany, which had many famous universities, the number of book publications in Delcross was quite limited. First, it had to go through censorship by the Holy See, and even if it was slightly unpalatable, it was summoned by the Heresy Tribunal.

Thanks to this, 'Biblical Fairy Tales', which were fun reconstructions of anecdotes from the scriptures, were the only books that the Imperial Capital could publish relatively freely.

Still, thanks to its easy composition and beautiful illustrations, it is said to be quite popular among imperial subjects.

-Saint Bastian and the Finger Devil

Amelia tilted her head as she scanned the title of a new book.

"The story of Saint Bastian? That's surprising. "I thought this publication would definitely be an anecdote about Saint Grazier."

Saint Bastian was famous for creating many dramatic scenes in the scriptures. In addition to her beautiful appearance, she is a very popular adult for published fairy tales.

Nevertheless, 'Biblical Fairy Tale' tried to cover the five saints relatively evenly.

This was a phenomenon that occurred because the saints being promoted as the main force by each ministry of the empire or the Holy Knights were all different. If you think that your saint is being treated with even the slightest bit of neglect, you will hear protests from cardinals and priests.

That was why Amelia was puzzled.

It had been a long time since St. Grazier's feast day, but the story of the 'Knight of Grace' suddenly became a hot topic, and Granius' [Exploration of the Miraculous Continent] was pushed back in publication.

"There was a special request from the Orthodox Church. 'St. Bastian's feast day is also around the corner, so it's not something we can't understand."

Even with the Baron's explanation, questions were not easily raised.

"There was also the inauguration of a new saint. I thought that this time the saint's fairy tale would be published in Grazier... .."

And after flipping through a couple of pages of the book, Amelia became even more embarrassed.

-The huge dog carried the saint and ran like the wind.

- After leaping over the finger devil's men and passing through five hills, Saint Bastian finally arrived at the highest snow mountain on the continent.

Amelia frowned slightly at the pretty Ami.

"... dog?"

"Why are you doing this, sister?"

"No, the content is a bit surprising."

"... .. ?"

For Seongjin, who still didn't understand the English language, Baron

Cadogan explained.

"The scriptures simply state that the saint rode the wind and flew to the snowy mountain. Of course, there is also an oral tradition in the folk world that it was a huge beast named 'Wind'."

What I was saying was that the story about running on an animal was not a common interpretation.

But wind is wind, and beast is beast. Why are you picking on me?

"... This book has been officially approved for publication by the Holy See. "There is no problem."

Baron Cadogan, facing the siblings' puzzled faces, responded sarcastically. However, her voice sounded very weak, as if she was not very confident in herself.

"hmm... .."

Seongjin looked at the storybook over Amelia's shoulder.

To be honest, regardless of whether the content was true or not, Seongjin really liked this story. Because the image of the dog in the elaborately drawn illustration looked a lot like Max.

"The picture is cute. "I want to show it to Max too."

"ah? It really is! "It looks a lot like the wolfdog you brought in."

Amelia, who completely casts doubt on Seongjin's words, smiles brightly as if a flower is blooming.

"Looking at it again, I think dogs are cuter and better than just the wind."

"Yes? "I think it's becoming a more dramatic story, sister."

"okay. "There was a reason for the bold adaptation."

Baron Cadogan was inwardly dumbfounded by the princess's quick change of attitude.

'Contrary to the rumors, the rumors that you two are close were true!'

However, when he came face to face with the beautiful siblings' selfless smiles, the Baron smiled along with them without realizing it.

"If you like this, I will bring another copy for you, Maures."

The conversation continued until quite late.

Thanks to this, when Seongjin and Amelia had just left the salon, it was already deep into the night and bright stars were shining in the sky.

"What do you think, Mores? "Isn't the atmosphere of a small salon like this quite nice?"

Seongjin smiled in response to Amelia's question. It's a small salon and all, and it was my first time meeting like this, so is there anything to compare it to?

Of course, I heard that he often attended Ricardo Scarzapino's meetings in the past, but I don't remember it at all.

"There were some achievements."

Seongjin replied, adjusting her coat that was slipping off her shoulders.

okay. I also got a cute children's book. Above all, it was quite encouraging that the 'curse of social gatherings' jinx had disappeared.

But they were standing at the entrance for a moment, savoring the fresh air.

"What happens now? Baron Cadogan. "Are you two going to continue to come to our meetings in the future?"

Unusual voices were heard from afar. Since the conversation took place at quite a distance, I had to enhance my hearing with Aura.

"I didn't know that you would actually accept the invitation I sent you as a courtesy. But you two will probably be good members of the group."

"under! How could that possibly be the case? The strength of our meeting was the informal exchange of opinions! It was a place for free conversation that was not restricted by religion or institutions. But now it's all over!"

"Calm down, Sir Alton. "It hasn't been long since you two left."

Seongjin thought it was a relatively easy meeting, but the long-time members of the salon seemed to think a little differently.

"Don't we all know the true face of the Holy Empire! The subjects of the imperial capital who are oppressed by the main god and the powerful representative of the god and do not have any mental freedom! But now, do we have to look at the royal family's opinions even at private gatherings like this?"

"Upper stock. "His Majesty the Holy Emperor has not done anything to restrict the freedom of his subjects."

"Is that really the case? Any merchant who travels to and from other countries knows this! The current situation in the ecliptic is absolutely not normal! Crimes that go beyond the level will never occur, and all the subjects will just be gentle sheep and chant for the Lord! Do you think this is normal?"

"That's right. Other countries are never like this. Are there only subjects? The people of Seonghwangga are also strange. "Even though there are so many heirs to the throne, is it possible that there hasn't been a single noise?"

Authors! As the level of her remarks gradually became stronger, Seongjin frowned at her and pulled Amelia's arm.

I was thinking of leaving this place right away. I wanted to prevent a situation where their voices got louder and my sister heard them.

"Mores."

But isn't Amelia smiling faintly as she comforts Seongjin's hand? She had already been listening to their conversation.

The training period was not long, so the total amount of Auras was not large, but Amelia's ability to use Auras was unrivaled. So, enhancing her hearing isn't that difficult for her either.

"Don't pay too much attention to what they say."

ha.

Amelia took a breath of cool air and looked up at the night sky.

"You don't know how strange the current situation in Delcross is. Aside from Ortona, who opened the Republic, Cyprus, Brittany, and even Rohan have already long ago surpassed the empire in terms of institutions and culture. Yet why are they helplessly under the rule of the old empire?"

"... .."

"Strong military power? No. Look at the knights who are divided into pieces and move as they please. There is no other place other than the Empire that operates such an inefficient military. Strong faith in God? That's not it either. "The royal families of other countries see the Lord as nothing more than an excuse to interfere in their internal affairs."

Seongjin quietly listened to Amelia's lonely voice.

"It is your Majesty, my father."

"... .."

"This is because the power to sustain this inefficient and incomplete empire, the power to unite and lead the hearts of its subjects, comes only from Him, Father, Your Majesty."

Seongjin, who lived on Earth, was vaguely aware of how strange it was that a thousand-year-old empire full of absurdities still existed.

Therefore, before being bound by the agreement, my father would have tried to implement radical policies to somehow change the fundamentals of the empire.

'If the... ..'

What would happen if there was no prosperity in this world, or even now, if he completely gave up on maintaining the empire?

Conflicts will arise simultaneously here and there. The empire will collapse into nothingness in an instant. Nevertheless, it is truly a normal, human world.

"But what a fortunate thing."

Amelia's eyes, looking into the sky, burned quietly. Unlike his usual gentle and kind nature, his eyes are deep and full of restrained anger and madness.

"The fact that I can look away from all of this absurdity with peace of mind."

Leonard.

Amelia remembers the merciless battle he began that eventually engulfed the entire continent. The blood-stained sky and the earth filled with nothing but death.

No matter how deep and enormous the darkness inherent in Delcross is, it will definitely not be worse than the world at that time.

"I have never been so happy that he is, without any doubt, the worst evil in the world."

It was a sudden remark to Seongjin, but it didn't make any sense.

He recalled an incident from several months ago. He had probably his first meal with Amelia and listened to her advice seriously.

-I thought revenge that didn't reach the end was just vain. But true revenge is something that enriches life not only with the result but also with the process itself.

plural.

Ever since the conversation that day, there was only one proposition that had occupied my sister.

"So even if I prioritize 'revenge' over the safety of the empire, I have no hesitation in my heart."

Amelia had already forgotten even the harsh events of Sigismund's reign.

Who is it that makes her burn like this? What on earth did she do to her sister?

"... yes. you're right."

But Seongjin didn't bother to ask who that guy was.

The process of revenge is entirely up to you. It is a sweet fruit that she bites. If it's the Amelia I know, she will take revenge better than anyone else in the world. I can tell.

'And whoever he is, if he ends up dying like that...'

Next it's my turn.

His soul will never rest. Of all the people I know, I will become the most pitiful and pitiful soul, and I will wander in terrible pain forever.

'Because he won't be allowed even the slightest mercy shown to Countess Sigismund!'

337. Deer Hunting (1)

The dam that separates consciousness and unconsciousness is not as high as we think, so it can sometimes easily be overflowed by strong emotions or will.

"... Mores."

Amelia looked at her younger sister's face, which seemed somewhat unfamiliar from earlier.

Since when did it start? His face suddenly became expressionless, as if his expression had been washed away, and it went beyond being insensitive to the point where it looked inorganic.

There was only one thing moving on that lifeless face. There was only a faint silver-grey eye light that occasionally flickered into the air.

"Mores."

When Amelia called my name again-

Blink.

I wondered if my eyelids were moving slowly as if in response, and for a moment, a powerful emotion appeared in my eyes, which were hidden for a moment and then revealed.

It was a strange sense of desperation. An ambivalent feeling, as if trying to escape from somewhere, but at the same time, as if trying not to let go of something.

Blink.

But when he blinked a second time, the prince's eyes had already returned to their usual gray color.

"Yes, sister."

"... .."

"Why are you doing that?"

Amelia slowly looked at him with an anxious face.

"Are you worried about something? "I was worried because his expression suddenly looked too dark."

"... ..?"

Seongjin tilted his head.

Come to think of it, what was I just thinking?

"ah! It's no big deal. I just had this thought. You said before that you wanted revenge on someone, right? "Then, is the owner of the castle wall you usually want to destroy the target of your revenge?"

Amelia was taken aback for a moment, but then nodded obediently.

"okay. "That's right."

"I knew so. So I thought: 'Wouldn't it be a little difficult if you later hit that guy with the force of destroying a castle wall?' "I do."

"so?"

Of course, Amelia also did not think that this feeling of anger would be easily understood. It must have felt quite out of the blue to her sister, as it was her revenge for things that hadn't happened yet.

But his next words were unexpected.

"sister. No matter who you are seeking revenge on, please take the situation into your own hands and hit them gently. Otherwise, you can't just hit him a few times and he dies, right?"

huh?

Amelia blinked.

"Salsa?"

"yes. You're not going to just hit one and drink it, are you? "Even if you can heal and beat the enemy, what's the use if the opponent dies in one hit?"

"... ..!"

Ah, I see.

Amelia came to a great realization.

"okay. The opponent may be weaker than expected! However, if you hit and treat it appropriately, you can take revenge for quite a long time. "You are amazing, Mores!"

Haha, what?

Maybe if you talk to Logan or Sisley, they'll be willing to help you?

"Or I can lend you Sir Valerie, Inquisitor Nallari of the Monster Task Force. "No matter who the target of revenge is, perhaps we can bring a true end to hell."

"That's a good idea. Thank you, Mores."

The sight of the brother and sister smiling side by side looking up at the night sky was as beautiful as a painting, and the baron's employee couldn't help but secretly admire them as he glanced at them.

Only Sir Martha, who was listening to the brother and sister's whispers from afar, quietly thought this while sweating coldly.

"There have been so many shortcomings in assisting Prince Mores so far! From now on, if you don't pay more attention to your emotional education... ..!"

It's a good thing that your relationship is better than before. However, it was truly a mystery why one side had such a unilaterally negative influence on the other.

'Everything has gone wrong!'

The next morning.

Alton Dan Sang-ju, who was diligently heading to the meeting place in the suburbs, couldn't hide his nervousness and chewed his lips.

'At this rate, it's impossible to predict how [Puppet Master] will turn out!'

Alton Sangju and Karen Lawson were devil contractees.

Like most merchants belonging to the Merchants' Association, she made a contract with the devil when she was young and gained her current wealth. After defeating her rivals and quickly ascending to a prominent position, she killed the Sangsan lord and her successors one by one with a curse, naturally assuming her position as the Sangdan lord.

But that was it.

Once she became the head of the Sangdan, she had to travel back and forth to the ecliptic from time to time, and in order to safely come within the scope of [Grace], she had no choice but to refrain from communicating with the devil for a long time. The opportunities to utilize her demonic powers naturally diminished.

It took a lot of effort and time to grow the top purely through one's own resourcefulness. As the operation of the upper level was sluggish, the [Puppet Master], who was well-known among demons, approached.

'We want merchants and administrative workers traveling to and from the countries of the western part of the continent, especially Rohan. 'Can you help me control them?'

The puppeteer attended Baron Cadogan's salon, where targets gathered, and was requested to carry out special instructions. She offers her a sweet reward she can never refuse.

So Karen joined hands with [Puppet Master] and attempted to take another leap forward to gain wealth.

'I did... ... !'

No way, no way.

Who would have thought that two children from the Seonghwang family would be in attendance that day!

Thanks to this, the plan to bind all members with a curse was completely foiled. Karen stamped her feet, but in the end, she had no choice but to head to the meeting place, feeling extremely frustrated.

"You didn't keep your promise."

And the person who faced Karen was a half-masked man with a cold expression.

Romain, who was drawing complex shapes on the floor, scolded her coldly without even looking at her.

"I trusted you with an important task, but I am very disappointed. "If you carelessly broke your promise, is it safe to assume that you are prepared to pay the price?"

"Now, wait! It's all happening to me too... ... !"

But when she rashly tried to approach Romain, he turned his head and shouted sharply.

"Don't touch it!"

"... ... !"

"You must never destroy this circuit. "It is a circuit that follows the laws of the normal world, but since it was drawn temporarily, it is currently in a very unstable state!"

Gyu-sang world?

Karen looked at the intricate drawings on the cabin floor with a puzzled face.

[Laws of the normal world! Humans drew those incomprehensible things with their bare hands?]

In her head, the devil who had made a contract with her shouted in horror. When he reached her rendezvous point far outside the ecliptic, he restored his connection with her at her own discretion.

[It must have been a technology that disappeared with the fall of Ionia. What on earth is the identity of that 'Puppet Master'?]

But Karen wasn't curious about such things at all. Because the half-masked man in front of him was starting to give off a dangerous vibe, as if he was about to commit something at any moment.

"Now, Alton Sangsangju. Well, you ruined my plan. "Do you have any last words?"

omg!

Karen, who instinctively sensed danger, shouted urgently.

"wait for a sec! I didn't do that on purpose! "Your orders were absolutely impossible to carry out!"

"It's an excuse. "I can't help but think that secretly activating just one small magic item must have been that difficult."

"You don't know! Do you know who attended the meeting last night? "The 1st princess and 3rd prince of the Seonghwang family have arrived!"

"Ho... .. ?"

Only then did the man's mood noticeably soften.

"Puppet master, you definitely know! "Things that are absolutely taboo for demons who contract with humans in the Delcross dimension!"

first. Harm humans with demonic power, but do not go far beyond the scope of human capabilities.

second. Do not confuse society with the power of the devil.

third. No matter what happens, never, ever, mess with the children of Seonghwang.

In particular, without a single exception, demons who violated the third point met a terrible end!

"Do you understand? "If I had carried out the work there as planned, how do you think it would have turned out?"

Meeting the prince and princess at such a small gathering was something she could never have imagined. She was so embarrassed that she seemed overly angry at the host, Baron Cadogan.

"understand. But a promise is only a promise."

Romain continued, taking a final look at the circuit he had completed.

"Isn't that also a promise you swore directly in front of your monarch?"

"... ..!"

Callen Lawson's face turned blue with fear. To Romain's point, she is responding to the demon she has contracted with.

Most people in the Merchant Alliance make contracts with the devil for wealth and fame. Therefore, most of the demons they contracted with were descendants of Greed, or the [Lord of Hunger].

And Greed was not a benevolent monarch who would let his descendants who disobeyed his orders be tolerated.

"An explanation! Please give the Demon King of Hunger one chance to explain! I, I... ..!"

At her desperate cries, Romain quietly nodded.

"Well, because the opponent was a prosperous Delcross. I completely understand your position. So, let me give you a special chance to make it up to me."

Finally, as if he had reviewed all the circuits, Romain smiled and raised his head. Halfway through, her lower lips curve wide as if satisfied.

"But remember, there is no next chance for you now. Do you understand?"

Due to such circumstances, Karen was barely able to escape from the [Puppet Master]. He promised to speak well to Greed, along with new instructions to [accept] whatever his next request was.

It was an order whose meaning was completely unknown.

'What on earth is that guy thinking?'

But it didn't take long for the question to be resolved. This is because, while she was in the middle of moving in her carriage, a blurry window suddenly appeared in front of her eyes.

The ☐hairs facing ☐☐☐ are opened☐. Do you want to move?☐

☐Accept/Reject☐

Karen Lawson rubbed her eyes.

'... What is this?'

Reflexively, the puppeteer's instructions to [accept] anything come to mind.

[this! Go ahead and say no, Karen! Isn't this a completely broken rule!? If you get caught up in such an incomplete code, you may end up in a [labyrinth] and never be able to escape!]

I heard the devil's cries belatedly in my ears, but it was already over. Because her conscious mind was choosing [acceptance] without her knowledge.

My vision quickly disappears into the distance.

'omg!'

Pop!

After the dizzying feeling of falling, I opened my tightly closed eyes and, to my surprise, Karen had returned to the meeting place from earlier.

When she looked up from sitting down on the dusty floor, she saw a half-masked man looking at her with a grin on his face. Holding a large crystal ball in one hand.

"What the hell is this..." ... ?"

"hmm. great. 'It's finally working properly.'"

Romain has used the 'temporary portal generator' several times so far to transport prisoners from the Inquisition. However, because about half of them were lost, they ultimately failed to determine their location.

However, it was obvious that if too many prisoners were stolen, the Emperor would notice.

So the next thing I came up with was an auxiliary circuit that distorted the movement location to one side. The chances of success were very slim, but after several days of digging, we eventually succeeded.

'Now all I have to do is steal the princess away with this.'

Although the location can be specified, choosing [acceptance] is ultimately up to the individual's will.

'In that case, all you have to do is eliminate any room for choice.'

It would be perfect if Leonard could persuade the princess. But if she fails to steal her heart-

'There is no choice but to somehow drive the princess down a dead end and force her to choose [acceptance]... ... '

Meanwhile, at the same time, the imperial palace.

Nate, who had been staring at the teacup, was startled by something and raised his head.

"hmm? Why are you doing this all of a sudden? What's going on?"

My son, who knows nothing, asks with an innocent face.

"No, nothing...""

For some reason, a chill ran down my spine.

Why? The children are quietly protected in the imperial capital, and the movements of the strays have slowed down considerably recently. Why do I have such an ominous feeling?

"Did you do something else, Mores?"

"... yes?"

Then, the troublemaker son was confused for a moment, but then smiled brightly.

"Ah yes. So, I just told you that I was going to a hunting party. 'I'm going to go deer hunting.'"

"deer..."

"yes. I heard it's early deer hunting season these days, right? So, I want to go first and sweep up all the deer."

"..."

Nate, who was somehow feeling extremely anxious, looked at his son blankly.

But isn't this immature child, who doesn't know what his father knows, say this with a flushed face?

"Oh, don't worry. I really won't crash this time! Sir Martha and the resident knights will take care of everything. "I will never hunt myself, I will just hang out at the hunting ground with Max!"

Sounds like a good idea, right?

My son said that with a proud expression, took a swig of tea, and added, "Ah."

"If possible, I'll ask you to catch a wild boar too!"

"... .."

Is it really okay to let this child go like this?

Nate slowly raised one hand and washed his face.

338. Deer Hunting (2)

"Anyway, how about your lunch box? Does it fit your mouth?"

There was a new dish on the tea table today.

An authentic Flemish pork pie that was previously recommended by Sir Claudia. I remember eating it quite deliciously at the time, so I packed it.

'Did I say it's best served with cheese?'

Seongjin, who had prepared the side menu himself, was a little nervous and waited for Seonghwang's reaction.

Today is the first time I prepared food other than salmon. If you eat the same thing every day, even if you love salmon, wouldn't you get bored quickly?

'If I succeed in feeding him a lunch box today, from now on I'll be visiting other restaurants in the capital every now and then, other than the salmon lunch box!'

Fortunately, Seonghwang slowly emptied the pie plate. He didn't seem to like bear meat very much, but surprisingly, he liked the moist and juicy pork in the pie.

Okay, this sounds good! Let's remember this.

'But is it okay to only eat restaurant food every day? I don't think it's very good for your health. I feel like I'm encouraging this guy's picky eating habits even more... ..'

For a moment, this feeling of skepticism washed over me.

'Well, it's better than not eating anything at all. Moreover, he has great divine power, so nutrient imbalance is not a big problem.'

Then wouldn't it be best to just eat delicious food well?

First, let's change the habit of choking at the dinner table! And later, you can slowly change to a healthy diet.

Seongjin thought peacefully and sipped his warm Melbourne drink.

"... "Is there a reason you chose the Earl of Bathurst's hunting party?"

Rattling.

As I was silent for a moment and waiting for the meal to finish, Seonghwang put down his silverware and quietly asked a question.

"Um, why? well."

If you think about it, there was no particular reason. It's just that the letter Max brought me particularly caught my eye.

It was clear that Max, who especially liked shiny things, was attracted to the invitation card with the gold-leaf deer engraved on it.

"The resident engineers said that. The southwestern part of the ecliptic, where the County of Bathurst is located, has dense forests and is said to be quite rich in game. "They say there are a lot of deer and roe deer, and sometimes bears and wild boars also appear."

Wouldn't it be nice to be able to catch a variety of animals? You can also taste a variety of meats.

If you're lucky, you'll also get bear meat, which the demon lord likes. The ones brought from Sigismund's Territory have long since run out.

"If you do that, you'll have to leave the ecliptic for a few days."

"Yes, I think that will probably happen."

"okay."

Hunting gatherings take place over several days at the host's territory. That's why they say they pitch tents and stay near hunting grounds.

Seongjin was looking forward to it. You can come to another world and feel the camping sensibility that is not even in Palja!

'When I was on Earth, I thought about wasting my time and effort on such annoying things.'

The position now is completely different from then. I'm a prince, right?

Edith or the resident knights would probably do all the miscellaneous work, like setting up the tent or cooking.

'All I have to do is hang out with Max, enjoy my free time, and meditate whenever I have free time!'

The Milo boss's investigation has been completed, so there's nothing too urgent now. At this point, let me give Max and the resident knights a change of heart.

Is the only remaining worry about my father's meals? I have to take care of the packed lunch, but if we go out to the countryside, this guy will have to starve for a few days.

'First of all, Director Katrina decided to bring us a salmon lunch box.'

In fact, she was too grandiose to ask for such a small task. But for some reason, she had a feeling that it wouldn't be possible to do anything other than the leader.

So, when I went to ask for a lunch box to be delivered, Francis' reaction was very intense.

-Our leader is the leader of Saint Aurelion, one of the most powerful knights in the Holy Empire! Even though it is for His Majesty the Holy Emperor, why should he personally do the work that his servants do? I'd rather go!

But Seongjin flatly refused. A lunch box brought by this foul-tempered lieutenant.

-What are you going to do if your father behaves? stop.

-what? Sir, what does that mean now? yes?

However, Katrina was very happy when she heard the request.

-It is my greatest honor to entrust such an important task to me, sir!

-... No, Captain?

Look. The leader definitely said he would do it, right?

Seongjin excitedly laughed at the adjutant, whose expression was crumpled, and arrived at the main palace in triumph.

"Mores."

"Yes, father."

Seonghwang's face looked somewhat dark, so Seongjin straightened his posture and listened to what he said.

"No matter what anyone says, you are the next Oracle. So, even if you think you made your decision inadvertently, keep in mind that there is always a special reason for that choice."

... Why choose?

"Do you understand? From now on, you must be careful and careful in everything you do."

"... .."

Seongjin could now easily recognize a faint feeling of worry on his cold face.

Well, considering all the accidents I've done so far, it's not unreasonable.

"Haha, don't worry. It's not far away, it's near the imperial capital. I'm going to take Lord Masaine and a lot of the resident knights."

"... .."

"I'm going to leave everything to the resident drivers and just have fun. Really!"

Seongjin tried to reassure him.

I wouldn't be able to ride a horse anyway because of Max, so would I be able to hunt properly? We had no choice but to treat it as a picnic and spend the whole day inside the camp.

"Could something happen in the camp? The jinx [the curse of social gatherings] has already disappeared."

It was right then. An unusually bright silver light flashed in Seonghwang's eyes!

However, before Seongjin could properly recognize the appearance, Seonghwang quickly lowered his head and avoided looking down.

"... ..?"

Now that I think about it, when I talk to this guy, I often find him staring blankly at his teacup with his eyes down.

'Until now, I thought it was just a habit... ..'

Didn't it look like he was dodging something in a hurry just now? It was when Seongjin tilted her head.

"Bute Mores."

"yes?"

"Have you ever eaten something you hunted yourself?"

hmm?

"no? "I think this is your first time hunting properly?"

There wasn't much of a chance. By the time I worked as a hunter on Earth, the ecosystem had already been devastated thanks to monsters.

Well, I don't know what it would have been like during the Mores era.

"I've never eaten deer or wild boar before, so I'm looking forward to it. "The chefs will make a decent meal, right?"

"... .."

Seonghwang then opened his mouth as if he wanted to say something more, but then slowly shook his head.

"No, it's nothing. "It would be good to experience something firsthand."

"... ..?"

"It's quite a hassle."

Leonard grumbles again.

He had been following Romain aimlessly since earlier, holding a bottle of alcohol in his hand.

"Didn't I tell you that it would take a long time so you don't have to follow me?"

Romain, who responded like that, sighed softly.

He was now wandering around the foot of the mountain, busily putting something on the ground from time to time. It started at noon, and now it is almost sunset.

"What does all that do?"

"As I have said many times, we are in the process of engraving the circuit of the normal world in an appropriate location."

"The normal world? "What was that?"

"I've already explained that several times, but... .."

Romaine was currently trying to figure out how to drive Princess Amelia into a dead end.

If things go well and he can sneak her into the portal, he will be able to try [Charm] on her himself.

"If I look at the things you do, there are a lot of them that are very useless. "The hard work you did to plant things for people before turned out to be useless in the end, right?"

Leonard, who was chatting comfortably, took a drink from the bottle. At this point, Romain can't help but feel the limits of her patience.

"Why am I doing these troublesome things? "If Leo had just gone ahead with the original plan, there wouldn't have been a need for such troublesome work."

Didn't he shout so loudly that he would capture the princess's heart?

-Amelia, in order to make your love with me come true, please click [Accept]. my love.

If everything had worked out as planned, everything would have ended with just one word.

But despite his obvious beatings, Leonard was not discouraged in the slightest.

"I tried, Romain. If the princess doesn't give me her heart until the end, it's definitely not because I lack charm. "It's just that her tastes are a little strange."

"... .."

It's my fault for trying to fight this man.

Romaine closed his mouth as he felt his blood pressure rising in his body.

"But what have you been looking for so much? "Can't I just draw that circuit anywhere?"

After Romain finished his work, he looked around through the bushes again, and Leonard stuck his head in next to him and asked.

"I'm looking for signs of cracks, Leo."

"crack?"

"Yes, it is."

Slurp. Sreuk.

Romain, who was wading through the tall grass with one hand, found something and pointed to a spot on the ground. The dirt floor is particularly dark red compared to other places.

"Look at this."

"Are you saying that's the trace?"

"That's right."

Romaine nodded, his eyes shining quietly beneath his half-mask.

"It is a sign that the Delcross dimension was almost torn into pieces after being caught up in the Ionian disaster many years ago. "It's the perfect place to blow up an imperfect circuit."

Let's catch a lot of game and fill the palace refrigerator!

That was what he was thinking, but it was his dedicated maid, Edith, who immediately dashed Seongjin's dreams.

"Killing and eating wild boars? Sir, that is a very unreasonable thing to say, isn't it?"

She always showed a fierce attitude, but today, for some reason, she reacted bluntly.

"Why not?"

"You have no idea how bad wild boar meat smells. Especially in this season, if you kill a female pig, it doesn't smell very good."

"... ok?"

Seongjin blinked his eyes.

I heard clearly from my senior, right? It is said that once, while standing guard, they caught a wild boar that came to eat Jjampap, and a meat party was held in the unit that day. He said it was very delicious.

But despite such rebuttal, Edith was adamant.

"If anyone has ever eaten it, it must have been in the winter."

... Was it like that?

"Maybe it was just a young sow?"

"I didn't hear if it was male or female. Come to think of it, I think they said there wasn't enough meat because it was small... .."

what. Does it taste that bad?

As I looked at him with doubt, Masain silently nodded his head next to me.

'Oh, it's ruined. I shouted to my father that I would catch a wild boar.'

Of course, I think the guy ate it without even asking.

-No, it's nothing. It would be nice to experience something firsthand.

I guess that was the story. Since Seongjin seemed so expectant, it seems he couldn't bear to tell her the truth.

I was very disappointed, but Edith shook her head.

"You can cook it with strong alcohol and spices, but that doesn't make it delicious. "If you live in a rural area where there is very little to eat, is there any reason to eat such a thing in the capital where food is plentiful?"

That's right.

Because the capital is overflowing with delicious restaurants.

"But Edith, you know your prey quite well, don't you?"

"Well, before I came to the Imperial Capital, I also hunted often. "I lived deep in the mountains."

"okay?"

"It's not a very good memory. Hunting is a lot of work. "From dismantling to disposal, it's a very cumbersome task."

"... .."

This explains why an Auror user like Edith became a dedicated maid instead of a squire. Edith, you really hate working.

Of course, this is not the correct attitude a dedicated maid should have.

"Lowering. "Deer and rabbits are quite edible if you cook them well."

When Seongjin looked very disappointed, Lord Masaine added something insinuatingly.

"Uh, okay. Thank you, Lord Martha."

Okay, we can't back down like this!

I'll have to tell all the resident knights to only target deer!

339. Deer Hunting (3)

The early autumn sky was high and clear. The air was quiet, but as the horse ran quickly, a cool breeze passed through my ears. It was perfect weather for hunting.

Nevertheless, the Earl of Bathurst's face was dark as he looked up at the blue sky. From the time he left his mansion, he began to have friction with his daughter Margaret, which made him feel uncomfortable.

-No time to waste on hunting parties!

When told to come to the hunting camp and get to know the members, Margaret came out in full bloom. Now it was time for her to meet some nice gentlemen and decide on a wife, but her daughter was still as immature as her child.

Where is that? They are preoccupied with preparing for the tea party, which has three more weeks left on the schedule.

-father! Do you know who is coming to this tea party? oh my god... The rose of the imperial palace! Princess Amelia said she was coming!

Margaret shouted with great excitement.

-And recently, wherever Princess Amelia goes, the Queen of Society, Lady Scarzzapino, follows her! This will definitely be the best tea party of my life!

The Earl of Bathurst was dumbfounded.

What did the princess say? No matter how much he monopolizes His Majesty's favor, isn't he the type of person who will sooner or later get married and leave for a distant foreign country?

At that time, a slender middle-aged woman approached him riding a horse.

"William. Forget about Margaret. "If the organizer's expression was so dark, what would the participants think of us?"

"ma'am... .."

The Count twitched his nose.

His wife, who had married from Anatolia, was carrying on the southern family tradition of enjoying hunting. Not only did she consistently participate in hunting parties, but she also killed more deer than her husband each time.

When she was young, there were times when she looked like a goddess from mythology as she ran through the hunting grounds. However, as many years have passed, he now wishes that his wife would have more elegant tastes and hang out with the noble ladies of the imperial capital.

"Think about it, William. "If you come to a hunting party and just tell them to sit quietly at camp, is there any way Margaret will like it?"

Madam, that's just your opinion. Margaret isn't particularly interested in hunting either.

As the count was thinking, a large carriage with the god's emblem on it suddenly appeared.

'okay. Come to think of it... ..'

At most hunting parties, there is only one person sitting quietly in the camp.

Mores Klein.

The bastard third prince of the Holy Empire, who was called the disgrace of the Holy Imperial Family not long ago.

"Is it okay if it stays like this? The prince continues to stay at the camp alone... .."

The wife, noticing his gaze, asked cautiously.

"Lord Martha is not with you."

"That's not what you're saying, is it? William. Since we hosted the gathering, we have an obligation to provide at least some enjoyment to everyone in attendance."

"But what pleasure can be found in a hunting party other than hunting?"

"That's true, but... .."

How embarrassed I was when Prince Mores suddenly announced that he would participate in the invitation sent as a courtesy. Still, considering the prince's recent actions, I thought he might be slightly concerned about his reputation.

But when the prince arrived, it wasn't even a sight.

After being impressed by the striking resemblance between the Emperor and Empress Elizabeth for a moment, the Prince only exchanged greetings at the count's residence and locked himself in the carriage on the road. Then he dragged the wagon all the way to the hunting camp!

'Is he crazy...? ... '

The carriage crawling up the unpaved mountainside was amazing, but the prince stubbornly staying in his seat in the rickety carriage was even more surprising.

"Lowering. The wagon may not reach the camp. Riding a horse right now... .."

At first, the count tried to dissuade him several times, but the prince was steadfast to the end.

"It's okay, Count. You will be able to go all the way. Besides, my dog hates it when I ride a horse."

"... yes? outline?"

Wong!

Then the prince's dog barked loudly and waggled its tail. With a dark gray back and glowing yellow eyes, it looked more like a huge wild wolf than a dog.

Ki-ing, ki-ing-

Thanks to this, the hunting dogs, who should be brave enough to drive deer, are so intimidated that they curl their tails to one side. Where else in the world can such a nuisance be found?

"Hey, our Max is the leader here. "Have you clearly established military discipline?"

Wong wong!

"Good job, Max. "Would you like some beef jerky as a reward?"

Wow~

William Bathurst vigorously rubbed his forehead where he had a headache. What on earth is that immature prince thinking?

"Oh, but the Earl of Bathurst?"

"Yes, sir."

"Are the people with the hounds over there citizens of Bathurst Territory?"

"They are half hunters and half selected citizens. The strongest people were selected from the territory. "You have to lead the dogs out of the forest and hunt down the game first."

"Yes, sturdy... .."

And the young prince gave a cool look to the people gathered in the corner for a moment. Just from the outside, they are truly full of royal dignity and dignity.

"Aren't these slippery creatures very trustworthy when it comes to running at the same speed as the dogs? Aside from the territory residents, why are the hunters so skinny?"

"yes?"

"I heard that Bathurst Territory is overflowing with game every year, but that's really strange. "It looks like you haven't been hunting properly lately?"

However, listening to words spoken without common sense like that, I couldn't help but wonder if he was really the prince who inherited the blood of the royal family.

"Of course we don't hunt without the lord's permission. "Because they don't have the right to hunt."

"Hunting rights?"

"That's right. All the game in the territory belongs to the lord. Private hunting is strictly prohibited, especially before and during hunting season. "Isn't it obvious?"

Bathurst grew irritated by the prince's absurd question.

"... Right."

Fortunately, the prince doesn't ask any more questions and quietly settles into the carriage again.

"... .."

The Earl of Bathurst, shaken by the somewhat cold atmosphere, glanced back at the residents of the territory pointed out by the prince. This is because I was a little concerned about the evaluation that it was a bit awkward.

But he soon tilted his head.

'What's the problem? 'Isn't that stronger than usual?'

Everyone will see the prince saying such trivial things.

But the prince's eccentricities did not end there. He managed to arrive at the camp by forcefully pulling the carriage, but this time Prince Mores had quietly locked himself inside the tent.

'If you're going to do that, why did you come?'

However, it did not mean that he had no interest in hunting at all. Why not bring in a bunch of guard knights and even hold a hunting competition on the spot!

-Do you understand? Grab as many as you can. In particular, sweep away all the deer. The best performers will receive premium spirits from Rohan and a five-day vacation. You can cook and eat the game you catch however you like.

It was truly absurd. There is a limit to putting a ban on a gathering!

The members of the hunting club are mostly people of noble status, and although they enjoy hunting, they are merely ordinary people. But how can we stop the powerful Auror users who attack with determination?

"Wow, it's alcohol!"

"It's vacation!"

"It's a meat party!"

just as expected. Aren't the imperial knights running into the forest faster than horses even before the hunting dogs start chasing them?

Needless to say, the enthusiasm of the remaining members was dampened.

'Are they really the knights of the Imperial Guard? It's so frivolous.'

'I heard that the resident knights of the Pearl Palace only gather people who are a bit unique. They say they are all terrible drinkers and rough-tempered people.'

'Ah, so they are the 3rd Prince's people as expected.'

'What on earth is the Earl of Bathurst doing...? . If this is the case, I'll have to look into another meeting next year.'

The sound of the members whispering made my blood boil.

'If I don't stop him right now... ... !'

The hunting party that has been waiting for a year is in danger of being ruined. The count, very upset, approached the prince's tent to protest.

But suddenly, a sturdy knight quickly blocked his path. At one time, he was Sir Masain, the heir to the royal family.

"Stop, Earl of Bathurst. "You are meditating right now."

"... yes?"

"It will interfere with your training, so if you have any business, please tell me first. "I will tell you later."

"... ... ?!"

... training?

The Earl of Bathurst couldn't hide his bewilderment and just kept his mouth shut. He simply could not understand the prince. If that's the case, why on earth did that person come to the hunting party!

'I think it's a good thing I came.'

Seongjin, who had finished meditating satisfactorily, stretched out and thought, and the devil opened his mouth as if he was dumbfounded.

[What is good at? Nothing has changed at all since I was at Jinju Palace. Why did you come here?]

'Nothing has changed. 'Everyone likes it, right?'

As soon as Seongjin gave permission, Max got excited and ran into the mountains. Whether it's hunting or running around, whatever you do will be fine.

The resident drivers also seemed to be having fun as they came out to the countryside for the first time in a while.

[Are knights on the same level as mixed breed dogs? Are you saying we all came for a walk at once?]

The Demon King was extremely dumbfounded.

'That's the same for you too... ..'

Recently, I couldn't help but feel like I had abandoned him while accessing Pangea Chronicle. So, for the first time in a long time, he was out of the imperial capital's [grace] and tried to make him feel better.

Of course, I did not tell this story directly to the Demon King. It was obvious that he would jump up and down, asking if he was on the same level as a mixed breed dog.

'shut up. I just need to get some air too.'

[If you want to get some fresh air, wouldn't you first go outside the tent?]

'Well, I was going to do that anyway.'

Seongjin shrugged his shoulders and left the tent. That's because the smell of grilling meat wafted from outside.

"Lowering!"

Sir Claudia, who was sitting in front of the bonfire, stood up and smiled brightly.

"Are you finished with meditation?"

"Yes, Sir Claudia. "But what are you baking now?"

"Yes, this is the wild boar I caught!"

... wild boar?

What, it smells better than I thought?

Seongjin tilted his head and approached the bonfire. Then, Sir Calmen, who was about to tear into the meat, hesitated and pulled up his seat.

'Is it Lord Claudia and Lord Calmen again...? ... '

At first glance, the two of them didn't seem to get along very well, but it was amazing to see them get along so often while bickering.

"What about Sir Martha and the other knights?"

"Lord Masaine is coming after looking around for a moment. "The other resident knights are still hunting."

"But have you two already finished hunting? "Why don't you catch more?"

Then Sir Claudia wrinkled her freckled nose.

"If I roast this guy first, I'm going to go catch him again. "He wondered if there was a need to kill an animal he wasn't going to eat."

That's right, it's truly Claudia-like to only focus on eating right away without any competitive mentality.

"Then what about Lord Calmen?"

"... ... !"

Sir Calmen, who already had a lot of meat in his mouth, was embarrassed by the sudden question and muttered his lips.

Sir Claudia, who was worse off, responded sharply on his behalf.

"Lord Calmen, there is no need to take leave anyway, sir."

"huh? why?"

"Wouldn't Captain Bruno continue to guard Jinju Palace? That's why my student can't go out and have fun on his own."

Then Sir Calmen made a sullen expression with his cheeks bulging.

Director Bruno always enjoyed teaching his students, but after his recent visit to Sigismund Territory, he was even more enthusiastic about teaching Sir Carmen. Thanks to this, only Sir Calmen, who has a mediocre talent, is dying.

"Lord Calmen. It's dangerous if you cook it roughly like that. Do you know how many parasites there are in the bodies of wild animals? "It should be thoroughly cooked before eating."

"... parasitism... what?"

Sir Calmen, who had barely managed to get the meat down his throat, asked back, but Seongjin waved his hand in annoyance.

"Well, there is such a thing. Even if I explain it to you, you probably won't understand it."

I'm crying!

Blood is seen gushing out on Lord Calmen's forehead.

But fortunately, he did not carelessly swear at Seongjin like before. He had just fallen from [grace] and I was a little worried that his anger management issues might be getting worse.

It seems that the 'Pavlov's Dog' training was quite successful.

"But is this the price of meat? "What about the rest?"

When I asked about there being only a few pieces of meat left on the bonfire, Sir Claudia answered while turning over the pieces of meat.

"I handed it over to the hunters in the territory as wages. "I have never cleaned it myself, so I asked them to handle it and cut off only the tasty parts."

hmm.

I am reminded of the skinny people I saw on the street today.
Seongjin nodded.

"Well done, Sir Claudia."

"lol."

Sir Claudia smiled innocently and handed Seongjin a piece of meat.

"Ah, this is the best baked. Would you like to try it?"

"Ok, fine."

Seongjin nodded obediently. Sir Calmen didn't die after eating it, so it's probably okay.

But that was when I had just received the meat from her.

'hmm?'

Seongjin suddenly stopped and turned his head toward the mountain, feeling an eerie sensation running down his spine.

"... Lowering? "Why are you doing this?"

At the same time.

Whoa whoa!

Max's long cries, looking for Seongjin, could be heard from afar.

340. Deer Hunting (4)

About an hour ago.

It was truly by chance that Masain discovered the strange sign.

-Shall we park the carriage here?

While saying that, the place Prince Mores pointed to was an awkward location that blocked the tent and the center of the camp.

-Then the entrance to the tent is not blocked, sir?

-It's okay, Sir Masaine. It's easy to carry luggage, and I like this place just fine.

The prince, having made such a decision, soon went into the tent to meditate.

Masain, who was naturally stationed at the entrance of the tent to stand guard, began to glance sideways at the carriage that was subtly blocking his view.

Then there was a moment.

Susss-

Beyond the roof of the carriage, I could see the trees on a distant mountain peak waving faintly. At first glance, it seemed like it was shaking in the wind, but the rhythm was strangely off and the movement went against his will.

'Is it because of my mood...? ... '

For some reason, I felt a slight vibration beneath my feet.

Masain looked at the distant mountains with a stern face. A high mountain peak slightly to the west of the current location where the hunting party was being held.

"Why are you doing this, Sir Martha?"

Sir Kurt, who was giving various instructions to the coachman, looked at him in confusion.

"It's nothing, Sir Kurt. But didn't you feel that vibration just now?"

Then Sir Kurt turned his head and looked towards the western mountains.

"Vibration? "Where are you talking about?"

"... .."

Excluding Sir Masaine and Sir Maria, Sir Kurt is the most skilled among the resident knights. I can't believe he didn't notice anything wrong.

'Was it a mistake?'

Masain had just had that thought.

Susss-

The trees sway once again. It was definitely not an illusion this time!

'... what?'

This is a forest near Hwangdo. There was no way that seawater or anything could hold their feet.

The only large animals would be wild boars or bears.

'But what does that movement mean, as if the entire mountain is shaking?'

An ominous feeling comes over me.

Masain had felt this way once a long time ago. That thick, ominous feeling of being caught in an invisible noose thrown by someone and slowly being suffocated.

"If there's anything you're concerned about, I'll go and take a look."

At Sir Kurt's words, Masaine thought for a moment.

'I must protect my Majesty's side.'

However, the potential danger that could harm the prince cannot be left alone.

Perhaps you should go see it yourself. Even his superior knight, Sir Kurt, didn't notice. There was no way he would be able to find the epicenter no matter how much he sent others.

Masain expanded his energy as much as possible and explored his son-in-law.

Fortunately, there doesn't seem to be anything special in the surroundings other than the presence of small mountain animals, and the resident knights who are out hunting are all nearby.

'and... ... '

The prince's exclusive informant was also quite nearby.

'Dasha... Did you say that?'

Masain stared for a moment at the bush where he could sense a faint presence.

After meeting Masain and Director Bruno earlier, Dasha no longer cared about their gaze and was doing her job more boldly.

'It's very shameful that I taught him the strange art of Auror concealment, but Ilsin's power is still quite trustworthy.'

After making up his mind, Masain looked back at Sir Kurt.

"Lord Kurt."

"Yes, Sir Martha."

"I'm going to take a look around for a moment. "Please protect me in the meantime."

Then Sir Kurt's expression changed strangely. 'Why would this person voluntarily leave the prince's side?' A face that clearly reveals the question.

"... .."

"Oh, excuse me. I will do so, Sir Masaine. "Don't worry!"

After confirming that Sir Claudia and Lord Calmen were seated in front of the campfire, Masain immediately turned around and quickly left the camp.

When I focused my aura and increased my speed, I was able to climb a low mountain in no time.

'It's a strange thing. Even though it is in the same Bathurst Territory, the atmosphere is quite different from the hunting ground next door.'

Is it because the forest is so dense? The western mountains strangely gave off a dark and gloomy aura. There is not even much sign of wild animals.

Masain reached a fairly high ridge, took a moment to catch his breath, and looked at the hunting camp in the distance.

'It looks like nothing much is going on over there.'

Right then.

Ugh-

Again, there is a small vibration under my feet. This time it was quite close. At the same time, the dark trees were shaking their branches and making eerie friction sounds.

sssss-

As expected, there was no sign of any wild animals nearby. The ground is shaking of its own accord.

Masain began to scan the surroundings with a stiff expression on his face.

Ugh-

How much time has passed? After a while, when a small vibration came from the ground again, Masain was able to find a stone hidden under a bush.

A red stone that is not the natural color of minerals but has a distinctly different feel no matter how you look at it.

'That... ... ?'

As I get closer, the vibration rings again.

Ugh-

"... ... !"

For a moment, Masain was shocked and froze in place. This is because, at the same time as the vibration, faintly glowing red patterns suddenly appeared and disappeared around the red stone.

It was a pattern that Masain had definitely seen at some point.

-Well, what you said... It was all true. The devil... There is a devil in the imperial palace! Wow!

A guard knight who left to protect his father, Prince Cameron, and returned alone and covered in blood. Unidentifiable blood-red patterns were clearly embedded between his eyebrows.

-I can feel the energy of the curse. Everyone should avoid this place!

Red patterns appeared one after another on the body of the priest who was shouting like that, as if it were contagious. The 1st Prince's camp became a sea of blood in such a short period of time.

The hand holding Misra was shaking.

-Please take care of me. The only legitimate successor to the throne is Masain.

The same was true of the knight commander, who had been urging that until the end. Patterns emerged clearly from his blood-covered face. Symbols of curse.

A chill ran down my spine.

'Here... there is!'

Masain realized it right away.

'It's still here! The guy who created that evil curse back then is still circling around, eyeing the imperial capital!'

Demonic species that once tried to completely devour the continent. That evil group is still lurking in secret.

And as soon as Masain escaped the [grace] of the ecliptic, he showed his tail as if to show off.

'This fact must be known. Dear Uncle... And to the Order of St. Aurelion!'

Masain gritted his teeth and slowly moved towards the red stone.

The fear of the terrible curse he experienced as a child was still deeply engraved in his mind, as if it were a stigma.

But he was no longer the helpless child he was then. Isn't he a worthy knight of the royal guard who protects the royal family and Prince Mores?

'It is unclear whether that will remain until the Holy Knights are brought in. First, you have to take it as evidence...'

Masain took out a small gun that he was carrying in his arms. It was a precious cloth that Sisley personally blessed for use in embroidery.

As a Masain without divine power, I couldn't confirm whether I could sense demonic energy from that stone. However, even if it is activated upon contact like the previous curse, this sacred cloth will block demonic energy for a while.

It was when, with difficulty, I picked up the stone, fighting the constant fear in my heart.

Whoa whoa!

A long howl, like a wolf's sound, was heard from afar.

"... ..!"

There are no packs of wolves living around here. Still, if it's making that sound, is it probably just a wolfdog?

"... Lowering?"

What happened to you?

As soon as the face of Prince Mores came to mind, the complicated thoughts in my mind flew away in an instant.

Masain quickly started running in the direction of the sound, holding a stone wrapped in sandpaper in his arms.

Seongjin suddenly felt an eerie premonition and looked towards the distant western mountains.

'... what?'

As I was overcome with an uneasy feeling, I naturally remembered the words that Seonghwang had given me before coming here.

-No matter what anyone says, you are the next Oracle. So, even if you think you made your decision inadvertently, keep in mind that there is always a special reason for that choice.

A special reason why I decided to come here... ..

But there was no time to think deeply anymore. Soon after, Max's long cries were heard from the hunting ground.

Whoa whoa!

The guy was urgently calling out to Seongjin.

"Lowering?"

When Seongjin put down the meat and stood up, Sir Claudia looked up at him curiously.

'Let's think about this unpleasant feeling later,'

First, we need to solve the urgent issues. Isn't my dog calling for his guardian right now?

Seongjin quickly tied the nutcracker to his waist and started running toward the hunting ground without saying a word.

"Um, my name?"

"No, instead of trying to eat, where are you suddenly going?"

Sir Claudia and Sir Calmen are startled and run after Seongjin. I also felt that two strong Auror users were following behind them.

'Lord Kurt! Dasha!'

Seongjin, who sensed their presence only through his senses, felt relieved and increased his speed. If you take this much power, Lord Masain won't nag you later, right?

"Lowering! Is there a problem? Please wait!"

Leaving behind Sir Kurt's urgent voice, Seongjin took a step forward without hesitation.

Is it because Max is one of his descendants? Without much effort, Seongjin was able to pinpoint Max's location as if he could see it.

It was when we reached a valley overflowing with moss. Seongjin was finally able to find Max, who was barking bravely at a mountain animal.

Kkkkkkkk! Kkkkkkkk!

"Max?!"

Fortunately, the dog looked fine. The problem is that the opponent Max is facing is an extremely large bear.

Whoa!

Even though it was a tense moment, Seongjin was very embarrassed the moment he saw the scene.

'what? Was the bear originally such a huge beast?'

The red-brown bear was standing upright on both feet and threatening Max, but it was so large that I wondered if it was really a bear. The height from head to head is almost 3 meters, and the sharp claws also appear to be approximately 20 centimeters.

A very unusual size considering a bear on Earth.

'Is that a bear from another world? 'It's a huge feeling of intimidation, isn't it?'

But Sir Kurt, who followed right behind, was astonished and shouted as soon as he saw the scene.

"what? "It's not even sea water, but a bear that big lives in a nearby forest?"

Oh, that's right then. I don't think it's a normal bear.

[What are you doing, that mongrel dog! Even when arguing, you have to look at the other person. Is that guy sane?]

Even the devil is freaking out -

Wong wong wong!

Max, who discovered Seongjin, increased his momentum and began to put pressure on the bear. Just by looking at it, it appears to be carrying its owner on its back in triumph.

Seongjin broke into a cold sweat.

'Max. No matter how you look at it, isn't that an opponent that is far beyond your capabilities?'

When I first let my dog out on the hunting ground, I thought he would run around happily and catch a rabbit.

Isn't this an opponent that is well over 10 times his size? Even if the angry bear let out a breath, Max felt like he would fly away.

'Max. 'You caused an unthinkable accident while I was out of sight for a moment!'

Max was circling around the bear, doing a good job of keeping him in one place. Thanks to this, the bear's spirit becomes more and more vicious.

Pow! Ujikkeun!

As the bear swung its log-like arm, the entire tree broke and fell to the ground.

Max, who had been diligently looking for gaps until then, quickly retreated to avoid the tree falling on his head.

It was a narrow miss.

'... ... !'

However, even in an urgent situation, Seongjin could not hastily jump in among them.

That's right-

Wong wong!

-That's my prey! I'll catch you!

Because Max was barking cheerfully and his eyes were shining. Should she call that brave or reckless?

Hwiik-

Sigh!

Avoiding the bear's attack as it swung again, Max quickly kissed the bear's side.

Of course, the difference in size was so great that we couldn't even reach each other properly, so we had to quickly back away as soon as the bear turned.

It was so dangerous that my hands were covered in cold sweat.

"Max! stop!"

No, why is that guy so reckless! Did I raise you like that?

However, even though he was aware that it was against Seongjin's will, Max's gaze as he glared at the bear was extremely confident.

Wong wong wong!

-Do you like that? You ate just that every day before, right?

Whoa!

-So, I'll catch you today! I'm strong and big and I'll let you eat that! Hang in there!

"No, Max... .."

Seongjin, who read the guy's thoughts, was heartbroken.

"That guy, did you remember that I ate bear meat every day in Sigismund?"

[hmm. A bit special on the topic of mixed breed dogs... no! Is now the time to think like that? Hurry and stop me, Lee Seong-jin!]

Whoa whoa!

-I catch it! So, master! Hurry and make me strong and huge!

Seongjin suddenly came to his senses at Max's energetic howling. Oh my. The devil is right. This is not the time to think like this.

The reason why Max called Seongjin was clear. He must have asked to turn himself into a big person like Louise.

'But that's impossible, Max.'

Slurp-

Seongjin pulled out a nutcracker and measured the distance to the bear.

In the end, if things continued like this, the result of that confrontation would be as obvious as fire. Once Max's momentum subsides a little, Seongjin and the resident knights will have to rush in and catch the bear.

'I know for sure... ... '

Nevertheless, the reason why I have no choice but to hesitate is-

[Lee Seong-jin! What are you procrastinating about? If that happens, the mixed breed dog will die!]

No, devil.

But look at that guy. He's so full of confidence. But how could I just arbitrarily come in between them and crush his motivation so cruelly?

okay. Seongjin was somehow caught in a strange feeling.

This was a matter of trust with family members. If I take one wrong step now, there may be an irreparable crack in my relationship with Max.

[Lee Seong-jin!]

Of course, Seongjin also felt like his blood was drying up.

Max's every movement and the bear's every breath are transmitted to Seongjin without filtering through his extremely sensitive senses.

Wow!

Max glanced at Seongjin and lunged at the bear again.

However, Seongjin was able to foresee clearly at the moment. The bear, waiting for the attack, would slash its vicious claws right at Max's head.

'Max!'

It won't work!

Seongjin stopped measuring and ran, holding the nutcracker. However, perhaps out of desperation, his Auror moved one step ahead of his body.

Hissing-

At that moment, Seongjin could clearly feel the connection he had vaguely sensed with Max. The auror that was moving along Seongjin's body leaps through space and moves towards the wolfdog at high speed, following his intention.

Phew!

It was at that time that Max's body grew significantly.

"... ..!"

Kwawaang!

calf? No, Max, who had grown much taller than the pony, kicked the ground. As his legs stretched, Max's body jumped into the air, easily avoiding the bear's counterattack.

"... "What is that?"

"dog... a dog?"

The resident knights who followed Seongjin and tried to attack the bear looked up into the sky in shock. But that wasn't the end.

Wow-

Max, who had dodged the bear's claws, quickly twisted his body and bit off the back of the bear's neck!

Long fangs flashed, and an eerie crack sound that echoed through the air was heard.

Quad deud deuk!

341. Deer Hunting (5)

Hehehe!

The bear's scream echoes throughout the mountain. The bear's eyes were stained with pain and embarrassment as it suddenly gave up its vital spot.

Max's fangs were not able to pierce the bear's carotid artery at once, but the fangs of the wolf dog with an aura were sharp enough.

Wow! Hehe!

The bear, which was writhing in pain, twirled its body around and tried to bite Max's spine.

Accordingly, the wolf dog's body also shakes helplessly. Although the size had grown significantly, the difference was so large that it could be considered a mother and cub compared to the size of a bear.

Wow!

Nevertheless, Max steadfastly held on to the bear's neck. The thick fur is completely pierced, and the blood flowing from the bear's wound soaks the fur.

"Max?! no way?"

Sir Claudia, who arrived a little late, opened her eyes wide and shouted. She had quite a sharp eye, and even though she had grown in size, she recognized Max's unique appearance and fur color.

"what? "Is that the dog?"

Sir Calmen, who came running after him, asked in confusion, but Sir

Kurt, who had actually seen the dog grow bigger, remained silent with a stern expression on his face.

In the end, Calmen had no choice but to turn his head to Seongjin.

"Lowering? "How on earth did this happen?"

But Seongjin didn't have the presence of mind to answer. Because he was concentrating with all his might not to lose sight of his precarious connection with Max.

This is because I instinctively realized that turning my attention away from the wolf-dog would not do either.

'I don't know exactly how I did it...'

For now, I had to hold on to this connection and continue sending aurors to Max. Otherwise, the wolf-dog will become small again, and the bear will catch it and crush it helplessly.

Ugh-

The higher Seongjin's concentration, the more active the auror became. Naturally, the aura transmitted to Max increases, and the muscles surrounding the skeleton wriggle with force.

Clumsy, clumsy.

At the same time, the bear's momentum becomes even stronger. This is because the wound caused by the fang got deeper and deeper.

The guy, panicked not only by the excruciating pain but also by the unexpected threat to his life, started going crazy.

Kuong!

Trees get caught in the front paws that are wildly swung to drive away the wolf dogs, and are cruelly broken off.

Flutter! Ujikkeun!

It spins round and round, hitting rocks and trees here and there.

thud! Quang! Whoops!

Max, who was clinging to the guy, was also receiving such shocks.

But even so, the wolf-dog did not move. The dog's stubbornness was stubborn, but according to Seongjin's will, the aurors covered the wolfdog's body in layers to protect it.

Kkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkk!

The wolf-dog's teeth dug deeper, and hot blood began to gush from the wound.

"iced coffee..."

The resident knights dumbly watched the tense battle without even thinking about it.

A battle between two people who, at first glance, seem like they are no match for each other. Nevertheless, as time passes, the victory is clearly tilted to one side.

By then, Seongjin was barely able to observe Max's condition with some leisure time.

'It's similar to the one I first saw at Sigismund Range. But I think he's a little bigger than then.'

Through the connection with this guy, aurors are constantly flowing. Ultimately, this means that Max's transformation is caused by Aurors.

If so, there was a way to check.

'Hey, devil!'

As soon as Seongjin called, the demon king immediately knew what to do.

[okay!]

As the Demon King was stably positioned within the flame crystal, a red light began to blink inside Seongjin's pupil. Soon, the spiritual eyes open and the world begins to become brightly colored with five colors.

and-

'Max's auror is different from before!'

Seongjin was soon able to find out Max's current condition.

When Sigismund's Spirit checked it with his spiritual eyes, it was emitting a purple aura like other Lycanslopes. It was clearly mixed with demonic energy, but I just thought it was because he inherited the blood of a demonic wolf.

However, the auror currently surrounding Max was a dull gray color, unlike before. The same goes for the faint solid line connecting the star.

What this meant was clear. The Auror that Max had shown before simply reflected the characteristics of Louise's Auror.

and-

'Now Max is part of my family. Could it be that this guy can draw on other people's auras?'

Seongjin's aura seen through his spiritual eyes is also dark gray. And Seongjin had never seen anyone else in Delcross with this kind of aura other than himself.

'Wolf of Ionia...'

Suddenly, I remembered what the Lycan Slope Lord had said before.

Berceus Dashiano, who was controlling Vajra at the time, coveted Max and said this.

-okay. Was it the blood of the Ionian wolf? Although it is a clumsy hybrid, it is probably a bloodline rarely seen in this dimension anymore. Well, it might be useful if you make it a servant.

Also, didn't Vajra's soul appeal to Seongjin like this?

-Ah, everything is resolved! Leave my soul stone to this dog! I'm sure you can take me to where the Lord is!

Wow! Whoa!

Meanwhile, the bear continued to struggle pointlessly with Max hanging on him.

'this... .. !'

Seongjin quickly activated his auror rotation and focused all his attention on the dull gray line connected to Max.

Exciting-

Then, Max's excited state was vividly conveyed through the connection.

-I'm still fine! I can do more!

Max, you immature bastard.

However, apart from the absurd feeling, I could also feel the vitality overflowing from Max's body without any filtering.

Kuang!

The soil was dug up where the bear struggled, creating a shallow hole. Due to that ferocious struggle, it seemed as if the wolf dog was crushed to the ground for a moment, but-

-are you okay! Because I am big and strong!

Seongjin's auror prepares for impact and protects the wolfdog tightly. Then, in sync with the bear's movement to throw the dog into the air again, the aurors gathered towards Max's fangs again.

-I'm with the owner!

It was a different sense of unity than when controlling the shaved ice.

During the battle in the Demon World, it felt as if Seongjin's soul had escaped from his body and taken on the body of Bingsu himself.

But the battle with Max was different.

The wolfdog completely understands Seongjin's thoughts, and Seongjin completely reads the wolfdog's movements. A desire to trust each other's judgment and fully realize the will that has been conveyed.

'... 'This is what it means to be a member of a family!'

Is there any other relationship based on trust stronger than this?

Suddenly, Seongjin felt a strange sense of elation.

How much time has passed like that?

Hehe!

Finally, the bear, whose strength was exhausted, lay down on the ground, panting.

Then Max stood firmly on the floor and struck the final blow with a strong grip.

Push!

Finally, the bear's carotid artery was completely torn and hot blood spurted out. The fallen bear occasionally flailing its limbs, but it soon turned into intermittent convulsions.

Eventually, when the bear completely stopped breathing, Sir Calmen, who had been holding his breath until then, let out a moan-like exclamation.

"I really caught that by myself... ... !"

Max howls powerfully into the air with his blood-soaked muzzle raised.

Whoa!

-saw? Have you seen how huge and strong I am?

"Yes, yes. "You fought well, Max."

After all, our Max is amazing. You may need to be harshly scolded for randomly running at a bear.

[I will scold the mixed breed dog no matter how well you do it.]

'What are you saying? I'm a guardian who does what he does!'

But now is probably the time to praise the puppy who is intoxicated with victory.

That was when I approached Max with a proud smile. Seongjin detected a strong Auror user running quickly from afar.

'Lord Martha?'

The senior knight heading towards Dekaron Knight followed Seongjin's presence as fast as a lightning bolt.

"Lowering!"

What he found as he ran in a panic was a huge wolf proudly pushing down the bear. And there was the young prince standing defenseless next to him without any fear.

Sparks flew from Masain's eyes.

"Get away from me, you monster!"

Sling!

When the sparkling Misra was pulled out, Seongjin was shocked and blocked his path.

"Whoa, Sir Martha!"

No, that's not it! So please stop!

Seongjin asked the Demon King in bewilderment.

'Demon King, is there an Arrange nearby?'

[no? All day today, there was no soul terminal in sight?]

Then how did your father find out about this?

[why? Do you think your father sent it?]

'Isn't it obvious?'

Seongjin narrowed his eyes and looked at the paladin, who was one head taller than the others.

Otherwise, Sir Francis would never have appeared at such good timing!

"What is all this, sir? "What if an accident like this happens before people are even ready?"

Francis, who leisurely entered the hunting camp, scolded Seongjin with a calm expression on his face, as if he was not overly surprised to see the huge wolf dog.

"Francis... "Did you say sir?"

The Earl of Bathurst hesitantly approached him.

Suddenly, a huge bear that I had never seen before appeared in the hunting ground. And then another huge wolf dog appeared and bit it to death.

In this unprecedented situation, when a person wearing the uniform of the Knights of Saint Aurelion appeared, Idaji could not relax.

"Please speak clearly. Um, what exactly is that wolf? Maybe it's a sea beast or a demon beast..."

William Bathurst's face was speechless.

Since something like that has appeared within one's territory, what can one do if inquisitors come rushing in and blame the lord's vices?

But Francis' expression remained calm.

"You are asking a strange question, Count. "Of course, that is a sacred dog, 'Shinsu.'"

"what? Si, Shinsoo?"

What on earth is that?

Everyone in the social group is embarrassed and whispering. However, this tall paladin continued speaking as if it was obvious.

"This is the [wind] that was said to have assisted Saint Bastian by his side. "Don't you all read the scriptures?"

Everyone was puzzled by the paladin's shameless attitude. Where on earth does that content exist in the scriptures?

Next, Francis seemed smug and gave an explanation.

In other words, the 'wind' of the scriptures that carried Saint Bastian up to the high snowy mountain. It wasn't the literal 'wind', but a 'divine beast' named wind?

"Oh, of course you might not know. If you have only scratched the surface of the scriptures, you may be confused. When you're busy managing your territory and running a business, you may be a bit negligent in building up your culture. "I understand everything."

"... .."

The adjutant, who immediately condemned all the members of the social club as uncultured, continued his explanation.

"You may not be able to feel it, but as a paladin, I can definitely tell. "I can feel the divine grace of the Lord in that dog."

blessing?

Everyone listened to his words with anxious expressions.

"But even if you're not a paladin, there are things you can tell by looking at them. Now, look at that proud figure standing up to protect Prince Mores from danger!"

The crowd looked back at the wolf-dog with a dumbfounded look on their faces.

"Max, stop. "Now is not the time for you to be like this."

Clap clap clap.

The dog is eagerly licking his head despite the prince's attempts to dissuade him. As the size has grown, the amount of saliva has doubled!

'... A confident look? Where?'

However, Francis continued to shout in a very angry voice.

"Even after seeing that sacred figure standing up resolutely to protect the royal family, do you really feel nothing?"

Jwajung rubbed his eyes and looked back at the dog.

"Please stay away. Now, ask me this!"

Wow! Wow!

A wooden plate thrown by the prince is pierced by sharp fangs.

However, the dog does not actually bring the plate to the owner, but rather runs around with the wooden plate in its mouth! No matter how you look at it, it looks like a poop puppy that hasn't been properly trained.

'... Divine posture? 'You must be joking, right?'

There was strong suspicion in the eyes of the social group members, but Francis waved his hands and finished his explanation in an insincere voice.

"For more information, please check [Saint Bastian and the Finger Devil]. Since ancient times, when new scriptures and fairy tales are published, isn't it the attitude of educated imperial subjects to quickly purchase them and familiarize them with them?"

Wow, Seongjin was very impressed.

In addition to propaganda and fabrication, they are also promoting it.
Francis was truly a versatile paladin.

342. Red Curse (1)

In shock and fear, the first day of the hunting party came to an end.

"... .."

It's a time to show off each other's game, cook and eat fresh meat, and build friendships.

However, people hesitated and did not rush into the camp. It was because of the huge wolf dog sitting proudly in the middle of the camp.

Clap clap clap.

The monster dog, which was licking Prince Mores's cheek with its large tongue, looked as if it would bite off the prince's entire head if it were to be attacked.

Masain, who could not see anything, cautiously came to the side and opened his mouth.

"Lowering."

He didn't seem to let his guard down, as if he was still unfamiliar with Max's appearance.

"That dog... "Is it true that Shinsu can no longer return to his original form?"

"hmm?"

Seongjin, who had been sitting blankly in half-meditation until then, looked up at Max and scratched his cheek.

"No, that's not it... .."

The reason why Max is currently maintaining this size is because Seongjin is continuously flowing aura. After recognizing the connection between the clans more clearly, it became possible to freely send auras to the dog.

The problem is that Seongjin realized an unexpected benefit from this connection.

'If Max is big, it's great for meditation.'

Aura practice is the work of naturally pulling the aura that is constantly circulating in the body into the dantian and settling it into orbit.

The larger and healthier the body, and the higher the Auror affinity, the faster the rate at which layers are built.

However, as he suddenly shared the Auror circulation with Max, Seongjin's body seemed to have doubled in size. As the space for circulating auras increases significantly, the amount of auras accumulated in the danjeon is bound to increase.

"People would have found out anyway, so I didn't think there was any need to rush back. So, I was meditating with my dog in my spare time... .."

Masain's face turned strange after hearing Seongjin's explanation.

Are you meditating even in this situation?

"... But sir, people are scared."

"what?"

Seongjin was taken aback by the unexpected words and looked back at the camp entrance. No, you're saying that you feel scared even after seeing such a cute and gentle puppy?

"You can practice as much as you want even after returning to the Jinju Palace. So, why don't you get your dog back to normal for now and get some rest?"

"Um, well, okay."

At Masain's recommendation, Seongjin stopped the flow of Aurors with a shocked expression.

OK-

Slurp.

Max's body suddenly becomes thin, like the air leaving a balloon. Just like what I saw one day when the connection with Louise was lost.

Of course, Max, who had returned to normal, was very disappointed.

Kiing-

-why? Why stop now? Don't you like me, strong and huge? huh?

"Max, you are strong enough even if you become small."

Wong!

-okay. If you do, fine.

Max, who was wagging his tail, licked Seongjin's hand.

Tsk tsk tsk!

"This cute guy!"

However, even though Max was brought back, the situation did not seem to improve much. This is because the members who witnessed the sight of the wolf dog shrinking before their eyes were frightened and took a step back.

"Huh!"

"The wolf has gotten really small!"

"Shh, it's not a wolf, it's a divine beast. If the Paladin hears, he might charge us with blasphemy!"

"Ah, I'm still so scared! Doesn't that mean it can grow again at any time?"

Oh my.

It seems like you're more scared somehow?

The ones who achieved the best results in today's hunt were by far the Jinju Palace resident knights. Drivers obsessed with high-end distilled spirits and vacations swept up every deer they could see. Occasionally, there were people who caught wild boars or roe deer.

On the other hand, the results brought by social group members were very poor. Except for the one deer that the Countess of Bathurst caught, all the achievements were a few small game such as rabbits or pheasants.

Seongjin clicked his tongue slightly.

"Oh my. I understand that it's ultimately a place to build friendships, but isn't it still a hunting party in name? Everyone needs to improve their hunting skills, right?"

"... .."

"Well, it's all about having fun, so I'll be considerate this time. "The game caught by the knights will be generously shared with the members, so don't worry too much, Count."

"... Truly, thank you. Lowering... .."

Count Bathurst responded to Seongjin's generous words with a trembling voice.

Anyone can see that this was because the prince held a hunting competition on his own, but it was something that could not be argued directly. The count could not help but lament. For this hunting party, we deliberately spread food in the forest to increase the number of deer, but didn't the wrong people sweep away all the game?

"If the prince will attend next year... ... !"

Needless to say, his hunting party will never be active again. Just imagining it made the Count feel like his stomach was burning.

Aside from the deep gloom on the host's face, Seongjin's group was in a completely festive mood.

"Congratulations, Lord Haven!"

"I really can't beat you! "This is the first time I've seen you move your body as enthusiastically as you did today!"

"Hmm haha! "This is no big deal!"

While the resident knights praised him, Lord Haven danced happily while holding a bottle of high-quality distilled liquor in his arms.

Seongjin looked at that figure in awe.

"I never thought Lord Haven would win..."

I thought he was a salary thief with no motivation to do anything, but when I heard about it, my eyes widened and he went around slaughtering deer? Anyway, you should know that he likes drinking.

"Anyway, what should we do with all these deer, sir?"

Sir Claudia asked, looking at the mountain of prey with puzzled eyes.

"Do as you did earlier. Wouldn't it be okay to distribute some to the members and leave the rest to the residents of Bathurst Territory?"

"If you are not a professional hunter, the leather may be damaged."

"What do you think? It's not like I'm selling leather. "It's not like it needs professional care anyway, right?"

It was as he said.

The resident knights who didn't know much about hunting cut off the deer's neck and body, so even if they tried to remove the skin, there was nothing useful about it.

"Give me all the meat and skin, and just ask me to keep some of the delicious parts."

Seongjin gave that instruction and briefly glanced at the skinny villagers gathered in the corner of the camp.

Although he is sincere in managing his hunting grounds to the point of banning hunting for all his subjects, the Earl of Bathurst is unlikely to be so tactless that he even takes back the gifts given by the prince.

"Oh, I see!"

But perhaps there was some misunderstanding, as Sir Claudia was looking at Seongjin with a very moved face.

"No way, your Majesty ordered the knights to intercept the game in advance..." ... !"

"huh?"

"I always feel this, but you are truly thoughtful. "It is a great honor to have such a person by my side."

"no..."

Seongjin was speechless and just blinked.

I've been thinking about this before, but what is this guy always misunderstanding? No matter what Seongjin does, she puts a good meaning into it and is moved by it in her own way.

"Sir, for the rest of my life..."

But that was when Sir Claudia added something. Lord Haven suddenly became very excited, pushed his head behind her and shouted.

"Hey! "I have never been so happy that I decided to dedicate the rest of my life to you!"

"what?"

"I will also dedicate the honor of winning today to you! Long live Prince Mores! Long live Rohan's premium spirits!"

Seongjin's face hardened.

"Is this the first time you've heard this? "I never agreed to it, so why are you freely offering it to me?"

Then Lord Haven's eyebrows drooped.

"yes? Wait. Isn't that too much, sir? I definitely said a long time ago that I would bury my bones at Jinju Palace from now on... ..!"

No, I don't know. There's no need.

You just live your life. Don't bother others for no reason.

Seongjin waved his hand and pushed back Sir Haven, who was in tears. Then the other resident knights giggled and patted Sir Haven on the shoulder.

"Go to sleep, cheer up. There must be one or two things you have dedicated your life to. "Don't you know that well?"

"No, I'm being serious this time too! Prince Mores is the savior of my life... ..!"

"Stop talking nonsense. Now, as a way of consoling everyone, why don't we open that bottle of liquor now? huh?"

"Whoa! What are you looking at now? "I will save this as an heirloom for the rest of my life and pass it down from generation to generation!"

Seongjin shook his head. Anyway, they seem like a bunch of drinkers that I can't stop.

"Sir, we brought the bear to camp."

Just then, Sir Kurt approached and reported to Seongjin. The bear Max caught was so large that it took several Auror users to move it?

"Good job. But didn't you hunt separately?"

This was a question asked because, surprisingly, the records of Sir Kurt, the most skilled of the resident knights, were very poor.

"Haha, Lord Masaine has firmly told me to stay by your side. So he didn't have time to show off his skills."

Sir Kurt smiles and answers awkwardly.

But Seongjin already knew that he had no interest in hunting from the beginning. Even while he was meditating, he was constantly detecting the presence of a senior knight attached to the camp.

"... .."

Sir Kurt, along with Sir Maria, is in charge of two axes of managing the resident knights. Unlike Sir Maria, who was faithful to her principles and had a strong hold on her junior knights, Sir Kurt tended to neglect his juniors except in very rare circumstances.

That's why they'll let the resident knights raid the count's hunting grounds as they please. It would have been impossible if Sir Maria had been the commander.

However, seeing as he released the knights and protected the camp until the end, it probably means that he has not forgotten his duty as a resident knight.

'Or maybe I was guessing in advance what to do with the game I caught... ..'

It was hard to know what he was thinking, but it was clear that he was a friend who thought a lot about many things.

"okay. "Thank you for your hard work tomorrow as well."

Anyway, I thought that he would continue to have a similar attitude, so I responded like that, and Sir Kurt looked at Seongjin with a strange expression.

"Sometimes I thought Sir Claudia was unusual... .."

"huh?"

"no. "It's nothing, sir."

Meanwhile, the mood among hunting club members was somber.

"At this rate, wouldn't it be safe to say that there are almost no deer left in the hunting grounds?"

"Why don't you move your hunting ground a little west, Count?"

Even for the Earl of Bathurst, it was not an impossible proposition.

The quality may be different from the hunting ground that was managed by releasing food for the hunting season, but wouldn't it be at least better than this place that was completely wiped out by the imperial knights?

I've heard rumors that Prince Mores is a crazy person, but I never thought he would do something this crazy.'

As he was looking at the prince's tent with resentful eyes, the count caught sight of a large imperial carriage.

At that moment, a bright and wonderful idea appeared in the Earl of Bathurst's mind.

He ran to the prince's tent and informed him that the hunting ground had been moved.

"West Mountain?"

"Yes, that's right, sir."

The Count answered politely and looked at Prince Mores with a kind smile.

"Your Majesty Haonde. "What are you going to do with me?"

"huh?"

"The roads in the western mountains are rough, so a carriage probably won't be able to climb them."

First of all, the plan was to separate Prince Mores and the resident knights, the source of all evil, from the gathering.

But the prince, who was thought to be embarrassed, actually smiled brightly. If you didn't know his true identity, he had a wonderful smile that you would have admired greatly.

"Ah, you take care of all that. But don't worry, Count."

"yes?"

"I just need to ride my dog. No problem."

William Bathurst blinked, wondering what he had just heard.

... yes?

343. Red Curse (2)

The Earl of Bathurst returned with a completely dumbfounded expression.

'Was riding a dog that shocking?'

Seongjin couldn't understand him at all.

I heard that famous saints also rode dogs? I heard that fairy tales from scriptures were even created? But what's the problem?

[Are you serious? You didn't intentionally harass that guy?]

Hmm, you've become sharper, demon lord.

In fact, I must have done enough hunting, and I must have exercised Max as well. There is no reason why I can't return to the ecliptic first.

But you can clearly see the plan to separate our group, right? So, I feel like I want to make fun of him for no reason.

[Anyway, he has a bad personality.]

'shut up!'

Anyway, I felt strangely empty from earlier.

Seongjin looked around for a moment, then realized the reason and tilted his head.

'But where on earth has Lord Masaine gone? 'You can't see anything since evening?'

I tried to keep my spirits high, but as expected, I couldn't sense any sign of him near the camp.

'You're not the type of person to go somewhere without telling me, are you?'

I was puzzled and went outside the tent to find the resident knights sitting together in front of a large bonfire and drinking alcohol.

It really gives off the vibe of being outdoors.

"Lowering!"

"Sir, come here quickly!"

When Sir Claudia spots Seongjin and shouts, the resident knights wave their hands enthusiastically.

They seemed to sincerely welcome Seongjin. Compared to the scary atmosphere when I first opened my eyes in this body, it was truly a huge improvement.

'The power of the Rohan distilled spirit is amazing. Should Bertrand & Lee's next business item be distilled alcohol?'

I sat down with that foolish thought in mind, and Edith handed me a cup of black-brewed Melbourne tea. It seems that he has returned to his main job after a long time, replacing Leader Bruno, who is guarding the Pearl Palace.

"Lowering. Don't you sit down with group members? "If you come all the way here and hang out with the people at Jinju Palace, there's no point in attending a social gathering."

At her question, Seongjin glanced towards the other side of the camp.

I wonder if Seongjin's intention to stay together until the end was properly communicated, as the members looked even more gloomy than before.

"Well, just play around on your own. "I don't really want to be friends with those idiots."

"Then why are you here?"

"To eat deer meat. "I also take the dogs for a walk."

"yes? "Puppies?"

Edith asked a question, but Seongjin didn't respond and took a sip of warm tea.

... Hmm, okay. There is a constant scent of bile, like the taste of home.

"omg!"

"You really ate that!"

The resident knights were shocked. Judging by the reactions, it looks like Edith's gallbladder disease has already taken care of it once.

"Was it true that it wasn't poison?!"

"What did I say? "It doesn't mean I made something inedible."

"But Edith, why aren't you eating?"

"I don't eat anything that doesn't taste good!"

"Do you have a conscience?"

Sir Calmen, in particular, gritted his teeth with a pale face. It seems like a trauma from not long ago is vividly recalled.

Seongjin shrugged his shoulders at him.

Why are you scared? That's because I didn't really do anything to you back then.

Horok.

When I take another sip of tea, the eyes of the resident drivers, who had been looking at me like I was crazy, immediately turn into respect and admiration.

"Everyone drink in moderation. "You know that people on duty are not allowed to drink, right?"

"haha. "You have Lord Masain in charge of security, so how could you do such a big thing?"

"But what about dinner? "Are you guys drinking on an empty stomach?"

"Over there, the cook is grilling freshly prepared venison, sir."

As he said, along with the sizzling sound, the rich scent of cooking meat reached the tip of my nose. The smell isn't as bad as I thought.

'Now that I think about it, I couldn't eat the wild boar meat that Sir Claudia killed earlier.'

Seongjin, who was feeling somewhat drowsy along with mild regret, took another sip of the familiar-tasting tea.

"Ugh!"

I felt like I could hear Lord Calmen's strange screams next to me, but I guess it was just my mood.

Tsk tsk tsk.

In a vacant lot a little away from the bonfire, Max, the chief contributor to today's hunt, was tearing open a piece of raw meat. The first thing Edith gave me was deer meat.

Hustle and bustle!

Also, right in front of us, the resident knights, who were heavily drinking, were laughing their hearts out even at the nonsense jokes.

You say you like to have fun like that, but how did you manage to work at Jinju Palace because you were so frustrated?

'But everyone likes it. It's worth taking the time to come here... .. '

Crack, crack.

Despite all the commotion, a bonfire is burning quietly in the middle of the group. Occasionally, the firewood splits apart, and light sparks scatter into the sky.

'It's peaceful... ..'

Seongjin looked at the flame blankly and thought about this.

How much time has passed like that?

"Do you meditate with your eyes open now, Sir?"

Seongjin flinched and blinked when he suddenly heard Masain's voice from next to him.

"hmm? "Lord Masaine, when did you arrive?"

But what? Was I meditating?

But there was nothing to ask him. Because I felt the aura filling up in the Danjeon unlike before.

At some point, the sluggish build-up of Auras finally came to an end, and Seongjin's Auras were now spinning actively, completing the perfect 8th floor.

'... ok?'

While he was very embarrassed, Masain sat down next to Seongjin and shook his head.

"It's surprising that I am surprised every time. "While I was away for a moment, you couldn't stand it anymore and your level rose noticeably."

"... .."

Seongjin scratched his cheek shyly.

hmm. Sir Masain. This is a completely unexpected situation even for me.

"And where is Sir Francis? "He doesn't eat deer meat?"

"He had urgent business to attend to, so he went back to the imperial capital right away, Your Majesty."

"okay?"

It's urgent business.

Come to think of it, Sir Martha, I thought you were having a serious conversation with Francis earlier.

I don't know if it was resolved in any way, but I still didn't look good at all.

'This man's expression shows it all.'

But there was no time to ask anything. Before I knew it, fully cooked food had been brought to Seongjin.

The first was grilled venison sprinkled with salt and pepper. Everyone seemed to be waiting for him to lift it first, so Seongjin grabbed the utensil without delay and lifted up a piece of meat.

"hmm..."

Seongjin, who was chewing meat and sharing his taste with the Demon King, tilted his head.

Although it is quite soft, there is a slight odor remaining.

"It's not as bad as you think. But it's hard to say it's particularly delicious, right?"

"Well, I told you, right? In the first place, you shouldn't compare it to the palace's highest-quality ingredients, my Majesty."

Edith scolded him and filled the empty teacup.

"I know. "If this happens, the plan goes a bit out of whack."

Seongjin looked at the carriage with regret. To be exact, the refrigerator in the carriage luggage compartment.

It was basically Max's fault that I had to bring the wagon all the way here, but I wanted to bring fresh, delicious meat if possible, so I brought the refrigerator with me.

"That's probably because the blood wasn't drained properly."

Sir Kurt answered, stroking his rough beard marks.

"blood?"

"yes. Lowering. Deer meat that has been cleaned and bled right away is more edible than this."

"okay?"

It was probably Seongjin's defeat. He was just busy catching his deer, so he just piled it up on one side of the camp.

'If I had known in advance, I would have left it to the people of the territory to handle it from the beginning.'

But there was still meat left. The last giant bear Max caught. Since it was prepared right away, wouldn't it taste good?

[Bear meat~ Bear meat~ Bear meat with a strong aroma and fiery taste~]

just as expected. The devil smells the smell of his favorite food and sings excitedly.

"ok? Isn't this grilled too well? "It looks like the piece of meat has somehow shrunk in half."

"Now that I think about it, the bear over there also looks a little smaller than before it was dismantled... .."

"no way! Does it make sense that a healthy piece of meat becomes half? "You're a little drunk."

Seongjin lifted the bear meat to his mouth while listening to the resident knights talking happily next to him. It is grilled faster than the previous deer meat, and the rich, flavorful meat juices flow out as soon as you chew it.

[delicious!]

The Demon King exclaimed.

This guy seems to like all bear meat.

'Still, it's not as bad as I thought.'

But it was when Seongjin swallowed the meat and put it down his throat.

Bleep-

Suddenly, I thought I heard a high-pitched ringing in my ears, but in an instant, my vision became dark and blurred.

'... ... ?!'

And when my vision became clear again, the scene in front of me had changed from a campfire to a dense grass forest.

Hiss-hiss-

A rough and noisy sound of breathing came from my ear.

'... What is this?'

At first glance, I looked down and saw that the ground was very close, as if the visibility was lower than I thought.

And you can also see thick feet with jagged claws, moving diligently back and forth and kicking the ground.

... Eh? This... it's me?

'But why am I crawling around on the floor?'

No, it would be a bit unfair to say it was long. This is because the speed at which the scenery passed by was quite fast.

Crunch, sniff.

Hiss-hiss-

In the meantime, the sound of heavy breathing did not leave my ears. I thought it was a very loud and strange breathing sound, but when I looked closely, I realized that it seemed to be coming from my own throat.

Kkkkkkkk! Kkkkkkkk!

The faint sound of dogs barking can be heard from afar.

Things that visit this forest every year showed up this time too, without fail. Seongjin was dumbfounded when she realized that she was naturally thinking that way.

- Annoying things!

Rough thoughts that have not been refined into words come to mind.

-Just avoid it! But I'm angry!

It was difficult to tell whether these were really his own thoughts or whether they were someone else's thoughts flowing in. It is not possible to resist the reckless movement of running.

Seongjin had no choice but to let his body move as it pleased and quietly observed the surrounding situation.

How long did it run like that?

Suddenly, Seongjin stopped somewhere in the forest. Perhaps it was because a red stone was shining brightly right in front of my eyes.

If you look closely, strange patterns will sometimes appear and disappear around the stone. Just looking at it, it is an unusual sight.

'What is this?'

But there was no time to wonder for long.

Because, against his will, Seongjin's body suddenly swallowed the stone past his throat.

Sniff, gulp!

'... ... !?'

Tsk tsk tsk tsk.

'Now, wait a minute! If you eat something suspicious like that... ... !'

Embarrassed, Seongjin quickly tried to spit out the stone, but just like before, nothing worked as he wanted.

Gulp!

The sensation of a small lump going down the esophagus is vivid - Clumping.

At the same time, rapid changes began to occur in the body.

I felt as if my muscles were growing thicker, my muscles were twisting around, and my body was expanding outward.

Big wow!

Seongjin raised his body even larger and roared fiercely into the air.

There was no pain. At the same time as I was filled with groundless confidence, an uncontrollable ferocious force spread out in all directions.

A strong thought echoes in my head, and I don't know whose origin it is.

-okay. Why do you have to run away from them! Go back to your nest right now and get rid of all those annoying things... ... !

"... under!"

[...] jin!]

"Lowering! "Why are you doing this, sir?"

[Lee Seong-jin! Hurry and open your eyes! Seongjin Lee!]

The devil bastard screams so loudly that it makes my head buzz.

As strong hands continued to grab both of his shoulders and shake him vigorously, Seongjin's mind slowly regained its sense of reality.

"... Sir Masaine?"

"Yes, sir! "Are you conscious now?"

[Lee Seong-jin! Iseongjiyiin!]

'uh... ... '

Blink.

Blinking his eyes, Seongjin looked at the face of Sir Masaine who was approaching close in front of him, then slowly turned his head and looked down at the fire.

'bear... meat... ... '

Meat thrown haphazardly on the floor along with dishes comes into view.

In that moment, Seongjin instinctively realized what had just happened to him.

- Bute Mores.

-yes?

-Have you ever eaten something you hunted yourself?

At that time, my father seemed to want to explain something more. About the act of hunting and eating it yourself.

'iced coffee. I see 'I hunted that bear.'

Seongjin's mind slowly began to spin. I promised my father that I would never hunt myself and save myself.

However, that bear was captured by Seongjin's family with Seongjin's power. In the end, it wasn't much different from Seongjin's own hunting.

'This is because the karma left behind by dead things becomes the karma of the person who took that death.'

Someone's voice rang softly in my head.

'okay. This is the karma of a dead bear, the memory of a bear.'

Seongjin slowly got up, pushing Masain, who was supporting him.

Just because I suddenly glimpsed the memory of a dead bear, I didn't feel particularly tired or in pain. I just felt dizzy, like I was still in a dream.

"I ate it."

When Seongjin opened his mouth, Masain asked back in confusion.

"yes? Lowering. What is that... .."

"Lord Masaine. In that forest, I ate a rock. "It's a strange stone that glows red in the dark."

"... ..!"

When the prince, who lost consciousness for a moment, blurted out something strange, Edith and the resident knights exchanged looks with worried expressions.

But Seongjin somehow knew. His loyal bodyguard would surely have understood what he said.

And, that premonition was correct.

This is because Masain's face, looking at Seongjin, turned pale like never before.

344. Red Curse (3)

That night, Masain belatedly told me about the red stone he found in the forest.

"West Mountain?"

"Yes, sir. "I discovered it by accident, while I was guarding it."

"okay."

Seongjin was deep in thought.

Now that I think about it, even though it was only a moment, didn't he feel something ominous in the western mountain?

So, right before Max called me.

"... "I'm sorry for the late report, sir."

As Seongjin kept his mouth shut, Masain bowed his head again as if he was sorry.

"no it's okay."

What do you think of all the stones you accidentally found on the mountain?

Since nothing was certain, I guess I thought it was something I didn't need to know.

'Or maybe they just wanted me to not be involved as much as possible.'

Although he guessed his intentions to some extent, Seongjin pretended not to know and asked another question.

"So, what did Francis say about the stone?"

"We don't know yet."

Masain continued speaking with his head down.

"But Francis said he didn't feel any magic in the stone. He said there didn't seem to be any signs of a curse. To investigate, he first returned to the Imperial Capital with the stone."

I guess that was the reason Francis went back in a hurry.

"It is not a magic trick, nor is it a curse. "So you're saying it's not that dangerous to people?"

"Seeing as there is no major problem even if you touch it with bare hands, it seems like that at first glance... .."

Nevertheless, Masain trailed off as if he was somewhat anxious.

"After a brief search with Francis, we were able to find several more similar stones in the western mountains."

"I don't know what it is, but does this mean that someone must have prepared it with a clear purpose?"

"Yes, sir. So, I think it is difficult to be easily optimistic that there will be no harm."

but. The same goes for the giant bear Max caught. Although it was only a glimpse of Seongjin's memory, the bear clearly ate a red stone.

But as soon as we dismantled it and removed its internal organs, it reverted back to the size of a normal bear. The amount of meat was reduced by a whopping 1/3. Too bad.

"But you. What you said about lifting that stone earlier... .."

"Ah, that."

I had just come out of the sense of unity with the bear, so I said that without realizing it.

"I didn't eat it. "I was so distracted earlier that I made a mistake."

"... .."

"Really. "Sorry to confuse you, Lord Martha."

So, don't look so nervous. I feel guilty for no reason.

Of course, although Seongjin repeatedly emphasized that it was okay, Masain's anxiety did not seem to subside easily.

"It's somehow ominous. As soon as you left the imperial capital, things like this happened again... .."

"hmm."

It seems that the 'jinx of social gatherings' still remains.

'I've made the 8th floor as an Auror. From now on, I'll have to stay in the Pearl Palace and train hard. Now I guess I'll never attend a social event again!'

While I was rumbling inside, Masain opened his mouth again with a somewhat earnest expression.

"Lowering. "I may be presumptuous, but I have a favor to ask you."

"huh?"

"Why don't you go back to the imperial palace right now?"

"... .."

Seongjin was speechless. Masain's face as he made that request looked desperate, as if he was barely holding on to a weak lifeline at the edge of a cliff.

"I have already told you about the red stone, so Francis and the Knights of St. Aurelion will take care of the rest."

"Sir Martha."

"I will tell the Earl of Bathurst and order him to stop the hunting party immediately. So, if you please take refuge in a safe place... .."

"... .."

"If not the imperial palace, can't you at least return to the imperial capital, a place where Your Majesty's grace fully resides?"

This is why this loyal knight sometimes expresses concern for him to the point where it seems excessive. Seongjin also had some idea about that.

But unfortunately, Seongjin couldn't answer that desperate voice right away.

Didn't your father do the same? There must be a special reason why I chose the hunting party.

"That cannot be done, Sir Martha."

"Lowering!"

"I understand you're saying this because you're worried about me. But nothing has happened yet, right? But if you have to avoid every single one at the slightest sign like this, how can you be so anxious that you can go outside Jinju Palace for the rest of your life? "What will the members of the group think of me?"

"One down... ..!"

"Besides, this work can't just be left to the Knights of Saint Aurelion. "Even though it is wrong, it has nothing to do with demon species. If that is not the responsibility of our 'monster task force,' then what is it?"

Masain purses his lips with a stern expression. But Seongjin had no intention of backing down.

"So this is something I, as an advisor to the Monster Task Force, must investigate, Sir Martha. As the prince of the Holy Empire, I must fulfill the 'noble man's duty' given to me."

"... .."

"are you okay. "I promise you, nothing dangerous will probably happen to me."

In the end, Masain realized that he could not persuade Seongjin and stood up with a sad face.

"If you do it, everything will be as you wish. "I will just focus on supporting the situation without any setbacks."

"uh... .."

Seongjin blinked his eyes.

"Hey, Sir Martha?"

"Then rest, my lord."

Masain bowed politely and left the tent. I thought I was really angry about the cold wind blowing.

Still, the back of the person looked somewhat dejected, so it was impossible for a person to be that miserable. Looking at the atmosphere, it looks like they will foolishly devote themselves to training until late at night from now on.

'I always feel like I'm doing something wrong to that guy... ..'

Max must have sensed Seongjin's bitter mood and put his head under his hand, sniffing.

Kiing-

-are you okay? Do you want me to play?

"Hmm, do you want to, Max?"

Wong wong!

-of course! There are many strange smelling things in the forest! Let's search together!

"You got me on the same page, Max! "We were already planning to play a fun game together tomorrow."

[Fun game? what is that?]

The Demon King asked curiously, but Seongjin only raised one corner of his mouth in confusion.

And when the next morning dawned, he gathered the resident knights in front of the tent and declared:

"There will be no hunting competition today. "Shouldn't we give the members of the hunting club a chance to achieve some results?"

"yes? then... .."

"Instead, we're going to go on a treasure hunt today."

Treasure hunt? What is that?

The resident knights exchange glances and whisper.

"Now, everyone, let's take a look at this."

In front of them, Seongjin proudly lifted a stone. It was another red rock that I found by secretly digging into the bear's stomach last night.

"This is something that Adjutant Sir Francis discovered near here yesterday. In his words, he said that he had discovered that a group of rebellious people who had betrayed the Lord were actively moving around here. "This is one of those pieces of evidence."

Of course, Francis never said anything like that.

Since he is good at instigation and fabrication, he will definitely understand Seongjin. Since he is a paladin, it is easy to use him selflessly.

"Sir Francis said he suspected this was some kind of magical item."

Last night, Seongjin closely examined this stone with his spiritual eyes.

There wasn't any particular information, so I thought it was all nonsense, but the devil bastard carefully confirmed it. It is said that the laws of the normal world can be felt, however faintly, in this stone.

The reason information did not appear before my eyes was because the rules contained in this stone were extremely poor.

'Then the more stones there are... ... '

[that's right. If enough laws come together, no one can guarantee what will happen.]

Then the solution was simple.

Collect everything in advance.

I already felt like they had brought in too many resident knights, but they all had fun going on a treasure hunt.

"It is said that it is not a very dangerous item to humans. Still, we can't just ignore the plots hatched by these seditious groups! So, as the sword of the god who protects the Holy Empire, you must take the lead and retrieve all these items!"

When the words 'disturbing group' came out, the expressions of the resident knights became serious. Although they said they came out to have fun, their duty to protect the royal family and the empire did not change.

Of course, there were some knights like Lord Haven who were as motivated as ever. Seongjin glanced at him and added an explanation.

"Of course there is compensation. "Whoever finds the most of these will receive the finest Rohan spirits, wine from Brittany, and a week's vacation!"

"... ... !"

The eyes of the resident knights suddenly light up. Only Masain realized how things were going and looked at Seongjin in horror.

Seongjin grinned an evil smile.

okay. Stones, patterns, plots, what does it all have to do with it? If you are concerned about your political enemy's intentions, wouldn't it be okay to hunt them down and destroy them before they can function properly?

"Lowering! "I found another one here!"

Sir Haven's performance this time was truly outstanding among the resident knights. He quickly found the red stone and ran up the mountainside again, shouting a strange slogan.

"Hey! Distilled liquor from Rohan! Haha! Wine from Brittany!"

Yesterday, Sir Haven was tempted by his seniors and ended up cracking open the bottle of distilled liquor. To make up for that loss, are you still searching all over the mountains with your eyes lit up?

"I'm here too, sir."

Sir Claudia, Sir Calmen, and even Sir Kurt, who were passive about hunting. As a result of everyone moving in unison, the number of red stones increased rapidly.

"There are more hidden stones than I thought?"

Especially near the halfway point of the western mountain, aren't they spread out almost at your feet?

Seongjin inwardly clicked his tongue. I don't know who did this, but it must have been a huge undertaking if everyone had done it alone.

"But where should I put all these, sir?"

"huh?"

In response to Sir Claudia's question, Seongjin blinked for a moment.

Then he pointed to a large rock nearby. The top is worn flat and looks exactly like a bench or shelf.

"That's good. Should we put it all together there first?"

"Yes, I understand, sir!"

Urururu-

Just like that, red stones began to pile up on top of the rock.

"It's a shame, it's a shame."

"What do you mean?"

At Leonard's sudden lament, Romain stopped working with his hands and turned his head.

"Baron Cadogan's salon. I heard the princess happened to be at that meeting? "If only Alton had gone as planned, he would have been able to brainwash the princess, right?"

"... .."

"It would have been better if you had just lured me into a civil marriage."

Romain felt a headache and put down the necklace he was working on.

"Do you really want to go to war with the empire?"

"hmm?"

"Don't forget, Leo. "The guardian of Delcross can blow away Rohan at any time with a single wave of his hand."

"You really want to go that far... .."

"The only reason he doesn't is because there is no sufficient cause and effect. If we had succeeded in brainwashing the princess, the Holy Emperor would also have been willing to destroy her Rohan."

Sheesh. When Leonard clicked his tongue, Romain presented him with the necklace he had finished working on.

It was an item that Leonard prepared for Princess Amelia some time ago, but it was gathering dust day by day as there was no way to meet her.

"The princess said she was attending the Lady of Bathurst's tea party."

"So you're telling me to take this to a cute tea party for noble ladies?"

"You can just go as the Earl of Bathurst's guest. Meet her princess under the pretense of coincidence, and hand her her gift in public. He probably wouldn't refuse a gift from another country's royal family in front of others."

Leonard had a clear look of dissatisfaction, but he accepted the necklace obediently without any complaints.

"When you meet the princess, give her a necklace and say this. 'This jewel is a magical item from ancient times. If an emergency occurs, the princess will be moved to a safe place.'"

"But this is just Yeonsujeong? "There is no such function, Romain."

"I know. "It simply means adding appropriate seasoning before cooking."

All of this is a work in progress to make the princess use the [portal] voluntarily.

"You should tell me that in advance, so when the selection window suddenly pops up, you'll click [Accept] without any doubts, right?"

"hmm."

Leonard nodded and put away the necklace.

"Anyway, what have you prepared? Will it work properly and on time?"

In his opinion, Romain's preparation was extremely lax. No matter how busy he was with his preparations, didn't he just lay out all those codes clumsily on the ground?

However, Romain, who heard Leonard's concerns, laughed lightly.

"Haha, it's okay. Leo. I'm sure there isn't even that level of safety device. "The codes I created are extremely incomplete, so they cannot be easily activated unless special measures are taken on our part."

"okay? "What are the chances that someone will find it?"

"The Earl of Bathurst's hunting grounds are far away. "The count strictly prohibits hunting by the people of his territory, so it is safe to say that he rarely climbs this mountain on purpose."

"But what if a wild animal touches it or the wind rolls it somewhere? "Aren't all the preparations going to be in vain?"

"Even if a few codes really disappear, it's not a problem. "Because we prepared a sufficient number."

In Romain's opinion, there was only one way for this to fail. Gathering all the laid out codes in one place, especially in a place where there were strong traces of [disaster], and completely disrupting the function of the code.

but-

"No matter how much you think about it, that is absolutely impossible. The probability of that many codes gathering in a specific place by chance is almost zero... .."

That was when I said that.

Pow!

Suddenly, there was a huge explosion and the small cabin shook violently. Romain and Leonard looked at each other at the same time as if they had made a promise.

"... .. !?"

"... what?"

345

345. Red Curse (4)

The strange thing happened in the blink of an eye.

The rock piled with red stones seemed to be trembling slightly, so I was about to approach and take a closer look.

puck!

Without warning, a rock at the top exploded.

"... .. !?"

"Lowering!"

Masain is frightened and opens his sword to block Seongjin's path.

But that was just the beginning.

Plop! puck!

Soon, a mountain of rocks piled up and exploded one after another.

The red ground carrying the rock also begins to shake violently. It felt as if a large-scale earthquake had occurred nearby.

[What is this? what's this?]

The Demon King muttered in confusion in his head.

[That's strange, Seongjin Lee! The rules of the normal world are getting stronger! Those insignificant rules are coming together, resonating, and turning into something incredible!]

Seongjin was also overcome by strong anxiety. It felt like a premonition that had been vague until now suddenly took on a clear form and was suddenly materialized!

Pow!

At that time, a huge explosion occurred in the distance.

If this place wasn't Delcross, it's hard to believe that hundreds of kilograms of dynamite would have exploded at once.

Shaking.

The ground beneath my feet shakes violently from the shock.

"omg? Lowering!?"

"Is there a problem?"

The resident knights scattered here and there were startled and ran towards Seongjin. But soon a tremendous scene unfolded before their eyes.

Kwakwakwakwakwa-!

The small mountain you see over there is completely collapsing. It was towards the Earl of Bathurst's hunting ground, where they had been hunting deer until just yesterday.

A huge noise and acrid dust rose up, instantly covering the hunting ground and camp.

"uh... .."

What's going on?

Why is a mountain that was fine suddenly sinking?

As Seongjin blinked and looked at the scene, Masain next to him shouted as if he had been waiting.

"I knew it would be like this!"

No, Lord Masaine? What is that?

By the way, such an incredible thing has happened, so why aren't you surprised?

"Isn't this where you are? "Nothing new anymore!"

"what? for a moment... .."

"Surely this isn't the end? "Even if I try to stop you, won't you still insist on going there?"

"... .."

"Then I will follow you! Do you understand?!"

No, Sir Masain! What on earth do you think I am?

One way or another, Seongjin felt very wronged.

Plop! Burbubbuk!

Meanwhile, the red stones are breaking apart helplessly. Eventually, the rock, unable to withstand the shock, begins to slowly sink beneath the collapsing ground.

Kurrrrrr... ..

'It's dangerous here too. I don't know if it's an earthquake or something, but I'm sure we'll be caught up in it!'

Seongjin, who realized that the vibration under his feet was getting stronger, put aura into his voice and shouted with all his might.

"Everyone listen! Stop work and come back here right away! "We're going down the mountain right now!"

The resident knights began to move quickly according to orders. Except for one Lord Haven.

"no! my stone! "I couldn't even count the exact number!"

He was waving his hands in vain, looking at the collapsing rock.

"My, my precious liquor!"

"What a crazy guy!"

Quick. Seongjin, who had blood on his forehead, kicked him hard in the stomach from behind.

Pow!

"Come to your senses, Lord Haven! "What are you doing now?"

"Oh my! But, low... .."

"The stones you found are exactly 37!"

"... yes?"

"I remember everything. No doubt it's number one! So now, come to your senses and do your duty as an imperial knight!"

Light slowly returns to Lord Haven's eyes, which were looking at Seongjin blankly for a moment.

"Sorry... "I do it, sir!"

Seongjin clicked his tongue as he saw him quickly return to his demeanor.

The guy who does it when he does it, what kind of obscenity is this!

"Fight the resident knights, Sir Kurt! "Check to see if anyone has been left behind!"

Seongjin ordered Sir Kurt, who was unusually nervous.

"And once everyone's safety is confirmed, immediately take the knights and take refuge down the mountain!"

"Yes, sir!"

"And if you see anyone escaping from the camp, help them as much as you can!"

Sir Kurt looked at Seongjin in confusion at those words. Because it sounded as if the prince would not join them.

'And what about you?'

However, his gaze soon lands on Lord Masain, who is standing behind Seongjin with his mouth shut.

Sir Kurt nodded as if he understood something.

"yes! "I will follow your orders!"

Wong wong!

As if he had been waiting, Max approaches Seongjin and barks passionately. This is probably because he already knew what his master was going to do.

Whoa whoa!

-If you go, I go too! You'll need me! Because I am strong and huge!

"Okay, Max. Come with me!"

Yesterday, it was rewarding to practice with Max by his side, and before he knew it, Seongjin had become quite accustomed to finding a connection with the dog. She quickly activated her Danjeon and sent a large amount of aura to Max -

Huuuuk-

Soon Max's size began to increase.

Kurrrrr-

Around that time, changes slowly began to occur even in the collapsed hunting grounds.

As the thick dust slowly subsided, black smoke began to billow out from underneath.

"... Demon species!"

Masain sighed softly.

Even Seongjin, who had no divine power, could tell right away.

A hole with a radius of hundreds of meters was created when the mountain collapsed. That incredibly strong magical energy is pouring out from the depths of unknown depths.

"come!"

In the midst of this evil and ominous atmosphere, a giant reptile's head covered in horns slowly began to rise.

Crrrrrrr... ..

The huge explosion could be felt even in the imperial palace office.

"... .. !?"

Amelia, who was reviewing documents in the Emperor's office, was startled by the shock and ran to the open terrace.

"That one?"

The far southwest sky is covered with thick dust. Considering that my eyesight was greatly enhanced by the aura, it was a place quite far from the ecliptic.

"It's the Earldom of Bathurst. "Now a demon species has appeared there."

Amelia's face turned pale at the calm voice.

'Mores!'

My hands began to shake with worry.

However, contrary to her desire to rush out of the office at any moment, her mind was spinning infinitely calmly.

'Calm down, Amelia! What can I do against the devil species now, without any divine power? calm down. And think. I am now by my father's Majesty's side!'

Something only you can do.

Only I can skip unnecessary procedures and send a helping hand to Mores in the shortest possible time!

"your majesty!"

"Your Majesty!"

At that moment, several knight commanders, including Balthazar, burst into the Holy Emperor's office.

"Magi! "I can feel strong magical energy!"

"It is the emergence of a demonic species! Ah, Lord!"

"I will send the Holy Knights under my command right away! "Please command me!"

Holy Knights... ..

Naturally, the face of my most trusted younger brother flashes through my mind. Amelia ordered the attendant next to her.

"Call Logan right now. And quickly move the Lilium detachment... .."

But before she could finish speaking, the elderly man bowed his head in sorrow. It was Lord Ulgen, leader of the Knights of St. Bastian.

"Sir, I may be presumptuous, but that is... .."

"What is it? "Lord Ulgen."

"His Majesty Logan has already led his horse and rushed out of the imperial palace. He probably moved as soon as he sensed the demonic species... .."

Amelia was secretly impressed.

Logan, you're so fast!

"And of course, the Lilium Detachment hurriedly followed behind them."

Logan must have been worried about Mores, too. Normally, she would have had the presence of mind to take care of the special unit, but it seems that she was clearly anxious.

'good. 'There is no force that can reach the scene faster than Logan and Lilium's special forces!'

The fire was quickly put out.

So, what she has to do now is to find and assist in areas that Mores and Logan had not thought of.

"I never believe that the Lilium Detachment's strength will be insufficient."

However, nothing has yet been determined about the exact classification, population, or power of the demon species.

'Father, His Majesty spoke calmly. It is said that a demonic 'bell' has appeared in Bathurst Territory... .. '

If so, there was a high possibility that it was a type 1, stand-alone demon. But you shouldn't just believe that and neglect your preparation.

"Considering the scale of the explosion, even if it is a single type, it is highly likely that it is a class 2 or higher species. So, immediately organize additional forces and prepare for an emergency... .. "

Amelia, who was saying that, looked back with a start.

He was just as impatient as Logan. What kind of excess of authority is this in front of your Majesty, Father?

"... .. "

But Seonghwang just stared at Amelia.

Amelia calmed herself down after seeing that the corners of his mouth were slightly curved. Seonghwang implicitly delegated full authority to her.

"Assemble the Knights of St. Grazie, Sir Agnes. The place where the explosion occurred is presumed to be near the count's hunting grounds. Although it is not a densely populated area, the empire's subjects may have become involved. "We need the help of those with extensive lifesaving experience."

"Yes, sir."

"If necessary, cooperate with the 3rd Knights of the SS. Considering the total strength of the territory reported by the Earl of Bathurst, it would not violate imperial law if the two knights moved together."

"I will."

Sir Agnes, leader of the Knights of St. Grazie, bowed her head with a kind smile.

"Cardinal Diggory. We will gather the available imperial palace council members and send them to Bathurst Territory. Take the abbreviated process. And I called Dorian from the administration and told him to prepare relief supplies that could be obtained urgently."

Although he was in front of the princess, who was barely the age of his granddaughter, Cardinal Digory felt an inexplicable sense of intimidation and bowed his head.

"All of this is being done urgently for the sake of the citizens who have fallen into despair. "I will report to the crusade afterward, so you can skip the preliminary procedures, which may take some time, for now."

Just when the explosion occurred and the sandbox began to collapse.

Fortunately, the camp was nearing the end of its evacuation process. Because I was planning to move my hunting ground starting today.

Most of the members had already moved, and the only people left in the camp were a few servants who were packing up their belongings and a few residents.

Of course, they had to move on the sidewalk, but were suddenly mesmerized by the earth-shattering vibration and rushing dust.

'There's no way for those people to escape like this!'

Edith, who had boarded the imperial carriage with the driver, looked at them with nervousness. Her mind, which was always dazed in a peaceful mood, turns quickly when faced with a sudden crisis.

'If we can get them on this carriage... ... !'

However, it is a precious carriage prepared only for members of the royal family. Is it okay to decide something like that on your own?

-Sir, why are you taking the carriage again?

Suddenly Edith remembered the light conversation she had with the prince this morning.

Even though he had a rare vehicle called a wolf dog, he was suspicious of the prince who rarely gave up his carriage.

-Once you've dragged it, wouldn't you have something to carry with you? The stones that the resident knights found had to be carried, and the game had to be carried as well. It would be too unreasonable to ask the residents of the territory to move all those deer.

But it's a luxury dinner for VIPs. Put bloody game on there? I was dumbfounded, but what he said next was even more shocking.

-Edith, if there's anything you want to bring, don't hesitate and bring it. Let's take anything, whether it's a rock or a grass. There are people who purposely go out to collect stones, right?

-... yes?

Edith bit her lip after making a decision.

Yes, you won't blame me. Aren't you the kind of person who wants to carry dirty game and even insignificant stones?

"everyone! "Get in the carriage!"

A voice heightened by aura resonates loudly throughout the camp despite the commotion.

"There is no time to wait! hurry!"

The residents of the territory thought for a moment, but the strong shaking had already reached their feet. Eventually, they started to squeeze into the carriage.

"Hurry!"

Meanwhile, members of the hunting club were also moving around.

Embarrassed by the sudden natural disaster, they abandoned the workers and ran away in a hurry, taking only their guards with them.

However, the Earl of Bathurst, who was the last to remain after sending the members away, stopped talking and turned his head in surprise. This is because the Countess, who was thought to have left first, returned to the camp and stood motionless on her horse.

"ma'am?"

"... William."

She barely turned around at his call, looking somewhat dazed.

"How did it happen? "It feels like I was dreaming."

"What is that?"

The count was about to turn his horse, but the guard quickly stopped him.

"Count! You must avoid it quickly! My wife said I... ..!"

"iced coffee!"

At that time, as if she suddenly remembered something, the Countess quickly opened her mouth.

"William! Beware of suspicious guests visiting the mansion. He's been planning something up and down the Bathurst family for a long time! And somehow I helped him."

"Welcome! Come here and talk! huh?"

The guard knight, who could not see the count, grabbed his reins and spurred him on.

Many, many, many.

The camp starts to move away.

"ma'am!"

"Listen, William! He said he was going to tear down our mansion! "I heard it clearly with my own ears!"

"We must escape now!"

"Ah, but I don't remember his face. Maybe he was wearing a mask.
"No, I don't even know now if he was a man or a woman."

"Okay! Okay, please go this way... ..!"

As the Count cried out in a desperate voice, the wife, who had been staring at him blankly, curled her mouth. As time passed, fine wrinkles appeared around her eyes, but in the eyes of the Earl of Bathurst, she still had the beauty of a goddess-like smile.

"I can't do that. "I know now that I can never escape from him."

Fantasy-like scenes were passing through her unfocused eyes.

Knife held in hand. People she loved dearly, covered in blood and no longer breathing.

It was clear now that death was approaching. If we don't make a choice now, a dark future is sure to come.

"I love you, William. Please, Margaret... .."

Those were her last words.

A pile of black dirt fell mercilessly on the head of the countess as she walked away.

346. Jurassic Island (1)

The ground was suddenly covered with black magic energy.

Above the thick smoke, the head of a huge monster slowly raises its head.

"de... Dragon?"

Those who were wandering around the camp muttered, doubting their eyes.

As the saying goes, the monster's appearance reminded me of an evil dragon from legends.

Three huge horns rise from its head the size of a house, and its neck is covered with broad bones that look like sheet metal.

As it slowly raised its body soaked in black demonic energy, it seemed as if an entire magnificent castle was rising into the air. Just that simple movement causes the Earth's axis to vibrate and the atmosphere to shake.

"... Ah, Lord!"

Everyone looking at the monster could clearly feel it. That huge body clearly contains proportional strength and power.

Even the smallest breath he exhaled caused a strong wave, like thunder.

Crrrrr... ..

But when everyone was frozen by that majestic sight.

Seongjin's feelings as he was running towards the guy were extremely simple.

"Triceratops?"

Anyone who once loved dinosaurs as a child will recognize that unique shape.

It was too large to be dismissed as just a dinosaur, and it had numerous strange horns sprouting from each of its scales, making it look even more sinister.

"yes? Lowering. "What did you just say?"

Masain asks from behind. They were riding down the mountainside at extremely fast speeds, riding on Max's now gigantic back.

"Huh, it seems somewhat similar to an animal I know!"

"An animal you know? "That one?"

"Never mind, Lord Masaine! "I guess it was my mistake!"

Masain then looks at the dinosaur monster getting closer with a stiff expression.

'Yes, it must be an illusion. At least a normal dinosaur wouldn't emit magical energy like that.'

It's not that it's not, the monster was a slimy black color, as if it was covered in tar. Perhaps it's because his entire body is covered with dark magical energy.

[Lee Seong-jin, something is strange!]

At that time, the Demon King, who was watching him closely, shouted.

[No matter how I look at it, it doesn't look like a typical demon species!]

'then?'

[It means that you were not born that way, but it is unnatural, as if you were created! I think it's closer to a demonic energy condensed into a specific shape rather than a conscious entity!]

'hmm... ..'

Seongjin was also feeling a vague sense of discomfort. Even though it was spreading such dangerous demonic energy everywhere, I could not sense any clear hostility or purpose from it.

[Besides, I can feel the laws of the normal world from him, even if only slightly! Just like the Glacher Trolls you used to control!]

okay? then.

'Demon King!'

When Seongjin called his name, the Demon King understood it clearly and made a decision to pray. Soon, a gorgeous world of spiritual eyes automatically unfolds before Seongjin's eyes.

'... ..!'

In a feast of red and blue colors, the appearance of a monster that is still as black as the abyss. There is no doubt that it is a demon species.

But surprisingly, letters that were quite familiar to Seongjin appeared above his head.

□Styracoceratops□

□Spring Valley's field boss. For every 200 Medium Triceratops caught, there is a 5% chance that they will appear. We recommend hunting in a party of 3 or more.□

□Flame resistance B. Electrical resistance B.□

□Monster grade: B+□

□*Currently unable to check Northland server.□

Seongjin blinked.

what? Was that really a dinosaur? And it's a Northland server?

-In the early days of this company...

Naturally, the voice of the dwarf engineer Dexter vividly appears in Seongjin's mind.

-We have released one free mini-game. If I remember correctly, the integrated server at that time was probably 'Northland'.

And the game title seen on Dexter's laptop. A simple illustration of a giant ape fighting a white Yeti.

-Kong: Jurassic Island

Seongjin's head began to spin.

'Game source! There is someone who has been steadily moving game sources within Impulse Soft to the Delcross dimension! All those glamor trolls, and now even that giant dinosaur! If you search the continent carefully, you can't rule out the possibility that things like that are hidden everywhere!'

The leap of logic that relied only on intuition, based on poor evidence, made Seongjin think of many possibilities.

'There is no way he would have done something like this unless he was hostile to the continent and, by extension, to the empire. Is it just one guy, or is it the work of many? It would be clear that he was at least a high-ranking devil or a member of the Dark Church. 'Since when did you start planning and preparing?'

In any case, it would be difficult to believe that the opponent accidentally found useful game sources.

'Someone who knows Ionia well, or someone who has some level of knowledge about Ionian engineering. You know that Impulse Soft's game sources are combined with Ionic technology! Maybe it's a high-ranking official directly involved in the company's operations!'

Right then.

"Lowering!"

[Lee Seong-jin! be careful!]

A tree, unable to withstand the vibrations caused by the monster, breaks violently and quickly flies in front of our eyes.

Let's react instantly and move the auror -

Sniff!

Max, with his legs gaining momentum, kicked the floor with force. The tree, which could have hit him head-on, barely passes Seongjin's ears, making the sound of a strong wind.

"Lowering! Are you okay?"

'Numerous stones scattered in the mountains. Were they prepared to create this situation?'

But Seongjin's premonition soon denied it.

no. Probably not. Didn't Francis also say that he couldn't detect any demonic energy in the stone or the bear that swallowed it?

'But the person who brought that dinosaur to Delcross is clearly the devil or a devil worshiper!'

Nevertheless, the sudden explosion of the red stones and the appearance of the monster after the mountain collapsed could not be considered completely separate events.

Didn't the Demon King do the same? The rules of the poor normal world came together and resonated, transforming into something unfathomable and enormous.

'The guy who prepared all those rocks probably didn't think that I would gather them all in one place.'

Is it because of me in the end?

Seongjin had no choice but to come to an unpleasant conclusion. It was a treasure hunt, and putting them all together was a failure.

'shit! Please don't let your father hit you hard!'

Seongjin started to feel anxious in a slightly different sense.

Crrrrr...

Around that time, strange changes began to occur in the monster.

A huge sinkhole appeared when the hunting ground collapsed. There he was able to raise his head and raise his body, but he was not able to completely get out of the hole.

It was funny, but the overly large body seemed to be a huge burden on it.

The guy struggled to wriggle for a moment.

Puff puff!

The skin and scales on the legs spontaneously burst, and black demonic energy like blood poured out. The dinosaur's legs, unable to withstand the enormous load, began to crush themselves.

Wow!

For the first time, strong pain and hostility appeared in the eyes of this guy who had shown no purpose until now. The monster screamed and began to flail its huge head around as it pleased.

And the aftermath was enormous.

Cooooooo! Cooh!

The ground is torn apart with irregular vibrations, and huge cracks spread across the surface at high speed. The farmlands near the hunting grounds also began to crumble into shapeless pieces.

"Ugh!"

At that moment, a young man nearby runs away in a hurry and is instantly swallowed by the crack. But right before he falls into the bottomless pit.

chin!

Someone's strong hand grabbed the back of his neck. It was Masain who was riding behind Seongjin.

Seongjin and his party, who had already reached the feet of the monster, luckily found Youngjimin and quickly jumped into the crack.

Taaat, blame.

When Max, who jumped up the crack with a few light leaps, finally stood on the surface, Masaine lightly lowered him to the ground.

"Well, it's dangerous so hurry and avoid this place."

Even then, Young Jimin looked bewildered.

"Okay, thank you... ..!"

However, while he was casually saying thank you, he turned pale when he saw the large wolf dog baring its fangs in front of him.

"Ugh! "Monster, monster!"

Seongjin glared at him with fierce eyes as he ran wild.

No, you saved me at best, but now who's calling me a monster? Can't you tell the difference between a cute puppy and a monster? huh?

"Lowering... .."

At that time, Masain's trembling voice caught Seongjin's ear.

"Are you really planning on dealing with that demon species yourself?"

He was completely overwhelmed by the majesty of the monster dinosaur.

Even though I already knew its size, the sight of it right in front of me was so majestic it was even shocking.

"Even the ecliptic will soon notice something unusual. "We will probably dispatch the Holy Knights as quickly as possible, so why don't you just wait for them to arrive?"

"... .."

Seongjin looked up at the triceratops-like monster without answering for a moment.

Cooong.

The guy was now crawling out of the pit, pushing his body in place of his broken leg. With eyes overflowing with hostility and resentment whose target is unclear, it sometimes lets out painful screams.

Passsss.

Every time it struggles like that, the magical energy flowing out indiscriminately turns the ground black and the plants wither rapidly.

If things continue like this, Bathurst Territory will soon become a land of complete death where life cannot exist.

"No, Lord Masaine. "We have to stop him here."

If we couldn't kill it, we had to at least try to tie it up in one place. Because I was able to foresee so clearly, even now, where that powerful hostility was heading and what consequences it would bring.

"Lowering... .."

Masain looked at the strange gleam in the prince's eyes for a moment, then pulled out Misra with resignation.

Even someone he knew well had eyes like that sometimes. And every time, his decision was never reversed.

"are you okay. We just have to take care of it step by step, starting with its tail. "You probably won't be able to respond properly?"

Seongjin, who said that, pulled out a nutcracker and raised the corners of his mouth.

'Importing sources at random and simply increasing the size is not a solution. If it were big enough to handle itself, the imperial capital might really be in danger by now.'

Seongjin sneered at an enemy whose face he did not know.

First of all, Triceratops is not a Jurassic dinosaur! Find a game with some proper historical research, you idiot!

"How on earth did this happen...""

Romain was unexpectedly devastated by the situation.

He was simply preparing to overthrow the Count of Bathurst at the right time. This is because we already knew that the 'trace of the crack' runs straight through the western mountain and the count's residence.

Wasn't that why the meeting place was set up on this mountain in the first place?

So, based on a few experiments I had done in the past, I was planning to just lightly shake the ground. At least I didn't intend for this mess to happen.

however...

'Where is that monster that came out of nowhere?'

There was only one variable that Romain expected. The power of the crack, amplified by the code, combined with the aura of the living beast,

'Not only can there be no animal that swallows a rock, but eating it doesn't mean the code will be activated twice.'

But what on earth is that huge monster?

"What is that? "Did I drink too much?"

Leonard ran out after Romain, threw the bottle on the floor and rubbed his eyes.

Wow!

The huge monster roars again.

Just that frenzied cry created a strong shock wave and shook the entire mountain. Trees sway and rocks split and fall.

"Wow, Romain! If we don't escape quickly... ..!"

At that moment, the cabin they were in also collapsed helplessly. A precious cabin that has been Romain's meeting place for the past several years, and has a complex code carefully crafted in the basement.

"iced coffee... .."

Romain sighed in a daze.

How can everything turn into such a mess in an instant!

"What are you procrastinating on, Romain! If this continues, everyone will die! "We need to hurry and take refuge down the mountain!"

Leonard, who was worse off, started running, dragging his arm.

The ground shaking and vibrating beneath your feet is extremely dangerous. Nevertheless, Romain could not easily turn his eyes away from the monster.

Right then-

"That... ..!"

There was a sight that clearly caught Romain's eyes.

A crazy person stands on top of a large wolf that is well beyond normal size and charges head-on towards the monster.

"Lowering! If you suddenly rush in alone like that... ... !"

One after another, someone's faint scream follows.

That light blonde hair is definitely-

"Prince Mores... ... !"

In my once confusing mind, many thoughts come together, eventually leading to one conclusion.

A new word for success.

A reserved member of the Dark Church.

and...

'An absolute variable that no one can dare predict!'

Only then did everything make sense.

'Guardian of Delcross! How far have you foreseen, and how far have you prepared?'

Is there really no way for me to deal with him? Even if you hide yourself as if you were dead and prepare so thoroughly in so many ways?

"Hurry, Romain! "Hurry up and look ahead and run properly!"

Leonard, who was dragging him and running, shouted in frustration, but Romain's eyes would never leave Prince Mores.

347. Jurassic Island (2)

Although it was a natural disaster that occurred suddenly, there were almost no casualties. This was because there was a hunting party at the time, and the entry of local residents was strictly controlled.

It seems like those at the hunting camp managed to withdraw just in time.

"Aww, Hae-su! No, it's a monster dog!"

Seongjin, who rescued one more Young Ji-min from a pile of dirt near the farmland, approached the back of the monster dinosaur with a relieved heart.

It had now pushed half of its body out of the hole, leaving only its hind legs and tail underneath.

'I can't get any closer because of the magic. However, the distance is a bit difficult for Lord Masain's Aura blast to reach. I'd rather move closer to the side.'

If you aim from the front, there is a high chance that it will struggle to get out of the hole faster.

However, I had no intention of jumping down a pit filled with demonic energy just to catch up.

"Lowering. "That must be a type 1 demon species, especially a level 1 demon."

Masain, aiming his sword, warned with a stern face.

"To properly deal with that gigantic thing, a large number of paladins must gather together and spread a sacred barrier. So please think carefully."

"I know, Sir Martha."

Seongjin looked at the land dying from the spreading demonic energy.

'I've seen a scene like this before.'

When the remnants of the Penitent Church summoned the Demon Beast.

According to the story told by Sir Sharon at the time, a total of more than 30 Holy Knights and Priests, including the Five Holy Emperors, deployed a defensive barrier to kill the Demon Beasts that had appeared in the past.

'We'll need a lot more people than that now.'

Isn't it a dinosaur whose size easily exceeds that of a huge building? Even excluding its long and thick tail, its length appears to be close to 100 meters.

Although it moved like a crawler, it moved faster than the magic beast. So the speed at which demonic energy spreads is also incomparable.

'It would be best to push him into a ditch... ..'

No matter how much you think about it, it is impossible with our current power.

The decision was quick. Well, wouldn't my father do something about the damage to the farmland that is increasing due to demonic energy?

"Don't go any closer than this, Sir Masaine. "Let's catch him here."

Seongjin moved a little closer to the monster and stopped Max.

Shhh-

When the Auror operation is stopped, Max suddenly returns to his original form. Naturally, Masain, who was riding behind him, also got down to the ground and gave me a suspicious look.

"Are you serious, my lord?"

"why? Sir Masain. "Did you really think I was going to rush into that demonic energy without a plan?"

When I looked at him with flawless eyes, Masain, who was startled, slightly averted his gaze.

"... No, that's not it."

"okay. I guess so. "I'm not crazy, would I do something like that?"

"... .."

What is it, Lord Masaine?

Oh, I'm not going! So stop looking at me with such suspicion!

"The only person I can trust now is Lord Martha. "The only way to hit him from this far away is to send out a surprising amount of energy."

It is the same as Seongjin or Masain who have no divine power. It was unclear how much significant damage it could inflict.

But wouldn't an aura explosion at least be enough to get the dinosaur's attention and make it turn around?

"yes. "I understand, sir."

Fortunately, it seemed that Seongjin had no intention of attacking directly, so Masain calmed down a bit and took his stance.

Ugh-

Soon Mythra emits a soft golden aura. She said it was one of the few castle relics in the empire.

As the posture became stable, Masain's sword began to show off its unrivaled power.

Awesome! Liquid!

Misra swung several times, and as a result, a sharp sword flew towards the dinosaur's side. The attack was unfailingly successful, leaving long stab wounds on the dinosaur's body.

Puff puff!

The plate-like scales split and black magical energy pours out like a fountain. It was clear that he had dealt a good blow to the bastard.

but-

'It's not enough to completely grab attention.'

The problem may be that the dinosaur's body is already weighed down by a mass that is thousands of times its normal weight.

Considering that he couldn't bear his own weight and his body exploded in various places, Masain's attack was nothing more than a scratch.

"As expected, I have no choice but to use 'Auror Explosion', which is a skill of the Lord."

Masain nodded at Seongjin's words.

"Whoa... .."

With even breathing, Misra began to emit increasingly brilliant golden light. Then, at some point, her breathing stopped with a long inhale-

Hissing-

An afterimage of a long golden moon flying quickly along a neat, vertically cutting orbit.

Puff!

The auror explosion undoubtedly caused a large explosion. Black magical energy burst out like a waterfall from the dinosaur's back, and for the first time, the creature reacted violently.

Wow!

The dinosaur screamed loudly toward the sky.

Pow! pop! Puff!

A loud explosion followed.

After being hit by a barrage of Aura fire several more times, the dinosaur finally began to wriggle its neck and turn around with difficulty.

"good!"

While Masain, who was exhausted from using the technique in succession, took a moment to adjust his aura, Seongjin closely observed the dinosaur's condition with his spiritual eyes from the side.

'I thought it wouldn't be just a bunch of shiny polygons... .. '

The body of the dinosaur blown up by Sir Martha seemed to be made of fairly decent flesh and bones.

'It's completely different from shaved ice, which is just a block of ice. They came out of the same game, so why is there such a difference?'

If you think about it, the shaved ice has completely lost its shape in the game, which was originally designed like a Yeti.

Where is that? Didn't he show a complete disregard for the physical laws of the real world?

However, that dinosaur was clearly strongly bound by Delcross's gravity.

[Because they are fundamentally different from the glamor trolls. If those guys are simply a clumsy transfer of the laws of the normal world to the real world, then that monster is a member of a new demon created by a high-ranking demon based on those rules.]

So, it exudes magical energy that is unique to the demon species. The Demon King added that.

[It's just that he probably didn't create it himself.]

'then?'

[There is a high possibility that it is being supplied directly from the devil who created it. Rather than a living entity that naturally generates demon energy, it is closer to a mass of power that has already existed and condensed demon energy.]

Otherwise, the Demon King explained, there would be no way to explain the sudden and rapid increase in demon energy.

[So, there is a high possibility that the owner of this thing is already aware of this situation. There is no devil in the world who would not notice such a large amount of demon energy escaping.]

'So does that mean that the owner could appear here?'

[Isn't there enough possibility? Anyway, this is a place outside your father's grace.]

'hmm... ... '

Seongjin was lost in thought while stroking Max's head.

If the dinosaur owner really shows up here, things will get very tricky. Isn't he a devil who can freely share this level of magical energy with his descendants? Even if he can't do it, isn't he a great guy who is at the level of a demon lord?

'Still, it would be nice if you could come here.'

The Demon King was startled by Seongjin's words.

[what? I'm serious? why?]

'Then doesn't that mean that dinosaur is a way to turn him around? So they will do their best to stop us somehow. But if you leave it like that... ... '

The Demon King sighed at Seongjin's point.

[Well, I see. If we ignore its destruction, it means that there are plenty of descendants to replace it.]

It also meant that the devil was so strong that he could not even blink at that level of magical energy loss.

Seongjin lost his temper for a moment, but there was no sign of anyone other than Masain and Dasha approaching.

'If Logan were here, he would have been able to sense even the weakest demon energy.'

Well, I have a feeling he will come running here soon.

Puff! pop!

At that time, Masain's attack began again.

As a result, the dinosaur, unable to endure the pain, twisted its body, and part of its hind limbs, which had managed to escape, slipped back into the pit.

Coooooooo!

The body, which must have weighed hundreds of tons, lost its balance and stumbled, shaking violently in all directions as if there had been an earthquake.

"Well done, Lord Martha!"

Wong wong!

-Let's go too! Let's go and bite that thing!

Whoa whoa!

-Hurry and make me strong and huge!

Calming down Max, who was very excited, Seongjin retreated again with Masain out of the guy's field of view.

Meanwhile, Seongjin's spiritual eyes were diligently examining his condition. Somehow I had a feeling that just waiting for the paladins to come wasn't enough.

'If he still has the characteristics of the normal world, there must be a fatal vital point somewhere. Most boss mobs have weak points that are easy to attack.'

The Glatzer Troll also had such a critical point. It was the heart in the chest. Didn't Sigismund's soldiers always form groups and focus on attacking the heart?

'If it's from the same game, there's a good chance this guy has something similar!'

As expected, the effort was not in vain, as Seongjin soon discovered a light red light blinking from the horn protruding from the tip of its nose.

It was a very faint mark that could barely be seen with the naked eye, but if you think of it as a mob encountered in the game, it was a fairly plausible location.

'For some reason, it makes me want to hit him at least once!'

[What? Wait a minute, what are you thinking now?]

The Demon King was frightened, but Seongjin was increasingly possessed by a stronger impulse. Korani, who is shining red, doesn't this seem like something that needs to be hit at all costs!

'When the Holy Knights arrive later, they will start by attacking the sacred barrier.'

No matter how much you say it's a weak point, there's no crazy person who will believe that and attack the demon species from the very tip of their nose.

Then how much time and manpower will it take to subdue him? Seongjin could clearly see that the damage from the Holy Knights would be significant.

'But if I knock a little before that, the story will be different. Not only can the damage be greatly reduced, but it can also provide a basis for information to the Holy Knights that join later!'

After making his decision, Seongjin secretly looked to the side.

Lord Masaine's face looked quite tired after firing dozens of Auror attacks in a short period of time.

"Lord Masaine. Max is a divine beast who received the grace of the main god. "You know that, right?"

"yes?"

At Seongjin's sudden words, Masain, who was catching his breath, turned his head in confusion.

"So even if it comes into contact with quite a bit of magical power, it won't be affected. "Isn't it amazing?"

"Ah yes. okay."

"And so do I. "Because demonic energy and the like won't be able to hurt me."

"... yes?"

While the knight, feeling an ominous premonition, hesitated, Seongjin was fully prepared to separate him.

Whoop-

After receiving the aura, Max's size increases in an instant.

"So, don't worry, Lord Martha can't get any closer than this! okay?"

"Lowering!?"

Masain's face turned pale as he understood the true meaning of those words.

But it was already too late, and before I knew it, Seongjin was running furiously on Max's back. Look straight at the monster dinosaur, and point straight at its red nose.

Masain was astonished. Didn't the prince himself say earlier that he wouldn't do such crazy things?

"Lowering! If you suddenly rush in alone like that... ..!"

The knight ran after him and screamed, but the prince's face looking back was bright.

"Don't even think about following me, Kyung, just come from there and blow up the bomb! Because it helps me!"

Just like that, the wolf-dog and the young prince quickly move away from each other.

"that... ..!"

Masain, who reflexively stopped at the command to take cover, could not hide his sense of futility.

But it was only a fleeting moment, and soon his face began to turn red and distorted due to the intense anger that poured in like a flood.

"this... .."

Huuuuk-

The strings of patience that had been suppressed to the limit were finally broken, and the anger welling up in my chest burst out violently along with the aura.

"Moreseuuu! "You son of a bitch!"

'Oh, Lord Martha seems to be really angry.'

Seongjin broke into a cold sweat as he heard the angry shouts ringing from behind.

I don't think this is the time to worry about getting hit by your father.

[of course! Hey, you crazy guy! Are you out of your mind now? huh?]

The Demon King was also very angry.

The guy who had been restlessly circling inside the flame crystal now sat down on the bottom of the crystal and started pounding the ground.

[No, no! I'm crazy! It's me who's crazy! You know so well that this guy will do something like this at any time, and yet you lend your spiritual eyes again without even thinking about it!]

It seemed like if he left it alone, he would completely turn off his spiritual eyes, so Seongjin carefully comforted him.

'It's okay, devil. Even though it's like this, there are at least two people who believe it.'

It wasn't an empty remark at all. After sharing Auror with Max, Auror's operation suddenly became noticeably better.

The Auror, who had previously walked around roughly as if conscious of it, was now circling along the path carefully, as if he was afraid of causing even the slightest harm to his body.

'And another thing... ... '

Ugh-

Before you know it, a distinct gray aura begins to form on the nutcracker's blade. The outer blade was so clear in shape that it could have been covered with another sharp blade.

Originally, it would have been a level that only a high-level knight could demonstrate, but now Seongjin is using Max's body to operate aurors that are close to twice the normal level.

'and... ... '

There were other Aurors that could be used.

The ripples that always flutter across my chest. A huge amount of Aurors handed over to me by my father.

'Until now, I have refrained from using it as per my father's instructions.'

Seongjin knew. Right now is the time to use this generously!

348. Jurassic Island (3)

The enormous density of magical energy emitted by the dinosaur clumped together around its body, forming a huge dome. Seongjin, who ran at full speed, soon entered the smoky demonic energy.

Panting!

Following Seongjin's will, the wolfdog kicked into the land of death covered in demonic energy without the slightest hesitation. An excited attitude as if it were a fun game even though it was a dangerous situation.

'I'm not afraid of demons after all!'

Seongjin felt relieved.

I knew that Max was immune to Louise's magical aura, but I wasn't entirely sure if he would be able to do the same against the demon species.

'I think it'll be okay. However, since the demonic energy here is so strong, there is no harm in being careful in advance.'

Seongjin added aura around the dog just in case, and looked up at the dinosaur's body, which felt like a huge wall.

It is difficult to see even an inch ahead in the pitch-black haze of demon energy. However, Seongjin still had the devil's spiritual eye.

[Oh, I was crazy, really!]

The demon lord complained tirelessly, but he did not jump out of the flame crystal like before.

Water already spilled. In that case, you must have learned from experience that you should cooperate with Seongjin as much as possible and finish the job as quickly as possible.

Puff!

A familiar explosion was heard again, and the dinosaur struggled violently. Perhaps Masain came back from afar and fired a barrage of fire again to prevent Seongjin from noticing him approaching.

It must have felt like he wanted to follow me right away. However, if you follow Seongjin and jump into the demonic energy, you may not be of any help and may die on the spot.

Masain himself is well aware of this fact, so he is probably desperately exercising self-control.

'I knew that would happen so I separated it.'

I'm so sorry, Sir Martha.

As the situation was different, I couldn't ask for your understanding, but I will still take your advice to heart from now on.

[You're funny! Don't say things you don't mean!]

Sheesh. You know too much for nothing, devil.

Meanwhile, Seongjin, who had reached the feet of the dinosaur, attempted to conceal the Aurors on his and Max's bodies at the same time. Didn't Luise and Max's body easily perform the Schneeshuhe before?

'There are plenty of possibilities!'

Whoop-

But what's so refreshing is that with just one attempt, the wolf-dog's presence disappears.

'... 'It's simpler than I thought, isn't it?'

Is it because of the connection with the family? It was a feat that was possible because the wolf dog's body could freely move its aura as if it were another version of itself.

'If you do this well... .. !'

Seongjin swallowed dry saliva.

I thought it would be a pretty intense battle to properly target Red Nose.

'If things continue like this, I might be able to get up to the bridge of my nose and strike a sharp punch without even a mouse or a bird knowing.'

Seongjin, relieved, climbed up the dinosaur's leg without hesitation. Already being mercilessly pressed down by their own mass, there was no worry that the dinosaurs would be able to detect their secret movements.

Jeok-

Push!

Occasionally, the dinosaur's skin bursts before your eyes without warning, and a huge amount of magical energy surges from the wound.

However, Seongjin, who had fully activated his spiritual eyes, could clearly see a path to avoid all the obstacles.

A long, solid silver line.

Following the clear path they had seen before, Seongjin and the wolfdog lightly stepped on the scales of the dinosaur and jumped up, as if they were taking a walk.

Thump, thud!

Eventually, Max took a leap forward and jumped up to the dinosaur's shoulder, and the demonic energy in front of his eyes finally cleared up, and the dinosaur's head became visible to the naked eye.

At the same time, the figures of Seongjin and Max were also clearly visible outside the black haze.

"... ..!"

Masain, who was about to fire an Aura blast again, stopped his movement when he discovered that they had also used Aura concealment. It looks like the monster is shaking and is afraid that it might fall down.

Wong!

On the other hand, the wolf-dog was excited for the first time in a while.

He doesn't care whether his vision is dark or obstacles are blocking his way, he just follows Seongjin's lead and enjoys a sense of unity with his master.

I was so excited that I even let out a small howl.

Whoa!

-Here I come, strong and gigantic! Bite hard!

Shh! Max.

We're currently in Auror cloaking.

Kiing-

-Still biting. Shows strong teeth.

no. Stop it, Max.

You shouldn't carelessly bite evil spirits that exude evil energy.

'Well, what should we do now?'

Climbing up the uneven scales with ease, Seongjin thought for a moment.

The external energy of the sword created by the increased aura had stretched to almost twice the length of the nutcracker blade.

Instead of going all the way to the bridge of the nose, should we just delve into a vital area like the carotid artery?

'No, how can I pierce this big guy's vitals at once?'

Seongjin immediately shook his head.

Considering the power they have now, they probably need a powerful strike that defies even the laws of physics in the real world.

'Plus, I have a strong feeling! That red nose must be a real vital spot!'

After making up his mind, Seongjin drove Max without hesitation and ran down the dinosaur's forehead.

Then, the area around its eyes, which had relatively sensitive senses, twitched, and the dinosaur slowly rolled its eyes forward.

Crrrrr... ... ?

"... "Oh my!"

You might get discovered!

Masain, who was anxiously watching the scene from afar, fired an Aura blast once again.

Pow!

Another explosion occurs somewhere along the creature's spine, and the dinosaur turns its head with difficulty.

It was at that moment that the wolf-dog soared upward.

Huh-

Caught by a small gust of wind from its body, the wolf-dog fell straight towards the bridge of the dinosaur's nose.

And above him, there was Seongjin holding a nutcracker.

A long dark auror blade extended to the side and cut through the base of the red horn.

Whoops!

The nutcracker's blade, the grip that held it, the shoulder that wielded the sword, and finally the tip of the head.

A thunderous impact sound shook Seongjin.

I could tell the results without even looking.

'It was eaten!'

"Ugh!"

At the sudden scream of sowing, the guild member standing next to him asked with a puzzled expression.

"What is it? Lady Bugil."

"No, what on earth is this..." ... !"

Pajong frowned and looked into space.

He had recently joined a small or medium-sized guild and was crazy about the game. He was still busy preparing for a large-scale raid with his guild members.

But suddenly, a shock of unknown origin struck my head.

'What is happening? Why is my demon energy suddenly decreasing so much?'

From what I could guess, it was clear that one of the countless seeds he had sown in the Delcross dimension had bloomed.

But it is truly strange. There's no way there's a seed that can consume this much demonic energy?

Pa-jong, who had been concentrating for a moment to understand the situation, flinched and wrinkled his eyebrows in surprise.

'what? 'Why did it get so big?'

For some reason, the status of one of the seeds seemed to have increased significantly. To eat this much demonic energy, it is equivalent to the amount of most high-level demons.

'What on earth is going on? Did the guardian of Delcross do something? But why all of a sudden after being quiet all this time?'

Since I was absent from the normal world playing games for a while, I had no idea what was going on.

'Let's go to the Delcross dimension first! I'll go and find out what's going on!'

It was the moment when Pajong was in a hurry to terminate the connection. A small window quickly appears before my eyes. It was the quest window that had been giving him trouble recently.

[Essential Quest – Recover the Lost Heart of Ice!]

[Quest Grade: EX+]

[Progress :

3. Restore 1 ice heart. (0%)
4. Restore 1 ice heart. (0%)]

heart recovered.]

[*This product is available in the Pangea Chronicle store window. Is the reward too small? Feel deeply grateful for the fact that you will receive a small amount of cash for the quest to atone for the atrocities you have committed!]

Ah, the sorrow. This little guy. Do we really have to do this?

While Pajong was pondering, a small paladin came to his side.

"Mr. Pajong!"

"Ah, guild leader."

"Have you finished preparing for the raid? It still feels like a dream to have a high-ranker like you come to our guild. "You are the hope of our glamping guild!"

What the guild leader said was true.

A glamping guild that was once blinded by former items, attacked a demon-possessed mountain goat, and came close to being destroyed.

Now that the merger with the PEP guild had collapsed, the only person I could trust was the newly arrived ranker.

"hmm. Guild leader. Speaking of that raid, actually, I'm in a hurry right now... .."

It was time for Pajong to hesitate and make an excuse. Suddenly, as if threatening him, a new text window appeared again.

[warning! - Quest failure penalty]

[Do your best and complete the quest in the shortest time! Otherwise, you will have to pay a heavy price for completely destroying the potential of a world.]

[Result: Avatar initialization. Wipe all cache. Registered on user blacklist.]

[*It is questionable whether proper recovery is possible. If this situation is repeated, the ID itself may be erased, and eventually even the opportunity to easily repay the debt may disappear. That doesn't mean your debt itself goes away. I am really looking forward to seeing how it will be repaid.]

I came to my senses.

Even among the high-ranking Demon Lords, there is no one who can follow [Passion] in terms of having a long tail.

If this warning was ignored, there was no telling what else this crazy demon king would plan.

"Ugh... . okay. "You can do it."

"... Mr. Pajong?"

"It's nothing, guild leader."

Pa Jong shook his head and walked towards where the guild members were gathered.

But before he could even take two steps-

"Huh!?"

There was another huge shock, and a bunch of magical energy came out of the body.

'what? Holy crazy! 'What's happening now?'

Pajong was greatly embarrassed.

Considering only the amount lost so far, the amount is almost comparable to that of the demon lord of the flame level.

In any case, further loss of magical energy was dangerous. Because the loss of magic energy suffered by the Delcross Guardian in the gap had not yet been completely recovered.

'Being loosely between the world and its laws has actually become poisonous!

The lineage that borrowed the laws of the normal world had the advantage of being able to roll stably with relatively little magic power. Right now, he's just a bastard who eats demonic energy.

'Holy shit! 'I can't help it!'

In the end, Pajong had no choice but to cry and eat mustard, completely severing his connection with his family.

* * *

Wow!

With the second blow, a large crack appears in the red horn again.

However, the dinosaur's horn was not completely broken. A huge amount of magical energy surged out, and it was restored to normal in an instant.

[It's no use, Seongjin Lee! This guy keeps playing?]

The Demon King was frightened and shouted, but Seongjin was not embarrassed.

'It's okay, devil. 'It's not useless!'

I was confident that I had hit the guy properly. Because he clearly felt the taste of the sword.

However, this was when Seongjin gathered his energy and was about to strike the third blow.

'... ... !?'

Seongjin was startled by a somewhat ominous premonition and put down the nutcracker.

'Has the red mark disappeared?'

It was like that. The red mark that had been blinking faintly just a moment ago had now completely disappeared and was no longer visible. This meant that the horn at the tip of the nose was no longer a vital point.

Where is that? The momentum conveyed by the dinosaur was completely different from before.

Crrrrr...

Seongjin quickly pushed Max back and looked at the dinosaur.

But something strange happened.

□Stila□Kera□su□

The text that came to mind once again was badly broken, unlike before.

'... what?'

Seongjin broke into a cold sweat as he watched the text window shatter in real time before his eyes.

But that wasn't the only change.

Tdu-duk, tdu-duk.

The dinosaur's body begins to twist and shrink little by little.

For some unknown reason, the clumsy demon species that had been bound by the laws of the normal world was being reborn as a complete monster of the normal world.

349. Jurassic Island (4)

Tdu-duk, tdu-duk.

An eerie sound of destruction is heard as loose tissues break apart and come together again.

[Lee Seong-jin, something is strange! The energy of the normal world flowing from him suddenly disappeared!]

Before the demon lord could even startle, Seongjin, who had a premonition of something, was already moving Max.

'The devil has decided to abandon his family!'

Somehow I had that feeling.

Hwiik-

While Schneeshuhe was quickly sliding down the dinosaur's body, a strong whirlpool occurred behind him. Friction between worlds that occurs when the essence of an entity is completely reversed.

Kwa-kwa-kwa-kwa-kwa-

Just like that, the dinosaur's entire body began to reorganize before my eyes.

The body, which was needlessly huge, gradually shrinks, and the body tissues that were extremely flimsy compared to the mass become denser.

Her belly, which was thick like a hippopotamus's, has become slim, and her legs, which had been floppy, reveal the clear curves of her muscles.

There was also a slight change in the demonic veil that was spreading in all directions. The black smoke, which had lost its central point, seemed to quickly disperse into the air.

However, most of the demon energy did not disappear, and soon began to gather and condense together in a vortex centered around the dinosaur.

Shuuuk-

For some reason, a very small portion of the scattered demon energy is gathering towards Seongjin at a rapid pace! Seongjin, who was escaping at full speed to avoid being caught in the whirlpool, was scared.

'huh? 'Why is it coming this way?'

Seongjin was disgusted and shook away the black smoke that was gathering, but the demonic energy disappeared into Seongjin's body as if it were being sucked into an exhaust fan.

'100 million!?'

I panicked and tried to shake off my body, but once the demon energy was absorbed, it did not come out again.

'What the hell is going on?'

Seongjin was nervous for a moment, but fortunately, there didn't seem to be any immediate danger to his life. Because my physical condition was not much different from usual.

'It's a bit uncomfortable, though.'

Seongjin breathed a sigh of relief.

At that time, the Demon King, who was quietly examining the dinosaur, muttered in confusion.

[Is that strange? It seems like the high-ranking demon who created that family has completely given up not only the family, but also ownership of the demonic energy.]

'Give up ownership?'

[huh. If I had wanted to, I could have retrieved just the magic energy, but I threw away so many demon energy without any regrets. Why on earth did he do that?]

[Pajong], the owner of the dinosaur, had some unavoidable circumstances, but there was no way for Seongjin and his party to know that fact.

[How much demon energy does this guy have left?]

'I guess my stomach was upset?'

[Tch! That's right.]

In any case, the Demon King added that demons that have lost their masters will either completely disappear or succumb to and be absorbed by nearby demons.

[So it flew towards this direction. In your head, there is this body of the great Fire Demon, right?]

'... 'Yes, I see.'

Seongjin ran after Max and looked back at the dinosaur wrapped in a black vortex.

'Then what happens to that abandoned family member in the future?'

Now, no matter how much I looked with my spiritual eyes, I couldn't see the text. This probably means that he has completely escaped the laws of the normal world.

[That will be the new devil!]

There was a faint excitement mixed in the Demon King's voice.

[Devils are originally born where demonic energy gathers. However, it is not common in the demon world for such a large amount of demonic energy to gather naturally. Not to mention the human world!]

'then... ... '

[Yes, Seongjin Lee! This is truly a monumental moment when a new high-ranking devil is born in the human world!]

Hey, that's no big deal. There is something else in the world to celebrate.

"Then what is the possibility that he will completely change and show a favorable attitude toward us?"

[Hmm, maybe it's close to zero? Even though the essence has changed, it doesn't change the fact that you broke that guy's nose twice earlier, right?]

this.

Then, at best, a high-ranking devil born in the human world will die before he can live long. That seems like something worth commemorating.

In the meantime, Seongjin and Max had completely escaped the land contaminated with demonic energy.

"Lowering!"

Masain, who had been anxiously waiting for them to approach, came running towards them with joy. Of course, Seongjin yelled at her so loudly that she had to stop in her tracks.

"Oh, don't come any closer, Lord Masaine! Dangerous!"

"... yes?!"

"A long time ago, quite a lot of demonic energy entered my body. "I think I'm okay, but I don't know what will happen to other people."

"M-Magi, listen..." ... !"

At those shocking words, the poor knight staggered with a pale face.

"I am... I am! Because I was unable to properly compensate for the decline... ..!"

no. That's not it, so come to your senses, Lord Masaine!

Hwii-

By that time, the vortex of demonic energy surrounding the dinosaur had completely subsided. What slowly appeared through the black smoke was a demon species that was much smaller than before.

Crrrrr... ..

The overall impression was not much different from the first, but its sleeker appearance now resembled a three-horned lizard rather than a triceratops.

The guy, who at first glance looked like a scarf lizard due to the slats around his neck, slowly got up and took a heavy step.

Coo!

Although the earth was still shaken by a strong impact, it was a huge improvement compared to the first time when it could not bear its own weight at all.

"... Dragon?"

Masain, who was staring blankly at the guy, muttered without realizing it.

okay. If we had to give a name to this demon, which is not even a dinosaur, it would probably be closest to the legendary creature from the founding myth.

"But it's not a dragon, Lord Masaine. "It's just a species of demon in reptilian form."

Seongjin replied, holding the nutcracker.

"You don't even have wings, do you? Of course, it will be easier for us to deal with him that way."

"yes? Dealing with it, wait a minute..."

Masain's face began to look sinister.

"Sir, are you still planning on continuing?"

"hmm? But Sir Masain. If you just leave that alone..."

"The Holy Knights will soon come and deal with us! You have already done enough. "Isn't the size of the monster much smaller than before?"

"No, that's..."

I didn't shorten it.

But before Seongjin could say anything more, Masain got angry.

"Now do your work! Do you think I will just sit back and watch this situation happen? "If you do such a dangerous thing again, this time I will definitely follow you, whether it's in the demonic energy or somewhere else!"

"ok?"

"If you want to see me die right here, then go ahead and do it!"

"hmm..."

Then Seongjin made a very embarrassed expression.

"But I don't think it will work out the way I want it to, Lord Martha."

"yes?"

"Anyway, even if we don't go, I think he'll come after us on his own."

"... ... !?"

As he said, the giant lizard, which was moving its body around, slowly rolled its eyes and glared at Seongjin and the others. What was in those eyes was undoubtedly strong hostility!

Grrrr...

Black magic energy flowed from the corner of his mouth along with a threatening low-frequency breathing sound.

It was clear that he clearly remembered who was the one who had fired a lot of Aura fire at him and bit the bridge of his nose when he couldn't even control himself properly.

Masain's face turns pale as he understands the situation.

"So, let's disperse far away this time. "There's nothing we can do to distract him, Lord Martha!"

"no... ... !?"

"Well then, good luck. "Be careful not to touch the demon energy!"

Before Masain could say anything more, Seongjin drove Max and started running again.

Even if the appearance of the demon race changed slightly, the principles of dealing with it did not change at all. Tie them down so they don't leave this spot as much as possible!

"Wait a minute, my dear!"

Masain's screaming figure quickly moves away.

When Seongjin suddenly began to move noticeably, the dinosaur's irises tightened and the target was identified.

Shhh-

The guy let out a strong, demonic snort and immediately moved his heavy body to chase after them.

thud! thud! thud!

Fortunately, its movements were quite slow.

The cause was unknown, whether it was because the nerve transmission took a long time due to the size of the body, or whether gravity was still too much to handle.

'I don't think I'll be able to catch up with Max easily.'

A large amount of aura was wrapped stably around the wolf dog's legs. This is thanks to the generous effort to attract not only Seongjin's own auras, but also the auras of the Seonghwang people filling the passageway.

'There's still room for Aurors. Then, let's spin around and lure him in for as long as possible!'

Seongjin changed Max's direction slightly, measuring the distance between him and the guy.

[Are you just going to run away like this?]

'uh.'

No other sharp number came to mind. Even though it has shrunk a bit in size, it is still a dinosaur the size of a decent building.

There was no way to kill a guy like that right away. I no longer see any weaknesses like a red nose.

'You never know if a meteorite suddenly falls in this place.'

[Why is it a meteorite all of a sudden?]

Well, there is such a thing, demon lord.

They are the eternal natural enemies of dinosaurs.

Meanwhile, Masain gathered the Aurors who could see the floor and followed Seongjin's running figure with his eyes. To be exact, the clear gray auror blade on his sword.

'... Outdoor air! That's even higher than that of a senior knight!'

As far as he knew, that Auror Blade was absolutely not an external energy that could come from the prince's realm.

Where is that? As the prince appears to be escaping more stably than expected, things that he had missed out of confusion until now come into view.

'The auror wrapped around that dog's body is clearly operated by you!'

Masain couldn't even imagine what tricks the prince was doing.

What the prince was using now was not the normal Banahas practice. No matter how much of a genius Banajas was, he probably couldn't have prepared for a situation where he had to ride a wolf dog and use a sword.

Now, the prince is unconsciously moving the aurors in his own way.

It may be true that the Banahas exercises have become the basis to some extent, but what the prince is showing now is not any specific exercises, but a completely new method of operation.

no way.

'A state where form and expression disappear... ... ?'

Masain shook his head at a thought that suddenly crossed his mind.

It doesn't make sense. For a prince who had become an Auror only a few months ago, was this even possible?

At that time, the Aurors gathered again, and a brilliant golden aura appeared in Mythra. Masain raised his shaking arm and aimed it at the monster's tail.

'I can't make you chase after me forever. So now look this way, you deviant demon servant!'

Hissing-

A golden moon quickly shoots through the air. The attack with all its might hit near the devil's tail, causing a huge explosion.

Quang!

Wow!

In response to the unexpected attack, the devil stopped walking and roared. The skin of the tail bursts, and instead of blood, black magic energy pours out like a waterfall.

Coo! thud!

The dinosaur looks back with bloodshot eyes. As the huge body turned 180 degrees, its long tail swept the floor and swung like a whip.

"huh?"

The problem was that its tail rushed towards Seongjin, who was teasingly running right in front of the dinosaur, at an incredible speed.

Words were like a whip, but to Seongjin, it was like an entire high hill had been pushed down upon him.

"... ..!"

Even in that urgent situation, Seongjin became suspicious.

His senses, his spiritual eyes, and his premonitions did not warn him of this situation at all!

[Lee Seong-jin! Dangerous!]

Seongjin's eyes widened at the demon king's shout.

Suddenly, in my rapidly accelerating consciousness, I see the tail of a huge reptile approaching, as if in slow motion. Even if I went as fast as I could, there was already nowhere to escape.

'... late!'

Seongjin reflexively gathered all the aura in his body and covered the wolfdog as much as possible.

At least Marx... ..!

Whi profit!

The strong wind is blowing like that -

Quaaaang!

Then, a huge impact sound hit my eardrums.

"... ... ?"

But no matter how long I waited, there was no shock as expected.

When Seongjin opened his eyes in confusion, what was unfolding in front of him was a large Auror curtain shining silver-blue.

"Lee Seong-jin!"

And at the center of it all was Logan.

Conquest of the White Knights without any disruption. The former sword master, who looked neat as usual, was looking at Seongjin with a bewildered expression.

"You man! "A guy who doesn't have any divine power, what can he trust right now to deal with a level 1 demon species on his own?!"

350

350. Holy Wind (1)

Coooooooo!

The dinosaur, which has lost its balance, falls forward and a thunderous sound resounds.

This is because the tail, which was swinging quickly, hit the strong sword curtain and was cut in half.

Shootaaa-

Black magical energy poured out like a waterfall from the torn wound.

"It has been almost 10 years since a first-class giant demon species appeared near the ecliptic. "You're not the kind of person who can do things on your own."

However, the Sword Master, who had achieved such an incredible feat using only his sword, was so nagging that he did not even look at the threatening waterfall of demonic energy.

"Do you understand, Seongjin Lee? This means that even if the Holy Knights had been here, they would have developed a proper strategy and approached cautiously. "What on earth were you thinking?"

"no. That's wrong, Logan! I was just trying to keep him tied up here! I never planned on doing it on my own... .."

But Seongjin could not finish speaking.

"Hey, my dear!"

This is because the cries of a distraught Lord Masain were heard from afar.

The knight, who was almost exhausted from the series of Aura explosions, was almost on the verge of losing his mind due to the dizzying accident caused by his own attack.

Logan glanced at him and clicked his tongue.

"Look at that. Because you do such a reckless thing, Masaine is the only one suffering for no reason. "No matter how much you are born with the blood of a prosperous family, it is dangerous to be exposed to demonic energy for such a long time."

Since he had nothing to say to that point, Seongjin kept his mouth shut.

"But that dog...""

Logan looked at Max, who had become huge, puzzled for a moment.

The wolfdog, which, like its owner, had no sense of danger, was panting and happily beating its tail as if it knew that it had just almost died.

"Oh, this is our Max. "He's definitely not a suspicious guy!"

"Max... ... ?"

"Uh, um. You may have been a bit surprised by his sudden growth, but they say he is a divine beast who received the grace of the main god..."

"Shinsu."

lie.

The Sword Master, who can immediately grasp a person's true feelings, would not have known how absurd an excuse that answer was.

At Logan's somewhat cold-looking gaze, Seongjin, who was stabbed by the grass, gave a series of explanations.

"Well, Sir Francis said that! It's called the wind, and there have been instances in the past when a divine beast like this appeared! I heard that it is also mentioned in the fairy tales of the scriptures... .."

"... okay."

Sincerity.

Logan's expression becomes a little mysterious.

Why not? The auror that is currently surrounding the wolfdog is completely Lee Seong-jin's. It even gives off a faint, evil energy, so how can it be a creature that belongs to the grace of the Lord?

However, Logan soon nodded without saying anything.

"It looks like that person has already worked on something. "If it were Ortona, he would have done something that could never have happened."

"... .."

"Still, for now, I feel fortunate that Delcross is a country with absolute imperial authority. Otherwise, there would have been no way to control stubborn high-ranking clergy."

Still, just in case, try to refrain from appearing like this in front of high-ranking priests as much as possible.

As Logan said that, he lifted the sword he had spread out. As the dinosaur's wounds were slowly healing, the magic energy pouring out was also showing signs of decreasing.

Instead, Logan spread a small sacred barrier around them.

"Are you going to catch that guy?"

Seongjin asked, looking at the dinosaur that was staggering around. This is a question without any doubt that Logan would definitely be able to do it.

But surprisingly, Logan shook his head.

"no. "I will wait here for the Holy Knights to arrive."

"why?"

"You can easily suffocate him. But purifying the demonic energy it contains is another matter."

In short, the current state of the dinosaur is no different from a weak pouch containing a huge amount of demon energy.

If the central point is completely destroyed without any thought, an unprecedented disaster will occur in which a huge tidal wave of magic will engulf Bathurst Territory.

"He is probably the only one who can dispose of that level of demonic power in one go. So first, the Holy Knights must come here and establish a tight sacred barrier. "It will be after that that the guy's breathing will be completely cut off."

"Sacred barrier... .."

"The first thing is to prevent the outflow of demonic energy. Normally, a large number of priests spend several days purifying demonic energy while maintaining the sacred barrier."

okay?

Seongjin blinked.

"Then there was no reason for you to come first, right? "Why didn't you bring all the Holy Knights?"

Logan made a bewildered expression at that question.

"Is that what you're going to say? "Why on earth do you think this is?"

"uh... .."

"Lee Seong-jin, you almost died just now, but you have no sense of crisis?"

That look that looks down on you as if you were pitiful, seems like you are dealing with an immature child. Seongjin started to cry and rebel without even realizing it.

"Hey, who wants to die! "I was sure he blocked it with aura just before that!"

"Of course, that dog you desperately wrapped survived."

Logan sighed slightly and swung his sword without even looking back.

Hwiik-

Wow!

An extremely simple blow.

With that alone, the dinosaur, which had barely been able to get up, falls back to the floor. This is because the sharp external energy emitted from Arjuna blew away the entire tip of his tail, which maintains his body's balance.

Coooooooo!

The ground shakes, and a huge amount of demonic energy pours down like running water from the cut section.

Leaving behind that unrealistic scene, the Sword Master reprimanded Seongjin in a calm voice.

"Let me ask. Why did you act so foolishly in such a tense situation? "Have you never even thought about taking care of yourself?"

It was as if they were in the eye of a typhoon. No matter how strong and threatening the incoming demonic energy flow was, it could not infiltrate the sacred barrier surrounding Seongjin and Logan in the slightest.

In that strange calmness, Logan's pounding continued.

"I thought it might have been like that from the time you turned the auror around randomly inside your body, but even if you wash your eyes and look for it, you really don't have an instinctive self-defense mechanism?"

"Wow, that's a big leap! "If the situation is too urgent, people can make mistakes!"

"Do you think we can gloss it over by saying it was just a mistake? People tend to show their true feelings unconsciously when unexpected situations arise. "What on earth do you think of yourself that allows you to send all the Aurors to the wrong place even in such a desperate crisis?"

Seongjin briefly closed his mouth in response to Logan's harsh criticism.

There was nothing I could say in response. Only clumsy thoughts that could not be expressed in words echoed dizzily in her head.

'No, but death to me anyway... ..'

"Lowering! "Hey!"

The thoughts no longer continued. This is because Masain screamed as if he was almost out of breath as they came running toward them covered in demonic energy.

"this."

Fortunately, Logan's nagging ended quickly. After catching a glimpse of Masain as if he was worried, he turned around and quickly spoke to Seongjin.

"Then I'll come and check on Brother Masain's condition. "It's been quite a while since I was exposed to demonic energy, so without the sacred barrier, you too will be in danger."

"Am I going with you?"

"It's just inside the barrier. "You probably won't be able to follow my movements yet."

Logan, who had said something very hurtful to his pride, slightly raised the corners of his mouth and added.

"I will take appropriate measures as I go so that there is no danger."

"action?"

"okay. Well, unless it's a fairly unexpected situation, you wouldn't be easily defeated by a guy like that."

With those words, Logan showed off an amazing move.

I thought I was going to easily jump out of the barrier, but soon I started sliding up the dinosaur as high as a small mountain.

"... ..!"

Logan's slightly blurred appearance seemed natural, as if he were melting into the air.

It is unlikely that he was carrying out an Auror cover-up.

Just perfect auror balance.

The appearance of a knight who defined the relationship between himself and the world by his own laws, and succeeded in making the Auror's movements completely conform to these laws.

In this way, Dekaron Knight, the youngest person on the continent, became a ray of silver-blue wind and easily passed over the ridge of the dinosaur's back.

Kwasik!

Of course, before completely riding over the dinosaur at the top, I didn't forget to plunge another deep sword strike into its spine.

Cooooooo!

The dinosaur, which was struggling to get up, was hit hard on the road by the deadly Auror Blade, as if it were a skewered specimen.

Wow!

Its nervous roar echoes through the air.

"and... .."

Seongjin engraved the series of movements in his mind, one by one, with shining eyes. Without forgetting to quickly guess the principle in your head.

A red light blinks inside the pupil.

With his senses becoming more sensitive than before, plus the Demon King's spiritual eyes, Seongjin seemed to be able to see the laws hidden behind phenomena that seemed mysterious at first glance.

'What is the principle? 'How is it possible to move like that?'

Is this an application of Schneeschhe? Or is it a unique step belonging to the Henesys practice?

'... No, it's a little different from that.'

As I looked at it, I felt like I could see at a glance what the crucial difference was.

'This isn't something that can be solved just by wrapping the aura around the body. That's changing the outside of the body, that is, the air flow itself, as desired!'

Look at Logan's strange movements. Even though I'm not specifically focusing my aura on my feet, doesn't it look like I'm sliding on a transparent rail?

Once I figured out the basics, this thought naturally occurred to me.

'If I do well, I think I can do it too...' ... '

[What? Hey, man! What are you going to do again?]

The Demon King, who was holding his breath in the flame crystal, was startled and shouted.

[Are you still unable to come to your senses even after things have gotten to this point? Just stay inside the barrier! It's dangerous!]

But as I watched Logan moving as freely as the wind, my hands began to itch.

Think about it, devil. How can you remain still after seeing something like that?

'Even the Aurors are richer than ever before.'

Hwii-

Seongjin was not conscious of it, but at some point, a weak wind was rising beneath Max's feet, created when the Auror materialized.

"Brother, stop! "Are you feeling okay?"

Meanwhile, Logan, who quickly arrived on the other side riding a dinosaur, stopped Masain and asked. This stubborn knight was so desperate that he had unknowingly stepped deep into the land of death.

Logan, who noticed signs of erosion all over his body, quickly struck a sacred barrier and unleashed strong divine power.

"Lowering! Prince Mores... ..!"

"Mores is safe, brother. So, please rest assured and get yourself together."

"... ..!"

Masain finally seemed to come to his senses after hearing his trustworthy younger brother's words.

The knight, who realized that he had shown an unbelievably indecent appearance despite his age, fell to his knees on the floor and let out a sigh of mixed relief and self-destruction.

"Phew, I'm sorry. Because I was unable to properly assist Prince

Mores... .."

"older brother."

"I failed to fulfill my duty. "You truly have no shame, sir!"

Logan looked down at him with an embarrassed face and thought.

Who in this world can 'properly' take care of Mores, who deliberately causes trouble?

"We need to crack down on Mores. "Brother, you have done enough."

"That's not true... omg!"

But Masain's face turned pale again as he looked up at what he saw.

Logan unconsciously turned his head to follow his gaze, unable to hide his bewildered feelings at the sight that caught his eye.

"... Seongjin Lee?"

It was like that.

Isn't Lee Seong-jin, who is now on top of the dinosaur's body with Max, smiling as he looks down into the distance with a confident face?

It was clear that they had followed Logan's exact path.

"Ahaha! "It's simpler than you think, right?"

But Seongjin's atrocities were only just beginning.

Seongjin, who was assessing something on top of the wildly writhing demon species, got on his uneasy feet and began to carefully move the wolf dog.

"Well, I... ..!"

Masain, who was worse off, jumped up from his seat.

lightly.

Seongjin, who dangerously turned his wolf-dog body toward Masain and Logan, raised the corner of his mouth playfully for the last time.

"I'm going to show you something really fun, Logan! "Maybe you'll be surprised too?"

With that said, finally.

Shuuuk-

Seongjin ran away with Max without any regrets.

"... ..!"

"Hey!"

Seongjin literally fell in an instant.

Using the dinosaur's high back as support, it slides as if going down a slide in the air.

Although it's a little clumsy, it's not fundamentally different from the movements Logan showed.

"ha ha ha! Look at this, Logan! Who says they can't keep up? "I'm much faster, right?"

Shooooooooo-

The prince is riding the dog as if it were a sled, and the prince is accelerating tremendously! The speed was so scary that if it hit the floor like this, it would absolutely be crushed flat!

Masain, who was worse off, stood up and ran out of the barrier.

"Lowering! It's dangerous! Please stop!"

"Ahahaha!"

"Hey!"

Running after him, Logan laughed a little helplessly.

"Haha, that's really amazing."

"yes?"

"I didn't expect you to imitate that anomalous movement right away.

"Mores really seems to be a genius in Auror training, brother."

"... .."

At that carefree admiration, Masain unconsciously frowned and looked back.

No, I wouldn't know if it were someone else. When you say that, isn't it just deception?

351. Holy Wind (2)

Fortunately, the situation Masain feared did not occur.

As the bottom rapidly approached, Seongjin's speed decreased noticeably.

The air slide is, after all, an application of Schunishuhe. The essence of the technology is to increase friction with aura to prevent slipping even on ice.

Talk.

Seongjin landed on the floor easily, got off the wolf dog's back, and raised his head with a proud face.

"... uh?"

And when I saw Masain's pale face, I became very puzzled.

'Sir Martha, why do you look worse than before? 'You seemed so worried that I rushed over to join you?'

Didn't I do a good job? You did a good job of imitating Logan, and you did a good job of following me so that you didn't go back and forth for no reason, right?

He thought so, but it was purely Seongjin's illusion.

"Lowering..."

The knight's trembling hand slowly came up and placed his chin on both of Seongjin's shoulders.

'I just felt like I was trying to grab him by the collar and changed direction... ... ?'

Seongjin tilted his head.

Oh, no way, Lord Martha can't do that.

"Lord Martha, be careful. As I said before, demonic energy entered my body..."

"That kind of thing is okay now."

Masain cut off Seongjin's words, which was rare, and strengthened his grip.

I felt like the grip that was pushing down was somehow filled with emotion.

"Lord Martha?"

"How far are you willing to go?"

"what?"

"How long do I have to just watch you run into danger at will?"

The growling voice was unusual.

"I am proud that I have done my best to ensure your safety. But what should I do if you don't mind taking risks and run to me? "Now I don't even know what I should be working for or in what direction!"

Oh my.

Seongjin quietly averted his gaze and watched his gaze.

Lord Martha, you must be really angry.

Hwiik-

Coo!

At that time, Logan unleashed a strong sword attack, causing the dinosaur to collapse again.

The guy who subdued a huge demon species with a single wave of his hand came up to Seongjin's side and told him this with an innocent look on his face.

'You'd better hurry up and say you were wrong, Seongjin Lee.'

'no... ..'

Seongjin felt very wronged.

'Wait a minute, what on earth did I do so wrong?'

'Because I didn't wait for reinforcements and attacked the level 1 demon species alone without fear.'

But I felt like I had to! Somehow, I feel like I've overcome several close junctures and achieved the best results!

This was all for the Seonghwang family and Delcross. But why are you angry at me?

'That's not all. You almost died earlier, but you couldn't take it anymore and jumped over the demon species again, right?'

'That's it... ..!'

I just felt like it was no longer dangerous now that Logan had come. So he thought it would be beneficial in many ways to join quickly.

Plus the slide, it was so much fun!

"Weren't you happy too, Max?"

But when I patted the wolfdog's head and asked, didn't the dog look at Seongjin with pitiful eyes and sniffle?

Kiing, whining!

-What was that? Can't we do it now? I was a little scared... ..

Oh, really?

Seongjin immediately changed his stance and reflected.

"I see. I guess it was a dangerous thing after all. 'I'm so sorry for worrying you, Lord Martha.'"

At that soulless apology, Masain's mood suddenly turned ugly.

"how... .."

Crash.

The sound of the knight grinding his teeth was eerie.

"How long will it be just words..." .."

Where is that?

Ugh-

Mythra responded to his harsh aura and even rang out a threatening sword sound!

Seongjin broke into a cold sweat.

'Wow. Calm down, Sir Masaine. You're putting too much pressure on your hands right now. 'My shoulder is starting to hurt!'

Aren't you really going to get caught like this?

It was when Seongjin was worried about that.

"Lowering!"

"Hey Logan!"

From afar, cries for Logan began to be heard.

It was a special unit of Liliium, led by Otto, Ellie, and Sir Duchamp.

"Lowering! Are you okay?!"

The sight of horses running around in a hurry, not knowing what to do, is not a sight to see. They were paladins who didn't seem to be distracted to a large extent, but they seemed to be very anxious.

They were even bringing Logan's Rottweiler, Roxana.

"Again, you abandoned your horse midway and left. How big of a mess did you get into?"

"No matter how low you are, you should not deal with a level 1 demon species alone!"

"We're leaving now, just wait a moment..." Ugh! omg!"

The cries were so desperate that they put Sir Masaine's heartache to shame.

The embarrassed knight lowered his expression and gently lowered his hand from Seongjin's shoulder.

"Ah, we've finally arrived. "It must have been a lot of trouble to rush."

In fact, only Logan, the person responsible, is saying such things with a nonchalant expression.

This is truly absurd.

"I threw away my words and ran alone, so who is criticizing whom now? uh?"

"hmm."

Logan, who received Seongjin's stinging glare, looked away.

The chief chamberlain, who was about to announce the presence of a visitor, stopped before entering the office.

This is because I sensed an unusual atmosphere in the back of the emperor sitting in the Odokani seat looking at the terrace.

"... .."

Lewis already knew from long experience that he should not be touched at times like this.

As he guessed, Seonghwang's eyes were now directed towards the southwestern sky, but in fact, the scene he was seeing was something slightly different.

A large-scale earthquake that occurs out of nowhere.

Numerous casualties buried in piles of dirt.

Amelia's disappearance.

The tragic fall of the Bathurst Territory.

And it started in Rohan and spread throughout the continent.

These were disasters that might really have happened in the relatively near future.

"... .."

How long had I been looking at them like that?

After a while, all these scenes disappeared from sight as if they were lies. Perhaps the troublemaker son has done something.

Seonghwang was relieved, even if only for a moment.

But as if to ridicule him, images of another dark future begin to unfold before his eyes.

The advent of a high-ranking demon king who enjoys making arrangements.

Seeds of numerous demon species blooming throughout the continent.

A racial barrier that is being destroyed one after another.

Eventually, a unit of miscreants marches toward the imperial capital, destroying everything they come across.

These were also disasters that my son's small steps narrowly avoided.

Futures that will never come back now, and that it is finally possible for the Holy Emperor to gaze squarely in the face.

'But it doesn't end like this.'

His young son is alone and struggling towards the future.

In fact, the person who has to protect such a child is so helpless that it makes one lament.

"... your majesty."

"... .."

Seonghwang turned his head without answering. Lewis, who noticed the silver sparkle in his eyes, bowed his head with great guilt.

"We apologize for the inconvenience, but the visitor has been waiting for a long time."

"visit."

"Yes, Saint Iseo now requests to see Your Majesty."

Seonghwang furrowed his brows slightly. The eyes of the saintess who came in guided by the chamberlain were shining bright gold.

Cadmus.

I wasn't always happy with him, but in his current mood, he was someone I couldn't welcome.

[It's really unusual to keep your position even in this situation.]

Cadmus flopped down across from the Holy Emperor without asking permission.

[I thought that if that missing thing was in danger, it would be the first to run away.]

Seonghwang glared at him without answering.

I didn't think it would be unaware of the appearance of a level 1 demon species, but why did it bother to come and expose it even though it knew it would go against its wishes?

[I can't understand you, descendant. Why are you just watching that devil?]

"We have already sent the Holy Knights. "They will do what is necessary."

[That's funny. What can those ugly things do right?]

The arrogant demigod, who believed that only his own power was meaningful in the world, stared at the Holy Emperor as if he was genuinely curious.

[Isn't this a demonic species that appeared near the ecliptic after a long time? It's just a stone's throw away from here. It wouldn't require so much cause and effect that you would put so much effort into it.]

The author, who knows nothing, is citing [cause and effect] as he pleases.

'but... ... '

Cause and effect.

It could be called that in a simple way, but the cause and effect that the Holy Emperor saw was not that simple.

He personally kills the demon species in front of everyone. Even in that simple action, countless causes and effects were involved.

It did not just stop at erasing the existence of the demon species itself.

The world's perception that defines God's representative. A faith that can easily lead to fanaticism toward the Lord. Countless subjects, present and future, will be influenced by this.

The significance of the existence of the Holy Knights and, by extension, all organizations involved in the affairs of the empire. And order and procedures become unstable, and the chaos in Delcross accelerates.

The situation on the continent will probably change quickly, and most likely it will not go in a good direction. It is obvious that the pranks of wrongdoers taking advantage of this will also increase.

In this way, an action that sometimes seems like nothing can cause an irreversible upheaval in the future of the continent.

In order to correct all of that again, it is bound to take a lot of cause and effect.

'But I have no intention of explaining everything to that dead thing.'

As Seonghwang kept his mouth shut, Cadmus nodded and continued speaking as if he was not expecting an answer.

[But in the meantime, do you know what's fun? The truth is that all of this is a prison of cause and effect created by yourself. Descendants.]

"... .."

[You cannot deceive your eyes. Although it appears to be holding on somehow on the outside, Delcross is already slowly collapsing. You in the past would not have known that this would happen.]

So Cadmus was always curious.

The descendant in front of him now is a human being, but one who has crossed the realm of gods. He was the only one in Delcross who could be compared to the demigod himself.

But how can you let go of all that power and obediently stay in the imperial capital and live a helpless life in prison?

[Why did you do that? Do you regret what happened back then? Didn't you ever have the slightest desire to undo that mistake?]

How about starting to prophesy properly now? If you do that, perhaps the world will allow you, as a prophet, to have some causality.

Cadmus's irises, which had repeatedly made invitations disguised as questions, suddenly glowed with a magical golden light.

[Or how about removing the obstacle now and getting your rights back?]

Seonghwang laughed inwardly at that absurd trick.

Do you really not know whose mercy is saving your life right now?

[If you get back all the causalities you need, this collapsing world can have another chance at revival... ..]

"Because I was so ignorant about my situation, the 700 years I spent lying in the coffin were useless."

[...] What?]

When a sensitive topic came up, Cadmus raised his eyebrows, showing his discomfort.

"okay. It seems you have finally realized that your situation is intertwined with my son's cause and effect. So, in your eyes, did that child seem like a prison guard imprisoning you?"

Cadmus, who had hit the nail on the head, kept his mouth shut. However, Seonghwang's cynicism toward him continued.

"As the current situation seems difficult, I guess I finally have a chance to get rid of that child from before my eyes. "How can you be so inadequate even if you call yourself a demigod?"

[You, this guy... .. !]

Cadmus got angry for a moment, but that was all. This was because the silver-grey eyes of the Holy Emperor staring at him had an unprecedentedly cruel look.

"okay. If you want to hear my prophecy, I'm happy to give it to you. So keep that hat clearly engraved in your mind. "The reason you are able to survive today by clinging to the humans of the normal world is because that child's cause and effect allowed you to do so."

[...] ... !]

"Otherwise, is there no reason to preserve your life when you dare to target Sisley?"

A demigod who created the foundation of the empire.

It was a remark that treated that great being as if it were embers, but Cadmus could vividly feel that Seonghwang's words were sincere.

"Do you understand? "In any future I can see, there is no other world in which you could have survived until now."

Cadmus was taken aback by that abstract prophecy and his eyes trembled slightly.

[...] Well, that's really it... ... !]

But there was no more answer. Instead, Cadmus saw the Holy Emperor's hand slowly moving towards the silver thorn.

An indirect expression of the intention that there will be no further conversation.

[...] It was my heart that cherished the Delcross I had built. But I think I said something pointless!]

Cadmus, very sulky, left the office without even saying hello.

Seonghwang, who was finally alone, slowly turned his head and looked outside the terrace.

"yet..."

His eyes darkened as he looked at the southwest sky again.

"It's not over yet, son."

352

352. Holy Wind (3)

The Liliun detachment that arrived at the scene could not keep their mouths shut for a while.

"That is a first-class large demon species... .."

Even for those who were well-versed in eradicating all kinds of sea creatures and demon species, the size of the dinosaur demon was beyond imagination.

Not only was it large enough to easily surpass a small mountain, but the land contaminated with demonic energy had already reached a radius of several hundred meters.

Fortunately, the dinosaur was only writhing here and there and was no longer moving from its spot. This is thanks to the Auror Blade that Logan plunged deep into the guy.

"How is that still there?"

Seongjin asked, his eyes fixed on the long, skewer-like silver and blue blade.

Usually, the external air that leaves the Auror user's body quickly dissipates into the air. However, it is truly amazing that the external air blown earlier still remains in a clear form.

"What if you ask me that?"

But Logan asked back, rather puzzled.

"huh?"

"You are still sending aurors to the wolfdog who is away."

To Logan, the two seemed to have similar talents. It's probably because I don't know much about the connection between Seongjin and Max.

"Do you think I should be taught by you instead? "I don't have the talent to send external energy directly to a moving creature and to sustain that."

"Even if you say that, I don't really know how to do it. So, quickly teach me the trick."

When Seongjin insisted, Logan looked dumbfounded for a moment.

However, isn't Lee Seong-jin unconsciously abusing Aura materialization even while meditating? Logan, who thought it would happen soon, answered obediently.

"Wherever the gaze goes, human perception always follows, right?"

"huh."

"So, it's just a theory that a thought naturally arises there and the aura is drawn to it."

"... .. ?"

"The important thing is to never let go of oneness with the outside world. And be careful not to lose sight of them even for a moment. If I do that, it's like the external energy is out of my hands but not out of my hands."

... Did I ask for no reason?

Dad and Logan both say Zen questions the same way. Well, I guess this guy is a sword master.

"Sir, what about that beast?"

At that time, Otto, Eli, and Sir Duchamp approached Logan and asked. At first glance, the appearance of a huge wolf dog was unusual.

"... .."

Logan, who caught a glimpse of Seongjin, responded kindly to them.

"That is a divine beast."

"god... number? "What is that?"

"They say it is a sacred beast that has received the grace of the Lord."

"The grace of the Lord?"

"okay. It is said that this was clearly confirmed by Sir Francis, the adjutant of the Knights of St. Aurelion. So this beast, um... .."

But the truth is, he only just found out.

When Logan, who was at a loss for explanation, trailed off, Seongjin quickly added from next to him.

"Sir Francis said it was like a divine beast called [Wind]. "It's a cute dog from St. Bastian's fairy tale."

"Oh yeah. It is also found in the fairy tales of the scriptures. So, as members of the Order of Knights who follow the virtues of St. Bastian, we need to clearly recognize the value of this sacred beast and treat it appropriately. "So that I can become an example for everyone."

"... .. ?"

The knights of the separate unit were dumbfounded for a moment. However, the expression on the face of their spiritual leader, Prince Logan, was impeccable.

"... okay. "Our scripture study was still insufficient."

If His Majesty Logan says so, then so be it. The knights of the separate unit, who understood without much doubt, looked back at Max with eyes filled with admiration.

"The Lord's sacred beast... .."

Hehehe!

A poopy puppy wagging its tail in an unreasonable manner and aiming for Seongjin's hair.

"That lively look! "Look at the eyes full of guns!"

"You are truly majestic and trustworthy!"

Seongjin quietly broke out in a cold sweat as he witnessed the real-time scolding of the Lilium knights.

'Logan, you scary guy. How did he usually roast and boil the knights, so he could believe in your words like a religion?

In any case, as the special forces began to move in an organized manner, the plan to subdue the demon species also gained momentum.

After accurately assessing the extent of the damage, Lilium's knights began to spread out widely, focusing on the agricultural fields.

"We are preparing to create a Granus-style barrier."

As Seongjin looked at him blankly, Logan gave a brief explanation.

First, create a semicircular formation that surrounds the devil with only a small number of people. It was a Granus type 1 defense line that defended the front.

If you keep the shape in such a hurry, when other Holy Knights arrive, you can quickly build a completely spherical Type 0 barrier.

Meanwhile, it was decided to immediately transfer Masain, which had been exposed to erosion for a long time, to the Imperial Capital.

"I must protect His Excellency Mores!"

The stubborn knight stubbornly refused at first.

"But that is too much to say, Lord Martha."

"It is now oppressed by the divine power of Degraded Logan, but the extent of the erosion is greater than expected. To completely cure this, you must return to the ecliptic immediately."

"it's okay. "I can endure!"

But Sir Ely, who blocked his path, was merciless.

"Be as stubborn as you can! How many paladins do you think it takes to stop the erosion of the world? "The current number of people is not even enough to set up a barrier to block the demon species!"

"no... .."

"You're so preoccupied with your own mission that you're not planning on causing such a huge inconvenience to everyone, are you?"

In this way, Masain was taken to the imperial capital without even being able to say a word.

"Hey... .."

Seongjin waved his hand with a sad expression as he heard Masain's scream as he walked away.

Don't worry about me, just take care of yourself, Sir Martha.

And when I was completely relieved of my anger, I slowly returned to Jinju Palace. Because you tend to cool down quickly.

Meanwhile, there was an unexpected encounter for everyone. It was Roxana and Max who met face to face for the first time since they met at Sigismund Range.

Sniff.

When Max stops wagging his tail and raises his head, the beautiful white horse also looks down at the wolf-dog with a noble attitude. At one point, there was a strange tension between the two birds.

However, contrary to the expectation that they would keep each other in check with sharp nerves like before, Roxana and Max maintained a fairly calm attitude.

After such a moment passed-

Max was the first to raise his voice softly.

Crrrrr.

-You understand now, right? My hugeness and strength.

Then Roxana also snored lightly.

Purung.

-joy. It's worth shouting. Although he is still too boring to be my opponent.

Grrrr...

-Are you going to attack me? I won't lose!

Purr...

-Don't be rash, kid. There will come a day when I have to settle the matter with you.

It felt like the conversation between the two birds was vividly echoing in my head.

The demon lord who was watching laughed in his head.

[...] What on earth are they doing?]

That's right.

Anyway, while the separate team was diligently preparing the barrier, Seongjin grabbed Logan, who was relatively free, and asked him various questions. Since I had enough auras, I wanted to learn what I needed to learn and test what I needed to test.

For some reason, I felt a sense of impatience, like I had to hurry, and I couldn't figure out why.

"How to blow away air? "Right here?"

"huh. I wanted to try that too. "Not only do you often use Lord Martha, but also Lord Maria and Sir Kurt?"

"That's because they are high-ranking knights."

Logan responded like that, looked at Seongjin's condition for a moment, and then nodded.

"Well, I don't know if it would be possible for you if you were an Auror at this level. "I don't know how there were so many Aurors all of a sudden."

"I got it all from my father. "I just saved it until now."

"... Are you transferring your Auror status to someone else?"

Logan tilted his head for a moment, but it seemed like he expected it to happen soon.

"Well, since that's what he does, I guess something like that is possible. Then let's give it a try. "You already know Banahas Type 4 and Type 5's 'Unfolding the Small Sword', right?"

"huh. The training itself has been completely mastered. But, as Sir Masain explained, the sword curtain didn't unfold like it was supposed to, right?"

"That was purely because the total number of four Aurors was insufficient."

Logan demonstrated himself.

Ugh-

Soon, Arjuna made a small sound, and a thin silver-blue film was created around the undulating blade.

Logan, who casually performed the Bananas method, which is not his main practice, continued his explanation.

"Do you see the thin membrane surrounding the sword here? Preparing to blow away air is similar to this. It's the most efficient way to create an auror barrier. how is it? Would you like to open Form 4 and Form 5 now?"

"uh. okay."

As Seongjin picked up the nutcracker and took a stance, Logan added from next to him.

"If you want to focus the Auror on the sword, first take that dog away... .."

But I quickly shook my head as I thought about something.

"No, no. It would be best to leave it alone. "I think it's all thanks to that dog that your aura flows more smoothly than usual."

"huh?"

"If you move alone, don't you think you'll use the aura inside your body recklessly again? "Wouldn't it be great if you always cared for yourself that much?"

"... .. ?"

I'm just moving the aura, so what's the difference from before?

Seongjin tilted his head for a moment, but anyway, it wasn't that important right now. Seongjin quickly concentrated on unfolding the small screen, and after several attempts, he finally succeeded in creating a faint gray screen.

"... "You're really good at anything you do as an Auror."

Logan seemed very impressed.

"Then, shall we separate the sword screen and fly it far away? "The trick is similar to Banajas 3 and 7, 'Water-Jebi-knit'."

"Type 3, type 7... Type 3, Type 7... .."

"If that's a little difficult, you can just think of tying a stone with a string, hanging it on the blade, and swinging it."

The Sword Master's advice was quite intuitive and simple. But perhaps that unexpectedly stuck in Seongjin's head?

"Throw stones. Attach a string to the blade and throw a stone... .."

Grrrr... ..

As the nutcracker began to tremble slightly, the paladins who were preparing the barrier glanced at Seongjin. However, Seongjin, who was concentrating on shaking the Aura, was so immersed that he didn't even feel it.

How much time has passed like that?

Peeing-

Pick!

Soon, a small piece of Aura fell from Seongjin's sword and flew away. Although it was a very small external energy compared to what I had seen so far, it definitely hit the dinosaur's body and created a small fountain of magical energy.

"done!"

When Seongjin shouted excitedly, Logan also seemed excited.

"Haha, are you good at it? "Then, while you're at it, do you want to learn this too?"

Then, doesn't it look like Logan is stepping lightly in the empty air? He even looked as if he was floating in the air.

"The movements and tricks you showed me earlier are similar. "You'll probably be able to follow along quickly."

When Seongjin looked closely, he could see the wind of the Aurors materializing from time to time beneath Logan's feet.

"... "The Sword Master does a lot of amazing tricks, doesn't he?"

"It's nothing special. "I also accidentally learned it from someone else."

As Logan answered like that, the image of a mercenary boy leaping into the air and jumping into the enemy camp stood out in his mind.

At the time, I couldn't even imagine that it would be possible to operate Aurors in that way.

"hmm..."

When Seongjin furrowed his eyebrows in concentration, Logan added something as if trying to ease the burden.

"It's about gathering the Aurors into one point without the central point of the sword. It may be difficult right now because it will be an unfamiliar method. "You don't have to think so quickly."

However, Seongjin, who seemed to be struggling for a while without finding his way, ends up creating a small vortex of aura in the air after a while!

Logan made a rare expression of admiration.

"Lee Seong-jin."

"huh?"

"You also have a natural talent for sword and Auror training. "Would you like to learn the Henesys practice formally?"

"..."

Seongjin was speechless from the absurdity.

A man so crazy about his love for his country, couldn't he give up learning Ortona's practice even under these circumstances?

But Logan's attitude was serious.

"listen. Even when I was living as Gael Bertran, there was only one person in my life who I felt I truly wanted to teach. Unfortunately, due to the circumstances, it was canceled. "You are the first person to make such a suggestion since then."

"okay?"

Only then did Seongjin, who felt a little tempted, ask cautiously.

"But why was the training of disciples canceled when I was Gael?"

"Who was that one talented person?"

"This is a mercenary boy I met at the front line before."

Logan, who answered like that, hesitated for a moment and then added.

"... So, this is Abama Massage right now."

At that absurd answer, Seongjin opened his mouth without realizing it.

'You were trying to teach your father? What a crazy genius! 'Aren't you too high-minded in choosing your disciples?'

Around this time, Seongjin was busy learning new skills.

Wiggle!

It was at that time that the demon species that had been lying still began to make strange movements.

Druuuuuuuuuuuuuuu...

353. Holy Wind (4)

Styracoceratops.

Originally a field boss that appeared in an RPG game called [Kong: Jurassic Island].

Like most beings assembled from the codes of the normal world, the devil was already fully aware of his status and duties from the moment he opened his eyes.

-however...

Strangely enough, there was a huge gap between the pre-assigned code and the reality in which it manifested itself.

The devil, confused by the enormous gravity that restrained his body, quickly looked at the previous records to understand what had happened.

-For some reason, layers of incomplete 'amplification' code were piled on top of [my] [controller].

It seems like that was the reason why I woke up to a size different from the designated code.

But the devil wasn't too worried at first. Rather, thanks to that, he was able to generously steal the magical energy of the high-ranking demon king who was under his control.

Perhaps because he was worried about the leakage of demonic energy, the high-ranking demon king soon completely cut off the connection with himself. He gained unexpected freedom.

-[I] am now a high-ranking devil with power comparable to that of a low-ranking devil!

The devil, freed from the countless codes that had bound him, felt a great sense of liberation as he willingly changed his essence to fit reality.

So what do we do now? The answer was simple.

-Although the code specifying the 'action target' has disappeared, the purpose of my existence is to destroy everything in the field!

The devil didn't feel any need to change it.

-So break it! All I have to do is to spread [my] power generously!

But things started to go differently than expected. It was only for a moment that we roared in joy at the new birth. He was beaten here and there by the hands of several people, and eventually ended up being pinned to the floor, helpless.

-... ... ?

If the difference in power and status between them and those people was so clear, I couldn't understand how this result could happen.

How much did he struggle to escape that bondage? Suddenly the devil realized.

-[I] was definitely born again.

Codes that specified one's appearance, consciousness, and even the meaning of existence. Freed from those elaborate rules, it finally reorganized itself into what it thought was the most appropriate form.

But that wasn't enough. So these hardships continue.

-I thought I was completely liberated, but I was mistaken. [I] still look the same as before. There was no need to be tied down to anything in the first place!

A demon that has just awakened and has even lost the laws of the normal world that formed its foundation.

His ego, which had undergone drastic changes, was overly blurred and ambiguous. Moreover, I didn't have time to become attached to such a clumsy ego.

So the devil thought.

-Why can't I give up on these things, [me]?

"Manpower deployment is complete, Sir Otto."

Sir Ellie, who was leading the preparations for the barrier, returned to the center of the camp and sent a signal.

"Hurry as much as possible. Fortunately, the demon species is not moving yet, but the demonic energy is spreading little by little and killing the land. "Before waiting for reinforcements, it might be better to deploy a type 1 barrier first."

Sir Otto, who was standing in the center, nodded.

If one were to pick the person with the strongest divine power in the original Lilium Detachment, it would undoubtedly be Prince Logan. However, because he was also the strongest force in the Detached Force, it was rare for him to focus entirely on the sacred barrier.

Therefore, whenever Lilium struck a barrier, the focal point was Sir Otto, who had the second-strongest divine power after the prince.

"I'm ready too. Then let me know and let's get started right away... .."

Sir Otto raised his head and followed their idol with his eyes.

Unlike them, who were quite far away from the polluted area, Prince Logan was close to the border of the Land of the Dead. He probably maintains an Auror blade with a demonic species attached to it, to keep it in check.

What was surprising was that Prince Mores was next to him.

'It may be because you have such strong divine power.'

For some reason, Prince Mores also seems not to be afraid of demons at all. Sir Otto looked at them with curiosity.

From a distance, the brothers seemed to be chatting comfortably. Occasionally, when I see Prince Mores swinging a sword, it seems like Prince Logan is teaching swordsmanship using an interlude.

"You already have that kind of external skills at that age!"

A paladin exclaims in admiration as he sees the sword energy clearly condensed on a nutcracker. There was a time when it was rumored that the 3rd prince was a bastard with no swordsmanship skills, but looking at him like that, it looks like he is indeed a member of the royal family.

But what caught Sir Otto's attention was something else.

'His Majesty Logan, with Prince Mores... ... '

Considering what their relationship was like not long ago, it is a truly amazing sight.

Originally, it was a relationship where one party seemed to unilaterally prey on the other.

The fact that Prince Logan was so absorbed in subjugating the seawater all day long was probably not without the influence of that serious discord. Sometimes, even by chance, when a story about the damn brothers came up, Prince Logan would always smile bitterly and change the topic.

'But what about now?'

The way they laugh and bicker is so natural. Don't they just seem like ordinary brothers who literally have good friendship?

"You seem really happy to come to see you."

Sir Otto, who was fixating his gaze on the demon species, widened his eyes in astonishment.

Several large cracks appeared on its body, and then, for no apparent reason, the demon's body began to break into small pieces.

"... ..!"

It is not cut or burst.

It was close to rapidly losing its original shape, like a sand castle collapsing in the wind or a water droplet breaking between landing poles.

Murmur.

As the Paladins' agitation spread, the demon species finally suddenly lost its shape and completely collapsed. All they can see now is a huge amount of black flesh writhing and mixing with demonic energy.

"... Gu, maggot?"

Sir Duchamp muttered something stupid next to him.

But the real problem started now. Because the demon species that was completely dismantled was no longer attached to Prince Logan's Auror Blade.

The completely liberated black flesh forms several bundles and rapidly rises into the air.

Sigh!

At first glance, it seemed like it was erupting randomly, but the movement had a clear purpose. Most of them were shot in the direction where the princes were, and one of them started crawling towards the paladins as quickly as a snake writhing on the ground.

Undoubted hostility towards humans!

Sir Otto, who instinctively felt a sense of crisis, unleashed his divine power to the fullest and shouted.

"Type 1 deployment!"

"... Hey, deploy!"

In this way, starting with Sir Otto, the Holy Knights of Lilium began to emit divine power one after another.

A white, shining film of divine power quickly covers the entire surface along the formation.

Paaaa-

However, the defensive line was overly wide with insufficient personnel. It was obvious that the light-density sacred barrier would not be enough to completely block the fierce influx of flesh.

'... It's pierced!'

Sir Otto realized this instinctively. But still, he could never step down.

'If I move now, all barriers will collapse! The evil energy will invade the farmland and eventually attack the subjects of the Lord!'

In that case, even if I lose my life here, I can at least be a proud member of Lilium... ... !

"Lord, be angry with the enemies who stand in our way. So let your anger save us from the wrath of the enemy!"

He was reciting a prayer to strengthen the barrier even a little, but when a huge demonic snake came closer, he closed his eyes tightly, having a premonition of the end.

Quaaaang!

The strong magical energy and divine power collided, causing a loud explosion.

However, contrary to the expectation that it would be immediately swept away by demonic energy, surprisingly, the sacred barrier was firmly holding up the black flesh.

"... ..?"

When Sir Otto, surprised, slowly opened his eyes, he saw a familiar new model standing in front of him.

"... Lowering!?"

Prince Logan.

Their idol, undisturbed as always, had suddenly approached the sacred barrier and was adding its divine power.

A divine power strong enough to single-handedly support a type 1 barrier that was barely framed.

"Lord, please protect your children."

The prince recites in a calm voice.

Just a small part of a prayer. However, just by reciting that simple phrase, the divine power exuded by Prince Logan became even stronger.

The gigantic half-circle, which was extremely flimsy, was finally completed into a complete Type 1 barrier and began to emit dazzling white light.

Since Seongjin and Logan were close to the demon species, they were able to notice the abnormality faster than anyone else.

Whick!

Logan, who sensed an unusual change, immediately swung Arjuna and unleashed a sword energy mixed with divine power.

but-

Cheesy!

Only a small portion of the flesh that touched the outside air was purified and burned, and the black flesh that was scattered in all directions in an instant came back together again and writhed ominously.

"... .."

Seongjin and Logan exchanged glances without saying a word.

The two people, both of whom had sensitive instincts, immediately realized that they would not be able to deal with this rapidly changing demon species using normal methods.

'That thing is no longer worthy of being called an entity. Even if you hit them randomly, it's no use!'

'okay. There is only one way to neutralize something like that. All we have to do is surround it with a strong sacred barrier and purify it!'

Once the situation was assessed, the response was quick.

"Max!"

The two people quickly ran towards the sacred barrier in their own way, managing to avoid the huge pillars that were fired at them at random.

But it was almost before we arrived at Banwonjin. I don't know what I was thinking, but Seongjin suddenly suddenly turned in Max's direction!

Logan, startled, cast a desperate gaze.

"Wait a minute, what are you doing now, Seongjin Lee!"

"You know it can't go on like this, right? Even if we unfold the sacred barrier now, it will only be in an incomplete form. So, in order to completely surround him, we must first gather all the demon energy scattered in all directions into one place and narrow the area!"

"It's dangerous for you alone! Then me too... ..!"

"But without you, I don't think the barrier can be maintained at all?"

It was the perfect answer.

Logan, who was speechless, glanced at the Knights of Lilium and Seongjin alternately with an anxious expression.

"You know it well, right?"

As if to reassure Logan, Seongjin raised the corners of his mouth with a grin.

"To me, demonic energy poses no threat."

"... ..!"

"And that I would never put my dog in danger."

Logan bites his lip with a frustrated look on his face.

Of course, he understood Seongjin's skills better than anyone else in the room. To be honest, Lee Seong-jin is more trustworthy than the Lilium Special Forces. As a guy, he probably won't be easily defeated by the devil.

'but... ..!'

Know. I know.

Still, understanding it with reason and allowing the heart to do it are two completely different things!

Leaving behind Logan, who was in deep conflict, Seongjin ran vigorously with Max. Well, he's a smart guy, so he probably doesn't know what's best.

"Let's go, Max!"

Wong!

The wolfdog responded vigorously and kicked the ground according to the will of its owner without the slightest fear.

[Ah, Seongjin Lee, you crazy bastard. You, this bastard again... ... !]

In my head, I could hear the despairing sigh of the demon lord.

But even though he was grumbling like that, the Demon King clearly understood what he had to do now.

sparkle.

Red light begins to blink in Seongjin's pupils as always -

Wow!

Soon, a familiar five-colored world with many solid lines of possibilities unfolded before his eyes.

354

354. Holy Wind (5)

Huge pillars made of black flesh bursting out violently in all directions.

It looked like a mythical monster with many heads, or a scene of a terrible natural disaster with lava erupting violently.

The air filled with demonic energy vibrates, and the black earth of death shakes mercilessly.

"As it is... ..!"

Sir Ellie, who had been pouring out his divine power on one side of the semi-circle, swallowed his sleep as he foresaw a disastrous outcome.

At first glance, the Granius type 1 barrier, which was deployed in time, seemed to have successfully blocked the demon species.

However, she was the only one who could clearly see the structure and location of the barrier for the first time. Due to the nature of the large barrier, which is difficult to readjust once deployed, it is far from possible to completely confine the demon species without reinforcements from the Holy Knights.

And the demon species blocked by the sacred barrier will eventually cross the opposite forest and mercilessly sweep away other territories.

'furthermore... ..'

Prince Mores.

The young boy was still in that demonic storm.

When the bastard prince, who didn't know where he would fall, suddenly jumped into a whirlpool of black flesh, Sir Ellie almost forgot to keep the barrier and ran towards him.

Protecting members of the royal family with their lives is also an important mission for a Holy Knight.

'however... .. '

Surprisingly, Prince Logan, who was thought to be the first to run, seemed calmer than expected even in such an unexpected situation.

While pouring out enormous divine power to capture the center of the barrier, he was keeping an eye on the situation while holding Arjuna, who was clad in silver and blue, with one hand.

Sir Elie, who was examining those cool-looking blue eyes, became momentarily curious.

'... Believe... there is?'

That troublemaker prince?

why?

There is no way he could have miscalculated the feelings of an idol he has followed for a long time. Sir Ely looked back at Prince Mores, who was running far away in her half-confident mood.

Nettle -

An extremely confusing situation in which black flesh moving like a snake suddenly scatters or comes together in unexpected places.

In it, the young prince was skillfully driving a wolf dog while avoiding attacks from demon species.

Hwiik-

Push!

Occasionally, as he swung the nutcracker, black flesh would scatter helplessly, scattering demonic energy.

However, rather than confronting the demon species head on, Prince Mores was dodging the demon species here and there, making dizzy movements as if he was disturbing them.

'why?'

Then, at the moment of realization, Sir Elie felt as if he had been stabbed in the back of the head.

It was clearly visible to her now. The black flesh that seemed to be spreading out in all directions without any hesitation, at some point was drawn to Prince Mores and was either stagnating in place or coming back to this place little by little!

'Surely, to keep him here?'

Quang!

At that time, another black pillar flies and hits the sacred barrier.

Grumbling-

The flesh that was purified by divine power and began to burn white could not withstand the impact and began to sway back and forth.

Quang! bang! bang!

A tremendous shock striking the barrier one after another.

'... ... !'

However, even though it was such a huge shock that it felt like the barrier would break at any moment, Prince Logan did not swing the sword in his hand. He just stands firm in his position and pours out his divine power even more fiercely towards the barrier.

'Did you already know!'

Only then did Sir Ely become certain.

His Majesty Logan knew Prince Mores's goal from the beginning, and he had no doubts that he would achieve it in the end.

So, you won't make any attacks that might provoke the demon species, and you'll just hold out until they gather here!

'perhaps... ... !'

On the one hand, a seemingly bleak outlook gave rise to hope that perhaps the empire could be protected without major damage.

"Lord, be angry with the enemies who stand in our way! So let your anger save us from the wrath of the enemy!"

Reciting a passage from the scriptures most often recited by the Lilium Detachment during battle, Lord Ellie soon began pouring all of her strength into the sacred barrier.

Thousands or tens of thousands, perhaps more, of dinosaur flesh broken into small pieces.

The sight of them spewing out demonic energy all at once and running wild was a sight so dizzying that it was impossible for a human eye to follow it.

However, Seongjin, who was now buried inside, was seeing a scene so complex that it could not be compared to the movements of the demon species.

'Those lines... ... !'

He was once again facing the solid lines he had seen before.

In the cloud of incredible probability where the flesh of the demon race scatters and gathers, silver lines that clearly predict their movements tangle here and there and extend in all directions.

Among them, one line shines particularly brightly. The only path Seongjin had to take was also vividly emerging as if he could grasp it at any moment.

Hwiik-

As Max lightly moved along the path, a black pillar came down like a whip on the spot where they had just been.

Kuaang!

The black flesh that was broken into small pieces by the impact of hitting the empty ground came together again on both sides of Seongjin and swung from side to side. Awesome!

However, Seongjin, who had predicted this, had already kicked the ground and was flying through the air with Max.

The flight time became defenseless for an instant.

Aiming for that moment, other black pillars swirl around Seongjin like a whirlpool.

Paang!

At that moment, Seongjin kicked into the empty air and jumped out of the whirlpool like a lie.

A technique that materializes Auras and uses them as a stepping stone.

It was just a trick I had just learned from Logan, but once I got the hang of it, I quickly became skilled enough to use it in emergency situations.

Sigh!

Then he got down to the floor and swung the nutcracker straight ahead.

Due to that fierce attack, the base of the writhing flesh was scattered and a black pillar suddenly stopped moving. It is one of the stems that extends recklessly toward the west.

'Hey, come this way! 'Don't go far alone!'

Seongjin, who was driving the demon species with such vigor, frowned for a moment.

Strongly-

Maybe it's because I'm moving so flashily, but my overused eyes are already starting to sting.

Unlike before, it was a spiritual sight that was receiving proper relay from the Demon King, but the solid line stretching out before my eyes was almost like a spirit.

The vision that gazes at so many possibilities at the same time is eventually unable to overcome the overload and is damaged.

Seongjin hurriedly pulled up the flowing aura from the passage to his chest and placed it around his eyes.

Is this a characteristic of my father's Auror? Seongjin moved her body again, feeling the pain go away along with a cool feeling.

'Is it okay to do it?'

[Hey, Seongjin Lee... ... !]

The Demon King swallows his sleep.

One there.

Although I knew Seongjin's current condition better than anyone else, I couldn't bear to interrupt his immersion.

Moments that feel as if you are running on a knife edge. If the path is deviated even slightly, Lee Seong-jin will be covered in those black flesh and be torn to pieces in an instant.

Seongjin, which had been luring the flesh in the southern direction for a while, suddenly turned around and started running towards the east.

"... "Ahh!"

a bunch of thorns chasing him.

"How on earth... .."

In the eyes of the Holy Knights, the young prince's movements were already close to divine.

Crank!

Meanwhile, the flesh writhing near the barrier also began to show the same changes.

Wedge!

The thorns rise up all at once, as if scales are rising, and shoot out with all their might towards Seongjin, who is running towards us.

However, Seongjin maintained the same path and lightly raised the nutcracker. The vivid auror blade that firmly surrounds the blade lightly swats away the rushing thorns.

Taeon! Tang!

The auror blade that Seongjin was creating now had reached a level that far exceeded his level as an auror.

This is because, rather than condensing the aurors in a general way, he was materializing them purely in his own way.

-Never forget this, Mores. In every world, there is a fundamental power, such as an auror.

My father explained it that way the other day.

-If you see a mysterious phenomenon that appears to have extraordinary power, always think carefully about what lies beneath it.

Pangea Chronicle.

In the spherical world where flame images were made to be easily formalized and materialized, Seongjin was able to easily draw Demon

King No. 2 using his own flame images.

And here, in the Delcross dimension, the material that forms the basis is-

'Auror!'

A power that all life forms naturally, and a power that can be clearly realized through will.

A power that is materialized by practicing the sword over a long period of time and, strictly speaking, can be called a flame image created by gathering thoughts.

'And I learned how to draw flames in detail from my father!'

Sigh!

A sturdy outer blade that is a span longer than the blade of an actual nutcracker. The gray Auror blade tore the black snake's body apart again.

Although he was not an Auror with a mixture of divine power like Logan, the power of the nutcracker, a holy relic, was absolute.

Wow!

The snakes made of black thorns suddenly lose their strength, each turning into writhing flesh and scattering in all directions.

Challeng-

At the same time, a stream of cool water spreads from my chest throughout my body, as if to replenish my depleted aura.

With the abundance of auras like never before, Seongjin was highly exalted and swung his sword as he pleased.

Wow! Okay!

Black flesh scattered helplessly.

Max, who received the same excitement from Seongjin, could not contain his excitement and barked cheerfully.

Wong wong!

-I like this! I used to be strong and huge, but now I am even stronger and bigger than before! And it's faster!

"Ahahaha!"

Perhaps it was due to the excessive secretion of adrenaline, but cheerful laughter burst out.

Holding the sword that materialized his thoughts, and with the wind that materialized his thoughts wrapped around his entire body, Seongjin, along with Max, continued to hunt down the devil species, moving through the demonic energy as he pleased.

Grrrrrr!

The flesh of the demon species that had been scattered in all directions gradually gathered towards the sacred barrier. The Lilium Detachment could only stare in fascination at the amazing sight.

"... That is the divine beast, [Wind]..."

A soft exclamation came from Sir Duchamp's mouth.

Did you say it was found in a fairy tale in the scriptures? It was indeed as Prince Logan explained.

Isn't that sight of him running with his entire body covered in a thick gray wind the second coming of Saint Bastian, who is said to have performed great miracles by riding the wind?

'Divine wind!'

'The very wind that led the saint to the high snowy mountain a long time ago and finally defeated the finger demon!'

'His Majesty Mores is now with the wind!'

The admiration soon began to spread to all the Paladins of Lilium, along with a strange fever.

"... "Lee Seong-jin, why are you so excited when I tell you to be careful?"

Among them, only Logan watched the scene, trying hard to hide his inner nervousness.

355. Holy Wind (6)

"Lord Kurt. "It seems like there's no one left nearby now."

Kurt nodded in response to a report from a resident engineer.

'I guess I'll have to finish it soon.'

As instructed by Prince Mores, he led the resident knights down the mountain and immediately helped the residents of the territory and members of the hunting club evacuate.

The main text of the resident knights is the protection of the prince. However, Prince Mores' will is so strong, and he has Sir Martha, the former head of the Royal Guard, by his side.

'Still, the casualties are extremely low compared to disasters.'

He breathed a sigh of relief when he confirmed that the evacuation to the last farmhouse was complete.

The demon species appeared in a hunting ground on the outskirts of the territory. Except for some farmland, it was a sparsely populated area with mostly forests.

Except for one woodcutter whose life or death was unknown after being swept away by the collapsing mountain, the damage to Yeongjimin that has been identified so far has been almost non-existent.

The only variable was that there was a hunting camp for imperial officials nearby.

However, considering that the camp was swept away by a landslide, their evacuation was also timely. Perhaps it was because they had prepared in advance to withdraw to move their hunting grounds.

Where is that?

Thanks to the fact that the prince's maid rushed to the scene of the accident, filling the carriage with the remaining residents, there were virtually no casualties. Considering the scale of the disaster that had struck, it was almost a miracle.

'I was just getting ready to withdraw, and there was an empty carriage at the camp...'

At that moment, the image of Prince Mores, who was insisting on taking the carriage up to the mountain retreat, flashed in Sir Kurt's mind.

'no way?'

Did you anticipate that things would turn out like this?

No, but could it be? How on earth does he know about the demon species that showed up without warning?

'hmm? Now that I think about it, the reason I wanted to move my hunting ground in the first place...'

If you think about it, wasn't it because of Prince Mores, who unleashed his resident knights to disrupt the hunting party and wipe out all the game?

... No, wait a minute. Really?

Is this really... ... ?

"Lord Kurt!"

What cut off Kurt's thoughts was the voice of Sir Claudia urgently calling him.

"hurry up, please! "We delayed the rescue too long!"

"... Sir Claudia."

"We have to find him quickly!"

You mean 'we'? Kurt was dumbfounded by that blind attitude.

In his view, Sir Claudia's loyalty seemed increasingly strange. It's been a while since he woke up and he started following the 3rd prince as if he was possessed by something, but now he gets anxious whenever he leaves even for a moment, just like a dog that lost its owner!

"By now, your Majesty may be rushing to fight the demon species alone again!"

No way, no matter how reckless the prince is, there is no way he would do something like that.

But didn't Lord Calmen, who had been standing quietly next to him, suddenly say something like this?

"Oh, I guess so. "It would be best to find him and stop him before he causes more trouble, Sir Kurt."

Is this guy joking? Kurt looked at his face suspiciously, but surprisingly, Lord Calmen seemed more serious.

Rather, it was Sir Claudia who angrily protested those words.

"Lord Calmen! Don't say such blasphemous things! "We don't cause accidents!"

"what? "Isn't it an accident to run into a demon species alone?"

"no! "We are just brave!"

"okay. "Let's be brave and go quickly before something happens."

"profit!"

However, even though there was a slight difference in temperature, the two people walking long distance were stamping their feet in the same way with nervousness. If they delay here just a little bit, they will rush off to find Hae-ho among themselves.

In the end, Sir Kurt quickly began to gather the resident knights.

"Let go of this! "I have to go back to camp!"

"Count! You can't do this! It's dangerous! The rescue team will be there soon... ..!"

It was time for Sir Kurt to rush off on horseback with his resident knights. From a distance, I could see the Earl of Bathurst screaming, surrounded by his bodyguards.

"I told you to let me go! "Then it's too late!"

Oh, by the way, the only casualty in the camp was the Countess of Bathurst. She was told she was swept away when a landslide occurred.

"You have to go and save your wife! ma'am! Buoy-in!"

They looked like an ordinary married couple, but it seems Geumseul was better than I thought.

As I clicked my tongue as I caught a glimpse of the Count's pitiful appearance, I saw Sir Claudia spurring her words even further next to me.

"It's dangerous after all! I wasn't sending you off alone... . I should have been by your side until the end... .."

Hee hee hee!

The horse that had been kicked hard gave a loud neigh and began to overtake Sir Kurt.

But this time too, there was an unexpected sight. With an expression full of dissatisfaction, Lord Calmen began to follow closely behind her.

"I go first, Sir Kurt. If you leave that kid alone, what kind of crazy things will he do?"

"... ..?"

Kurt blinked.

No, putting aside his profane self-talk, is he really worried about Prince Mores right now? really?

'It's Sir Claudia, but. Lord Calmen, weren't you anxious not long ago because you couldn't catch the 3rd prince?'

Meanwhile, the two people started to jump forward and widen the gap between them. The figure looked the same as if it had been taken out of a frame, so Kurt involuntarily tilted his head.

"Since when did they get along so well together?"

It was when I was following the two people who were so cluelessly ahead of me with my eyes. Sir Kurt suddenly felt a strange sense of déjà vu.

"... .. ?"

someday.

A long time ago, someday.

Didn't he run after those two people with such urgency even back then?

Weeeeeeee... ..

Along with a strange tinnitus, I felt like my vision was blurring for a moment. No, rather than blurred vision, it is confusion and vertigo caused by the sight in front of your eyes overlapping with another image in your memory.

The two people ahead of him at that time seemed to be wearing formal armor rather than a Royal Guard uniform.

A cloak with the symbol of the Holy Empire clearly engraved on it, fluttering in the wind. And the place where they were heading towards the horse's head was not that whirlpool of black magic energy, but a rain of countless arrows... ..

"Lord Kurt!"

Kurt suddenly came to his senses when he heard someone shouting from behind him. While he was dazed, the other resident knights were ahead of him one by one.

"Why are you doing this all of a sudden? Are you okay?"

"No, it's nothing."

Sir Kurt shook his head to dispel the dizzying thoughts. A sense of reality quickly set in, and the strange sense of déjà vu completely disappeared from his mind.

"This is not the time. The Magi's movements are unusual. "Let's hurry!"

"Hey!"

Hehe! Hee hee hee!

As he spoke, the sound of spurs could be heard here and there, and the speed of the resident knights began to increase even more.

When they hurriedly arrived at Prince Mores, they witnessed an unbelievable sight.

"... Lowering?"

A demonic species that is divided into countless pieces of flesh and moves like a storm.

In response to this, the Lilium Detachment is deploying a massive sacred barrier with only a small number of people.

Everything was beyond imagination, but where could it be compared to Prince Mores?

"... Auror Blade?"

Now, their young prince was already wielding the Auror Blade at a level that was far beyond that of a high-ranking knight!

"Auror materialization... ..!"

Where is that? Running through the battlefield, freely driving a huge wolf dog, with a wind so strong that it was clearly visible to the eye!

The legend of the first emperor, who fought against monsters and ended the era of the three ancient dragons, could not be this grand. It was literally as if a scene from an old myth had been vividly recreated before my eyes.

"Stay back! "The demon energy is strong, so stay outside the barrier!"

After being stopped by the Lilium Paladins, they could only stare blankly at the prince outside the sacred barrier.

"... look. Someone causes an accident... "As expected, we are great!"

How long has it been like that? Kurt came to his senses when he heard Sir Claudia's overwhelming voice.

Now is not the time.

Although it was difficult for them to directly deal with the demonic species due to their lack of divine power, they still had to assist the Paladins of Lilium and form a battle line.

"Come on, everyone, come to your senses!"

Sir Kurt shouted and urged the resident knights.

It's embarrassing to look at other articles, so please don't make faces that look like you're clearly in love!

Especially Lord Calmen! Even though Sir Claudia is like that, seeing you like that, Calmen, somehow gives me goosebumps!

'Is the end in sight?'

Reinforcements will come soon. Feeling such a strong premonition, Seongjin looked around.

Fortunately, the flesh of the demon species that was spreading out randomly did not go far beyond the open barrier. This is thanks to Seongjin diligently looking everywhere and driving them away.

Because the range was so wide, there were some pieces of flesh that were occasionally missed, but each time, Logan fired his sword energy from afar and hit them appropriately. Even at such a great distance, the power of the Aura explosion did not kill him at all, so there was no such thing as a monster.

'Anyway, even if you ask the secret, Aurors will naturally be drawn to where the gaze goes, so they'll just say something nonsense like getting out of hand but not getting out of it.'

By that time, the movements of the demon species that had been running wild were gradually changing. It seemed like they were becoming more and more confused as they were stopped by Seongjin.

-[I] am a high-ranking devil. He had power comparable to that of a low-ranking demon lord!

-What's the use of it all? [I] failed anyway.

-It's too early to talk about failure. [I] am still free.

-Ah, but I feel a stronger force than [me] around here! If only I could be with him... ... !

-It goes against [my] will! This is impossible!

-Why not? [I] already gave up on [me]... ... !

That was the way the demon lord roughly conveyed their thoughts.

For some reason, as time passes, it seems like the flesh moving as one body is gradually losing its unity.

Strongly-

Conscious of the pain in his eyes getting worse, Seongjin raised the aura to his chest again. Still, would it be a good thing if their movements gradually slowed down and the number of rising lines decreased significantly?

[Lee Seong-jin.]

At that time, the Demon King seemed anxious and called Seongjin.

[The atmosphere they have is somehow strange.]

'huh?'

[I guess the time we were divided was too long. I don't think it would be difficult to see them as one entity anymore, right?]

At the same time-

Stand tall.

The flesh of the demon species that was stuck together like a snake suddenly stopped moving.

"... .. ?"

Paaaaa-!

Then they suddenly lost their focus and began to scatter helplessly in the air. A dizzying sight, as if there were dust.

[Have we finally given up resistance completely?]

The Demon King was pleased, but Seongjin was shocked and held the nutcracker. Because his premonition began to sound a dangerous alarm like never before.

Hwii-

Scattered pieces of flesh flutter helplessly in the wind.

The problem started from then. Each and every piece of flesh that fell off flew toward Seongjin as if it had its own individual will.

"... .. !"

My vision, which had been tracking thousands or tens of thousands of movements one by one, was suddenly covered with silver lines and turned completely white. At that moment, a terrible pain arose in my eyes.

Seongjin urgently disconnected from the devil. However, it was too late, and the already severely damaged optic nerve did not recover immediately.

It was a disaster.

-okay. [I] have already changed. Isn't it [me] as originally specified in the code?

-Since you are reborn, you can be reborn as a different being again and again!

-In that case, it would be better to do it with a stronger 'strength'... ...

-Let's become a new and stronger [me]!

Since my senses with the Demon Lord were completely blocked, I couldn't understand their thoughts one by one.

However, just from the mere sight of the flesh coming, Seongjin could vividly feel their strong will.

'this... ... !'

Things that have no power and are just dust or air. There is no way to stop such things from coming in from all directions.

Seongjin hurriedly raised the aura to his chest again and covered Max with the trick of 'opening a small sword curtain'.

"... ... !?"

Right then.

Seongjin trembled at the strange sensation he had never felt before.

'... 'Isn't it strange?'

These are all your father's auras, right?

He's a good auror who is improving my eye condition and protecting my body.

But why is my chest, where the aura is filled, getting so hot as if it were burning?

356. Holy Wind (7)

My chest feels warm and stinging, and my blood feels dry.

This strange sensation is definitely not an illusion.

'It's hot...' ... ?'

Sensing a sense of crisis, Seongjin quickly examined his entire body.

However, there is no noticeable change in the aurors being used. If so, it means that there is something wrong with the passage itself.

[Lee Seong-jin!]

The Demon King must have felt something as well and called out to him in a voice full of anxiety.

'Let's put out the urgent fire first!'

Seongjin hurriedly stopped using the aurors in the passage. Then, even though I couldn't see it with my eyes, I could feel Max's size shrinking.

Kiing!

Seongjin reached out and hugged the wolf dog, which was snoring anxiously, and gathered up all the aura he needed to wrap it around the dog.

Meanwhile, his mind was racing to find the cause of the problem.

-Mores.

Quite a long time ago, the day when King Seonghwang destroyed the backyard of the main palace and blocked the passage with his own hands.

Seongjin had heard the warning he conveyed with strong thoughts.

-Keep in mind that when you pull the water in a channel, the things on the other side are pulled in with it.

Yeah, I didn't forget.

From that day on, I always kept my father's warning in my heart.

but...

'Compared to the enormous amount of auras that were put in to block the passage, the auras I used were only a handful!'

If that's the amount, when I return to the palace, my father can easily replenish it with a single blow. But why does this change happen?

[Hey, Lee Seong-jin! I guess this is... ... !]

The Demon King called Seongjin again, as if he wanted to say something. However, I don't know what I was thinking, but I paused for a moment and fell into silence.

Black flesh gradually began to cover around Seongjin. With countless thoughts echoing in my mind.

-Be [me]!

-Or, accept [me] into [you]!

-The moment you become one with [you], [you] will definitely become a new [me]!

Seongjin, who was nervously swatting them away, soon stopped his meaningless movements and crouched down.

The broken pieces of flesh seemed to be easily pushed away by even a small physical force, but they soon pushed back into the empty space and tried to fill the son-in-law. It felt like I was struggling in dark water.

-Please don't refuse. The feeling of strangeness is nothing more than a fleeting moment!

The lack of aurors is limited to protecting Max. Soon, I felt the concentrated magical energy being absorbed into my body as if I was being sucked in. I melted in so easily that it was pointless that I was even momentarily nervous.

Then, the devil's flesh also clung to him as if it was digging into his body, and Seongjin quickly buried his nose in Max's fur.

Whine whine!

The sound of Max crying next to me somehow felt distant, and the thoughts rushing into my ears became even stronger.

-Now, I will become an even stronger, invincible [me]!

-That would be the most wonderful thing!

-hurry! hurry! hurry!

Trying not to be swept away by the chaotic clamor, Seongjin put more strength into the arms he held Max.

Only then did a small amount of regret arise.

'Did I go too crazy...?'

No, but I had calculated that it would definitely be okay. I felt like it was the best!

'Plus, I also thought that this was the only opportunity to test the abundant Aurors to my heart's content.'

Maybe I trusted my premonition too blindly. Because of his own foolish judgment, didn't even the innocent Max get caught up in this situation?

The damaged eyes can no longer see anything, and the situation is increasingly suffocating as they are covered by demonic species.

But it was truly strange. Seongjin did not feel a great sense of crisis even when the situation reached this point.

Noisy-

Somehow, Seongjin calmed down his pounding heart and slowly closed his eyes.

Well, there is one thing I can trust right now.

When help comes, Logan, who was bound by the barrier, will also be free. Then he will definitely come up with something good.

'Until then, let's focus on protecting Max!'

Feeling the flesh filled with demonic energy sticking to his skin as if digging into his skin, Seongjin gathered up the last of his remaining aura and wrapped it around Max once more.

When black flesh suddenly began to gather towards Lee Seong-jin, Logan intuitively realized that something unusual was happening.

"Sir Otto."

Holding Arjuna in his hand, Logan quickly gave instructions to the knight next to him.

"Yes, sir."

"Even if I leave, you will keep your seat."

"... yes?"

"If the demon species doesn't move any further, I think it will be okay even if the barrier disappears for a while. 'Let's reorganize the sacred barrier at this time.'"

"Lowering. What is that... .. ?"

But before Sir Otto could ask-

Phew!

In an instant, an enormous amount of sacred power was withdrawn, and the sacred barrier shook as if it would break at any moment.

"Lowering?!"

Sir Otto was perplexed for a moment. However, while he had been accompanying Prince Logan until now, he had been surprised by the prince's unexpected behavior once or twice.

He quickly regained his composure and shouted, unleashing divine power with all his might.

"Li, Lilium everyone! Stay in your place! Maintain the barrier!"

Sir Ellie, who was at the edge of the barrier, also calmly looked back and cautioned.

"The Royal Guard, please do not act hastily!"

Sure enough, there was a small commotion behind her. Sir Kurt was barely holding on to Sir Claudia, who was about to rush at her with her sword drawn.

"Calm down, Sir Claudia!"

"Lord Kurt! Now is not the time for this! Our Majesty Mores... ..!"

"But if you jump in without taking any precautions, the water will erode in an instant and you will die!"

"It's our job to protect our country even at the cost of our lives!"

"For now, we must follow Lilium's instructions! His Majesty Logan has moved. So let's just wait and see what happens!"

Meanwhile, Logan was already rushing towards the demon species. He had already fired a couple of Auror explosions.

"Lee Seong-jin! Come to your senses and get out of there!"

However, being pushed away by the explosion was only temporary.

The flesh gathered around Lee Seong-jin buries him in an instant and gradually increases in size.

In this way, the demon species suddenly became a huge sphere and was left alone in the land of death.

"Lee Seong-jin!"

Arjuna emitted a bright blue aura. Logan's true auror was revealed when his divine power was almost depleted.

Liquid! Awesome!

The Sword Master's fierce sword strike cut into pieces the edge of the huge sphere. Since Lee Seong-jin is somewhere in the center, they cannot dare to blindly penetrate the center.

'are you okay. If we keep chipping away from the edges like this... ...
!'

Pass...

However, as if to laugh at him, the pieces of flesh seemed to be cut and scattered for a moment, but then gathered together and returned to their original form.

Pow! Whoa!

I tried firing the aura blast again, but the result was the same. The small pieces of flesh that were broken and floating around like liquid quickly returned to their normal state even after being cut again and again by Arjuna.

'Is there no other way than to purify everything with divine power?'

Logan looked up at the huge black sphere with a perplexed feeling.

It is impossible to purify that gigantic demon species alone. So why didn't they just tie him up here and wait for the other Holy Knights to come?

Another problem was that his condition was not very good right now. Because he had been handling the huge barrier that should have been supported by dozens of people for a long time alone, his sacred power was already close to being depleted.

As evidence, signs of erosion were gradually appearing on the body that had been in contact with demonic energy several times.

'... But, it must be done.'

The hand holding Arjuna gains strength.

'It is overly optimistic to expect Lee Seong-jin to be safe out there while waiting for reinforcements that may come at any time.'

Logan forcibly squeezed out the remaining sacred power and made the silver and blue flame bloom again on the blade.

'So now, I have to save Lee Seong-jin!'

Whoa!

As if responding to his will, the fading divine power began to glow white again.

Logan, wearing the silver and blue torch, slowly began swinging his sword towards the center of the demon species.

Cheesy!

When the divine power reaches out, the black flesh begins to burn white and gradually move outward.

Logan dug in without missing the opportunity and swung his sword toward the center again.

Kurrrrrr... ..

The black sphere sways violently, as if the presence of an intruder is unpleasant.

'... 'Can we break through?'

Repeated sword strikes.

Logan thought, suddenly feeling dizzy as if his soul was being twisted.

'Can I last until the end?'

I can not know. But still, he had to get results.

Carrying a heavy burden alone. And to endure until death, pouring out everything you have.

Ironically, wasn't such foolish behavior what General Gael, who was called an unrivaled genius, did best?

"Lord, please protect your children."

As he swung his sword and chanted softly, the silver flame began to burn with increasing light as if responding.

Just as aura reflects a person's nature to some extent, demonic energy also comes to resemble the original owner's nature.

In that sense, it can be said that the demonic energy that covers Seongjin has a very annoying nature.

-Let's spread it all over the world...

-Let's sow seeds and cultivate them. And then we have to harvest... ...

-To go further, you have to divide into smaller and smaller seeds... ...

The demon species no longer mentions [me]. It just divides and divides into small pieces, and can no longer emit thoughts that can be called consciousness.

It has completely lost its individual characteristics and is turning into a demonic energy itself.

-My seeds even in the distant universe...

Of course, there is no change in the fact that it is noisy.

Seongjin felt a headache coming from the strong will conveyed by the demon energy.

'... It is the devil of an annoying person who wants to spread his seeds without any gaps, not only in all dimensions but also in the entire universe.'

Someone's voice says so.

Oh, it looks like that. How on earth can one have such an absurd desire to spread one's seeds throughout the universe?

Wouldn't it be better for both of us if we stopped doing such useless things and just slept like we were dead?

'...'

How long can I last here? Seongjin thought so and tried not to miss the feel of Max in his hand.

No, holding on is not the problem. More precisely, the problem was that the will to hold on was gradually disappearing.

Ah, yes. Until now, I've tried not to think about it. But I can no longer deny that these 'Magi' feel somehow familiar.

If so, wouldn't there be no problem in the end? Is this really meaningful resistance?

Exciting-

Little by little, my consciousness expanded, and my vision began to open brightly again.

No, the word vision was not appropriate. His distant eyes were still tightly closed, just touching Max's soft fur.

Nevertheless, Seongjin's spirit was clearly recognized. A small passage opened in his chest, and the movement of dark red flames slowly encroaching on it.

Seongjin realized what it was and took a deep breath.

'... 'The fire of Gehenna!'

The burning of hell, which burns everything in the world as well as the soul, and is extremely feared by even the goddesses of other dimensions.

'How did it get here?'

But strangely enough, as soon as I asked the question, the answer automatically popped out of my head.

'It's because I broke the boundary my father created!'

The reason why the Holy Emperor's aura fluttered like water was because its intangible energy was wrapped in a strange barrier-like membrane.

However, because Seongjin continues to pull it, the boundary is completely broken.

Thanks to this, Gehenna's terrorizer has crossed the curtain, and from then on, he will burn all the aurors and quickly encroach on the passage!

Seongjin suddenly realized.

'Anyway, all of this was going to happen someday. It was impossible to completely stop Gehenna's fire in the first place.'

No matter how strong my father's barrier is, what good is it? Perhaps in the near future, Seongjin, who was cornered, would definitely have to forcefully use the aura of this passage at least once.

'If things continue like this, soon this body will burn away.'

Seongjin watched without much emotion as the fierce flames spread through the passage.

[Lee Seong-jin...]

At that time, the Demon King called to him in a creeping voice. It was a voice that conveyed deep agony, as if there was a fierce conflict about something.

[Maybe it's not too late. Now, we can stop the fire of Gehenna with the remaining auras.]

'Um, well...'

When Seongjin responded lukewarmly, the Demon King coaxed him again.

[hurry. At this point, you'll probably be able to hold out until your father takes action again.]

... father.

As his thoughts came to him, Seongjin felt his heart, which had been cooling down for some reason, quickly begin to flutter.

[Don't regret it later. You really like this place, right?]

Maybe that's why the Demon King's proposal sounded quite tempting.

Yes, even if it is an ending that will be reached someday anyway.

'Maybe there's no need to end it now. I know nothing will change anything, but if I could just delay it a little longer...'

After making up his mind, Seongjin immediately rallied his will. He enthusiastically moved the remaining Holy Auras and began to push Gehenna's fire out from the passage little by little.

Grumble!

Then, suddenly interrupted, Gyeophwa struggles violently as if he were protesting.

[...]]

However, he could not overcome Seongjin's strong will, and in the end, he had no choice but to be slowly pushed to the other side, helpless.

'done!'

However, Seongjin's momentum did not last long.

Since when did it start? This is because, a little distance away, he suddenly discovered a soul that began to glow brightly.

'... 'Logan?'

A whitish shape wrapped in light. But somehow Seongjin was able to immediately recognize the owner of the soul.

'But what is he doing now?'

Logan's soul must have been shining brightly with divine power from the beginning. But now, somehow, the aspect of the light seemed a little different.

The flame burning brightly around him is lighting up his surroundings and at the same time slowly eating into his soul.

'... ... !?'

The image of squeezing out one's soul while releasing divine power, and ultimately burning one's own soul along with the sacred fire.

Now, Seongjin could clearly see how reckless Logan's actions were. As if cold water was suddenly poured onto his dazed head, his mind returned to reality in an instant.

'That crazy guy!'

Seongjin, who was frightened, used all his strength to pull the Aura of the passage back to this side.

There was no more measuring back and forth.

We have to stop Logan's foolish actions!

Grumble!

As the Aurors left the passage, the speed at which Gehenna's flames rushed towards them accelerated even more.

But Seongjin didn't care one bit.

How about following Gehenna down here? Just like this, I will go beyond my body and burn this damned demon species to the ground!

[...] Ah, this is how you do it. In the end, it ends up like this.]

The demon lord watched in silence for a moment and sighed in a somewhat sad voice.

357. Holy Wind (8)

"We'll be there soon, Balthazar."

Balthazar nodded at Adjutant Dimros' report.

As the head of the Imperial Palace Knights and the greatest knight on the continent, he was currently leading a large army made up of several Holy Knights.

'You've managed to create this many people in such a short period of time.'

The symbol of the main god shining brightly in gold.

Below, hundreds of paladins wearing subtle silver armor.

Looking back at a minister he rarely saw, Balthazar thought of Princess Amelia, who had appointed him as commander-in-chief.

-First, we have to wait for the Inquisitor's report. Whether or not the Holy Knights will be dispatched and the appropriate scale of dispatch are matters that only the Holy Assembly will decide!

Despite the threat of a large demon species that had appeared for the first time in several years, the brazen Cardinal Benitus went on a rampage in front of the princess.

-The Holy Knights are, in name and reality, the best force in Delcross. This is not a group that can move independently without the approval of the Holy Assembly!

-But, Your Excellency! While we waste time like this, the damage caused by the demon species will continue to increase!

-The more you do that, the more confusing things become. It doesn't take long to wait for the results of the reconnaissance. Rather, why don't you know that the more you get involved, the more complicated the situation becomes?

-... .. !

-Even if you are a prosperous emperor, you cannot be this reckless! Do you understand? That is the procedure and the law, Amelia!

Then, the princess's eyes, glaring at Benitus, flashed coldly for an instant. I had no idea how her eyes, which usually shined warmly and kindly, could change so suddenly in an instant.

-... great. Well then, let us follow the due process that your Excellency prefers.

The result was this.

Princess Amelia ordered the emergency mobilization of imperial troops in accordance with imperial law on responding to wartime and incidents, instead of the provisions of the sacred law on responding to demon species.

And after all the ordinary knights were taken away to the imperial emergency alert, the remaining five Holy Knights were grouped together as reserve troops.

Where is that? In order to avoid confusion in the jumbled command system of the Paladins, Balthazar, the best military officer in Delcross, whom no one could argue with, was put in charge!

-What kind of pun is this? Are you calling me a pick-up!?

-The five knight commanders must wait for the approval of the Holy Council according to legal procedures. In the meantime, our Lord Balthazar will recruit 'some' troops from the Holy Knights to confront the threat of the Empire.

-That's part of it, there's a limit to jokes! Doesn't this mean taking out most of the troops through expedient means? What are the Royal Guards and SS doing in the meantime?

-We must protect His Majesty and the subjects of the Imperial Capital. Isn't it so obvious?

-No, that's ridiculous... ... !

Thanks to this, ironically, we ended up in a situation where Balthazar, who had no divine power at all, was in charge of leading the demonic subjugation unit made up entirely of Holy Knights.

'Princess Amelia...'

Balthazar's eyes deepened.

A princess whose maternal family is the great noble family of Count Sigismund, but because she is an illegitimate daughter, she does not receive any support from her family.

The princess did not even think that she had the right to succeed to the throne as she had no significant influence or influence.

'But maybe...'

The appearance of the princess he saw today closely resembled the prosperity of her youth when she used to push herself without restraint.

If this continues, she may soon emerge as a new standard-bearer who will immediately change the imperial succession structure, which is currently tilted towards Prince Logan.

"Lord Balthazar."

Just then, a calm woman's voice was heard urging Balthazar. He was the only exorcist included in these subjugation units.

"The energy of the demon species is a bit unusual. "I think we need to hurry up the march."

The Knights of St. Terbachia are known to be vulnerable to large-scale battles, and most of them are out on duty far away. Therefore, the current troop recruitment was mainly done from the other four knights.

But what caught Balthazar's eye was something else.

That woman, didn't her impression seem a little different from before?

-Exorcist? Were the Knights of St. Terbachia also eligible for recruitment?

-Hehehe. No, Lord Balthazar. I am participating as a member of the monster task force.

When she first joined, that woman was smiling vaguely and in an unpleasant way. She sometimes muttered softly into the air, and no matter how much she washed her eyes, she was clearly a psychopath.

But now her impression was completely different.

The hair that had covered his face in a gloomy manner was neatly pulled back and flowing, and his tired face with dark circles looked quite neat, although a little pale.

okay. When I think about it that way, it seems like my presence has changed a little... ..

"Lord Balthazar."

When the exorcist called him again, Balthazar, who had been lost in his thoughts, was startled and froze.

"... Oh, it's nothing. okay. "We must hurry."

But Balthazar had just ordered his adjutant to speed up.

"... ..!"

Hwaak-

A silver gleam flashed in the exorcist's eyes, and she suddenly broke away from the battle line and began shooting forward quickly.

"... ..!?"

"hey! "Don't suddenly break out of line!"

The startled deputy shouted at her. The person who stopped him was Francis, the lieutenant of the Knights of St. Aurelion.

"You can leave it alone, Lord Dimroth. Sir Sharon is a knight who moves freely without any structure. He is under the command of His Majesty the Holy Emperor."

"Moving without a system, what on earth is that..." ... ?"

This is something that an imperial knight could not even dare to imagine. While Dimroth was mumbling dumbly, Balthazar was looking at the exorcist's back with eyes full of astonishment.

But what surprised Balthazar was something completely different from his adjutant.

'That kind of mysterious auror operation? 'Where did someone so genius suddenly appear?'

Why did I miss that inspection until now?

I need to take the author as my disciple right now... No, should I first get permission from Lord Leandros? But will they really hand over such a great talent to me?

But Balthazar's worries did not last long.

Not long after the exorcist disappeared, an aura like a storm burst out from the direction the troops were heading.

Fuuuuuuu!

A huge explosion erupted from within.

That enormous power not only tore apart the devil's sphere, but also created a black vortex that encompassed all of its flesh.

The force was so strong that the pieces of flesh were unable to gather back together in the center and were just fluttering around in the wind.

Whoa!

Then a cool wind blew. A wind made up of the materialization of a silver aura containing divine energy.

"... ... !"

Everyone froze and looked at that figure.

The Lilium Detached Blade was struggling to maintain the barrier. The resident knights were also stamping their feet and looking at the princes' situation.

"That sacred energy!"

"The grace of the Lord is with us here!"

The one who appeared before their eyes was Prince Mores, wrapped in a silver wind.

He was holding the large wolfdog, which was slowly falling to the floor as if it were a flower seed blowing in the wind.

An extremely sacred and majestic sight, as if it were a scene of a miracle shown by ancient saints.

"ah... ... !"

For a moment, I was surprised to recognize that the wind was actually a prosperous aura.

Logan was pleased to see Seongjin, who looked quite fine, and lowered Arjuna down.

"Sane... ... !"

"Hey, man!"

Then, my eyes widen at the unexpectedly strong yelling.

"You crazy bastard! What are you doing? "Were you planning on committing suicide right here?"

"... what?"

"Reinforcements are coming, so why are you so urgent that you are squeezing out divine power by yourself? "There are degrees of being impatient!"

Tuk.

Seongjin, who stepped on the floor, frowned and sensed signs around him.

Logan's torch burns the flesh of demon species and is still not extinguished. And then there was the sign of a guy who was much weaker than usual.

The more I thought about it, the more ridiculous it became.

"you... .."

On the other hand, Logan was embarrassed in a different way. Because he realized that Lee Seong-jin's eyes that were criticizing him were not properly focused.

'Snow... .. !'

Logan bit his lip as he suddenly remembered what happened at Sigismund Territory.

"Lee Seong-jin, what on earth are you doing? "Why are your eyes like that?"

"Hmm, whatever."

Seongjin answered roughly and lowered Max to the floor.

However, was it because the huge amount of aura remaining in the passage was released all at once? The moment the weight of the wolf dog disappeared, Seongjin felt severe dizziness and stumbled on the spot.

"Uh... .. !"

Logan, startled, suddenly reaches out his arm to support him.

however-

"Uh... ..!"

"what?"

Unable to bear Seongjin's weight, he stumbled. If you think about it, Logan wasn't in the right condition either.

Quadang! thud!

In the end, the two ended up collapsing on the floor without anyone else.

"... .."

What kind of shape is this?

"... I don't know what kind of talent you have, but it seems like now is your only chance. "We need to get out of here quickly."

Logan, who was silent for a moment, looked up and said.

In fact, the rapidly swirling flesh of the demon species was showing signs of coming back together as the wind of the Auror slowly died down.

"That's right. That's how it should be... .."

Seongjin frowned as he pushed away Max, who was licking his face.

Perhaps it was because all the auras that were blocking Gehenna's fire were released, or because I felt a pain in my chest that felt like fire.

'... I think it's already too late to avoid it.'

The fire of Gehenna is almost at the end of the passage. Seongjin knew very well that if things continued like this, his entire body would soon be helplessly engulfed in flames.

'In that case, it would be better to stay like this, with the demon species...'

Just as I was about to make a truly solemn resolve.

Seongjin and Logan simultaneously flinched and turned their heads in surprise. This is because they felt a familiar figure running quickly towards them from afar.

"... ... !"

The owner of the figure soon appeared within sight.

Hair as black as a crow and a pale face. And the familiar silver-gray eyes that emit a silvery sheen.

An exorcist dressed in the gray uniform of Tervakia was rapidly shooting into the land of the dead, spurring his aurons.

'Abama!'

Logan, somehow relieved, stood up shakily, supporting Seongjin. His body had no strength as he was squeezing out all his divine power, but at least he was better off than this guy who was blind.

"Now, wake up, Seongjin Lee. "Others have their eyes on me too, so I have to stand up and greet them properly."

There your father is coming.

Logan didn't say anything, but Seongjin could immediately sense what he wanted to say. Because his nervousness suddenly calmed down.

Seongjin also felt a strong sense of relief and secretly smiled.

"ha ha ha."

"What are you smiling about right now? "For such a huge accident."

Logan supported his shaking leg with Arjuna and beat Seongjin as if nothing had happened.

"Even from here, I can feel Abamama's momentum. "Aren't you afraid of the aftermath?"

"Uh, okay. "It's not scary at all."

Seongjin thought as he raised the corners of his mouth.

At least for today, I feel like I have a comrade to share the night with.

358. Join (1)

After the Holy Aura that was blocking the passage completely disappeared.

The embers of Gehenna quickly encroached on the passage as if they had been waiting and rushed toward Seongjin.

He belatedly tried to gather his Aura, but his Aura, which was almost depleted, was powerless in the face of the fierce fire.

Woe!

Instead, the aura caught fire, and a tremendous burning sensation arose throughout my body.

"... ..!"

Logan also seemed to feel an unusual heat. He, who had taken a step ahead to greet the crowd, looked back in surprise.

"Lee Seongjin, are you okay? "Why do you suddenly feel like you have a fever?"

"Uh, well... .."

There is such a thing.

But it's okay now. Because my father came.

"Would you like me to help you?"

"It's okay. "Something that's out of shape."

Seongjin waved his hand at Logan and then grabbed his head, which was starting to spin due to high fever.

'My father will heal me just fine this time too. First of all, you have to be prepared to get hit hard.'

Even when I think about it today, I feel like it was a bit close.

Although there was no other way, my father was probably very angry. If he were that guy, he would already know everything.

'But you're my father, right? 'Maybe you'll get over your anger soon?'

However, Seongjin had just finished mentally preparing himself, and the sign of Seonghwang was just around the corner.

thud!

I felt a little dizzy, and then suddenly I felt a strong shock to the back of my head.

Seongjin thought in confusion. As expected, his father must have been angry. No, but why not the forehead...

"Lee Seong-jin!"

Logan's voice calling him soon became distant.

A large demon species appears near the ecliptic for the first time in many years, and is successfully subdued.

The incredible rumor quickly spread throughout the imperial capital.

"Surprisingly, there were almost no casualties! "This is truly wonderful care from the Lord!"

"I heard Balthazar, the greatest knight on the continent, led the punitive force, right?"

"Ah, then there's nothing to worry about. "By now, he has probably given the evil demon race a good taste of bitterness."

Disasters whose damage cannot be felt are nothing more than a fresh and interesting story for people. Soon, everyone in the imperial capital started talking about this incident whenever they made eye contact.

"I guess you just built a house?"

"No, what are all the houses! "I heard he was a mountain bastard?"

And among them, the activities of a completely unexpected person were also included.

"But do you know what? It turns out that it was actually Prince Mores who subdued him! "He happened to be in Bathurst Territory, and he stood alone against the bastard to protect his subjects."

"what? Wow, this guy is talking nonsense! "Does that make sense?"

"No, really! There are more than one person who saw it clearly with their own two eyes. "I heard that Prince Mores used the sacred energy of the Holy Family to tear the demon species to pieces in one fell swoop?"

Rumors that were thought to be absurd gradually began to have a credible basis. This was because Balthazar's troops, who had left for the subjugation, easily completed the purification and quickly returned to the imperial capital.

A demonic species that disintegrates and disintegrates again, almost returning to its original form as a demon.

Purifying such a bastard was not that difficult. All you have to do is set up a huge barrier, push through with the number of people, and pour out divine power.

Thanks to this, there was no damage to the punitive forces. Only the two princes of the Holy Family suffered major and minor injuries and were transported to the main palace for treatment.

Around that time, the vague rumors began to gain weight little by little.

"Oh my god, Prince Mores rode the [wind] and bravely rushed towards the demon species."

"wind? what is that?"

"They say you are a divine beast who received the grace of the Lord?"

"What is Shinsu again?"

"Oh, this person! "Have you seen Saint Bastian's new fairy tale yet?"

Soon, rumors about Prince Mores and the divine beast [Wind] began to sweep the ecliptic like a storm. This is thanks to the just-published scripture fairy tales, which have been expanded and reproduced at an incredible speed.

So, by the evening of that day, the rumor that Prince Mores was an apostle of St. Bastian was widely spread throughout the imperial capital.

"An apostle of St. Bastian!"

The tremendous rumor naturally spread to the members of the Holy Assembly.

In order to go through the proper 'procedures', they were summoned to the imperial palace only after all work had been completed.

All of the Holy Knights under his command had been dispatched, and the five Holy Knight Commanders, who were nominally awaiting approval from the Holy Council, were also present.

"What kind of nonsense is that? Inquisitor! Is the Inquisitor still out to investigate!?"

Cardinal Benitus was scolding Sir Paris, the new leader of the Knights of St. Marsyas. Because he was more sensitive than anyone else to heresy that distorted the will of the Lord.

"Shouldn't we know how such absurd talk came about? Could it be that the Third Prince himself said such disturbing words?"

"It doesn't seem like it, but... .."

"I don't think so? Hey! "If you still don't understand one thing, what on earth are you doing as the leader?"

"Calm down, Your Excellency Cardinal. It hasn't been long since we sent the second Inquisitor. Besides, aren't the two princes, as well as most of the knights at the scene, currently receiving treatment?"

When the reinforcements arrived on the scene, most of the situation was already over.

Before Balthazar struck the Granius-style barrier, he quickly transported everyone on site, including the two princes, to the imperial palace.

The Lilium Detachment, which had been squeezing out divine power, was completely exhausted, and the resident knights of the Pearl Palace also showed signs of weakening, albeit weakly.

"There was a strict order from His Majesty the Holy Emperor not to dare disturb their rest."

"Egh! "These useless things!"

Meanwhile, Cardinal Meyer, who had been silent, looked a little worried as he rubbed his forehead.

"It's not good. not good... .."

"A large level 1 demon species was defeated without any damage. Isn't this something that can elevate the names of the Seonghwang family and Delcross on the continent? "What is the problem?"

In response to Archbishop Wester's question, Cardinal Meyer had a mixed expression.

"Don't you know? The Holy Family itself, not the empire of the main god, is considered sacred. The Holy Hwangga receives the respect of the subjects on behalf of the main lord. "Isn't that what His Majesty is most wary of now?"

"But it's already too late. dismissal."

Wesker frowned and raised the corners of his mouth.

"The princes' activities are so clear. So, I guess Cardinal Benitus can't belittle His Majesty Mores as recklessly as he usually does. "Those young princes accomplished a task that would have been difficult even if all five Holy Knights were there."

"one... .."

"For the subjects, the Holy Family is already the same as the power of the main lord itself. Therefore, praise for the Holy Family can never exceed reverence for the Lord, the subject of power."

Still, an apostle of St. Bastian, isn't that a bit too far?

Archbishop Wesker added with a sour expression to Cardinal Mayer, who still looked worried.

"You don't need to think about it too complicated. "Isn't Sisley already recognized as an apostle?"

"The case is very different from Sisley. Wasn't she already a saint who received the support of her subjects through long years of volunteer work?"

But what about Prince Mores?

"You have only recently come into prominence, and you are not even born with any divine power. But now there are rumors going around that he brought about divine grace and defeated the demon race! What else is that if not excessive deification of the royal family?"

Moreover, Prince Mores is a little [different] from the other princes and princesses of the Holy Imperial Family.

Most of the high-ranking clergy had already noticed it. An undeniable evil energy that sometimes emanates from that strange prince.

If he had not been the emperor's favorite prince, Cardinal Benitus would have taken him to the Heresy Tribunal and interrogated him long ago.

"Unholy! There is a rumor going around that a person without any divine power dared to exercise the grace of the god! This is heresy! "It is a heresy that no one can deny!"

Sure enough, Cardinal Benitus, who overheard their conversation, was furious.

"In this world, only His Majesty, the Supreme Holy Emperor, and the priests and paladins who serve the Lord! Prince Mores absolutely does not deserve this! Do you understand!?"

Everyone who attended the crusade was expecting his reaction.

'It's really noisy. He's going to cause this ruckus until he runs out of energy again.'

Since he has strong divine power, he will go on a rampage for quite some time.

Everyone was thinking like that and mindlessly shuffling through documents for follow-up measures.

But none of them could have guessed that today's crusade would end with this conclusion.

"Prince Mores is truly the God's tool in name and reality. He will soon become a paladin."

Everyone in the Holy Assembly opened their eyes and turned their heads to the husky voice that seemed to be scraping rough metal.

There stood a man who looked like a dry old tree.

Leander, leader of the Knights of St. Terbachia.

The gloomy man leading all the exorcists opened his heavy mouth again.

"Because Leandros will put his honor on the line and nominate Prince Mores as a member of the Knights of St. Terbachia."

"... ... ?"

"Maybe he won't turn down that offer."

For a moment, silence fell throughout the entire crusade.

"... "Prince Mores?"

"Well, does that make sense? Doesn't he have divine power?"

"A paladin without divine power? What is that..."

However, despite the spreading turmoil, Sir Leandros did not even blink.

"Everyone seems to have forgotten, but there are only two things that the Knights of St. Terbachia consider important. "It is a strong hostility toward the demon species and a correspondingly strong power of destruction."

Those with divine powers usually possess the powers of healing, blessing, and destruction of evil, although there are differences in degree.

Among them, most members of the Knights of Saint Terbachia, whose main task was exorcism, specialized in the ability to destroy evil.

However, since this power of [Destruction] is only a characteristic of divine power, it is mainly those who have divine power that join. In principle, anyone could meet the qualifications as long as they could defeat the devil well.

There was also a precedent here. Terbachia, the saint of wisdom whom the exorcists seek to continue. It is said that he, too, originally had no divine power.

However, Saint Terbachia held powerful relics in both hands and defeated more demons than anyone else at the time. That is why, in later generations, he rose to the rank of saint.

And the same goes for Sir Leandros.

Although he had a power to destroy evil so strong that he was called the nightmare of demons, he was also the only one among the leaders of the Five Holy Knights to have no divine power.

"B-but... .."

Cardinal Benitus, who had been standing dumbfounded in shock, finally came to his senses and opened his mouth.

"He, no, the third prince doesn't deserve it... .."

"I heard that Prince Mores's military power has already surpassed that of an ordinary knight in the imperial palace. Where is that? Considering his accomplishments so far, there is no doubt about his ability to [annihilate] against the demon race."

"... ..!"

No one would dare refute those words.

Prince Mores is the one who solved the demon crisis in the imperial capital. Moreover, not long ago, he led the Wolf Knights and successfully defeated the Demon Beast that had appeared for the first time in hundreds of years.

Plus, there was some action today. Aren't all of these achievements difficult for even a decent leader of the Holy Knights to achieve in their lifetime?

"Also, the beloved sword you use is a nutcracker that has the status of a holy relic."

"... .."

"Now, everyone, please answer. "Is there anything missing in his qualifications?"

Looking back at the members of the Holy Assembly who were engulfed in silence, Lord Reindras made a sharp expression on his face.

"So, as soon as everything is settled, I, Leandros, will personally speak to His Majesty the Holy Emperor."

While everyone was going crazy over the third prince, Seongjin's mind was wandering in the wrong place, not reality.

[hmm. I think my father healed me...]

Seongjin tilted his head in confusion.

It doesn't look like he's dead, does it?

Still, for some reason, he was now in a state where he had left his body halfway and was observing himself through the eyes of his soul.

To be exact, a long passage connected to one's body.

'That's my father's auror!'

Soon, a white glowing aura unique to the Holy Emperor was seen slowly pushing the fire of Gehenna out of the passage.

'I thought it would be possible with my father!'

Seongjin, who was internally relieved, looked at the scene blankly.

And next to him, there was another being watching it along with Seongjin.

[Lee Seong-jin. There is the fire of Gehenna over there.]

A small and insignificant red soul as always.

Seongjin looked at the bastard and nodded.

[...] uh.]

[That long road must be a shortcut to crossing dimensions, right?]

Only then did Seongjin realize what the Demon King had seemed so worried about earlier.

A long passage covered in dark red flames was the road back to Gehenna.

Sigurd: A demon world that has completely merged with Earth 34. To the dimension that Seongjin and the Demon King left.

[By the way, Seongjin Lee.]

Seongjin kept his mouth shut, but the Demon King asked again as if he was anxious.

[If I go back to Gehenna, will you treat me like you do now?]

Seongjin stared silently at the demon king's soul blinking red.

'... The devil returns? To Gehenna?'

To be honest, I was quite embarrassed. Because it was something I had never even thought of as a possibility until now.

If you think about it, it was a strange thing. Seongjin already knew that there was a passage in his body connected to Gehenna.

Where is that? There was a time when I was thrown straight there through a passage.

I should have known a long time ago that the devil's soul was capable of such a thing.

'For some reason, I had a baseless belief that he would continue to be here in the future.'

It may be natural that the Demon King wants to return. Because he's been losing himself steadily, little by little, ever since.

Not only has he lost all of his senses needed to live, but he has also lost all his strength and status, and now even his name has become a blur.

The shock has caused the Demon King to whimper helplessly once or twice so far.

'but... ... '

Nevertheless, Seongjin could not be easily convinced.

Returning to Gehenna. And to regain its former form and strength. Is it okay to think that this is truly the way to regain the Demon Lord himself?

[If I return to Gehenna, I may become a stronger demon king than before.]

[okay?]

[huh. Sigurd Earth 34 and Gehenna have completely merged. Now, if I regain my status as a demon king, perhaps those two dimensions will be able to leap into one dimension that is newer and more solid than before.]

[hmm.]

As Seongjin responded without much emotion, the demon king's soul stirred irregularly, as if he was impatient.

[Now we won't invade other dimensions for a while. Because I also need to solidify my level first. Of course, as time passes, the day will come when we need to take another leap forward... . ah! Of course, I will never invade Delcross where you are!]

[...]]

[This is a high level where I can't do anything right now, right? And just imagining having to face your monstrous father head-on... [It's to the point where every part of my body that isn't even in my soul is going numb.]

okay. He knows my father well, so he wouldn't dare do something like that and expect to get away with it.

'but...'

Seongjin had been feeling strange since a while ago.

Is it because I've been hanging out with that guy for a long time? Although he didn't have the ability to see through the truth like Logan, Seongjin felt that for some reason, the devil seemed to be trying hard to avoid topics he really wanted to talk about.

So I asked directly.

[What are you so scared of, devil?]

Wouldn't it be over if I just go back down the passage and become the Demon King again?

Is there anything in the process that makes you feel afraid?

[...] ... !]

But it seems that the point was correct. Because the Demon King was so shocked that he kept his mouth shut.

There was a break in conversation for a moment. Seongjin and the Demon King were lost in their own thoughts and quietly watched the black and red flower being helplessly pushed down the passage.

And around that time, Seongjin realized that the power of Seonghwang's aura to push out the flames was gradually weakening.

'... ... ?'

what? What happened to your father?

Seongjin was puzzled, but then the demon king let out a small sigh as if he had decided on something.

[Lee Seong-jin, do you know that?]

[hmm?]

[When I first met you, you were a crazy person who couldn't communicate properly. Compromise and appeasement were impossible in the first place, and you fearlessly burned your hostility towards an opponent who was much stronger than you. I wondered if there were such crazy people in the world.]

Shut up, you devil!

In the end, you ended up being completely ruined by my fist. Do you want to go to this point and slander a person's character?

[But after coming to this world and spending time together, I learned more about you than I thought.]

The red soul gave off a faint light as if recalling old memories.

[You're not as angry as I thought. Even though this situation is repeated over and over again. I thought he was a psychopath who just pushes whatever he wants, but wouldn't he be like a brat who would get away with it in most cases except in special cases?]

... what? Hogu?

Seongjin was so dumbfounded that he lost the will to respond.

Who says this is bullshit now? Is there anyone who considers profit and loss and practical benefit as well as me?

[In particular, you showed infinite generosity to the weak things that could not threaten you. Because you allowed your maid to drink bile and that vulgar knight to commit lese majeste. Where is that? Even towards the arrogant resident knights who sometimes look at you for misfortune, you never once frowned.]

[...] That's it.]

There was no intention to respect their basic rights, such as freedom of expression.

It's just because their actions meant nothing to Seongjin.

It's not really worth worrying about, right? It's as if you don't feel the need to clean up the rocks that your feet hit while walking because they are a little annoying.

[So I realized. Your hostility basically only works against things that threaten your people and things that are strong enough to threaten your survival.]

The Demon King, who had spoken up to that point, paused for a moment and continued speaking with some difficulty.

[Then, what about me?]

Pyooooong.

A red soul floated up and blinked vaguely as it faced Seongjin.

[Lee Seong-jin. You said you became a hunter to kill me. And in the end, that goal was achieved.]

okay. It was like that.

By completely burning not only his colleagues but also his own body, he finally put an end to the demon lord.

[The reason you left my soul helpless was because you didn't know how to kill me, right? But if I regain my strength and return to my original form...]

The little soul trailed off for a moment, emitting an irregular light as if reflecting anxiety.

[I have harmed your people, and I am no longer weak enough to be generous to you... What kind of person am I to you?]

[...]]

[Would you treat me like you do now then? No, can you just leave me alone? If you say that you will sacrifice everything to kill me again, then I will...]

Seongjin could not hastily answer that question. Because he himself didn't know how to deal with the demon lord who had regained his power.

Still, I had this question.

'Why does the devil bastard ask this? Are you really asking my permission to regain your strength?'

why? If I'm scared, shouldn't I just run away?

Seongjin, who has now decided to live as Mores in Delcross, will not be able to chase after him, throwing everything away like before.

Then, Seongjin suddenly remembered the desperate moment of being consumed by the flames of Gehenna.

-Lee Seong-jin. Maybe it's not too late. Now, we can stop the fire of Gehenna with the remaining aurors.

At that time, I now understand why the devil was in such fierce conflict.

There would have been only one way for the Demon King to return to Gehenna.

Seongjin is engulfed in the fire of Gehenna and dies, so the passage is completely dominated by the fire of Gehenna.

Otherwise, even if the existence of the passage had been known, the Demon Lord would have had a long way to go back.

No matter how much I was surrounded by my father's barrier, I would not have been able to pass through the aura filled with divine power and cross that long passage.

'but... ... '

In the end, rather than returning to Gehenna and regaining his power, the demon king decided to save Seongjin first.

Then the story wasn't that difficult.

'I can never forget that he is my parents' enemy.'

But it also doesn't change the fact that he worked hard for her until now. It was not that difficult for Seongjin to return the favor he had received.

'And if you really wanted to go back, you wouldn't have started this conversation with me in the first place.'

There were enough clues to guess the devil's true intentions.

Didn't he say this himself?

-Don't regret it later. You really like this place, right?

He probably thinks he was just representing Seongjin's thoughts at the time.

But deep down, the demon lord also really likes this place.

A place with bear meat steaks and other delicious dishes. There is a manager, Bruno, who will criticize you for being a jerk, and a place full of noisy human relationships.

Seongjin is probably not alone in not wanting to leave this place easily.

So Seongjin was able to make the suggestion with a slightly more relaxed mind.

[Just don't go, devil.]

[...] uh?]

Perhaps because it was an unexpected answer, the Demon King's soul blinked in confusion.

However, Seongjin's next words were Cheongsanyusu.

[As long as I live, the passage will remain anyway, and it will open again someday. It means you can return to Gehenna at any time.]

okay. The road will reopen soon.

For some reason, Seongjin had such a strong feeling.

[So is there a need to hurry up? There would already be nothing left out there anyway. The fire of Gehenna would have burned the Earth and everything in Gehenna.]

[...] But...]

[Then wouldn't it be pointless to go back anyway? What are you going to do there alone?]

[No, but Seongjin Lee. As I said before, the enormous potential of the two worlds fused...]

[Then what do you do? There isn't even a bear meat steak there.]

[...] ... !]

Seongjin raised the corner of his mouth with a grin and spoke at the Demon King, who was blinking strongly as if indicating an internal conflict.

[And without you, I also feel quite uncomfortable.]

[huh?]

Perhaps the words were unexpected, but the Demon King asked Seongjin with an urgent light.

[I... Do you need me?]

[okay. of course. You have spiritual eyes, can detect lies, and can scout quite far outside the ecliptic, right?]

Plus, I hate to admit it, but he's also pretty smart. As a demon lord, he knows a lot.

[Besides, think about it, devil. I need you to stick by my side, so if something happens to me, won't you be my companion?]

[uh... ... ?]

[If I die, you will die too. Do you really think I will just leave you alive and go along?]

[...] ... !]

The Demon King seemed to be dazed for a moment and stopped blinking.

Meanwhile, changes gradually occurred in the space where they were staying.

The ominous light emitted by Gehenna's apocalypse is completely pushed away, and the son-in-law is covered in dazzling white light.

The thriving aurors had already restored about half of the passage.

'It's slower than I thought. Father, what are you doing? 'Aren't you going to push me away at once this time?'

Seongjin is thinking about this as he looks around -

[Ugh...]

The Demon Lord, who was unable to speak for a moment, immediately circled around Seongjin with a bewildered grin.

[What is it? what is that? Why is this guy who is so good at negotiating with other people making an offer to me like that?]

what? why? what?

Is there room for negotiation here? What more do you need than a bear steak?

Seongjin held out his hand with a shameless expression. I had a strong feeling that sooner or later I would get out of here and open my eyes.

[...] okay. Anyway, you have no intention of ending me right away.]

The Demon King, who hesitated for a moment, soon sighed and fell into Seongjin's hands.

[And they won't kick you out. Still, can't you tone down his words, you heartless bastard?]

However, there was a faint hint of relief in the voice of the man who lamented like that.

What is it that makes this guy so relieved? He always thought that he understood most things while working together, but there are still many things he doesn't know.

[Sniff. Still, when I go, you'll be my companion too, right? Right, Seongjin Lee?]

[Noisy. Stop whining now.]

[Sniff. Sniff. Seongjin Lee, you idiot.]

Seongjin did not reply any further and held the demon king's soul.

at that time-

-Mores.

He heard someone calling him.

Seongjin welcomed the call with joy and slowly closed his eyes.

Blink.

When Seongjin first opened his eyes, what caught his eye was an unfamiliar, gracefully hanging canopy.

'Where am I?'

As I looked up at the ceiling in a daze, I heard a calm voice next to me as if answering my question.

"This is a temporary treatment room located next to the office."

"... father?"

"This measure was taken because I felt like I would have to frequently combine treatment and government work, so please stay here for the time being."

Seongjin, who discovered the success, felt both joy and embarrassment.

As expected, my father helped me! Somehow, my eyes seemed fine.

'But if the treatment is over, it's over. What more treatment are you doing here?'

That wasn't the only strange thing.

'He was right next to me, why didn't I notice this man's presence right away?'

But when Seongjin wriggled to get up, Seonghwang pressed his forehead and encouraged him.

"Lie still, Mores."

"yes? but... .."

"Your condition has not fully recovered. "Do you still have a high fever?"

After hearing those words, I definitely felt a strange sense of helplessness that was different from usual.

It was truly strange. Normally, when exposed to the powerful divine power of the Holy Emperor, my physical condition would instantly clear up, but why does this feeling still remain?

'No, that's not the problem now.'

Wow-

Seongjin, who was enjoying the divine power pouring down again, suddenly came to his senses. This is because the messy situation from before slowly came to mind.

I rushed at a large demon species without any plan and was helplessly surrounded by its flesh.

In order to stop Logan, who rushed to save him, he drew so much fire from Gehenna that he almost burned his body... ..

100 million!

'We're in big trouble! Today I really made a mistake and hit it right!'

Cold sweat broke out on my forehead.

I'm not sure if this is sweating due to my feet being numb or nervous, or if it's a physiological phenomenon that occurs due to high fever.

In any case, Seonghwang seemed to have decided that it was the latter. He took his hand away from Seongjin's forehead and said, pulling up the crooked bedding.

"Lay down. "Let's go see the other kids for a while."

... Other kids?

Only then did Seongjin realize that they were not the only ones in the room.

Beautiful rosy waves covering the chest. It was clearly Amelia's hair, sleeping face down next to the bed.

"... ... ?"

Why are you sleeping here?

While Seongjin was panicking, Seonghwang carefully picked up Amelia so as not to wake her up. Then, he laid her down comfortably right next to her.

'Why are you here?'

Because the bed was so big, I didn't feel particularly uncomfortable.

But is it okay to stay like this? They are not children who hold hands and try to sleep because they are afraid of monsters under their beds.

"Amelia will definitely look for you as soon as she wakes up."

This time, I didn't ask, but Seonghwang gave me the answer first.

"..."

Seongjin, who became a little solemn, turned his head and looked at Amelia lying next to him. Once again, I can see her frowning eyebrows and the clear tear marks on her cheeks.

'sister. 'You cried because of me.'

Seongjin was staring blankly at her silent face with guilt pressing down on his chest. This time, Seonghwang returned to the other side of the bed and picked up the little saint.

"Sisley..."

Yeah, it wasn't just Amelia. Opposite her, little Sisley was lying face down in the same position.

He must have been pouring out his divine power right before he fell asleep, and he was holding Seongjin's sleeve tightly with his small hand.

This time, Seonghwang placed Sisley next to Seongjin. Because of this, Seongjin suddenly found herself caught between her two princesses and unable to move.

"uh..."

But that wasn't the end.

This time, Logan and Sir Martha are sitting on the long sofa a little far away from the bed, dozing off!

At this point, a sense of guilt and an ominous premonition arose.

what? Why didn't I get a feel for them sooner?

"father."

I called out to him in a slightly cracked voice, but he didn't answer right away and walked slowly towards the sofa this time. Maybe it was because of my mood, but the steps seemed very heavy.

Only after Logan and Sir Martha had laid down on the sofa one by one, did he finally turn his head towards Seongjin.

"Since everyone is stubborn about protecting you, I told you to just do it."

"uh..."

"I thought it was actually good. "Wouldn't that allow me to look after all of you at the same time?"

It sounds as if he can't leave Seongjin's side for a long time.

Seongjin couldn't help but recall what he had heard in passing earlier.

-This measure was taken because I felt like I would have to frequently combine treatment and government work, so please stay here for the time being.

no way?

Does this mean that Seongjin has some serious problem that requires constant treatment by his side?

"Father, I feel..." "I feel like my senses are a little strange."

When he confessed his abnormality in a trembling voice, Seonghwang looked at Seongjin for a moment and nodded slightly.

"... "Maybe so."

"What on earth is going on? "Can you tell me exactly what's wrong with me?"

"okay."

Seonghwang, who answered obediently, explained with a somewhat bitter expression.

"Because my auras are binding your auras and your senses."

"Come on, sense?"

What does that mean?

While I was confused, Seonghwang paused for a moment and continued speaking.

"Rather than a lengthy explanation, it would be better to experience it yourself. "I'll let you go for a while, so are you willing to try moving your auras?"

Whoop-

With those words, the small pressure pressing down on my body disappears.

"... ..!"

Only then was Seongjin able to properly understand Seonghwang's words.

This was a space filled with aura of prosperity as if it were air.

The materialized aura filled the room, encroaching on the path through which Seongjin's aura flowed, and eventually even taking away his breathing and senses.

There was no gap in the flow so far, so he didn't feel anything wrong, as if it were Seongjin's own aura.

'Why on earth would you do such a thing?'

However, Seongjin was soon able to painfully feel the reason.

The auror layer, which started rotating on its own from the start, soon began to become hot as if burning.

"... .. ?!"

It was quite different from the aura Seongjin had felt before.

The aura, which used to flow smoothly like water, is burning everything it touches as if it has turned into lava. Heat surged from my body along with a burning sensation.

'This... Could it be that the fire of Gehenna?'

Embarrassed, Seongjin first tried to control the flow of Aurors.

But strangely, the more I tried to control the aurors, the more the fire rising inside me began to rage. As her aura spreads throughout her body, her searing pain becomes increasingly severe.

I'm so confused and don't know what to do...

Whoop-

A cool wind rushed in, instantly trapping the flames inside my body.

It was a successful auror.

At the same time, bright divine power pours down from above the head again.

"... .."

Feeling the pain disappear in an instant, Seongjin looked up at Seonghwang with a frustrated face.

'Of course. The temperature dropped quite a bit, but it was definitely a disaster from Gehenna.'

Didn't your father push all the fire down the aisle earlier? Why is it still in my body?

But at least one thing is certain. Whatever happened to his body now, it was clearly Sungjin's own fault.

Seongjin noticed Seonghwang's behavior and quickly criticized him.

"I'm so sorry, Dad. "You clearly warned me to be careful before, but I only trusted my intuition and acted too hastily."

"... .."

"I guess I was using my aura too much, so the fire my father talked about came here. I never meant to do this... .."

While he was making gibberish excuses, Seonghwang's hand slowly approached Seongjin.

However, contrary to expectations that this time, Takbam will fly-
Scrunch.

Seonghwang only lightly stroked Seongjin's head once, as if to comfort him.

"You just tried to save Delcross with everything you had."

"No, I just..." .."

"And there was a price to pay for it. "You are probably the one who is heartbroken because you cannot use your Aurors as you wish. Instead of taking care of yourself, why do you try to comfort others first?"

"... ..!"

Seongjin felt his heart sink at Seonghwang's point.

Are you heartbroken? I?

'no. But my father will definitely have a solution. 'You're my father, right?'

Seongjin believed in Seonghwang, and he also believed in his own premonition.

'My Auror is back. I can see that. I won't have to wait too long, I'm sure I'll be able to use Aurors again like before.'

But it was a really strange thing.

Despite such a strong premonition, what slowly came over me was a greater sense of loss than I expected.

It feels like I'm running hard and the goal suddenly disappears before my eyes. I feel like the toy I was playing with was helplessly taken away.

Seongjin once again realized how much he enjoyed training as an Auror.

"I am... .."

I was mumbling in an unfamiliar mood, but Seonghwang looked at Seongjin for a moment and then continued speaking.

"I'm sure you didn't know deep down that it would lead to this result. So, I guess I tried to learn as many things as possible during the little time left."

okay.

When I think about it now, it seemed a bit strangely reckless. He was calmly learning how to use Aurors by urging Logan next to the demon species.

But at that time, Seongjin clearly knew. If it's not now, there won't be a chance for a while.

"And there must be a reason why you brought out that fire. So what can I do? In the end, if you decide to do it, I can only help you make it happen."

"... .."

"Don't be too disappointed. Although the hellfire has completely merged with your aura, there is nothing that cannot be eradicated with a long period of time. "That's why, instead of blocking all the passageways, I left some space."

Scrub.

Seonghwang added, shaking Seongjin's hair as he kept his mouth shut.

"Remember, son. There is nothing wrong with you. If there's anyone to blame, it's just that they put you in this situation... .."

He didn't continue talking, but Seongjin suddenly came to his senses after hearing what he was saying.

Oh no, now is not the time for me to feel this down.

It's a new feeling, but this guy really has a lot in common with Logan. Especially when you dig so deeply into the ground for something that is not your fault.

"father! Absolutely not! This incident is my... ..!"

But Seongjin could not finish speaking. This is because Seonghwang covered his eyes and lightly scolded him.

"Shh, when you wake up and try to move, the aurors will continue to move, following your intentions. "Then your fever will rise again, so it's better to sleep some more now."

Tuk.

With Takbam losing a lot of strength, Seongjin's consciousness sank helplessly again.

-Have a nice dream for a little while.

It was as if I heard a faint voice in my ear.

* * *

[Wow! I really can't do this!]

Seongjin internally became suspicious.

'Wait a minute, didn't you say it was a good dream?'

However, the first thing Seongjin heard in that 'good' dream was Lord Martha's angry lament.

[What do you think, Your Majesty Logan? It happens like this every time, every time. Isn't it really too much for His Majesty Mores to do?]

... Lord Masaine?

Yes, Lord Masain was standing before his eyes now.

It was strange that he looked a little younger than usual, but even so, Seongjin could immediately recognize him as his loyal bodyguard.

[I understand everything, brother Masain. Brother, you did your best.]

And next to him, Logan, who also looked strangely small, was patting his shoulder.

[Was it because I lacked resolve? I promised myself that if I had to, this time I would use this sword without asking for help... ..]

[No, it is absolutely not your fault.]

Pat pat.

'... What is this?'

Seongjin blinked blankly at the unimaginable sight.

Seongjin was standing on a picturesque field.

Clouds like cotton candy float in the deep blue sky. Colorful blooming flowers sway dizzily on the evenly spread green carpet.

This childishly gorgeous feast of natural colors.

'... Gather together, friends?'

Naturally, I couldn't help but think of the evil infant skin from Pangea Chronicles.

'Is this the 'good' dream, father?'

This appears to be a temporary flame level created by Seonghwang. Although he didn't hear any particular explanation, Seongjin could somehow intuitively feel that fact.

'Should I call this fatherly, sending my soul to another dimension just to get some rest...?'

Well, whether it's blowing away souls or creating a temporary resting place, it's all good.

however...

'How on earth did you decide on the target age?'

Seongjin couldn't help but be taken aback.

No, father. How long will I be a child to you? yes?

[Wow! I really can't do this!]

At that time, a familiar lament was heard from somewhere in front of me. When I turned my head, the blond-haired knight that Seongjin saw every day was in tears.

[It happens like this every time. Isn't it really too much for His Majesty Mores to do?]

'... Lord Masaine?'

Seeing that he is wearing a neat royal guard uniform, he is indeed Lord Masaine.

Nevertheless, the reason Seongjin was not immediately sure of his identity was because Lord Masain looked much younger than usual.

Instead of his face getting more and more stained day by day due to Seongjin's troubles, Lord Masain somehow looks like a youthful youth. Now, he was pouring out the anger he had been holding in towards Logan.

[I understand everything, brother Masain. Brother, you did your best.]

And the sight of Logan patting him next to him was even more spectacular.

Although he was dressed neatly in his usual Holy Knights uniform, he had the appearance of a small child who could have been in kindergarten.

If it weren't for his unique aura and drooping blue eyes, Seongjin probably would never have recognized Logan.

'... What is this?'

Seongjin was embarrassed.

It certainly feels like Sir Martha and Logan are the two people. Why are you acting like that?

[Isn't it because that's the image that I'm most familiar with when they're together?]

[Baion, which is closest to the physical body, sometimes changes depending on memory and unconsciousness.]

The answer came from an unexpected place.

When I looked up, I saw two small bead-like things circling around Seongjin's head at different speeds.

[Oh, don't you know? Bion is one of the three elements that make up the soul.]

[The theory of the three elements of the soul is only Granius's claim.]

The theory of three elements of the soul?

While he was puzzled by the sudden sound, two beads came closer to Seongjin and conveyed his thoughts again.

[In our view, it is more appropriate to define the soul in terms of the two elements Aeon and Bion.]

The blue bead moved as if it was jumping and swirled around Seongjin's face.

[The reason Dacion was included there was purely due to Granius' political circumstances.]

On the other hand, the pink beads fall at a leisurely pace and settle gently on Seongjin's shoulder.

And the two beads burst into laughter at the same time.

[This is a temporary barrier made by Seonghwang's father!]

[It's a small play area where you'll forget everything when you wake up.]

[Are you surprised, Mores?]

[Are you surprised, Mores?]

The feeling conveyed in the voice is clearly the two people he knows, right?

Seongjin spoke the names that came to mind in an uncertain voice.

[...] Herna? Kadesh?]

[...] ... !?]

However, the two beads' reaction to Seongjin's name was very enthusiastic. At first, the two shook their head as if they were surprised, but then suddenly they started pouring out a lot of noisy thoughts.

[Wow! Are you finally recognizing us?]

[know? We were always by your side.]

[We were a little worried about you too.]

[Of course, I wasn't overly worried.]

No matter how I looked at that unique way of speaking, it was clear that they were twins.

[But why did this change happen today?]

[I guess it's because Dad, His Majesty, sent me in an awakened state.]

[So now, can Mores recognize us even if we go out at night?]

[You said the name, right? Probably enough cause and effect has been created to remember.]

Seongjin asked, trying to ignore his wild thoughts.

[Baion... Even so. Why are these two not even human?]

Then, as if they had been waiting, cheerful answers came back.

[That's right, we came here not by Bion, but by using a properly separated soul terminal.]

[Thanks to this, other people think it's just a dream and forget about it, but we can remain conscious.]

[Even if you are not a successful father, we can always come here by ourselves.]

[Of course, since it was created by my father, His Majesty, permission is required.]

Through the thoughts of the twins' soul terminals, Seongjin learned that Sir Martha and Logan were also flown here by Seonghwang's hand.

[My brother, Masain, was in quite critical condition due to severe erosion.]

[Nevertheless, he insisted until the end not to take a break.]

It is said that in the end, the lesser Seonghwang had no choice but to put Lord Masain to sleep. By creating a dream dimension and forcibly blowing away souls.

[Where is that? Amelia was like that too.]

[It was the same with Brother Logan and Sisley.]

Seongjin was convinced.

Ah, somehow. Even after talking with Seonghwang for a long time, the two cheerful people did not wake up at all.

[Seonghwang's father has created this level several times in the past.]

[It was mainly like that when Brother Owen was around. He used to have severe nightmares.]

Of course, if the repeated process of forcibly separating one's soul is repeated, it will take a huge toll on the body and mind. So, it is a method that is not used very often.

[But the playground looks quite different from before?]

[It looks like something has changed in the image in your father's imagination.]

[It's so colorful that it feels strange.]

[Have you read any new children's books?]

... Well, somehow I think I know what my father was referencing.

Anyway, after adjusting to some extent, Seongjin was able to leisurely look around with the twin soul terminals attached.

Appropriately called a playground, this place had everything prepared for children.

On one side, a fairly generous table of refreshments is set out, and in the shallow pond, small boats float that a child can sail alone.

There was also a large tent with cute toys such as wooden horses and dolls scattered around.

Then, Seongjin came across a strange sight. The sight of large mushrooms huddled together on one side of the field, all spewing strong wind into the sky.

'... 'What is that again?'

Mushroom stalks as large as human torsos were wriggling and spewing air upward as if they were pumping from the ground.

Hwiing- Hooong-

Small white spores flew with the strong wind.

[It's booming.]

[huh. It's booming.]

... Boom? what is that?

But soon, Seongjin learned what the mushrooms really were. Logan, who had been soothing Sir Martha for a while, led him straight to that place.

[How determined have I been until now to never again hand over Misra into the small hands of Mores... ..!]

[Brother Masain. Please calm down.]

[But it's bad. I feel like I'm dying and coming back to life several times a day these days! I'm an Auror user and all, and if I keep going like this, I really don't think I'll get kicked out!]

[I know how you feel, brother. Now, come this way. If you cheer together, you will feel much better.]

The two people climbed up the mushroom, and soon began to soar into the sky, riding the wind. Isn't this how it alternates between rising and falling several times?

'... ... '

Seongjin looked at them with a puzzled expression.

No, let alone Logan. Sir Martha, what is that man doing now, not even worthy of his age?

[hmm. Because this is just a dream.]

[Because it's just what the soul subconsciously wants.]

[If you ask the cause, it is because of Mores.]

[okay. As it turns out, it's all Mores' fault.]

[Be careful, Mores!]

[Be careful, Mores!]

The excuse for the two ended up being a criticism towards Seongjin.

[Uh, okay, okay. I am reflecting.]

Seongjin roughly separated the twins who were running wild and turned his attention to another part of the playground.

'Anyway, this means that your sister and Sisley are here too, right?'

Seongjin slowly walked through the sunny field with the intention of looking for them as well.

A landscape that feels unrealistic, as if it were a dream.

Is it because of my mood? As I am doing this, the feeling of loss from losing my Auror seems to be relieving a little... ..

Then, Seongjin encountered an unexpected person.

[Hahahaha!]

'... 'Owen?'

okay. That's definitely Owen.

She looked much younger than when we met her in the Pangea Chronicle, but her long, bronze-colored hair still flowed untidy.

He was running around the field energetically, wondering where he got that energy from. Even carrying a much smaller Sisley on his shoulders!

[Hahaha! I really missed you, Sisley! Our baby, our youngest!]

[Brother, I am not a baby anymore!]

[ha ha ha! What are you talking about? Is it still this small?]

[That's just because my brother is big... ah! There's a cute rabbit over there!]

[okay? Shall I chase after you?]

Doo doo doo doo!

Seongjin, who was watching the two people speeding away, slowly touched his forehead.

'Oh, I'm confused. This is really just a dream.'

It was right then.

[Why are you so lethargic, Mores?]

A clear voice that resonates like a song.

I looked back with a strange feeling of déjà vu, and there was a cute girl standing there wearing a flowing dress.

Rich rosy hair blowing in the wind.

[sister... ... ?]

She had the appearance of a small girl who seemed to be ten years old, but with that neat and glamorous aura, it could not have been anyone else.

Seongjin let out a laugh.

[...] I never thought I would see a sister who looks younger than me.]

Then little Amelia tilted her head.

[What do you mean, Mores? He's younger than you?]

[yes?]

[I am your older sister. So it's natural that I'm more mature than you, right?]

[...] ... ?]

Seongjin blinked his eyes.

uh? Now that I think about it, since when did my standards become this low?

When I looked at my body in confusion, I realized that he really had the body of a small child.

Small sleeves with luxurious buttons, and small hands sticking out from underneath them.

[...] ... ?!]

What is this again?

As Seongjin was groping in confusion, the twins next to him did not miss the opportunity and started chirping.

[This is the appropriate age that the unconscious feels.]

[In other words, it can be said to be your true mental age.]

[Everyone knows, so there's nothing to be embarrassed about, Mores.]

[Because it is a clearly visible and undeniable truth, Mores.]

Shut up, you demons!

If you think about it, this is the world of my father's imagination. So this can't really be my mental age!

This is all my father's perception, that is, his fault!

Seongjin, who was very upset, waved his hands wildly to catch the annoying terminals.

[Come here, you guys! Can't you come here?]

Why are you so rude to me in the first place? Wow, it just worked out! Today, my brother will fix your messy hair in one go!

Then the twins burst out laughing at the same time, flying around to avoid him, as if they were playing hide and seek.

[Kyahahaha! Mores idiot!]

These immature kids are just having fun.

These guys! Do you think I'm having fun right now? uh?

[Haha, what are you doing now, Mores?]

Amelia, who was looking at that scene with round eyes, eventually came over with a faint smile on her face.

[sister... ..]

[Don't lose your strength and come here, Mores.]

A small, delicate hand clasping an absurdly young hand.

What was conveyed there was a warmth that little by little filled my heart that was empty due to loss.

[There is an interesting looking pond over there. Would you like to go boating with me?]

"your majesty... .."

Katrina, who entered the office for a post-mortem report, stopped in shock at the sight of a somewhat unfamiliar figure.

Eyes with a strange silver glow.

On a face that appears expressionless at first glance, there is something that could definitely be called a smile, although it is faint.

Katrina intuitively realized this.

'You are looking at your children now.'

The loyal knight commander felt his heart ache.

'Your Majesty's rest will always be by your children's side, but now you can't even take care of them as you wish!'

Although he is now the father of many children, he was still a young prince in Katrina's eyes.

The boy she cherished the most in the world, whom she had looked after since childhood.

"Good job, Katrina. "Report."

That was why he hesitated for a moment even though Seonghwang's words urged him to do so.

"your majesty."

Katrina soon came to her senses, and instead of reporting, she turned to him with a determined face.

"We will do our best to confiscate the remaining homunculus right now. "I don't know where Justin hid it, but he certainly couldn't have gone far beyond the ecliptic."

"... Katrina."

"So, please keep the homunculus always by your side, Maures, and forget your worries. If that is not possible, first of all, let's consider bringing in Sir Sharon as a resident knight... .."

"You can't do that, Katrina."

Katrina raised her head at the calm voice that cut her off. Then she immediately felt a shock that made her heart sink.

Seonghwang was smiling at Katrina.

In the past, when he was young, he made the same expression he always showed every time he left Empress Bethsheba's room.

"You can't watch Mores like that."

"... .."

"I know the consequences, but I still can't do it."

It was the face of someone who had long ago recognized the things he had to give up and calmly accepted them.

"Before Balthazar's troops arrived on the scene, some of the demonic energy flowing from the demon species was observed spreading throughout the countryside."

Leandros' hoarse voice echoes through the quiet office.

Katrina stood next to Seonghwang and quietly listened to his voice.

"Magi is attracted to stronger demon energy. Therefore, I instructed the exorcists not to hastily attempt to purify it, but rather to track the whereabouts of the demonic energy."

Thanks to the activities of Prince Mores and Prince Logan, the demon species was trapped in one place and tied to the scene for a long time. Thanks to this, even though such a huge amount of magical energy was generated, there was almost no additional damage caused by it.

However, the sacred barrier spread out in a semicircle was never perfect, and some demonic energy was scattered without being able to contain it.

"This is all I have to report. "Please do so."

Then, as if he had been waiting, Seonghwang immediately gave instructions to Leandros.

"Send an investigation team to the last place where demonic energy was confirmed. Since Katrina is here at the moment, it would be better to cooperate with the Knights of Saint Aurelion."

Katrina could sense that strange attitude.

'Your Majesty already knew. 'It was already in your sights and in Maurice's plans!'

Prince Mores did not lose his magic energy due to lack of strength. Perhaps even this was all intentionally planned by the prince?

Katrina, who had been supporting the success for a long time, naturally had no choice but to reach that conclusion.

And what supported that guess was the voice of a young man suddenly heard from the entrance.

"Coincidentally, there were seeds of another demon species hidden there. "Our Arenja has already accurately tracked the location, so Your Majesty, please do not worry any further."

A short young man with a black hood covering his face enters the office. Then Seonghwang, whose expression had not changed until then, visibly frowned.

"... "Rebekah."

Katrina and Leandros also naturally turned their gaze towards him.

Rebekah.

The head of Arenja, a secret organization directly subordinate to Seonghwang.

Thanks to their unique method of creating and communicating with soul terminals, Katrina and Leandros also rarely witnessed Arrangja's true nature in person.

This may be because their caution has grown to the point of paranoia after experiencing a crisis that almost led to the annihilation of their clan by the Inquisitors several years ago.

In any case, they are currently hiding deep in the basement of the imperial palace and rarely show up. Sometimes, only their leader, Rebekah, uses external agents on her behalf to maintain necessary communication.

"Rebekah? "Seeing as their presence has completely changed, it looks like they brought in a new external agent."

In response to Leander's point, the young man simply smiled and lowered his head.

Judging from the appearance of the subordinate who had not yet lost his fur, it appears that the spokesperson appointed this time was younger than expected.

"It's been a while since I've seen the two leaders 'in person' like this."

"Forget the boring jokes. "You always hesitate, saying that cause and effect are not enough, and then suddenly, what are you doing here again?"

An unusually blunt question came out of Katrina's mouth. She is sensitive to Seonghwang's mood and often reflects his mood without even realizing it.

However, Rebekah did not pay attention to her fierce attitude and maintained a relaxed attitude throughout.

"There is nothing to worry about, Director Katrina. The cause and effect for the search has already been filled. "Then, even if Rebekah reveals the secret a little early, the outcome will not be much different."

After responding like that, Rebekah slowly approached the Holy Emperor and bowed her head deeply.

"Thanks to Prince Mores' hard work, we have been able to uncover all of the Sower's long-standing arrangements, Your Majesty. "Isn't this clearly because the Lord takes pity on Delcross?"

"... .."

"So, if you give us permission, we [Arenja] will lead the paladins to that location without a hitch on behalf of Your Majesty."

Rebekah's attitude was extremely polite. However, Seonghwang's eyes were so dark as he looked down at him that he felt a chill.

"... "Since that child doesn't do what you want, now you're trying to attack others yourself."

The young man, who had hit the nail on the head, trembles slightly.

No matter how sly the leader of Arranger was, he would not have dared to maintain a shameless attitude in front of the Holy Emperor who saw everything.

Seonghwang, who was looking down at him coldly, raised the corners of his mouth and added,

"I allow it."

"... Duke Hwang... "I do."

"One Rebekah."

Rebekah naturally raised her head at the calm name. And in that moment, I was completely overwhelmed.

Right there, the essence of the clan he had longed for his entire life, the oracle's wondrous gaze.

"The imperial palace is a fence that protects you Kornsi, but at the same time it is a prison you cannot escape. "We must not forget that fact even for a moment."

"... .."

"Do you understand?"

When Rebekah, who was pale, hurriedly bowed her head -

"Once the report is over, you can leave now. "The child's fever is rising again."

A cold spirit of congratulations fell on my head.

[Wow, I missed this taste! I don't know how long it's been since I've had such sweet snacks.]

In response to Owen's exclamation, Seongjin did not miss the opportunity and attacked him.

[Then you will come home quickly, what are you procrastinating about now?]

Then Owen looked at Seongjin with a strange expression.

[Well, I have some things to organize, newbie. What would happen if the prince, who is holding the center of the battle line, leaves his seat on his own accord?]

[...]]

Perhaps unconsciously feeling familiar, Owen sometimes called Seongjin a newbie. Of course, it seems like he doesn't feel much discomfort.

[But why are you berating me, telling me to come back, not even Sisley? I hate you.]

[okay. Sorry, idiot.]

[What an idiot! Newbie, you always tend to look at me too funny! look. Even now, I'm much, much more mature than you!]

Oh, that's why I'm an idiot.

Seongjin snorted and turned his attention to the tea table.

They had been running around the playground a while ago, and now they were sitting at the tea table in groups of twos and threes chatting.

This is a new dimension where the sense of time is dull. A cool breeze always blew comfortably, and the sun shining down from the sky was still warm.

[By the way, Mores.]

While I was sipping Melbourne at just the right temperature, Amelia turned to Seongjin and asked.

[There was something I was curious about earlier. What on earth is that cloth that you keep so precious to?]

Only then did Seongjin take a closer look at his outfit.

'I didn't pay much attention to it because I thought it was just a dream... .. '

As she said, Seongjin was now wearing a strange cloth around his neck. A shabby, worn-out piece of fabric that doesn't go well with luxurious clothes.

Feeling a strange sense of déjà vu, Seongjin unravels the red cloth, and the children's eyes all focus on it.

'This?'

There was a picture of a man holding a sword and a huge dinosaur engraved on it.

[...] Rex?]

Seongjin blinked.

Wait a minute, what is this? Why is there a Tyrannosaurus engraved on Delcross' items?

[Rex? What is that, Mores?]

Amelia asks Seongjin with sparkling curiosity.

[Uh, that's... ..]

Seongjin hesitated for a moment, but then obediently answered her.

Well, how about it? This is all a dream.

You probably won't even remember this conversation.

[This is Tyrannosaurus Rex. It's a dinosaur.]

[dinosaur?]

[It is an ancient creature that once lived on a place called Earth, but is now extinct.]

[okay?]

Amelia tilted her head.

[To me, it just looks like a picture of a king and a fierce dragon.]

[yes?]

Surprised, Seongjin took a closer look at the cloth again.

"This is a dragon?"

No, that can't be possible, sister.

Look at its large head, ungainly paws, and vicious-looking teeth. No matter how you look at it, this is a Tyrannosaurus rex!

[Ah, Rex. It's been a really long time.]

But suddenly, Logan suddenly joins in and says this.

[Looking at it again, it still leaves a harsh impression. Couldn't it have been made a little nicer to engrave?]

[Uh, wait a minute!]

Seongjin was shocked.

[Logan, how do you know about the Cretaceous dinosaurs that lived on Earth?]

Then Logan looked at Seongjin again, as if he was puzzled.

[How do you know? You gave that dragon a fancy name, right? I always called him Rex, Rex.]

[I?]

[then.]

[...]]

Seongjin was staring at the cloth blankly, lost for words, while Logan quietly whispered as if he were telling a big secret.

[Do you know that, sister? Mores always said this when he was young. He said that when he grows up, he will become a giant Rex.]

[...] I? Did you really say that?]

Seongjin was very embarrassed.

Of course, at one point in my childhood, I had a grand dream of becoming a Tyrannosaurus.

But wasn't that the time when he lived on Earth?

[okay? Our Mores has had a special dream since he was young.]

For some reason, Amelia looked at Seongjin with a proud face. I can't quite figure out what part she's so proud of.

[But don't you usually dream of becoming a dragon-slaying warrior like His Majesty the First Emperor? Why did Brother Mores want to become an evil dragon?]

Sisley also looked intently at the decorative cloth and stroked the dragon wrigglingly with his small hand.

Uh, do you understand? I don't remember anything at all?

[...] He said it was because he was the strongest.]

It was Sir Martha who answered those words.

[When I was young, my Majesty always said that being strong is on the side of justice. So he said he was willing to become an evil dragon and crush all enemies in front of him.]

Wow, Mores as a child... No, I was a pretty extreme person.

[From then on, I had to take good care of him. My emotional education is so lacking...]

Lord Masain, who had finally calmed down, bursts into tears again. Then little Logan looked back at Seongjin with a reproachful expression.

what? why? what?

No, why is everyone talking about dark history that people don't even remember?

Of course, there were people who took the meaning completely differently.

[...] cool.]

Little Amelia held both hands and looked deeply moved.

[The strongest thing is justice... . How wonderful is this sentence?]

... yes?

[I can feel the spirit of a warrior who purely pursues strength. Or, it could be a symbol of the resolute will to push through any stigma for the sake of the goal.]

[...] ... !?]

[You can think about it this way too.]

A bright blue light suddenly passed through the girl's clear gray eyes.

[Strong revenge. It is no different from the word justice. How can there be such a beautiful sentence? Mores, you are amazing as expected!]

Seongjin was the flagship.

No, sister! Please don't develop your tastes in middle school to that level!

[It's okay, Mores.]

[Don't worry, Mores.]

The twins circled around Seongjin and offered words of comfort.

[Not everyone will remember what happened here.]

[Because everyone will think they just had a pleasant dream.]

[Of course, it will leave a deep impression on Amelia's subconscious.]

[Even though you completely destroyed Amelia's subconscious.]

Seongjin, who could no longer bear it, had no choice but to lose his temper.

Ah, you guys!

Comfort or tease, just do one thing, okay?

A playground in a dream that seemed to stay the same forever.

Time passed there without exception, and eventually dark night arrived.

[Look over there, Mores. This is Belluna and her children in the night sky.]

Amelia looked somewhat emotional as she pointed at the numerous stars that seemed to be shining brightly.

[When I was young, I used to sleep in the field alone with my father, His Majesty, looking at the night sky. It's a very nostalgic memory.]

It probably didn't really happen. Because when my sister was young, her real father was not by her side.

'It's probably the story of the dream I had while hugging Lee Seong-gi in the attic.'

But instead of reminding Amelia of the truth, Seongjin just responded like this.

[What do you miss? Even now, if I put my mind to it, I can look at the night sky with my father whenever I want.]

How about visiting the main palace late at night sometime? I know because I've done it a few times.

Perhaps your father will welcome you as happily as usual even if you visit in the middle of the night?

As she added that, Amelia smiled brightly at Seongjin. Her cheeks, flushed with joy, glowed white in the bright moonlight.

[Hehe. okay. You are right, Mores.]

Meanwhile, a large bonfire was burning in the middle of the playground. Although no one had ever lit it, it was a bonfire that appeared naturally sometime ago.

And around the fire, the soft bedding began to fall into place one by one.

[I guess Dad Seonghwang has finally decided to wake us up.]

[It's worth it. Because it is now morning in Delcross.]

The twin soul terminals circled the bonfire at different speeds and explained.

[If you fall asleep here now, everyone will wake up in reality.]

[There will be no memories of playing here, only happy memories.]

[Get rid of all your hard work, Mores.]

[So that only stability and peace remain in your mind.]

... I see

Seongjin looked at the children crawling into their bedding as if they had made a promise.

Is this the end of the dream? It's a bit of a shame that I don't remember this warm time.

However, when all the children fell asleep, Seongjin was the last to lie down.

Aren't the soul terminals of Herna and Kadesh slowly coming to either side of Seongjin, one after another? Then he whispered a huge secret into his ear.

[You know what, Mores? The puppeteer is now in Cyprus.]

[If this continues, Brother Logan and Sisley will meet him soon.]

[That's why we've been worried so much, Mores.]

[Of course, you probably decided it would be okay.]

[...] what?]

It's a sobering sound.

Seongjin jumped up from his seat and shouted.

[for a moment! Did you guys know the whereabouts of the puppeteer? Why are you telling me that now?!]

[That's it... ..]

The soul terminals that appeared before Pororong Seongjin's eyes were shaking as if they were a little embarrassed.

[Mores already knew anyway?]

[How do I keep forgetting myself every time?]

[I can't guarantee this time either.]

[huh. I might forget again.]

You know, but forget it? What is that?

[Besides, Seonghwang's father is not the only one who worries about cause and effect.]

[okay. The more you know, the more limitations there are.]

[Rebekah will definitely be annoying too.]

[Rebekah interferes unnecessarily.]

Rebekah, it was a name I hadn't heard in quite some time.

Thanks to this, it took Seongjin some time to remember him.

[...] So what now? Why are you telling me that now?]

[Because you might remember us from now on.]

[okay. Because you called our name correctly earlier.]

Blue and pink soul beads blinked with irregular light as if disturbed.

[Strictly speaking, this is not the Delcross dimension, so there is a bit of freedom.]

[huh. This is a world that will disappear as soon as you open your eyes, so some causal imbalance will disappear.]

[So, I decided to take this opportunity to have an adventure at least once.]

[How far can you go against cause and effect and protect your memories?]

[Oh, isn't it? Exactly, it is not a matter of how much memory you protect, but rather a question of how much you will allow.]

[Right. We have no way of guessing by what standard you are judging all of this.]

Cause and effect, and memory...

Seongjin looked down at his ridiculously small hands for a moment and answered without realizing it.

[There are no special standards. I just roughly know the consequences.]

Then the twins flinched as if they were surprised, and then burst into laughter at the same time.

[look! It's always like this! Mores is really sneaky!]

Make a lot of noise, you devils!

Who is sneaky? Do you think you can have any idea of the hardships I carry around the world?

Seongjin lay down on the road with a sullen face. Then the twins settle down on either side of the pillow and chirp.

[You mean the result is the problem? Then isn't there something to look forward to this time?]

[huh. Even if he remembered everything anyway, Mores wouldn't be able to do anything.]

[what? Why is that?]

To Seongjin's question, a cheerful answer immediately came back.

[That's right, because Mores is not allowed to go out!]

[Yes, because you are absolutely not allowed to go out for a while.]

[Thanks to this, cause and effect are not disrupted!]

[Yes, no accidents will occur for the time being.]

Uh, that might be a little tricky.

After thinking that for the last time, Seongjin looked at the children breathing evenly for a moment and then slowly closed his eyes.

Immediately with a snapping sound, I felt like something was being washed clean from my mind.

Okay, it's like this again.

I didn't expect much.

[...] Sniff, sniff.]

And the first thing Seongjin heard when he came to his senses was a small whimper that echoed in his head.

'... 'Demon King?'

[...] Seongjin Lee? Lee Seong-jin!]

The Demon King, who was startled, immediately started whispering quietly.

[Are you okay, Seongjin Lee? The fire of Gehenna came over the passage, and I thought you would surely die like this!]

'Uh, okay. It's okay now.'

I can't help it.

You were there too, so you know it well, right? My father has already seen everything.

[Why don't you just nod! Is this a problem that can be overlooked? The inferno of hell has completely assimilated into your Auror! Now there's no way to get rid of it forever! Now maybe it's a good thing!]

hmm.

Seongjin, who had nothing to say in response, kept his mouth shut. Then the devil started whimpering again.

[Sniff! I guess I thought of something wrong. I wasn't meant to stay here. If I had left for Gehenna at that time, would the outcome have been any different?]

well. Even if things had changed, it wouldn't be the devil's fault. Wasn't it Seongjin who encouraged him to stay here?

Moreover, according to what my father said, it seems that no matter what the outcome is, I am the one who decided it.

But for some reason, the demon lord was wrapped in an unusually deep sense of guilt.

[It shouldn't have happened like this... Sniff!]

'... ..'

But since when has this guy been crying alone? The day was already brightly bright.

[Sniff, slurp.]

'Oh, I'm fine! So, stop dropping Cheongseung now!'

Seongjin, who couldn't see the guy looking so discouraged, scolded him for no reason. If you leave her alone, she will cry all day.

I've thought about it before, but isn't this guy who was said to be a demon lord of one dimension crying too often?

'Come on, stop! If you don't feel any better, just exercise like before.'

[Sniff. Okay. That would be good.]

Boom, boom, boom.

Soon, a figure was felt frantically wandering around the edge of the flame crystal, and its cries gradually began to subside.

Only then did Seongjin feel a little relieved and blankly looked around the brightened room.

Blink.

At that time, Amelia, who was lying next to him, must have felt Seongjin tossing and turning, and slowly opened her eyes.

Between the fluttering eyelashes, the gentle gray eyes, as always, gently curve.

"Hello, Mores."

The touching reunion of the brothers and sisters was short-lived.

In an instant, Seongjin was surrounded by everyone who became energetic and heard a lot of nagging.

"Mores! I already told you to respect your body! "You even promised me that you would never jump into a dangerous place again!"

"That's right, Amelia. "Please say something harsh to His Majesty Mores!"

"It's no use, brother Masain. Even if I give advice, it is rarely listened to."

"Brother Mores. Do you know how worried everyone was? "Brother, you need to reflect more deeply."

"uh..."

Seongjin suddenly felt very wronged.

No, am I the only one brought here with an injury? Logan was also very dangerous, right? What about Sir Martha?

"It was all to protect you!"

Seongjin, who was struck by Amelia, quickly erased his defiance and calmly lowered his gaze.

"Think of your father, your Majesty, and the people of the Seonghwang family who will be very worried if you get hurt. Do you understand, Mores? Your body is no longer yours alone. Always keep in mind that not only the Seonghwang family, but all the subjects of Delcross look up to you and cherish you!"

Amelia's scolding was harsher than ever.

Why not? Because she had already heard clearly about Seongjin's atrocities from Lord Masain.

-In a critical situation where life is at stake, wouldn't it be better to pull out all the aurors and protect the wolfdog? How can you do this?

-... Brother Masain.

-Anyone with Aurors reflexively protects themselves in the face of danger. But when you look at Mores, it's as if he doesn't care about his own well-being!

In fact, Amelia had already experienced such behavior from Mores.

In a rain of arrows, hadn't there been a time when he had neglected his own safety and put all his strength into her just for her sake?

At the time, I didn't really know what Mores had done. But now that she had some understanding of Auror training, she could be sure.

The person who caught Amelia falling from a distance was probably the materialized Auror of Mores.

At that time, Mores poured all of his Auras at Amelia without leaving even a handful of them, and performed a feat that would have been impossible at his level at the time.

And the result was a miserable death, pierced by numerous arrows.

Strongly-

Amelia sighed softly, soothing her aching heart again.

"okay. But because you were that kind of kid... .."

"... yes?"

Scrunch.

While I was confused by the hand gently stroking my hair, Amelia stood up with a somewhat determined look on her face.

"So, in order to prevent something like this from happening again in the future, we, the Seonghwang family, need to increase our strength even more."

"... ..?"

"Everyone, please keep an eye on Mores. I still have work to do. "I have to report to the Crusade and attend the funeral of the Countess of Bathurst."

Since this was an accident near the imperial capital, it would be better for others to see a member of the royal family show up.

Then Logan stood up from his hesitation and said.

"Ah, sister. If that's the case, I... .."

However, he was immediately stopped by Amelia.

"Logan. "Please rest here quietly today."

"yes? sister. but... .."

"It is also the duty of both of us to get proper rest. "You still don't know what a great thing you did yesterday."

Hearing her majestic voice, Logan sat back down without saying anything.

"So, show off that you worked a little harder. We need to show this to everyone in Delcross, not to mention the crusade. "Because they both deserve it."

Then Sisley stood up along with Amelia.

"I'll come back for a bit too. Because I promised my brother that I would never neglect my knighthood training. "I will quickly become stronger and never again allow my brothers to do dangerous things."

The little boy then added that he would accompany the Knights of St. Grazier to relief work in the afternoon.

"Relief work?"

"huh. Although you have become a knight of Saint Marsyas, your status as a saint is still stronger, right? So, as a saint, she must properly take care of the people of Bathurst Territory."

They were people who experienced a huge disaster such as the sudden appearance of a large demon species.

Although it is said that there were almost no actual casualties, it was little Sisley who knew better than anyone else the effectiveness of such show-like slogans.

With a long history of volunteer work and a track record of comforting the public, she is probably the most successful person.

"It's not just Brother Mores. It is still too early for the two to make a move. So, stay here forever and receive His Majesty's treatment for a while longer."

From what I heard, when they were brought to the imperial palace, Logan and Lord Martha were in terrible condition.

Sir Martha was in a life-threatening situation due to erosion all over his body, and Logan also lost consciousness for a while due to excessive exertion of his divine power.

After receiving the divine power of the Holy Emperor, the two of them had a good night's sleep as soon as they woke up.

"... "Just at night?"

"huh. "It's my first time seeing His Majesty look so scared."

Sisley nodded and continued.

"This is probably the first time Brother Logan has been hit. "Is this the first time you've been in trouble?"

"and..."

When Seongjin looks back at Logan with disbelieving eyes, he touches his forehead shyly.

"Was it really true?"

"... huh."

"You are a sword master. "Even you couldn't avoid the night?"

"Well, Abama drank it. Not only was there no life at all, but it was so fast that there was no time to reflexively move..."

Logan, who had spoken up to that point, quietly trailed off.

"Plus, for some reason, I felt like I shouldn't avoid it. "Abamamama's momentum at that time was so great that I can't explain it in words."

Oh, indeed.

In the face of your father's anger, whether you are a Sword Master or not, you are nothing.

When the cloth blocking the entrance was opened, a bright beam of light poured into the dark center of the tent.

"Lowering."

Owen slowly opened his eyes at the sound of a soft voice calling him.

"... Alicia?"

"Yes, it is me."

"Is it morning already?"

"Yes, sir. You have to hurry. "Isn't today the day when the Great Tribal Council of Barça is held?"

Thanksgiving Day!

Owen suddenly came to his senses and jumped up from the bed.

"Alicia. "When did I fall asleep?"

"When I brought you dinner last night, you were already sleeping in bed."

"... okay?"

Owen frowned.

Isn't this really strange? I wasn't that tired yesterday, but I couldn't remember anything before going to bed.

I remember laying out a map of the South and thinking about various things about the Great Tribal Council until late at night.

Even on the map, there are black rabbit eye patches that have been removed.

'Sleeping without an eye patch, I'm out of my mind. Should I consider myself lucky that I didn't have a nightmare?'

Fortunately, the condition is not that bad. I don't remember, but I think I had a pretty happy dream.

Owen ran his fingers through his messy hair and opened the quest window out of habit. Recently, it was a valuable quest that not only motivated him but also energized his life.

[Special Quest? Let's go back to the ecliptic!]

[Quest Grade: E]

[The goddess who rules one dimension received a special request from someone and collected the essence of all things in one place. Thanks to that invisible effort, you were able to obtain the 'Ultimate Elixir' easier than you thought. It goes without saying that precious things always have a valuable use. Now you must return to the ecliptic and find someone to gift this item to.]

[Reward: 30 P Cash]

[*This product is available in the Pangea Chronicle store window.]

The ultimate elixir.

An ultra-rare item that not only heals all status abnormalities and permanently increases abilities, but also restores players who have received a death penalty.

That item was the reason Owen logged on to Pangea Chronicle every day.

At first, Sang Tae-chang was unfriendly and only gave me a quest to get this and didn't teach me any specific methods.

Thanks to this, Owen was overcome with frustration, wondering if he would never be able to return to the imperial capital if things continued like this.

Fortunately, I received an ice heart from a cute newbie I recently dated, so I was able to obtain the quest item easier than I thought.

'But I have to go to the imperial capital and give this elixir to someone... ..'

Owen's eyes deepened as he looked at the quest window.

Finally returning to the ecliptic, the joy is short-lived. The more I think about the contents of the quest, the more I worry and question it.

'Why do you need this item?'

If there are people in the imperial capital who are worthy of giving and receiving gifts, they are all people from the imperial capital, including the Holy Emperor.

However, most of them either already possess strong divine power, or are people who can immediately receive help from that divine power.

'Furthermore, like all the quests so far, this quest is also likely to be related to the main stream.'

Thanks to the enthusiastic quest to return to the imperial capital in a hurry, the main stream, which had recently made steady progress, was already approaching the final quest.

[Main Stream 2? Progress rate 87%]

Perhaps, if we can successfully bring about stability on the front line at today's Great Tribal Council, we can expect Main Stream 2 to be completed as is.

And the next main stream to be done is... ..

[Main Stream 3? Save Castle ☐!]

Of course, this means that the 'Ultimate Elixir' is used here, right?

But who am I supposed to save? Is this really a quest to save a saint? Please make sure nothing dangerous happens to little Sisley.

"Lowering. "I'll be late."

"Ah, yes."

Owen, who had been lost in his thoughts, suddenly came to his senses.

"Let's go right now. But how are Bartoza's preparations?"

Then a faint sneer passed across Alicia's face.

"Do you think it would be cool? For the past few days, I have been restless like a dog with its tail on fire. "I don't know, but I probably didn't sleep a wink last night."

Purma's Bartoja.

He is a treacherous traitor who was sent by Karazhan's chieftain, Wakana Tusai, to assassinate Owen.

-You go. Go and tell Wakana Tusai. If you want to embroil all Barsha tribes in war, then do whatever you want.

Immediately after foiling his plot, Owen sent him back to warn Karazhan.

However, Bartoza, who had thought he would just get away with it, showed a very unexpected appearance. He instantly fell flat and expressed his intention of complete submission to his enemy, Owen.

-I, Bartoza of Purma, deeply admire the warrior Owen's bravery and generosity!

-... what?

-So, I will entrust the future of our clan to you, a great warrior. As we just saw their wicked plan, there are now more and more shameless cowards in Barça who have forgotten their pride as warriors. Barça is becoming increasingly corrupt!

Is this something the guy who was the key figure in that 'evil plan' would say? Besides, who are you to leave the future of Barça to Delcross?

Owen, dumbfounded, exchanged glances with Alicia.

'what? this guy?'

'well. 'I think you're crazy because you're scared, sir.'

Owen didn't know it, but in fact, Bartoja was saying exactly the same thing he had shouted in front of Wakana Tusai not long ago.

-This Bartoja, together with Owen of Delcross, who is called the warrior of [Invincibility], will try to reform the corrupting tribes of Barsha! So please accept me as your confidant! Give me another chance to take up arms by your side!

The bastard groveled towards Owen in such a servile manner that it would be appropriate to say he was beating his tail.

They must have calculated that if they ran away to any part of Barça's land, they would die without a move. So, it would be better to stick with Owen, Barça's old enemy.

'What can they use a guy like this for? The guy who betrayed Purma and Karazhan, there's nothing he can't betray, right?'

Of course, at first Owen had no intention of accepting him.

That is, until I heard Bartoja's next words.

-The upcoming Great Tribal Meeting! Please allow me to be there with you! Then, I will be there willingly to testify to the whole world about the atrocities of Wakana Tusai!

-... ... !

Owen felt himself come to his senses.

What is the biggest obstacle to stabilizing the front line right now? Isn't this the warlike tribal leader Wakana Tusai?

Even so, I was thinking of putting pressure on Wakana Tusai at this Great Tribal Council by presenting the poisonous sting as evidence.

However, if only he could secure witnesses to support this and ultimately give control of the meeting to the friendly Volanta tribe!

'Stabilizing the front line even for a moment is not a dream. If that happens, I can head to the imperial capital with a slightly more relaxed mind!'

That's how Owen and Bartosa waited for Thanksgiving with different hearts.

"Oh, Bartóza! "You're already ready."

Owen, who had finished arming himself and was walking towards the wooden fence, ran into Bartosa, who was looking slavishly at the entrance.

As the time came to face the fearsome Wakana Tusai, his complexion was becoming haggard by the day.

"I have high expectations for you, Bartoza. "Please testify at the Great Tribal Council with the proud attitude of a warrior."

When Owen greeted him warmly, Bartoza hurriedly averted his gaze and rolled his eyes.

Despite his sturdy size and rugged appearance, he was a truly amazing guy, perhaps because the more you look at him like that, the more subtle he seems.

"I hope things will work out well."

"The Lord will look down upon you, sir."

"Anyway, I have to hand over a big burden to you, Alicia."

When I got on my horse and hinted at my apology, the escort knight replied with a light bow.

"No, sir. "It's what I should do."

Owen decided to leave behind the escort knight who was always by his side at the front during this trip to the Imperial Capital.

It was something that could not be helped. On the southern front, Alicia's reputation had long since gone beyond that of a simple prince's bodyguard.

Perhaps she would be enough of a deterrent to hold up the front line while Owen was away.

Alicia was also clearly aware of that, so she probably obediently accepted Owen's order to stay.

"Instead, when I get back to the front, I'll give you a long vacation right away, Alicia."

"That's it, sir. "Please just buy me some sweet food from the imperial capital."

Alicia's eyes, which had been replying lightly, suddenly sparkled seriously.

"You must not let down your guard even for a moment, sir. Wakana Tusai, you never know how the old fox will shake up his chieftains."

We have already secured evidence and witnesses for the assassination plot.

However, Wakana Tusai was not an easy opponent. Although he has the reputation of being the strongest warrior in Barça, he never lets down his guard and is quick-witted, which makes him worthy of the nickname "Old Fox."

Haven't Owen also been victimized by her several times so far?

"hmm."

But there was silence for a moment.

Owen clenched and unclenched his fist and grinned, showing his teeth.

"Well, is it because I haven't slept well in a while? How do I feel reassured? "No matter what happens today, I don't think I'll ever lose to her, Alicia."

"... .."

"do not worry. "I'll come back after achieving the right results."

Alicia looked up at Owen in a new mood.

It seems like only yesterday when he was a young boy, but now he is by all accounts the trustworthy first prince of the empire.

Balthazar was once renowned as an undefeated general on the southern front. The name of [Invincible] is often used as a modifier for Owen, who has not yet reached his contract.

Alicia put her hand on her chest and bowed her head politely towards her prince.

"Yes, sir. "Who would dare doubt that?"

It was only for a moment that I woke up from a peaceful dream and seemed to be in a stable state.

Soon, Seongjin could hardly leave the temporary treatment room due to the high fever that rose all the time.

A fever not caused by an illness, but purely due to a change in the nature of the Auror. Therefore, not only the doctor's medicine but also the priests' treatment was of no use.

Only when the Holy Emperor leaves everything aside and rushes in and pours out enormous divine power is the fever finally brought down and the condition stabilized.

Thanks to this, whenever Seonghwang had to leave the office even for a moment to do work, Masain would get very anxious and wander around the direction of the office.

"Sir, isn't your fever rising again? "I will bring your Majesty here right now!"

"Calm down, Sir Martha. "If it's your father, you went there just a moment ago."

Success is a man with a lot of success in construction. He couldn't continue to sit by Seongjin's side and suppress his auras and senses forever.

Seongjin also did not want that kind of care. Having all of your auras and senses suppressed by others was the same as having not only your small movements but even your breathing being controlled.

I just ignored it when I didn't know about it, but when I realized it, it was so frustrating that it wasn't something a person could endure.

So, as a self-rescue measure, Seongjin attempted to tie up the Aurors.

"Try to hold on as long as you can without moving the auror!"

But that strategy was of little use.

Aura is a power that occurs naturally in living creatures and is closer to the source of life.

Therefore, no matter how much you try to completely exclude it, it has no choice but to constantly linger within your body, even if only slightly, and the hellish fire naturally assimilated there will run rampant from time to time to burn down Seongjin.

[...] Sniff, sniff.]

And every time that happened, I would hear the demon lord whimpering again and again in my head.

"Keuung, it's Sakshin...""

Seongjin, who was tossing and turning, let out a moan like an old man without realizing it.

I didn't know about it because I haven't had any diseases since I became a hunter, but fever is not something to be taken lightly. There is no part of her body that does not hurt.

[Sniff! Seongjin Lee. I am...]

Then, I heard the demon lord's whimpers in my head.

'It's getting more and more embarrassing...'

Not only is he a problem, but the demon lord's condition has been very strange lately.

Are you intimidated because it is the main palace filled with divine power? For some reason, he's talking less and less, and he seems to be getting more and more depressed.

As he was anxiously assessing the Demon Lord's condition, Masain was surprised again by how he perceived his troubled expression.

"Lowering. Are you sick again? "Hurry and lie down!"

"Uh, it's okay. By the way, Lord Martha, isn't it past time for lunch now?"

"... yes?"

"Could you give some to the chef? I really want to eat bear meat today..."

Then the color gradually drained from Masain's face.

"just now... "You vomited all the watery soup you had for lunch, what are you talking about?!"

"huh? Did you throw up? When did I... ... ?"

"omg! You are talking nonsense again with a high fever! lawmaker! lawmaker!"

"... "Huh?"

Now that I think about it, it feels like things are spinning in front of my eyes?

"Mores!"

Fortunately, each time, Seonghwang recognized Seongjin as if he were a ghost and came to visit Seongjin. Sometimes, people would come running to me with documents in their hands that they were processing in a hurry.

Wow-

After bathing in the waterfall of divine power, your body will feel refreshed and your mind will become clear.

Every time that happened, I felt sorry for Seonghwang again.

'Why should I be a nuisance to an already busy man?'

When Seongjin was being treated like that, Logan and Sir Martha, who were by his side, were also often baptized with divine power. The king treated them as critically ill patients and ordered them to stay in a temporary treatment room.

Logan and Masaine looked very sorry each time.

"Abama. I'm fine now, so let's get back to work..."

Unable to bear it any longer, Logan attempted a small deviation -

"Logan."

"Yes, Abama."

"Which member of the imperial palace dared to tell you nonsense about your condition being fine?"

"yes? that... .."

"... .."

"that... .."

In the end, Logan couldn't bear it for long as Seonghwang's gaze was staring at him, and he immediately gave up.

"... "I was wrong."

"okay. "If only I knew."

Wow-

While Logan faced the pouring divine power with a resigned face, Seongjin was feeling fortunate inwardly.

It was good to have colleagues fighting the disease together. There was no need to spend time alone boringly, and sometimes it was fun to make fun of them.

"I want to train... .."

Nevertheless, as he continued to be confined to the temporary treatment room, Seongjin's feeling of frustration gradually increased. In particular, her biggest stress was that she could not practice as she wanted.

Masain, unable to see Seongjin who was so discouraged, spoke as if to comfort him.

"Don't be impatient, sir. "Can't you think of continuing to practice Auror binding for a while?"

"It was too easy to bind Aurors in the first place. "The training is not working."

When Seongjin responds sullenly, Logan, who was meditating next to him, secretly notices.

"But living with an Auror tied up can be a great help in at least increasing your basic strength."

"muscular strength?"

"Yes, it is."

People who become Aurors early will naturally have Auras in their muscles from an early age. As a result, there are not many opportunities to train strength itself.

'Now that I think about it, that's true.'

Just looking at my father and Logan, they don't have particularly prominent muscles.

On the other hand, what about Lord Martha, who became an Auror late in life? Even for a knight, he's quite sturdy.

'Maybe it's worth a try... . The reason Sir Masaine's sword strikes are much fiercer than those of other imperial knights is not just because he is skilled in using Aurors.'

Obviously strength will help in some way.

good night. Now that this has happened, let's increase our strength!

"But even if you work hard to build muscle, won't it go back to square one when the Aurors come back?"

At least that was according to Seongjin's common sense. Unless adequate protein is supplied and the load is consistently maintained, muscle volume will not be maintained intact.

However, there was a fact that he overlooked: this was Delcross, not Earth.

"Once an Auror user develops muscles, of course they remain intact. "I have an Auror who keeps my body in top condition at all times, so what are you worried about?"

"... ..!"

Seongjin opened his mouth wide.

and! This place in Delcross must be a paradise for hell spears!

In the end, my strength training ended in a miserable failure.

As Seongjin tied up the Auror and began to move his body, the frequency of his fever also significantly increased.

If you think about it, it was a natural result. The more you move your body, the more active your auror will be.

[Sniff, slurp. What should I do... ..]

This guy is doing it again.

I had to hurry and appease him, but it was really difficult because I couldn't give him everything he liked.

"Lowering. Are you awake? "If you're thirsty, can I bring you a drink?"

Edith's worried voice came from nearby.

"no it's okay."

"Then I'll put a wet towel on you."

Soon I feel a hand wiping my forehead with a damp towel. I felt that it was somehow unfamiliar and yet nostalgic.

Come to think of it, when I first came here, Empress Lizabeth would often clean my face like this.

"Mother... .."

How is Empress Elizabeth doing now?

Should I ask Dasha when she comes? Now it's time for her to show the results of the research she asked her to do.

Seongjin blinked hard to overcome the pouring sleep. But, slowly, someone's small voices began to sound in his ears.

[There is no sign of it fading away, right? I think there is a limit to how low the temperature can be lowered even with the power of a prosperous father.]

[This is a fire that never goes away. That's its unique property. It is the power that dominates the dimension.]

[Is it related to red?]

[Yes, red is also a problem.]

[Mores, what should we do now?]

[Mores, I feel so sorry.]

Uh, they're twins. These guys are still here.

As Seongjin struggled to pretend to understand, their voices suddenly became lively.

[Wow, Mores! Will you remember us now?]

[Is that true, Mores? really? Really?]

Of course it is.

There won't be another guy in the world with such an annoying way of talking.

[Good. Listen, Mores! In our opinion, it's probably red... .. !]

Seongjin dismissed the voices of the guys talking at the same time with just one word.

That guy is done. Because it has nothing to do with this matter.

[but...]

It ended up going better than that. listen. There's already a place I want to go with you guys right now...

When Seongjin thought that far, a cool thought suddenly sounded from above his head.

[Stop doing nonsense and stay calm in the palace, son.]

Oh my. I guess I heard it.

Wow-

Feeling the familiar divine power pouring over his head again, Seongjin fell into a deep sleep.

Even while I was sleeping, my fever rose and fell frequently.

Seongjin, who would occasionally toss and turn in discomfort, would only regain stability after a burst of divine power poured over his head.

While going through light and deep sleep repeatedly, Seongjin had so many dreams that it was difficult to remember them all.

Most of them disappeared into oblivion as soon as we recognized them, but there were some dreams that left a vivid impression as if we were experiencing them in reality.

One of them was the memory of a familiar woman screaming towards him. An old memory, probably belonging to young Mores.

-You shouldn't have been born like this!

In the messy room, a very disheveled woman glared at Seongjin and cried.

-You ruined all my dreams! How on earth am I supposed to live from now on?

Strongly-

The red gaze glaring at him pierces deep into my heart like a dagger slicing through my lungs.

-I should have looked more like my father than I do now! How can it be that I resemble the person I hate the most in the world? How could you do that!?

Feeling his eyes getting hot, Seongjin let out a frustrated breath.

But, oh my.

The person you are talking about... ..

"... Sarani, is that possible?"

"Of course it is. "I don't dare say empty words."

"But as you know, Sir... .."

"What is the use of what we are talking about right now? So, first of all, when you wake up, couldn't you ask me about your intentions?"

Seongjin slowly came to his senses at the annoying voice that sounded like scraping metal.

When I turned my head, Masain was standing at the entrance to the treatment room, talking with someone with a serious look on his face.

"... Sir Masain. "Who came?"

At Seongjin's question, Masain flinched and turned around. At the same time, the visitor who had been hidden by his body appeared and politely bowed to Seongjin.

"Meeting with His Majesty Mores."

Lord Leandros. The leader of the exorcists who exudes a gloomy aura like a dry old tree.

Seongjin slowly got up from the bed, looking at his dark, strangely red eyes.

'What's going on here all of a sudden?'

Even now that his senses were duller than usual, Seongjin still felt something foreign about him, just like the last time they met.

"We apologize for disturbing your rest. "I came here because I had to ask your permission."

"allow?"

"Yes, I will soon be leaving for the western region under Your Majesty's orders. So, if I don't hurry up now, I don't think I will have time to handle the matter anymore, so I had no choice but to be rude to you."

The story Sir Leander told next was surprising.

He had asked Seongjin to officially join the Knights of St. Terbachia.

Seongjin was dumbfounded.

"Paladin? I?"

I don't even have an ounce of divine power, so what on earth can I do?

However, Sir Leandros, who actually made such an incredible statement, had a calm expression.

"You have already proven your ability to destroy evil. In addition, at a young age, he possessed a force that surpasses that of the imperial knights, and isn't he still improving rapidly every day? So how could I not seek your help?"

"hmm..."

"Therefore, the Knights of Saint Terbachia requests that you act as a member of the Holy Knights, not just as an advisor to the Monster Task Force."

Seongjin soon grasped the situation and secretly winked at Lord Masain.

'Don't the others know yet?'

Then Sir Masain nods his head as if he is embarrassed.

'Yes, I don't know.'

'Right.'

Seongjin rested his chin and was deep in thought.

Maybe it's natural. There is no way the prince could openly announce that he has lost his Auror user abilities.

It is clear that the position of the 3rd prince, who has only just begun to gain a reputation, will collapse at once, and it may even lead to doubts about the omnipotence of God's representative.

However, Leandros, who felt the subtle air current flowing between Seongjin and Masain, added as if he was a little nervous.

"Please reconsider positively. "If you wish, I can promise you an adjutant-level position in our knights, just like Sisley, who recently joined the Knights of St. Marsyas."

'Oh, that's right?'

As soon as the judgment was over, the answer came out right away.

"I will!"

"Also, the exorcists' active cooperation in your work afterwards... yes?"

"I do. Isn't this an excellent way for me and the Knights of St. Terbachia to coexist? "That was really well thought out, Sir Leander."

"... .."

Then Sir Leander's expression became shocked.

As the prince is known to value personal training time, it was thought that it would take quite a bit of persuasion to burden him with tasks other than the monster task force.

However, Sir Leander soon regained his composure and bowed his head in silence.

"Thank you for your decision. "Then, since you have given permission, I will prepare for Leandros's honor to join your team without any problems."

Startle-

Then Logan, who had been quietly listening next to him, looked back at Seongjin in great confusion.

The leader of one of the five Holy Knights of the Empire put his own honor on the line. That weight will never be light.

However, if it were revealed to the world that the prince he helped join could no longer use Aurors... ... !

'Uh-huh!'

But before Logan could open his mouth, Seongjin opened his eyes wide.

Don't disturb me, Logan.

Since ancient times, health insurance is only valid if you get it before you are diagnosed with cancer!

They say they have come on their own and are giving me enormous public power, so what fool in the world would refuse that? huh?

366. The Return of the Prodigal Son (1)

Asein Grand Duke's family has several outbuildings.

As the richest and most powerful person on the continent, most of them boasted large scale and splendid architectural styles, but there were some outbuildings that were incongruously simple and small.

This was due to the taste of some guests who wanted a unique atmosphere, but since not many people visited, there were some outbuildings that were completely forgotten and neglected.

Now, an elderly woman wearing a stealth suit was walking in the courtyard of the abandoned outbuilding.

Her small, grey-white hair contrasted with the black stealth suit might have looked quite peculiar, but strangely enough, none of the employees noticed her presence.

A maid walking carrying laundry, a servant trimming the garden trees, and even a guard guarding the entrance to the outbuilding.

While no one was aware of her presence and was busy with her work, the woman leisurely passed through the entrance of the mansion and headed to the stairs to the second floor where the bedrooms were located.

She had just reached the empress's room.

Wow!

Following the sound of a harsh slap, a fierce woman's scream rang out.

"What are you doing! "Didn't I tell you time and time again not to mess with my things?"

"So, I'm sorry, Mama Hwangbi! I'm just trying to clean up the trash on the floor... ..!"

"How dare you do something I didn't ask you to do?!"

Thump thump!

The nervous sound of kicking the floor over and over again, unable to overcome my temper.

"dare! "How dare you call my things trash?"

"No, that's not it... .."

"Other than that, what is it? "If you have a mouth, say something!"

"main... "I have committed a mortal sin, Queen Mother!"

As the woman entered the room, she saw Empress Lizabeth in her nightgown, furiously losing her temper towards one of the maids.

The sudden lightning strike caused the maid to crawl on the floor, not knowing what to do.

"You've lost your mind! Is that all you ask for? "If my things get damaged because of you, then how can you compensate me?"

"Well, I just touched it! Nothing was broken, so please forgive me... ..",

"profit! I don't even want to look at you! "Can't you turn it off right now?!"

In front of Lizabeth, who was fuming, the maid crawled on all fours and quickly ran out of the room.

'Hmm... ..'

As the woman looked around the room, a letter crumpled on one side of the floor caught her eye.

The handwriting written on it is round and childlike.

-mother. I returned safely from my work at Sigismund Range. There were many interesting things that happened there, and I will tell you more about them when we return to the Imperial Capital.

Oh, and since I don't know when he will come, I'm sending a souvenir of the trip along with the letter.

It was a letter from Prince Mores. This is something she knows well because she personally delivered it to her empress.

And next to it, small trinkets that the prince said were enclosed were thrown side by side.

'The maid must have thought it was trash because she threw it on the floor.'

That wasn't the only thing rolling around on the floor.

Rolling around by the bedside was a half-burnt wooden sculpture. That too was sent by Prince Mores as a souvenir.

The burn marks from setting fire to that thing were still faintly visible on the empress's hand.

'If you ruined it so badly, why did you bother to bring it all the way here...? ... '

Moreover, after bringing it with him, he just threw it on the floor again. Although she assisted her for a long time, the Empress's arbitrary judgment was something she was unaware of.

"... .."

Empress Elizabeth stood alone for a moment to let off steam, but soon slumped down in an armchair with a sullen expression on her face.

Roughly combed messy platinum-blond hair and a loose-fitting nightgown. When we think of the always perfect and gorgeous empress seen in the imperial palace, it may be difficult to imagine what she would normally look like.

However, to the woman, the current empress seemed extremely comfortable, like a mouse hiding in the shade she was most familiar with.

"Lisabeth."

When he called her softly, the empress flinched and looked back at her informant.

Because he had been killing all traces until just now, he had not noticed the woman's presence at all.

"... "No. 4?"

"yes. That's me. "I brought it because a letter has just arrived from the imperial palace."

Then Empress Lizabeth asked with a slightly softened face.

"Correspondence? "From His Majesty?"

"This is a letter from Princess Amelia."

"okay?"

The Empress nodded and accepted the letter from No. 4.

Empress Lizabeth is naturally aloof from her parents, the Archduke Asean, and does not have a very close relationship with any of the royal family members.

Nevertheless, strangely enough, letters were sent to the empress every day asking about her personal well-being.

About half of them were sent by the Emperor, and in addition, the kind Empress Melody and the affectionate Princess Amelia regularly sent letters to her.

Empress Lizabeth, as if she deep down hated it, kept them piled up in her mailbox without replying. And when she is bored, she makes it a pastime to look through her letters.

-Lizabeth Oh my.

The imperial palace garden, which was green and green until yesterday, was colored with a pale sunset color in just one day, just like it originally was.

It's a day when I realize how long Momma has been away from the imperial palace...

As always, a friendly greeting that begins with beautiful handwriting.

Although there was no lengthy rhetoric like other social letters, the princess's letters always showed her own meticulous attention to detail.

Princess Amelia then calmly described various news about the royal family. Among them, the biggest part was definitely the news from Prince Mores.

-... Recently, there was a huge event in the ecliptic. Now, the subjects are loudly praising Mores, calling him the second coming of Saint Bastian...

A demon species that appeared near the ecliptic.

What a great performance Prince Mores did against that bastard, and how much the subjects of the imperial capital praise him for it.

In the sentences that described all these situations in detail, the pride that Princess Amelia felt was clearly conveyed.

-... Orthodox priests are no exception to this atmosphere. Perhaps, like Sisley, there are some who argue that Mores should also be canonized as a saint's apostle.

Considering that the Orthodox Church has often shown a blasphemous and suspicious attitude toward the Mores, recent changes cannot help but be very encouraging...

Lizabeth, who had read up to that point, burst into laughter without realizing it.

Apostle of saints? Who?

This may be something that this innocent princess can only say because she cannot even guess what it is.

Amelia's bragging about her younger brother, under the guise of delivering the news, ended like this.

-... LIZABETH Oh my. There is something I really want to tell you.

Do you know what? Recently, Mores occasionally calls me Mama Mama in his sleep. That proud child has bravely endured all suffering and never says a weak word in front of us.

However, while going back and forth between high fever and high fever, that fleeting moment when the boundary of strong will is broken down. The child would call out to his mother as if he were barely allowed to breathe.

When I see Mores like that, it breaks my heart. So, Elizabeth. For the sake of that child, couldn't she return to the ecliptic a little earlier than scheduled?

After reading up to that point, Elizabeth closed the letter and put it into the mailbox.

"... "The princess is talking nonsense."

"Since you are such a kind person, you must be worrying too much about the prince."

"joy."

The Empress snorted at Number 4's words, but did not particularly refute them.

Princess Amelia was clearly the child of the Holy Emperor, but Number 4 was always amazed by the strangely lenient attitude of the empress and empresses towards her.

"What are you going to do? Your Majesty has been asking about Elizabeth every day lately. So, returning to the imperial capital at this point... .."

But the Empress leaned her head on the armchair and spoke firmly.

"hate."

"... .."

"I still don't like it. "Everything is just annoying now."

Lizabeth turned her head and looked at the mailbox on the table.

Since she came here, a steady stream of letters has been pouring in, and before she knows it, the large mailbox is almost overflowing.

But why? Even though she was surrounded by warm letters asking how she was doing, Lizabeth felt extremely lonely.

A dark and soggy feeling of anxiety that only you feel in the world.

-I understand very well that you feel anxious about everything that is not immediately visible to you.

Seonghwang always said this to Lizabeth.

-But Lizabeth. Sometimes miracles come to us so boldly. So, can't you think that those unexpected events may sometimes be a gift from God, given with care?

That calm voice sounded so kind that there was a time when I wanted to truly believe those words.

but-

'I already knew for a long time. Preparation is never God's responsibility. What happened to us was just someone's prank, not a miracle from God or anything... ..'

As Lizabeth's face darkened, No. 4 paused for a moment and then opened his mouth.

"Here is the letter, Lizabeth. "I will sort it out now."

"... .."

After confirming that the Empress was not reacting in any way, No. 4 carefully picked up the crumpled letter on the floor and slipped it under the mailbox.

"This ended so abruptly."

Seongjin clicked his tongue as he received the Holy Knight ordination letter and lieutenant appointment letter that were delivered to him within a few days.

There were no special conditions required for him to join the Knights of St. Terbachia.

The only thing that matters is permission from Seonghwang.

The question that Seonghwang, who was silent for a moment after hearing Leandros' report, was only pure Seongjin's doctor.

"... "Did you want to do it?"

Yes, of course. It's public power!

When Seongjin nodded vigorously, Seonghwang immediately called the other Holy Knight leaders and cardinals to the temporary treatment room.

Then, he said a simple word to those people who entered the room with a puzzled expression.

"Everyone is here, so that's it. "Go ahead, Lord Leandros."

"yes? "Your Majesty, what is this now?"

Those who were called had to go back on the spot with puzzled faces.

"Father, why are they?"

"They have just entered the Holy Knight Ordination Ceremony."

"... yes?"

It turned out that there was a rule that three or more high-ranking priests and two or more leaders of the Holy Knights were present at the Holy Knight ordination ceremony.

After a hasty investiture ceremony, the joining process proceeded smoothly. Thanks to this, that evening, there was no one in the imperial capital who did not know that the 3rd prince had joined the Holy Knights.

"Congratulations on your appointment."

If anything, even Dasha, who stopped by that evening, would have greeted me like this.

"Oh! Dasha. "When did you come?"

Seongjin greeted the informant who suddenly appeared in the middle of the treatment room with a curious face. She hadn't noticed her presence for the first time.

"This is a really clever stealth technique, Dasha. Is this how everyone greets informants?"

Then, instead of being happy, Dasha looked somewhat confused.

"Your condition is still not fully recovered. "Are you feeling well, sir?"

"yes I'm fine."

"I'm glad you said that. At that time, I couldn't be of any help to you... .."

Dasha, uncharacteristically, trailed off and made a dark expression.

If you think about it, when he was confronting the demon species, Seongjin kept feeling her presence nearby.

It was probably frustrating for her too. She said the prince was in danger and the situation was becoming increasingly urgent, but she couldn't have done anything because she couldn't show herself right away.

"Now I have these doubts. I wonder if my existence is really of any use to you... .."

Dasha used to laugh cheerfully at No. 19, who used to say such things, but recently, she also often gets caught up in such gloomy thoughts.

Seongjin was very embarrassed.

Wow, Dasha. Don't do that. Didn't you say that the most important factor in concealing Aurors is [faith]?

"are you okay. Believe in yourself, Dasha!"

"yes... .."

"Or believe in me who believes in Dasha! "I always think Dasha is the best source of information in Delcross!"

"Thank you very much. "But I am weaker than you, and even my Auror concealment skills are far behind, aren't I?"

"huh? "Isn't that obvious?"

"... .."

And that day.

The results of the investigation that Seongjin heard from Dasha were incredible.

"... "Infertility treatment?"

"Yes, sir."

Dasha nodded and added with a slightly heavy expression.

"Empress Lizabeth has continuously received infertility treatment from the Archduchess Asean's doctor since she was young."

367. The Return of the Prodigal Son (2)

There were more difficulties than expected in investigating Empress Lizabeth.

Surrounding her were great informants whom the Emperor had attached for her safety, and Grand Duke Asin was also monitoring the Empress with numerous secret agents.

It is almost impossible to conduct an investigation without the eyes of such people. So it is said that Dasha had no choice but to ask for cooperation from one of the empress's informants.

"There is one legendary senior who is still active. "When I told them that there was a request from you, they willingly cooperated."

The Empress's childhood was nothing special.

Lizabeth Assin was born as the youngest of the four sons and four daughters of Grand Duke Assin. Although she was not particularly outstanding among the archduke's children, she grew up in her mansion, receiving a proper education like any other noble girl.

Unlike now, when he was young, he was not a very sociable person, so he rarely went out of the mansion. Also, he was known to have a weak body, so he lived with his doctor and took medicine from a young age?

As a result, I decided to investigate Galen, the old doctor who had been in charge of the Empress since she was a baby.

"Although Galen was already dead, we were able to obtain the medical records remaining in the mansion and find out what treatment the Empress received at the time."

Surprisingly, the doctor at the time was treating young Lizabeth for infertility.

It is said that along with numerous medicinal herbs known to be good for pregnancy, they made a decoction of dried pig uterus and took it regularly.

'... sterility? Empress Lizabeth?'

Shocked for a moment.

This question immediately appeared in Seongjin's mind.

'Infertility treatment from a young age? How on earth did you diagnose something like that?'

To be honest, Seongjin did not believe in the medical science of this world. Isn't this a crazy world where perfume is sprayed on plague patients and bloodletting is applied to trauma patients?

Moreover, isn't the diagnosis of female infertility quite difficult even in modern times?

If you think about it from a common sense point of view, it is true. First of all, if you don't have children for several years after getting married, you can go to the hospital and start getting various tests.

But how is it possible to diagnose infertility from a young age when there are no secondary sexual characteristics?

'Besides, the empress is me... You gave birth to Mores, right? If so, isn't it ultimately infertility?'

Even if Empress Lizabeth was truly infertile, there was no way that the level of medicine in this world could treat such a thing.

Seongjin asked after coming to a tentative conclusion.

"who is this? That bastard named Galen. "Where on earth did he learn medicine to make such an idiotic diagnosis?"

In this way, Seongjin received Galen's entire medical notes from

Dasha.

It flutters.

As I flipped through the notes, I saw notes that roughly scribbled the symptoms the Empress had and the corresponding prescriptions. It was the worst handwriting of all, but for some reason, Seongjin had no difficulty deciphering the imperial languages.

-The other princesses were all born healthy and began practicing building Auror layers on their danjeon from a young age. However, Miss Elizabeth is said to have been unable to learn the exercises because her height was unusually short and her frame was thin, perhaps because the Grand Duchess gave birth prematurely.

Therefore, Grand Duke Asin, who was concerned about his daughter's health, visited me, the most skilled of the members of the Plague Society at the time, and asked him to take charge of the treatment of Lady Elizabeth.

And Dasha, who was standing next to Seongjin, suddenly saw something like a faint light passing through his eyes.

'... 'Is it an illusion?'

She was puzzled for a moment, but when she confirmed that there was no abnormality in the prince's condition, she immediately shifted her gaze to the note he was holding in his hand.

According to records, Galen was a member of the Plague Society of Kshantra. At the time, it appeared to be a fairly radical plague group whose activities centered around Asin.

"Is Danchen still active today?"

Naturally, that question arose.

Regarding the plague society he was sponsoring, Seongjin once ordered an investigation into all the famous plague societies active on the continent. But I had never heard of a place called the Kshantra Plague Society.

"I'm not active right now, sir. There was a controversy over them as heretics, and they were all tried and burned at the stake several years ago. "At that time, all records related to them were burned, so it is almost a miracle that these medical notes still survive."

"hmm."

In Seongjin's opinion, any plague society was barbaric, but it is said that the Kshantra Plague Society was a talented school that practiced quite unconventional treatments at the time.

Thanks to this, a man named Galen also displayed an excellent ability to detect the Aura activity of the human body and use it for diagnosis.

-Compared to other princesses, Lady Elizabeth's auror, especially on her abdomen, was noticeably weaker. Her stomach is full of cold energy, which prevents her from digesting food well and prevents her from waking up early in the morning. This is a common symptom seen in infertile women.

Seongjin furrowed his brows slightly.

No, since I didn't practice Aura, of course my Dantian's Aura would be weak. You just detected the auror activity level, and now you're saying some bullshit?

-This is probably because the uterine energy is weak and liver function is stagnant, resulting in congestion. This is undoubtedly a symptom of infertility.

Ah, Bethelah. Dear Lord. Unfortunately, the precious young lady of the Asein family suffers from infertility.

The diagnosis made through a process of absurd reasoning was, as expected, extremely disastrous.

for a moment. But, Bethelah?

"This... "Isn't this a holy name mainly used by the Dark Church?"

Seongjin still remembered. Belinda, the now-dead Bishop of the Penitent Parish, once recited this name while talking to Seongjin.

Also, what was Leonard like?

- Bethelah.

Didn't Rohan's unlucky swallow son also greet Seongjin like this at first?

-Do you know that? Forgotten brothers of old await your command.

At some point, Seongjin had an intuition that Leonard had some kind of relationship with the Dark Church. That's why, even though he keeps sending me letters asking me to meet him, I've been completely ignoring him.

"Yes, it is. "It is now completely gone, but until a few years ago, an active underground sect used to use this name widely."

Dasha nodded and answered Seongjin's question.

"But even so, it is not clear whether Galen was really a heretic."

"Why is that so?"

"At the time he was active, the underground religious sects were not yet labeled as heretics. It was not that long ago that His Majesty the Current Emperor named the underground cult the [Dark Church] and completely expelled it. So, at that time, the subjects often used this name simply as praise to the Lord, regardless of whether they were Orthodox or underground denominations."

Hmm.

Although something felt unclear, Seongjin didn't question it and quickly turned through the notes.

- The patient was fed boiled ramus fruit to help relieve the cold in the abdomen naturally. However, the more she had diarrhea, the more Lisabeth did not get better and only became thinner. Perhaps it was because the young lady's body was too weak to withstand the treatment.

Hey, by inducing diarrhea, the person must have become increasingly dehydrated and weak. What did this bastard do to an innocent child?

-So I soon decided to change my treatment policy. It was prescribed to take angelica root, cinnamon bark, and dried pig's uterus. Also, do not use regular perfume, but always be close to the scent of bulbous plants that contain geothermal energy...

Fluttering.

While flipping through those ridiculous records, a thought suddenly occurred to Seongjin.

'Ever since I was young, oh... Empress Elizabeth has been receiving such nonsense treatment. Then, whether or not she was infertile, it is likely that she at least firmly believed that she was infertile, right?

Then, almost to the last page, there was a phrase that suddenly caught Seongjin's eye.

-Why is treatment so slow even though all methods have been tried? Perhaps this is because God arranged it to be this way in advance.

The fact that a flame breaks out in the bitter cold and grass grows in the desert is a miracle made possible because death himself breathed his breath into it. For this to happen, the ground must first be extremely cold and extremely dry.

Seongjin blinked.

"uh... ... ?"

wait for a sec.

what? Haven't I heard this somewhere?

'So, I think it was probably meant to be something like this.'

Grief kindles a flame in the bitter cold, sowing cultivates crops in the desert, and rest takes its own breath...

Beep-

Suddenly, I heard tinnitus in my ears and lost consciousness.

"... Lowering? "Why are you doing this?"

When Seongjin put down the note and stumbled, Dasha, who was startled, hurriedly helped him up and asked.

However, in Seongjin's ears, her voice had already gone far enough to be beyond the range of recognition.

Instead, what fills the auditory nerve is the sound of someone's heart growing louder along with the intense heat.

thud! thud! thud!

And it was the cheers of a crowd full of joy, vividly revived from oblivion.

- Rejoice! And worship!

-The baby is [prepared] for the glory of the church!

It was a long-standing nightmare that I had forgotten about for some time.

'Oh, that's right. Something like that happened once...'

That day, Seongjin was sitting on a high altar, wrapped in a black robe.

And a group of people wearing the same black robes were shedding tears at Seongjin and at the same time bursting into laughter.

-You who are prepared! Apostle of the Lord!

-Ah, now the time has come!

-Free from long-term oppression, the underground cult will flourish once again!

Those who know that there is no end to the suffering of the soul, and that the salvation they await is still far away, but they are relieved that others can never reach salvation, and they only shout out prayers that have no answer.

What else can describe the complex and intense emotions on their faces other than the word 'madness'?

Seongjin looked at those fanatics and felt both infinite pity and deep fear.

-okay. The long-awaited time has finally arrived!

And [him] was there too. The damned Archbishop of Rest who planned and executed this entire mess.

The archbishop, who was standing upright next to the altar and watching all this, looked directly into Seongjin's eyes and curled the corners of his mouth with confidence.

-Look! His preparations are not over yet!

No, not yet.

Tap, tap, tap.

Seongjin thought as he hastily turned his gaze away from the archbishop who was slowly approaching him.

'It's not time yet! 'You shouldn't look at the author now!'

The Archbishop of Rest will surely remain somewhere in one's memory.

Trying not to recognize his face, Seongjin urgently closed his eyes and thought to himself.

'hurry! somehow! If I don't escape this nightmare right now... .. !'

[Mores!]

At that very moment, he heard an urgent thought calling out to him from somewhere.

It was the same as that day, but it was the voice of salvation that Seongjin had always subconsciously been eagerly waiting for, which he could not bear to respond to at the time.

'... father?'

It was the moment when Seongjin reflexively responded to that voice.

Shoot ah-

With the powerful divine power pouring down like a waterfall, I soon felt the nightmare getting farther away.

A black altar stained with blood and the eerie sight of fanatics worshipping it. And even the appearance of the archbishop who stubbornly did not take his eyes off Seongjin.

All those memories soon disappeared beyond recognition, but Seongjin did not feel regretful about them at all this time.

"Mores, are you okay?"

Sensing the heat slowly subsiding, Seongjin blinked and opened his eyes.

As expected, there was a magnificent sight before his eyes.

When I met his calm gray eyes as usual, for some reason I felt an absolute sense of relief.

Phew.

Seongjin let out a breath he had been holding for some time and looked around.

Then, his eyes caught the image of Dasha, looking pale and clinging to one side of the room.

"Stand, stand, Your Majesty!"

Dasha, who could not escape from the sudden appearance of the crowd, was frozen, not knowing what to do.

"Huh, how? Where suddenly? "I definitely didn't feel any sign of anyone around here?"

ah.

Seongjin looked at her with a slightly pitiful gaze.

There's nothing strange, Dasha. My father wouldn't have moved from his office next to him even for a moment.

Maybe it was because you were hovering nearby, looking for an opportunity, that he completely erased your presence so that you could come in comfortably?

But Dasha's suffering did not end there.

"Hey!"

Quang!

Lord Martha rushed into the treatment room, almost breaking the door open. He was taken away by Logan for a while, but after hearing Seongjin's abnormality, he came running to him a month later.

"I heard from His Majesty Logan! It seems like your fever is rising again... ! Are you okay now?"

"Uh, yes. are you okay."

Logan walked in behind Masain with a shy expression on his face. Then he went straight towards Dasha, who was curled up in the corner of the room, and apologized with a sad expression.

"I'm sorry I don't think I'm done with my business yet. Because Mores's condition is a state. But rest assured. "Lord Masaine will leave the room in a moment, so you can talk to Mores again slowly."

"... ..!"

Dasha froze without saying a word.

Uh, okay. I thought it was strange ever since I suddenly dragged Sir Martha out for a night walk.

"Logan. After all, you knew that Dasha was here and you deliberately avoided her place?"

Dasha came to visit not long after he left, so it must be true.

Then Logan responded as if he was embarrassed.

"hmm. Well, it looks like your informant has been waiting outside for too long... .."

In the end, it means that he knew Dasha's movements from beginning to end.

"omg!"

Dasha suffered deep internal injuries and stumbled.

It was the moment when the [belief] of Monkey Watchtower's elite informant was shattered in real time.

368

368. The Return of the Prodigal Son (3)

Even though her identity was clearly revealed, Dasha was unable to leave the temporary treatment room for a while. This is because Prince Mores' condition seemed to be more serious than expected.

'I've already heard that His Majesty's condition is bad enough to keep him in the main palace... ... '

I never thought I would see someone who was talking normally suddenly collapse from a high fever.

However, unlike her, who was embarrassed and didn't know what to do, everyone in the treatment room moved their bodies in an orderly fashion as if this was not the first time something like this had happened.

"You were sweating a lot as your fever went down. "I'll bring you a change of clothes, so please rest for a moment."

Edith, who had rushed to the summons of Sir Martha, immediately laid Prince Mores down and quickly cleaned up the disheveled bedding. Although she did not have the qualifications to be a dedicated maid, she was at least exceptional in her physical strength.

"It's almost time for the evening wind to get colder. "It would be best to close all the curtains first."

When Prince Logan lightly gestures from one side, the thick curtain slides away on its own.

Although it was widely rumored that the continent's youngest sword master had been born, I had no idea that the legendary state of Auror materialization would be confirmed in this way.

"Lowering! Are you okay? "I'll put a wet towel on you right away!"

The most outrageous of them all was by far Sir Masain. The former leader of the imperial palace knights, who has now been reduced to being the prince's nanny, is stamping his feet in a hurry, wringing out a wet towel with his gloved hands.

Wow-

Meanwhile, a huge amount of divine power continued to pour down from above the prince's head.

"Father, do you think you can stop? "It really doesn't matter anymore."

Even though Prince Mores, who seemed to be quite fine now, tried to dissuade him, the Emperor pretended not to hear and showered miracles on his head. There was no such waste.

"Why do you keep wasting your divine power... Kuwet?!"

While speaking, the prince, who pushed his forehead, made a strange sound while chewing his tongue.

Then Seonghwang nodded as if he understood.

"Seeing as how you haven't come to your senses even after this level of shock, I guess you don't have much energy yet. So don't talk nonsense and just lie down quietly."

"No, are you really saying this without knowing the power of your father? Besides, if you hit someone like that without warning... ..!"

"Then I'll give you a notice this time. "Get ready."

"... yes?"

Talk.

"Kkuek!?"

"Look at this. "It has nothing to do with the notice."

"No, this guy is really..." ... !"

When the highly intoxicated prince protested by flailing his arms, the Holy Emperor gently pressed his forehead and poured out his divine power once again without any hesitation.

'... your majesty. Was he like this?'

His attitude is so sly that you wouldn't expect him to be the kind of person Dasha usually knows.

'hmm?'

Meanwhile, Dasha felt a strange sense of emptiness and carefully looked around. Now that she thought about it, she realized that she couldn't see what should be right in front of her.

Her eyes suddenly found Galen's medical notes in Seonghwang's hand. Dasha was startled and opened her mouth.

"Hey, Your Majesty. that..."

But Dasha could no longer speak. Seonghwang, who noticed her gaze, turned her head and began to look at her face.

"..."

Silver-grey eyes so shaped that one might think they are emitting light of their own.

Dasha, who felt the silent pressure of that extremely inorganic gaze, had no choice but to hesitantly say hello to Prince Mores.

"If you do it, you will be degraded. Now doesn't seem like a good time, so I'll just leave. Galen's matter will be reported again later..."

"huh?"

But when Prince Mores heard those words, he tilted his head as if it were a lie!

"What are you reporting? "What is Galen?"

"... ..!"

Dasha, who was embarrassed, unconsciously turned her head towards Seonghwang.

However, Seonghwang, who received a skeptical look, simply patted his son's head in a casual manner and said:

"It won't be too late to report it later. "It seems quite uncomfortable in a crowded place, so I think it would be best to let the author go."

'... 'You know!'

Your Majesty knows everything about what just happened to Prince Mores and the reason. That's why I personally retrieved Galen's notes so that I wouldn't be noticed!

Suddenly, Dasha remembered the advice Breman had given her on the day she was first assigned to Prince Mores.

-Did you understand? To the extent possible, carry out only the missions you wish. That's where your role ends. There is no need to think or worry about anything more than that.

Those words were passed over without any notice at the time. But now, somehow, the meaning felt a little different.

A gentle and beautiful sight with friendly family members gathered in one place.

However, Prince Mores, who decorated the center of the perfect workmanship like a center stone, was giving off a faint presence, like a jewel that was subtly off-axis.

"What's there to be uncomfortable about? Everyone knows anyway, so just relax, Dasha. "It's been a while since I've seen you again. Why don't you stay a little longer?"

Innocent-looking gray eyes contrast with sharp eyes.

As Dasha, who knew Prince Mores's extreme temperament, she couldn't help but feel a strong sense of alienation from him.

Struggling to swallow the doubts welling up in her throat, Dasha slowly bowed her head to the prince.

"No, sir. "I will leave now, so please be considerate."

The Countess's funeral was announced later than expected.

There were many people who witnessed her being crushed under a pile of dirt, but the Earl of Bathurst did not give up hope of survival and led a search party.

However, when he discovered her miserably mangled body under a collapsed pile of dirt, he eventually had no choice but to acknowledge the death of his beloved wife.

The countess's funeral was held quietly in a chaotic atmosphere at the estate, which was still in disarray due to the accident being resolved.

It was Princess Amelia who visited the funeral as a representative of the Seonghwang family.

Now that both princes were receiving treatment at the main palace for serious injuries, it was the most appropriate expression of condolence that the Holy Imperial Family could send to the Bathurst Territory.

"Thank you very much for coming here during your busy schedule, Amelia. May the blessings of the Lord always be with the Seonghwang family."

A girl who looked exactly like the Countess in her youth greeted Amelia with a sad expression.

Margaret, Lady of the Earl of Bathurst.

At the time of the birthday party, she was a girl who smiled innocently while announcing the news of the tea party, but now she was giving off a more mature vibe due to experiencing the disaster in her territory and her mother's death one after another.

"What should I say to comfort you? Lady Bathurst. The Countess was truly beautiful and elegant, the epitome of a noble noblewoman. "The empire has lost someone so precious."

"I am truly honored that you remember my mother so well."

Margaret answered like that and looked back at her mother's coffin with sad eyes.

There lies the countess, tightly wrapped in a thick veil. This was done because her miserable body, crushed under a pile of dirt, was not worth seeing to others no matter how much it was cleaned.

"First of all, I have something to apologize for. It looks like the tea party you decided to attend after a long time may not be held as planned... I'm so sorry... .."

Amelia hugged the poor girl, who couldn't speak and burst into tears, and comforted her for a long time.

Also sitting there was William Bathurst, who had become a completely different person in just a few days. Originally, instead of young Margaret, the owner of the estate, Count Bassert, would have personally welcomed the princess.

But now no one could blame him for his irreverence. The Count, who lost his wife, had not been able to eat or drink for several days, and he looked like a man who had lost his mind as he stared blankly into space.

Perhaps, if the priests had not continued to look after him with their divine power, the count and the count would have been able to hold the funeral side by side.

"It looks like the earl is very heartbroken."

"Human relationships are truly different from what they seem. "It seemed like they were always bickering, but it seems like the couple got along better than I thought."

Everyone who attended the funeral thought he was heartbroken over the loss of his wife.

But only Amelia was clearly recognizable. The light that occasionally burns in the Count's eyes is extreme anger that has not yet identified a target.

Amelia understood better than anyone else present what it felt like to lose someone you loved right before your eyes.

Therefore, she knew well where to direct that endless sadness and anger.

"The Countess was a truly capable person. As the count, you have carefully managed the inside and outside of the estate, looking into details that even you are unaware of. "Sometimes I wondered if she was a better person for her countess title."

That's why Amelia gave the Count a somewhat provocative greeting, which was not typical of her.

"... .."

When the Count showed no reaction, Amelia added in a slightly cold voice:

"And he was also a courageous person who sacrificed himself for the future of the territory."

Flash!

For a moment, a spark flew out of the quiet earl's eyes.

-You know what? In fact, they say the Countess may have committed suicide. She walked into a pile of dirt on her own, I guess?

-What? Lord of the world! No, what on earth is the cause?

The rumors that had spread among the people who witnessed his wife's death had quickly come to the conclusion that her death was a 'suicide' and even reproduced unfounded speculations about the cause.

No matter how much he blocked his eyes and ears, there was no way the Count would not know that fact. He just didn't want to believe it and had been in denial until now.

"That can't be possible! The princess must have misunderstood something... ..!"

The Count jumped up, ready to grab Amelia by the collar.

My beloved wife would never do that. How could one easily make such a choice about Margaret and me!

But before he commits lese majeste-

Coo!

Suddenly, a tremendous force poured down from the princess, causing the count to freeze in place.

"... ..!"

I couldn't believe the current situation.

Since when did the princess, who was always thought to be as fragile as a rose, become someone who could radiate this kind of energy and pressure people?

"The Earl of Bathurst."

The princess, with cold eyes that had never been seen before, quietly warned the frozen count.

"Now come to your senses and look at reality. Please do not let the Countess' deep intentions go to waste any longer."

"... ..!"

"A first-class large demon species has appeared in Bathurst Territory. Not anywhere else, but right at the count's hunting ground. If it weren't for the Countess's sacrifice, who do you think would have first aroused the Inquisition's suspicions?"

Princess Amelia's point was accurate.

Because almost the only casualties were from the Count family, and because the Seonghwang family willingly expressed condolences for the death. The Count of Bathurst was barely able to maintain its position as a victim.

"Besides, there is one more problem. The red trace of the curse discovered on the west side of the hunting ground stretched straight across the center of the territory and all the way to the count's residence. "For the sake of the subjects of the Bathurst Territory who suffered a great disaster and the honor of the Countess who chose to make a noble sacrifice, this fact was not made public."

Looking into the wildly shaking eyes of the Earl of Bathurst, Amelia recalled an event from the long past.

A memory that has not yet happened and is also a distant future.

At that time, Amelia remembered a cold-faced woman who often frequented the royal palace of Rohan. She is the familiar face of a woman who used to stand by Romain's side like a confidant, and who is now in her coffin.

-Who on earth is that imperialist that frequents the royal family of Rohan as if it were his own home?

-He's the Earl of Bathurst from Delcross, right? She is a tarantula-like woman.

-that's right. What could it be but a tarantula? It is said that she killed not only her husband but also her daughter, the rightful heir to the count, with her own hands.

Rumor has it that the woman's husband and daughter were suspected of having contact with a devil worshiper.

So, after killing her beloved family with her own hands, she was recognized by the Heresy Tribunal for her actions and was able to keep the title of House of Bathurst.

-oh my god! With my own hands?

-No matter how much it may be, it is not an easy choice. What a poisonous woman she is.

That was why Amelia put aside other things and expressed her intention to attend the Lady of Bathurst's tea party.

Because he knows the future of the Countess of Bathurst, who eventually becomes Romaine's subordinate, that is, the current Countess.

'So I slowly got closer to them and tried to find out why the Countess made such a callous choice.'

I never expected that my wife would choose to kill herself.

'but... ... '

Amelia seemed to somehow understand her choice.

Since she was a woman who was known to be capable in the future, she would have fully anticipated what kind of crisis the territory would face in the future due to the emergence of demonic species.

And maybe.

'It is highly likely that she was already under Romain's control. It's probably no coincidence that the red curse symbol extends to the mansion. So she may have chosen the only way to escape his influence.'

This is Romaine, who often bewitched people with strange tricks.

Amelia was fully mindful of the possibility that the Countess, who would become his confidant in the future, also went through such a process.

'A curse, that kind of thing... . Your wife has nothing to do with that... ... '

The Count, who had been muttering as if he found it difficult to believe, slowly trailed off as if he had an inkling of something.

Suddenly, the voice of his wife shouting at him came to his mind vividly.

-William! Beware of suspicious guests visiting the mansion. He's been planning something up and down the Bathurst family for a long time!

Someone.

There is someone who is the culprit of this situation!

Amelia, who saw that the Count's eyes were slowly returning to focus, continued speaking in a slightly calmer voice.

"Rest assured. I have no unreasonable suspicions about the deceased.
"I have faith in the Countess's honor."

There was not the slightest doubt on Amelia's face as she said that.

okay. I will be able to trust you a hundred times over. Is there anyone in the world as harmless as someone who is already dead?

"But Earl of Bathurst. All of these things should not be thought of as disasters that just happened by chance. "It means that the person who used the Red Curse to summon a demonic species to Bathurst Territory and drove the Countess to her death is still watching over this territory from somewhere."

"... .."

"The imperial palace plans to pursue this matter until the end. The Knights of Saint Aurelion have already begun an investigation based on the Red Curse, and little by little, they are gaining clues to their identity. "Uncovering their conspiracy and stopping it completely in advance will be the task of my life."

And Amelia withdrew the momentum she had been exerting toward the Count and made a gentle suggestion.

"So, Earl of Bathurst, will you please cooperate with me? "To stop the insidious forces that are trying to shake the empire, and to comfort the soul of the countess who died unjustly."

William Bathurst was silent for a while.

The Count's appearance, which had been desiccated for several days, was not much different from that of a half-dead corpse.

Only his eyes.

The only living part of the Count's body was his eyes, which shimmered in a complex light with a mixture of sadness, doubt, and anger.

"... Lowering!"

The Earl of Bathurst finally made up his mind and slowly knelt in front of the princess.

Towards the unquestionable representative of prosperity, who offered his hand saying that he would be willing to turn a blind eye to the suspicions surrounding his beloved wife.

"Please allow me and this Bathurst to join in the task."

"count."

"I will offer my loyalty and, if necessary, everything in my territory to you! I will spare no effort to ensure the safety of the empire! I don't expect much in return. The day when my humble task ends... .."

William Bathurst, who had said so much, looked up at the princess with passionate eyes.

What flashed in those intense eyes was a vision not much different from what Amelia once saw to the Holy Emperor.

"Just hand over to me the one who caused your wife's death!"

369. The Return of the Prodigal Son (4)

Romain, who was sitting in the cave, felt a sudden chill and frowned.

'... what?'

It may not just be because the night air is cold. Because his current dull body was not his original body, it was difficult to even sense the cold unless the temperature difference was quite extreme.

"What's going on, Romain?"

The girl with the forked hair who was squatting across from me asked Greed as if she was puzzled.

Romain closed one eye for a moment, looked around carefully, and then shook his head.

"It is nothing, Lord of Greed. "I guess it was just my mood."

Romain, who lost the cabin that had been a comfortable hideout for a long time, had to hastily look for a new meeting place due to the two demon lords' harassment.

It was this small cave located south of Delcross.

It is a place that is some distance from the ecliptic, and is also quite far from Bathurst Territory, where everyone's attention is currently focused.

It was a cold and shabby place without any decent furniture as it was being prepared in a hurry.

Perhaps it is fortunate that the two demon kings, who are insensitive to human senses, do not feel much discomfort. Of course, the sight of them squatting together in a narrow cave was extremely pitiful.

"Oh, by the way, I'm really going crazy!"

Pajong, who had the appearance of an old priest, was furious.

"How could things get so screwed up? "I was just there to repay a debt, but how could things get so bad in such a short period of time?"

While he was forced to connect to the Pangea Chronicle, unable to resist the urging of his sorrow, Pa-jong lost a huge amount of magical energy.

If it had gone a little further, it would have been so serious that the demon lords under them would have risen up to change generations.

"Why did this happen? "Why did the seeds that were barely planted around the ecliptic wake up on their own and cause such chaos!"

"There are quite a few 'marks of cracks' around here. They are traces of a [disaster] that goes against cause and effect and destroys laws and boundaries. Sowing, is it possible that you may have been careless in hiding the seeds near the trail?"

At the little girl's point, the old man suddenly got angry.

"Hey, Greed. "Do you think I'm that thoughtless?"

"Your family clearly seemed to have gone berserk under the influence of the rift."

"Oh, of course I planted some seeds near the crack! I thought that in order to properly shake up Delcross in the future, I would have to use the power of the crack at some point! But I made all my own preparations!"

The seeds planted near the ecliptic were the products of the normal world that had been saved from sorrow at a high price.

The body of the normal world, which was never activated unless under certain conditions, was perfect for secretly hiding the deep demonic energy of a high-ranking demon king's family.

Thanks to this, none of the countless priests who have traveled to the imperial capital have noticed the existence of the seed.

"Of course, I expected that there was a good possibility that the 'trace of the crack' would destabilize the clan. So, just in case something happened, I went to the trouble of making a separate controller and hiding it nearby!"

"controller?"

"okay. It is also an expensive item purchased out of love. If it is suitable, it is an absolute object that can control subordinates regardless of conditions. "After burying it well near the seed, they even covered it with a large rock to prevent anyone from touching it!"

Perhaps that rock was the place where Seongjin ordered his knights to pile up the red stones.

Of course, now that everything had collapsed without a trace, there was no way for Pajong to know that fact.

"profit! "The more I think about it, the more I feel like I'm dying because I miss them so much!"

Romaine, who could not bear to see the growing fever, comforted him.

"Calm down, seedling. What has already happened has happened. Fortunately, what was lost this time was only one of the seeds you arranged, wasn't it?"

"... what?"

"There is no time to dwell on what is lost anymore. "With this incident as an opportunity, it is time to predict how Seonghwang's attitude will change and quickly think of measures to respond to it."

Sowing was not the only one who lost what he had arranged in vain. Romaine also lost most of the foundation he had prepared over the past few years.

The carefully constructed circuit to steal away Princess Amelia was shattered along with the cabin.

Lord Alton, who had been recruited to take control of Baron Cadogan's salon, was surprised by the appearance of a powerful demon species and ended up running away.

What about the Countess of Bathurst, who was thought to be one day converted? While Romaine lost control of her for a moment due to her confusion and shock, she was caught in a landslide and lost her life.

Even the 'marks of cracks' are likely to be discovered. Aren't the holy knights from the imperial palace already occupying and scouring all the roads leading from the demonic haunts to Count Bathurst's residence?

'How did things get to this point?'

Romaine seemed to know somehow. Even now, when I close my eyes, the image of a young boy riding a huge wolf charging towards the demon race comes vividly to mind.

'Prince Mores... ... !'

There was already a rumor on the continent that the 3rd prince rode the divine beast [Wind] mentioned in the scriptures and unleashed the divine grace of the main god to finally sink the demon race. Even now, whenever two people gather in the imperial capital, they talk about him.

There are absurd claims that Prince Mores is the reincarnation of Saint Bastian, or that a new saint was born from the Holy Imperial family.

'There must be a guardian of Delcross behind all of this.'

A new word for success.

A person that the Dark Church has been preparing for a long time.

And, an absolute variable that no one can dare predict.

Even so, Romain could not stand to see such an unknown entity swaying a situation in which complex interests were intertwined.

"Now, can't you see it with your own eyes? Great monarchs. The 3rd Prince has already escaped the influence of the Dark Church and is nothing more than a puppet that moves at the direction of the Holy Emperor. "Didn't I tell you this many times before?"

That's why Romain took risks every time and secretly encouraged the high-ranking demon kings to exclude him from the situation.

"As you can see, the existence of [the reserved one] is not at all beneficial to the monarchs... "Wow!"

But before he could finish speaking, a strong hand grabbed his robe. It was sowing that the medicine was about to rise.

"It's ridiculous. Isn't this the time to be leisurely talking about [The Prepared One]?"

The old man, who was squeezing Romain's breathing with one hand, thrust a stone in his other hand in front of his eyes. It was a red stone that sometimes had incomplete codes flashing around it and then disappearing.

"Look at this. You insignificant doll. "Do you know what I found in that mess?"

"Off..."

"Why are these things scattered in the place where my family is rushing? "Why can I sense your shabby presence here!"

Romain broke into a cold sweat and quickly made an excuse.

"This is just a coincidence, Mr. Sowing! I was just trying to set a trap for the guardian of Delcross..."

"Shut up! Isn't this a suspicious item at first glance? "Are you confident in telling me clearly that this situation is absolutely not your fault?"

On the outside, he pretended to ask a question, but it seemed like he had already decided that everything was Romaine's fault. Because the strong murderous intent pouring over the half-mask was real.

"Now, go ahead and say it. "Is there any reason for me to tolerate your arrogance any longer?"

"Tsk!"

Romain gritted his chattering teeth.

Although he denied it for a long time, his essence was still a mere human being. Compared to the high-ranking demon kings who control the existence of even one dimension, they are nothing more than small insects.

It is a fate that one can be crushed to death at any time just by their strong gaze.

'but... It can't end like this! You must never let go of ties with these high-ranking demon lords!'

In the hands of an absolute being who could kill him at any moment, Romain tried to maintain his composure and opened his mouth trembling.

"How can I tell a lie in front of a great monarch who can see right through human lies? "What I can tell you for sure is that this situation was not intentional on my part!"

"So you admit it was your fault?"

"I do not deny the possibility that my preparations may have unexpectedly had some influence on the plans of the great monarch."

Flash-

Romain, who saw the evil green glow clearly shining in the old priest's eyes, quickly continued speaking.

"Even so, I have the right to ask for your mercy, Lord of all diseases! "Because you owe me a lot!"

"... what?"

"If it weren't for me, wouldn't all your arrangements have been useless anyway? "He would have been reverse-summoned from the Delcross dimension, and would have had to hover outside the dimension for a long time, just looking for an opportunity to descend."

"... ... !"

Pajong slowly opened his mouth.

That definitely happened. Just as he was about to be reverse-summoned, engulfed in strange flames, didn't that cheeky doll provide him with his current body?

"No, no matter what, what debt do I owe for such a poor body..." ... !"

Pajong frowned, but before he knew it, his grip on Romaine was slowly losing strength.

Even though he was all old and worn out, this old priest's body was the only thing that kept Pajong, who was almost thrown out of the dimension, stuck in this world.

The guardian of Delcross has his eyes wide open, so when will he again hold a large-scale offering ceremony and wait for the opportunity to descend to this dimension?

"Okay..."

In the end, when Plantation retreated with a disapproving expression, Romaine, who had stumbled for a moment, carefully adjusted his clothes.

"Thank you for your mercy."

"joy! Don't be cocky. "This is all I can do to look after you."

Pa-jong, who had not completely let go of his anger, glared at Romaine with harsh eyes.

"It's a doll, and it manages to imitate its owner, so I'm just leaving it alone because I think it might be of some use. It's annoying to everyone, so they treat you as a [Puppet Master] for convenience, but isn't the original Puppeteer still alive and well? If you fail, we may abandon you and join hands with you."

"well."

The corners of Romain's mouth, still trembling, curled into a crooked smile.

"Haven't I already proven that I am far superior to the original [Puppet Master], Lord of Disease?"

"what? When did you?"

"You are holding the evidence yourself now."

Pazong was dumbfounded and looked alternately at the stone in his hand and at Romaine's half-mask.

"The ability, unique in all dimensions, to add code to objects in the original world."

"Eh?"

"At first glance, the stone may look like an object from the normal world and function like an object from the normal world, but that is not really the case. "I just drew the code directly on the stone of the original world."

"... ..!"

Pajong, who was dazed for a moment, finally grasped the meaning of those words and opened his eyes wide.

"... Can you draw the laws of the normal world with your bare hands? How? "By what means can you?"

"well. Even so, before I became a doll, I was a fairly talented programmer."

As Romaine shrugged his shoulders slyly, Pazong looked back at the little girl with a puzzled expression.

"Oh my... .."

The old man's eyes narrowed, and deep wrinkles appeared in his round eyes.

"That's right. Greed, I was wondering why you chose the abandoned doll over Sigurd Sigurdson. He had this secret... .."

Seongjin suffered from high fever and high fever repeatedly and was unable to recover.

While he could not feel it, time passed quickly and before he knew it, 15 days had passed.

By then, the Holy Emperor had finally allowed Logan to leave the temporary treatment room.

"I think I have sincerely reflected on this. "I guess Abamama also figured that out."

Logan seems to think that Seonghwang ordered him to stay in the treatment room purely as a sign of self-respect. But Seongjin knew the truth behind Seonghwang's decision.

'Logan, it seemed like he suffered quite a bit of damage to his soul at that time.'

It doesn't seem like a living person could easily burn his or her soul, but the Sword Master's superhuman will probably made such an incredible feat possible.

Of course, the Emperor must have noticed this. Every time he comes to treat Seongjin, he doesn't forget to pour out his divine power on Logan.

And, it was finally determined that the guy's soul had fully recovered.

'It would be nice if I could check it with my spiritual eyes... ..'

But it was difficult to get the devil's cooperation.

The Demon King, who had recently been stuck in a flame crystal, only whimpered occasionally and rarely responded to Seongjin's calls.

'How long is this guy going to be depressed? I'm getting tired of eating bear meat soup every day.'

While staying in the temporary treatment room at Eoyeongbuyeong, the day finally arrived for Logan and Sisley to leave for Cyprus.

"In the end, I regret not being able to see Brother Owen. "It would be better if you stayed at the palace until we return."

Not long after the demon species appearance incident, good news came from the southern front.

It is said that 1st Prince Owen participated in the Great Tribal Council of Varsha and brought about a fairly long-term and stable truce.

Thanks to this, Owen returned to the imperial capital after a few years, and the imperial palace was now preparing for his triumphal ceremony.

"Sisley, do you still have no intention of staying in the imperial capital? Brother Owen especially liked you. "It's been a long time coming to the imperial capital, but if you're not here, my brother will be very disappointed."

Sisley shook his head firmly in response to Logan's question.

"I sent you a letter a long time ago saying I was leaving for Cyprus. "It looks like the truce will be quite long, so maybe Brother Owen will wait for us to return."

Seongjin already knew what Sisley was worried about. Because she had this conversation with the kid before.

-Ever since I heard that a punitive force was being formed, I've been feeling uneasy. I have a feeling that there, on the black coast of Cyprus, something evil is lurking around to devour Brother Logan.

Seongjin stroked Sisley's hair, which was growing better day by day.

"Okay, be careful, kid."

"what? Brother. "Since when have you been subtly calling me kid?"

"Then do you call a little boy a kid? What do you call him?"

However, on the day when the large-scale punitive force left the imperial capital, Seongjin's high fever rose again and he was unable to see them off and had to whine in the treatment room.

Then one day it happened.

Quick and easy!

Suddenly, I heard the sound of cheerful footsteps, and then I jumped!
And the door to the treatment room opened violently.

"Mores, you goby!"

What appeared there was a familiar brat with a bunch of ugly cormorant feathers on his head.

"You man! No matter how sick I was, my brother came and didn't even say hello... ..!"

Owen, who was shouting vigorously, opened his mouth in an instant when his eyes met Seongjin, who was lying on the bed.

"... Mores?"

"okay. "It's noisy, you idiot."

"... ..!?"

When Seongjin responded sullenly, Owen's eyes shook violently as if there had been an earthquake.

"you... You, man... Are you okay? "How bad did it hurt to become half a person?"

370. The return of the Prodigal Son (5)

The news that 1st Prince Owen was returning was enough to revamp the atmosphere of the imperial capital, which had been chaotic due to the appearance of a large demon species.

That's how great his contribution was.

In addition to successfully stabilizing the southern front over the past few years, the first official truce was concluded with the heretics since the founding of Delcross.

Of course, all of this did not just happen suddenly.

As the front lines became more solidified over the years, armed conflicts became noticeably less frequent, and even trade was taking place with some moderate tribes.

In such an atmosphere, the fact that Owen, who attended the Great Tribal Council, effectively put pressure on the warlike Wakana Tusai may have played a major role.

Of course, Mr. Sang Chang-chang's detailed instructions were of great help.

[Surprising quest? Oh my, my hand slipped!]

[Quest Grade: F]

[Drop the poison needle in your possession as if it were a mistake in front of everyone, and quickly retrieve it. Of course, I believe that you will not make the mistake of hastily mentioning the source of this. Some tribal leaders may be dissatisfied with you for bringing a trivial toy to an important event. But what does it matter? It will definitely be able to grab the attention of just one person who needs to see it.]

[Reward: 1P Cash]

[*This product is available in the Pangea Chronicle store window.]

It was inevitable that the quest rewards were unprecedentedly salty. Sang Tae-chang always seems annoying, but this time he was kindly giving instructions purely to help Owen.

In this way, the small quest to control the atmosphere of the Great Tribal Council continued.

[Surprise quest? Praise makes even Majuri dance!]

[Please mention that the archery skills of the Majuli tribe warriors you met during the battle were impressive, and honor those who died. The heart of the tribal leader, who is still confused, will greatly lean towards you.]

[Surprising quest? Introduce the new friend you made!]

[Your friendship with the Volanta tribe is already famous. However, the tribal chieftains are suspicious that your favor is not limited to just the Volanta tribe. Emphasize that you have recently made a new friend from the Purma tribe. You will be able to gain favor with other tribal leaders and convince the old fox.]

Originally, Owen had planned to hold out the poisonous needle in front of Wakana Tusai and question him about the unfair assassination attempt. If necessary, she would use Purma's Bartoza as her witness to force the case against her.

but-

'No matter how much I think about it, Sang Chang-chang's method is right. If we're not careful, the entire Barça tribe might think we're insulting them and rebel.'

Although the tribes fought each other fiercely at the slightest invasion of territory, there was a high possibility that they would unite strongly in the face of external enemies.

So Owen faithfully followed Sang Tae-chang's quest, and eventually achieved a truce in a moderate way.

"Hoo... .."

Fortunately, Wakana Tusai did not commit the atrocity of violating the ceasefire agreement that was already in place.

It was not thought that the old fox of Karazhan was afraid of the sting or of Bartoza's accusation. While she was trying hard to persuade her tribe leaders, she was watching Owen with great amusement.

Now, Owen's guess was that Wakana Tusai had decided to avoid wasting his strength for the time being and strengthen his stamina.

Volanta, which had recently formed a friendship with Owen and was gaining various trade advantages, was quickly emerging as a power comparable to Karazhan by successfully eliminating the nearby sea creatures.

Anyway, after completing all the necessary clean-up after the successful armistice agreement, Owen was only able to leave the Southern Front exactly one week after Thanksgiving.

Hee hee hee!

"Whoa, let's rest here for a while."

When Owen suddenly stopped his horse and gave instructions, the soldier following him asked curiously.

"yes? But it's low. Didn't you already take a break during lunch earlier? "There is still a long way to go to the ecliptic."

"You can't just think about the circumstances of powerful ignorant people like us. "Isn't the sick priest Bart also with us?"

At Owen's point, the soldier looks back and nods.

"Oh, that's right. "I'm sure the long journey will be very difficult for you, priest."

Owen was currently returning to the Imperial Capital with fifteen soldiers and part of the missionary group.

It was very shabby for a procession of the first prince of the Holy Empire, but it was something that could not be taken carelessly from the front lines.

In addition, since Owen himself was one of the strongest forces on the front line, there was no need to hire a large number of separate escorts.

A small carriage was following behind them. It was the carriage of Priest Bart, known as the living saint of the Southern Front.

At some point, even though I sang, "Go back, go back," I sat firmly on the front line, but this time, I guess what the wind was blowing, and I decided to go back to the imperial capital with Owen.

"Father Bart always seems anxious every time I see him. Wouldn't it have been better for you to just remain at the front?"

"I don't know. Isn't the southern environment very harmful to the priest's health? "It will be much better for your health if you follow us up here."

Owen got off his horse and responded leisurely.

"So don't be in a hurry. "The armistice agreement has already been concluded, so there is plenty of time."

Owen had already received a letter from Sisley informing him that he was leaving for Cyprus with Logan. No matter how quickly he tried, he would end up crossing paths with them, so there was no need to rush the route.

'I want to see my youngest's face as soon as possible... ... '

After all the hardships I endured over the past few years, it wasn't that difficult to appease my longing a little more.

Anyway, if I wait for you at the imperial palace, I will meet you. Because the two of them plan to stay for a long time until they return from Cyprus.

'When we arrive at the imperial capital, should we stop by the monkey watchtower and inquire about the newbie's whereabouts?'

A small baby goat's sullen expression flashes through Owen's mind.

This newbie guy didn't really tell us, but it seemed like he was living a rough life. If Owen finds him, he'll definitely have some way to help.

'Ah, but I have to see my family's faces first!'

Let's meet Father, Amelia, and the twins and let's get rid of all the worries! If I get a chance, I'll also take a look at that bastard Mores.

'hmm. When I think about it this way, I think I miss Mores a little too.'

Even if he's such an obnoxious guy, I'm really looking forward to seeing him face to face. The way back home was so exciting and enjoyable.

It was a time when I was alone, smiling and thinking about various things. As an attendant in charge of Priest Bart happened to be passing by, Owen quickly called him over.

"hey. Are you okay, Priest? Why do you rarely come out of the carriage even when you are resting?"

"omg! Lowering?"

Then the attendant seemed overly surprised and rolled his eyes.

"You're sure the meals are being served on time, right?"

"Woah, don't worry. "I am taking good care of it."

"okay? "Then, since we're resting now, would you mind telling me to get some fresh air?"

"That, that lung... The priest is now... Lord, you are sleeping!"

"what?"

Owen's eyebrows rose.

"The only answer is that you have been sleeping for three days now. Does that make sense? "How can a person just sleep every hour?"

"But what should I do when you are really sleeping?"

"Look at this person. He already has a weak body, so you should think it's strange if people can't wake up! Are you okay now? Let me go take a look..."

As Owen took a long stride toward the carriage, a distraught attendant blocked his path.

"Ahh, no! "I am very tired from the sudden trip, so the priest told me not to disturb my rest!"

"hmm?"

"I apologize for daring to stand in your way! One, Priest Bart! never! never! Since you told me not to wake you up... ... !"

The attendant was desperate.

What would happen if the first prince opened the carriage door now? You will encounter a homunculus whose pulse has completely stopped due to the absence of the Holy Emperor's soul.

It was the worst situation.

"... okay?"

But the 1st prince, who seemed to be stubbornly heading towards the carriage, stopped and nodded!

"Well, okay. If the priest said so much. "No matter what, your own opinion is the most important thing."

"that... yes?"

"When I think about it, in the past, even when the situation on the front line was at its peak, the priest would always sleep like he was dead for more than half a day. "It's not that strange."

Tuk-tuk.

Owen added softly, patting the embarrassed attendant on the shoulder.

"By the way, you. Aren't you gaining weight these past few days? Just like a person who eats two people's worth in one meal."

"... ... !"

"Don't just take care of yourself, take care of the priest's meals as well. Do you understand?"

The frozen attendant could only nod frantically.

The first prince thought he couldn't figure out whether people were sharp or dull.

So, about 15 days after leaving the front, Owen proudly entered the imperial capital.

What greeted Owen was a splendidly prepared triumphal ceremony and huge cheers from the subjects of the imperial capital.

"Waaah!"

"The undefeated hero protecting the southern front!"

"Long live Owen!"

Owen was completely overwhelmed for a moment.

At first glance, I heard there was going to be an improvement ceremony. However, Owen, who had never expected such rich hospitality, looked at the scene before him with a little bewilderment.

Buildings decorated with colorful flowers and ribbons. The solemn imperial guard stands in a long line along the main road, showing courtesy.

And a wave of subjects waving handkerchiefs and shouting loudly.

"This... .."

Unknown emotions well up.

Until now, Owen has affectionately called Seonghwang "father." He used to get along with other princes and princesses as if they were real brothers.

Where is that? The soldiers on the southern front, who have been fighting for a long time, are now wholeheartedly following him.

Nevertheless, Owen never once expected that he would be treated honorably as the prince of the Holy Imperial Family.

But at this moment, everyone in the imperial capital is saying that he is the proud first prince of the Holy Imperial Family!

'... As for me, where am I... You have truly become a member of the Holy Family!'

Just then, a new quest window popped up in front of Owen.

[Surprise quest? Show yourself without shame as the first prince of the Holy Empire!]

[Your subjects are very curious about you. Although he had been famous abroad for a long time, he was a mysterious prince who rarely showed himself in front of his subjects. Well, now is the time! Straighten your shoulders and proudly show off your status and reputation here. Even though your sloppy outfit is far from that of a prince, no matter how you look at it, the strong confidence you confidently exude will be more than enough to cover up all these flaws.]

A burst of laughter flowed out.

Ah, such a disingenuous Sang Sang-chang. You could just give them a simple encouragement to be confident.

Quickly.

As Owen straightened his shoulders and drove his horse as instructed by Sang Tae-chang, the imperial guards who were waiting all followed behind him, hiding the shabby procession.

371. The Return of the Prodigal Son (6)

The imperial capital was excited about the successive victory ceremonies.

The triumphal ceremony of Prince Logan and Prince Mores, who had made their major in the Sigismund Territory, took place not long ago.

Isn't the fact that such great auspicious events occur one after another as proof that the Lord is looking after Delcross?

"Here he comes!"

"Waaah!"

"The undefeated hero protecting the southern front!"

Soon, the subjects of the imperial capital felt a slight shock when they saw Prince Owen appear with cheers.

Unlike the people from the Seonghwang family I had seen so far, he was giving off a very unfamiliar and exotic atmosphere.

"He... "His Majesty Owen?"

He had the appearance of a mature warrior, befitting his age of 17.

Wearing shabby, comfortable light armor, long hair flowing freely.

There were even feather decorations like those worn by barbarians stuck here and there on her unkempt hair!

To the subjects of Delcross, who considered it a virtue to keep their hair short like priests, that outfit was clearly very unfamiliar.

This was due to the absence of escort driver Alicia. If she had followed Owen, he would have scolded her incessantly so that he could throw away all her cormorant feathers and dress more comfortably.

"Awesome... "You did it!"

However, perhaps because of Owen's confident attitude and confident expression, the subjects of the imperial capital soon began to pour out various admiring remarks about him.

"Look at your magnificent and wonderful prayer!"

"It was said that the heretics trembled at the mere sight of Prince Owen on the battlefield. It seems that those words were not just empty words!"

"You look so strong! "He is truly a knight of the god who protects the Holy Empire!"

When I think about it that way, it seems like a brilliant halo is coming out from behind the first prince.

"lung... Priest?! Are you awake? But why are you suddenly generating divine power in the air?"

There was no way they would have known about a small disturbance in the carriage following.

The subjects, who were convinced that Prince Owen was in the glory of the Lord, soon began to chant his name loudly.

"Long live Owen!"

"Long live Owen!"

As he passed through the cheers and arrived in front of the imperial palace, he was greeted by a girl who had become much more mature than the image in Owen's memories.

Owen, who noticed Ye's soft rosy hair blowing in the wind, called out to her without realizing it.

"Amelia!"

A name that has been called out loud for the first time in a long time.

Owen, who felt his voice cracking a little, realized once again how much he missed his brothers from the Holy Family.

Then the girl, with her eyes wide open, smiled just as sweetly as before.

"You're finally here! "Welcome back, Brother Owen."

"How have you been? You have really changed a lot. So, something...
... ."

Owen, who spoke happily, trailed off as he didn't know how to express what he felt.

"... "I've really become more mature."

The kind girl who always smiled at Owen had changed more than he had imagined.

Not only has she grown taller, but her face, which is praised as the most beautiful woman in the capital, has become even more beautiful. She must have recently started practicing as an Auror, and her energy has clearly changed.

But is it because of my mood? Her Owen was sensing a more fundamental change in her.

A past that only Amelia knows now. The pain and sorrow she had to endure alone for such a long time left a faint mark on her as a child.

"You know, something really happened, right?"

In response to Owen's worried question, Amelia burst out laughing.

"Something happened. Brother, you've really changed a lot, haven't you? "It was so big that I almost didn't recognize you."

Amelia was also feeling a similar shock to Owen.

In the past, she had already followed Leonard to Rohan before Owen returned from the front. So, the last time she actually saw him face to face was already in the distant past.

The shabby country boy who remained in her memories had suddenly become a strong warrior supporting the front lines of the empire.

"Let's go quickly, brother."

Feeling her heart sink from overjoyment, Amelia pulled Owen's sleeve affectionately.

"Father, His Majesty is waiting for you."

"How on earth did you convince that belligerent Karazhan tribal leader? "Since the news of the ceasefire spread, all major and small officials have been unanimously praising my brother's political acumen."

In particular, in the case of Cardinal Cesare of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, he is raising his enthusiasm by saying that all southern diplomacy should be left entirely to the First Prince?

Owen nodded hesitantly at Amelia's explanation.

"okay? "Isn't that an unexpected reaction?"

Cardinals and high priests.

Those old-timers had long been unwilling to acknowledge Owen as a member of the royal family.

Didn't she always glare at him with her white eyes, trying to catch even the slightest flaw in him?

"It's worth it. You really did a great job! A truce with the infidels. "Your brother has accomplished what no one has been able to achieve during the millennium of the empire."

Listening to Amelia's voice chirping like a small bird, Owen took a deep breath of the air he had been missing.

The grounds of the imperial palace, where I had been for the first time in a long time, were truly cozy.

In the past, I thought it was a fancy and spacious place that didn't suit me at all.

But now, as if it were a lie, Owen was feeling the comfort of home here.

and-

'... father!'

Owen, who finally stood at the conference hall, was filled with a strange feeling when he saw that the event had not changed one bit since he left.

"Come closer, Owen."

Everyone's eyes are focused on the 1st prince, who follows orders and walks with great strides.

His unkempt and free-spirited attire could not even be described as befitting a prince of the Holy Empire.

Nevertheless, no one could easily gossip about him. Just like when facing Balthazar, the greatest knight on the continent, everyone was overwhelmed by the strong force emanating from the prince.

"I'm back, father."

When Owen arrived in front of the throne and showed his courtesy, the Holy Emperor, who looked down at him for a moment, opened his mouth.

"Do you remember the critical situation on the southern front several years ago? "Who stopped the heretics from rapidly advancing north?"

Seonghwang's calm voice resonates throughout the conference hall.

A voice I missed so much. Strangely, it felt like he had heard it often recently, but perhaps he was mistaken because he was so happy to hear it.

"They will also remember the incident in which the 3rd Missionary Corps, isolated in the south, was on the verge of annihilation. Who was it that rescued them safely from the hands of the cruel pagans at that time? "Isn't that the first prince, Owen?"

Owen quietly listened to his voice, trying hard to hide his troubled feelings.

'Once I was an orphan with nothing, my father willingly called me his son.'

I wanted to become a person who lived up to that title. So when Owen's status window appeared before him one day, he was able to abandon all his comforts and head to the southern front without hesitation.

In addition, he has continued to make ceaseless efforts by completing quests until now.

Now, what about now? Did he become a son who lived up to Seonghwang's expectations?

"Because my brave son was there at that time, I was able to protect the empire and its subjects from all these threats. Not only did he succeed in quelling the vicious nature of the pagans, but he returned with a feat that would remain in the history of the Holy Empire. "How could I not be proud of this?"

Owen slowly raised his head to the calm, congratulatory voice.

Looking down at him was the same cold face as always, but what was faintly there was something that could definitely be called a smile.

"You did a great job, son."

A banquet at the imperial palace was scheduled to commemorate the triumph, so Owen decided to temporarily stay at the main palace instead of the Blue Rose Labyrinth for that day only.

And the person who greeted him warmly at the main palace was Lord Masain, who seemed more mature for some reason.

"Brother Masain!"

As I approached him and called out to him warmly, the driver smiled and placed his hand on his chest.

"Meeting Prince Owen."

"Haha, please stop giving such stiff greetings."

For Owen, there was another person in the Holy Family who was equally as irritating as Mores, and that was Sir Martha, a knight of the Royal Guard.

Although he is now being treated as the first prince of the empire, if you think about it, Owen is not from the royal family.

On the other hand, what about Lord Masain, who treats himself with respect as a knight of the imperial palace? If he had not become Clanos, he would be the next closest to the throne after the Seonghwang, and be of legitimate imperial blood.

Speaking of a twist of fate, it was a truly ironic fate.

But it's really strange. Meeting Sir Masain for the first time in a long time, I was filled with a feeling of joy, no trace of discomfort.

"So what happened recently? "Like Amelia, my brother seems to have changed a lot somehow."

Perhaps it was because after attending Prince Mores, I suffered from mental hardships that felt like 10 years a day.

Masain laughed and subtly changed the topic.

"I always hear about your performance on the southern front. "It's truly admirable that you can achieve such feats all by yourself in a faraway place!"

And Owen was able to hear in detail about Mores' recent situation from him.

"... Are you losing your memory?"

"Yes, it is."

Masaine nodded and explained Mores' recent actions with a worried face.

He did a great job in the Sigismund Territory, and the recently appeared demon species was also successfully exterminated thanks to his activities.

"Unfortunately, your body has not fully recovered yet, and you are currently staying in a temporary treatment room. Would you like to stop by?"

"... .."

Mores.

He was a very obnoxious and obnoxious idiot, but I still felt bad seeing him in so much pain.

Besides, I don't even have any memories from before, so how on earth should I deal with this guy?

"hmm... .."

After thinking for a moment, Owen made up his mind.

Well, let's just treat it without any fault! If I start to hesitate in front of him, wouldn't that guy, Mores, who doesn't have any memories, feel even more awkward?

So Owen blindly opened the door to the temporary treatment room and confidently shouted loudly at Mores.

"Mores, you goby! You man! No matter how sick I was, my brother came and didn't even say hello... ... !"

But the exaggerated cheerfulness ended there. At the unexpected sight that unfolded before her eyes, Owen was momentarily startled and froze in place.

There lay a small boy, shriveled to half his former size.

'what's this! 'Why did he become like that?'

In Owen's memory, Mores was a round piglet that seemed to roll around much faster.

But what about now?

As big and ornate as the bed was, the skinny boy buried in it couldn't help but look even smaller.

"... Mores?"

When Owen asks quietly, the boy gives a blunt answer.

"okay. "It's noisy, you idiot."

"... ... !?"

That sassy way of speaking is indeed Mores, right?

A trembling voice came out of Owen's mouth without me realizing it.

"you... You, man... "Are you okay?"

What happened? How could a person have been so sick that such a handsome guy had shrunk to the point where he could only be held by a handful?

'Besides, why is the auror active like that? 'It feels like I'm going to die right now!'

Owen approached the bed with an urgent heart.

"why are you like this? Where on earth does it hurt? "Didn't your father treat you?"

At that moment, it seemed as if Mores's eyes fell on the bright red necklace hanging around Owen's neck.

But Owen, who was concerned about the guy's condition, couldn't even notice anything like that. He was frowning and fiddling with the pocket on his collar without realizing it.

'Perhaps what will happen with this?'

It contained the 'Ultimate Elixir' that Owen worked hard to obtain while playing games every night.

'It's definitely a possibility. 'This is the ultimate treatment that cures all abnormalities in the body, right?'

Still, there was only one reason for his concern. This is a mainstream essential item that I was lucky enough to obtain.

'I need to break the mainstream as soon as possible...'

Sisley, and by extension the royal family and the empire, may be in danger.

Moreover, if I used it this time, there was no guarantee that I would be able to get it again next time. When will I get the Ice Heart, which is in short supply on all servers, and summon Goddess Justitia again!

'but...'

Owen curled his hands and squeezed them.

However, we can't just leave this dangerous-looking guy like this. In the end, he closed his eyes tightly and held out a golden elixir.

With a solemn determination to work on Pangea Chronicle without a moment's rest starting tonight.

"Mores, you eat this!"

"..."

But an unexpected reaction came back.

That guy, Mores, who was looking at the item he held out with a sullen expression, immediately turned his head and responded like this!

"I do not need."

"... what?"

Owen opened his mouth stupidly at the unexpected reaction.

Although I agonized over using the elixir, I never thought they would reject it!

"You man! Do you know how good this is? Come on, try to take a good look."

But still, Mores was steadfast.

"I don't like it. Just by looking at it, it looks suspicious and tasteless."

"hey! "When someone gives you a gift, at least pretend to accept it with sincerity!"

"Uh, I won't accept it. "Because I'm not going to eat it."

Owen, whose blood pressure rose to the top of his head, had no choice but to hold the back of his neck and scream:

"... "This damn son of a bitch really!"

372

372. The Return of the Prodigal Son (7)

Yes, Mores was always like this.

He doesn't even pay attention to what others say, and he's good at blaming people the moment he opens his mouth.

While Owen was trying to control his anger, which had been rising for the first time in a while, the boy waved one hand helplessly.

"Edith."

Then, Mores' personal maid, who was standing nearby, handed Owen a small package as if she had been waiting for him.

Puzzled, I opened it and found a small brooch and a wooden statue of a saint.

"... "What is this?"

There is something special about receiving something from that Mores guy.

As I took out the bald old man, who was smiling, and looked at the cooking, the boy gave me a short answer.

"souvenir."

"souvenir? "What kind of souvenir?"

"It's not an item with any special meaning. "I wondered if it was really necessary, but I just felt uncomfortable thinking about doing it without you."

After roughly explaining that, Mores immediately sank into the bed and closed his eyes as if he was tired.

"Now that I've given you everything, go ahead. "Don't be a bother for no reason."

"what? men and horses! You're so annoying to the people who came to see you... ..!"

"There won't be time for this, right? You also need to prepare properly. "You're not planning on going out to the imperial palace dinner like that, are you?"

"huh? "What do you think you look like now?"

As Owen rubbed his greaves with a puzzled look, Mores frowned and scolded him.

"Are you asking because you don't know that? "A subject with a head like a chicken with all its feathers plucked out."

"Ssamdak... what?"

I opened my mouth dumbfounded by the harshest evaluation I've ever received, but Mores continued to criticize him with a sullen look on his face.

"Besides, what's with the clothes? "If you can't afford to dress up formally, you should at least give the impression that you are neat in the eyes of others!"

"no... .."

"You mean they did that and then held a triumphal ceremony? "The more I think about it, the more absurd it is."

Take an example from Logan. No matter how rough he gets on the battlefield, he maintains his uniform that looks as if it has just been ironed.

Do you understand? From now on, you should stop just wandering around the house and start to realize that you are the first prince of the Holy Empire!

Nagging comments that I never expected to hear from Mores poured out one after another.

Mores, who spoke bitterly like an elder knight disciplining a young squire, let out a small sigh with a slightly tired expression.

"Anyway, let's do something about that ugly chicken fur. "I also neatly trimmed my stray hairs while I was away."

"Chicken hair..."

Wow, isn't that such a harsh assessment?

This is the feather of a freshwater cormorant. It's a decoration that's like a symbol of a strong warrior! Even if you look at it, don't you feel that it has a gloss that is completely different from that of chicken fur?

However, Owen did not have time to properly correct the unfair evaluation. Because an eerie light flashed in the boy's eyes as he stared at him fiercely.

"what a waste. "If I had a little more energy than I do now, I would have plucked out all that ugly chicken hair."

"... ... !"

It was clearly a dying thing, but somehow I could feel a strange force in its bloody mutterings.

As the startled Owen flinched back, Mores' personal maid beside him smiled and walked toward him.

"Don't worry, my dear. "I will select them all on your behalf."

"Yes, Edith. Pass this message to the people who use the main palace. "Try to give that guy a proper shine before dinner."

"All right."

Thump!

"Then, Owen. "Please excuse me for a moment."

The strength of the arms of the maid pulling Owen was unusual. He looked a little embarrassed and asked Mores.

"Mores. What is this? "Your maid, you seem to be a fairly high-level Auror user, right?"

"hmm. yes."

Then the boy blinked as if he was a little sleepy and answered in a hushed voice. For some reason, he held out his small palm in front of him.

"So, look at this and listen to me as carefully as you did before. in vain... "Don't bother resisting."

Look at your hands? why?

I couldn't understand the English text at all.

"But why is this woman not in the knights' order, and is she acting as an unsuitable maid?"

"Yeah... To the knights, a plate for Edith... Since there is no one to throw it..."

... plate?

"What does that mean... ... ?"

But there is no longer any response from Mores. The boy slowly lowered his arms and then slowly closed his eyes as if he was falling asleep.

Even at first glance, it didn't seem like an ordinary sleep. Because his breathing was extremely unstable, and his rapidly flushed complexion was unusual.

Owen didn't know what to do due to the sudden situation, but Masain walked up to the boy's side, carefully touched his forehead, and said,

"... "Your fever is rising again."

Although he had a calm demeanor as if he had experienced this situation often, the driver was still unable to hide his worried expression.

Owen was also vividly feeling the severity of the situation. Even though I was just near the bed, I could already sense the intense heat radiating from Mores.

It was such a strong heat that it seemed as if it could burn a small boy in an instant.

'this... what?'

What on earth is happening to Mores now? Can the human body naturally generate such high fever?

"Don't worry, sir. "Your Majesty will probably come soon."

"Your father?"

But as soon as those words were finished, the door to the treatment room burst open and Seonghwang rushed in!

I had no idea how someone who had been at the conference hall just moments before knew and rushed to me so immediately.

"Mores!"

Wow-

As powerful divine power poured down on his head like a miracle, the boy's breathing gradually began to become more even.

The aura that was running wild in my body quiets down, and the heat that seemed like it could burst into flames quickly subsides.

'Your father is truly amazing!'

Owen, who had now reached a certain level, could roughly feel what Seonghwang was doing.

He was now using both divine power and auror, skillfully controlling Mores' auror as if it were his own.

A mysterious state that the current Owen cannot reach even in his dreams.

"... ..?"

But why?

At some point, the Holy Emperor completely stopped using Aurors, and began pouring out only divine power towards Mores. Even though he could still feel a slight heat somewhere in his body.

Mores seemed more comfortable than before, but traces of the fierce fever still remained in his exhaled breath.

"... why?"

Why on earth doesn't my father completely get rid of that heat?

Owen could not finish his question, but Seonghwang understood what he was saying and gave the answer obediently.

"Because this heat is Mores' natural auror."

"Mores's... "Are you coming?"

"okay. The flames that have engulfed my entire body have already become one with Mores, and I can no longer distinguish between Fia."

Therefore, the heat cannot be completely driven out from the son's body.

If you do something like that, not only will the child completely lose his auror and become a bad person, but if you make a mistake, you may even lose your life!

Owen's face suddenly contorted as he realized the seriousness of the situation.

"... Well then, father. What should Mores do now? ... ?"

Grumbling.

Owen, who had even forgotten the existence of the golden elixir in his hand, clenched his fist violently as if he were going to crush it.

Then Seonghwang, who stared at Owen's face for a moment, slowly raised his hand and covered his head.

And then he begins to lightly stroke the head of his godson, who has already grown to a similar height, as if he were a child. One day, when Owen couldn't sleep because of a nightmare, she always comforted him in that way.

"Don't make that face, Owen. "Isn't today an auspicious day for you to return to the imperial palace after many years?"

But why?

Although the touch had not changed at all from before, what Owen actually felt was not comfort but a trace of bitterness.

No matter how much I swallow it, it cannot be resolved, and in the end, it remains piled up in layers.

Perhaps the one who really needed comfort at this moment was Seonghwang himself.

"And in the end, all of this is something Mores chose himself."

I don't know what spirit I had in attending the imperial palace banquet.

Owen, who had lost all of his feather decorations to Mores' personal maid and was neatly dressed up by the imperial palace servants, was looking like a neat nobleman for the first time in recent times.

However, Owen was so preoccupied with the problem of Mores that he did not even notice how his appearance had changed.

Then, when he suddenly came to his senses, he was already inertically moving the dishes with the food in front of him.

'Meanwhile, the rice is really delicious.'

A rich table that shows special care was taken just for you. As I was hesitantly putting a piece of meat into my mouth, I heard bright laughter coming from beside me.

Crackling!

Even though it had been many years since they had seen each other, the twins still seemed like children, and they kept bursting into laughter as if they were having fun looking at him like that.

"Brother Owen. Are you listening to what we are saying? "Where on earth have you been preoccupied?"

In response to Herna's cheerful question, Kadesh, instead of Owen, responded politely.

"Brother Owen is probably worried about Mores. "You two have been very close recently, right?"

"... "What does that mean?"

Who are you close to? Surely you're not talking about him and Mores?

I've thought about it before, but sometimes the conversations the twins have are often incomprehensible.

"But Brother Masain ended up not attending."

"I can't help it. "Because you worry too much."

"Well, you never know when Mores will develop a high fever."

"okay. "I can't take my eyes off Mores."

It was the same for Owen.

If he hadn't been the star of today's dinner, he too would have been unable to leave the temporary treatment room for even a moment due to anxiety.

"Prince Owen. At the triumphal ceremony, it was said that he displayed the outstanding spirit of a general, but now I see that there is no other nobleman so handsome. While you're in the ecliptic, why not attend some social gatherings? "The girls of Delcross will probably be lining up to take you as their husband."

It is not that he will be the princess, but that the ladies of Delcross will take him as their husband. It was Empress Tatiana who never forgot to say a meaningful word that seemed like a compliment.

"I am truly proud of you, Prince Owen. By performing your noble duties so well, you have become a good example for other princes and princesses. "You've had a lot of trouble in a foreign land, so let's stay in the imperial capital for a while and get some rest."

As always, the pure melody of the Empress's voice is heard.

However, neither the checks from Empress Tatiana, who tried to somehow remove him from the throne, nor the selfless praise from the kind Empress Melody, did not reach Owen's ears at all.

Because only the listless faces of Mores and the bitter Seonghwang kept lingering in my mind.

The sight was so unsettling that I even forgot for a while that I had to find a newbie right away.

'How did it happen like this? There were so many things I wanted to do when I came to the imperial capital, but why was this guy who I thought was doing well so upset like that?'

It is no longer a matter of using the ultimate elixir or not.

'Can this elixir really solve the problems inherent to humans as aurors?'

Yes, now the question was whether treatment was possible with this alone.

There are potential dangers that might attack Sisley and the Seonghwang family, as well as newbies waiting(?) for him somewhere in the imperial capital. It was nothing compared to the pain of my brother that I was seeing right now.

'Hey, Sang Tae-chang. I guess I'll have to hand this elixir over to Mores!'

Owen repeated this in his head several times, but fortunately there was no response from the status window.

It was an unexpected reaction, considering that they constantly interrupted me by citing penalties every time I did something that deviated from the quest.

But even if there is interference from Sang Tae-chang, what is the use of it all? Owen had already made up his mind.

'Starting today, this is a new quest I must complete!'

Just wait and see!

I will definitely feed this to that goby!

373. Mores Exploration Journal (1)

Owen still vividly remembers the day he first met Mores.

A chubby kid with a cute personality who was staring at him with cold gray eyes.

-What is this again?

Ironically, Mores could be said to be the most royal person Owen had ever met.

There must be something strange about people from other Seonghwang families who treat this innocent country worm who suddenly appears like a real family member.

-Owen Lockwood. The guy who came back from the dead managed to crawl all the way here.

Even after he fully entered the royal family, Mores would stubbornly call him 'Lockwood'.

Thinking about it now, it was a strange thing.

How on earth did he know his real last name? Owen never mentioned his real last name.

-Remember this clearly, you idiot! From now on, I will never call you brother. A brat like you wouldn't dare expect such treatment from this body, right?

The cold words that Mores utters every time he encounters him.

At this point, even Owen, who was unfamiliar with imperial aristocratic culture, could understand.

Mores That bastard, his personality is really shit.

It was like that...

'Mores, don't you think his interpersonal relationships are surprisingly good?'

Owen had been thinking about that recently.

As I was observing him in and out of the main palace every day, more people than I expected came to the temporary treatment room, worried about the ill third prince.

That stiff-looking Royal Guard knight was a representative example.

"Sir, how are you feeling today?"

"Very well, Sir Maria. My father treats me well. "By the way, I heard you don't have to come here every time."

"no. "It is the duty of our resident knights to protect you."

"There are royal guard knights in the main palace, right? Think of it like this is your paid vacation and go train at the training center.

"Don't worry about me."

Mores was as blunt as always when dealing with the knight who came to visit. At least that's how Owen saw it.

"What kind of useless waste of manpower is this? Moreover, since the most senior gentleman keeps coming to see me, aren't the other resident knights also getting restless and following him in and out of the main palace?"

But didn't the knight seem to smile at Mores' response?

"Thank you for worrying about the situation of our resident soldiers while they are sick. We were also very worried about the degradation."

"... "No, whatever."

Owen couldn't understand her at all. How on earth can you take Mores' words like that?

"Lowering. As you said before, we have compiled a list of new restaurants."

A knight full of freckles is also a face that Owen often sees recently. She remained particularly vivid in her memory, because her youthful face was full of unconcealed fondness and loyalty for her third prince.

"In particular, the recently opened Anatolian dessert shop is said to be popular. "I went there in person yesterday, and it was in no way inferior to the highest-end Breton pastry shops."

"Um, a dessert shop?"

Mores furrows his eyebrows. There was a clear difference in temperature compared to the driver who spoke cheerfully.

"Desserts aren't that interesting. Sir Claudia. "Is there even a menu there that could be eaten?"

Still, the driver had a smile on his face, wondering what was so good about it.

"Maybe there is. If there isn't one, you can ask them to create a new menu! Hehe, let's see if it can be packaged, shall we?"

There was also a young knight who visited with similar frequency to her. Maybe it was because of the large scar on her forehead, but she was a young man who looked somewhat dirty.

He asked Mores hesitantly, with an unusually awkward expression on his face.

"As you said... Recently, I have been devoting myself to training every day under the leader. How is my brightness now? Are there any noticeable changes?"

Even though he didn't seem to be very social at first glance, he seemed to have quite the courage to ask.

But didn't Mores, who heard those words, blatantly disparage him?

"What nonsense is that, Lord Calmen? What does auror training have to do with brightness? I guess you've been training too much lately. "You're saying all that nonsense."

"yes? Woo! But I'm sure you... ..!"

"what? Mr. Woo? Woossi? Hey, just stay there for a moment. Where has Edith gone? I'm sure I was here a while ago... .."

"Sigh! no! "I'm going to go practice now, sir!"

"why? "I'll give you a cup of tea. Drink it slowly and leave."

"it's okay! "I made a mistake!"

A young man with a strong sense of discipline stands in a straight posture and breaks into a cold sweat.

Then, Mores nagged him as if he were an old knight.

"Yes, work harder. "If you and I are going to discuss the brightness of aurors, the aura should at least be at a level where it can stably emit external air."

"But before...""

"What before?"

"... .."

"what? why? what?"

"... it's nothing."

The young knight left the temporary treatment room with a very embarrassed face.

He was a friend with a very strange personality, to keep going in and out of this place while his face was blushing like that.

"But you."

Suddenly, Mores turned his gaze towards Owen, and he, who had been resting his chin dumbly until then, flinched and raised his head.

"huh?"

"Don't you have anything to do like that? When you come back after such a long time, you should think about going to various social gatherings and further solidifying your position in the imperial capital. "Why are you rolling around here on this stupid day?"

Only then did Owen suddenly realize.

If you think about it, you yourself were one of those people who went in and out of temporary treatment rooms every day without hearing good things!

"ah..."

Owen was shocked for a moment, but then remembered his purpose and took out a golden elixir from his pocket.

The reason why he visits the main palace every day recently. It was all because of the determination to feed Mores the ultimate elixir.

"Come on, Mores. Look at this. This brilliant medicine that shines gold. Doesn't it look as sweet as honey?"

"... "Are you talking about that again?"

The boy looked completely fed up.

"no. "I told you I wouldn't eat it."

"Is this really good? I found it the hard way. One bite, just one bite...
"No, can't I just taste it?"

"If it's that good, you can eat it all."

"Oh really... ... !"

I don't know if I've been in vain for several days already.

At this point, you might have listened to him at least once to see his sincerity, but the stubborn Mores guy was always stubborn.

'There's really no promise at this rate!'

Should I just feed it secretly? Owen was so conflicted for a moment.

However, no matter how good the medicine is, if you give it to the other person without their consent, how is that different from an attempt to poison someone?

In addition, Sir Martha, who never left Mores' side, was also a problem. A former knight commander who is rumored to soon become a Dekaron Knight.

Even though Owen is currently being praised as a hero of the Southern Front, it would be close to impossible for him to mix the elixir into Mores' meal without that person knowing.

"... .."

You can still see it now.

Sir Martha was staring at the elixir in Owen's hand with an incomprehensible expression. It looks like they are suspicious of the source of the elixir.

'In the end, it means that we have no choice but to persuade Mores himself.'

Anyway, why do I hate this so much? This is the ultimate elixir. It is an invincible recovery item that eliminates all status ailments and even death penalties!

"Oh, this is really good! "There is no way to express it!"

As Owen, frustrated, pounded his chest, Mores looked at him in bewilderment.

"... "Are you an idiot?"

While they were arguing, one of the main palace servants brought Mores a late lunch.

Owen looked into the tray out of curiosity, and there was a thin soup with a strange smell on it.

"Is this delicious? "It smells a bit pungent for a patient's food, doesn't it?"

Since it didn't look very appetizing, I asked about it, and surprisingly got an obedient answer.

"It's because it contains bear meat. "Once you get used to it, it's worth eating."

"Oh, I see."

Owen looked at Mores with a slightly curious expression.

Seeing that he somehow responds to my questions even though he clearly looks annoyed, it seems like something has definitely changed.

'that's interesting. 'I can't believe I can live so peacefully with this guy.'

So, it looks like he's probably going to keep talking to me next to me.

"By the way, bear meat? Mores, do you like that? "Before, I only ate sweets every day."

"What nonsense are you talking about? Of course, you eat it because you like it."

"okay? But why do you frown like that while eating?"

Owen asked quietly.

Are you sure you really like it? I'm trying to force myself to swallow, but somehow my stomach feels very uncomfortable.

'Besides, I feel like I have less energy than before... ... '

That was when I thought about it.

Cheer up!

The spoon was thrown to the floor with a loud sound. Mores didn't throw it, but the cutlery simply slipped from his weakened hands.

"Lowering!"

"Mores!?"

The two people were shocked to see Mores staggering while sitting, but the Holy Emperor, who came running straight from his office, immediately poured powerful divine power on the boy.

Paaaa-

The temporary treatment room is suddenly engulfed in bright light.

"Mores, are you okay?"

After a while.

In response to Seonghwang's worried question, the guy who was out of breath just now opened his eyes and happily pretended to understand.

"... Uh, father. "Are you here?"

Then, his face soon becomes normal, and he clicks his tongue as he looks at the messed up floor.

"Oh, what a waste of bear meat soup...""

Looking at that carefree look, I started crying without even realizing it! My stomach turned.

"Mores, you man!"

Owen was yelling at the boy without even realizing it. If he had been like him before, it was something he would never have imagined.

"Is soup the problem in this situation? Don't pretend like you're okay and just think about eating. If you're sick, tell me in advance that you're sick! If you do that, what happens to the people around you! Huh?"

"hmm? But it didn't hurt that much earlier."

"Ah, this bastard is still... ..!"

Wow-!

As Owen felt his blood pressure rising rapidly and held the back of his neck, Seonghwang, who somehow knew, approached him and secretly showered him with divine power. He had a calm demeanor, as if this was not the first time something like this had happened.

Hwaaah-

The divine power that gave me a somewhat familiar feeling gave me a strange feeling, and the Holy Emperor continued to pour out the divine power towards Lord Masain next to him.

Then Sir Masain bowed his head politely and expressed his gratitude.

"Thank you, Your Majesty. Thanks to this, my chronic gastritis has gotten much better recently."

Owen somehow felt like he deserved to know.

How much trouble did Mores have to endure to cause chronic gastritis to occur in powerful Auror users as high as senior knights?

In the end, Owen, who failed to feed Mores the elixir again today, left the temporary treatment room with a slightly mixed feeling.

But it was just as he was about to leave the main palace lobby.

"Ugh! "Please save me!"

A rather familiar scream was heard from afar. It was a scream from a minority tribe in Barsha, something rarely heard in the imperial capital.

"When are you coming back, Owen?"

Ah, Bartoja. I forgot about that guy.

Owen clicked his tongue and turned in the direction of the sound.

Eventually, the cowardly Bartoja, who was noticed by Wakana Tusai, suffered from extreme fear as soon as the Great Tribal Council ended.

So he grabbed Owen by the leg of his pants and clung to him desperately. She asked me to take her with me on my way back to the imperial capital.

The result was this.

He had been restlessly following Owen every day, but now he was screaming as he was crushed by a huge wolf in the courtyard of the imperial palace.

"Look at this, Owen! The tribal chief of Delcross is raising such a fearsome monster!"

What a monster. Although it is a little big, it is not an ordinary wolf.

As Owen approached them, the wolf that had been happily playing with Bartoja looked up and caught Owen's scent.

Sniff!

Then, something unexpected happened. The wolf suddenly lifted his muzzle and began howling mournfully into the air.

Awww-!

I couldn't understand the English text at all.

"oh! Owen! Purma's old friend!"

Meanwhile, Bartoja ran away and hid behind Owen. It seems like it was only yesterday that he came to me to seek revenge on the Purma tribe, but the more I saw him, the quicker he changed his attitude.

Ooooh-! Kiing! Wow!

"Owen! "Please, please do something to that monster!"

A wolf is howling loudly in front, and an annoying Bartosa is clinging to the back, trembling.

Owen scratched his head in embarrassment.

"Why is a wolf wandering around in the palace courtyard? "Isn't it dangerous?"

When I see the knights of the main palace guard keeping it quiet, I wonder if it is being raised by someone in the imperial palace.

I stretched out my hand and the wolf stopped howling and came closer.

Then he sticks his nose into Owen's hand and sniffs it again. Contrary to its violent appearance, it does not seem to be aggressive towards people.

"uh? How amazing? "Isn't Max the type of guy who is so kind to people he meets for the first time?"

At that time, a maid holding a large dog bowl approached and opened her mouth. She was the dedicated maid of Mores, who was also acquainted with Owen.

"I guess I caught the scent of Prince Mores from you."

"The smell of Mores?"

"Yes, sir. "This wolf dog is the dog kept by His Majesty Mores."

"okay?"

When he stroked the back of his neck, the wolfdog did not avoid his touch, but stared at Owen's face with amber eyes.

There was no sign of tail slapping or gentle stroking. It was almost like a noble attitude, as if she would just put up with this out of consideration for her friendship with her owner.

'When I think about it that way, I think he kind of resembles that guy Mores... ..!'

Sweet.

When Edith put the food bowl down on the floor, the wolf-dog jerked Owen's hand away and began to eat leisurely. For a dog, he was truly unusual.

"Well, he's not easy."

"Yes, Max really knows people in a funny way. Isn't that the case in Barcelona? "If they show even the slightest bit of clumsiness, they are immediately treated as Max's toys."

???

While waiting for the dog to finish eating, Edith told Owen about the situation.

"His Majesty Mores has instructed us to keep Max away from him for a while. From then on, Max came to the main palace courtyard and cried, looking for his wife."

I never imagined that Mores would raise a dog. Looking at it desperately looking for its owner, it looks like it's very cute.

"But why are you only separating the dogs? "Even though he is in a hospital bed, everyone still visits Zalman Mores."

"From what I heard, it seems that it is because Max is very sensitive to the lower aura. So, you might be worried that it will affect you and make you sick."

"Are you sensitive to auras?"

Owen's eyes widened at the unexpected answer. However, the maid's explanation that followed was even more absurd.

"Yes, sir. It is said that Max will transform into a great person by using the auror of Mores, right?"

"transform... what... ... ?"

Even though I heard it, I still can't understand what it means.

Owen was dumbfounded, but Edith added an explanation with an extremely serious expression.

"Yes, sir. It transforms. "This dog is [Wind], the divine beast of the main god, praised throughout the world."

... Huh?

374. Mores Exploration Journal (2)

A knight who defeated a demon race with the grace of the main god.

Savior of Sigismund and Bathurst.

The owner of the divine beast [Wind].

The second coming of the great Saint Bastian.

Surprisingly, all of these were modifiers referring to Mores.

Owen, who had been concentrating on feeding him elixir after returning to the imperial capital, was dumbfounded when he belatedly heard these rumors.

what? That guy, Mores, hasn't he somehow become a huge guy even though we haven't seen him in a long time?

"People all over the Imperial Capital are talking about that right now. "Maybe if Master Owen had even gone out of the palace for a moment, he would have known about it."

Carrie, the dedicated maid, lightly scolded Owen.

She is an old woman with a savory Rohan accent in every word she speaks. She was a well-established maid who took care of Owen while he was in the imperial palace, and I heard she even served the previous empress.

"Can't you see the pile of invitations over there? So many people are looking for you, Owen, so why don't you even think about looking into it?"

Current imperial figures were very interested in the heroes of the Southern Front.

A young, handsome, unmarried prince.

There were many reasons to build friendships. Even though there were rumors that he was not Seonghwang's biological son, his enormous achievements and political influence were not something that could be easily ignored.

Of course, there would be genuine curiosity about the prince, who rarely shows his face in social circles.

But Owen's reaction was sour.

"Where do you have time to go to such useless places?"

"Owen is the eldest of the Seonghwang family. Shouldn't you build your network and presence in the social world? Even Prince Mores is said to show up at social gatherings once in a while these days."

"It's him. Either way. I don't have enough time to spend with my family. "If the situation in the South suddenly changes, we may have to rush to the front again."

For Owen, his position as a prince was a good thing. Because the only thing that mattered to him was the safety of the Holy Family.

"Oh my. "If you missed your family so much, they would have come back a long time ago."

Carrie shook her head.

"And when you come back, you don't stay in the Blue Rose Labyrinth even for a moment. Same goes for Logan and Owen. "The owners have left the palace empty for such a long time, so the old man has been lonely for a long time."

"hmm. that... "No shame, Carrie."

"Don't apologize if you don't mean it. Well, considering that I stayed at the imperial palace, it's good that things seem to have become easier in my later years."

Carrie, who was grumbling and sorting out Owen's clothes, was as affectionate as ever.

But the sight of her, who had aged significantly over the years, somehow aroused Owen's heartbreaking sorrow.

"By the way, Mr. Owen. "I made and sent out new, stiff clothes every quarter, so why are they all tattered?"

Owen, who couldn't see her threading with his bleary eyes, took the needle and thread from her.

"I couldn't help it, Carrie. I was always on the battlefield. "Every day was a series of tough battles."

"Heng! "You must be young."

Carrie snorted as she took back the neatly threaded thread.

"This old man assures me that not all knights on the southern front are like Owen. "You've been dressing very sloppily ever since you were young, right?"

... Was it like that?

Since I had freshly ironed clothes ready every morning, this was something I hadn't paid any attention to until now.

"If you think about it, even among the children of the Seonghwang family, Owen was really special. How did the clothes fall off so easily? She must have been fighting over clothes every day with Prince Mores."

"... huh? I?"

Owen blinked after hearing the unexpected words. She and Mores would growl at each other whenever they saw her face, but she couldn't remember the details of why they fought.

Then Carrie narrowed her eyes behind her reading glasses and responded.

"Why not? After being scolded for being unkempt in our clothes, we fight, and after another fight, our clothes become more dirty, and Prince Mores points this out again. Because that vicious cycle continued continuously. "I wondered what on earth they were doing to watch the two of them from the side."

"... .."

"Well, you were both young back then."

Carrie, who had said that, started sewing while humming.

Fluttering. The soft fabric is pierced at regular intervals, creating a rhythm similar to the sound of music.

Owen closed his eyes for a moment and quietly listened to Carrie's humming and the sound of sewing, which he had not heard in a long time.

"Still, there were times when this old man was grateful to Prince Mores."

At the sudden sound of Carrie's voice, Owen, who had been leaning on the sofa, opened his eyes and looked up at her.

"thanks? "To that guy?"

What on earth?

"Well, if Owen had a nightmare, wouldn't he have no appetite and be lethargic all day? But after fighting Prince Mores, strangely enough, I completely forget all my morning worries, right?"

That unlucky guy! I can never forgive you like this! If you want to fight him properly, you need to save up your stamina! Carrie had a humorous expression and imitated the grumpy Owen.

"You used to say that and empty a bowl of food in no time. "Owen, you should be a little simpler."

I thought she was vaguely reminiscing, but then a blasphemous word came out of her mouth.

Carrie has always had that attitude. She seemed to be getting older and closer to death, but she showed the courage to not care about minor blasphemies.

Of course, Owen actually felt comfortable with that aspect of her.

"I said that? "I don't remember anything at all?"

When Owen opened his mouth in surprise, Carrie wrinkled her eyes and smiled mischievously.

"Of course. So, sometimes, when I felt like I was feeling too lazy, I would ask the escort drivers to take a walk along the Jinju Palace street. "Have you not noticed that at all until now?"

"... .. !?"

Owen was almost delirious from repeated shock.

The person who always warmly comforted him when he had a hard time confessing the severe criticism he received from Mores.

A person like my paternal grandmother, who would greet me with warm bath water when I came home covered in dirt.

At least that's what Carrie looked like in Owen's memories.

'however... .. '

In fact, she considered their disagreements to be insignificant children's fights, and sometimes even deliberately encouraged them to clash?

No matter how glorified our childhood memories are, how can people change so much?

"Wait a minute, Carrie! Does that mean it's real? "I was very serious at the time!"

"Well then, why not? "When you're young, everyone is serious about trivial things."

"no! Really? What did that bastard Mores say to me when I was at my most sensitive... ..!"

"A person who is so sensitive runs around the entire imperial palace tearing off his clothes every time? You don't even care about being criticized? "Isn't it really funny?"

Owen's protests had no effect on Carrie.

"So, why don't you just let bygones be bygones? "Stop hating Prince Mores."

Rattling.

Owen creaked and turned his head at the sudden, direct remark that hit the nail on the head.

"... "Who on earth can you hate?"

When Carrie answered in a slightly weak voice, she stopped sewing and looked at Owen intently.

"Do you really think that? Don't try to fool this old man. "While Owen was on the southern front, did you ever send a letter to Prince Mores?"

"... .."

"This old man doesn't know that Owen thinks fondly of everyone in the Seonghwang family. But isn't it true that you only treat Prince Mores harshly?"

I couldn't bear to deny it.

Although Owen regularly sent news to the royal family and even to his personal maid, Carrie, he had never written a letter to Mores.

The reason was obvious.

Because I really hated Mores.

"Well, that guy told me first..." .."

"When you first came to the imperial palace, how many people behaved like that in front of Master Owen? But you didn't care one bit, Mr. Owen, did you? Think about it carefully."

"... .."

"I am saying that you have become a great general now, but in the past, Owen had many things that made him uneasy, even to this old man."

A boy who suddenly becomes the first prince of the empire and receives everyone's attention. The emotions contained in those sharp gazes could never have been friendly.

In addition, Owen was so obsessed with his parents' death that he had nightmares every day. Thinking back, it seems like his heart at the time was full of aimless sadness and resentment.

"Of course, His Majesty, the prince, and the princess worked hard for Owen. But I guess that alone wouldn't have been enough. "How can a person live by hearing only good things and saying only good things?"

"... .."

"But Mr. Owen doesn't know anyone else in the imperial palace.

"Then who else could there have been at that time, other than Prince Mores, whom one could easily curse and hate?"

"No, Carrie. that... ..!"

Owen, who was about to respond angrily, immediately closed his mouth and took a deep breath. Because he suddenly had strong doubts about himself.

Was it really not that?

The death of his parents, a rapid change in environment, and strong pressure to live up to his status.

Can you completely guarantee that you did not use the disagreement with Mores as a kind of breakthrough to relieve those heavy emotions?

"Owen, you've become a full-fledged adult now, right? "You must humbly acknowledge what is acceptable and accept what is acceptable."

Sigh.

Carrie cut the thread with scissors and presented the neatly repaired shirt to Owen.

"In this old man's opinion, the fight you two had at the time was not something worth taking to heart. "He compares himself to other brothers and swears at them, right? Prince Mores wasn't that vicious at the time."

Owen could not accept what he had just heard. Mores is a vicious person. Isn't this a fact that everyone in the imperial palace knows?

-Don't you dare mistake yourself for being a member of the Holy Family, Owen Lockwood. You're just a village worm who was lucky enough to survive!

-Are you walking around the imperial palace proudly even though you're such a shabby person? It would be better for you to leave the ecliptic as quickly as possible and quietly settle down in a corner of the continent. And live as a puppet who only listens to what the next person tells you! Then you'll be at least half of what everyone else is doing!

Because Mores was a member of the Holy Family, the verbal abuse was even more heartbreaking.

But now Carrie is saying that all of that was just nothing.

"In this old man's opinion, Prince Mores was just a child who grew up spoiled and had no knack for dealing with people."

Carrie smiled gently, looking at the confused Owen. With eyes full of wisdom that only an old man who has lived through a long period of time can have.

"It is the duty of a superior to boldly forgive and move on from the facade of childhood. "Didn't our eccentric Mr. Owen, since he was young, have a generosity that was larger than the southern prairies?"

375. Mores Exploration Journal (3)

That evening.

Owen, who was influenced by Carrie and went back to see Mores, soon came to regret his thoughts.

'huh. It was all just your imagination, Carrie. Mores That bastard is the worst-tempered bastard on the continent! 'You're a stubborn idiot who can't be saved!'

No matter how hard I tried, I couldn't communicate at all with Mores, who started acting recklessly.

'Why? I thought I explained it quite seriously, but why aren't you listening to me this much?'

In order to persuade Mores, he even made up the source of the elixir using his brain that was not working well.

It is an all-purpose cure that priest Bart, a living saint, personally brewed herbs said to be good for the body and prayed and blessed them every day!

Of course, I didn't ask for the person's permission, but I firmly believe that Priest Bart would understand.

"hey! Do you know how precious this cure is? We newbies worked so hard to find an item that was completely out of stock on the server...
... !"

It was so heated that the real source almost came out.

As Owen hurriedly covered his mouth, Mores glanced at him and responded with a sullen look on his face again.

"... No matter how good the treatment is, what do you do? It's no use to me now anyway. "I won't listen."

"No, that means you should try it out first to see if it's useful or not!"

"no. Why do I need to confirm something I know so clearly?

"Anyway, there is no cure stronger than my father's divine power."

"But there is one possibility!"

Owen shouted, unable to hide his nervousness. If it was any later, he didn't know when he would have another chance to persuade him like this. Lord Masaine's eyes were slowly looking at him and becoming unusual.

But perhaps unaware of his anxiousness, Mores' reaction was consistent.

"huh. doesn't exist. And that thing looks really tasty."

"Kaaaaak!"

In the end, Owen, who was caught by the back of his neck, was only able to calm down after receiving some divine power from the Holy Emperor who appeared a while later. It goes without saying that in the meantime, Mores had a high fever again.

'Why on earth are you so stubborn? For a subject that is having such a hard time.'

Looking at Mores, who was wheezing, Owen desperately grabbed the elixir. Then, Seonghwang, who was watching her silently, opened her mouth quietly.

"You keep bringing it up, Owen. "Can you tell me what it is for?"

"... Ah yes. father."

I never thought it would attract the attention of Seonghwang.

Owen suddenly came to his senses, hesitated for a moment, and then opened his mouth with difficulty.

"This... Obtained with great difficulty in the South... "It's good medicine for your body."

I couldn't bear to tell him a long lie, so I blurted out my words awkwardly, but Seonghwang nodded as if he didn't seem to mind.

"... okay. "It looks like that."

"... .."

"Mores says it's useless now, so doesn't that mean it might be different next time? Please take good care of it. "I will bless that place."

Seonghwang, who said something meaningful, poured divine power on the elixir and then disappeared beyond the office.

"... ..?"

For a moment, I was taken aback by a completely unexpected situation. Owen sat down next to the bed, collecting the elixir.

Still, there was one good thing. I felt like Lord Masaine's eyes had lost some strength as he looked at the elixir.

Owen sighed and caught a glimpse of a small window floating below his gaze.

[Main Stream 3? Progress 0%]

After completing Main Stream 2, it is a main stream that rarely progresses. Perhaps it's because the prerequisite quests haven't been completed.

[Special Quest? Let's go back to the ecliptic!]

[Quest Grade: E]

[The goddess who rules one dimension received a special request from someone and collected the essence of all things in one place. Thanks to that invisible effort, you were able to obtain the 'Ultimate Elixir' easier than you thought. It goes without saying that precious things always have a valuable use. Now you must return to the ecliptic and find someone to gift this item to.]

[Reward: 30 P Cash]

[*This product is available in the Pangea Chronicle store window.]

Owen took a close look at the quest floating at the top of the status window.

'When did you return to Delcross...? ... '

The title is 'Let's go back to the ecliptic', but why on earth does this quest show no signs of being completed? I asked Sang Chang-chang several times, but there was no clear answer.

So Owen was wondering if there were other hidden requirements that had to be met.

-Now you have to go back to the ecliptic and find someone to gift this item to.

okay. This probably means that you have to find someone and hand over the ultimate elixir.

Considering that the title of the main stream is 'Save Seong□!', finding that person named 'Seong□' would be an urgent priority.

But who is it?

Do you really mean Sisley or your father?

'Isn't there a possibility that the target is Mores?'

That was a pretty reasonable suspicion. How many days has it been since Owen has been insisting on giving Elixir to Mores, putting aside the quest?

However, there has been no response from Sang Sang-chang so far.

There has been only one such case so far.

'It means that my actions did not deviate greatly from the direction that Sang Sang-chang wanted.'

Originally, Sang Tae-chang was meticulous and accurate in everything, to the point where he even gave instructions on the smallest course of action when meeting the tribal leader.

However, in some cases, the status window would give ambiguous instructions like this.

A representative example was the quest about Priest Bart.

Occasionally, when his visit and Owen's schedule seemed to conflict, Sang Sang-chang would urge him to return to camp, citing all kinds of strange reasons.

All you have to do is launch the quest 'Let's meet Priest Bart waiting at the camp!' Didn't he just avoid mentioning it at all, as if it was difficult to even talk about it?

'It was the same when I met Nazranka in the Volanta tribe.'

The quest Owen received at the time was like this.

[Special Quest? Get helpers to help you in Volanta!]

Other than that, there was no information at all, so I wandered around and was about to give up.

However, when I met a stubborn-looking shaman at the elders' council, I was surprised to find that the quest was suddenly completed!

I never dreamed that she would be a helper. Volanta's shaman, Nazranka, has long been famous for having great antipathy toward the empire.

As a result, she surprisingly maintained thorough neutrality, preventing excessive opposition from other elders.

When Owen once asked the reason, Nazranka answered:

-The Great Spirit wants me to do so.

Yes, even then, Sang Sang-chang didn't say anything. I just let Owen move on and let things go as they went.

While Owen was lost in thought-

Grumble.

Sir Martha drew a large armchair and sat down across the bed from Owen.

Then, he started taking out handicraft items from his arms.

"Still, seeing His Majesty Mores lying in the treatment room like this, while my heart aches, I think there is also a part of me that feels at ease. "You won't have any dangerous accidents for a while."

Then, in a polite manner, he begins to engrave cute flower petals on the blue cloth.

Owen, who was curious to see what this was, looked at him blankly for a moment and then asked.

"... embroidery? "Do you do all the embroidery?"

"yes. This is also quite a mental discipline. "There is no better hobby for dealing with angry emotions."

I also felt like I knew who I was angry about.

"Just wait a moment. Don't you think you have a worthy old man now? "I will make you a cone that suits you well."

"... ... ?"

Old man, what do you think? What is that?

He wanted to ask that, but Owen couldn't open his mouth quickly. This is because Sir Martha soon began to devote himself to embroidery with a serious attitude.

width. Slurp. Width, slither.

For a while, the quiet room was filled with only the sound of the needle and thread moving.

"... .."

That was when Owen was rolling his eyes helplessly, looking at Mores' face and then at the needle.

"Childhood... So, before you came to the imperial palace, Prince Mores at that time was very different from the person you knew."

"... Is that so?"

"Yes, he was a very kind and lively person. "There has never been such a lovely little prince in the world."

Kind and... activity? Lovely?

It was a sight that Owen could not have imagined at all.

However, a gentle smile that could not be hidden was on Lord Masain's lips as he reminisced about the past for the first time in a long time.

"At first, I thought I should become an imperial knight for Ilshin's well-being. But not long after I met Prince Mores, I was able to discover the true purpose of my life. "Being by Prince Mores' side and dedicating my life to protecting him."

"... .."

"Whatever causes harm to Him, I will directly condemn with my own hands."

Sir Martha, who had said that, stopped sewing and looked directly at Owen.

"That's why I wanted to ask you from a long time ago. "This is the product that Your Majesty has forced Prince Mores to take several times."

Although his eyes seemed calm at first glance, a strong fire was quietly burning in the center of those eyes.

"Is it really a cure? Are you acting like that because you think it is absolutely necessary for Prince Mores?"

Owen realized something again at that question.

That knight, who just seemed like a good person, was the one who spent the prosperous era of his predecessors in the middle of the imperial palace when plots and secret tactics were rampant.

In other words, those who do not fully believe in these peaceful times. So, having already decided to stand on Mores' side, he is ready to make a heartless choice whenever necessary.

Oh soso.

Suddenly, a faint goosebump appeared down my spine.

Nevertheless, Owen was proud. Even though he could not completely sort out his feelings for Mores, his affection for the entire Seonghwang family was sincere.

And if something happens to Mores like this, his loved ones will surely be greatly saddened.

So I was able to answer confidently.

"Yes, it is. I understand that you might not be willing to believe this. But this is something that will benefit Mores, but will never harm him."

"... .."

"As proof, didn't your father just consecrate this himself?"

Then Sir Martha, who looked into his eyes for a moment, slowly nodded.

"yes. "I will trust you."

Owen was momentarily relieved by that answer.

But Sir Martha's business did not end there.

"If you do, can you leave it to me for now?"

"... yes?"

"I also have the same thoughts as Prince Mores right now. Now that His Majesty the Holy Emperor is by our side, there will be no cure in the world as helpful as His Majesty's divine power. But if the day ever comes when Prince Mores needs it... .."

Lord Masaine, who had said that much, hesitated for a moment and then added.

"And if a day comes when your Majesty is inevitably unable to help the prince, then Masain I will personally give you the cure. "Can't we do that?"

"... .."

Originally, it was something that could never have happened. A precious elixir that you never know when you can get it again.

However, perhaps because of the serious atmosphere that Sir Martha gave off, Owen was moving his hands as if he was possessed without even realizing it.

And just as I dropped the elixir into Lord Martha's hands-

Tiring!

Owen could finally hear the little beep he had been waiting for.

It was an update sound announcing the completion of the quest.

[Special Quest? Let's go back to the ecliptic! (Completed)]

376. Mores Exploration Journal (4)

Owen, who returned to the Blue Rose Labyrinth, sat down on the sofa with a dazed expression. In one hand she was holding a small cone that Sir Massaine had made for her.

[Special Quest - Let's go back to the ecliptic! (complete)]

As I looked at the small window blinking in front of me, I felt a strange sense of emptiness.

'The ultimate elixir is probably... ... '

It will be used by or for Mores. If so, there is a high probability that Main Stream 3 will also revolve around Mores.

'I was planning on giving it to him anyway, regardless of the quest.'

Nevertheless, when I found out the truth, I couldn't help but lose my motivation.

Owen has never neglected his quest even for a moment. First, to make myself stronger. Next, to be of some help to the Seonghwang family. And recently, I have devoted myself to a quest day and night to protect my beloved family.

But the person I tried so hard to save turned out to be that obnoxious guy I had been fighting against!

Of course, no matter what crisis was coming to Mores, Owen would not have turned a blind eye to it in the end.

But even if he had known the truth a long time ago, would he have been able to put all his effort into the quest like he did before?

Frankly, Owen couldn't guarantee that. Perhaps the status window was well aware of this, so it deliberately 'Save Castle□!' He might have come up with the same ambiguous title.

'You know what? I somehow feel greatly deceived, Sang Sang-chang!'

I grumbled into the air, but the status window showed no response.

Right then-

smart.

With a small knocking sound on the window, a small new figure wearing a stealth suit entered the room. He was an informant for the Monkey Watchtower who had been assisting him for a long time.

"Lowering. "I'm a little late."

Owen couldn't hide his joy and shouted at the round-faced woman who greeted him warmly.

"No. 9!"

She was a fairly old veteran informant who had remained on the southern front to finish the job even after Owen left.

It would probably be close to impossible to immediately hand over the complex task of moving between pagan tribes with diverse languages and customs to someone else.

So, after handing over the work to the successor informant as meticulously as possible, she belatedly followed Owen to the imperial capital.

"Welcome back, No. 9. "What's the mood like in the South these days?"

"For now it is quiet. Perhaps it's because Karazhan, the most aggressive of all, is being uncharacteristically cautious. Most of the other tribes also seem to welcome the truce."

Number 9 was using a quick and light tone that was unbecoming of his middle age. Although he was naturally irritable and fast-talking, over the years he had been with Owen, this tendency had become more evident.

Owen was partly to blame for this as well. As he undertook his duties and stayed hidden among the Varsha tribes for a long time under his orders, his pronunciation of the imperial language gradually became muffled and eventually began to resemble the tone of the pagans.

"According to rumors, Wakana Tusai is currently struggling with the succession issue. "She has already chosen her young eldest daughter as her successor, but it looks like her eldest son Wakana Kushat's opposition is not easy."

Unlike Volanta, Karazhan is a tribe where power is mostly passed down through maternal lines. This was due to Barça's long-held belief that his daughter had a deeper blood connection.

However, parents do not always agree with their children's farming, and sometimes a child is born who is so outstanding that he shakes up all the traditions.

This was the case with Wakana Kushat, the eldest son of Wakana Tusai.

"okay. I saw him at the Great Tribal Council. He seemed quite confident and ambitious."

Owen also saw the potential for the next successor in Wakana Kushat. If anything, she would have thought of slowly becoming acquainted with him first, after putting aside old Wakana Tusai.

If Owen, an outsider, felt that way, he could well imagine how much of a waste of talent he must have been in the eyes of his fellow tribesmen.

Thanks to this, the Karazhan Presbyterian Council was recently divided into two groups, which seemed to be causing a lot of commotion. There was a reason why Wakana Tusai, the old fox, so obediently agreed to the truce.

"Anyway, how have you been these days? "Why does your complexion look bad?"

"hmm. Actually... .."

Owen, who usually enjoys chatting with No. 9, slowly opened up about his recent concerns. Of course, except for the status window and quests.

And when No. 9 heard what Carrie had said to Owen, he immediately became angry.

"Does that make sense? "She's like a fucking old woman!"

"No. 9. "Do you think differently?"

"Of course! That old man really knows nothing! He's never trained as an Auror, so he's probably never heard the details of what you two were talking about! "Aren't you just saying that the kids are fighting among themselves again?!"

Number 9 wheezed indignantly, as if he had been insulted.

"Prince Mores has clearly crossed the line! "It was never a problem that could be easily resolved!"

"hmm. Right."

Although other people's positions were so clear, Owen, the person involved, was rather confused.

Maybe it's because people have changed so much, but recently I felt like my hatred for Mores was gradually diluting.

"Well, in a way, it's not unreasonable. Wasn't Grandma Carrie the faithful maid of honor to Empress Bethsheba? So, no matter what others say, if it's the people of Seonghwang, all we can do is look at it positively and move on!"

As said, Carrie's previous owner was Empress Bethsheba, the mother of the current emperor. She is said to have served and followed the abandoned empress both materially and spiritually until the previous empress threw her out to another villa.

Perhaps it was all thanks to Carrie that Empress Bethsheba, who had no divine power, was able to survive for so long in the villa where poisoning attempts were rampant every day.

Because she was like that, she would have been able to sincerely take care of Owen, who suddenly came in and joined the royal family. When she becomes a dedicated maid who has been in the imperial palace for a long time, her arrogance is bound to be high, most of the time unnecessarily.

However, unlike Owen, who was grateful to Carrie, No. 9 seemed to be dissatisfied with her dull and indifferent treatment every time.

"How dare you help me with such a lax attitude, I cannot forgive you! Well, that nasty old lady has always been like that! So, I can serve the mentally ill empress whom everyone else was reluctant to do without any thought... ..!"

psychopath?

When Owen flinched, Number 9, embarrassed, hurriedly picked up the words and swallowed them.

"... Oh, it's nothing. "I made a mistake, so just forget about it."

It seemed like he heard something loud, but Owen didn't inquire about it in detail.

Isn't the former Empress the mother of your beloved father? So, I didn't want to hear her gossip about her, no matter how absurd it was. Apart from that, though she felt the need to cheer up the overheated No. 9.

"Calm down, Number 9. "I also didn't just obediently listen to Mores' words at that time."

"that... ..!"

Number 9, who was getting angry, suddenly remembered the past and chewed his tongue without thinking.

It certainly was. When she was criticized by Prince Mores for being ignorant, Owen would pour out a series of insults that matched her ignorance. These were swear words of incredible intensity that I had picked up on the outskirts of Rohan.

At least Carrie was probably right about one thing. When Owen played against Mores he was always full of energy and he never backed down.

"And Carrie has a point. We are not children anymore. "You can't just fight with him by the collar forever, right?"

"Lowering... .."

Number 9 looked very moved.

"I always think about you, you really have a big heart! "I wish Prince Mores could have been at least half as generous as you are."

"Stop talking nonsense, let's talk about work. Actually, number 9, there is something I really want you to do."

Owen brought up an important issue that he had been putting off because he was concerned about the sick Mores.

It's about finding the newbie you met at Pangea Chronicle.

"Lee Seong-jin... Is it called ? "It's such a strange name that the pronunciation is a bit confusing."

Number 9, who heard the whole story, tilted his head. No matter how much I listened to it, it didn't seem like a Delcross-style naming.

"okay. They said they were living in the imperial capital, but from what I heard, the surrounding environment seemed to be quite harsh. So, it would be better to search mainly in slums as much as possible."

"I understand. Just in case, I will make arrangements in areas near the Imperial Capital and report back as soon as information comes in. "Then take a break!"

Number 9 hurriedly greeted Owen and left. Due to his impatient nature, it seems that after receiving a new mission, his hands became itchy and he couldn't bear it.

Owen, who was alone again, unconsciously placed the cone he was holding on the wooden statue in front of him.

'Looking at it like this, it seems like I get along quite well with you...
... .'

Owen looked blankly at the statue and gathered his thoughts.

In the end, the relationship between him and Mores will have to change somehow. Owen is now the only one who remembers the past resentment, and lately, it seems like Mores has been treating him uncharacteristically warmly(?).

'And there's the problem of the next quest.'

Owen moved his gaze and opened the newly shiny quest window.

[Main Quest - Find your own place! new!]

[Quest Grade: E]

[You have put to rest the long-standing feud with the pagans and brought about a truce that may have been the starting point of complete peace. You have proven yourself and established yourself as a great prince, but unfortunately, the foundation of all your achievements and reputation is currently on the Southern Front. The most efficient action to take when you don't have a solid support base is probably to help others and borrow their support. From now on, find out on your own where your power is needed within the imperial palace, and do not spare any assistance here.]

[Reward: 20 P Cash]

[*This product is available in the Pangea Chronicle store window.]

Owen smiled involuntarily.

Now, take a look. Seeing as all the expressions are ambiguous, there is a high possibility that this is also a quest related to Mores.

'Well, I guess I'll just keep fighting next to him for a while. Every now and then, I receive reports about newbie searches.'

Owen stared at the statue's warm smile for a moment, then put on a black rabbit eye patch and slowly closed his eyes.

Originally, I had planned to head to the main palace as soon as morning dawned. But as soon as Owen left the auditorium's labyrinth, she had to immediately change her schedule. Because she had been asked by Amelia to take a moment.

And the place where Amelia smiled and led him was to the Pearl Palace, where the owner was currently away.

'The two of you are so close that you can come and go as you please?'

Jinju Palace had a brighter atmosphere than before.

As Owen looked around in confusion, a large number of employees came and went, politely offering their respects to Owen. Even without Mores, it seemed natural for them to come and go to Jinju Palace.

"This is the place."

The place where Amelia finally stopped was a large atelier with a bright view of the Jinju Palace courtyard.

A young painter who was concentrating on his work under a sunny window bowed his head as they entered.

"That person is the most skilled portrait painter in the imperial capital. "Mores signed a contract to employ him for life, and even provided him with a private atelier within the Pearl Palace."

"okay?"

I thought it was quite surprising that Mores would support an artist, but Amelia's next words were even more surprising.

"From now on, I will become a portrait painter dedicated to the people of Seonghwangga. He said he would draw pictures of his family throughout his life."

"... "You're drawing family?"

That Mores?

Owen once again looked at the picture the artist was working on.

It was a very magnificent picture. The image of a majestic boy standing with a wide field behind him, holding a huge sword.

"This... "Is this a portrait of Mores?"

Although it was still unfinished, it was an outstanding portrait, even to Owen, who was unfamiliar with painting.

Between the black clothes and the dark background, the person's quiet face and bright blonde hair stand out brightly.

The deep gray eyes of the boy staring straight ahead seemed to be looking through everything beyond the picture. Just as Owen often felt whenever he looked into his godfather's eyes.

"You drew it well. But doesn't he seem too mature for Mores?"

Owen looked back at Amelia with a shocked expression. Why not? In his mind, Mores was just a small child.

Of course, the reason I saw him after returning after such a long time was that he was curled up in bed and fretting.

"He's still a little kid, right?"

As I said out loud, "I'm a kid," the image of a cute friend I had recently met passed by.

Now that I think about it, I thought that Mores would be around the same age as Newbie. Sometimes he holds out his hand in front of his eyes while talking, which somehow reminds me of that little friend's habit.

He must have lived well in the imperial palace, eating only good things, but why is Mores still so small?

Then Amelia looked back at Owen and let out a small laugh.

"haha. What nonsense are you talking about? Mores is tall compared to his peers. "It's just that my brother suddenly grew so much that he looks relatively small!"

"... okay?"

"then. And how thoughtful and dignified is he? "It feels strange to me that my brother treats me like a child."

Deep in thought... Are you dignified?

That stubborn Mores who can't communicate?

However, Amelia's eyes as she looked at Mores' portrait while saying that were filled with deep, heartfelt affection.

Owen became somewhat puzzled.

When I think about it, I was the one who growled the most with Mores, but that was only because he confronted me loudly without any regard for face.

If you think about it, wasn't Amelia and Logan the ones who were hurt the most by that guy Mores at the time? But how are they doing so well now?

"By the way, Amelia. "Why did you ask to see me here?"

"Oh yeah. "I invited you to take this opportunity to paint a portrait of your brother."

"My portrait?"

When Owen asked dumbly, Amelia smiled and nodded.

"huh. The first picture is still unfinished, but I thought it would be good to change the order a little. That's what Mores said. Since I don't know when I might be called to the southern front, I think it would be better to paint my brother's portrait first."

"Mores... .."

You asked the family artist to paint my portrait?

"Mores asked me to tell you that if Brother Jeong wants it, I won't say anything even if I draw it with chicken feathers this time."

Owen, who was suddenly speechless after Amelia's joke-like words, stared blankly at the boy in the portrait for a while.

377. Mores Exploration Journal (5)

That morning.

Before becoming the model for the portrait, Owen briefly composed the composition and discussed various aspects of the painting with Amelia.

Meanwhile, he received an unexpected request from a painter.

"You want to draw cormorant feather decorations?"

"Yes, sir. "I was very impressed by the victory ceremony that took place the other day."

The exotic decorations not commonly seen in Delcross seemed to have brought some powerful inspiration to this talented artist.

'Mores scolded me so much for being dirty... ... '

When Owen nodded absentmindedly, the young painter lowered his head with a brightened face.

"Thank you, sir! Now just leave it to me! The majestic appearance of that day, even the halo shining softly from behind the Emperor! "I will try to save every detail!"

It's good to be motivated, but what? halo?

'My friend, who is an artist, doesn't have a very good eye. Is it okay to leave it like this?'

While Owen was perplexed, Amelia, who was standing next to him, smiled proudly and added,

"good idea. Decorate all the feathers with gold, and draw long hair and a nice cape blowing in the wind. "I'm sure it'll be cool!"

"That's a bit...""

Isn't it too cringy? Was Amelia's taste like that originally?

Owen wanted to stop her, but when he saw her sparkling eyes, he couldn't stop speaking. Perhaps she didn't know that the image of an already completed portrait was glimmering before Amelia's eyes.

"It will be grander than the portrait of Emperor Remus, who was called the full body. "It will definitely be a great picture, brother."

"Yes, yes."

Owen had no choice but to nod.

"But will you be okay? That guy is a painter hired by Mores. "Mores seemed to be very fond of the cormorant feathers, but I wonder if she just drew them on as she pleased and later got criticized for it?"

Then Amelia opened her eyes and looked up at him.

"huh? Why would Mores do that? Oh, you say it's chicken hair? That's just a joke he's telling. "Mores was the one who first suggested drawing feathers."

"But it's messy for me...""

"Well, it was a bit dusty from the long trip. "Mores' personal maid will probably have cleaned them by now."

"..."

"Brother."

As if sensing something in Owen's expression, Amelia gently took his hand.

"It's not messy. Every single one of those feathers is a precious record, right? "It is an item that proves what my brother worked hard to achieve on the southern front, so how could Mores dare to tamper with it?"

Owen was skeptical after hearing this, but there was no doubt in Amelia's gaze as she stared straight at him.

"Maybe Mores is a little worried about her brother. "Funny enough, some of the high-ranking priests are raising their voices saying that it is not right for the prince of the Holy Empire to follow the barbaric customs of the pagans."

"... .."

"Aren't they people who have been having a hard time finding fault with their older brother? So, Mores probably wants to show them a nice and familiar side for a while, and reduce their unnecessary resistance even a little."

"... "Amelia."

At this point, Owen couldn't help but ask her.

"How can you think so favorably of Mores' intentions? Even if he lost his memory. "You remember every detail of how the old Mores treated us all, right?"

"Brother... .."

Owen originally liked to think simply and did not bother to worry about unnecessary things.

That's why I've been ignoring other people's disdain for a while. I thought it was a natural check for a prince who suddenly came in. If you argue and listen to it for no reason, your reputation will only get worse.

Then all I had to do was pretend not to hear it and ignore it. After a certain amount of time passes and you show yourself to be the right person, isn't this a problem that will eventually subside naturally?

'but... ..'

Strangely enough, I could never get over it like that when it came to Mores. We got angry like children, raised our voices and fought with each other.

Where is that? Aren't the uncomfortable feelings that can't be resolved by just that still remain tightly coiled in your heart even after many years have passed?

It didn't seem like himself at all. So I was confused.

'What do I want to do now? Could it be that I said something unnecessary to Amelia? There is no reason to make an issue of trivial past events now... ..'

Now, I couldn't quite understand my own feelings, what on earth I wanted from Mores.

"okay. I see."

Amelia, who was silent for a moment, slowly nods her head.

Her gray eyes, just like those of Mores in the picture, met Owen's with deep understanding. It was a mysterious gaze that seemed to penetrate into the essence of everything.

"Do you really want to reconcile with her?"

"... ..!"

"If it were someone else's business, you probably wouldn't have worried about it. "If it wasn't for that girl in the first place, the events of the past wouldn't have left scars in my heart."

His younger sister, who has always been unusually smart for her age, not only understands Owen's feelings, but also accurately pinpoints his inner thoughts that even he doesn't know about.

"You could just cover it up and pretend that things are going well, but my brother still thinks that's not enough. Because that's probably not sincere. "He always wants to be close to his family sincerely."

"I, I... .."

"huh. So, I'm thinking that I want to face her properly even now and relieve all the clutter in my heart."

Amelia's eyes looking up at him were full of affection and trust.

"Thank you for not giving up on Mores and for still treating me sincerely. "Your brother is a kind person, after all."

To others, it seemed like he was resting and doing nothing, but in fact, Seongjin was anxiously trying various things on his own.

The terror of Gehenna.

It was not a flame that could be extinguished at will. However, it's not like you can just shake it off somewhere.

then-

"There is no other way. I must control it according to my will!"

The reason why Seonghwang, who comes running to him every time he suffers from high fever, leaves the last ember behind instead of extinguishing it.

Seongjin instinctively understood it without having to hear any explanation from him. So, every time he came to his senses for a moment, he tried his best to control the aura of Dantian that was left to the dust.

'this... ... !'

But the results were not very encouraging. If I touched the Danjeon clumsily, the interval between fevers would only shorten, and I would have to lose my mind again.

As I was going around like that, a month had already passed by.

Can the fires of Gehenna really be controlled? I wasn't sure. There was only a vague premonition that it would not be long before.

But there was no other way for Seongjin. Just the hope that someday I will be able to get my Aurors back, and that everything will work out well in the end. I have no choice but to cling to that one thread-like feeling.

'hey! Tell me, devil! This is the flame you used before, right? 'How on earth do you control it?'

When Seongjin became frustrated and asked this, the demon king just whimpered without answering.

What on earth is wrong with this guy? I don't know how to console myself. I'm tired of eating bear meat soup every time!

To tell the truth, bear meat wasn't really Seongjin's taste, but there was nothing else he could do for a guy who was stuck in such a situation.

The good news is that every time you share a taste, the devil stops whimpering and just concentrates on the sensation.

'This is why I can't give up bear meat... ..'

While he was suffering like this, there was another thing that was bothering him. It was Owen's son who came to the treatment room from time to time, clamoring for him to take the cure.

Contrary to the expectation that it would be awkward to see his face in person, he did not change one bit from his appearance in Pangea Chronicle. Moreover, in real life, he was a formidable brat.

'Is that guy crazy?'

Although he didn't express it outwardly, Seongjin was deeply embarrassed when he first saw the item he had brought out as a cure.

That cure was the item that Owen brought back with him when he went to see the goddess Justitia!

'You crazy guy! How on earth did you get this item, but are you giving it away so recklessly? 'I heard that's a must-have item for some important quest?'

Moreover, the bigger problem was that the treatment Owen offered was of no use to him.

Seongjin instinctively knew that fact, but unfortunately, it was very difficult to properly explain it to him. Because there was nothing else to base it on other than one's own feelings.

"No, that means you should try it out first to see if it's useful or not!"

look. This is how this tactless guy ends up.

"But there is one possibility!"

Seongjin was really heartbroken as he watched this guy who couldn't even pay his age and insisted.

'No, you idiot. Let alone the possibility.'

Is this guy out of his mind to ask me to use that precious item as a test? And if it just evaporates into thin air without any results, what are you going to do about it later?

Seongjin, who was irritated, turned his head and responded sullenly.

"huh. doesn't exist. And that thing looks really tasty."

So get it away. I will never eat it.

"Kaaaaak!"

When Owen eventually walked away holding the back of his neck, Seongjin furrowed his eyebrows as he looked at him.

So don't keep wasting your time here, and find something more productive for yourself while you're in the imperial capital, you idiot!

Then one afternoon.

Owen appeared with a slightly different expression than usual, and as usual, he pulled an armchair next to the bed and flopped down on it.

Then, uncharacteristically, he glances at Seongjin.

'What is this guy doing now?'

Seongjin, unable to bear the awkward atmosphere, asked Owen first.

"What? "Are you here to force me to take medicine again?"

"... "If I force you, would you ever want to eat it?"

"no."

At Seongjin's firm answer, Owen sighed as if he had lost some energy.

"Okay, whatever. I thought so. Just forget it. "Because it's already out of my hands."

For a moment, it seemed like Owen was secretly exchanging glances with Lord Martha, but Seongjin was preoccupied with something else.

'okay. You mean you no longer recommend treatments?'

thank god. You've been tired of refusing all this time.

Seongjin felt a little relieved and buried himself deeply in the bed.

"hmm."

As if the recent nagging had paid off, Owen had thrown away the old greaves he usually wore and was wearing proper Delcross attire. Of course, the long hair flowing carelessly and a couple of buttons undone were still there.

I inadvertently glanced at the bright red sign that was visible through my open shirt, but I wondered what Owen was thinking and quickly buttoned it up and made an excuse.

"Oh, my clothes aren't that neat? sorry. "I've been paying attention these days, but I feel frustrated after wearing clothes like this for the first time in a long time."

I didn't really intend to point out the attire. Well, first of all, where are all the dirty chicken furs removed?

However, seeing as he was being overly cautious, it seemed like

Owen was still keeping in mind what Seongjin had pointed out not long ago.

"... I told Edith to trim the chicken feathers. "You can take it later when you go."

Then, as if he had heard something unexpected, Owen stared at Seongjin for a while with wide eyes.

"you... .."

"what. "Why, what?"

"no. What Amelia said was really right... .."

"huh?"

"Hmm, so you've really changed a lot?"

Seongjin frowned for a moment.

'What does this guy want to do all of a sudden?'

However, perhaps because he was completely free from the pressure of having to refuse the treatment, Seongjin's heart became more generous than ever before.

"Well, I'm sorry if I've pointed out too much so far. "I'm sure you can take care of it, but I think I went a little too far."

"... ok?"

"see. Shall we think about whether there is anything more to be sorry about for throwing him out? "First of all, I heard that I had a lot of fights with you in the past, but I can't remember what I did wrong, so I'm sorry for that too."

"What?!"

Crash!

Owen was startled and jumped back in his chair. His face looked so tired as if he had seen a ghost, and Seongjin began to feel bad for her sarcasm.

'No, you bastard! Even if the person apologizes!'

But didn't they say to remove the ox's horn as soon as possible? Seongjin, who could not shake off the feeling that the right moment had come, suppressed the bitter words that threatened to come out at any moment and continued.

"Well, at this point, if there's anything you've been upset about, you can tell me everything. "I'll listen to it first."

"... .."

It was right then.

Owen's expression seemed to soften, but then the hearty laugh that I was familiar with from Pangea Chronicles came out!

"haha. You and I didn't fight because something special happened. I don't remember the details either. "It's all in the past anyway."

That was Owen's sincerity.

Because as Carrie said the other day, all of that past suddenly felt like a child's fight over nothing.

Just as the ever-growing ice caps can easily collapse with just the slightest vibration, the core of tangled emotions could also disappear like melting snow with just the slightest trigger.

"Ha ha ha ha ha!"

Owen's cheerful laughter echoes throughout the treatment room.

"... ..?"

Seongjin and Masain looked at each other in confusion, but Owen just smiled coolly like that for a while, paying no mind to their gazes.

378. Red (1)

Dongfeng, don't say that you pity him without thinking.

I will call his name Brilliant Glory.

If my song is praise that will be scattered in vain

I will throw myself onto the black waves right now.

A woman's clear voice resonates throughout the main palace.

No, it was a bit awkward to be a woman. That song was not a vibration of the air, but a melody created entirely by human thoughts.

'hmm. It looks like this story will end in tragedy. If possible, a bright song would have been better.'

A heartbreaking song sung by a woman in despair after losing her lover while looking at the mouth of the Breeze River. Even if you don't listen to the end of this, don't you think that she will most likely end her life by jumping into the river?

Seongjin is scratching his cheek nervously-

Jjieee-ing-

As expected, I can feel the Demon King's soul moving in deep sympathy with the lyrics. Why doesn't this guy seem more depressed?

"How are you? This is a popular opera that premiered on Rue Bertrand this time. It is said that the famous Sorbonne teacher wrote a screenplay for the first time in a long time."

Director Bruno, who finished singing with all his might, pulled his mustache as if embarrassed. Recently, he voluntarily performed performances of new operas for the demon king, who had become very depressed.

The problem may be that tragedy has been raging in the streets of Bertrand for a while. This means that most of the songs he brought strongly stimulated sad emotions.

[Sniff! It's such a beautiful and wonderful song that I'll be singing your precious name until the end!]

The devil bastard, who was savoring the afterglow for a moment, whimpered and praised me.

[Anyway, idiot, you really sing well, right?]

"Hmm. "That's too much praise, Mr. Red."

[so? Sniff! What happened to ambrosia in the end? Did she eventually follow her lover and throw herself into the Breeze River?]

"Yes, it is. "There is a story left to be sung by the bard. Would you like me to sing that song as well?"

[huh. Go ahead and try it. Sniff!]

Seeing him listen to it in such a sad yet entertaining way, I can't help but stop him from doing it.

Seongjin was making a complicated expression, but Director Bruno cleared his throat loudly with a flushed face. Even though it's not a song that actually uses your neck.

The cruel head towers collapsed one by one

For hundreds of years, stones and dirt piled up on top of it.

Considering that he absolutely hated being caught by others, the leader surprisingly sang obediently to the Demon King.

It seemed like he thought of the guy as a friend who had the same hobbies as him. He seems to like the Demon King's strong reaction and praise a little.

Jumble-jump-

Just then, the sound of cheerful footsteps is heard from the hallway. This is Owen, who comes to the temporary treatment room every day at this time.

I will tell this sad story to you in the future -

"Hey, leader... .."

Seongjin tried to warn him belatedly, but the owner of the footsteps quickly approached and opened the door with force without even having time to warn him.

Quang!

"Mores! Brother Lee has arrived!"

"Ugh!"

Director Bruno, who was in a panic, was struggling with his limbs. To someone who didn't know him, he had such a violent reaction that it would have seemed like he was having a heart attack.

He was a Dekaron Knight in name and reality, but he seemed to have been so focused on singing that he didn't notice anyone approaching.

Owen, unaware of the airflow in the suddenly frozen room, approached the side of the bed with a grin.

"Did you eat properly today? Also, you didn't just fill it up with bear meat soup or something, right? Um, but why was Brother Masaine absent?"

"... .."

"Who is this person again? "Is this the first face you see in the imperial palace?"

In the end, even when Owen asked first, Director Bruno remained frozen, completely stopping his breathing. He was so surprised that he couldn't even remember how to show respect to the prince.

Seongjin, who was worse off, quietly warned.

"Calm down, leader. "It is in front of the first prince of the Holy Empire."

"... ..!"

The leader, who then remembered that Owen could not hear his thoughts at all, lowered his head with a belated expression of relief.

"1, meet the 1st prince. I am serving His Majesty Mores... "My name is Bruno Green."

However, the aftereffects of the shock did not go away easily, and the leader's legs were still shaking.

Seongjin looked at him with pitiful eyes.

'My father must be in the office next door... ..'

It was clear that the leader had no idea. Otherwise, there is no way I could sing opera with confidence while my father was listening.

Seongjin guessed that Seonghwang was probably trying to make his presence known before Manager Bruno arrived. It may be that he is being considerate so that he can sing with peace of mind.

However, when you see that Seongjin comes running to you every time he gets a high fever, it seems like he never leaves his office.

'That means my father is also listening to the director's latest performance every time.'

Well, for the sake of the leader's mental health, I think it would be better not to point out this fact. Because good things are good. At this point, my father is also changing his mood, right?

"Ah, are you the famous commoner knight commander? Nice to meet

you!"

Fortunately, Owen didn't seem to care much about the leader's disrespect. He smiled heartily and sat down in the armchair next to him.

"By the way, where has Brother Masain gone?"

"I have some business to do with the administration for a moment."

"executive? I heard the knight commander resigned? "Then your official duties aren't all about your security?"

"Originally, it's my job to do. "These days, Lord Masaine is managing the monster task force instead of me."

After joining the Knights of St. Terbachia, Seongjin officially became the head of the department. This means that working casually in a mediocre position as an advisor is over.

Moreover, since the giant demon species went on the rampage, it seemed that similar demon kin were being discovered here and there in the vicinity of the capital.

A seed of a demon species that follows the laws of the normal world and has not yet fully blossomed.

Since the demon energy was not clearly felt, it would have originally been under the jurisdiction of the monster department that deals with things other than demons.

It was a shame that Seongjin's body was not healthy now and the few people he had left had all been sent to the punitive force. It was obvious that when they returned, all of this would be passed on to Seongjin.

'And we must properly investigate the headquarters of the Penitent Church.'

As we trace the whereabouts of the escaped Giacomo Milo and the route through which Loperum's eggs were leaked, everything ultimately comes down to the Church of Penitence. So, as soon as his body fully recovered, Seongjin planned to raid the Dark Church himself.

Until now, there were limits to the investigation using only the manpower of the Monster Task Force. But now that he has finally gained public power, wouldn't he be able to properly mobilize the exorcists under his command?

"swimming... .."

Then Owen looked at Seongjin with new eyes.

"Amazing? You're doing a pretty good job, aren't you? "I thought he would always be a wild, reckless kid."

... What, you bastard?

A little kid, who says this kid is a little kid now? If I had gotten married properly, I would have a grandson the size of you by now!

Seongjin, who had a shocked expression on his face, almost hit Owen on the forehead with as much force as before.

'... Oops!'

However, I soon came to my senses and had no choice but to put my half-raised hand back. Didn't this almost rekindle the rumor of discord between the 1st and 3rd princes that had been barely resolved?

'It was nice when I could beat the guy up with anonymity.'

There are times when I miss that creepy goat skin from Pangea Chronicles.

"Anyway, don't you have anything to do like that? "Why do you stay here all day after coming to the imperial capital?"

As Seongjin scolded Owen, he smiled inexplicably.

"hmm. When you come to the main palace, your father is there, right? Next to her is our pretty Amelia. So, while looking at her family's faces, I'm stopping by you as well."

Seongjin's eyebrows twitched.

I was watching and I realized that this bastard is now treating people like a product that gives them bonuses.

"And even though it's like this, it's not like we're just playing around. "I'm looking for someone right now?"

"... .."

person?

Seongjin, who had a premonition of something sinister, did not bother to ask him who he was looking for.

"Some people come here to find something to do. Who said that? Help others and lend a foundation. "They said I should find my own place?"

What kind of bullshit is this?

Anyway, if you're looking for something to do, doesn't that mean you're free now?

"If you don't have anything to decide, please help Lord Martha next to you."

In fact, it didn't have to be Lord Martha, but it could have been done by Commander Bruno or the resident knights. It's just that he's been restless around me lately, so I just used work as an excuse to take him away for a while to cool off.

But every time he reluctantly returns to the administration, Sir Martha returns with a sour look on his face. Are you so anxious that you feel like you have chronic gastritis?

'No, even if you're next to me, you'll feel sick, and even if you're away, you'll get gastritis. 'What are you going to do with me?'

So I thought it would be better to bring in Owen, who was idle without an official position. If you take care of this easy-going and sloppy little boy, wouldn't Lord Masaine be able to forget about his miscellaneous worries for a moment?

But Owen made a strange face when he heard the suggestion.

"hmm. Does that mean that this brother should come in and work under you? "You don't really feel like it?"

"I'm not asking you to come under me, I'm just asking you to help out with some light work. "Logan also worked on the monster task force for a while while he was here."

"Logan is such a brat that he doesn't even have a bell to begin with."

... That's true, but is that what your son of a bitch is going to say now?

"Well, it's nice to help Brother Masain. "I knew how to fight from the beginning, but I knew nothing about administrative work."

"Good. Then, take this time to learn properly from Lord Masaine. "You're not going to spend your whole life on the battlefield, are you?"

"hmm. That's right... .."

Still, the guy looked very worried, so Seongjin reflexively held out his palm in front of him.

"What are you making complicated? Now, don't talk nonsense... .."

It was right then.

Suddenly, Owen's face turns serious, and he grasps Seongjin's hand as if to shake his hand!

"uh?"

"... Ah, as expected. "It seems a little hot."

The guy suddenly got up from his seat with a look on his face as he realized something. Then he suddenly runs into the next room and shouts:

"father! Looks like Mores is going to have a fever again! "That guy has a habit of putting his hands out every time he gets a high fever!"

... Did I do that?

Seongjin was feeling confused as he touched his forehead, but there was actually a big problem.

Director Bruno, who had been standing quietly in the corner of the room until then, suddenly began to turn pale as if something had occurred to him.

"Your Majesty... You were in the office... ... ?!"

uh. I guess I should have told you in advance.

After thinking that for the last time, Seongjin closed his eyes as he felt his fever rise rapidly.

Then, the children's voices, now familiar as background sounds, rang in my ears.

[Mores! It just worked out well. Would you like to go to Cyprus with us now?]

[Brother Logan and Sisley have already arrived! You will meet the puppeteer soon!]

What? Then, let's go without delay.

[No, Inum!]

It wasn't just children who were by his side.

I could also hear the old man's tearful voice appearing and scolding him whenever he forgot.

[I asked them to stop letting me go, but they ended up making one more person who is devoted to me! What are you going to do now?

What on earth are you going to do to me?]

No, this old man is very cruel.

Just looking at Owen, he is a man with no faith and is a sloppy person. What difference does it make if he puts in sincerity! yes?

[Are you saying that even after looking at me now? oh my! I'm so upset!]

Bang bang bang!

The sound of the old man beating his chest resonates loudly in my mind like thunder.

Well, you've become stronger and more confident than before, but what? What's the problem?

"Mores!"

After finally recognizing Seonghwang's voice faintly heard from afar, Seongjin began to wander into a half-asleep dream again.

379. Red (2)

A time when a giant demon species appeared, and the world was abuzz with rumors about it for a while.

Secret and mysterious things were happening all over the continent that people were not aware of.

It may be trivial, but for those who encounter it, it is a definite opportunity for change that can change their future course of action. It was a subtle movement that added cause and effect and the lack of cause and effect.

The coincidence first occurred in the imperial palace.

"... What is this?"

Pearl Palace.

Edith, who was tidying up the prince's empty room as always, found a small bead rolling around at her feet. It was an empty soul stone.

"Now that I think about it, it seems like Prince Mores often carried this around with him... .."

I didn't know how the prince's things ended up rolling around on the floor. But Edith didn't think much about it and immediately picked up his marble.

"I'll take it first and ask your Majesty."

There was no sense of danger about tampering with the prince's belongings. Because the person she served was not that flexible.

It was like that just the other day. Although she used the imperial carriage as she pleased without permission, Prince Mores praised Edith greatly and even gave her a huge reward.

Thanks to this, I earned enough income to just eat and play for the next few years.

'But I can't take time off from work. I have to take care of Max, and sometimes it's fun to play plate throwing.'

Edith hummed and put the soul stone into her apron pocket.

Small coincidences come to any playwright.

"Master Sorbonne! This work is also a hit! It is said that re-watching 'Ambrosia of the Tower of Heads' is becoming a trend in the social circles of the imperial capital these days. "You truly have God-given talent!"

When the opera house owner raised his voice with excitement, the playwright, who had sensitive ears, frowned.

"Enough empty words. "What else do you want from me?"

"These are empty words, they are insincere! More than that, teacher. Shouldn't we start the next work soon? "I will support you with whatever you need!"

"what? It's been a while since you previewed your new work, but you're already on the verge of your next work, right? Hey, theater owner. "Aren't you thinking too lightly of the pain of creation?"

The theater owner, taken aback by her fierce opposition, stammered.

"B-but, teacher. 'Ambrosia of the Tower of Heads' has long been passed down from Cypriot bards..."

"Oh, it's noisy! "If writing a four-act long play based on an old song like that isn't creativity, then what else in this world can be called creativity?"

The playwright responded nervously and suddenly raised both hands at the same speed. Then he gets angry by pointing to the left and right sides of the theater owner's head at the same time with the same finger.

"Besides, as I've said before, didn't I tell you to pay attention to your parting when you come to my mansion? "If you see your crooked parting that disturbs the balance of the world, the inspiration for your work will soon get fed up and run away!"

"what... ... ?"

She was a woman who made pointless comments.

But the theater owner suppressed his anger. Currently, Mr. Sorbonne is the most famous star writer on Rue Bertrand. Any work with her name on it, even if it's a play in which she wrote her own lines, is sure to be a hit.

Aren't the teacher's personality flaws a trade-off proportional to his brilliant genius?

"Now, just wait a moment, sir. "I'll fix my hair in a moment, so let's talk about my next project for a little longer."

While the theater owner ran to the mirror to make the parting exactly 5:5-

Fight!

Suddenly, a book fell to the floor and made a dull noise.

"Oh, what's happening all of a sudden?"

It's not like the wind came from anywhere, so why does a book that was placed in good condition fall to the floor?

The playwright quickly picked up the book and put it back on the bookshelf. Even if he saw something that deviated from the symmetrical structure he had arranged for even a moment, he felt so uncomfortable that his internal organs were twisted.

But the title of the book suddenly appeared clearly in her eyes. A masterpiece of Ortona Romanticism, which once dominated literary trends on the continent.

'[The doll's song]...'

Well, this is a pretty good piece too. If you tweak the structure and ending just a little, it will become a story that shows some pretty cool interconnections.

"Shall we adapt some classic literature this time? "It will be completed much faster than completely creating it."

At the playwright's indifferent muttering, the opera house owner's face brightened.

A young man who was busy rushing down the road also encountered that small coincidence.

"We have finally arrived in Regina, Master Kenneth. "If you just go to the Breeze River like this and take a boat, you will be able to get to Cyprus safely."

"okay. "Good job."

The young man was Kenneth Diggory, who was imprisoned on suspicion of harboring a demon, attempting to murder a junior, and murdering two employees.

Perhaps thanks to his grandfather's enormous power, all of his crimes were ultimately concluded to be accidental accidents caused by a weak mind and body.

Kenneth, who was released after receiving a greatly reduced sentence and paying a large amount of bail, was currently secretly fleeing to another area to avoid the eyes of imperial officials.

"But are you sure you don't mind? Cardinal Diggory originally wanted you to go to peaceful Anatolia."

"What on earth can I do in the old landlords' stronghold? I'm going north. The wise man has always said this before. "All the mysteries of the continent lie in that wild and free north."

The young man, whose eyes were dreamy for a moment, soon came to his senses and looked back at the attendant.

"But there was something I wanted to ask you earlier. "I heard something like this flying all over the street. What is this?"

In Kenneth Diggory's hand was a small leaflet.

"that... .. ?"

"Suddenly, the wind blew it away and landed in my hand. "It felt as if the mystery of the world was willingly inviting me."

The attendant narrowed his eyes and looked at the flyer. A mimeographed paper with sloppy handwriting, not proper type.

-The secret of the future conveyed by the wise man.

The continent is facing the terrifying flames of hell that will soon come! Listen! Only those who awaken will open the shining door of salvation!

The attendant nodded.

"Ah, it's the story of a crazy wise man."

"Sage?"

Kenneth perked up his ears at the not-so-familiar title.

"yes. This is a crazy person who claims to have seen the hell prepared by God many years ago. It is said that they have now settled down near the Marquis of Benso to avoid the Inquisitors. "Seeing that they are distributing such fancy leaflets, it seems that the number of followers has increased considerably."

hmm.

Kenneth Diggory looked at the leaflet, lost in thought. And after a while, an odd sound came out of his mouth.

"hey. The trip to Cyprus is canceled. "Let's go to the Marquis de Benso first."

"... yes?"

As the attendant was taken aback by the sudden situation, the young man smiled straight, showing his even teeth.

"Isn't this the person who has been preparing for hell for a long time?
"How intense will such a person's intellect and exploration be, and how close will he be to the mysteries of the world?"

Even Archduke Asean, who lived far away from the ecliptic, could not avoid such a small coincidence.

"Isn't it really a long time since we had a banquet? miss... No, this is the first banquet you are attending since the Empress returned, right?"

While combing the hair of the empress, who had a grumpy expression on her face as if she didn't feel like it, the maids chatted hard to cheer her up.

"They say a large number of landowners from Anatolia will be attending this time, right? "When those villagers see your beautiful appearance, Lizabeth, they will probably be so dazzled that they won't be able to come to their senses!"

"... .."

Crackling... ..

As the Empress's expression remained frozen without the slightest change, the maids' forced laughter became increasingly heavy.

"Well, by the way, Lizabeth. I feel like my going out outfit decoration is a bit boring today. "The color doesn't match the red and gold decorations you always wear. Is there any other jewelry that would go well with it?"

Clatter rattle rattle rattle.

It was when one of the maids was diligently rummaging through a jewelry box. Suddenly, a small trinket of hers rolled into her hand. It was a simple brooch decorated with crystals as white as ice, something I had never seen before.

"oh? There were all these items in the jewelry box? Lizabeth! "I think this would be perfect!"

The maid was delighted and put the brooch in her coat without permission. Then, too late, she noticed the other maids' pale expressions and her eyes widened.

'... ok?'

'hey! hey! stop!'

'huh? why?'

As the maid made a puzzled face, her companions made all kinds of expressions and silently twitched their lips.

'That, Lady Lizabeth, is trash.'

'Trash... omg!'

Empress Lizabeth's trash.

These are things that roll around the room like trash, but if someone touches them carelessly, they immediately startle you.

The maid, who belatedly realized the situation, looked back at the empress with her chin shaking. She expected that there would be an outcry right now.

"... .."

But surprisingly, Lizabeth didn't say anything. She just turned her head and closed her eyes as if she was annoyed.

Thanks to this, the maid, who couldn't decide whether to take the brooch back or leave it behind, hesitated for a moment and then just left.

The mansion located in the corner of Asein could not have been a blind spot for coincidences that occurred simultaneously.

Cayenne, who had sent his confidant Rodrigo on an errand for the first time in a long time, received urgent information from his soul a short time later.

"... Caught by security?"

why?

After a long period of compiling the information sparsely received from his soul, Cayenne was finally able to roughly understand the reason.

It seems that Rodrigo obtained a rare poison from the dark city according to Cayenne's instructions. However, on the way back, the strap of the bag suddenly broke, and the bottle of poison ended up lying on the street.

However, it seems that he was accidentally caught by a security guard who was passing by.

'No, what is this? I'm so unlucky, what's going on?'

Rodrigo is currently the only soul in Cayenne that exercises complete control. So we'll have to get him out of jail somehow, and he's going to be a pain in the ass for a while again if he comes up with a clever move.

'It's completely ruined. Now what should I do when my father comes?'

After thinking for a moment, the boy looked around the chessboard, which had been gathering dust for a while, with a disgruntled look on his face.

If someone you see every day suddenly catches your eye one day, it can be seen as a change brought about by a coincidence.

This was the case with Inquisitor Lumiere, adjutant of the Knights of St. Marsyas. For some time now, she had been unable to take her eyes off the little saint who was awkwardly accompanying them.

"An order to rest has come from the front. "Stop marching for a moment and wait!"

"atmosphere!"

"atmosphere!"

As one of the knights quickly reversed and announced, Lumie turned to the Inquisitors following him and gave instructions.

"It's just the right time. good night. "We don't have any special plans right now, so let's each take a break."

Then, Saint Sisley, who was nearby, nodded and lightly jumped off the horse.

Although she was a lieutenant and was on the same level as Inquisitor Lumiere, the saintess seemed to strictly follow Lumiere's instructions.

This was quite an unexpected result for Lumie, who expected a fierce fight with the young princess.

'Anyway, you don't look tired at all.'

Lumiere was secretly impressed. In a forced march that would have made even experienced Inquisitors struggle, the girl was maintaining her posture without the slightest disruption.

A flawless creation of the Lord, as if made from clean crystal.

As Inquisitor Lumie stared blankly at the little saint, she walked toward the head of the procession at a brisk pace. Then, as if she had made an appointment, she ran into Prince Logan, who was approaching from behind her.

As expected, the veins did not go anywhere, and the prince looked as neat as if he had been painted.

"Brother Logan."

"Yes, Sisley. Would you like to use this interlude to pray with me?"

"good."

So the siblings place their hands together and close their eyes reverently.

"ah... ... !"

At that moment, Lumie couldn't help but doubt her eyes.

Was it just a simple illusion? Somehow, a bright divine halo seemed to emanate from the two praying siblings.

"Lord. Please protect your children."

"Please take care of Brother Mores so that he can recover quickly."

The brother and sister's calm words come to mind.

Lumiere was somehow certain. If the Lord, who looks over all things, is looking down on the underworld, then at least at this moment, he will surely be fixating his eyes only on them!

Now, the little saint and Prince Logan were standing at the center of a world that was spinning.

'No, what kind of crazy idea am I having right now...''

Lumie quickly came to her senses and lightly shook her head.

Cry!

Is it because of my mood? For some reason, I felt like I could briefly hear the innocent laughter of children.

380. Red (3)

Inquisitor Lumie did not have much interest in the saint from the beginning. It was probably just a coincidence that piled up, the result of repeatedly stimulating her nerves that were as hard as steel.

When I quickly turned my head to avoid the sudden breeze that carried a lot of leaves, there was always a little saint at the end of my gaze.

As she was rubbing her eyes against the dust flying in from the procession, she was met with gray eyes that passed by her and looked at her with concern.

As this coincidence was repeated several times, Inquisitor Lumie began to follow the sight of Saint Sisley as a habit.

As I gradually got to know the little saint, a thought naturally occurred to me.

'Indeed, there is something different about someone who was ordained a saint at such a young age.'

Contrary to expectations that she would be the one to take care of troublesome children, Saint Sisley showed herself to be an excellent squire.

Even though he may not be very used to horseback riding, he drives the horse with a serious expression all day long. His concentration was unusual considering that even older Inquisitors dozed off from time to time.

Where is that? Among the members, he is the last to receive food and the first to respond to Lumiere's instructions.

Due to his young age, he was excluded from watch duty, so he woke up early in the morning and went to bed late at night to share his divine power with the Inquisitors who were on watch watch.

He willingly places himself at the lowest level of the Order and acts strictly as a member of the Order of St. Marsyas.

'Even Sister Ursula, who usually accompanied her on the path to deep learning, left her behind in the ecliptic this time.'

This is a clear contrast to Seo Yi-seo, another saint who accompanies the punitive force, comfortably traveling in a carriage with two sisters.

Seeing the saintess working so diligently, Lumie could clearly see that the members who had been awkwardly keeping a distance from each other were gradually narrowing the distance in their hearts.

She eventually had no choice but to admit it.

The little saint showed manners that were not appropriate for her age. Whether it's a manufactured humility or a truly innate character. She was so skilled that it was hard to believe that she had just turned 12 years old.

'No matter how young you are, does that mean you are a member of the Holy Family?'

Still, some questions remained. How was that little girl able to behave so naturally as a Holy Knight, which no one in the Knights of St. Marsyas had ever taught her?

'It's not like there aren't any guesses, though.'

Prince Logan.

Right in front of the saintess, there is another member of the saintly family who can be said to be a great example of a holy knight!

'okay. He uses his brother's appearance as a reference and coordinates his actions cleverly.'

As the stream of consciousness continued towards Prince Logan, Lumie also observed the Lilium contingent surrounding him.

"... ... ?!"

As a result, naturally, I was able to clearly understand the true nature of the Lilium Detachment.

"Lowering! I received my food here! "Please take a seat in the middle so that everyone in the unit can share an equal distance!"

"Why did I go through all that trouble when I could have gone? Thank you, Sir Ellie."

"Lowering! In time for prayer, I have opened the pages of the scriptures you read yesterday in advance! Would you like to go now?"

"Yes, I am always grateful for your thoughtful preparation. Sir Duchamp."

"Lowering! Lowering!"

What can I say, it was truly a sight to see.

It was to the point where I had the illusion that the Lilium Detachment was not serving Prince Logan, but rather that the prince was enduring their extremeness.

'I said Otto, Elie, Sir Duchamp...''

Inquisitor Lumie furrowed her brows.

This is the Holy Knights who must follow the will of the Lord and become His fair sword. But if you look at their behavior, doesn't it seem like a pseudo-group that purely worships Prince Logan, not the main god?

"What on earth are those idiots doing? "Do you have any pride or sense of duty as a paladin in mind?"

Inquisitor Boris, who was nearby, smiled and said. It seems that not only Lumie, but other Inquisitors who were watching also had this thought.

"I guess that means they have deep respect for Logan."

Lumiere, who as a lieutenant could not officially see the other Holy Knights' misfortune, responded politely.

However, Inquisitor Boris shook his head with a tired expression.

"Even so, the extraordinary behavior of those idiots is going too far.

"Is it so bad that there are rumors going around that even the Archbishop of Wester is taking off his crane?"

It was already famous that the knights of Liliun replaced the icon of St. Bastian in the church for Prince Logan. If it's really for the prince, it means there's nothing to see.

"Who does the 'Liliun' of the Liliun Detachment really refer to?

"Those authors are worshiping a young paladin by giving him the image of a lily, which is a long-standing symbol of the Knights Templar."

The Inquisitor who had spoken so far turned his gaze to the small saintess riding a horse in front.

Saint Sisley. The appearance of a girl who has not lost any of the dignity of a noble saint, even though she is wearing a different form of armor than usual.

"They are truly ridiculous people. Aren't they making a fuss as if they are the only ones attending the greatest person in the world? To be honest, there are people in our knighthood who are greater than Prince Logan."

"Someone greater?"

"yes. Saint Sisley is the one who was canonized as a saint at an unprecedentedly young age. If you had to choose the true flower of the Holy Knights, wouldn't it be him? If they compare Prince Logan to a lily, our Princess Sisley is truly like a white peony... ..!"

"... .."

At Lumiere's rapidly cold gaze, Inquisitor Boris, who had been trembling, slowly blurted out his words.

"... I made a mistake. "Vice-captain."

Lumie pursed her lips and looked at the saintess ahead of her.

There was no intention of treating her as special just because she was from a prosperous family or because she was an adjutant-level person who suddenly fell through connections.

However, when I look at the little saint's flowing silver hair, my heart becomes heavy with the psychological pressure to somehow value her more than I do now.

'No matter what, Sisley is just a squire. There can never be any exceptional treatment!'

Lumie stubbornly steeled herself.

As time passed day by day, the punitive force soon arrived in Cyprus, a city at the mouth of the Breeze River.

Cyprus had a very unique political system. There is no separate king, and a new council is organized every year with eight elders as the central point to manage the city's major and minor affairs.

-This is the most beautiful and ideal form of politics that all countries on the continent should emulate!

I heard that Prince Benicio, who once led the republican government of Ortona, praised it like this.

In any case, the punitive force received a warm welcome from the elders as soon as they entered Cyprus.

Next, I was hurriedly invited to a council meeting without even having time to properly rest. As the fishing suspension situation became prolonged, the issue of subjugating marine beasts became more urgent than anything else.

"From now on, it is a meeting between practitioners. "I beg your pardon, but please wait here with the other members for a moment."

At Lumiere's instructions, Sisley nodded and stood next to the members.

An event attended by all adjutant-level officials, including Prince Logan, the head of the punitive force. However, in the case of the saint who was new to this subjugation, she judged that even if she attended anyway, she would not be of much help.

"... .."

Logan also glanced at her, but did not impose any special restrictions. Because the affairs of the Holy Knights are matters that must be coordinated within the Holy Knights.

In this way, Sisley was left standing inside the large council building with the other members of the punitive force.

"what? That woman named Lumiere. Isn't this too rude to Sisley?"
"Unlucky!"

When Seo Yi-seo made a small noise behind me-

Grumble!

One of the torches that illuminated the hallway burned fiercely, as if setting a rhythm.

But Sisley just smiled bitterly.

'I'm still a young child with a lot to learn.'

Although she was able to hold the position of adjutant from the beginning thanks to having the Holy Emperor as her assistant, she still did not fully understand the physiology of the Holy Knights. This is because the Inquisitors who were supposed to guide her behaved indifferently and were ostracized by her secret nature.

But we can't just blame them.

'From the Inquisitors' perspective, I am like an outsider who came in without permission. So, slowly comfort their minds and learn from them one by one.'

It was a time when I was calming down and maintaining an undisturbed posture.

"Saint."

Suddenly, an attendant came up next to him, bowed his head to Sisley and cautiously opened his mouth.

"With all due respect, one of the council members would like to see the saint for a moment."

... Council member?

"Why me? Besides, aren't all the council members gathered together and having a meeting right now?"

"He did not attend the meeting due to other work. "I happened to see the saint while passing by, and I think she was bothered by the idea of placing the little grace of the Lord here."

"... .."

"He said he would like you to rest comfortably for a while because we have prepared a simple table for you."

Sisley thought for a moment. She is now not a saint, but a member of the Knights of St. Marsyas. Is there really a need to accept that request?

However, just as I was about to say no, the attendant continued with an urgent comment.

"Please reconsider. "The person who invited the saint is Ambrose of Helios, the eldest son of Chryses, the head of the Senate."

Indeed, it was worth worrying that the servant would not be able to carry out the instructions.

Ambrose of Helios. He was so famous that even Sisley had heard about him several times through rumors.

His father, Chryses, was the most powerful among the elders of Cyprus.

What about his eldest son, Ambrose? He distinguished himself in politics from a young age, and is a powerful person who never misses a seat on the council every year.

Just because there is no king does not mean that there is no hereditary power. How could it be that in this place where there is no monarchy, people would call him the 'Prince of Cyprus'?

'If only Sister Ursula had existed...'

Sisley thought of his loyal attendant who was momentarily absent. Normally, in a case like this, she would have taken the initiative to prevent things that were deemed unnecessary.

However, because Sisley received the request himself, her answer now ends up directly representing the position of the Holy Family and the Orthodox Church.

'It's not that difficult to briefly attend a tea party.'

However, Sisley still had no choice but to hesitate.

If possible, I would like to refuse. For some reason, I don't want to go. It was because that feeling had taken strong hold of her entire body from earlier.

"Ambrosius of Helios, isn't he the one who is called the Prince of Cyprus? "It seems like he is asking for a seat out of pure kindness, so why not accept his request?"

Just then, a young paladin from behind suddenly opened his mouth. He was someone I had become acquainted with in one way or another as we had recently marched together near Sisley.

"Inquisitor Boris..."

When Sisley turned his head to look at him, the young Inquisitor scratched his head a little embarrassed and continued.

"I'm sorry for suddenly interrupting. But we, too, have been bothered by the idea of leaving the saint like this for a while. However, I cannot send Sisley to an unfamiliar place alone, so I will be by your side until the end."

When a member of the same knightly order appeared like this, I could no longer refuse the request.

Sisley couldn't help but nod his head and walked after the employee, who seemed greatly relieved.

But that was before Sisley could even walk a few steps.

Grumbling!

The torches illuminating the hallway suddenly flickered, creating dizzying shadows. Since it was inside the building, there was no place for the wind to blow, so it was really strange.

"... ... ?"

As I was watching the flames flutter, possessed by a strange premonition, the attendant urged Sisley once again.

"Saint, come this way."

Sisley did not delay any longer and obediently walked behind the servant.

Clap, clap, clap.

Every time I took a step, the unfamiliar friction sound of the armor disturbed my ears.

* * *

Same time.

An incident was also taking place at the imperial palace in the center of Delcross.

"Father, is Mores running a fever again?"

Owen asked, tilting his head.

After summoning the Holy Emperor and showering him with divine power, it was only for a short time that tremendous heat was rising again near the bed where Mores was lying.

'weird? Normally, after calming her down with divine power, she would be quiet for a while without getting angry?

Owen looked at Mores' feverish face with worried eyes.

It was right then.

Grumbling!

Owen couldn't believe his eyes for a moment. At once, it seemed as if a fierce fire had risen from Mores, who was lying down.

"... ... !?"

what?

Owen rubbed his eyes and looked at Mores again, but the boy was just breathing heavily with his eyes closed.

'Of course it is. No matter how high the fever is, how can a person's body suddenly burst into flames?'

But Owen soon realized that something unusual was happening to Mores.

This is because the face of the Holy Emperor, who was once again pouring out his divine power towards Mores, had become pale and pale.

His voice trembled softly, faintly shaking the air of the temporary treatment room.

"Son. Stop it. "What are you trying to do there now?"

381. Red (4)

If you were born into this world as a human, you should move only with a human body and do not easily commit actions that are beyond human capabilities.

That was the restriction of the [agreement] required by the six-member council, and the condition that allowed Seonghwang, who had fully awakened as an oracle, to remain in the dimension for a long time.

Therefore, whenever the Emperor needed to leave the palace, he always had to seek the help of a psychic like Sir Sharon. Or, like a homunculus, a body with at least human characteristics was needed.

[Sir Sharon.]

Seonghwang urgently looked for the Holy Knight he had sent to Cyprus. However, her current situation did not seem to be so easy.

[It looks difficult to move right now, Your Majesty. The council building is relatively heavily guarded. Moreover, if I rashly try to withdraw from the ranks without my superior's permission, my fellow paladins in the punitive force will subdue me before the soldiers of Cyprus.]

Of course, there was a solution. The spirit of the Holy Emperor comes and moves her body directly.

But unfortunately, he couldn't leave everything aside and head to Cyprus. Because his son's condition was extremely unstable.

"Mores."

If the Holy Emperor leaves this place in his usual spirit state, he will no longer be able to control his son's critical condition by his side. Just a moment's carelessness would cause his son to be engulfed in the flames of hell and lose his life immediately.

The problem was that the son, who had thrown off the restrictions of Ilshin, also knew this fact. So, despite Herna and Kadesh's dissuasion, he is trying to go on a rampage without any hesitation.

-Wow! Mores, calm down! If this continues, we'll be in really big trouble!

-Let go of this! Don't disturb me! If I don't do something here... .. !

Even if I didn't pay attention, I felt like I could hear my young son's soul crying out like this.

'But son. If this is the case, you too will be greatly disrupting cause and effect.'

Exercising the power of the soul directly into the world. It will definitely cause my son to consume more cause and effect than he could imagine.

It is obvious that the child is a lot of sheep that can't be compared to the causes and effects that the child has acted like a joke. There was no longer any choice.

'I wanted to reduce the consumption of human resources even a little and be with my children for as long as possible.'

However, wouldn't it be difficult if you were to worry for no reason and end up with your child being ostracized by the world?

"... "Owen."

After a while, the Holy Emperor, who had made up his mind, called his godson.

"Yes, father."

A slightly trembling voice returns.

Owen also seems to have sensed the current dangerous situation, even if only vaguely. The eyes that were looking at Seonghwang were shaking uneasily.

"Don't worry about this place, leave it to me. "Would you please go to the administration right now and bring Masain here?"

"... .. ?"

For a moment, a puzzled look appeared on Owen's face. Isn't calling someone something that can be done by having another employee do it?

But it was the order of my dear godfather. Owen didn't express any question and immediately lowered his head.

"Yes, I will."

As his godson moved his body, the Holy Emperor expanded his consciousness without delay. In order to carry out two tasks at the same time, he completely released the constraints of time and place that were binding his soul.

Power enough to shake one dimension. And the aftermath of this appeared immediately in the real world.

"... .. !"

Owen, who was just about to push open the door, looked back in surprise. Suddenly, her back felt empty and empty, and she felt a cold, foreign feeling.

And Owen was able to witness it right away.

The sight of the sunlight shining through the window rapidly fading to gray -

The flow of air that quietly stops moving, and the time that freezes like frost spreading.

Owen also noticed his godfather's abnormality.

The Holy Emperor is still holding Mores' hand and pouring out his mighty divine power. But even with his eyes open, Owen somehow wondered if he had momentarily stopped breathing.

It's not that it wasn't, but the pale, frozen face of the Holy Emperor looked so inhuman that it could have been believed that he was a sculpture made of marble rather than a living thing.

Also, the eyes are half-open, completely losing any evidence of life.

In fact, there was nothing in Seonghwang's unfocused eyes. Nevertheless, his gaze was deep and distant, as if he was staring at everything in the world at the same time.

'... far.'

Owen thought so without thinking.

It was truly strange. Seonghwang is only a few steps beyond her, but he feels distant, as if a gray curtain has been placed between him and her.

"Father... .."

Startled, Owen tried to turn back toward him.

But it was the moment when I stepped into that invisible border. Suddenly, a dizzying feeling of dizziness attacked Owen's head.

A strange sensation of feeling like your mind is being sucked in and being pushed away at the same time. It feels like all the nerves in my body are shaking like a boat caught in a storm all at once.

I was surprised for a moment, but then a strong feeling of nausea came over me.

"Wow!"

Owen, covering his mouth, stumbled and slowly backed away from the spot.

"... What is this?"

I couldn't understand the English text. Because, based on his common sense, there was no proper way to explain the current situation.

But even in the midst of confusion, Owen was able to clearly perceive one fact.

This is why Seonghwang ordered him to run an errand out of the blue. Perhaps he wanted to keep Owen far away from this strange border.

'So this would mean that this situation is also under Godfather's control.'

After coming to that conclusion, Owen cautiously approached the invisible border again. Then he looked at the emperor with a nervous face and muttered.

"father. What on earth are you doing now?"

"Hurry up, Prince Logan! "The battleship the punitive force will take is already prepared!"

The council members all raised their voices. When they learned that the leader of the punitive force was the young prince, they seemed determined to push back with force alone.

But Logan wasn't so gentle.

"I want accurate information about the situation. "Please tell me in detail the type of demon beast, the area it appears in, and its scale."

"I can explain everything as we go. "Our navy has already planned a detailed subjugation operation!"

"Come on, we don't have time for this right now. Please know that while this is going on, the citizens of Cyprus are spending every day in pain!"

However, the prince of the Holy Empire did not blink an eye despite the pressure from the lawmakers.

"We acknowledge that this is an urgent matter for everyone. However, our punitive force only operates according to my plan. So, in order to successfully subdue it all at once, we need more detailed and accurate information about the demonic beast."

"... .."

When things did not go as expected, the council members urgently looked at the elderly lieutenants who were present.

However, they simply nodded silently at Prince Logan's words and did not make any attempt to reveal their presence in any way.

Only then did the council members slowly realize. Prince Logan's reputation is not just an exaggerated lie.

The young prince of the Holy Empire is truly their commander who personally plans and implements the subjugation strategy.

The council members exchanged glances for a moment and eventually decided to appease this formidable prince.

"I was rude in my haste. Don't worry about the reliability of the prepared operation, Prince Logan. Let me explain it properly. First of all, the weapon called [Ancient Fire] prepared by our Navy... .."

It was right then.

Wow-

With a heavy friction sound, the door to the tightly closed conference room opened.

"... ..?!"

"what? Why did you let the door open? What on earth are the guards doing... .."

The council members, whose meeting was suddenly interrupted, are muttering.

What appeared in front of the open door was a raven-like woman wearing a gloomy gray uniform.

"... Sir Sharon?"

At Logan's name, the eyes of the deputies present all turn to her.

Everyone recognized her right away. Sir Sharon was the only exorcist from St. Terbachia who participated in this punitive force.

"What's going on here all of a sudden?"

"Why did you leave the ranks on your own?"

However, Logan's keen senses did not miss the moment when her eyes flashed with a strange silver color.

... Abama?

As I looked at him in confusion, the exorcist slowly opened his mouth with a stern expression.

[Degradation of Logan.]

A voice that sounds eerily close, as if it is echoing directly in my head. Although it was a voice he had heard once before, the Sword Master's senses sensed a strange gap that was somehow different from before.

[Please hurry.]

Her expression was also somehow different from before.

In the past, even though the soul of the Holy Emperor had been overwritten, it still had a human feel to it, but now it was extremely expressionless, as if it had been transformed into a complete mechanical doll.

Moreover, the words she uttered with great care were not smooth sentences. He appears extremely reticent, as if he is afraid of making a sound.

[The saint.]

But for Logan, those few words were enough.

My father came unexpectedly and mentioned Sisley. It probably means something happened to his younger brother.

As soon as his mind moves, all the auras around him carry the information he needs. A strange commotion in the hallway and my younger brother's unusually fast heartbeat.

'Sisley!'

Logan immediately stormed out of the conference room. Then, while everyone was stunned, he started running without hesitation in the direction where Sisley's presence was felt.

Preparations to subdue the demonic beasts were in full swing throughout the building.

While Sisley was walking with the guidance of an attendant, workers could be seen carrying several large wooden boxes on one side of the hallway.

"Hey, be careful moving there!"

"It's highly flammable. "Don't get too close to the torch!"

Meanwhile, the torches leading down the hallway were fluctuating more and more violently.

Crack! widely! widely!

It was so annoying that Inquisitor Boris finally uttered one word.

"Cyprus seems to use very poor quality oil for its torches."

Sisley just nodded without answering. As I began to experience the strange ominous feeling that had been felt earlier, it was gradually becoming physicalized into palpitations.

'what? 'Why am I so anxious?'

It was around that time.

A torch on the other side of the hallway showed strange movement.

Grumble!

The large flame that rose up high out of nowhere sent a small ember into the air, fluttering like the wings of a butterfly.

"... .. ?"

Sky sky.

The red embers that were flapping their wings alone without the help of the wind crossed Sisley's eyes with slow, dream-like movements.

"... hmm?"

And the place where the red butterfly finally landed was on a large wooden box that workers had placed in one hallway.

"Now, wait! I, I... .. !"

There was no time for the workers to do anything.

Grumble!

A fierce flame rises above [Ancient Fire], a secret weapon ambitiously prepared by the Cyprus Navy.

One after another-

Quaaaang!

A loud explosion shook the council building entirely.

382. Red (5)

"What the hell is going on!?"

"I'm buying it! A spark fell on one of the boxes containing the 'Ancient Fire'!"

"what? But why does an explosion occur?"

The sudden explosion completely collapsed a corner of the council building.

A couple of rooms adjoining the hallway were exposed without any boundaries, and the outer wall on the opposite side was also badly broken, giving a clear view of the adjacent courtyard.

And soon all of those spaces are quickly covered with hot scarlet flames.

Grrrrrrrrrrrr!

"Bring water! hurry!"

"it's crazy? No water! "The fire is only spreading further!"

"soil! Don't hesitate and get the dirt! As much as possible! All visible flames must be covered!"

While the workers were struggling in confusion, Logan, who easily navigated the crowded crowd, arrived at the scene of the accident in an instant.

"... ..!"

Three people were lying side by side in the burning hallway. Luckily,

I haven't been caught in the fire yet.

Logan, spotting familiar silver hair among them, spread his Auror curtain wide and ran straight to the edge of the flames.

"Sisle!"

I quickly picked up the little girl and examined her condition carefully. Fortunately, there seemed to be no apparent trauma. It seems she was caught in a strong explosion and lost consciousness for a moment.

Logan, sensing his younger brother's stable aura, let out a deep sigh of relief and increased his divine power.

Whoa!

After pouring out a ton of divine power on Sisley, Logan finally came to the senses to look at the surrounding situation.

And for a moment, I was speechless at the sight that unfolded before my eyes.

"... .."

It is a terrible fiery hell.

Riding on a secret flammable substance handed down from ancient times, the gigantic fire was devouring everything around it at every moment.

Patter-

Due to the aftermath of the explosion, the exterior walls of the building were still crumbling little by little, raising dust. Then, the dust generated there quickly bursts into flames, engulfing not only the floor but also the surrounding atmosphere.

A vicious cycle in which one fire creates another fire.

'... 'You managed to get away safely in this situation!'

Logan watched with slightly weary eyes as the hot flames split and spread to the left and right of the Aura curtain.

"Lowering!"

"Your Majesty Logan!"

"omg! "Saint?!"

The knights of Liliun, who belatedly ran after Logan, were startled and opened their Auror curtains one after another.

"Lowering! You must avoid it! "Hurry this way!"

Logan held Sisley and slowly retreated along the retreat route secured by the knights.

Sir Otto and Sir Ellie then rush in and safely pull the Inquisitor and servant who were lying nearby to the back.

Grumble! Good luck!

Meanwhile, fire extinguishing work was in full swing at the site. Guards from all directions join the workers and carry soil without stopping.

But that alone is not enough. The fire that had already begun to gain momentum only spread further and showed no signs of being extinguished.

"What a terrifying flame. I think this is the [Ancient Fire] the council was talking about."

Logan nodded at Sir Duchamp's muttering.

Seeing that the fire was clearly not extinguished, it seemed that fireworks could easily be carried out even on the sea.

At that moment, Sisley, who was in my arms, twitched slightly.

"... "Brother Logan."

"Yes, Sisley. "Are you out of your mind?"

Sisley blinked for a moment to focus, but then he seemed to come to his senses and opened his eyes.

"Brother! "What about Inquisitor Boris?"

"If you are referring to the Inquisitor who was with you, don't worry. He is safe."

Sisley turned his head and saw the Inquisitor and servant lying on one side of the hallway, frowned slightly, and slowly stood up.

"Anyway, what happened? Sisley. "Why were you caught in the explosion?"

"I am... "I decided to meet someone here."

"Who are you meeting?"

Sisley turned his head without answering. Towards a large room where the wall collapsed and the interior was completely exposed.

Logan, who had been unconsciously following the girl's gaze, suddenly sensed something and was startled.

"person... .. ?!"

Beyond the huge wall of fire, there really was another person lying there. He appears to be completely unconscious and does not even move even though parts of his body are engulfed in flames.

Logan was quite embarrassed.

'what? There was no sign of anything until just now? 'When are you there?'

Those who were extinguishing the fire seemed to have also noticed the person's presence.

"Ambrosius has been consumed by fire!"

"Priests! "Hurry and call a priest!"

"for a moment! Putting out the fire comes first! "Hurry up!"

At the commotion, Sisley suddenly woke up as if he had come to his senses.

"ah... ! Ambrose of Helios! "I was supposed to meet him, but I think he got swept up in the fire while coming to meet me!"

It meant that the author was the one who brought Sisley here on his own.

'But is that really a sign of a living person? 'It was so close to me, how could I not have noticed?'

As Logan hesitated, feeling strange, Sisley looked at Logan with an earnest look on his face.

"Brother Logan, I'm fine, so you hurry and help that person."

"Sisle."

"It may already be too late, but you can't leave people in the flames, right? "I'll take care of the other people who have fallen, so come on!"

It was a valid statement. Logan nodded his head and quickly jumped into the flames.

Wow-

As the powerful silver-blue curtain unfolded, the ferocious flames soon split apart, willingly clearing the way for the Sword Master.

The aftermath of the explosion was enormous. Even Seongjin, who started the fire, was unable to escape the shock.

No, maybe it had a bigger impact because I wasn't expecting it.

'Kkuek... ... !'

Seongjin's soul flew towards Delcross at once. The twins' soul terminals that were chattering next to her must have received a similar shock, and they flew off somewhere and their presence is no longer felt.

Seongjin thought in the midst of dizzy confusion.

'what? 'Why is it exploding like that?'

As far as Seongjin knew, the substance contained in that box did not have the property of exploding at once. It was just liquid fuel that spread the fire quite quickly and was difficult to extinguish.

So Seongjin just quietly started a fire and tried to block Sisley's path. I thought it would be the icing on the cake if I could control the direction a little and completely burn down one annoying person.

'okay. What I was aiming for was the puppet master's life!'

To get rid of the puppeteer's soul, you have no choice but to hit the body it resides in.

But at the same time, Seongjin was well aware of the fact that the person himself was not actually a [Puppet Master].

It was a sin that could never be forgiven, just like attempting to murder a stranger. It was obvious that doing something like that with one's soul would consume an unimaginably large amount of cause and effect.

but-

'You will never have an opportunity like this again in the future. So, let's catch him off guard here! Even the puppet master probably never expected that I would twist cause and effect and use my hands directly!'

It's very breathtaking. However, if you use the things around you well, you probably won't completely exceed the limit of cause and effect.

At least Seongjin thought so.

'The culprit targeting Sisley and Logan! I'll completely destroy you right here!'

Although the spark was ignited in such a triumphant manner, the result was like this. It was completely different from what he expected.

I couldn't figure out why.

'There's no way such an explosion could have occurred just by pulling out a spark.'

My guess is that something got in the way. Someone had so efficiently manipulated a small amount of cause and effect that even Seongjin had not noticed, completely reversing the outcome of the event!

'Who on earth?'

Are they from the 6-person meeting? No, they still don't know what the puppeteer is up to.

Perhaps one of the high-ranking demon lords? But you won't really gain anything by interrupting me now, will you?

or not...

'... 'No way, father?'

That was when Seongjin thought about it.

Beep-

Soon, along with the loud ringing in my ears, my mind began to blur as always. Seongjin struggled to keep his thoughts going as his mind rapidly became blank.

'Not yet, not yet! We need to find out more about what happened! I have something to tell Logan and Sisley! That box... ... !'

... But wait a minute. Box?

How do I know what that box is?

No, more than that, where was I just now? What on earth am I for...

Shoot ah-

Memories drain away like the ebb of the tide. It's very vain, but as it always has been, it's something we're used to now.

In the end, Seongjin gave up on the idea, relaxed his soul, and waited for the memories to disappear completely. She returns to her body and waits for Mores to open her eyes again.

[Lee Seong-jin.]

Just then, someone calls Seongjin. When I turned my head, I saw a small spark that looked quite familiar, twinkling faintly.

'Devil?'

Seongjin's soul, which was currently half-out of his body, could be seen clearly even without using his spiritual eyes.

But for some reason, the Demon King was no longer crying. In fact, unlike usual, he is giving off a rather determined atmosphere!

'mind...'

Seongjin was about to call him out once more, but the devil struck first, opening up the conversation.

[Wait a moment, Seongjin Lee. Wait a minute, would you like to talk to me a little bit right now?]

'story? What, suddenly? If that's the case, let's do it later. First, I wake up...'

[no. It's now or never! I don't want to lose my precious memories anymore!]

'... ... ?'

[Because it's only this one time! huh?]

It's a completely incomprehensible sound.

Nevertheless, the emotions in his earnest voice were vividly conveyed, and Seongjin suddenly felt like he wanted to grant whatever request he had.

Then, as if somehow knowing that thought, the Demon King's small flame swayed gently as if smiling.

[...] thank you.]

'... ... '

Seongjin looked at the shabby flame in front of him without answering.

For some reason, he didn't seem like the usual demon lord. He was an insignificant guy who whined like a child every day, but for some reason, I felt a kind of dignity about him now that was different from before.

[My business is nothing special. I thought today was the time to tell you my real name.]

Seongjin became curious.

'Why now?'

Didn't he do that before? He said it was difficult to say his own name out of his mouth. There's a lot at stake.

[Because the heavy gold decorations have become much lighter now.]

'taboo?'

[huh. As you know, I just received permission.]

'... ... ?'

As I was staring at him out of curiosity, the Demon King came up to Seongjin's eye level and blinked, as if making eye contact.

And he said each word slowly, with force, as if he was repeating it to himself.

[Listen carefully, Seongjin Lee. My name is Kalpagni. He is the great Fire Demon and the annihilation of Gehenna, which brings about the destruction of the dimension.]

Kalpagni.

But that was the moment I heard that name.

Cheong-

Seongjin suddenly felt a huge impact hitting his head and stumbled.

'This... ... !'

A pain that is not that unfamiliar. It was definitely the same shock I received when I saw a puppet show being performed in a mess on the rue de Bertrand one day.

While Seongjin was deeply embarrassed by the unknown phenomenon, the Demon King asked in a disinterested voice.

[Tell me honestly. Seongjin Lee. You were in a lot of pain just now, right?]

'... ... !'

[okay. That's right.]

I felt like I got hit out of nowhere. However, the demon king, who was actually the one who created this phenomenon, had a calm demeanor as if he had anticipated everything.

[It has to be that way. Because that name has already become a misnomer. Now, the name of the Fire Demon may no longer be 'Kalpagni'.]

'what... ... ?'

[Do you remember the puppet show story you told me earlier?]

The Demon King was talking about a memory that Seongjin recalled.

[From then on, I thought something was strange. It must have been me, the Fire Demon Lord, who attacked by calling the wrong name, so why did you also suffer such a big blow?]

'... ... '

It's a problem I don't really want to think about. Because I knew that the more I dug into it, the more I would come to an unexpected conclusion.

But I couldn't stop the demon lord's words now. Anyway, didn't he promise to listen to what he said this time?

but.

[Lee Seong-jin. Do you know how the generational change of the devil takes place?]

Don't do it though.

Say no more, devil.

Seongjin wanted to say that. Part of her mind was deeply aware that what was coming had finally come.

[Take everything you can as long as you have the power. And the weak lose everything to the stronger. That's how demons live.]

The fact that I have been holding on to the devil's true name and trying hard not to recognize it until now.

[And it was the same for me, the king of one dimension.]

The spirit of the Demon King continues his detailed explanation, occasionally flashing irregular lights. A faint light that is so insignificant that it feels a little sad.

[You killed the demon king of one dimension alone. And he was qualified to rule over all of Gehenna.]

The Fire Demon had completed the generational change at that time. The Demon King who said that seemed either very sad or a little happy.

[okay? Seongjin Lee. From the time you first came to this world, you were already the Fire Demon Lord and my monarch.]

383. Red (6)

A generational change has already occurred.

But at first, the Demon King did not realize this fact either. I don't know how he survived the ravages of hell, but somehow his soul was preserved intact.

As long as he wasn't completely destroyed, he thought he was the Fire Demon.

There were times when I felt that my condition was a little strange. But for some reason, he gradually stopped thinking about it too deeply.

The same thing happened one day when Lee Seong-jin asked me about my name in passing.

'There are many things at stake in my true name. If you mention this name carelessly, something irreparable will probably happen.'

Because such vague fear was eating away at his soul so strongly, the Demon King was unable to give a proper answer and ended up giving a vague answer.

'What did I do around midnight yesterday? 'Did you sleep?'

Of course, there were times when I noticed gaps in my memory that were noticeable.

But until then, the Demon King just thought that his soul was so bored that he was taking a short sleep.

Isn't it really strange? These are things that should have been detected and worried about a long time ago. Perhaps something invisible was directly interfering with the Demon King's soul, castrating his doubts and sense of crisis from the beginning.

For example, the Demon King once heard something like this from an idiot.

-... And I was able to hear a detailed explanation from them. Red is not an evil spirit, but is actually your loyal servant.

How dare you call yourself, the great Demon King, a mere servant of a human! The Demon King was immediately outraged, but strangely enough, after a while, he stopped caring about it at all.

Another time something like this happened. Was it the time when I lent my spiritual eyes to Lee Seong-jin and examined objects in the normal world?

?List of spirits that can be summoned as summons 2/4?

?One. □□□□ (inactive)?

?2. □□□ □□ (inactive)?

?3. Hayes Martin (active)?

?4. Is red (active)?

An object from the normal world that always shows only objective information marks itself as Lee Seong-jin's summoned beast, not the Demon King?

At that time, the Demon King was so shocked that he even sobbed for a moment, forgetting about his body pain!

However, as some time passed, he once again ate the bear meat provided by Lee Seong-jin and gave it up.

I should have questioned all of those things early on.

Why did [Soul Detection] not work on Lee Seong-jin from the beginning? And how was it possible for Lee Seong-jin, a human being, to hijack his senses at will?

And then it finally happened. The day Seongjin Lee encountered a crazy old woman at Sigismund Range.

Lee Seong-jin, who was extremely indignant, temporarily removed the restrictions he had placed on himself and revealed some of his power in front of everyone.

-You will never be forgiven for your sins. You won't be able to sleep peacefully until you die. Even after death your soul will never rest.

A curse so powerful that it is so deeply engraved in the human soul that no one can even think of resisting it.

Each of those heavy words left a huge impact not only on the old woman who was the target of the curse, but also on the soul of Orden who was by her side.

So, what must the Demon King have felt when he vividly witnessed the scene in his spirit state?

That day, the Demon King felt something from Lee Seong-jin that was like a distant [force] that he could never overcome.

A mysterious energy that even he, a demon lord of one dimension, could not fathom. The shock of being defenselessly exposed to the gaze of a high-ranking demon king of superior rank.

And, a terrible pressure that felt like it would crush my soul in an instant.

The Demon King, who had been trembling in fear for a long time, eventually had no choice but to ask Lee Seong-jin:

-Are you really Lee Seongjin?

What did Seongjin Lee say at that time?

-are you okay. My father fixed everything. Everything is okay now, devil.

There was no way it was okay at all.

However, at Lee Seong-jin's answer, the Demon King found himself strangely relieved.

Before he knew it, he was being overly influenced by Lee Seong-jin's every move and even his emotional state.

'It's really strange. There is a strange side to my relationship with Lee Seong-jin that is difficult to explain...'

Just as the Demon King is the enemy who destroyed Lee Seong-jin's world, Lee Seong-jin is also the enemy who took away everything from the Demon King...

But why did the Demon King become so happy or sad at every word Seongjin Lee said, and desperately wanted to become the person he needed? Why did he voluntarily go to the trouble of sharing his spiritual eyes for his safety?

[and...]

The Demon King, who had said that much, stopped blinking for a moment and stared quietly into Seongjin's eyes.

[Lee Seong-jin, why did I think I wanted to stay in this world with you even though I could have killed you and returned to Gehenna?]

'...'

[Of course, we can know for sure now that the ban has been lifted. Perhaps, if you had disappeared in flames at that time, I, who lost my status as a demon king, would not have survived so well.]

okay. That must have been the case.

The current Demon King is like a candle in danger of being extinguished with just one careless gesture.

[You probably already knew that, right? So, at that time, you told me not to go back. Why did you do that? Why did you decide to save me now?]

As for why, there was no other reason. At that time, didn't the devil decide to save Seongjin first? So he just responded with the same kindness to the kindness he showed first.

'I told you, right? You should stick by my side and become my traveling companion someday.'

When I answered harshly, the Demon King seemed a little embarrassed and started blinking the light rapidly.

[...] ... !]

'And you are quite useful. 'You can lend your spiritual eyes, become a lie detector, or even become a reconnaissance drone, right?'

[But Lee Seong-jin. If I hadn't been there from the beginning, you would have been...]

'From the beginning, what?'

[therefore...]

'what? why? what?'

[...]]

The Demon King, who was dazed for a moment by Seongjin's blunt attitude, soon shook his soul gently from side to side as if shaking his head.

[...] no. My new monarch has an unusually merciful side. Not like a devil at all.]

That's right, devil, because I'm not a devil.

Seongjin thought so without thinking, but he didn't say it out loud, even if it was in vain. Because he shouldn't define his existence carelessly.

Moreover, isn't it absurd to deny in advance something that you are not sure about?

[Anyway, after that day, I tried my best to control the fire of Gehenna. But no matter how hard I tried, things didn't go as planned. So I gradually realized it. The fact that I have already completely lost control of the fire of Gehenna.]

Originally, this realization would have gradually faded away as usual under prohibition.

But is it because Seongjin's condition has become extremely unstable recently? The prohibition also became unstable, and the Demon King slowly began to reflect on the questions he had put aside in his consciousness until now.

[So I naturally learned how to solve the current awkward situation.]

I don't want to hear it.

Seongjin thought so.

But still, I had to listen. Because I tacitly granted the Demon King's wish that I no longer want to lose my memories, and that I would listen to the words he desperately wanted to convey to Seongjin.

[Lee Seong-jin. When the scale of power was completely tipped that day, our generational change had already begun. But, as you know, the process did not end so neatly.]

Because I still have my soul left, right?

The Demon King muttered that and began to move his soul from sky to sky.

[I gave the last command to the fires of Gehenna before I died. Burn everything in the world together with Lee Seong-jin. Even my soul, the owner of the cowardice, is everything.]

But somehow, their souls survived. That's why Gehenna's annihilation continues to this day, with every effort being made to burn those designated as its final targets.

[Of course, if the two of us are swept up in that fire together now, my shabby soul will probably burn and disappear before yours. And you will barely survive, eventually taking control of the ravages of hell. In other words, all of this is going to happen anyway.]

'... ... '

[Yes, I know very well. The fact that my soul still remains in this world is nothing more than a small mercy shown by the person who has been appointed as the new monarch. But that reprieve cannot last forever.]

The place where the Demon King's soul headed was to Mores' Danjeon. A place where the small embers of Gehenna that are still alive flutter their tongues, looking for an opportunity to rise again at any time.

Only then did Seongjin know for sure.

The reason why the devil bastard has been sobbing and depressed lately.

Perhaps he had already decided on his end from then on and was slowly preparing for this situation.

'Wait a minute, devil. What are you doing now? ... !'

Seongjin was startled and tried to control him again, but the demon king's soul, which had already escaped the ban, was moving far away toward the fire of Gehenna.

Only the lonely sound of his thoughts are heard more and more clearly into my ears.

[I know that? The original principle of action of demons is quite simple. They try to pass on their pain to others and use their misfortune as a driving force to escape their own pain.]

Seongjin quickly moved his soul along with the guy.

But for some reason, the more I tried, the further the distance between me and him became.

[Now that I know a little about human physiology and emotions, I think about this. Isn't the devil's soul, unable to keep anything precious, perhaps the most painful soul in the world?]

Perhaps Seonghwang had done something to it some time ago. He used his own method to completely distort time and space so that the flames of Gehenna were as far away from Seongjin's soul as possible.

[That's why Lee Seong-jin, I still can't truly apologize to you. It is my nature as a devil to destroy and devour dimensions. If there is even just one way for me to regain the power of the Demon King, I will someday repeat the same thing again to fill the deep void in my soul.]

The Demon King who had said that far stopped moving for a moment and blinked a faint light towards Seongjin.

[But this is also an undeniable fact. Although I have reigned as the king of the demon world for a long time, I have never had an experience as dense and fulfilling as the past few months with you. It could be said that those memories are the most valuable things in the world that I never want to lose.]

Seongjin finally gave up trying to catch up with the guy and shouted.

'Hey, man! what are you doing? 'Stop it now!'

But the Demon King paid no heed, and continued to deliver words that sounded like a will.

[So, I am grateful to you, Seongjin Lee. Taking someone as a servant means carrying that person's karma on your back as well. Thanks to you, I was able to escape my devil nature for a moment and experience many emotions as if I were truly human.]

'You say you are my descendant? Then listen to my orders! Stop there!?'

[Thank you so much for giving my soul a long reprieve so that I can accumulate enough happy memories.]

'... 'Don't do that, devil.'

[And thank you for making me feel like I don't want to lose it forever, even if I end up disappearing.]

The demon king's soul, who had spoken up to that point, spoke for the last time, emitting bright light.

[Hello, Seongjin Lee.]

384. Conflict (1)

'Should I ask someone for help?'

Owen paced in front of the strange border with a nervous look on his face.

'Brother Masain! If my brother were here, he might have told me a way to resolve the situation somehow!

As soon as my thoughts reached that point, I wanted to run out and find him right now.

But with my father and Mores in such an unstable state, I can't leave here alone!

"Is there anyone outside? Chamberlain! Louis!"

Owen shouted out the door several times. But strangely, there was no sign of Lewis, who was obviously in the office next door.

Where is that? The hallways, which would normally be crowded with people, were also quiet, as if the people had disappeared at once.

It felt as if the temporary treatment room itself had become a place that did not exist in reality, or as if it had been pushed somewhere far beyond the scope of human perception.

How long had they been standing guard in front of that gray, faded space?

sparkle.

Suddenly, the boy lying on the bed opened his eyes as if it were a lie.

"Hey, Mores! you... ..!"

Owen smiled and called out to him.

However, just as he was about to approach the bed, Owen soon flinched back and trailed off. I realized that the strange boundary of space still remained there.

It seems that this strange situation is not completely over yet. Above all, the condition of the boy who opened his eyes seemed very strange.

'... ..?!'

Mores, who stared straight ahead for a moment with his eyes wide open, soon began to slowly sit up with an expressionless face.

However, the appearance looks very heterogeneous, as if a mechanical doll is creaking.

'Why is that guy acting like that all of a sudden?'

Owen unconsciously felt goosebumps forming on his skin. At first glance, the boy's body seemed cold and solid, as if it were made entirely of inorganic matter, not a living organism.

In the midst of that lifeless appearance, the only thing that seemed alive was the boy's eyes.

The bright gray eyes, shining brightly, emit a strange silvery glow in the dim shadows of the backlight.

The scene was unfamiliar to Owen, but also not unfamiliar at all. Wasn't Seonghwang's state similar to this, as he had been frozen in a daze from earlier?

Above all, those eyes-

That bright light that shines alone in the dark reminded me of a mysterious friend who once in a dungeon would sometimes give off a strange glow in his eyes.

-Let's go to the middle!

-hey! Don't jump out, newbie! It's dangerous!

??!

The image of a small goat running forward without hesitation, making cute footsteps, suddenly flashes through my mind.

'... Newbie?'

No, but-

Owen shook his head.

'Am I out of my mind? Why are you suddenly thinking about the wrong guy? Right now, the work of my father and Mores is more urgent than anything else!'

It was right then.

The boy who was staring straight ahead with no expression suddenly rolled his eyes and cast his gaze at Seonghwang next to him.

[why!]

Owen probably hadn't even guessed.

However, as soon as Seongjin opened his eyes, he was furiously venting his anger towards Seonghwang.

[Why on earth did you do that! I thought I was leaving everything to my will, based on my judgment!]

Is it because of the Demon King's sacrifice that he was not even aware of? Seongjin's emotions were so intense that he opened his eyes with a part of his consciousness that he normally completely suppressed. Because of this, he is currently a little confused about who he is.

So, for the first time since I woke up in this world, I actively shot out thoughts using the flame crystal while maintaining normal consciousness.

[Why did you do that! Wasn't it you who said that two oracles could not coexist at the same time?]

As the deeply suppressed aspects of one's personality are revealed, an accurate perception of the current situation naturally also rises to the surface.

Thanks to this, Seongjin was able to clearly recognize that the interference that occurred earlier was Seonghwang's doing.

[To avoid a conflict of perceptions, one of the two must completely give up their will for the future! So it's always been that way, hasn't it? But why, at such a critical moment, do you suddenly come to the fore and disturb me?]

The person in front of him is someone who can understand and manage all the affairs of the world if he wants to.

Therefore, there is no other person in the world that Seongjin can argue with as much as he likes, other than this person.

[If only I had just killed that guy, many future problems would have been resolved smoothly!]

I burst out in anger.

A target that was narrowly missed. Because of this, the most ideal future that Seongjin had in mind disappeared by just a hair's breadth!

[To Sisley! To Logan too! And to you too! There would be no doubt that it was a much better future!]

It was a fierce backlash that had never been seen before.

Nevertheless, Seonghwang seems to have expected this and just looks at Seongjin without answering.

[In the end, if you were going to do this in the end, why on earth did you do that to me... .. !]

Seongjin was currently filled with a strange sense of betrayal and frustration. It was not just because his will and that of Seonghwang directly clashed.

Now, Seongjin, who still has his personality and memories, albeit imperfectly, knows what burden Seonghwang shouldered to stop him.

That made me even more angry. Because of this incident, I could clearly see what price he would have to pay in the future!

[What on earth do you want? Why do you take the easiest path and manipulate cause and effect into such a complicated tangle? Even so, what more do you want to add to a topic that has so many things foolishly burdening you with? What on earth are they all?!]

A cause and effect so subtle that even Seongjin would have had a hard time understanding it right away. Even though such a small cause and effect was twisted and rolled, the ramifications of exercising power directly with the soul would be enormous.

It was truly infuriating. There are degrees of foolishness among people!

[Your greed is too excessive to converge all those countless branches of cause and effect into one point! It's not like you don't know! A perfect future without sacrificing anything never exists in this world!]

Blink.

Then Seonghwang, who had not moved a muscle until then, slowly moved his eyelids.

But his mind was actually full of other thoughts.

okay. Because the future of that wrong thing was also important to you. So, even though I subconsciously anticipated and prepared for it, the unexpected sacrifice it showed was such a shock.

[...] Son.]

After choosing his words for a moment, Seonghwang called out to Seongjin, who was extremely upset, as if to soothe him.

[You are the oracle of the next generation, and the fact remains that your will is paramount in everything that will happen in the future. But you must know this for sure. Only when you look at the world through the eyes of a complete oracle can you understand all the causes and effects that led to the current outcome and intervene in them in the way you want.]

[Undoubtedly, I have moved all causality so far as a perfect oracle. He went as far as erasing his own memories every time out of fear that the results would be even slightly distorted! Do you really want to say that I expected you to intervene as you please? In the end, are all of these things the result 'I' wanted?]

[I don't mean that.]

[then... ... !]

[I was just saying that your judgment as an oracle may be a little different from how you are now, who maintains a little bit of personal will.]

Until now, Seongjin had not made much of a distinction between the two. But it wasn't until today that I got to truly experience it.

'I' probably anticipated the devil's actions and prepared for them.

But wasn't I completely unaware until just now that the Demon King was prepared to make such a sacrifice? Since he didn't want that at all, he didn't even assume that his family would go against his will.

[That's essentially the Oracle's perspective. If you try to carry out a clear will from the beginning, it becomes impossible to keep everything in sight.]

It is extremely difficult to maintain that gaze forever. Seonghwang added that.

[Unless the original will and emotions are completely destroyed, humans will never be able to be rational in the face of all the vortex of cause and effect.]

Seongjin pondered his words for a moment. But then he suddenly snaps and gets angry again.

[But at that time, I made an extremely reasonable and rational decision! Even now, that thought has not changed! Killing the puppet master was the only best choice for everyone in the Seonghwang family!]

[okay. Then don't ask.]

In response to Seongjin's strong protest, Seonghwang was not embarrassed and continued speaking in a low voice.

[Son. Was that the best choice the result of sufficient consideration of your own safety?]

[...] yes?]

[At the moment you decided to take the puppeteer's life, did you also exist with everyone in the future that your intention envisioned?]

[that...]

Seongjin was speechless for a moment.

Of course, I thought it could be dangerous. However, he did it because he calculated that as much as he would lose something, the value of what he gained would be just as valuable.

But if you think about it carefully now, there are some parts that take some time.

'To be honest, I didn't have any desire to resolve my personal grudge against the puppet master.'

Even in a world where puppet masters have disappeared, other dangers are sure to arise.

So, if you ask whether it is the most perfect and efficient choice for the future, there may be some differences of opinion depending on your perspective.

[But for Sisley or Logan, it's much more...]

As Seongjin muttered stubbornly, Seonghwang slowly shook his head.

[You also fully know the answer to that. Do you really think that those children are not even capable of taking care of themselves without your help?]

[...]]

Seongjin remained silent for a moment, then slowly looked away with a slightly softened attitude.

[...] Well, I understand what you said. But from now on, don't ever interfere with me like this again. Because I can do it more perfectly in the future.]

[...]]

[So, what I am saying is, don't waste the little time you have left like that. Do you understand?]

Then Seonghwang sent a gently shaking wave. This is evidence that although he has lost some control of his body due to breaking away from the laws of the world, his emotions are still active as usual.

However, along with that faint smile, the feeling conveyed simultaneously from the thought was a strange bitterness.

[How far are you trying to be inferior to others on your own? Why, from now on, are you planning on not just erasing your memories, but also practicing killing your own emotions more completely?]

[...]]

[In the end, I want to believe that you will not make the same choice as your grandmother.]

Seongjin's eyes, which had been completely expressionless, only then slightly wavered.

Because the current Seongjin never knew what choices the former Oracle made and what the results were in the end.

[...] Well, let's move on from what has already happened. The problem is next.]

Seongjin quickly called attention.

It's not just that I narrowly missed the puppet master. Recently, Seonghwang's position as the guardian of the dimension has been very precarious, because he has been neglecting his job of taking care of the Delcross dimension by continuing to stick by Seongjin's side.

However, there was no way those who invaded this place would tolerate the prosperity.

Those who thought they had an opportunity launched a more aggressive attack than usual, and in the end, Seonghwang had no choice but to hold on, delaying action as long as possible and twisting the flow of time.

If he tries to sneak in again and deal with them, this time he will have to endure an offensive that cannot be compared to the large-scale air raid that took place last time.

[Considering what happened today, the six-person meeting will definitely not sit still this time. Why on earth did you do something like that?]

But even with all these karma in front of him, Seonghwang just responded resolutely.

[There is nothing to worry about. All preparations have already been made.]

[...] prepare? Are you saying that even after looking at that mess?]

I'm not a kid who piles up a mountain of vacation homework and pulls it out the day before school starts.

But Seonghwang really seemed to think nothing of this mess.

[Everything is still completely under my control. Don't worry too much.]

After responding like that, Seonghwang moved his stiff facial muscles and slightly raised the corners of his mouth.

[You are still 650 years too early to worry about that.]

Seongjin was dumbfounded.

[...] I'm definitely trying to overcome my age by at least 10 years.]

In the end, Seongjin let go of his anger and muttered.

Logan and you do exactly the same thing. How can they be so consistent?

* * *

Wow!

Suddenly, Mores curls up and retches loudly.

"... ... !"

At the same time, the boundary in front of me collapses like a lie, and the space that had faded to gray regains its usual presence.

Owen was startled and ran towards the boy.

"Mores! Are you okay? "What's going on here?!"

But the boy, with his head down and his mouth covered, was urgently gesturing somewhere with one hand!

"ah... ... !"

"huh? what?"

"Father... "Wow!"

"... ... !?"

Owen was confused, but soon realized what Mores really wanted to say.

Slurp-

The body of Seonghwang, who had been sitting stiffly until then, slowly collapsed to the side as if he had suddenly lost the strength to support him.

Slurp!

"father!? What the hell is this... .."

Owen panicked and grabbed him, but Mores struggled to catch his breath and continued speaking.

"Katrina, call the leader. right now!"

"... "Director Katrina?"

"okay. And, Eddie... .."

After speaking up to that point, Mores lay down on one side of the bed in the living room and suppressed the nausea that came over him for a moment.

"Call Edith here, right now!"

385. Conflict (2)

"your majesty!"

Quang!

There was nothing else to do but go and call Owen.

As soon as the gap that hindered human perception completely disappeared, the Holy Emperor's loyal shield immediately sensed something abnormal and rushed to the temporary treatment room.

Katrina, who opened the door in an uncharacteristically harsh manner, noticed Seonghwang leaning on Owen's arm, and her complexion immediately became pale. But her years of experience were not in vain, and she soon regained her composure and calmly approached them.

"Excuse me for a moment."

She carefully checked the pulse of the success and seemed to quickly grasp the situation.

"Sir Francis. Assemble the paladins. "We must go to the prayer room with His Majesty right now."

The adjutant who followed behind with a confused look nodded and quickly ran away.

"Prayer room? why? My father suddenly collapsed for no reason. "Then isn't it better to treat the underlying disease first?"

When Owen, who knew nothing, asked worriedly, Katrina smiled reassuringly as she took the bus from him.

"Don't worry, Prince Owen. No disease in the world can dare invade Your Majesty. "You yourself are working miracles even in places you can't see, simply for an important task."

"A miracle... Are you holding an event?"

"Yes that's right. That's how you work. "There is no corner of the world that His Majesty's hand does not reach, and it is just that the eyes of criminals like us cannot dare to capture it all."

Katrina had learned this from past experiences.

In case the soul of the Holy Emperor leaves unexpectedly, his body must be made to escape the laws of physics on earth as much as possible. That it was the only way to alleviate the shock his soul received from the gap.

The place for this is the prayer room located in the heart of the imperial palace.

Just one thing that bothers me-

"Your Majesty Mores. "Are you feeling okay?"

This is what happened to the young prince who is still lying in bed and groaning.

Fever of unknown cause.

After Prince Mores was seriously injured and brought to the main palace, the Holy Emperor set up a temporary treatment room and did not enter the prayer room even once from that day. This was because the prince's condition was so unstable that it was impossible for him to be away for a long time.

"What should I do? Is it okay to move His Majesty to the prayer room like this?"

As Katrina worried later, Seongjin guessed what she was worried about and waved his hand.

"Uh, I'm okay now... So come on, dad... "Wow!"

"... "It doesn't look good at all."

"This is just motion sickness. If it's a fever, my father will be fine now... You said you would. So, you left the place with peace of mind."

As Seongjin responded incoherently, Owen, who was listening from the side, looked strange.

"ok? When did your father do that? You were just sitting still and then suddenly collapsed! "Aren't you just making up nonsense to put people at ease?"

what? Why did I do that?

What on earth does this guy think of me?

'I had a long conversation with my father, mostly through reflection... ah! There's no way Owen knew that!'

When Seongjin made a shocked expression, Katrina also confirmed it again with a firm face.

"Is that true? Please tell me exactly what your current situation is, sir. I can still feel this heat... .."

"Uh, this is just... It's a light fever. It's no big deal. "It's just the nature of my Auror."

As he said, Seongjin was truly feeling a sense of liberation for the first time in a long time. The auror combined with the fire of Gehenna began to stir again in the Danjeon, but the heat was no longer enough to threaten Seongjin's life.

It was truly amazing.

It's not like the devil of hell suddenly lost his power. The fire, which had seemed like a disaster beyond human control not long ago, was now trying to fuel the flames at random, but it felt like Seongjin was secretly watching out for them.

'I thought it wouldn't be long before this happened.'

okay. I had a premonition that if I took the time and worked hard, one day I would be able to control the fires of Gehenna.

'So my father must have waited for me too. But what did my father say to me earlier? For some reason, it seemed like he was saying that he had been idle for a while, and that he was now going to do some backlogged work... ..'

Of course, the current Seongjin did not know the details of how things came to this. The memories that had vaguely remained in my mind since I opened my eyes were quickly disappearing.

but-

'Well, what's good is good, right?'

Moreover, I did not forget any important facts that must be left behind. This radical change is in no way thanks to the crybaby demon king's sacrifice for Seongjin.

and-

'We have to get him back. Surely I did something at the end! 'That's how I feel!'

Fortunately, the nausea that felt like I was suffocating is slowly stabilizing. Seongjin struggled to lift her head and winked at Katrina.

"So don't worry, I'll just take my father and go."

"Yes, sir."

Katrina did not dig in any further and bowed her head politely.

She was well aware of the strange bond between the Holy Emperor and this mysterious prince. That they see a world that the criminal cannot understand, and that they sometimes communicate in ways that only they know.

So I asked this.

"Is it by any chance that His Majesty gave us special instructions?"

"Oh, that... .."

Seongjin removed the hand covering his mouth and frowned.

"So, what did you say? that's right. He said that from now on, all political affairs will be left to the Empress. "He said that the rest of the work can be done as usual, and Chamberlain Louis will probably understand."

"... .."

Are you planning to be away for a long time again? What kind of urgency had happened that even those simple instructions had to be delivered through Prince Mores?

Katrina could not hide her expression of concern and looked at Seonghwang's face, whose eyes were quietly closed.

"Captain! "We're ready!"

At that time, Francis returned, leading the Knights of St. Aurelion.

Following Katrina's instructions, they skillfully prepared to secretly move a person. He is the monarch of a holy country with a supreme name and appearance, but it was not good for others to see him unconscious.

Chamberlain Lewis came running after them, saw them off with a very worried face, and tidied up the messy temporary treatment room.

"right. Looking at her face reminds me. And it turns out that I had something to ask the Chamberlain too."

"What is that, Prince Mores?"

"Uh, some kind of document I prepared in advance... He told me to send it. "Luis, you say he knows what he's talking about."

"... "You mean the official document, 'Do not reveal yourself.'" huh? 'Do not reveal yourself' official letter? What on earth is that?

Seongjin inadvertently tilted his head, and when he felt his barely stable vestibular system shaking again, he covered his mouth.

"Wow!"

"this! Are you okay, sir? 'I'll bring you some tea right now to help ease your upset stomach!"

Meanwhile, Owen, who knew nothing, could only mutter with a bewildered expression.

"ok? So when did your father say those things? Why does it feel like everyone understands it except me? What's this?"

After some time has passed like that.

Seongjin, who had barely escaped severe motion sickness, had Edith bring a few things. These were items from the world of symmetry that had been stored in Jinju Palace.

These are the magic stones I received as a gift, several transparent soul stones, a half-signpost, and the lycanthrope race key.

Seongjin put all of them aside and finally picked up an elaborately crafted metal necklace.

?A sign of Nebraska?

At that very moment, Owen, who was watching Seongjin doing something nearby, noticed something strange.

"... ... !?"

The boy's silver-gray eyes glowed faintly once again, and the strange pupils occasionally emitted red light.

'What is this guy? 'Are you really in a good state?'

Owen's gaze at Seongjin becomes increasingly sharp.

But Seongjin had no time to worry about the small doubts he felt. Before he knew it, he was naturally using the spiritual eyes he had borrowed from the Demon King, but he also roughly ignored the reason for doing so.

Because there was something I had to quickly check with my eyes right now.

?List of spirits that can be summoned as a summoner 1/3?

?One. ☐☐☐☐ (inactive)?

?2. ☐☐☐ ☐☐ (inactive)?

?3, Belinda Miles (active)?

As soon as I concentrated my mind, texts came to mind in a blur.

Seongjin felt his heart sink when he saw that the Demon King's name had disappeared from there. There seemed to be something strange stuck at the end, but that wasn't that important.

The problem is, where is the soul of the demon king who disappeared from the list now?

'no! Not yet! 'It's still too early to be disappointed!'

Seongjin tried to suppress his pounding heart and rummaged through the soul stones rolling around next to him.

'When I first summoned Hayes' evil spirit as a test, his name was removed from the list. So, his soul may still remain somewhere in the form of a soul stone!'

But it was no use. The few remaining empty soul stones are just sparkling with a shockingly transparent light.

?Soul stone?

No, it's difficult to do this! You can't do this!

Seongjin desperately shook his head.

'I summoned Hayes' evil spirit and it became a soul stone. Then Vajra? What about his soul?'

I remember that he, who was being manipulated by a lycanthrope lord, was naturally sucked into the soul stone that was nearby as he faced death at the hands of Seongjin.

'Is that really the case? 'Isn't it okay if there isn't a soul stone nearby?'

In that case, how can the soul of the Demon King in the main palace be preserved in the soul stones left far away in the Jinju Palace? No, no! I had a premonition! I'm sure I did something!

'Hey, devil?'

I tried calling him again with a faint hope, but as expected, I could not feel the slightest sign of his soul. My mind feels empty and empty.

"uh... ... !"

Seongjin's complexion worsened by the minute.

Is it really the end? Is there no way to return the favor I received from him now? You can't tell me to shut up anymore, and I can't hear you sing loudly while eating bear meat?

As Seongjin bit his lip nervously while holding the amulet, Owen asked worriedly from his side.

"Hey, Mores. "Are you really okay?"

It was right then.

"Oh, that's right. Come to think of it!"

Edith seemed to have suddenly remembered something and walked up to the cabinet on the wall.

"I picked this up in your room a few days ago and forgot about it. "I brought it here to give it to you, but I forgot about it after putting it in a bucket where you suddenly got a fever."

... what?

When Seongjin raised his head with a blank expression, Edith searched through the drawers of the dresser and pulled out a small bead.

Unlike the transparent soul stones, there is one small bead colored in deep red.

"uh? what? wait for a sec. Was it this color? "Do you think something has changed?"

While Edith was confused, Seongjin looked fascinated at the faint text slowly emerging from the bead.

?Red's soul stone?

"It's all because of me! This happened because I inadvertently encouraged Sisley... ..!"

Inquisitor Boris, who had been taken to the treatment room, beat his chest and lamented as soon as he came to his senses.

"I shouted loudly that I would assist you. "But even though I can't protect the saint by my side, I fainted so ugly that I even received treatment from the saint!"

Ugh!

Looking at the junior Inquisitor who was struggling with self-destruction, Lumie had a confused look on her face.

If you think about it, it could be said that Lumie was also responsible. What would have been done by just taking the saintess to her conference room was done for no reason in order to control her discipline, so they created this sad situation.

"I swear to the Lord that I will make up for this humiliation! From now on, I will stay by Saint Sisley's side for the rest of my life and pay for my sins forever!"

Inquisitor Boris, who suffered for a long time, finally became overly motivated and made this oath.

Of course, Lumie, who was nearby, was not much different. On the outside, she was holding her weight as the person in charge of all the Inquisitors, but inside, she was making this promise.

'You must have been surprised by the sudden accident, but you showed camaraderie by taking care of your injured fellow Inquisitor first. What is the point of testing and being wary of such a person for no reason? From now on, I will serve Sisley as politely as possible and never take my eyes off him!'

Right then.

A young man's voice was heard next to them. He was the victim of another explosion that had left him unconscious earlier.

"In the end, the Lord's small grace found me this way. "You made me get caught up in a sudden accident by making a pointless request, so you really have no shame."

Although he sounded listless as he had just woken up from a hospital bed, it was still a voice with a strange charm that penetrated deeply into people's hearts.

"And I would like to meet Prince Logan, a knight of the Lord, renowned even in Cyprus. "Thanks to you, I barely saved my life, so I don't know how I can express my gratitude appropriately."

Ambrose of Helios.

The Prince of Cyprus, who had saved his life, looked at Sisley and Logan in turns and gently curled his mouth.

386. Conflict (3)

There was great commotion for some time in the Council of Cyprus.

The little saint who came running to subdue the demonic beast was caught in a fire as soon as she arrived due to the carelessness of the workers.

An unexpected accident that not only raised questions about the stability of the secret weapon they had confidently prepared, but also could have caused great diplomatic friction between Cyprus and the Holy Empire if they were not careful.

The good news was that, except for one council member, there were no major injuries.

[Ancient Fire], a chemical weapon that is said to not be extinguished once it catches fire.

The box exploded right in front of the saint's eyes, but she lost consciousness for a moment and not a single scratch was left behind. She was truly amazing.

'Ah, Lord! thank you!'

'They said it was a small grace from the Lord, and it's true! If something had happened to Sir Sisley, Delcross's subjugation team might have raised their swords at us instead of at the demonic beasts!'

Should I say that I am glad that the worst situation was avoided?

Of course, the elders and council members did not dare to express that thought outwardly. After all, the one injured person was the eldest son of Elder Chryses, the most powerful person in Cyprus.

"They say Ambrose has just come to his senses! He suffered serious burns all over his body, but fortunately his life was not in any danger!"

"Oh oh! It is truly the care of the Lord! "Didn't you say that you were at the center of a big explosion and that your whole body was engulfed in an ancient fire that could not easily be extinguished?"

"I heard Prince Logan saved you in time? "He's always in good health, so those burns will get better quickly if he gets treatment from the priests!"

Other elders relay the news of the accident and carefully watch Chryses.

However, Elder Chryses did not show any interest in this and seemed to be thinking deeply about something.

"... "Let's continue the strategy meeting tomorrow."

After a while, he declared in a low voice.

"The order now is to first resolve the accident and then inspect the 'ancient fire' again. A proper strategy meeting will probably only be possible after that."

Even though my son almost lost his life, his reaction was strangely dull.

As the elders and council members muttered in confusion, Elder Chryses slowly stood up and added,

"Tell the punitive force to be treated more hospitably today. Aren't they the grateful people who willingly extended a helping hand to the citizens of Cyprus? "On top of that, you saved my son's life, so I don't know how to express my gratitude."

With those words, the older man walked out of the conference room with strides. With a stern expression without the slightest hint of gratitude.

"You are very fortunate, Mr. Ambrose."

And the person involved in the accident was currently sitting in bed, smiling softly at the people surrounding him.

"yes. This is all thanks to the saint and Prince Logan. "Being by the side of two people who are favored by the god, the invisible hand of care extended even to me, a humble person."

"Could you please lower your posture for a moment? "I will change the bandage on your shoulder."

Ambrose of Helios, his condition could not be said to be good even with empty words. When Logan ran, his body was already engulfed in high-temperature flames along with highly flammable substances.

Although Logan quickly put out the fire and joined forces with Sisley to pour out divine power, most of his skin had already melted due to severe burns.

The areas with large and small blisters are in good condition. Most of his upper body and right arm had already turned completely gray and hardened.

Evidence that the muscles may have been completely cooked beyond the deep layers of the skin.

But despite such severe injuries, the man was smiling with an innocent face.

"It was a shock so strong that it shook the very foundation of my soul."

At the time of the accident, his face was intact, except for part of his lower abdomen, as he was covered with a mask.

Ambrosius struggles to move his remaining skin and smiles a rather charming smile.

"It was to the point where I thought a part of my soul had really died.

It can't be anything other than a truly fortunate and sad thing. "Thank you again."

What on earth is happy and sad?

Sisley, who was somehow caught by a strange feeling, looked closely at Ambrose.

"The author is the Prince of Cyprus... .."

He was a very neat-looking man. Bright blonde hair and a sharp, strong lower crown that is rarely seen in the eastern part of the continent. A voice that is soft and polite, but at the same time has a pressure that makes you nervous.

According to rumors, it was said that he was close to young age. However, in Sisley's opinion, he seemed too mature for his age.

'... what? Haven't I seen this person somewhere?'

Even though it was clearly their first time meeting, Sisley felt strangely familiar to him.

As it turns out, she wasn't the only one who felt that way.

"Ambrosius. "It would be presumptuous to ask under these circumstances, but have we met somewhere before?"

In response to Logan's question, the man's eyes widened as if he was amused.

"well. At least not from what I remember. Even so, the construction work was so busy that I never visited the Holy Empire even during the birthday party."

truth. Although there were some subtle nuances, the man's words were clearly sincere.

"Why on earth did you think that way? If it's not rude, do you mind if I ask why?"

"It's nothing special. "I just thought he looked a little like someone I knew."

"ha ha ha... . "I'm so glad you feel that way."

Ambrose, who had been letting out a low laugh, stiffened his face for a moment as if he was experiencing strong pain.

"Well, I guess there's no place to guess. Do you know? "My mother was the youngest sister of Grand Duke Asein."

"then..."

"exactly. "Your younger brother, who is famous in many ways, is like a distant relative of mine."

"..."

... Mores' relative?

Logan closed his mouth with a stern expression. To be honest, there was nothing about that guy other than his bright blonde hair that reminded me of his younger brother.

In addition, there was a slight discomfort that was getting on the sword master's nerves from earlier.

It was truly a strange thing.

Ambrosio of Helios has always maintained a polite and gentle demeanor from the beginning, but strangely, Logan felt that it was difficult to treat him calmly.

"Big... ... !"

At that time, Ambrose let out a soft moan again. The therapist's hands that were peeling off the hardened skin must have touched a nerve that remained unburned.

Dots of red blood come out from the cloth that is being wiped off the messed up skin.

"... "I will help you with treatment."

As Logan's hand went to the wound, Ambrosius quickly shook his head.

"I decline. I am not shameless enough to expect any more effort from those who have generously poured out their divine power so far. "The therapists in Cyprus will take care of everything from now on, so you two can get some rest."

"... .."

"As an aside, I would like to properly thank you two. If it weren't for you, would I have survived until now? So, will you please stay at my father's mansion this evening? "I hope you give me a chance to repay this favor in some small way."

Kkugit-

At that time, he felt a hand gently pulling the collar of his uniform from behind.

"Brother."

Sisley's voice sounded somewhat nervous.

Logan, who realized the youngest's intention without even looking back, shook his head in a polite manner.

"Similarly, I am not shameless enough to expect a seriously injured person to be treated as a guest. "We will be leaving now, so please rest comfortably and focus on your recovery."

After giving a cursory greeting, Logan held Sisley's hand and hurried out of the treatment room.

I felt earnest eyes looking at him from behind, but I didn't want to worry about him anymore.

[...] I wondered why that evil thing had to send me along, and it turned out that there was a dangerous person here.]

It was Seo Yi-seo, or rather Cadmus, who greeted the two outside the door of the treatment room.

The iris, shining brightly in gold, tightens as if assessing the scene inside the closed room.

"Do you know someone?"

I asked without thinking, and the answer I got was shocking.

[At one time, I thought that was a close friend. Before I was fooled by that guy's sweet words and wasted 700 years in a coffin.]

"... yes?"

Logan and Sisley exchanged looks.

Are you really someone who knew the first king? Could that be possible?

Ambrose of Helios probably didn't live for a thousand years, but how on earth did that happen...?

[Descendants.]

Cadmus growled and continued, paying no heed to the two people's embarrassed looks. The gaze toward the treatment room door still had a menacing glow in it.

[If possible, it would be best not to encounter the author any more. Both you and Sisley.]

Wong!

A powerful cry echoes through the hallway of the main palace. Seongjin stood up with a smile on his face.

"Max!"

The first thing Seongjin did as soon as he woke up from his sick bed was to call the wolf dog that was kept in the palace courtyard.

As soon as permission was given, Max rushed in like the wind, sat down in front of the bed with his feet together, and began to cry mournfully.

Whoa!

-How could you do that to me? Why have you left me for so long?

"I'm sorry, Max. "This was all done for you."

Ooooh-!

-You knew I was waiting! You knew I was calling!

"Okay, okay. I did everything wrong. "I'll play with you more often from now on, okay?"

Kiyiing.

Then the wolf-dog appears a little more relaxed and gently wags its tail.

"Wait a moment. There must be a bag of snacks that Edith packed here somewhere... . Ah, here it is! Do you want a snack, Max?"

When I waved a piece of beef jerky around to soothe him, Max immediately raised the corners of his mouth and wagged his tail.

Then he immediately jumped up on the bed and started licking Seongjin's face like crazy.

??!

"no! Ugh! Max! Eating a snack... ! Ugh! "It tickles!"

Seongjin was rolling around on the bed with Max. Owen's eyes widened as he watched the mess.

"what? "Do you think that noble, mean-spirited guy can be cute like that?"

Lose your temper? Who on earth?

"Are you really talking about our cutie Max? "Aren't you mistaken?"

When Seongjin asked, barely pushing the wolf dog away, Max also vigorously hit Owen.

Wong wong!

-that's right! You are wrong! Just as my master said, I am strong, huge, and even cute!

Owen was overcome with a great sense of betrayal by his calm and shameless attitude.

"No, that guy really! While my owner was sick, I fed him every day, gave him snacks, and even took him for a walk... ..!"

Kiing.

In response to Owen's complaint, the wolf-dog slightly turns his head and whines. Then Seongjin's eyes suddenly became sharp.

"Owen! You're a bastard! Why are you mistreating a dog that knows nothing? "What does this little thing know?"

"no... ..!"

Hey, wait a minute! Can't you see those shameless expressions on your faces? Do you really think that guy doesn't know anything!

As Owen gaped in bewilderment, Edith, who was standing behind him, muttered in a somewhat sorrowful voice.

"Hehe, your Majesty will probably get used to that cowardice soon. This isn't something that happens in a day or two. Yes, it's all just a futile effort."

387. Conflict (4)

"This case is the only one we need to consider, Lord Masaine."

Masain sighed in relief at Jibril's words. The paperwork that seemed like it would never end has finally come to an end.

As he received the last document from her, Masain looked around inadvertently.

'Anyway, with only the two of us left, it somehow feels like this place is empty.'

It's also funny to feel empty in a not-so-spacious office. However, wasn't it a space where Prince Mores, Sir Valerie, Sir Sharon, and even Prince Logan were usually busy talking together?

Masain, who had been immersed in strange thoughts for a moment, soon shook off the distracting thoughts and squeezed out the last of his concentration.

"... Looking at the content, it seems like he simply had a fever. "The difference from the gray plague is clear from the initial symptoms."

"As expected, right? "If you just confirm, I will send it back right away."

In response to Jibril's obedient answer, Masain asked what he had been curious about earlier.

"Representative Jibril. Wouldn't it be better for the Lyora Plague Society to filter out these clear cases first? "What is the reason why they are all brought up to the monster task force without distinction?"

"well? First of all, there was an order from Prince Mores to bring in all reports of suspected cases."

The Monster Task Force was originally established to investigate the Gray Plague. Therefore, the plague doctors of the Lyora School, spread across the continent, are still consistently sending reports about suspected cases of the Gray Plague to the imperial palace.

Then, the monster task force collects them all, and selects and manages the parts that need investigation.

"Besides, Mr. Mores is surprisingly quick at processing documents."

"hmm."

Masain sighed.

but. This was something Prince Mores usually skimmed over, so he didn't expect there to be so many corners to look into.

Just today, it's like that. He had been struggling all day long, holding on to only one month's worth of documents, but if Prince Mores had been around, he might have finished them all in time for a cup of tea.

'You are by now... ..'

As Masain made a blank face again following the stream of consciousness, Jibril nodded with an expression of understanding.

"You're worried about me again, Lord Masaine."

"... Does it look like that?"

"yes. "You've been constantly looking in the direction of the main palace whenever you get a chance, right?"

"... .."

Of course, the biggest problem is that worries prevent you from getting things done properly.

However, when Prince Mores suffered from a high fever, there was nothing Masaine could do for him.

In that case, wouldn't it be of greater help to you later if you took care of these chores?

"Oh, and Sir Martha. Now that you're here, there's something I'd like you to see. "This is a report from Sir Valery to you."

"yes? Isn't he with the punitive force now? He probably hasn't even started subduing the demonic beast yet, so what on earth is he going to report... .."

"It's more of a whining letter rather than a report. "I keep sending it to you, so can you please do something about it?"

The letter thus presented to Masain was as follows.

-Mores degraded. While heading to Cyprus with the punitive force, I heard a very interesting story. Well, some crazy guy who calls himself a prophet is deceiving innocent people by telling nonsense that the end of the world has arrived and that the fires of hell are coming. I think this is something our monster task force should take action on.

If true, this would be a perfect issue to get on the Inquisitor's nerves. Masain was convinced and read the following letter.

-Lowering! As I listen to the rumors, it becomes more and more shocking. Well, that crazy guy is making a huge advertisement for people to come to him for salvation! Instead of calling yourself a servant of the Lord, you idolize yourself as a new savior. Isn't this blasphemy and heresy? This is an urgent matter. Please allow us to begin our investigation!

Indeed, there were even expressions of blasphemy and heresy. Masain opened the next letter, feeling a pounding headache.

-Lowering! Please reconsider! It is said that the crazy wise man is already expanding his influence around the Marquis of Benso. Expanding their power so quickly raises reasonable suspicions that there is a dark sect working behind the scenes. Valerie, if your Majesty gives permission, you can leave the punitive force immediately and run to the Marquis' Territory!

Letters come in every day.

As if to represent Sir Valerie's nervousness, the tone of the letter also becomes increasingly urgent. As I was looking at it, I felt a pain in my head.

'If Haejae had been there, he would have given a clear answer... .. '

Masain thought for a moment, but eventually had no choice but to send a reply like this.

-His Majesty Mores is still in bed. I will give you a separate report when I have time, so sir, please return after successfully subduing the demonic beast. As soon as we arrive, let's devise an investigation plan together.

Of course, my mind was filled with various thoughts.

Can I handle this report on my own? Could it be that he postponed the investigation even after receiving the report, and that the Heresy Tribunal later caught Maures for no reason?

'It would be better to allow Sir Valerie to do whatever investigation he wants... No, but His Majesty personally ordered Sir Valery to join the punitive force... .. '

As I think about it, I feel sick again.

Masain stood up while rubbing her chest, and Jibril gave her a small spray of rose perfume with a pitiful expression.

"Oh my. If you are that worried, please go back quickly. Please don't forget to quarantine around the treatment room."

When Masain returned to the main palace in the evening, what he found was not a prince suffering from a high fever, but a cluttered treatment room where a sumptuous feast had been spread.

Prince Mores, as well as Prince Owen and his personal maid Edith, are chatting loudly while spreading out food in an informal manner in the room!

Masain's eyes were slightly shaken with embarrassment.

"No, sir? What is this... ..!"

Then the prince, who was engrossed in his meal, welcomed him with a bright face. He looked so lively that it was hard to believe that he was someone who had been begging for help not long ago.

"Lord Martha, welcome! "I couldn't even eat because I was working late, so please sit here quickly!"

"Hey, my dear. "What on earth is this?"

"huh. These are the foods that Edith bought directly from 'Bertrand & Lee, a salmon specialty store.' "I asked Owen to pack all the signature dishes so I could taste them too."

After explaining that, the prince suddenly smiled bitterly as if something was coming to his mind.

"You should eat all the delicious food now. "I think I'll probably have to eat only bear meat for a while."

"... yes?"

Didn't you find it because you liked it so far?

As a dazed Masain sits down between them, Owen pushes a plate of well-grilled salmon steak to the side. Also, on the other side, Edith has suddenly laid out a new set of cutlery.

"Don't worry too much, brother Masain. Mores seems to be doing really well now. "I didn't have a fever once all afternoon."

"... Is that really true?"

It was like a dream. When Masain, who still had not found a sense of reality, asked blankly, Prince Mores quickly swallowed his food and answered.

"of course. "Your father didn't leave for no reason?"

"Your Majesty... .."

"Yes, he went to the prayer room to do his overdue homework. Don't worry too much about your father. Lady Katrina is by her side, assisting her properly, and the Empress will take care of any pending political affairs."

"... ..!"

It's been a while since His Majesty went to the prayer room. As she recalled what that fact meant, Masain's mind slowly began to clear.

Her Majesty, who sometimes postpones government meetings to stay in the treatment room, spends a long time in the prayer room, to the point where she leaves the work to the Empress.

This means that he has decided that he can now leave His Majesty Mores' side with peace of mind.

then-

'Your Majesty, now you really... ..'

Suddenly, all the tension in my body was relieved, and a strong sense of relief washed over me like a tidal wave.

I'm crying!

In order to hide the strong emotions welling up inside her, Masain quickly turned her head and put a piece of salmon in her mouth.

"Anyway, I can't figure it out. "I was next to you the whole time, so when did you and your father have that conversation?"

"You explained it earlier, right? "I spoke quietly and well."

"... what? Does that make sense?"

"Noisy! If you have time to talk nonsense, try this. This is a traditional Cypriot salmon recipe. "Do you think you can try something this rare in the South?"

"No, if it's precious, it's precious. Why are you showing off with food? huh?"

"That's because it's all worth bragging about. "Can you imagine how hard I worked to get this in?"

While Masain's eyes were red, the brothers were busy chiding each other in a friendly manner, as if it was natural.

'hmm. That Mores guy. Are you calling me a country bumpkin? For that matter, it seems like they are encouraging you to try various things quite carefully. 'Should I like this or be angry?'

One of the two was thinking this-

'Owen guy. Normally he just ignores it like a hog, but sometimes he's picky in strange places. Since you're so noisy, should I give you a good slap? Even if my father catches me later, I think he'll just turn a blind eye to it for once.'

Another one was seriously considering the possibility of violence for a while.

How much time has passed like that?

After calming down a little, Masain was finally relieved of his deep sense of relief and was able to gradually recognize several problems.

therefore...

"Lowering. However, I can still feel a slight heat coming from my lower abdomen..."

"It's okay, Sir Martha."

To his hesitant question, the prince answered definitively:

"It's because the nature of Aurors has changed a bit. "It will be okay soon."

"... Is that so."

Masain answered like that, but somehow he felt something was not clear.

The nature of Aurors has changed... . On top of that, I was angry with an unprecedented heat.

I served as a knight commander for a long time and looked after the seniority of the squires, but I had never heard of such a case before.

"If you do it, you're welcome."

And there remained an even more serious problem.

"Why is the activity level of the lower aurors still..."

Are you not able to recover as before and are you just that weak? Masain was about to ask that.

It was a bit of a cautionary issue, but it was definitely something that had to be addressed. He is also the swordsmanship teacher of Prince Mores, and he knows very well how absorbed his student was in his training.

But the prince responded firmly before he could even finish asking the question.

"That's because I'm recovering. "After some time, everything will be okay."

"... .."

Masain felt a strange sense of déjà vu. Recently, while assisting Prince Mores, an eerie feeling came to me from time to time.

And that feeling of déjà vu became clearly visible after we finished eating.

"I want to rest early today. So, Sir, please go back to your room and get some rest after a long time."

While biting Prince Owen and Edith, the young prince had secretly requested that Martha leave the place as well.

"yes? But it's low. It's still early! At least until today to confirm that the condition is completely stable... .."

However, the prince's attitude was strong.

"It's okay, just do as I say, Lord Masaine. "Haven't you been taking a nap on the couch in the treatment room for almost a month?"

"... .."

"Since you're going through such a hard time, I can't rest even if I want to."

There is something. It definitely exists!

Masain was confident, but he could no longer disobey the prince's orders. He had no choice but to bow his head politely and answer like this.

"I will stay nearby, so if anything happens, please call me anytime, sir."

However, as he left the treatment room, his eyes were shining fiercely with firm determination.

"I'll have to monitor the treatment room all night today. It would be a good idea to call Director Bruno too. And I must tell the guards to further strengthen the security of the main palace!"

After completely sending Masain out, Seongjin lay quietly on the bed and waited for it to get dark.

All the high-ranking priests who came in and out of the main palace have returned, and the Knights of St. Aurelion are all at their peak in the prayer room.

When he finally decided that the time was right, Seongjin quietly got up and took out the red soul stone that had been hidden next to the bed.

?Red's soul stone?

Seongjin, who repeatedly checked the words that came to mind with a trembling heart, took a moment to gather his thoughts.

'It's about summoning the devil's soul into reality. I don't know how much demonic energy will spread. Originally, it would have been better to go to Jinju Palace and test it out, where priests are completely prohibited from entering.'

Now that my father was away, I somehow felt that I shouldn't make a hasty move on my own.

Moreover, he went to take care of Seongjin and take care of a lot of backlog, so it's impossible for him to go back alone without seeing him return safely.

'But I can't just wait until I get back to Jinju Palace.'

Seongjin thought so and picked up the Nebraska Amulet.

Sweet.

My fingertips trembled slightly due to tension, but fortunately, the Demon King's Soul Stone clicked into the groove of the amulet as if it was returning to its proper place.

Then, as I experienced once before, a new information window pops up in front of my eyes.

?Summon red?

?Summon/Disarm?

iced coffee. thank god.

Now, there was only one worry circling in Seongjin's head.

'Is the demon lord summoned with this really the same demon lord I knew?'

It's unknown.

Hayes was a completely different person from the good-natured person he was when he was alive, and Vajra also seemed to have undergone some changes.

Didn't Seonghwang also give this advice some time ago?

-Perhaps it is the kind of thing that fundamentally changes the soul. It's clear that it's valuable, but it would be a good idea to be a little cautious when using it.

But this is the only trace of the Demon King left to him.

'Then there's no other way, right?'

Seongjin gathered his strength and made a decision. This time, even if it gives off a horror movie feel, I will maintain my composure.

Doesn't Hunter Lee Seong-jin have enough respect to be scared by a petty demon lord?

?Summon / Release?

Let's press select so carefully -

Pop!

It suddenly appeared in the middle of thin air, like a drop of water falling. In the form of a small red flame that I have seen several times with my soul's eyes.

'... ... !'

There was no smoke or ominous magic filling the room.

Is the difference simply that it is slightly larger than before and is clearly materialized to the point where it can be seen with non-spiritual eyes? What was there was still an ugly, insignificant red flame.

[...] ok?]

The demon lord who suddenly appeared blinked red as if he was anxious about something. This is definitely something a foolish demon lord would do.

[Huh? ok?]

Seongjin was able to intuitively realize this.

Even though it changed into a visible form, the essence of its soul did not change at all.

[What is this? Is it a flashlight? Am I seeing the magic that humans are talking about?]

"... "As I live, I hear all sorts of strange things."

When he lets out a cracked voice, the flame flinches in surprise and looks at Seongjin.

And after a while-

[Hey, Lee Seongjiyiin!]

The guy screamed loudly and rushed towards Seongjin.

388. Conflict (5)

It literally had the appearance of a burning flame.

The body, which has grown to the size of a child's fist, has become a kind of red light source that emits visible light.

If you see the shadows of the furniture swaying in response to the movement of the flames, it would be safe to say that they clearly have substance.

The feeling that I was not just a simple soul, but that I was wearing the substance of fire like a body. If you think about it, it's just that the essence of the soul hasn't changed much, but you can say that the demon lord has also gone through quite a dramatic change.

'Is it closer to the appearance of Demon King No. 2 that I made before?'

It was only for a moment that Seongjin remembered such sentiments.

[Lee Seong-ji!]

The Demon King, who came to his senses, suddenly cried and flew in front of Seongjin.

Grumble!

[Lee Seong-jin! Lee Seong-ji!]

"... ..!"

Seongjin couldn't help but frown reflexively for a moment. When the blazing fireball came into direct contact with her skin, her face instantly became hot due to the strong heat.

Fortunately, like the fire of Gehenna, the heat itself did not seem to cause any harm to Seongjin. Of course, she didn't get scorched or burned, but she still had the feeling that she was pretty hot.

[Ugh! It's Seongjin Lee! Lee Seong-jin is really here!]

Either way, the overly excited demon lord seemed to have nothing to see.

The thing that was frantically circling around Seongjin's head seemed to sweep across the floor, twisting like a snake, and then shot up to the ceiling.

Crackling!

A jarring noise is heard, as if a spark had sprung from the chandelier that he had narrowly passed by.

"hey. "You're crazy, so stop and come here."

At Seongjin's call, it flew overhead again and began drawing a fast orbit.

[what! How did this happen? Why are you with me? Are you sure you're not dead too?]

This guy, I can't seem to see him, is he always following me around like this?

Seongjin, who was dumbfounded, followed the guy's fast movements with his eyes and responded.

"Who dies? "I just called you back to Delcross."

[What? how? I would have jumped into the fire of Gehenna and disappeared completely, right?]

The Demon King still looked confused.

[Why on earth does my soul still remain? How is that possible?]

"Hmm, it's a bit long to explain."

And to be honest, I couldn't really remember everything.

While Seongjin was deciding what to say for a moment, the devil changed direction again and quickly flew towards the corner of the room.

[Wow! It's real! It's Delcross! This really is a treatment room! Is it the same as the last time I saw it?]

The demon king, who had been flying around as if examining the entire room, came back in front of Seongjin with a sneer, as if he had remembered something.

[But Lee Seong-jin, why are you talking out loud to me earlier?]

"huh?"

Seongjin blinked.

"That's it... "Because you're not in my head right now?"

Even without testing it, I had a feeling that the same conversation as before would be impossible. The presence of the Demon King, which I always felt in my head when I concentrated, still hasn't returned. It would be safe to say that he has now completely separated from Seongjin.

"That said, I don't even know how to consciously send thoughts to you."

[what? Then I just have to go back, right?]

The devil's flames rush towards Seongjin's head. I think he's probably trying to get back into the flame crystal -

Grumble!

[...] ... !?]

But, in vain, it passed right through Seongjin's head. It was as if her head had been put in an oven and only the heat left behind.

'hmm. 'That's pretty hot.'

When Seongjin shook his head with a shocked expression, the Demon King seemed embarrassed and sparks flew out.

[that... ! You really can't go in, right? So where should my soul stay now?]

There is already a great answer for that. Seongjin held out the red-stained soul stone to the Demon King as if showing off.

?Red's soul stone?

[...] ok? What is that?]

"As you can see, it's a soul stone. Thanks to this, you were able to preserve your soul just before it was completely destroyed."

Until now, the Demon King had used Seongjin's flame crystal as a temporary home, but now he has a new, more stable home.

Perhaps thanks to this item, the Demon King's soul partially falls under the laws of the world of normalcy and is thus completely separated from Seongjin.

"That means there are no more problems between you and me. It ended well. So... .."

[Generation change?]

"... "No matter what."

[So are you now properly the Fire Demon Lord? Does the fire of Gehenna no longer bother you?]

"uh... .."

And of course, the thing that was hanging in his mouth... It looks like something is a little loose.

[huh? Seongjin Lee. Why are you suddenly saying nothing?]

"... .."

[huh? huh? Seongjin Lee. Lee Seong-ji!]

"... uh. "Shut up."

Don't say any more nonsense!

[...] Sniff!]

I wondered what would happen if this guy asked more questions, but fortunately, it seemed like that wasn't the devil's main interest.

The red flame's light has faded slightly, as if reflecting his deep disappointment. Perhaps, in human terms, it would be closer to pale and tired?

[This can't happen! This can't be happening! You know? We were originally having a soul conversation! Besides, I really don't like that ugly bead!]

"What's wrong with the soul stone?"

[Are you asking because you don't know? Compared to flame crystals, this looks ridiculously simple! Just wait and see! Because I'll go back to your decision again!]

Grumble!

The Demon King, who was spewing out flames and strengthening his fighting spirit, flew back and passed through Seongjin's head like a ghost.

Hwiik-

'Ugh... ... !'

I tried my best not to recognize it, but the thought of it being a ghost made me feel bad.

[weird? This can't be happening! This can't be happening!]

The Demon King wanders around restlessly, then quickly rushes into my head again.

Whoop-whoosh-whoosh!

Finally, Seongjin couldn't stand it anymore and shouted.

"hey! hey! wait for a sec! Are you saying it's all useless? "Stop for a moment!"

Is this what it feels like to have your head evenly grilled while hanging on a spinning grill? If this continues, her hair will really set on fire!

However, heedless of Seongjin's dissuasion, the demon king wandered in and out of his mind meaninglessly several times.

And after a while, the exhausted Demon King finally realized the reality and became deeply frustrated.

[Unbelievable... ! my... Where is the home of my perfect icosahedron? What about the seven arches that were symmetrical left and right and stretched out with a wonderful curvature?]

Is it true that you can't play around corners anymore? Can't you enjoy the thrill of accelerating as you ride the arch? Is that it?

The Demon King trembles, and instead of tears, small sparks pour out. If I feel sadder now than when I said my final goodbye after being prepared to make a sacrifice, is it because of my mood?

"... .. ?"

But a little problem arose here.

The sparks he dropped on the carpet seemed to have created black scorched marks, and then a strong fire began to burn from there.

Grumble!

"uh... .."

The scene seemed so unreal that Seongjin stared blankly at the burning carpet for a moment.

Meanwhile, the fire was spreading quickly, quickly reaching furniture and curtains. The entire temporary treatment room is soon engulfed in a huge fire.

Roar!

Only after the dark room became brightly lit did Seongjin finally come to his senses.

'omg! 'We're in big trouble!'

For some reason, it seemed like a while ago, every time he brushed against an object, there would be a strange crackling sound!

Seongjin was belatedly trying to put out the flames with a bedding, but there was someone who reacted a step faster than him.

Doo doo doo!

The sound of urgent footsteps running down the hallway.

Seongjin reflexively clicked on the selection window without even having time to think any more.

?Summon red?

?Summon / Release?

[Oh! wait for a sec! Seongji Lee... ... !]

Pop!

Almost at the same time as the demon lord's figure evaporated in thin air, the door to the treatment room was opened roughly.

Quang!

"Hey!"

It was Lord Masain.

He spotted Seongjin, who was just approaching the fire, and his face immediately became pale.

"What are you doing here now, sir?"

"Ah, Lord Masaine. sorry. I'll put out the fire right now... .."

But Seongjin could not finish speaking. He was caught by Lord Masain who rushed at him quickly, and was quickly dragged out to the other side of the hallway.

"Fire! A fire broke out in the treatment room. "Guardians, quickly extinguish the fire!"

As Lord Masaine carries the Auror and shouts loudly, the knights and guards in the main palace all gather in front of the treatment room.

"omg! Lord Masaine? What happened to this... ..!"

"Fire! "There's a fire!"

"Hurry and get it over with before it spreads to Her Majesty's office!"

this. It became a huge commotion.

When Seongjin turned around with a disappointed look on his face, Sir Masain was still wearing his royal guard uniform.

It looks like you're not even ready for sleep? I told him to rest, but this guy really doesn't listen to people.

But perhaps it was Lord Martha who should be angry, not Seongjin.

"I knew it would be like this!"

Masain glared at Seongjin with burning eyes.

"Why are you doing this? Once your body has finally recovered, you should rest comfortably and preserve your stamina! "Are you unable to stand it anymore and wake up late at night again to play with fire?"

"No, playing with fire. Sir Masain. That's not it... .."

Seongjin, who was trying to make an excuse, was speechless as he saw the people rushing by and the fire shining brightly outside the hallway.

Oh, it really is.

No matter how you look at it, it's a great scene of playing with fire.

Fortunately, when Seongjin kept his mouth shut, Lord Masain, who quickly cooled down, draped the cloak over his shoulders.

"I will inform the dedicated maid so that you can rest in another room today. When are you going to grow up?"

"what..."

No, Lord Masaine! I feel wronged!

This time I really didn't do it on purpose!

The next morning.

At Cardinal Benitus' request for a convocation, all five cardinals gathered in the conference room for the first time in a long time.

Cardinal Meyer, head of the Holy Congregation.

Cardinal Diggory of the Executive Branch.

Cardinal Cesare, who is in charge of all aspects of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Lastly, there is Cardinal Caffran, the head of the council and the father of the Empress.

"Anyway, is it okay for you to summon us? Cardinal Benitus. "I believe His Majesty must have sent you a courtesy note."

At Cardinal Meyer's point, all the eyes of the other cardinals turned to Benitus.

Official letter: Do not reveal yourself.

Since Cardinal Benitus was so concerned about the incident, it was already customary to send an official letter in the absence of the Holy Emperor.

Then Cardinal Benitus was startled and quietly avoided people's gaze.

"that... It's not a big deal! Don't we have more important problems at hand? 'I'm sure you've all felt that the demonic energy radiating from 'him' has become stronger recently."

He.

There was no way to know who it was referring to, but no one could point out his blasphemies.

For that to be the case, the aura that Prince Mores has been giving off recently has been too ominous. All five cardinals were feeling it implicitly.

"Everyone probably knows that His Majesty has been keeping him close to him for over a month under the pretext of treating him recently! Why on earth would you do that?"

The five cardinals are more aware of the miraculous divine power of the Holy Emperor. It would not have taken so much time simply to treat the body.

And Cardinal Benitus had already deduced the answer in his head.

"When His Majesty takes care of him, it's definitely when a big problem arises. 'It has become something that can no longer be handled simply by banning the entry of priests.'"

"What do you mean it's something you can't handle?"

"Isn't it obvious? 'This time, it has revealed my evil nature!'"

Benitus paused for a moment and proudly looked around at the cardinals, then continued to speak loudly and emphatically, one by one.

"Can't you see that I'm scattering demon energy all over there? 'That evil clearly belongs to the devil's power, so I don't think we should dare allow someone to impersonate the servant of the main god!"

"Benitus, you. no way... ... !"

Cardinal Meyer's complexion changed when he realized what Benitus meant.

What is required to be ordained a Holy Knight is three or more high-ranking priests and two or more leaders of the Holy Knights.

But to relieve him of his duties? Five or more high-ranking priests or the leader of the Holy Knights are sufficient.

And now, all five cardinals are gathered here.

"exactly."

Benitus' eyes shone brightly.

"We are gathered here now to discuss his dismissal."

389. Conflict (6)

A heavy silence falls over the heads of the cardinals.

Dismissal? Sigismund's savior who returned with the Knight of Grace? The hero of Bathurst Spirit who made the most outstanding contribution in defeating the giant demon species?

Above all, the son whom Seonghwang takes great care of, even putting off government affairs?

"... "That shouldn't be said."

After a while, it was Cardinal Cafran who broke the silence and spoke. His dignified and refined appearance was closer to that of a high-ranking nobleman than that of a priest.

"There needs to be a clear basis for the dismissal of a Holy Knight. As provided in the Holy Law, there must be a serious disqualification for him, such as summoning the devil or worshipping the devil."

"There's a demonic energy radiating from him! "If that is not the decisive basis for devil worship, then what is?"

"We cannot discuss the dismissal of Prince Mores simply because we feel an 'unfamiliar energy' without clear evidence. "Maybe some of the erosion is left behind as an aftereffect of dealing with the giant demon species too hard."

Cardinal Kapran showed caution by not even hastily saying the word 'Magi'. Unlike Cardinal Benitus, who speaks harshly and goes on a rampage, he speaks politely and politely to members of the royal family.

"Besides, if Prince Mores had really committed such a crime, would His Majesty the Holy Emperor have protected him to such an extent?"

Perhaps it is not because he really respects Prince Mores. He is simply aware through his experience that his position can collapse at any time with a single gesture of success.

So, in the absence of success, we had no choice but to be more passive. Even though there was a golden opportunity to defeat his grandson's rival in one fell swoop.

"The thousand-year holy kingdom ruled by the representative of the Lord is a sacred land that cannot be invaded by anything evil. Even daring to entertain such suspicions can be considered blasphemy, so you should not rashly conclude that something is 'magic' without any evidence."

It was an attitude of pretending not to know something that was clearly visible, but Cardinal Kapran's point cannot be overlooked. Cardinal Cesare, who was next to him, nodded his head.

"That's right. Delcross is the kingdom of the Lord established on earth, and a kingdom that all countries on the continent look up to. But if it becomes known that the prince of the Holy Emperor was dismissed for such reasons, what will our empire's reputation be like?"

For Cesare, who was busy keeping the Orthodox Church and Archbishop Wesker in check, Prince Mores' position was a good thing. Therefore, as the head of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, he cannot help but be concerned about the opinions of other countries.

In response to the cardinals' passive attitude, Cardinal Benitus suddenly distorted his face.

"no! Is that something that can be said by those who are now the closest servants of the Lord? That evil thing is proudly walking around the imperial palace! Moreover, while Your Majesty is away, they are setting fire to the imperial palace! But are you saying that saving face is more important to you now?!"

Benitus jumped up and down, ready to spout fire from his eyes at any moment.

But the cardinals' reaction was shocking. Even Cardinal Diggory, who was crumpled in a corner, was sweating profusely and speaking in an uncertain voice!

"For such an important matter, we must first find out His Majesty's will. I guess waiting until he comes out of the prayer room... .."

Diggory was filled with fear. Recently, due to insufficient evidence, his grandson Kenneth was taken out of the ecliptic.

However, if you frame Prince Mores once again, you cannot be sure what kind of spark will fall on his grandson.

"Oh my, this is happening..." ! Are you truly not ashamed in front of the Lord?"

When Benitus, whose blood pressure was high, stumbled and held the back of his neck, Cardinal Cafran responded gently, as if to comfort him.

"Calm down. Cardinal Benitus."

"Even though the truth is clearly visible to your eyes, you are closing your eyes for fear of the consequences that will come! How can I calm down after seeing such deception!"

"I am not deceiving you, Your Excellency. I am simply saying that everything must be done according to the sacred law."

Cardinal Capran's blue eyes sink deeply as he stares at Benitus. It was the kind, intelligent gaze that was passed down to Empress Tatiana and Prince Logan.

"If you say that Prince Mores truly has grounds for disqualification from blooming, please bring evidence that is clear enough to at least convince His Majesty the Holy Emperor, who is the representative of the main lord. "If not, I, Kafran, will no longer stand by the disrespectful practices that disparage Him."

"Hmm... .."

At that time, Cardinal Meyer, who had been silent until now, fell silent. On the surface, it appears that the author Kapran is openly opposed to the prince's dismissal-

'I want solid evidence.'

It was not difficult to guess his intentions.

Kapran is the person who contributed the most to creating an atmosphere in which the current leader, who inherited Kornsim's ominous blood, could ascend to the throne without noise.

In the end, she elevated her daughter to the position of empress and spared no effort in supporting the punitive force so that her grandson could make a name for himself throughout the continent. All of his actions ultimately lead to the next throne.

To him, Prince Mores would be an unexpected rival to his grandson. Recently, the 3rd Prince was quickly recovering his reputation, even being praised as 'the second coming of Saint Bastian' among his subjects.

"... "How about organizing it like this?"

When the head and oldest member of the Holy Congregation finally opened his mouth, the younger cardinals stopped arguing and quietly listened to his remarks.

"Prince Mores' dismissal will be difficult right now."

"But that..." ... !"

"Benitus."

Cardinal Meyer, who silenced Benitus with a heavy look, continued speaking in a low voice.

"But it might be possible to invalidate his appointment to the Holy Knights."

What was the basis of Sir Leander's dogmatic decision to have Prince Mores join the Knights of St. Terbachia? It was the undoubted power of [annihilation] shown by his record.

But what about now? Isn't the prince in a state where he can barely hold his own, let alone lift his sword? There are even secret rumors that he has lost all of his Aurors.

"So, let's ask Prince Mores to prove the ability of [Destruction] directly. "If he shows his power properly in front of everyone, it will be an opportunity for everyone to see whether that power is in the realm of evil."

"... But, but there is no way it would just reveal its identity... ..!"

"Then, since he has not proven the power that a paladin should have, wouldn't it be okay to politely ask him to resign?"

That was the smoothest solution Meyer could think of.

If it were a picture of the prince voluntarily resigning, rather than the cardinals' deliberate dismissal, wouldn't it be seen as a virtue of humility in the eyes of other countries?

It's a bonus that you don't have to fully bear the wrath of the Holy Emperor who comes out of the prayer room later.

"dismissal. After all, isn't that an overly moderate treatment?"

Benitus still looked dissatisfied.

But Cardinal Meyer could not stand by and watch him cross the line so blatantly. To him, Benitus, like Archbishop Wesker, was a precious junior priest with whom he lived and died.

"Benitus."

He threatened with a stern expression.

"Please don't show off. "I will no longer forgive you for making light of an official document with a royal seal."

"But Your Excellency! That's just something His Majesty always sends... ..!"

"I hope you understand carefully what your intention is in sending the same official letter every time. Don't you know that this is the final mercy given by His Majesty? Please do not take this lightly. "This is all advice for you."

"Hey, you crazy bastard!"

The next morning.

Owen, who visited the imperial palace, was furious at Seongjin. The guy who was always laughing even after getting beaten up in the game showed a seriously angry face for the first time.

"Playing with fire? Are you going to make a fire? Mores, are you a child? Are you a little boy who can't even tell the difference? "What on earth is this?"

"No, that means it wasn't playing with fire... .."

"Noisy! Do you really know what you did? If you did something like that after biting all the people, what would you have done if you made a mistake and got caught up in the flames? "He hasn't fully recovered yet!"

"... .."

Unbelievable. I can't believe the day will come when I will be pushed out of my cause by this idiot.

As Seongjin closed his mouth, Owen became even more enraged and began to run wild.

"Are you listening? huh? Please try doing this one more time, I just... ..!"

"Hey, you!"

Lord Martha, who was fidgeting next to him, couldn't help but soothe Owen and take him outside.

"Lowering. Prince Mores is also fully reflecting. So, just calm down."

"You are being too soft on Mores! You need to speak clearly to that troublemaker! hey! Did you understand? Remember! You'll never be such a fool again... ..!"

The voice shouting loudly goes far away in the hallway.

Oh, it's noisy. It feels like a typhoon has swept over me.

But unfortunately that wasn't the end.

"Mores!"

Amelia, who heard the news late, ran into the room with tears in her eyes.

"There was a fire? Are you hurt anywhere? Ah, such weak auror activity! Instead of doing this, lie down right now!"

"sister... .."

Seongjin eventually had to catch Amelia and explain for a long time that her father had completely cured her illness yesterday.

"So you're saying the fever won't rise anymore?"

"Yes, it is. sister."

"okay... .."

Then Amelia asked with a somewhat anxious expression.

"But why doesn't my auror activity recover at all? "It still feels to me like you're very sick."

"hmm."

Seongjin closed his mouth with a slightly complicated expression.

The aurors were clearly back under Seongjin's control. If I meditate and regain my aura even now, I will probably recover to my previous state in less than half a day.

However, Seongjin was currently being extremely careful.

His aurors are now fused with the fire of Gehenna. When it is activated, wouldn't it give off strong magical energy?

However, in the absence of Seonghwang, I cannot discuss this issue with anyone.

'It's not like I, who don't have divine power, can sense demon energy.'

So Seongjin was currently trying to tie down the Aurors to the Danjeon as much as possible.

I wanted to test the changed aura right away, but to be safe, there was no other way.

"Mores... .."

I don't know what she was thinking at that time, but tears began to form in Amelia's clear eyes again.

"Please don't hide it and tell me exactly what your condition is. Even if you are sick, you try to hide it until the end for fear that others will worry. "Because you are a kind child."

"no... .."

Seongjin could not hide his absurd feelings. What on earth does this sister think of me?

However, Seongjin had no choice but to surrender in the end, as his eyes were filled with deep remorse and sadness at the same time.

'Well, it would be okay to show a little bit of aura, right? 'Because you don't feel demonic energy like I do.'

After confirming that there was no one around him other than Lord Masain and Owen, Seongjin carefully gathered the Aura of the Danjeon into his fingertips. It was a trick of 'opening a small sword screen' that I learned from Logan not long ago.

Activating the aura of the entire body is risky, but it would be possible to at least emit some of the aura of the dantian in a visible form.

"ruler. Look, sister. "My aurors are fine like this."

Grumbling.

Soon, the aura that materialized at Seongjin's fingertips created a small flame. Unlike the original gray aura, it is an ominous aura mixed with dark red light.

"... ... !"

Amelia's eyes widen in shock.

Seongjin, who caught a glimpse of her, spoke quickly before she could be more surprised.

"It's a little strange, isn't it? It seems like an aftereffect of a fever. So I'm being careful not to activate it until my father confirms that it's okay."

Blink.

At that time, Amelia blinked her long eyelashes, brushed away the remaining tears, and muttered this in a trembling voice.

"... "Black devil."

"yes?"

Strongly-

Why? It's not like she didn't expect such a reaction, but Seongjin felt strangely touched by Amelia's words.

"No, sister. But... If you are a devil..."

The end of the words tremble slightly and become blurred. Even though I tried to speak calmly, it felt awkward, as if my voice belonged to someone else.

However, her subsequent reaction was a little different from what Seongjin thought. Amelia suddenly smiled brightly and held Seongjin's hand tightly.

"I see! 'I'm so glad, Mores!"

"... uh?"

As she looked at me in confusion, a light of indescribable and intense emotion suddenly began to shine in Amelia's eyes.

"okay. 'You finally got your Auror back!"

"that... .."

"Besides, hasn't he turned out to be so cool? 'What a beautiful aura of light, undulating with vitality!"

... Is this sister serious?

Seongjin, who was dazed for a moment, immediately felt a shock as if he had been hit hard in the back of the head.

'that's right! It did. 'I forgot about your taste for middle school students!"

So, to this person, 'the devil' wasn't a compliment among compliments, meaning he was extremely cool and cool.

Seongjin, feeling somewhat relieved, answered cautiously.

"It's a little weird... Don't you? 'I've never heard of a person's aura being this color... .."

But Amelia reassured Seongjin and nodded.

"It's okay, Mores!"

"yes? What is okay... .."

"You don't have to worry about your Aurors. "This is definitely the aura you will have someday!"

"... .. ?"

what? What about that unfounded confidence?

However, there was no hesitation in Amelia's subsequent praise.

"Just wait and see. Soon this beautiful Auror will become a symbol of your strength. "For the enemy, it will be an inevitable fear and disaster, and for our allies, it will be a stronger weapon and support than anything else."

"uh... .. ."

"So take it easy, Mores. "Your Auror isn't strange at all."

The affectionate gaze returned kindly has not changed one bit from before. Seongjin, who was strangely relieved by her teeth, couldn't help but smile at her in the end.

"... yes. "I really hope so, sister."

It was sincere.

Seongjin Lee, who had never prayed even once in his life, prayed deeply in his heart that for the first time that day, this wind could reach someone.

390. Conflict (7)

"That goby! "Look at that unimpressed expression!"

Meanwhile, Owen, who had been dragged out into the hallway, was unable to calm down easily and was wheezing.

In the imperial palace, which should be safer than anywhere else, I almost got caught up in a fire accident!

It was also because a nightmare I had the other day suddenly came to mind. The image of a boy walking into hell covered in fire, with his entire body covered in dark red flame-like aura.

Now, a lot of time has passed and only a blurry impression remains, but at the time, I remember thinking that the boy was a newbie.

However, it felt as if the scene in that dream overlapped with the present-day Mores, and I couldn't control the rising anxiety.

"Let's pay close attention now, brother! "We must make sure that troublemaker never dares to play with fire again!"

"haha."

Masaine, who led the jumping Owen to the end of the hallway, let out a small laugh.

"If it had been that way, Prince Mores would have understood it well. So just calm down."

"but!"

"I understand everything, sir. "I don't know how you feel about the fire accident."

"Ugh... ..!"

As Masain patiently and repeatedly coaxed Owen, he reluctantly kept his mouth shut.

If you think about it, isn't Sir Martha the one who went through all the trouble of resolving last night's incident? What good would it be if he came running late and lost his temper at him?

"I behaved disgracefully in front of you. "There is no shame."

"no. Aren't we all part of the same family? "It's natural to be angry."

When the answer came back softer than expected, Owen looked at him blankly.

Is it because of my mood? Somehow, it feels like Masain's attitude has become strangely relaxed compared to before.

"I am... "I got angry a little presumptuously."

Owen, who was suddenly depressed, muttered in an uncertain voice.

Although he manages to get along with the group in a friendly manner, he knows better than ever that he cannot truly become a member of the prosperous family. Still, what would it look like to others to see me running all alone?

'Especially because Brother Masaine especially cares for Mores.'

Then Masain shakes his head with a straight face.

"I don't think that's presumptuous at all. "Isn't it all for the safety of Prince Mores that you went to such lengths?"

"that... .."

It was an unexpected reaction. Because of their ironically reversed positions, weren't the two people having a slight sense of distance until now?

Just a few days ago, he gave Owen a suspicious look regarding the elixir.

But what is Sir Martha's expression looking at him now? His vigilance is everywhere, and he even looks somewhat relieved.

Perhaps it was because someone had coolly poured out what he wanted to say on his behalf, but Owen had no way of knowing that fact.

"If you stay here for a long time, the presence of someone who is not afraid to say bitter things becomes more precious to you, my uncle."

Masain said with a peaceful smile on his face.

"His Majesty Mores probably thinks so too. "Even though he looks so immature, he has a surprisingly sharp side."

"... "You mean Mores?"

"yes. He is someone who instinctively knows the physiology of the imperial palace. "In this place, those who approach with a casual smile are the scariest."

"Okay... "I see."

Owen could only answer hesitantly.

People who smile are scary. The imperial palace that you experienced as a child, just how terrifying was the battle?

Coincidentally, after a while, Owen was able to meet a specimen of that 'person who approaches with a delicate smile'. This is because an elderly man with a gentle and sophisticated air came to visit them.

It was Cardinal Cafran, Logan's maternal grandfather.

"I meet Prince Mores."

The man, who was overly polite to the young prince despite being a high-ranking priest, then bowed his head towards Masain and Owen.

"I meet you, Masaine, and Prince Owen. "It's a refreshing feeling to see the two of you together like this."

It's a greeting that has a strange nuance.

Masain, who was the eldest son but lost the right to succeed to the throne, and Owen, who ostensibly had the right to succession but did not inherit the blood of the royal family. Was it really necessary to mention the two together?

"Isn't it great to see the two of you showing such deep friendship?
"His Majesty the Emperor will be very happy."

It seemed like it wasn't just Owen's luck. Masain's expression hardened a little when he heard those words.

Cardinal Capran. Although he had an impeccable attitude, he somehow had a knack for making people feel strangely offended.

"Suddenly, Your Excellency, what are you doing here? "Your Majesty's condition is serious, so your Majesty has ordered you to refrain from making personal visits to the hospital as much as possible."

Masain asked without hiding his doubts.

Just as there is a limit on the number of people entering the Jinju Palace, the same principle applies to the temporary treatment room in the main palace. It goes without saying that high-ranking priests were prohibited from entering.

However, even though he openly shows such caution, Cardinal Kapran does not seem embarrassed and gently curves his mouth.

"I do not dare to disobey His Majesty's orders. I am honored, Masaine.
"I didn't stop here to visit the sick."

"then?"

"I just came to gather the opinions of the Holy Assembly and convey them to Prince Mores as a representative."

Cardinal Capran's eyes turned again to Mores. As I looked at the blue eyes that felt somewhat familiar, a slight discomfort quickly appeared and disappeared. This was because she strongly sensed the prince's aura of reluctance towards her.

"The Holy Assembly requests the following from you. first of all... ...
."

Cardinal Kapran, who skillfully controlled his expression, calmly began to recite his business.

Roughly, they give long-winded explanations like, 'I am worried about something about the Holy Assembly, and accordingly, I want you to prove this and that in front of everyone.'

Owen thought blankly while listening to that boring story with one ear.

'... He looks somewhat similar to Logan, but he looks completely different. 'I don't think he'll be very likeable in the future.'

however-

"I'm so embarrassed."

Mores' reaction upon hearing all of his business was unexpected.

The boy looked at the man with a sullen expression for a moment, then snorted with an unpleasant expression.

"The Crusade also makes quite trivial demands. Is everyone crazy? There is a separate loading dock. 'I'm sure you all know that I am the hero who saved the Imperial Capital from the demonic species, right?'"

Unexpectedly strong backlash. Also, a hero? Are you saying that out of your own mouth?

'What did that guy eat wrong? 'Why is it like that all of a sudden?'

Owen looked at the sheep he was doing in confusion.

It wasn't that long since I came back to the imperial palace and faced

Mores, but he hasn't been that kind of person lately, right?

"What do you think, Cardinal Cafran? Am I getting angry now? "No matter how much I think about it, I can't bear the discomfort!"

But what about now? Holding his chin high and looking down on people with an arrogant expression made me feel like I was back to being the old bastard Mores.

"Everyone just wait and see! "As soon as your father comes out of the prayer room, I will tell you in detail about the wantonness of my Holy Assembly!"

"... "I apologize, sir."

Then Cardinal Capran looked at Mores for a moment, then smiled sadly, as if he were looking at an immature child.

"This is all our foolish negligence, so please kindly respond to the request of the Holy Assembly."

"of course. "I don't put myself in a position like that like a coward."

"thank you. "If you do so, I will convey my condolences to the crusade."

"okay. Please tell me well. There is no use in begging and regretting it later. I tell the cardinals to wipe their necks and wait. "I'll go and show you the truth myself!"

As Owen listened, his mind became increasingly confused.

Who on earth is that stupid brat? Are you really Mores?

"... ..?"

However, Masain's expression standing next to him was even more bizarre.

Who is Cardinal Kapran? He is one of the five most powerful cardinals in the Holy Empire, and is also the father of Empress Tatiana.

But even though I can't help but urge such a person to show proper courtesy, isn't his face filled with pride as if he were seeing his grown-up grandchild?

After the time of shock and confusion passed, Cardinal Capran again politely bowed to everyone and retreated.

However, Mores's eyes, staring at his back as he leaves the hallway, have already returned to their original calm glow!

"... It looks like the Holy Society is moving faster than expected. "I think I should suggest to my father that from now on, it would be a good idea to send a 'don't show off' official letter to all five cardinals."

"... .. !?"

Look at me. People have changed again!

While Owen was very embarrassed, Masain walked towards Mores with a bright smile on his face.

"That's great, sir! "Your conduct was truly outstanding!"

"... Eh?"

What does this mean?

Owen blinked dumbly, and Masain's subsequent explanation was even more shocking.

"Cardinal Cafran, along with the Empress Dowager, is the person who, knowingly or unknowingly, keeps the lower ranks in check in the imperial palace. "You deliberately show such an immature attitude to make someone let down his guard. After all, you really know the physiology of the imperial palace!"

Then, Mores looked at Masaine with a somewhat dissatisfied face and responded bluntly.

"What kind of foolish thing are you talking about? Sir Masain. "I don't do such troublesome things."

"Yes, I guess so."

"Is it true? I was just being grumpy because I didn't like that guy.
"Looking at that disgusting cowardice, I just wanted to show off."

"Yes, I know everything. "I am truly proud of you, sir."

"... No, I mean, even if that's not the case."

Owen, who was listening blankly, felt like he was going out of his mind. Could it be that the imperial palace was still a battle of deceiving and deceiving each other? Could it be that he, who was traveling around the front lines, was just being overly naive?

While Owen was in confusion, Mores and Masain put their heads together and discussed the future.

"Anyway, sir, wasn't it too hasty to give a definite answer now? We cannot ignore the cardinals' long experience. "It will definitely require very difficult and difficult proof."

Masain seemed full of various worries. It was natural. The prince, who had taken great care to avoid being exposed to high-ranking priests, was now able to enter their lair on his own.

But Mores' attitude was calm.

"are you okay. "It's not like I'm being summoned to the Heresy Tribunal, and all I have to do is show off my appropriate abilities at the Holy Assembly, right?"

"But I want you to prove the power of [Destruction of Evil]. What should I do now that my Aura is not intact..."

But for some reason, the young prince nodded with great confidence.

"I told you not to worry? Sir Masain. "I think I know what they will prepare and what they will ask of me."

Two days passed, and the day of proof requested by the Holy Assembly finally arrived.

Seongjin woke up early in the morning and quietly began preparing to attend the crusade.

Fluttering.

As I put on the crisply ironed dark gray uniform on my arm, a bright silver sword and two hooks were placed in the center of my chest. It was the pattern of crossed shottels, symbolizing the Knights of St. Terbachia.

-Just wait and see. Soon this beautiful Auror will become a symbol of your strength.

Crash.

On top of that, he wears silver brief armor, and finally, he wears a sword belt with a nutcracker attached to it.

-So rest assured, Mores. Your Auror is not strange at all.

Meanwhile, the words Amelia had said were replaying in Seongjin's mind one after another.

These are words that a sister who knows nothing about Magi said without knowing anything. It probably won't be of much help in a place where high-ranking clergy are trying to find fault with their eyes.

'but... ... '

Nevertheless, right now, Seongjin was finding amazingly great comfort from every word Amelia said.

My mind, which was full of various worries, felt brightly clear after that day.

'okay. Simple solutions are best. Let's collide first. Who cares if things go a little wrong? 'My father must have expected this to happen anyway.'

As soon as he returns from [Gap], he will definitely think of a suitable excuse for Seongjin.

Creak.

When I finished preparing and left the room, Masain and Owen were already waiting for Seongjin with anxious faces.

And next to them, a courtesy paladin was also sitting.

'Francis Azen.'

A person entrusted with all religious and legal matters that arise in the absence of Seonghwang or Katrina.

A faint look of embarrassment passes through his eyes as he greets Seongjin. It seems that the demonic energy emanating from Holy Jin has become quite thick, to the point where even those who are only holy men like Francis can notice it.

'Even though the Aurors are tightly tied up like this.'

But Seongjin wasn't the least bit worried about him.

As long as Seonghwang is on his side, Katrina will always be on his side. Therefore, even that lieutenant, who is extremely loyal to the leader, will never be able to harm Seongjin through his own arbitrary actions.

"Keuhum!"

Sure enough, Francis, who cleared his throat slightly, controlled his expression and opened his mouth.

"Sir, please think again. "This summons to the Holy Assembly has many procedural loopholes."

"If you think again?"

"This means you can refuse attendance at any time. Wouldn't it be better to put it off by making an appropriate excuse and wait for His Majesty to wake up before solving the problem?"

"hmm... .."

It's not like Seongjin hasn't thought about that too.

but... ..

'Somehow I get the feeling that my father won't wake up anytime soon.'

Now, as long as Seongjin lives and breathes, the invisible magic energy will continue to bloom from his aura.

There was no answer to this problem just by avoiding it forever. It's impossible to keep Aurors tied down.

'Besides, now that my father is away, perhaps this will be an opportunity to firmly suppress the opposition of the Holy See.'

After gathering his thoughts for a moment, Seongjin walked again and spoke.

"Let's just proceed like this."

"We can easily postpone the summons even now. "Have you not changed your decision?"

"Of course."

When Seongjin answered firmly, Francis immediately sighed and pushed up his glasses.

"... We will have some members of the Knights of St. Aurelion waiting outside the venue. "So that even if something happens to you, you can sufficiently demonstrate force while others come to help."

Seongjin couldn't help but be taken aback by those words.

Wow, this guy says he'll be in big trouble when he says let's see? Are you saying that you would point your sword at cardinals and high-ranking clergy at a sacred assembly to protect a person who is full of demonic energy?

"Don't worry. "Because that probably won't happen."

Seongjin responded like that and walked past Francis.

Clap, clap, clap.

Every time I take a step, I hear the slightly unfamiliar friction sound of the brief armor.

Accompanied by three somewhat trustworthy people, Seongjin walked with great strides to the conference hall where high-ranking priests were waiting.

391. Negotiation (1)

The conference hall was engulfed in chilling tension.

An event attended by most high-ranking priests, including five cardinals. Even unlike usual, fully armed paladins were standing around the conference hall to keep a watertight guard.

"... .."

They were waiting in silence for only one person.

The one whom everyone was subconsciously wary of.

A person who causes the head of the Heresy Tribunal to make blasphemous remarks in public.

And recently, ironically, someone who has achieved such great achievements that he has even been called the second coming of a saint.

"... "Keuhum!"

Someone who cannot bear the heavy pressure lets out a small sigh.

Something big is happening. Although they didn't say anything, everyone in attendance subconsciously felt it.

"... "I didn't know the prince would come out so obediently and agree to attend."

As Cardinal Cesare muttered inadvertently, Archbishop Wesker, who was sitting across from him, furrowed his eyebrows.

"why? "After setting up such a nasty trap that no one can escape, are you finally feeling guilty that you did something so pointless?"

"What? What a trap! "Stop your words, Archbishop Wesker!"

"Why did I say something wrong? The elderly noblemen were so anxious because they could not keep a check on the young prince who was only the age of their grandson... ..!"

"Shh! "Stop being quiet."

When the leader, Cardinal Mayer, warned them, Archbishop Wesker glared at Benitus and Cesare in turn and threatened them.

"Everyone, please be aware. "When His Majesty the Holy Emperor comes out of the prayer room later, he will most likely not ignore this issue."

"... Tsk!"

Cardinal Benitus clicks his tongue, showing his discomfort.

But their chat did not continue any longer. Because regular footsteps began to be heard from beyond the open entrance to the conference hall.

Clap, clap, clap.

The slight friction sound made by the brief armor echoed in the wide hallway, creating a strangely ominous sound.

"Prince Mores is eating it!"

And before everyone's eyes, a neat-looking boy wearing the uniform of the Knights of St. Terbachia finally appears.

"... ..!"

The conference chairman was in quiet shock. Even Archbishop Wesker, who had been protecting the prince until now, was speechless and opened his mouth blankly.

"omg... ..!"

At first glance, Prince Mores was in excellent shape.

Gray livery without a trace and a confident gait. Calm eyes that look down on everyone surrounding him.

Prayer is also excellent. Despite the weakened auror activity, no one could sense that the boy was a patient who had just woken up from a sick bed.

iced coffee. Perhaps it could have been thought that, following Prince Logan, another knight of the Lord of the Lords that the Empire could be proud of had been born.

If it weren't for that ominous energy slowly emanating from him!

"Well, I... ..!"

Cardinal Benitus, who was pointing at the young prince with a trembling hand, was unable to speak and his chin dropped. This is because he was greatly shocked by the unexpectedly strong magic energy he felt.

"Such a mistake... ..!"

Before he could openly pour out profanity in front of the prince, Cardinal Mayer came to his senses first and spoke in a trembling voice.

"... "Thank you, Prince Mores, for responding to my summons."

"Yes, of course I should be grateful."

The boy nodded arrogantly.

"It's like I saved a lot of time that you were wasting needlessly by personally moving. Normally, there wouldn't be time for this, right?"

Cold gray eyes that closely resemble those of Seonghwang scan the faces sitting in the conference hall one by one.

"Now, it must not be easy for you to properly handle the tasks delegated to you by your father, right?"

"I think His Majesty the Holy Emperor will understand. Because the issue is the issue."

okay. As expected, their concerns were unfounded.

Cardinal Mayer's eyes darkened as he stared at Prince Mores.

'Is there really a need for proof?'

Probably not.

The priests gathered here could feel it keenly. There is no doubt that that prince belongs to the forces of evil.

"... "Can you explain?"

Before ordering the Paladins to be arrested, Cardinal Meyer asked one last question out of respect for the Holy Family.

However, what the prince said in response to this was truly absurd.

"What is there to explain? "All of this is the Lord's will."

"... "What?"

Without any time to be embarrassed by that unexpected reaction-

Whoa!

Suddenly, Prince Mores's mood began to change.

A strong spiritual pressure erupts like a storm, and the weak Aura begins to pulsate violently.

The dark red aura that became stronger and more clearly materialized became a blazing flame, blooming all over the body.

Naturally, the demonic energy emanating from the boy's body also grew uncontrollably strong!

"... ... !"

Slurp!

The paladins had their swords half-drawn with pale complexions. Even Francis, who was guarding the prince's back, was so surprised that he took a couple of steps back.

"... "Wow!"

"Huh!"

The shock the high-ranking priests received was indescribable.

The weak priests, whose only pastime was to pray every day, were oppressed by the prince's powerful demonic energy and broke into a cold sweat, like small animals that had encountered a natural enemy.

"... Ah, the devil!"

"Come on, we have to stop it... ... !"

But just as the Holy Knights were about to attack the ominous prince.

Shooooooooo-

Isn't the demon energy that was so powerful sinking without a trace just as quickly as it appeared?

"... ... ?!"

Everyone there was embarrassed and blinked.

I couldn't even properly guess what had happened in that short period of time. Only the person who created this whole situation looks around at them with a face as vague as a lie.

"Everyone, listen carefully."

The boy who had repeatedly hit the priests on the back of the head opened his mouth with a calm expression. The prince now standing in front of them was just gently flowing out his demonic energy, which felt much more subtle than before.

"All who stand before the Lord are nothing more than His faithful instruments."

"... ... ?"

"This must be proof that all things in the world can never escape the will of the Lord."

... What kind of bullshit is this?

While everyone was in shock and pricking up their ears without realizing it, the sly prince raised the corners of his mouth and confidently declared.

"So get out of this narrow vision and open your eyes! Listen carefully to the words of this person who has no hesitation in front of the Lord's holy temple. "I am a seeker who has been tested by the Lord, and at the same time, I am an apostle who carries out His noble mission!"

"... ... ?!"

"Lord Haven? "What are you doing here?"

Sir Maria, who stopped by the knight's quarters for a shift change, found Haven sprawled out in the lounge and asked.

Of course, it is true that there is no prince to attend to at the palace, so there is nothing to do during work hours.

"Why are you being lazy alone? "The other knights are all busy training at the training ground."

It was as Sir Maria pointed out.

While Lord Masain, who was leading the resident knights, was away to guard the prince's side, there was a person who belatedly awakened to become a tiger instructor -

This is Captain Bruno, a close associate of Prince Mores.

He basically rolled his disciple, Lord Calmen. As a result, he even came to look at the sword of Sir Claudia, who was exceptionally good at combat with his student.

As the time spent in the training hall increased, most of the resident knights were now in a situation where they were rolling around under his orders.

"Didn't you work yesterday and today? "Are you sure you were drinking all night when it wasn't even your off duty?"

At Lord Maria's scolding, Haven raised her head with a gloomy expression.

"Lord Maria. Could you please take a look just for today? "If you knew what trouble I had all day yesterday, you would never say that."

When I saw that his voice was cracking, I could see that his condition was unusual.

And, the story I heard from Haven was unexpected.

"Recite a biblical story? In front of His Majesty Mores?"

"Yes, that's right! I think I have recited all the fairy tales and fairy tales that have been published so far. But do you know what's even weirder? "At that time, you were reading another book by yourself!"

... Reading a book and reciting another book at the same time? What on earth does that mean?

When Lord Maria looked puzzled, Haven nodded vigorously.

"Right? "It's really strange, isn't it?"

"... "I guess your ears got bored while reading."

"That is absolutely not the case! Well, aren't you listening to my recitation correctly? "Sometimes, if something seems strange, he just points it out like a ghost and ignores it."

For example, it was like this.

-Read it carefully, Sir Haven. Since Kyung keeps leaving out words or sentences, the context becomes awkward.

-uh. That story is over now. The framework is not that different from the scripture fairy tales I read earlier. Just move on to the next volume.

-Wait a minute, Lord Haven. Things are going pretty interesting, huh? I'd like to go over it step by step, so could you read it again from the beginning?

Sir Maria stuck her tongue out.

"You instructed me to do that one by one while reading the book?"

"yes. You won't believe it, right? "I was like that too, until I experienced it myself."

Haven shook his head.

"But even so, he didn't take his eyes off the book he was reading even for a moment. "Even turning the pages was incredibly fast!"

"hmm."

Why did you do something like that as soon as you recovered?

Sir Maria rested her chin in thought, but no matter how hard she tried, she could not come up with an answer.

Seongjin's strategy was simple. Since ancient times, simple things are strong and clear.

Originally, Seongjin had no interest in scriptures and had not even read the introduction to Introduction to Theology properly. So, no matter how much time you spend cramming, it would be absurd to fight with logic with old people who have been debating and debating the scriptures all their lives.

Then the answer was simple.

'Let's present anecdotes that are easy, clear, and intuitive.'

What Seongjin had to persuade was not just the old members of the Holy Society. Ultimately, people across the entire continent, including the imperial subjects, must be able to accept his existence without hesitation.

The answer lies in the scripture fairy tales that have been published so far.

"When Saint Aurelion received a revelation from God and tried to move, what the Lord used was a group of stray crows."

Although it is recorded in passing in the scriptures-

-After discovering a flock of crows hovering beyond the mountain, Aurelion, the servant of the god, discovered the whereabouts of the disappeared Magi.

The anecdote was expressed like this in the scripture fairy tale.

-To inform Saint Aurelion of his destination, the Lord himself moved a flock of ravens and used them as guideposts on his journey.

The same goes for 'Saint Bastian and the Finger Devil', which was published recently -

-Faithful Bastian rode the wind and chased after the devil worshiper.

This simple content is changed like this in fairy tales.

-Saint Bastian drove the divine wind and made the devil's agents subordinate to him as his guide.

At first glance, it seemed like the sentences were changed to be easier to read for children, but somehow, the devil's power was transformed into a tool of the god.

If you look closely like this, you will find that many fairy tales that have been published so far subtly distort the contents of the scriptures.

Although he did not know the original text accurately, Seongjin was able to easily capture such subtle nuances by reading the biblical fairy tales one after another.

'Is it a coincidence? Or did your father prepare all of this in advance?'

It is impossible to know for sure now that the Holy Emperor is in the prayer room.

However, if there is a plate ready to eat, wouldn't it be the duty of a child to take advantage of it?

"I'm sure you all heard the story that when I was fighting the demon race, the holy grace of the main god covered the entire place, right? Then I clearly heard his voice. "In order to be reborn as a more faithful servant of the Lord, we must overcome stronger trials."

So it suggests something similar to the story of a biblical fairy tale. Even without pointing it out, high-ranking priests would probably think of the 'trial of misunderstanding' given to Saint Grazie just by mentioning this much.

"And there is also the deep meaning of the Lord God hidden there. This new power won't just be an ordeal to test me personally. "Isn't it true that sometimes we have to deal with the evil energy of demon species in the same evil way?"

The story of Saint Terbachia also hints that he actually ministered to the devil in order to destroy him.

A dark saint with only a couple of fairy tales published compared to the numerous anecdotes of other saints. Coincidentally, Seongjin is currently wearing the uniform of a knight order honoring him, and is deliberately vividly reminding priests of an anecdote they would like to forget.

"And above all, I am safely worshiping the Lord in his kingdom, surrounded by divine grace, together with his servants. "Is there any way to clearly prove that I am God's tool?"

All these leaps of logic and unreasonable claims are shoved into your head as quickly as possible.

At this moment, after receiving one great shock after another, they have not yet regained their senses!

"that... "That is sophistry!"

How long was the silence?

Cardinal Benitus, who was listening to those words with a mesmerized expression, finally managed to squeeze out a cracking voice.

"This kind of blasphemous and evil energy can't really be a trial given according to the will of the main lord... ... !"

"What the hell is the problem? Are there one or two examples of wrong things being used as His tools? "Cardinal Benitus, you should read the scriptures properly again."

"... ... !"

Although Seongjin was the one who actually had to read the scriptures. Well, the important thing here is not an excuse to criticize the cardinal.

"Have you still read the recently published scripture fairy tale? In order to destroy the five fingers of the finger devil, the Lord directly sent the devil's servant to Saint Bastian as a guide."

"Don't say nonsense! That's a matter of interpretation... ... !"

"That interpretation is the correct opinion published through the review of the Holy Assembly, right?"

The old man, who usually never paid attention to fairy tales from the scriptures, belatedly regrets his karma and closes his mouth with a pale face.

Seongjin then continued his attack with great vigor.

"It seems like you are very dissatisfied with what I said, so let's hear it somewhere. "Why do you think my father, God's representative, left me like this without purifying my power?"

"... ... !"

"If that isn't proof that my strength comes from God, what is it?"

As expected, it was bullshit.

But isn't it important to confidently push forward with something like this?

"Well, if you really find it hard to believe, there is another way."

Seongjin, who paused for a moment after speaking to that point, leisurely looked around and then glanced at Benitus again.

"Well, if you're confident, you can try purifying me right now."

At that very moment-

Cardinal Benitus saw the intense red light emanating from the pupils of the boy he was facing.

392

392. Negotiation (2)

Seongjin, who could not feel divine power, did not know how that power worked. How can it destroy evil, or how can it purify evil?

But at least one thing could be confirmed. Even his father's mighty divine power does not harm him, so who in this world would dare to purify him!

That's why you can clean your mouth with peace of mind.

"Well, if you're confident, you can try purifying me right now."

The conference chairman becomes quiet as if water had been poured on him. Because the implications of that proposal were greater than I thought.

Trying to purify someone who couldn't even be successful? Or are they trying to deny and purify the person whom the Holy Emperor has permitted?

No matter how it is perceived, this is blasphemy that directly challenges the authority of God's representative!

"... .."

Of course, even putting blasphemy aside, there were many problems.

What if purification is truly impossible? Not only is it like admitting your own lack of ability in front of everyone, but you are also taking the lead in acknowledging that wrongdoer as an apostle of the Lord!

'... This is a role that must be avoided at all costs!'

Murmur.

The priests look at each other and whisper.

However, there are bound to be people who rush to any place without thinking -

"profit! "Do you think I can't do it if I tell you to?"

Cardinal Benitus came down from the podium with a huff and rushed towards Seongjin.

Masain's eyebrows twitched at the extremely disrespectful attitude, but before his hand could reach the sword, Seongjin quietly raised his hand to stop him.

'Hang in there, Lord Masaine. We came here to persuade them peacefully.'

'... 'Are you serious about that?'

The one who just spewed out his aura and put pressure on the priests?

Pretending not to notice Masain's absurd gaze, Seongjin calmly watched the skinny old man's hand stretched out in front of him.

"You bastard! "Get out of this hall of godly gods right now!"

Whoa!

From the hand that grasps the gray conquest, a sacred white light soon bursts out. It was the powerful divine power of Benitus, one of the five cardinals of the Holy Empire and once renowned for his slaying of demons.

'... That's amazing! Now I just thought of him as a useless old man in the back room... ... '

It was the moment when the high priests saw him again.

Of course, for Seongjin, who was exposed to the Holy Emperor's divine power every day, it was an embarrassing power to even call it light.

"... ... ?!"

When Seongjin showed no reaction despite being hit directly by divine power, Benitus looked embarrassed for a moment. But soon he began to exhaust his arrogance and squeeze out his soul.

"Hey!"

How much time has passed like that?

In the end, the poor old man lost all his energy and collapsed into his seat, out of breath.

"... "Uh, how does this happen?"

"Well, everyone saw it, right?"

widely.

Seongjin neatly straightened his wrinkled collar and looked around the venue.

"Isn't it this clear? I am not an enemy of the Empire, nor am I someone you must defeat. "The power given by the Lord is an expression of the Lord's firm will."

"... ... !"

No matter what the result, we will never be deceived by the sophistry of false things. It was a common thought among the priests present.

However, when an unexpected result unfolded before their eyes, a stronger resonance than expected occurred in their minds.

'... for a moment. I thought it was impossible, but maybe?'

'possiblity... Is it there? Like the 'ordeal of misunderstanding' that Saint Grazier experienced long ago, has the hand of the Lord really touched Prince Mores?'

While the air in the conference hall was quietly rumbling, Cardinal Meyer watched the whole scene with sunken eyes.

'This is not a good trend. 'Isn't everyone feeling suspicious?'

It's been about 10 years since the devil species completely disappeared from the ecliptic. Among the young priests, there were those who did not properly understand the nature of devils and devil contracts.

'That's probably why they are so shaken by the prince's words.'

Cardinal Benitus seemed to have no doubt that Prince Mores was 'something other than human'.

'Prince Mores may be a devil contractor connected to a high-ranking devil.'

A demon contractor is only a human being until the demon directly descends into his body.

Therefore, not only can one live in the grace of the main god, but it is also possible to erase the demonic energy itself without communicating with the devil for a long time.

"... dismissal."

Archbishop Wesker seemed to have thought the same thing. She looks at Cardinal Meyer with her anxious eyes like never before.

"Prince Mores may be... .."

"Shh! Don't make the mistake of saying something you're not sure about, Wesker. "If the lower class had been in some kind of contractual relationship, erosion would have already occurred at the point when the devil's power was strongly revealed like before."

okay. That was the problem.

Contractors who descend on the devil or strongly release the power of the devil will eventually be caught up in the erosion and have their souls taken away.

But lo and behold. Even after committing such a terrible act, doesn't Prince Mores still look fine?

Suddenly, a fearful assumption crossed Cardinal Meyer's mind.

It would be fortunate if Prince Mores were a tool or an apostle of the main god. Otherwise, 'that' would mean something that already surpasses the power of the Lord.

"... But, Your Excellency. "Now that things have come to this, shouldn't we properly investigate Prince Mores?"

When Archbishop Wesker whispered again in a trembling voice, Cardinal Mayer clicked his tongue slightly.

"inspection? "How?"

How do you usually investigate a contractor who is no different from an ordinary person if they are trying to hide their identity?

Originally, it was simple. Anyone suspected of this can be taken to the Heresy Tribunal and tortured and treated repeatedly until they confess.

but-

"There is no way His Majesty could justly throw His favorite son into a torture chamber! In addition, the prince himself claimed to have been tested by the main god, and only after proudly displaying his demonic energy..."

"Okay, then. "Is there really any possibility that what the prince said is true?"

"well..."

Cardinal Meyer was skeptical about that.

The 'ordeal of misunderstanding' that Saint Grazie suffered literally refers to an episode in which she was accused of being a witch and brought to the Heresy Tribunal. This means that there is no record of the saintly woman exuding demonic energy or anything like that.

However, with such a simple frame-up, didn't she ultimately have to endure all three sets of 'trials of a saint'?

'But it is also ambiguous to tell Prince Mores to prove it as the saint did. Aren't these trials that His Majesty himself has already banned? Unless the prince steps forward, we cannot force him to undergo trials from our side first.'

A frustrating situation where you can't do this or that. If the young prince had thought this far before acting, we can't help but say he was truly clever.

As Cardinal Meyer's worries deepened, someone called the attention of the confused conference president in a gentle voice.

"everyone."

It was Cardinal Cafran, the head of the council.

He spoke slowly, without any sign of being disturbed by this series of events.

"You seem to be mistaken for a moment, but today is not a place to accuse Prince Mores of any kind of charges."

"What do you mean now? "You can't even hear such a thing coming out of your mouth when you see all that evil energy flowing out of you?"

"Calm down, His Excellency Cardinal Benitus. We have gathered simply to prove the power of [Destruction] that you have. "Don't forget that."

Kapran looked rather calm.

okay. What does it matter whether the prince was deceived or whether he was truly an apostle who was tried by the Lord? The moment he gave off that kind of evil energy, he was already pushed out from the 18th throne.

"Yes, yes! "There it was!"

Flash!

At his point, Benitus's eyes, which had been blurry, regain vitality.

that's right. Didn't we create a trap that could never fail? I swear to the Lord that I will never allow something so wrong and dangerous under the glorious name of an Apostle of the Lord!

"ruler! Come on and prove it! hurry!"

He hurriedly ran to the stage and gathered the small statues he had prepared in his arms.

"If you are truly an apostle of the Lord, you will probably be able to pass this test! Come on, let's solve these!"

Slap!

He returned at a quick pace and roughly threw the items he was holding into Seongjin's hands.

Patter!

"Did you tell me about Saint Terbachia? Did I say that you deal with evil energy in a negative way? Then prove it! "Purify all these evil things and show the world their proud ability to destroy evil!"

"... .."

Seongjin glanced at the statues placed on his palm.

They were pieces of wood the size of two fingers, and at first glance they looked like monsters or dinosaurs.

'Yeah, I thought it would be like this... ..'

On the day a large demon species appeared, a strange phenomenon was observed where the demonic energy flowing from it was dragged to various parts of the ecliptic.

After searching the place for a long time, what the Paladins found were the unidentified 'seeds of the devil species', in other words, these small wooden statues.

I heard that the priests attempted to purify it several times, but it was never destroyed. Dasha carefully informed me that this was information that was handled with utmost secrecy at the Crusade.

But now that I see it, it was worth it.

'Because these are objects from the normal world. Unless the conditions are met, it cannot be easily eliminated by the power of the original world.'

okay. I had a guess that they would eventually bring this up.

How will they test the power of [Destruction Evil]? Even so-called priests cannot come forward and summon demons to the ecliptic.

Even if it were possible, the demon would not be able to withstand the grace surrounding the ecliptic the moment it was summoned and would simply disappear.

'Then you are throwing yourself a task that cannot be succeeded from the beginning. If I really prove my strength, the situation of those who summoned me will be quite difficult.'

As I guessed, not only Benitus but most of the high-ranking priests were staring at us with some strange enthusiasm. It seems that the story was already finished at the Seonghoe line before Seongjin was summoned.

'Without a doubt, they think I'll never be able to solve it.'

I couldn't help but laugh. It wasn't unexpected, but doesn't everyone's intentions seem really transparent?

Ignoring Cardinal Benitus' confident gaze, Seongjin gently touched one of the statues with his finger.

Ugh-

As soon as he rouses his will, a faint red light appears in Seongjin's pupils. And soon, as expected, a faint window appeared before his eyes.

?Spinomegalosaurus Summoning Ticket?

?You can summon Spring Valley's field boss, Spinomegalosaurus, once. Immediately after summoning a dinosaur, the summoning right disappears. If you select destroy, it will be deleted from the item window.

?Physical resistance B. Water resistance B.?

?Monster Grade: B+?

?*Current Northland servers cannot be confirmed.?

The demon species that swept over Bathurst Territory some time ago were ones that followed the laws of the normal world.

I wondered where on earth such a strange dinosaur came from, and it seemed like it was probably created with a summoning ticket like this.

'You mean you can summon it or destroy it?'

As I was staring at it, as expected, another small selection window appeared next to it.

?Destroy the right to summons??

?Delete/Cancel?

okay. It may be impossible for anyone here to guess, but the current Seongjin could easily destroy these things without even lifting a finger.

Is there any other proof method in the world this easy?

?Giganotoallosaurus summoning right?

?Arhinomosasaurus summoning right?

The same was true for all the other pieces of wood.

If you focus your mind, similar explanation windows will appear.

"If it's too much, you can give up now, Sir Mores. "No one forces a young member of the Holy Emperor family to do anything beyond his or her ability."

Cardinal Kapran's relaxed voice could be heard from afar.

It may sound like he is gently soothing, but the emotion hidden inside is excitement and joy, hoping that his grandson's rival will fall like this.

Seongjin raised the corners of his mouth with a grin.

Well, is there any need to hesitate? When the boards are laid out so beautifully, it is natural to walk with ease.

"It would be good to keep this clearly in those two stubborn, distant eyes."

Seongjin raised his chin arrogantly and declared. Even if you don't shout at the top of your voice, your clear voice filled with aura resonates all the way to the corners of the conference hall.

"This is the power of the apostle given by the Lord, the miracle of the Lord!"

Seongjin took a glance at his surroundings while holding a statue high-

?Destroy the right to summons??

?Delete / Cancel?

Without any hesitation, I pressed the [Delete] button on the selection window that appeared before my eyes.

393. Negotiation (3)

Pass...

The statue held high above its head showed a drastic change. Without any sign, let alone a crashing sound, it disappeared into the air without a trace in an instant!

"... ... ?!"

The hall was filled with shock.

It was a sight I couldn't believe even when I saw it with my own eyes. Wasn't it the 'devil's seed' that remained intact even after high-ranking priests took turns pouring out divine power and paladins pounded it with their Auror blades hundreds of times?

"... "Kkeok?"

The one who was more embarrassed than anyone else was Cardinal Benitus. His jaw dropped, his mouth opened, and he made a strange sound, as if he were a chicken with a twisted head.

Anyway, I can't help but be surprised.

-The cause and effect for the search has already been filled. So, even if Rebekah reveals the secret a little early, the outcome will not be much different.

These are the items that the leader of Arenja, who was usually very careful, rolled up his hands and feet and led the Holy Knights to find them.

-These are the ancient arrangements of the sower. Since it is outside the laws of this world, it will not be easily broken. It would be better to give up on purifying it and just store it deep in the imperial palace.

He even assured me that it would never be purified.

Isn't that why I brought it out to the test with confidence? I firmly believed that there would never be a solution to that evil prince.

But what is the result?

Benitus, who was closest to the prince, could clearly feel it. The magical energy that was steadily flowing from the statue disappeared in an instant with the prince's shout.

Truly unquestionable proof of [annihilation]!

'But, but how can that be? That thing is clearly wearing the mask of a prince... ... !'

Cardinal Capran's situation was not much different from Benitus.

The elderly man, who never lost his dignity no matter the situation, was looking around in the air with wide eyes, uncharacteristically forgetting his body pain. It seems as if the prince thinks he is using some kind of trick to defraud everyone.

"ruler. Did you see everyone? "This is the power I have to destroy evil, and it is the power that proves I am the servant of the Lord."

The only person who is calm is the one who caused this [miracle].

Feeling the cold atmosphere of the conference hall, Seongjin calmly said goodbye in his heart.

'Hello, Spinomegalosaurus.'

In fact, it's not that I didn't have a desire to summon an actual dinosaur with the summoning right.

Wasn't Seongjin who had a grand dream of becoming a Tyrannosaurus in his old days? I was very curious about what kind of dinosaur design the game director of [Kong: Jurassic Island] came up with by combining Spinosaurus and Megalosaurus.

but-

'If I actually summoned him, he might become a member of the devil that pours out harmful magical energy like the giant devil species from before, right?'

I have a feeling that even if I had it, I wouldn't be able to use it at all.

If so, there is no need to linger any longer.

"... "This can't be happening!"

At that time, Benitus suddenly came to his senses and grabbed Seongjin's livery.

"What kind of trick have you pulled? What on earth have you done! This is wrong! "Can't you please tell me your tricks in detail?"

"Cardinal Benitus! Let's see, let's see, really... ... !"

Seongjin, who once again calmed the growling Lord Masaine, presented the remaining statues to Cardinal Benitus in a casual manner.

And when he suddenly took them over - chuck!

He raised his finger as if he had been waiting and pointed to another statue.

"The Apostle of the Lord gives this command in your name."

I thought it was a bit too condescending, but it was still a gesture that others would find quite cool.

"Disappear."

sparkle.

With the command, a red glow appears and disappears from Seongjin's eyes again.

?Destroy the right to summons??

?Delete / Cancel?

Crispy!

Giganotoallosaurus turns to dust again.

I guessed that it was probably a theropod dinosaur with a nice snout full of powerful teeth, but now I have no way of knowing what it looked like.

"... "Huh!"

Benitus looked like he was about to pass out as another piece disappeared like dust in his hand.

He threw away the pieces of his grip and fell to the floor with a bloodshot face.

"Ahhh... ... !"

Degurrrrr.

Sculptures poured out indiscriminately were lying shabby on the floor. To the statue that had rolled to his feet, Seongjin ordered again as if it were obvious.

"You disappear too. "This is a wicked tool of the devil."

Pass...

"... ... !!"

The air in the conference hall was now completely frozen.

Three miracles happened one after another before my eyes.

"Is everyone clearly aware of this? "All of this is God's will."

The prince's voice ringing next is vividly pierced in my mind as if it were the voice of God.

"I am a faithful seeker who follows the will of the Lord, and a faithful apostle of the Lord who carries out the will of the Lord."

My mind, paralyzed by shock, could no longer think of any other opinions.

They saw the prince shed evil energy but stand firm in front of the power of the main god. I also saw the prince purify the ominous devil seed without even lifting his hand.

How can you deny this series of miracles that happened right before your eyes!

"You who dared to test the apostle, who is being tried by the Lord, by your own inadequate human standards. "You foolish servants who judged God's will and even tried to observe it."

Prince Mores slowly drove the wedge into their confused ears.

"All these trials given to me will ultimately become the foundation for realizing God's kingdom in this world."

The prince's noble appearance is in no way inferior to that of the saints in the scriptures -

"So, everything I do in the empire is nothing more than exercising the will of the Lord."

The voice is also exquisitely clear, as if it were that of an angel announcing the Lord's will -

"Everyone should keep this in mind and no longer presumptuously meddle in my affairs."

There is only cold and heavy silence in the hall.

This is because great guilt and strong doubts were mixed together to tighten everyone's hearts.

Were their eyes really clouded by greed and stubbornness? Maybe that's why I wasn't able to recognize the Lord's will, which was so clear...

"Cow, you must not be fooled!"

At that moment, Cardinal Benitus, who came to his senses first, cried out like a madman.

"Everyone, stay alert! Don't be deceived by that evil thing anymore...
... !"

Jeez.

At that moment, the prince takes a step towards Cardinal Benitus.

"omg!"

The poor old man was trembling, pushing the floor with his arms without realizing it.

Just the light steps typical of an Auror user. But how can you feel the weight of Taisan in that sound?

As Benitus trembles under the growing pressure, a boy's shadow appears over his head, and then an abstract scolding descends.

"The Lord always said to have pity on the ignorant. However, there is a limit to tolerating the resulting negligence."

Of course, Seongjin did not know whether such words actually existed in the scriptures. I just thought that since everything recorded in detail in the thick scriptures was the teachings of the Lord, there would probably be at least one sentence like that.

Perhaps that guess was correct. The eyes of the old man looking up at him began to tremble with a slight sense of guilt.

"How dare you ignore the 'don't show off' official letter directly issued by your father, and don't hesitate to make such profane remarks in front of a member of the royal family."

"Well, that's... .."

"Cardinal Benitus. "How long do I have to put up with your insults and rudeness?"

Jeopuk-

Seongjin takes another step.

In his mind, which was growing distant due to the ever-increasing pressure, Benitus tried not to lose his mind by constantly repeating to himself.

"That's not a human. It's nothing more than a deception, disguised as a human being and deceiving us! So, no matter what it shows in front of you, never, ever be deceived... ..!"

However, when I come face to face with gray eyes that look exactly like Seonghwang, my mind begins to bleach white, as if the firm determination I had made up until now was in vain.

"Do not seek mercy from me anymore. Do you understand?"

Silver-gray reflected light that looks strangely inorganic.

Eyes that have the power to deeply penetrate not only a person's heart but also his unconsciousness, and ultimately bind his soul so that it cannot even move.

That scary gaze was coldly looking down at Benitus, warning him.

"Keep in mind. Never again, Cardinal Benitus."

"Ahh! "Holy shit!"

At the old man's careless screams, the already narrow cave resounded with loud echoes.

Romain stopped sewing the hand puppet and looked up.

"Why are you doing this? Please calm down, seedling. "Lord of all diseases."

Then the old priest shouted at him.

"If you don't know something, stay silent, doll! "Do I look serious

now?"

After an accident occurred in Bathurst Territory where the members of the Plantation were suddenly released, they lost the hut they had used as a meeting place and had to take refuge in this shabby cave.

But the real problem came after that.

In the aftermath of the incident, the guardian of Delcross noticed an abnormality in the vicinity of the imperial capital and ordered the Holy Knights to search the surrounding area like teeth.

In the end, sowing had to lose most of the seeds of the clan that had been hidden.

'No, it may actually be a good thing. Because they moved the seeds to the interior of the Imperial Capital on their own.'

But that optimism was short-lived; now even the seeds are being destroyed for no reason!

"How on earth can humans destroy that? "It's definitely something that borrows the laws of the normal world, right?"

Then Greed, the girl with pigtails who had been listening quietly, tilted her head.

"After all, aren't they objects that bear the reality of this world? Whatever the main law that is affected, it would not be impossible to find a way to eventually destroy it."

"But I heard that it is impossible, at least not with human capabilities! "That's why I paid such a high price to buy it!"

At the point of greed, Pajong threw a tantrum.

"When Ae-yeol sold them to me, I thought they were an extremely efficient choice! "It was an innovative way to create usable power immediately without wasting existing subordinates!"

Moreover, because it had the characteristics of the normal world on the surface, it was difficult for even priests to see through it.

So, I buried them all over the area and waited for the day when I could summon them all at once!

"Sowing. Are you sure those seeds are really from the normal world?"

"okay. "I saw Aeyeol pull it out herself."

"okay."

Romain frowned as he realized the implications of this.

Could it be that the guardian of Delcross did this? Since he is such a difficult person to estimate the limits of his abilities, it may not be impossible at all.

'But no matter how much he did, I never thought he could directly control the codes of the normal world... ... '

Romain had an ominous thought that his ability to write code might not be as much of a threat to Delcross as he expected.

"But sowing. "If they are able to interfere with the seed, wouldn't they be able to summon your family at will from over there?"

"omg! What?!"

Pajong jumped up from his seat.

I hadn't even thought about the possibility until now, but after thinking about it carefully, I think it's probably not impossible at all.

"Holy shit! "I should just throw it all away!"

In the end, Sowing shed tears of blood and had to hastily cut off all connections with the seeds.

It was only recently that the imperfect descendant, awakened with the amplification of the crack, consumed an enormous amount of his magical energy.

However, if I made a mistake and even those things woke up like that, it was clear that this time, Sobong would lose his magic energy to an irreversible degree.

Rather than conserving your resources by sparing your subordinates, you may find yourself in a position where you have to worry about 'generational change' as you are pushed out by those subordinates!

"Hehehehe! It's a shame I'm dying! "This can't be refunded, right?"

"... .."

There was a dull silence inside the cave for a moment. The appearance of a high-ranking demon king with tears streaming down his nose everywhere was truly unsightly.

"Ugh! This can't be happening! This can't be happening! "How did I buy them!"

In the end, the lesser greed became irritated.

"Do some work, sowing. "Isn't the problem that you sowed those seeds without a plan in the first place?"

"Well, it is beneficial to sow a lot of seeds whenever you get the chance!"

"Ha, how foolish you are!"

The little girl stood up in disgust.

"Now who are you going to blame? "It's just the price you pay for relying on such vague and uncertain things instead of cultivating your original strength."

As she hurriedly walked towards the cave entrance, Romaine asked in confusion.

"Greed? Lord of hunger. The countermeasures meeting is not over yet. Where are you going now... .."

"I'm so pathetic that I can't hang out with you anymore. "We're going to take a short break, so you guys can cool off in the meantime."

The girl's long, braided hair sways gently as if she's saying hello.

With that, the small figure of Greed disappeared without a trace.

"oh! Lord of Hunger... ... !"

"Don't worry, doll. Greed will soon return. Maybe it won't go that far?
"It's obvious where that guy is headed."

Pajong blew his nose and shook his head.

"Isn't it the place where the most greedy people flock, and the country of commerce where the lord of hunger often satisfies his hunger?"

At that explanation, Romain naturally thought of the name of a small country located in the southwest.

"... Principality of Asein."

"okay. "He made up various excuses, but he was just afraid of sparks flying so he took refuge in a place where he felt most comfortable."

The guardian of Delcross may have the ability to control even the laws of the normal world.

It may be a slim possibility, but wouldn't it be possible to trace back their movements using the 'seed' that they lost?

In the worst case, a situation might arise where they aim their swords at themselves, taking advantage of the causal effects of the previous summoning of the demonic species.

So, until the current messy situation is sorted out, I'm trying to stay away from Sowing, the culprit of everything.

"Still, we have a lot of affection from our time together, but he seems like such a sneaky guy!"

But they had no idea.

In fact, the guardian of Delcross that they are guarding is currently in a somewhat complicated situation.

Grumbling-

Nate looked up after seeing four chains wrapped around his arms.

[Elder, what does this mean?]

For a while, I ran around day and night trying to defeat the intruders that had piled up over a period of over a month.

Currently, Nate was summoned to the [Six-person meeting] in the gap as soon as everything was sorted out.

394. Negotiation (4)

Nate swung the salmon without even having time to breathe. She must have felt that her arm, which was being restored in real time by strong divine power, was feeling numb due to pain.

Another problem was the rapid accumulation of fatigue in the mind that had not been able to rest even for a moment.

Nevertheless, the invaders continued to pour in.

The boundaries of the twisted dimension have already been opened and closed thousands of times. In the meantime, Nate created countless [GAME OVER], and another game company suffered from fierce protests from consumers, but that would not be a very important issue.

After moving non-stop for days and days like that, we had finally 'almost' defeated the dimensional invaders.

Suddenly Nate felt a strong force pulling at his soul.

'This... ... ?'

Has it come?

Nate, who soon grasped the situation, did not feel the need to resist and submitted himself obediently to the force. Soon his soul was enveloped in a thick fog and dragged somewhere.

Blink.

After a while, the sight that unfolded in his recovered vision was a huge corridor that was already familiar to Nate. and-

Grumbling...

It was a golden chain that wrapped around his entire body and restricted his movements from all directions.

[...]]

The total number of chains is four.

This meant that, except for the currently absent Lycanthrope Lord, all remaining border race representatives had activated the key.

Instead of resisting the restraints, Nate slowly raised his head and looked around.

He was currently standing in the very center of a huge corridor. And the members of the [6-member council] surrounding the son-in-law are each standing on a platform of different heights and looking down at him.

[Haha, are you a little surprised?]

Mitra, who was nearby, raised a large bottle of liquor as if to say hello.

The scales of this Draconian, who was always drunk, had turned a dull blue color, like corroded bronze, since I hadn't seen him recently.

[But please understand our position, Nate. Without doing this, it's hard to see your face.]

After him, a huge stingray lets out a shrill scream.

[Kya?!]

The heavy body, covered in small corals and barnacles, looked more like a piece of land had been scooped up from the seafloor than that of a living creature.

This poor representative of the race, who had lost his essence and completely lost his senses, anxiously ground the [key] with his teeth and made a meaningless noise.

[Kyaarbyaaaaak! Bye! #%%kak!]

The giant woman with the storm on her head also did not miss the opportunity to criticize Nate.

[I don't think you would dare complain about your treatment. All of this is your own gain!]

As if reflecting the woman's emotional state, her long hair was shaking wildly in the air in the windless corridor.

The hem of her clothes, which must have shined beautifully like a rainbow, had already lost its luster a long time ago as it had become soaked from the heavy rain she had caused herself.

It seems that Nate has been suffering a lot during the past month when he has been slacking off.

[I knew you would do something like this one day! He neglected his duty as a guardian and abandoned the dimension, and in the end, he even became involved in the life and death of humans, greatly disrupting cause and effect! How on earth are you going to sort out all these problems!]

There was another unfamiliar face there.

A member with an elongated body unique to the tree race politely greets Nate.

Now, it was a young tree that had taken over the position of new representative of the tribe, replacing the old tree that repeatedly spit out echo-like thoughts.

[I am very sorry to have to meet you for the first time this way, Guardian of Delcross.]

At first glance, he seemed like a man full of dignity.

The branches extending gracefully from the top of his head were as majestic as a deer's crown, and the cloak, finely woven from dry grass, had a subtle luster as if it had been melted down from gold dust.

[Unfortunately, it turned out like this, but please know that our intention is to provide a venue for dialogue.]

After taking a quick look at the faces of the race representatives, Nate finally looked back at the old man standing in front, the elder dragon who was the representative of the six-member council.

It was truly amazing.

The only ones who were very nervous about this situation were the members of the [Council of Six], and the attitude of Nate, who had become their prisoner, was extremely carefree.

[Elder, what does this mean?]

[...] Nate.]

[Have all the border races agreed to join me? So, can I take this to mean that you have decided to protect the Delcross Dimension yourself from now on?]

Then the old man trembled and, uncharacteristically, became angry.

[Oh, do your best! Isn't this all because of you? So why have you been confined to the imperial palace, ignoring external invasions and not even responding to calls?]

[...] There were circumstances.]

[Don't be ridiculous! If there was such a thing, shouldn't it have been properly explained at least to our members who are wary of the dimension!]

[...]]

[What on earth are we supposed to do? No matter what I try, there is no answer, so the only way to hear your voice is to forcefully activate the emergency summons!]

The reaction of the [Six-person meeting] was not something that could not be understood.

While the only guardian of the dimension was silent and closed off communication, hundreds or thousands of armies rushed towards the Delcross dimension at once.

They were caught up in the distortion of the gap created by Nate, and rushed towards Delcross at different speeds.

For the representatives of the race who had to face the destruction slowly approaching from beyond the border of the dimension, the past month must have been like a hundreds of years of nightmare.

[And what else did you do in Cyprus not long ago? Why do you stay quiet for a while and then suddenly cause a huge accident that affects the life or death of humans!]

[...] I am not particularly involved in anyone's life or death.]

Nate protested in an unusually confident voice.

That was partly true. He simply vaporized a small portion of the flammable fuel prepared by the Council by slightly changing the temperature and pressure.

The fire would have happened anyway according to the son's will. In this case, it would not be such a big problem as the vaporized fuel caused an additional small explosion.

... maybe.

[Hey, Nate. Why are you like this these days? You are not a child who cannot communicate!]

It seems like a lot has accumulated over the years, and the more he talks, the more the old man's face turns red.

[Haven't we been doing well for a while since the last 'agreement'? There must be a good reason for you to suddenly act like this.]

[...]]

[Well, it's not too late. Please, do us a favor and explain it to us properly! What on earth happened to you in the meantime?]

When Nate did not answer any more and stubbornly kept his mouth shut, the old man, who noticed his rare expression like a ghost, lamented.

[Ah, yes! There's only one way you'll end up like this. It must have been related to 'that'!]

The elongated iris of the old man looking at Nate tightens to the point where it can no longer get smaller.

[Once again, for the sake of 'that', I have wasted my precious cause and effect on something so useless!]

[...]]

[So you thought it would be a hindrance if we found out, so you refused to communicate at all! Then, I left it until the invaders were just a stone's throw away, making it impossible for them to forcefully summon you here!]

hmm.

Nate, who had nothing to say in response to this, looked down and gently pulled on a chain wrapped around his body.

Then, beyond the border of the gray space, a long golden chain extending somewhere invisible follows his movements, heavily scratching the floor.

Charrrrr...

[Look, Nate!]

The chain was stronger than it looked. Perhaps they used the key to borrow some of the power of the tribal barrier.

but-

'There's nothing you can't destroy if you put your mind to it.'

If you commit it, you will be completely at odds with the tribal representatives from now on.

[Nate! Are you listening?]

Also, it would be a little painful to know that as the barrier connected to the chain is broken, the boundary between dimensions will be greatly weakened.

[Nate!]

[I guess you don't have to try any harder, old man.]

When there was no progress in the conversation between the two, the Storm Lady intervened between them.

The giant woman's beaky eyes were burning with anger, and as if in sympathy, small lightning bolts flew out from the heavy rain on her head.

[I knew my guy would make a sad deal like this someday. Don't you always put your duties on the back burner and always end up doing things wrong because you are obsessed with your own personal goals? So, I will feel relieved if I get a clear answer from him this time!]

Oh my, it was obvious that if the leadership of the meeting was handed over to that woman, this place would become increasingly tiring. Nate protested to her half-heartedly.

[This is too much interference, heavy rain. It was delayed due to some circumstances, but anyway, all the invaders were taken care of and the dimension is still intact. What is the problem?]

[...] what?]

[Now that everything has ended smoothly, please let me go. We have to go see our children right now.]

[No, I can't do that!]

This time, it was an elderly person who intervened in their conversation.

[Everything ended smoothly? The results are good, so there are no problems now? Nate, please stop being funny!]

The old man glared at Nate with a mixture of anger and worry.

[Do you know why we nag like this for our own good? Please worry about your limitations! Nate, you are only human!]

Distorting hundreds or thousands of dimensions at the same time. And to make them delicately hover inside the gap so that they cannot easily notice the gap in time.

That enormous mental work is something that even an oracle who is said to be the ideal of the essence of the race cannot easily handle.

Nate has endured such unreasonable behavior alone for over a month.

[Do you know how much I have worried about you all this time?]

I wonder if the guardian he appointed will eventually go crazy. Could it be that he lost the balance of his mind and emotions and even let go of the power of disaster he held in his hands?

He will destroy everything he loves, including the Delcross dimension, with his own hands, and in the end, he will even completely destroy his own soul...

[You are just like Delcross. There is no way for this dimension to exist without you! But why aren't you the only one who doesn't know that?]

[...]]

[Why don't you try to preserve cause and effect! Why are you ready to throw away everything at any time, like a person with no regrets, and go on like that!]

Nate stood silently.

This is because he knows very well that even if he had a long conversation anyway, the difference in opinion between him and the old man would not be narrowed and would forever draw parallel lines.

For Nate, it is not he who determines the existence of this dimension...

[You are already wrong, old man.]

At that time, Mithra took a swig of his drink and opened his mouth in a cheerful voice.

[Look at that guy's expression over there. They have no intention of listening to us at all. If I make a mistake, it seems like I'm thinking about whether it wouldn't be a big deal if I broke one of the barriers as a test!]

Kill, kill, kill!

The self-mocking laughter of a drunken Draconian shakes the heavy air of the corridor.

At that time, the young tree, unable to see the growing atmosphere, took a step forward and looked around the crowd.

[Now, everyone, calm down. The atmosphere seems to be getting too heated right now. I don't yet know the details of this convocation, so I dare to ask...]

[Hatasu Titi.]

[It may have been a little late to react, but I think our guardian completed his duty well. How about this now? Anyway, there is no other solution for us other than that, right?]

[If you don't know the details, at least try to understand the atmosphere, young tree!]

The Storm Woman lashed out at the tree.

Isn't she, a young girl who has just taken on a heavy responsibility, a representative of a race that doesn't need to show any respect to an elderly woman?

[Listen carefully. Now, that arrogant person is relying on the false name of Oracle to arbitrarily test his own limits and threaten the safety of the entire dimension!]

[haha.]

At that time, Nate let out a soft laugh for the first time and started walking.

Grumbling-

As he moves, the long chains sway gracefully as if they were decorations for his robes.

[How dare a non-Oracle judge and criticize Oracle's limitations?]

[What?]

The angry giant woman was about to get angry at Nate.

[Wait a minute, this is... .. !]

Suddenly sensing something amiss, she opens her eyes wide and stares into space.

Then after a while-

[What is this! What happened? Why are they going into our territory... .. !]

As if screaming, I scream towards Nate.

Soon, one by one, the members of the [Council of Six] also realize what is happening and are greatly embarrassed.

A large island where giants gather.

A new black vortex had formed in the sky where the heavy rain had not been good.

It was a gate.

[...] ... ?]

[Demon King from another dimension? Where on earth did so many armies suddenly appear... ... !]

Then they naturally realized the cause of the situation.

The invaders' dimension where the time axis has been twisted and twisted a lot over the past month.

One of them has belatedly regained the flow of time and is rapidly rushing towards Delcross.

[Isn't it all over? How on earth did this happen, Nate!]

The ancient dragon urgently asked Nate.

[Oh, my.]

However, Nate, who received reprimanding looks from all the members, did not blink and calmly opened his mouth.

[sorry. It looks like my calculations were a little off.]

[...] what?]

[Didn't you just say that? heavy rain. I am human after all. As you feared, you ended up making this mistake because you had blind faith in Oracle's abilities.]

[...] ... !]

No one there knew that it was bullshit.

395. Negotiation (5)

Black storm clouds are gathering.

The foreshadowing of a disaster caused by tens of thousands of monsters gathering together in droves began to cover the stormy sky of the island in pitch black.

[iced coffee...]

[Council of 6] looked up at the scene in shock. The [Key] connected to the barrier relays without filtering the frighteningly vivid scene of the invasion.

Crackling. Co. Co.

The appearance of monsters swimming around, wriggling their long segments surrounded by carapace, resembled midges or centipedes at first glance. The only difference is that its size is so huge that it cannot be compared to those of them.

At the forefront, a low-ranking demon lord can be seen leading them.

Except for the three pairs of wings with distinct leaf veins, it doesn't look that different from its relatives. Perhaps the status of the individual was not that high, but it seemed that he had acquired the qualifications of a demon king by taking advantage of the unique collective consciousness shared by a group of demons.

Crack, cluck.

The monsters, who had already gnawed away everything in their world, were rushing like crazy as the path to a new dimension full of abundant food was opened.

Just like that, dimensions collide at full speed.

T-huh!

And soon, he was stopped for a moment by hitting a transparent membrane floating in the air. It was one of the five racial barriers that protected the Delcross dimension.

[...] Inhale!]

When the giant woman let out a moan that was unclear whether it was relief or a scream, Nate opened his mouth in a calm voice.

[It is fortunate that the gate was opened outside the barrier. You were lucky today.]

[...] ... !]

The Storm Lady glared at Nate with a look in her eyes as if she would eat him at any moment.

It was impossible not to know that everything, not only the opening time of the gate but also its location, was done through his thorough calculations.

[But how long can that barrier hold out?]

Indeed, that was not the end.

As if responding to Nate's words-

Coo! thud!

The incoming monsters continue to pound the transparent membrane violently.

As the entire dimension shook with shock, the corridor where the [Council of Six] gathered also began to vibrate in the aftermath.

Kurrrrrr...

[...]]

Since appointing a new guardian, this is the first time that the barrier has been attacked so directly. Everyone looks at Nate and the woman alternately, mesmerized by the unprecedented situation.

It was right then.

Crank!

Suddenly, one of the chains that was holding Nate began to be dragged somewhere at breakneck speed. This was because the interconnected barriers became extremely unstable.

Cheaeng-!

Nate, who stumbled for a moment due to the tight pull, soon managed to support the chain with one hand and looked back at the storm woman.

[What do you want to do? heavy rain. If I apply just a little bit of force, this chain will break right away.]

If the chain is broken like this, the racial barrier will also take a big hit. Then, the incomplete barrier will not be able to hold out for long and will be destroyed by the intruders.

Those terrifying dark clouds are pouring down over the giants' hideout in an instant.

[Doing something mean...]

Wow!

The giantess grits her teeth and glares at Nate. As if reflecting her emotional state, a series of fierce thunderstorms roared through her wildly flowing hair.

But what can you do? In the current situation, there is only one path for her to choose.

[...] I can't help it this time.]

Pass...

As the woman operates the key with resignation, the chain that had been pulled tightly disappears in an instant into thin air. It was an inevitable choice to protect her barrier.

[Remember one thing clearly! I will never forget until the day I die that you forgot your duty as a guardian and threatened the safety of our people!]

Finally, the woman who gave Nate a harsh look turns around and disappears, as if melting into the air. She moved to her island to protect her people.

[...]]

A cold silence falls between those who remain for a moment.

[...] What do we do now, Nate?]

The ancient dragon who broke the silence sighed and asked, and Nate answered, tilting his head to one side as if puzzled.

[Why are you asking me that? You are the ones who summoned someone who was busy defending the dimension to this place, even using the power of the key.]

[I don't think you would have caused an accident like that without taking any precautions. Surely there must be a way to solve it now?]

[You are saying unreasonable things.]

Nate's gray eyes looked at the ancient dragon with an unusually docile glow.

[According to the 'agreement', my body cannot take even a single step outside the imperial palace. It is impossible to move to the site right now.]

[But your soul...]

[Casality is very insufficient to exercise the power of the soul. As you know, don't miracles always require appropriate cause and effect? It may be a little late, but from now on, I'm going to follow the advice of my elders and try to conserve some of the cause and effect.]

Due to the sarcasm that was bordering on polite, blood started to well up on the ancient dragon's forehead.

[Oh, look, Nate! Do your best!]

It was right then.

Crispy! Slurp-

Once again, a chain wrapped around Nate's arm disappears. At this, the ancient dragon was frightened and looked at the person who had lifted the restraints.

[...] Mitra!?!]

[haha. Nate, this is what you want, right? Could you do me a favor and stop them for poor Rain? Since this has come to this, I will also release some of the causal effects that were restricted at the time of the agreement.]

[No, wait a minute! Mitra, what on earth are you doing without a shirt? ... !]

Then the draconian, in a dull state, looked at the ancient dragon and scratched the double-layered scales on its eyelids.

[Well, that's how it happened, old man. There is no other way for now, right?]

[that... ... !]

[As you know, the racial barrier and the safety of the Delcross dimension are not that important to me anymore. There are no longer any people or tribal territories left to protect.]

On the day when Ionia was engulfed in disaster, the representative of the last race that had lost all of its compatriots gazed at the former guardian with a deepened gaze. In his eyes, which are wrapped in a transparent nictitating membrane, a faded sadness that cannot be dismissed as just drunkenness flashes.

[But old man. At the very least, for the sake of unnecessary conflict with that friend, I would like to avoid having the barriers, the last legacy of Ionia, destroyed without meaning.]

[...]]

However, Mitra was not the only one who took unexpected action.

Crispy-!

With a small noise, one chain after another disappears. The young tree, who had become the new representative of the tribe, manipulated the key, albeit clumsily.

[...] Hatasu Titi?!]

[Mitra's words that there is no other way sound quite reasonable to me.]

[It's not such a simple matter! What would you do if you recklessly released the cause and effect that was limited by the agreement?]

[In order to prevent this situation anyway, don't we have to solve part of that person's cause and effect?]

[that... ... !]

While they were fighting, Nate, who had become considerably lighter, walked slowly with the one remaining chain wrapped around his body. She escapes from this chaotic situation and heads towards the giant stingray, which is all alone and intent on gnawing at the key.

Charrrrr...

[Lord Manta. What would you do?]

Then, the stingray, which was clenching its teeth together, stopped acting like it was a lie and looked down at Nate blankly.

[...] That's right; view??]

[It's not a big issue to worry about. As you can see, the consensus of the 'meeting of six' seems to be converging like this.]

[Sbi ⊢ Jadal$Rock ⇔ T!]

[Yes, of course.]

At that absurd sight, Mitra and Hatasu Titi exchange glances.

'I'm offended, but Mithra. Was he able to communicate?'

'That's right. It really becomes something like a conversation. I just found out too.'

They weren't sure, but it seemed like something meaningful had been exchanged between Nate and Manta. After a while, the last remaining chain disappeared helplessly.

Passsss...

[Thanks for your cooperation.]

[Lord Manta!]

In response to a cry similar to that of an ancient dragon, the stingray also screams without hesitation.

[Kyakkahi; Hey? That's you!]

[What are you doing? If you have a mouth, please explain!]

[Chapu?Maje#?Kkeburukkak!]

[no! So please speak in a way that I can understand!]

In the midst of the confusion, Nate, who felt lighter for the first time in a long time, leisurely raised one corner of his mouth.

[The opinions of the 'Meeting of 6' were well received. You will never regret this decision today.]

Kurrrrrr...

Along with the black gate, the entire army of monsters is transferred.

A miraculous sight in which the twisting of a large space is effortlessly pushed into an even more vast twisting!

When Nate finally disappears into the [gap] along with the entrance to the dimension, the gathering dark clouds disperse and the distorted sky returns to its straight appearance.

[...] It's really amazing.]

The young tree, which had opened its mouth in a daze, let out a pure exclamation in a low voice.

The situation is the same for other members. Although it was not the first time they had seen the guardian of Delcross exercising his power to the fullest, the wondrous sight was enough to capture their attention. Even if they are representatives of a race that has led the race for a long time and even survived the worst of the destruction of Ionia.

[ha ha ha! It's a wonderful sight!]

Mithra raises the bottle high into the air. It was the Draconian way of showing respect in front of everyone.

Of course, the family members who would sympathize with him no longer remained by his side.

[For some reason, I felt like I was obediently complying without resisting the forced summons. They must have been planning to rob us of cause and effect in this way from the beginning. He is a very clever friend.]

On the other hand, unlike them, the ancient dragon was caught up in somewhat complicated feelings.

[...] Hatasu Titi.]

[Yes, old man.]

[It's been quite a while since I've known you. But that behavior just wasn't like you at all. Unlike usual, where I always stick to the principles, I feel like I was quite impulsive earlier.]

Then the young tree thought for a moment and nodded.

[Your point is valid. Great ancient dragon. When I think about it carefully, there are things that feel a little strange even to me.]

It's not that it wasn't, Hatasu Titi had been feeling strange emotions from the moment she first saw the guardian of Delcross.

A bit of familiarity, or an exciting welcome.

They were pieces of extremely ambiguous emotions, but in any case, judging overall, they could probably be lumped together as good feelings.

It cannot be denied that that unusual first impression had some influence on subsequent judgment.

[The moment I saw him, I felt very trustworthy. He probably thought that if something like that was said, it would be okay to just follow him. It feels like I'm under 'enchantment'.]

When he tilted his head, the long branches extending from his head hit each other and made a monotonous friction sound.

[But it's really strange. Somehow, I had a strange sense of déjà vu, as if something like this had happened not too long ago... ..]

Slurp and clatter.

Nate slowly opened his eyes, feeling the ripples of a light slap on his cheek.

Is it because of my mood? It must have been less than a week since I entered the prayer room, but I felt like I had returned after being away from my body for a very long time.

"Peha!"

As I woke up from the pond, Katrina, who looked much haggard than before, came running to greet me. She also got a lot of nagging from Francis later on.

"You've been gone longer than expected, Katrina. Has anything special happened so far? "What about the children?"

"Yes, Your Majesty. That is... .."

Then the loyal knight commander awkwardly averted his gaze. It was a somewhat subtle reaction, unlike her, who always shows her restrained side.

And a little while later, Nate heard the news as if it were lightning.

"... okay. "Did the child do that?"

He called himself the apostle of God. In the middle of a holy meeting where all the high-ranking priests gathered, he proudly showed off his demonic energy.

"It's not surprising anymore because that's what he does."

However, regardless of being numb to the shock, there is no change in the fact that the situation must be resolved.

How on earth should we end this huge accident!

"Although it is a little early, please hurry up with the publication of the scriptural fairy tales that were in the preparation stage. And I told Francis about the academy curriculum... .."

Nate, who was quickly giving instructions, was suddenly overcome with skepticism, so he slowly raised his hand and washed his face.

396. Pian (1)

As with most primitive religions, there was something extralegal about the main religion that has been around for thousands of years.

Once someone becomes suspicious, an innocent person can be referred to the Inquisition without any evidence. There is no limit to the level of punishment, so there are countless cases of people ending their lives after making a bad joke.

The five great emperors, however, reorganized the sacred laws and specified crimes based on the scriptures and appropriate punishments for them.

However, aren't such legal provisions ultimately a matter of extracting and pasting them?

-The author held a private worship service with the residents of his territory. Wouldn't it be the act of heresy to arbitrarily establish a sanctuary for the Lord without permission from the Orthodox Church?

An estate happens to be destroyed due to the false accusations of a neighboring lord. This is because it is much cheaper to pay bribes to high-ranking priests than to start a territorial war by consuming food and soldiers.

And the following year, the lord who had accused his neighbor was brought to the Inquisition by one of his vassals. For reasons exactly opposite to those he accused.

-The sages of old said that we must build a church in our hearts even in desolate wastelands. However, that ruthless person used the permission of the Orthodox Church as an excuse to betray the faith of the people of the territory who wanted to properly worship the Lord in the sanctuary!

But now that the situation has reached this point, it has become impossible for those who are in the know to recklessly impose the provisions of the law. It could also be seen as a side effect of the exercise of extralegal power.

-Hey. It all depends on what you say. I know it, you know it, we all know it. But do we really have to go to this length just to win this once?

-Residing within the 'grace' of the ecliptic means proof that we are not devils who have used the kalpa. Let's leave this to each other. If you cross the line, do you think others will leave you alone?

In this way, a tacit agreement had already developed among the imperial officials. As long as they don't openly commit a serious crime like summoning a demon in front of everyone, at least they don't make false accusations among themselves.

This was one of the reasons why they could not easily detain and torture the prince, even though Prince Mores revealed his naked 'magic spirit' and arbitrarily called himself an apostle of the main god.

"This is ridiculous!"

Archbishop Wesker, who had been suffering for several days, stormed into Cardinal Myer's house late at night and complained.

She was the one who stood at the forefront of extermination of demons along with Seonghwang in the past. Therefore, she was bound to react more sensitively to the demonic energy displayed by the 3rd prince than others.

"Are you saying you're just going to leave the 3rd prince like that? dismissal! "It clearly belonged to the devil's power!"

Cardinal Meyer looked at his beloved junior with tired eyes. In fact, she wasn't the only one who had trouble sleeping for several days.

"What do you want to do, Wesker?"

"I need to make everything clear right now! As an apostle of the main god with demonic energy, there's really no way something like that is possible, right? "We need to properly investigate whether what the prince said is true or not!"

"how? Are you going to lead the Holy Knights into the main palace and take him away by force? "Without His Majesty's permission, at the place where His Majesty resides?"

"that... ..!"

If you think about it, it's the same as treason. Perhaps that is why the clever third prince is still staying in the main palace.

"Calm down, Wesker. "I don't feel at ease either."

Cardinal Meyer sighed deeply.

He just hoped that the third prince, who was embroiled in various controversies, would take care of himself for the time being. It was a carefully prepared event so as not to cause any harm to either party, but the prince himself took a step forward and ignited the controversy!

'Prince Mores's intentions are clear. 'He has no intention of giving up the position he has barely secured.'

I expected there would be some level of backlash.

However, because it was such a bold frontal attack, there was no time to respond. While everyone at the Holy Assembly was overwhelmed by demonic energy and confused, the grandly prepared proof event ended in a dull manner.

'Cardinal Cafran's face was truly a sight to behold.'

What's interesting here is that the reactions of his favorite juniors were sharply different.

First of all, Archbishop Wesker showed unprecedented caution. His attitude is quite different from the way he looked at Prince Mores' incidents and accidents as if they were cute.

On the other hand, Cardinal Benitus seemed to have a lot on his mind, and was just praying for several days in seclusion in the prayer room provided in the Inquisition.

The leader's attitude is so careless that even the Inquisitors under him do not dare to make any hasty moves.

"dismissal. No matter how minor a hazard may be, it must be ruled out as soon as its presence is realized. That is truly the path for the subjects of Delcross!"

"I'm not saying we should just ignore the risk. "At least there is no doubt about the power of [Destruction] that Prince Mores possesses, so let's just wait and see what happens until everything becomes clear."

Cardinal Myer comforted Wesker, who was extremely upset.

"In a way, no matter what the truth is, doesn't it definitely touch on the practicalities you consider important? Prince Mores also said this. Did he say that he would accept the trials given to him and spare no effort to ensure that the kingdom of God on this earth prospers forever?"

"... "Don't you know the purpose of that statement?"

Wesker protested in a slightly weakened voice.

At that time, Prince Mores made a statement in front of the Holy Assembly that he would serve Delcross for the rest of his life.

However, if you think about its true meaning, it means that everything you do is the Lord's work, so do not dare to interfere with it.

"It was really bold. "He didn't take a single step back until the end, which was quite unusual."

"Come on, leave it at that. As soon as His Majesty returns, everything will be resolved neatly. So don't worry about it anymore, and go back and get some rest."

After finally coaxing Archbishop Wesker out, he suddenly spotted a familiar new figure standing in the corner of the hallway.

Julia Meyer.

A beautiful granddaughter of whom he was always proud, who became an adjutant of the Imperial Guard at a young age.

She may have been a little late getting off work, but she was still dressed neatly in her knightly uniform.

"... "Did you all hear it?"

Then the granddaughter bowed her head seriously. It was a clear positive meaning.

"Nothing is certain yet. So please refrain from making unnecessary speculations."

"Yes, grandfather."

Julia nodded slowly and continued speaking cautiously.

"However, scandalous rumors about Prince Mores are already spreading throughout the imperial capital. Shouldn't you properly express your position on everything at the Holy Assembly? "I am concerned that public sentiment will be unnecessarily shaken."

"... .."

Cardinal Meyer blinked for a moment and looked at his granddaughter. This was because there was an unusual trace of worry in her voice.

"The child's behavior and character are flawless, but I was always worried because his interpersonal relationships were not maintained at all... .."

Surprisingly, it seems that he was building a good relationship with Prince Mores, with whom there was talk of an engagement.

"Hey. Do you not doubt Him at all? "The rumors surrounding the prince may not be completely unfounded."

"But that can't be possible, can it?"

In response to the cardinal's question, Julia asked a puzzled question.

"This is the imperial capital, grandfather. Everyone knows that no evil spirit can enter this sacred land without permission."

"... .."

The cardinal was silent for a moment and stared at his granddaughter with darkened eyes.

"Honey, Julia."

"Yes, grandfather."

"Have you ever heard anything from your mother about our family's progenitor?"

"father... "Do you mean that?"

Julia thought deeply for a moment and then shook her head.

My mother, the current head of the Mayer family, was a very busy person. Even when Julia was just weaning, she barely had time for a leisurely conversation.

But her grandfather wouldn't have asked such an absurd question.

"I haven't heard anything else from the head of the family. "Does the founder of the Mayer family have something to do with this?"

"... "No, it's nothing."

The cardinal's purple eyes gently widened, and he momentarily caressed the eyes of his granddaughter, who looked just like him.

"I see you said this nonsense. "It's not a big deal, so just forget about it."

The air inside the imperial palace was full of tension.

At first glance, everything seemed peaceful, but that peace was as dangerous as thin ice on a torrent.

It was Seongjin who felt the dangerous atmosphere more than anyone else. So, even though his body fully recovered, he did not rush back to Jinju Palace and left the main palace.

"Mores. I happened to know some interesting anecdotes. "I heard that they may soon be published as scriptural fairy tales. If you have time, would you like to read the stories with me?"

What is coincidence?

Amelia, who came with a scripture, had dark circles around her pretty eyes.

It seemed clear that, after hearing what had happened at the Holy Assembly, he had stayed up all night searching the scriptures to find anecdotes about Saint Terbachia.

"Thank you, sister. But you are also very busy helping the Empress with her government affairs, right? "I will read this carefully later."

Feeling her heart aching with guilt, Seongjin neatly stored the scriptures she brought in a corner of the room.

Whoa!

-Owner! Come play with me! Come on, make me big, strong and cute!

Sometimes Max would barge in front of the door and howl loudly with his snout raised.

It was something that could never have been said. Because I couldn't be sure how the changed auror would affect him. Even if you succeed in transforming without any problems, you will just be viewed with suspicion by others.

If we just maintain the current situation, even if something happens to Seongjin, Max, who has been recognized as a [Divine Beast], will not have any problems.

"No, Max. Now, I'm going to throw Edith here, so play nicely with the wooden plate. Understand?"

"yes? Lowering! yes?!"

Edith, who was confused, was pushed by Seongjin and chased out into the garden with the wolf dog.

"no! What kind of nonsense are these people talking about? What more proof do you need here? You really showed the power of [Destruction] in front of everyone. Isn't that what happened then? "Everyone must have lost their minds!"

Occasionally Owen would come by, very indignant.

Recently, as I was wandering around the imperial palace without doing anything in particular, I seemed to often hear ugly whispers exchanged between priests and servants.

Seongjin looked at this untrustworthy eldest son with pitiful eyes.

"Do you think other people are stupid and just say things like that without any basis?"

Such a thoughtless brat. I don't know about anyone else, but shouldn't you be a little suspicious of me? What will others think if they see you doing this?

If you don't have a special position in the ecliptic, at least learn the ability to read the atmosphere. You were so stupid that you barely restrained yourself from reflexively flying away!

"ok? Huh?"

Owen somehow felt an eerie premonition. She reflexively grabbed her forehead and turned her head back and forth.

"... .."

However, what made Seongjin worry the most was Lord Masaine's reaction.

I thought he would be as excited as always and ask Seongjin about the source of the 'magic', but surprisingly, he just did his job with a calm expression.

Masain closely coordinated the security schedule with the 2nd Guards of the main palace, and also took time to check on the resident knights of the Jinju Palace.

Sometimes, when he comes to see the work of the monster task force on Seongjin's behalf, he writes up a very detailed report and reads it out one by one.

Still, when I had time, I sat next to Seongjin and quietly embroidered.

Width, Sarak.

Width, Sarak.

Under steady hands, beautiful flower petals are being completed one by one.

At first glance, the scene seemed truly peaceful. If only Sir Masain's eyes weren't burning brightly as he glared at Doan.

"excuse me... Sir Masaine?"

"Yes, sir, please do so."

"... "Uh, it's nothing."

It was a day when I was living such a dangerous day.

"... ..!"

Seongjin, who had become more sensitive than before, suddenly sensed an abnormality in which the flow of auras in the air was suddenly reversed.

The air in the area is calmly aligned like a magnetic field, as if someone had passed a strong electric current through a conductor.

Seongjin couldn't overcome his joy and jumped up from his bed and shouted.

"... father!"

397. Pian (2)

As soon as Seonghwang came out of the prayer room, he quickly organized his backlog of work.

This is the first time I have been away for such a long time without notice since the heretic riots two years ago.

The good news was that the gears he had finely tuned over a long period of time rolled properly without any derailment.

And what maintained the center of the mechanism was the presence of a virtuous and capable empress.

"That's amazing. Although he was unable to properly hand over the affairs due to lack of time, he took care of the state affairs perfectly with almost no room for intervention. Tatyana."

Empress Tatiana unconsciously lowered the corners of her mouth that were about to rise due to the pure admiration of the emperor.

Although it has been like that for a long time, she was the type of person who was energized by focusing aggressively on her work and felt satisfied through the achievements and recognition that came from it.

Of course, the two people facing each other in a friendly atmosphere had completely different thoughts in their heads.

'For the sake of the future, I think it would be better to leave a little more political affairs to the empress from now on.'

'It was close. I thought I was slowly reaching my limit, but what would have happened if His Majesty had been just one day late!'

Even looking back on Tatiana herself, it was an amazing achievement.

There have been many times when she has taken Seonghwang's place, but has she ever completed all her tasks this long and successfully?

"Princess Amelia's help was great. She was always there to help me when I needed it. The more I look at it, the more I realize that he is truly a great administrative talent... .."

Perhaps it was because her mood had eased, but Tatiana, who had been inadvertently complimenting her, was startled and trailed off.

Until now, wasn't she busy subtly criticizing other children in front of Seonghwang? When she suddenly tried to compliment her, which she had never done before, beyond her awkwardness, she felt embarrassed as if her true intentions had been discovered.

"... .."

Tatiana reflexively glanced at Seonghwang, but fortunately, he just listened to her without expressing much emotion.

"Having people in an appropriate manner is also an empress's benevolence."

"... .."

Tatiana closed her mouth and quietly looked up at the Holy Emperor's face. Although she seemed extremely emotionless on the outside, Tatiana could tell that she had been looking at her for a long time. She saw the trust, understanding, affection, and a little bit of sadness in his eyes.

A long time ago, the future Tatiana dreamed of for her young prince was quite different from the present.

Likewise, Seonghwang must have been looking at a future that was completely different from the present. Maybe there was no such thing as Tatiana next to him.

But they reunited in an unexpected way and decided to embrace each other, albeit imperfectly.

The only thing that Tatyana didn't expect was that she felt that her current situation was more peaceful and warm than she expected.

"... yes. What more can I say? "They are all Princess Amelia's official documents."

Tatiana sighed softly and leaned her head on the Emperor's shoulder. Even if she were to spread her gossip about the princess here, her holy gaze towards her probably wouldn't change much.

The relationship they built over a long period of time was like a solid and beautiful castle that would not easily collapse, even if it was not perfect.

Tatiana sometimes feels weak like this because she knows that the Emperor will completely understand and embrace her no matter what happens.

"Probably, without the princess, I would never have been able to lead the country as I am now."

"That's not true."

"no. For a while, I even suspected that the princess was reading my mind. "How can you see through people so clearly?"

"It must have been possible because it was your job, not someone else's."

Seonghwang's answer was sincere.

The current Amelia is, in name and reality, the most noble rose of the Holy Empire.

However, when she first entered the imperial palace, she was just a shy and clumsy little girl.

Then, at some point, the child began to straighten his back and smile with authority as if he had drawn it.

Seonghwang knew very well that he was trying to spend as much time as possible with his child out of his spare time. The fact that Amelia tried to imitate the empress and empresses, especially her noble empress's every move.

-Tatiana Oh my mom.

The well-mannered child's only friendly title contained a respect and affection that the Empress had not yet realized.

"... .."

"... .."

And the two were caught up in their own thoughts, leaning on each other's shoulders in silence for a while.

"... "Big"

"Hmm! "Hmm!"

The cardinals who couldn't wait cleared their throats outside, until Luis finally entered the office with an expression of regret.

Since then, Seonghwang's busy schedule has continued.

He had to listen to many reports through thoughts from all over the continent, including Arenja.

Next, the five cardinals entered the Holy Emperor's office with anxious feelings, and after a while, they staggered out with their faces bleached white.

It was late in the evening, and it finally came to the last moment.

It was the moment to face the troublesome son who had committed a truly rare accident and was showing off his magical aura in front of everyone in the Holy Assembly.

"father."

The child, who has now completely regained his health, sticks his head in the doorway of the office with a nervous expression. She had a somewhat solemn expression, as if she had prepared for something great.

Seonghwang thought.

'Yes, how could I fail this child's expectations?'

As soon as I made the decision, a thought arose, and as a result, my hands moved like lightning.

Ta-kong!

"Kkuek!"

'In fact, isn't Takbam just an excuse for this gentleman to pour out his divine power?'

In the bright waterfall of light, Seongjin rubbed his forehead and had such a strange thought.

As such, Seonghwang was busy pouring out divine power by putting in a lot of effort and effort over a long period of time. Even though the pain from last night has long since disappeared.

However, Seongjin could not hastily tell Seonghwang to stop. His expression looked very heavy, as if he was deep in thought.

How much time has passed?

Finally, as if he mustered up as much strength as he wanted, Seonghwang sat down and gently pointed to the sofa across from him with his chin.

"Sit down."

"yes."

"explanation."

"yes!"

I couldn't figure out what to explain. So Seongjin began to tell his story, step by step, from the beginning of this accident.

I don't know the cause - I guess the demon lord probably did something, but I decided to ignore this part - his auror and the fire of Gehenna were completely combined, making it impossible to hide the demonic power at all.

Using this as an excuse, the Holy Order urged the Knights Templar to voluntarily resign under the pretext of testing him.

At best, they had taken over public power, but they did not want to be tied by their useless checks.

"And then this thought occurred to me. Now that things have come to this, can't we turn that testing moment into another opportunity? Why not go one step further and establish yourself as a difficult opponent for them to talk to?"

Of course, it wasn't a very noble and smooth way, so Seongjin was prepared to get hit at least one more time.

However, Seonghwang, who was listening calmly until the end, unexpectedly gave Seongjin a light word of praise.

"okay. Good job. "In situations where you think you are being tricked, you can seize the opportunity to catch your opponent off guard and catch them off guard."

"then... ... !"

"But it's true that as a father, I'm a little worried about the way you're behaving."

Seonghwang, who added words later, made eye contact with Seongjin with slightly sunken eyes.

"Keep this in mind, Mores. Right now it may seem like you've won an easy victory over them. However, not everything in the world works so simply."

Seonghwang continued his explanation in detail.

Because it is played within the established rules, it can become a complete game.

However, if something doesn't work out as expected and you completely ignore the rules and turn the game over, there is no way to use it later when you need that game.

"Think about it. If you always turn the tables in ways no one expects, eventually no one will easily invite you to their negotiation table.

"You also don't want that kind of ending, do you?"

"... .."

"Do you understand what I mean?"

"Yes, father."

Seongjin fully understood his advice. But there were circumstances that he could not avoid. Because I didn't do this just to overcome the inspiration of the crusade.

Seongjin had one more important goal left.

"Actually, there is something I would like to ask my father separately regarding that matter."

"ask."

"Yes, father."

Seongjin responded briefly and took the amulet around his neck out of his shirt. It is an object from the world of symbols with the demon lord's red soul stone embedded in it.

"The reason I revealed my magical aura to them was actually a stepping stone for this guy."

Even though he said he was using his father's help to get away with it, he couldn't think of a way to convince the crusade.

But isn't the Demon Lord too pitiful to keep him locked up in a soul stone for the rest of his life?

"I think this is probably the first time I'm showing this guy to my father. Actually, he thinks his father knew everything, but... .."

Seongjin, who had said that, clicked the option in the window that vaguely appeared before his eyes.

?Summon red?

?Summon / Release?

OK-

Pyoeyong!

With an incongruously cute sound, a small flame appears and brightens up the office.

[Lee Seong-ji!]

As insignificant as always. Sure enough, as soon as the Demon King appeared, he started whining towards Seongjin.

[Hey, you guy! What if I cancel the summoning like that? And why didn't you call me right away... huh?]

Then, the Demon King noticed the strange atmosphere and slowly rolled his eyes and looked around. And then-

"... .."

[...] ... ?!]

After seeing Seonghwang's hardened form, he became contemplative and screamed like a chicken with its head broken.

[Hey! Standing, thriving?!]

ah.

In the rapidly freezing air, Seongjin, who felt the need for quick intervention, hurriedly poured out an explanation.

"Swing. This guy is the devil. But as you can see, my father is just a small and powerless summon now. "I can definitely promise you that it is absolutely harmless!"

"... .."

While Seonghwang stared at the burning fireball, speechless, Seongjin began to hastily come up with an excuse.

"Well, of course this guy was once a demon lord, but now he has become my complete descendant. Your father did that before too, right? Because this type of dependency is absolute, you can't betray or rebel without a thought! In other words, this guy will always be on my side! It's clear!"

"... .."

"Besides, if you think about it, it's no different than me making him like this. So, this guy is my responsibility to take care of, in a way, my child... "Isn't that the same thing?"

Still, when there was no answer from Seonghwang, Seongjin slowly began to get nervous. Out of urgency, he winked at the frozen fireball.

ruler! Demon King! Come on and show your cute charm! Try to properly appeal to your father that you are like my child and how harmless and insignificant you are!

[Ugh... .. ?!]

Did Seongjin's inner support work? The demon lord had tears pouring out of his eyes, which was unusual for a fireball, and he finally opened his mouth with difficulty in a hushed voice.

[Ah, hello, how are you? nice to see you. under... ..]

under?

[...] grandfather?]

"... .."

"... .."

Shoot ah-

It was a clear autumn evening, with a cool wind blowing from somewhere.

398. Pian (3)

[hey! Isn't it really too much for you to do to the devil? I thought he was finally calling me, but it happened right under your father's nose!]

"Uh, I'm sorry."

Seongjin could fully understand the embarrassment of the Demon King, who had suddenly been summoned before God's representative and had to be punished.

But he also had his own reasons. Since it was impossible to guess the extent of the demonic energy that the demon lord was spreading, he could not prepare his mind by summoning it from somewhere else in advance.

In that case, I should have committed it in front of my father and received confirmation that it was harmless. Even if other priests stumble, my father will definitely be a strong shield.

'Well, I didn't expect this guy to suddenly talk about his grandfather.'

Still, in the end, the devil's irrational moves showed some effect. This is because Seonghwang, who had been silent for a while, finally sighed deeply and personally placed a sacred barrier on the bastard.

Seongjin couldn't feel it properly, but it was clear that the intensity of the demonic energy emanating from him had probably decreased even further.

Where is that?

-Find out my method. In the meantime, try to hide it from others as much as possible.

Since his father said so, now Seongjin just has to trust him and wait. Isn't that a huge benefit for just a little bit of shame?

Of course, whether the benefit was enough to compensate for the damaged dignity of some poor soul was another matter.

[This is all because of you, Seongjin Lee! Then why do you call me like a child for no reason!]

Sizzling.

Sparks drip from the Demon King's eyes, creating dotted burn marks.

Fortunately, there was no fire again, because the Demon King was currently resting on the fancy plate that Seongjin had prepared in advance.

He was so sad about losing his salt crystal, so I asked him to prepare the most extravagantly crafted plate in the imperial palace in his stead.

Well, looking at it like this, it looks like a lantern. It's quite charming, isn't it?

"Anyway, demon lord. "Shouldn't you think of a suitable name now?"

After waiting for the guy to calm down to some extent, Seongjin carefully brought up the business he was thinking about.

He planned to keep the Demon King by his side as much as possible from now on.

However, in an effort to hide his identity, I even asked my tired father for an unreasonable request, but I guess I can't call him 'the devil' in front of people.

[huh?]

Of course, the Demon King was confused.

[Why do you need that? I also have a proper name that is as cool as a demon lord, right?]

"that..."

When Seongjin couldn't answer and trailed off, the devil's eyes suddenly became sharp.

[No way, Lee Seong-jin. Have you just forgotten my true name?]

... hmm.

"It's not that important, devil. "There is a reason why I am making this suggestion."

[reason? what reason?]

So, think about it.

Let's say I'm literally introducing you with a 'demon king-like and cool' name. Wouldn't people who already doubt your identity look at you with even more suspicion?

Also, for safety reasons, it is better to use a pseudonym.

I heard there are many books in Delcross that have been banned because they contain the truth of other worlds, like [Apocalypse Now], right? Maybe your true name is actually written somewhere in those books.

Aside from Sir Valerie, who is addicted to banned books, there is a good chance that someone will discover your identity someday.

In that case, wouldn't it be better to let people's guard down with a pseudonym that seems a bit insignificant?

After explaining it for a while, the demon lord got angry, sparks flying.

[Lee Seong-jin. Are you saying that now?]

"why? Isn't it cute? Red..."

[don't do it!]

In the end, the demon lord couldn't hold back his anger and began to stir the room as he pleased.

Crackling, crackling.

The objects he passes by emit an ominous noise along with acrid smoke.

[Never call me that! The moment you say that name, I really feel like my existence will be irrevocably fixed!]

hmm.

"There's nothing to think too negatively, devil. Anyway, since you had a temporary name like that, wouldn't there be a faint trace of you left on the soul stone?"

[what? Have you said everything? Wow!]

Cheesy!

The sound of scorching objects as he passed by seemed to be getting stronger, but Seongjin calmly followed his movements with his eyes.

Now, my body is fine and my auror is extremely full. Even if the devil fails to control the flames again and a fire breaks out, we are fully prepared to prevent it this time!

[Lee Seong-jin, you bastard!]

But the Demon King, who had been wandering around for a while, suddenly came right in front of Seongjin and grumbled.

[Do you think I don't know what's inside you? I know you're in a really good mood today, but stop teasing me! Why are you more excited than usual?]

"... I?"

[Yes, you! Even if you didn't say it, you felt very relieved earlier,

right?]

"... ... ?"

As Seongjin blinked inexplicably, the demon king sighed and exhaled residual smoke.

[I am preserved in the soul stone anyway, so it is not a big problem if you summon me a little late. But why were you in such a hurry to bring me face to face with your father, and why did you say something you didn't even mean to say about me, calling me like your child?]

... uh?

[Tell me honestly. Are you sure you weren't sure how your father would accept your sudden presence of demonic energy? So, you probably wanted to check his reaction by putting me in front of him instead.]

"..."

[Now, am I wrong? If you have something to say, say it!]

Seongjin was at a loss for words and looked blankly at the Demon King. However, he shook his head resolutely at the conviction that soon crossed his mind.

I wanted to check, but that couldn't have been possible. My father has known of my existence since long ago. And he willingly called me 'son' and even said that he would be by my side forever.

... I don't really remember when it was, but I'm sure it is! So there's no way you could doubt a father like that, right?

"what..."

Still, feeling good about his reaction is a separate matter.

So, I personally gave my father a rabbit sleeping mask so he could get some rest after a long time. I couldn't shake the thought that he was giving me bottles and medicine.

Seongjin stared at the red, blinking flame for a moment, then raised the corners of his mouth and continued speaking.

"So let's stop talking nonsense like that and have a proper discussion about how to behave in front of other people starting tomorrow. huh? Red... .."

[Oh, don't do it!]

Seonghwang was alone in silence. This is thanks to the rabbit eyepatch that Owen gave me as a gift.

-You must have had a hard time in the meantime, but for today, don't think about anything and rest well. Don't worry at all about the Delcross dimension.

This is what his son said himself as he held out his rabbit eye patch.

'If the child said so, then it would be okay.'

I endured it for almost a month, cramming hundreds and thousands of dimensions into the gap. And it took a week to put it all together.

Having expended so much mental power that it would have been impossible for anyone else to spend a lifetime, he decided to obediently listen to his son just for today.

As my head, which was always noisy, quieted down, my senses became more sensitive and the voices in my memories began to sound like hallucinations.

-Why don't you try to preserve cause and effect! Why is this person who is ready to throw away everything at any time without any hesitation, and just go on like a person with no future?

The old man was yelling at him like that all the time.

But he had no idea. The reason Seonghwang can sometimes act as he pleases is not because he has no backs, but rather because he has a strong backs.

Look at how state affairs run smoothly despite being away for a long period of time. Aren't the things that will replace him like this gradually being prepared as time goes by?

Finally, Seonghwang, who remembered his son's confident face, felt a little relieved and slowly closed his eyes.

Squeak-

After a while, the door to the room where he is resting opens quietly. Katrina had even disarmed some of her weapons in case she disturbed the lord's rest.

"... .."

She looked at the resting Seonghwang with a surprised face for a moment. When she was still a young knight, she was never seen except when she was serving the young prince.

Since he spent an unusually long time in the prayer room, the Holy Emperor must have taken care of important matters that Katrina could not even imagine.

'Please forget your worries for now and rest comfortably... ..'

The loyal knight commander, who prayed in his heart, soon closed the door with a peaceful smile.

Not long after that, an agile assassin secretly visited his room.

"... .."

The assassin, who had been wandering around the palace for a long time while the Holy Emperor was in the prayer room, worried for no reason, returned with a slightly relieved expression upon seeing that the Holy Emperor was fine.

Of course, it was only later that he remembered his original purpose of assassinating the Holy Emperor and made a dumbfounded expression.

And although no one who visited this place would have noticed, there were small spirit terminals hovering around Seonghwang from earlier.

[...]]

[...]]

The little souls, each blinking in blue and pink, quickly landed on Seonghwang's bed as if they were going to lie down together.

[This is the first time that Seonghwang's father doesn't know that we've come to visit him. I feel a little strange?]

[Dad, Your Majesty needs to get some rest too. Honestly, I thought it was a bit too much this time.]

[Then what about the Delcross dimension?]

And the two remained silent for a moment and looked at the Holy Emperor's face.

In fact, their father was a very shrewd man, so it was like seeing him so calm and defenseless for the first time.

After a while, the souls who felt they had seen enough of him soared into the sky again.

[good. So today, let's guard the dimension instead of Father Seonghwang.]

[okay. If anything happens, let Mores know right away!]

[...] Should we just go see Mores now? Red also seems to have changed a bit compared to before.]

[No, let's stop. If I sneaked up to Mores' side like before, I'd be caught right away, right?]

And the two looked at each other for a moment, their souls blinking.

[But isn't it really strange? How did Mores, who does not have spiritual eyes, create such alternative spiritual eyes?]

[You used Red's eyes before. Couldn't it have completely hijacked Red's abilities?]

But how on earth is that possible? The two soul terminals circled around Seonghwang's bedside, each lost in thought. And the conclusion I came to after a while was simple.

[Well, there's nothing strange about it. Because Mores is Mores.]

[I see. Because Mores is none other than Mores.]

Seonghwang, who rarely had a good night's sleep, was greeted with a refreshing morning for the first time in a long time. That meant that he was fully prepared to deal with the strict cardinals.

And Cardinal Meyer, who was the first of them to be called, was dumbfounded after hearing unexpected words from the Holy Emperor.

"Fire fairy... "You mean?"

"okay. I'm planning to publish a fairy tale about mythical spirits. So, we need to revise some of the heresy court's arrest guidelines and release some banned books."

"... .."

Cardinal Meyer was momentarily speechless at such a bold request.

"Well, Your Majesty... .."

"As you know, the story of the First Emperor and the Moon Fairy Olivier is still very popular, isn't it? So much so that for a while every girl born was named Olivier. Perhaps the subjects will also greatly welcome the new fairy tale."

All of these things will ultimately have to be approved, at least formally, by the Holy Assembly. So, they will give their leader,

Cardinal Meyer, the word first.

-This is what I mean, so proceed without making a big fuss.

Fortunately, Cardinal Meyer was not a tight-lipped person like his junior, Benitus. Like Archbishop Wesker, he was not impatient and knew how to handle all the priests of the Holy Synod well.

In other words, it means that he is the best person to be successful, a person who maintains standards but has flexible thinking.

but-

"your majesty. A fairy... .."

Cardinal Meyer spoke with a shocked expression.

These were beings that only appeared in old myths that were passed down orally. It was a foolish belief at a time when the people did not know the light of the Lord and suffered in ignorance.

The Heresy Tribunal defined the very existence of these 'fairies' as 'evil'. Because everything that was not specified in the scriptures as 'the Lord's people' was a group of evil.

Stories that were passed down orally were prohibited from being told, and most of the few works that remained in writing were designated as banned books.

The reason the story of Olivier the Moon Fairy survives is because most of the anecdotes are full of praise for the achievements of the first emperor.

"I am not someone else, but a member of the Mayer family, so it is a bit presumptuous for me to say this... "Your Majesty, please reconsider one more time."

Cardinal Meyer's thoughts were firm.

We must not give even the slightest room for 'evil' to penetrate. You can never communicate with 'evil'.

If we lower our guard little by little to suit the circumstances, doctrines will soon deteriorate and vices will turn into virtues.

Suspicion and immorality toward the Lord will be wrapped up in a fancy way under the name of reason and rationality. And it won't be long before the subjects of the entire continent will fall into deep despair as they fall for the devil's trick.

I'm sure that's the case -

"... Cardinal Meyer,"

"Yes, Your Majesty."

"How long do you think the Lord, who has lost not only his personality but also his name, will continue to support his subjects?"

Coincidentally, the person who greatly shook the cardinal's faith was the representative of God, who was believed to be closer to God than anyone else in the world.

399

399. Pian (4)

- Why do you not command us to call on your name?
- For only then can my staff rest in your hand.
- Why do you close your eyes and refuse to see us?
- That is why I do not predict in advance the direction of the staff.
- Why do you say that you will not judge whether the outcome is good or evil?
- So your causality belongs entirely to you.
- Then, how on earth can we pursue to fulfill your will?
- Establish a church in the most pious place in your heart and ask yourself this-
- Is that important to you?
- Is that correct in your judgment?
- Are you going to bear the consequences?
- If you say you have no hesitation about this, then I will gladly minister to you, and there will be nothing lacking in accomplishing the work of salvation.

According to the scriptures, the Lord said that he would no longer judge good and evil. He did not even reveal his name to the apostle who received the revelation.

Until now, Cardinal Meyer had believed that it was purely because God allowed humans free will.

Until just now, I heard words that seemed like a lightning strike from God's representative.

"How long do you think the Lord, who has lost not only his personality but also his name, will continue to support his subjects?"

"... ..!"

Cardinal Meyer's eyes shake slightly in shock.

However, it was not because the Holy Emperor himself said something denying God. It was just a shock because something he had vaguely feared was finally confirmed to be true.

"... .."

Seonghwang, who was quietly watching the cardinal, frowned so subtly that he could not notice. This is because it took more cause and effect than expected to even say this one word.

Perhaps, if the [Council of Six] had not robbed me of a little bit of cause and effect, I would not have been able to say even a part of the truth.

'It is a choice that cannot be helped.'

Among the remaining high-ranking clergy, Cardinal Meyer was the only one who vaguely knew about the [original agreement].

Considering what has happened so far and everything that will happen in the future, he, the head of the clergy, must firmly hold the center of the Holy Assembly from now on.

"... your majesty."

After a while, Cardinal Meyer, who had finally calmed down his shock, opened his mouth in a trembling voice.

"Your Majesty, perhaps you know something about the progenitor of the May family...?""

But Seonghwang no longer listened and cut him off. There was no more cause and effect left to devote to the cardinal.

"There is no need for a long explanation. "After you and your sister, you must have realized that there will no longer be anyone with divine power born into the Mayer family."

"... ..!"

The suspicion in the cardinal's eyes soon turns into confidence.

For centuries, the Meyer family was known as a prestigious family that produced many high-ranking clergy.

However, this was not because they were especially loved by the main god; it was simply that the evidence of the [promise] made by the progenitor of the family was passed down through their blood.

'okay. I heard that the founder called it [the pact of the beginning].'

The truth about the progenitor that Cardinal Meyer heard from the previous family head and also passed on to the current family head several years ago.

'but... ..'

As Seonghwang pointed out, it is true that recently, for some reason, no one, including the current head of the family, was born with divine power.

After hearing the truth, Mayer already vaguely guessed the cause. This means that the time when the [original agreement] that their progenitor spoke of will end is slowly approaching.

"If all the words of the progenitor are true... .."

After the shock had subsided, there was now a slight sense of fear in his eyes. It was as if the overwhelming reality that was difficult for humans to handle had suddenly taken on a tangible form right in front of his nose.

"In that case, Your Majesty. What should we do now... .."

"Instead of just reciting prayers lazily like now, we should have a humble attitude of seeking the truth. "All instructions I have given are consistent with this."

"... yes?"

"Hasn't the Lord also spoken? "As long as you build the church in your heart and do not neglect to ask yourself questions, all these efforts will come together and one day achieve a great work of salvation."

... But your majesty. At least, I don't have the slightest idea that spreading the story of the fire spirit to the world is the truth that the seeker should pursue.

Cardinal Meyer immediately thought of something like that. Fortunately, despite the successive shocks, I still had the self-control not to ask such questions to Seonghwang out loud.

"Don't forget this, Cardinal."

The Holy Emperor spoke calmly to the Cardinal, who was clearly confused.

"The grace that protects the imperial capital will remain intact in the future, and the devil species will never extend its power to this place. "It means that if you have a more flexible attitude than now, you will never be easily fooled by the devil's tongue."

"... .. ?!"

Then Cardinal Meyer's eyes widen. This is because my thoughts suddenly wandered to someone who was majestically scattering demonic energy within the imperial capital.

"But, Your Majesty. day after tomorrow... .. ?"

"... .."

The cool, sinking atmosphere.

Cardinal Meyer quickly bowed his head before the Holy Emperor and shouted.

"Well, I made a big mistake. Please forget it!"

The existence of the fire spirit was accepted more easily than expected. Why did Cardinal Meyer, the head of the Holy Congregation, maintain such a strong stance?

Additionally, it is said that Cadmus, who is no longer here, had a great influence.

-Lee Seong-jin. I feel a strange power somewhere inside me? It feels somewhat unclear to be considered a divine power, but it is too sacred to be considered a magical power.

As the Demon King commented when he first appeared, the energy emitted by the First Emperor seemed to have some resemblance to demonic energy.

Is the feeling similar to a sacred barrier surrounded by layers of holy emperors, and the demon king's magic energy faintly felt between them?

'The fact that the Demon King's natural magic power is already extremely weak may have played a role in reducing the priests' resistance.'

Of course, Seongjin had no intention of frustrating the Demon King by pointing out that point. He was already very discouraged about his new identity.

[fiery... government ordinance? This great Demon Lord is such a trivial person...]

When the shocked Demon King stumbled and landed on the plate, a squiggly wave pattern appeared in the center of the plate due to the high heat.

Hmm, as expected, glass plates crumble easily in flames. I'll either use a metal plate with a high melting point like before, or I'll look into porcelain plates from Brittany.

Anyway, once the existence of the spirit was accepted into the Holy Assembly, everything was smooth sailing from then on.

Seongjin was safely recognized as an 'apostle' of the Lord. At the same time, the change in his auror was also reduced to 'a blessing given by the spirit of fire to undergo the trial of the main god, blah blah blah.'

Given the situation, the overall atmosphere in the imperial palace towards the Demon King had to be soft.

"Our fire spirit is so cute and beautiful! "Mores, somehow, looks a lot like your Auror."

Amelia let out a pure exclamation when she saw the brilliantly shining flame on the glass plate. No matter what ugly rumors were going around behind the scenes, as long as it looked similar to Seongjin's auror, it was always a good thing.

"Now you're going to openly play with fire? Mores, you man, from now on I will be watching you with my eyes straight open. "Did you understand?"

Owen looked a little disapproving and started nagging Seongjin about the dangers of fire. He was usually a foolish and pushy guy, but sometimes he was strict in strange places.

"An ancient spirit recognized by the Holy Assembly... .."

And Sir Masaine.

He looked more relaxed than before. Although he didn't show it outwardly, it was hard to tell how stressed he was as the frequency of embroidery had decreased significantly.

"okay. "It was something like that."

To Lord Masaine, whether it was a suspicious fire spirit that suddenly appeared or something else, the mere fact that the prince he served was free from issues related to demons seemed to be a blessing in disguise.

Of course, there was not completely no noise around.

"what? government ordinance? What kind of far-fetched fabrication is that? Masain. No matter how you look at it, it's magical... .."

"Would you please just get out of here? Otherwise, just shut up that nonsense talker. "Francis."

"... Masain? "Did you have this kind of personality?"

However, there was someone else in the imperial palace who reacted more strongly than anyone else.

"I can't believe it! Finally, I can finally see your true self with these two eyes!"

Director Bruno was deeply moved as he sat on a pretty plate and welcomed the fluttering fireworks. Of course, there were still tactless remarks that poured fuel on the burning devil.

"Isn't it cuter than you can imagine? Of course, the voice I listened to with resignation was nothing short of cute."

[...] what?]

A statement that can never be passed off as a compliment. The Demon King was extremely indignant and let out fireworks.

[Are you ignoring this great Demon King now? Don't call me by such an unflattering name, you idiot! Because of you, Seongjin Lee is getting used to that name!]

Then, Director Bruno rolled his eyes with a very resentful expression.

"... But, doesn't Red always call me stupid?"

[That's because you always choose stupid things!]

"If you say so, isn't Red always and unchangingly red...?""

[what?! You bastard! Are you really going to try it with me?]

Grrrr!

The Demon King quickly rushes towards the leader and fires fiercely high-temperature flames at him.

However, Director Bruno leisurely created a sword screen using the recently strengthened Auror layer.

Badong, badong, badong!

The Demon King, blocked by the sword curtain, flutters flames and struggles. However, the leader, who was a former Dekaron Knight, had no talent against Red, who was only an E-rank summoner.

Seongjin looked at that cute figure with strange sadness.

'It's cute, but a little... 'Is it pitiful?'

Now, I think I have a worthy title of 'Ancient Spirit', and it would be nice to have enough power to show my dignity to others.

'But that guy is a soul. 'What should I do to increase my soul's strength?'

I thought that perhaps the Pangea Chronicle might contain a clue. This is where the rank of the summons is measured, and there is also a summons level up system.

Since I've always wanted to enter the game together, it would be nice to log in there with the Demon King someday.

[Lee Seong-ji!]

While I was lost in thought, the demon king suddenly looked back at Seongjin with a tearful look on his face.

[This idiot keeps climbing up! You should also say something to that guy!]

"yea, I got it. "Come here for a moment."

Seongjin held out a plate of food he had prepared in advance and gestured to him.

If I had to pick one good thing after the Demon King left the flame crystal in my head, it would definitely be this.

You no longer have to share your taste buds with him and force him to eat bear meat.

[...] and! This?]

"It's fresh bear meat brought in from the Sigismund Territory. "It's well-cooked, so give it a try."

[really? Is it really okay for me to eat this alone?]

I nodded, and soon a strong flame erupted over the meat.

Grumble!

After gaining substance, the demon lord was able to burn food and make incense like this. There are no longer any restrictions on the food you consume.

[Bear meat~ Bear meat~ Bear meat with a strong aroma and a fiery taste!]

Soon, along with the acrid smell of burning protein, an exciting tune rings out in the room. It was the devil's song that I thought I would never hear again not long ago.

"hmm..."

Seongjin relaxedly leaned back in his chair, listening to the monotonous melody.

A peaceful moment that I enjoyed for the first time in a long time. Perhaps it was time to return to Jinju Palace.

400

Less than a few days later, Seongjin was finally able to resume his long-awaited morning practice.

When the 3rd Prince, who had been sick for a long time, appeared in good health for the first time in a long time, the resident knights in the training hall ran towards him with joy.

"Lowering!"

"Are you back at Jinju Palace? "Are you feeling okay now?"

"Thank you, Lord! "I've been waiting so long for your return!"

Seongjin felt a little shaken by their enthusiastic welcome.

'what? "Why is everyone looking at me like I'm some kind of savior?"

It was probably because Manager Bruno was becoming more and more enthusiastic about running the resident knights, but there was no way Seongjin would have known this fact.

"Go and practice. Why are you making such a fuss as if it's been a while since you've seen each other? "Didn't you come to the main palace every time you were escorted?"

"That's just a visit to the hospital, it's not official work, right?"

And soon, the resident knights were distracted by the small flame circling around Seongjin.

"that... No, she's the ancient fairy we've been hearing about!"

"It's mysterious. "Fireworks are really flying through the air!"

"Wow! "The little thing is somehow cute!"

As the knights throw words at each other, the training hall quickly becomes noisy.

"Are you really saying that he is the same as Olivier the Moon Fairy?"

"Until now, I thought fairies were just something from fairy tales!"

Director Bruno, who could not see this, stepped forward, stroking his sharp mustache.

"Quiet! Everyone, listen carefully! This is Red, the fire fairy and the faithful servant of Prince Mores! "I hope that from now on, whenever I meet this person, I will always greet him with courtesy and show him the proper courtesy of a knight commander!"

"Oh oh... ... !"

The resident knights exchanged sparkling glances.

'It's Red!'

'Isn't the name really cute?'

Grumble!

As if to confirm those words, red flames began to circle at high speed above Director Bruno's head.

Of course, that was just an illusion on the part of the resident knights, and in reality, the 'Fire Fairy' was mad as hell towards the leader.

[shut up! Shut your mouth! What kind of bullshit are you talking about now? I've said it over and over again, but my name is not Red!]

"Hmm."

[Lee Seong-jin! Lee Seong-ji! Stop this idiot!]

However, in the eyes of the other knights who could not hear the devil's thoughts, it just seemed like a lively fairy playing around.

"I think that little fairy likes Captain Bruno very much."

"I'm so jealous that you've already become friends with a fairy!"

"Hmm! "It's no big deal."

[no! No! Hey, you idiot! Why are you acting smug about what they say? Tell everyone no right now! hurry!]

Crack! Crack! Crack!

The fast-moving flames hit the leader's auror screen here and there, causing sparks to fly.

Then, Max, who was playing with a wooden plate in the distance, pricked up his ears and quickly rushed towards the flame.

Wong wong!

-what? What is that? Is it a new toy?

A large wolf dog begins to jump towards the flame. It was a time of unprecedented suffering for the Demon King.

[Why are you like this again? go away! You stupid mixed breed dog!]

As the 'Fire Fairy' soared into the sky in frustration, the resident knights started to stop the frightened and excited wolf dog.

"Bah, Red! Calm down and come back here!"

"Max, you guy! "Red shouldn't threaten you like that!"

"Red! "Red!"

[Oh, everyone shut up! Because I'm not red!]

Leaving the chaotic training ground behind, Seongjin pulled out the sword from his waist for the first time in a long time.

Since ancient times, being an unmanned person must be able to maintain concentration in any situation. No problem! It's definitely not because I get a headache looking at those guys.

"Whoa... .."

I take a long breath and raise my sword.

In the meantime, the familiar handle of a nutcracker was wrapped around my hand, where all the calluses had disappeared.

'at las!'

My heart is pounding.

Tinnitus, throbbing in my ears, constantly knocks and wakes up my mind that is trying to quietly retreat inside. It was because her heart, fluttering with sheer joy, did not calm down easily.

Seongjin, who took a moment to catch his breath, eventually gave up his complete composure and decided to simply surrender himself to the joy.

Imperial Knights' standard sword technique, type 1.

Three-pronged downward slash.

Hwiik-

Soft morning sunlight pours down on the blade of the sword, which stands straight ahead and falls.

The beam of light that flowed diagonally, not daring to interfere with the sword path, eventually created a long shadow on the floor of the training hall.

'... 'Isn't it strange?'

Whilick- Whilick-

Seongjin thought blankly as his body moved as if it was flowing as it remembered.

It was a strange feeling somewhere. If the movement is completely the same as before, if you try to cut it for a long time, the air will automatically move and empty the sword path.

When I used a defensive stance by crossing my swords, the low-density atmosphere hit the blades, creating an unexpectedly cheerful bounce.

The air pushed the blade in rhythm with every quick thrust and retrieval of the sword, and danced as a small whirlwind with every light hand gesture.

It seemed as if the whole world was singing along with Seongjin's sword.

"... .."

The once noisy gymnasium was suddenly engulfed in silence. Everyone was holding their breath and watching the scene.

The prince's sword son-in-law, whom I haven't seen in a long time.

It had always been admirable in the past, but the way the prince was showing now was clearly different from his previous movements. Anyone with a certain degree of intelligence would never be unaware of that fact.

"... "That's amazing."

"Are all geniuses like that? "You took a long break from training, but your skills have improved even more than before."

"Shh! quietly!"

Seongjin, who had completely tied up his auras and was focusing solely on his sword, finally stopped moving after performing the standard sword techniques of the Imperial Knights twice in succession.

"after... .."

As he lowered his sword and exhaled softly, Masain, who had been watching the scene from beginning to end, spoke quietly. This is because he knew that the prince's concentration was over.

"... Even from his hospital bed, he was just thinking about training. "It is not the sword of someone who just sits still."

Seongjin let out a small laugh.

"haha. Did you get caught? In fact, while I was at the main palace, I repeated the imperial sword techniques in my head whenever I had time."

I was dying to swing a sword. If I hadn't done that, I might have rushed out to the training ground regardless of whether I had a high fever or not.

"how is it? Don't you think training just in your head can be quite effective? "Somehow, my body seems to move much more lightly than before."

Seongjin shrugs his shoulders and takes his stance again. Then Masain asked again as if he was puzzled.

"But you. Your auror layer has fully recovered, so why do you keep tying up your aurors and training with your sword? Are you planning on skipping meditation today?"

"hmm? Rather... .."

How should I say this?

"Actually, Lord Masaine. "I tried meditating as soon as I got back to Jinju Palace last night."

Like sword training, Auror training is also one of Seongjin's favorite things. But I couldn't bear to meditate in the main palace.

Even though the conclusion was 'what about the blessing of the ancient spirit', wouldn't it be very uncomfortable to unleash aurors in the main palace crowded with paladins?

So, I tied down the Aurors as much as possible and was patient, and as soon as I returned to the Pearl Palace, I became excited and started meditating.

"I did... .."

"I thought so?"

"As you know very well, my Auror has blessed me... Because of that, it turned into a very hot energy, right?"

Of course, no matter how hot the fire of Gehenna was, Seongjin's body, which controlled it, was fine. But when it came to things around us, the story was a little different.

"As soon as the aurors started circulating actively, the pajamas I was wearing burned up."

"... yes?"

Masain's expression quickly became serious.

"Are the Aurors so hot that they burn your clothes? "Are you really feeling okay?"

"Yeah, don't worry. "This fire will never harm me."

But 'Haha, I'm excited! From now on, all attacks will receive +3 additional fire damage! The same initial plan had no choice but to be completely reorganized.

If I don't control this heat somehow, every time I use my aura, everything, including the clothes I'm wearing, will become kindling.

Of course, it is still possible to control the temperature to some extent if Seongjin strongly wishes. It just takes a little more time to handle it as naturally as breathing.

"Hey? They say it's a fairy's blessing, and that's amazing. "Is the auror's temperature that high?"

Sir Haven, who had been listening with his ears pricked up next to him, poked his head in with a curious expression.

"That seems like it would be great in the winter, but there really is no answer in the summer, right? "I feel like sweat is already streaming down my back as I think about escorting my Majesty by his side again next year."

'... summer.'

Seongjin frowned for a moment as he remembered the hot summer with the fire of Gehenna. But he soon decided to be optimistic.

Well, wouldn't we be able to completely control the temperature by then? First of all, winter will come first.

Seongjin, who had spent most of the day training for the first time in a long time, finished dinner and had a restful rest for the first time in a long time.

'If only the aurors were fine, I would have meditated to my heart's content.'

Of course, that didn't mean I had any intention of wasting my time playing around meaninglessly. There was still something I had been waiting to find out when I came to Jinju Palace.

Sweet.

When I picked up the Amulet of Nebraska with a bit of mixed feelings, the faint text of the example flashed before my eyes. When I summoned the Demon King before, I was in a hurry and skipped it over.

?List of spirits that can be summoned as a summoner 1/3?

?One. ☐☐☐☐ (inactive)?

?2. ☐☐☐ ☐☐ (inactive)?

?3, Belinda Miles (active)?

I knew it.

In place of Haze and Red, who disappeared after being placed in the soul stone, a new friend is sitting proudly on the summon list. It was truly absurd.

'What is that guy again? 'Why are you stuck here all of a sudden?'

Belinda? Could this be the Belinda that Seongjin knows?

-okay. I thought that I could one day approach God beyond the pain. I had no doubt that there would be a perfect other side.

A remnant of the Penitent Church who was captured by Seongjin and his party as soon as they escaped the Heresy Tribunal, and was eventually beheaded by Logan's informant No. 19.

-Finally, I come to the Lord's side... ... !

Nevertheless, as the last moment approached, a fanatic of the Dark Church whose eyes were strangely flashing with joy.

"Okay..."

As Seongjin hesitated for a while while holding the amulet, the demon king, who had been resting in his favorite bowl for a long time, flickered a flame.

[Whether or not you know him or not, wouldn't it be clear if you call him?]

"hmm. That's it, but..."

If you think about it, the reason why Seongjin was struggling wasn't much. When I think back to how the first fanatic I summoned with the soul stone appeared, I just thought that I never wanted to face another fanatic.

In addition, Belinda suffered all kinds of torture until the moment of her death, and in the end, her head was cut off. Just imagining what kind of form that vengeful spirit would turn into and appear before her eyes made her shiver.

[and... Are you really afraid of that? The name and color are demons of fire...]

"Oh, no! So shut up! 'How many times do I have to tell you that it's just a little annoying?'"

Seongjin cut off the devil's words. But no matter how hard I tried, I couldn't think of any other solution other than directly summoning the soul.

Finally, with a small sigh, Seongjin picked up the empty soul stone and selected the window that appeared in front of him.

?3. Belinda Miles (active)?

?Choose your soul??

?Accept / Reject?

Wow-

As soon as you select it, the soul stone is colored with a dark light. The soul of the summoned evil spirit dwells there.

After a while, only a small, ultramarine blue soul stone remained on Seongjin's palm.

?Belinda's soul stone?

Oh, I really hate it.

?Summon / Release?

Let's choose to summon with unwillingness -

Whoa!

As expected, a powerful spiritual pressure instantly swept over the entire room. If she was stronger than Hayes, she would have been stronger, and she never lacks momentum!

[O Lord! Did you call me!]

However, the scene that unfolded before Seongjin was a little different from what he expected.

"... Belinda?"

When I ask in doubt, the summoned spirit nods its head vigorously and answers.

[Yes, it is. Master. This is your faithful servant, Belinda.]

"... .."

Seongjin couldn't help but feel embarrassed.

Instead of an unpleasant evil spirit shedding black tears, there stood a strong warrior wearing armor and equipped with a huge club.

401

401. Pian (6)

The appearance of the summoned soul was quite different from the fanatical parish priest that Seongjin remembered.

Hard armor covering thick muscles.

A vicious club that looks like it can crush the spine of any vertebrate with a single blow.

If it weren't for the evidence of long penance that covered her skin, Seongjin would probably never have recognized her.

"... Belinda?"

When I asked in doubt, an extremely polite answer came back from the soul.

[Yes, it is. Master. This is your faithful servant, Belinda.]

okay. Looking at her softly turned eyes and the sword image of her neck left by No. 19, I think it's her...

'How on earth did this happen?'

Why has this Penitent Church guy suddenly become my summon?
Why are you calling me 'master' without any hesitation?

[Hmm.]

At that time, the Demon Lord, who was watching the new summon with interest, opened his mouth as if he guessed something.

[I guess he came to his senses only after he died. Now that I have become a pure soul, I have gained enlightenment that had been blocked by the limitations of my body.]

[Yes, that is correct.]

Belinda's spirit nodded.

[Owner. The soul that has faced death opens its spiritual eyes, which had been distant, and is able to catch a glimpse of the truth of the world. In this way, I came to know the true nature of the 'other world' that I had longed for during my lifetime.]

The reality of the other side?

[iced coffee! How can I possibly explain in words the fear and despair I felt in the face of such an unbearable truth! If you weren't the owner... ..!]

Ugh-

As Belinda becomes agitated, her powerful energy that fills the room begins to stir.

[If it weren't for your help! I would have crumbled to dust without even realizing my own foolishness!]

"... .."

Seongjin quietly looked down at the soul of the fanatic kneeling in front of him.

She is a person with a strong spirit who has never been lazy in tempering herself during her lifetime.

If the appearance of the soul clearly shows the essence of the human being, then the excellent armor she is wearing can be said to be an indicator of the status and solidity of the soul.

[O Lord! Because of you, I have finally achieved true freedom of soul. So how could I not take it seriously!]

"... "Stop talking nonsense."

Sensing that the story would be long, Seongjin sat down comfortably on the bed and ordered.

"Please explain in detail from the beginning. "How did you become my summon?"

[Yes, master. You are prepared. I am willing to tell you everything.]

After answering that, Belinda raised her head and looked up at Seongjin with sparkling eyes.

[To do that, I must first explain what happened after my death.]

That day, Belinda died by being decapitated by No. 19.

'iced coffee... ... !'

As soon as she left her body, the emotion she felt was intense joy.

Belinda walked through the pitch darkness filled with joy. Because she knew that under her strong guidance, her soul was moving straight toward [repentance].

'Bethelah! At the end of a long period of penance, my soul finally returned to the Lord... ... !'

Although it is now ostracized as a 'dark sect', the essence of the underground sect is also worship and praise for the main god.

Unlike the Orthodox Church, they simply uphold the incarnation of the Lord who came down to earth. Four incarnations called [Payment], [Sowing], [Repentance], and [Rest] respectively.

Among them, Belinda was deeply influenced by [Penitence], who endlessly undergoes penance along with humans. So ever since she grew up, she has never stopped whipping herself every day.

'Bethelah... ... ?!'

However, [Confession], the joy of arriving at the Lord's side was short-lived. Belinda could not help but be astonished at the truth revealed by her spiritual eyes that had just become brighter.

Because the place she arrived was not the place where the main god was, or even the world of the other world.

'... hmm?'

Empty black outer space.

Among them, there was a gigantic being that was unable to overcome its own density and was collapsing, pulling in everything around it.

'... 'Penitence?'

For a moment, Belinda doubted her own spiritual eyesight.

Is that really the 'incarnation of the Lord' that he longed for?

No, it was questionable whether he was even a proper personality, let alone a god. To Belinda, it just looked like a large wheel with countless saw blades.

A huge spiny wheel so large that it cannot be seen at a glance greets her, wrapped in echoing screams and blood pouring like a waterfall.

-Repent.

Perhaps it is another penance or ordeal given by the Lord? Belinda thought so for a moment.

Until I saw the sight of a soul being sucked in from somewhere, caught in that thorny wheel and instantly torn apart.

[Kwaaah... ... !]

The soul, unable to utter even its last words properly, was torn apart by the wheels in the blink of an eye and disappeared without a trace.

'... ... !'

Belinda suddenly became anxious and tried to look at the incomprehensible being. This can't be happening, this can't be happening!

'... Penitence! 'My Lord!'

But it was no use. The spiny wheel, which I thought was a single shape at first, begins to lose its proper shape and boundaries the more I focus my attention on it.

It was one, but it was not one.

The giant thorn wheel was a collection of many other bloody wheels, and the bloody wheel was filled with even more wheels of pain, spinning as they pleased.

It would be much easier to capture a grain of sand on the beach at a glance.

At that moment, the spiny wheels, as numerous as the stars in the universe, blinked their colorful eyes and stared at Belinda as if crushing her.

-Repent.

ah! Who would dare call that a 'bian'? That visible thing that exists solely for the sake of 'pain'.

The sum total of all the tortures and pains that have appeared countless times in history, and those that have never appeared before, that deeply quench the soul.

'no! Quenching?'

That sounds like a no-brainer! There was no way a soul could withstand the reality of that even for a moment.

It was the frustration of all those who committed suicide, and the intense regret that made them willing to burn down cities, countries, and even civilization itself.

It was a sorrow that caused stars to fall to the ground and even galaxies to lose their light. It was such a tragedy that he could not allow himself the opportunity to repent even after his death.

It was a scream of remorse uttered by the entire universe, something that cannot be expressed with human senses.

'ah... ... '

Tens of thousands of voices that can never be rejected, pounding mercilessly into a soul trembling from shock.

-Repent. Repent.

'Ahhhh... ... '

-Know your original sin that you commit by existing. Don't even dare try to repent, just shed bloody tears with your whole body! Embrace all your sins with your soul and quietly pass away from the world as if they never happened!

Belinda was overcome with extreme fear and frustration. To the point where I want to end all of this right away, even if it means killing my soul over and over again.

okay. Maybe it will happen as soon as you get a little closer to it. Her soul cannot bear its existence, and in an instant it will become nothing and scatter in all directions.

Belinda's soul let out a desperate scream.

[...] no! That, that is not my god!]

Ah, yes, that merciless and hateful saw blade that mercifully attracts and deceives humans, is ecstatic and beautiful, and even if it is a great god or penitence itself, it will knock tens of thousands of times and praise it as precious blood, and in the end it will leave no trace. It is a penance that will make it disappear, but it is a blessing that allows all things to be completely inhabited. It is the only escape allowed for the soul, and there is no longer a place for the soul...

It was right then.

Whirling-

Suddenly there was a black curtain blocking Belinda's vision.

[Look away now, sister!]

[Ahhh... .. !]

[You must not look directly at that. The feelings her sister feels now are not hers alone, so she must not be deceived any longer. First, let's close our eyes completely.]

The person covering her eyes was a skinny man wearing black robes.

Still, when Belinda was shaking from shock and unable to control her soul, he eventually led her soul himself and began to fly away quickly somewhere.

-Repent!

The voice that resonated horribly in my head slowly fades away.

[...] All, you?]

Belinda, who was slowly coming to her senses, reflexively wondered how far she had run away from 'it'.

Then the man turned his head and gently wrinkled his dark eyes.

[I am the brother of the Last Rest and the third apostle appointed by the Master of all souls.]

[Of rest... ..]

[exactly. I have come to help you according to the will of the owner of my soul, and now your soul is saved.]

Belinda was led into another mysterious world by a man she had never seen before.

In a world of complete death where everything is pale and nothing is alive.

But to Belinda's soul, which had been strained to its limits, even that eerie silence felt like the tranquility of heaven.

Belinda's soul suffered a great blow upon encountering the reality of [Repentance], but fortunately, it did not take long for her to recover.

Ironically, the training and abuse of her body thus far - especially the suffering suffered by the crazy Inquisitor of the Heresy Tribunal until just before her death - seemed to have strengthened her spirit even more.

Belinda, who fell into a short sleep, soon regained consciousness and began to slowly look around this new world.

'It was Brother Rest who saved me from [repentance]. Then, can I say that my staying here is also a will for [rest]?'

At first, she thought that 'another incarnation of the Lord' would command her to do something in return for her salvation. But no matter how long Belinda waited, she showed no sign of being called from [rest].

Eventually, Belinda got tired of waiting and decided to enjoy this unexpected peace.

This is a world of complete death.

A rigid space where gray corpses in deep sleep are endlessly tangled beneath one's feet, and heavenly bodies that have lost their light are frozen like reliefs in the sky.

As time passed, my curiosity about this world grew, but in this place where everything seemed to be dead and asleep, there were almost no souls that could interact with Belinda.

Moreover, the black spirit who brought her here was extremely quiet.

[Don't be in a hurry to tell me too much, sister. For now, it will be enough to simply lay down my soul here according to His will and rest in peace.]

Fortunately, there was a kind senior who would occasionally talk to Belinda. She had been dead for not very long, and it was said that she was the spirit of her woman, who often awoke from her sleep.

[Come over here. Let us help you meet the true owner of this place you are curious about.]

At the woman's suggestion, Belinda flew after her as if bewitched.

They quickly passed over the tombstones that were as dense as the grass in a field, the charnel urns with cracks here and there, and countless corpses lying arbitrarily on the ground.

It was a scene as if a huge telephone had struck all at once, but strangely enough, the emotions on the faces of the lying souls were extremely peaceful...

[stop! Be careful not to keep your eyes on one place for a long time. As soon as you come into contact with the essence of rest, you will immediately crave endless rest without even realizing it.]

A slender woman flies ahead and gives warning.

[You seem like a soul of quite high rank. Therefore, in order to heal the wounds of life, you will need more rest, and it is easy to fall into the temptation to sleep.]

So, in order not to fall asleep too deeply, the woman emphasized again that you should move around and look around, but not pay attention to one place for too long.

[Of course, you shouldn't wander around randomly and disturb the sleep of other souls.]

Belinda looked at the figure of the woman ahead, and suddenly noticed that her right arm was missing and her shoulder was tattered.

'Who is he? She doesn't look like a warrior at first glance, but what on earth was she doing when she was alive? That arm wasn't cut by a blade; it looked as if it had been bitten mercilessly by a wild animal.'

Then the woman ahead turns her head and looks down at where her arm once would have been.

A space where the thoughts of the soul are conveyed as thoughts. Of course, Belinda's questions also had to be heard by her ears.

[...] I can't say it wasn't a rough life, but at least it wasn't the disaster you think. It's just that my child ate my soul whenever I could.]

Eat it... what?

Belinda's doubts deepened, but the woman's eyes looking back at her were extremely dry.

[But it may also be thanks to that child that I was saved. Instead of being dragged along by other demon lords, I was enveloped in a bright light and flew straight here. Among those who died together, I am the only soul saved.]

The woman calmly told Belinda about herself.

He was kidnapped by bandits at a young age and was exploited his whole life. And in the end, she was brutally killed by the child she was raising.

[that... Wasn't that such a sad life!]

At Belinda's lament, the woman slowly shook her head.

[It's a trivial story. After I actually faced death, I realized that the pain I experienced during my lifetime was nothing compared to other people's. Among the souls sleeping here, there are some who have endured lives of suffering that ordinary humans cannot even imagine.]

While we were talking like that, the surrounding scenery was slowly changing.

The frequency of lying souls became increasingly rare, and the rough ground and fragments of broken weapons began to be noticed occasionally.

'This place... Was it someone's battlefield?'

Belinda intuitively realized that fact.

How long did he fly after the woman like that?

[Now, here it is.]

Belinda finally arrived at her destination and opened her mouth in a daze at the majestic sight that immediately overwhelmed her.

'... ... !'

A huge black cavity with no end in sight. There was a place where tens of thousands, no, hundreds of thousands of demon corpses were entangled and towering like a mountain.

[They...]

[These are the descendants of the former 'Sabbath' who opposed their master.]

The weapons embedded in the hearts of the demons had not yet rusted, and the blood flowing from the mountain of corpses had not yet hardened.

Their stiff, distorted expressions, unable to be liberated even after death, are vivid evidence of the struggle they fought with all their might against the disaster that hit them like a tsunami.

[Isn't it amazing? I heard that so many demons rushed towards 'him' at once. They say it is a sign of an unprecedentedly fierce generational change.]

I was thrilled.

He established his authority by taking the lives of so many demons and piled up their corpses to claim his own position. How could he not call the black throne at the top the king's throne?

[iced coffee... ... !]

And Belinda, facing the figure sitting quietly at the top, was unable to control her overflowing emotions and was shedding tears before she knew it.

ah! There was the truth she had been longing for all her life, the eternal escape.

[okay! This person is the true owner of my soul... ... !]

Patter!

As Belinda said that, black tears suddenly began to flow from her eyes.

402

402. Pian (7)

Patter!

Belinda's soul suddenly begins to drip black bloody tears.

Thanks to this, Seongjin, who had been listening closely to her story, had to let out a silent scream as a horror attack suddenly struck his field of vision.

'Holy shit! For some reason he looked fine. After all, that guy is an evil spirit!'

Quick!

Fortunately, she quickly got over her emotions. Belinda continued in a wet voice, sniffing her black nose in a soulless way.

[And so I came to receive you there, my lord. Thanks to you, my empty soul has become extremely filled with joy and joy.]

"Well, Belinda. I'm sorry about the story..."

Seongjin couldn't help but point it out.

She is a member of the Penitent Church who claims to find refuge by the side of [Confession] through penance.

Even if Seongjin is indeed the [Archbishop of Rest] that Hayes says, isn't he from a completely different lineage from Belindane? But is it okay to change the object of worship like this?

But at that question, Belinda shook her head firmly.

[I have become a pure soul, and therefore I will never tell lies to my master. I could not have known that it was you who I must serve. O prepared one, master of the soul!]

Belinda's logic was simple.

The reason she served [Repentance] during her lifetime was because she thought he was the main god who appeared in the world under a different name.

There was a reason why all brothers of the Dark Church prided themselves as servants of the true Lord.

However, the one prepared for the main deity is now with [Rest], another manifestation of the main deity.

In other words, rather than serving [rest] itself, she is serving the Lord who will realize salvation through [the prepared one].

Seongjin, whose expression hardened at the explanation, was silent for a moment and then asked again.

"... Are you trying to avoid false salvation and serve another 'false'?"

[O Lord! Of course, the 'repentance' I believed in was false salvation. However, the will I felt from your 'left' was absolutely not a lie, as much as the promise of 'rest' that would last forever.]

"... .."

[I dare say that the place where you are is the only 'other side' that exists in the world.]

The large woman, with her body flat, raised her strangely shiny eyes and looked at Seongjin passionately.

[So, I will serve you with all my heart. If you want, I can show you the proof right now.]

"evidence?"

[yes. I will turn my back on the beliefs I was born with and only follow my master. I will help the owner find the missing Giacomo

Milo. I will tell you everything I know about the Penitent Church, as much as you will allow!]

... Oh my.

What passed through Seongjin's mind at that moment was not joy, but subtle discomfort.

Somewhere, as the workload increases, I think I can hear my father and Sir Martha sighing?

Premonitions are rarely wrong.

just as expected. Masain, who heard about Seongjin's plan, put his hand on his upper abdomen and sighed heavily.

"Arrest of Milo supremacist... "Do you mean that?"

"okay."

After Giacomo Milo went missing, the trial was held without a defendant and he was eventually sentenced to death. These are natural words from a devil worshiper who summoned a demonic beast and committed large-scale murder.

The wealth at the top was already reverted to the empire, and a small bounty was placed on Giacomo's head. This meant that from now on, anyone who found him could legally kill him.

"Lowering. Giacomo Milo has probably already hidden himself deep within the Dark Church."

"okay. "I guess so."

"Then you know how difficult it will be to find him."

Masain continued speaking with a heavy face.

"Over the past few years, Inquisitors have searched the entire continent, but it has been impossible to find the Dark Church's stronghold. But is it really necessary for our department, which is just now establishing itself, to take on such a task?"

His point was valid.

It was only a few days ago that the prince he was serving was summoned to a sacred meeting because his qualifications were questionable. But even if you show decent results right now, it won't be enough, so you're going to suddenly jump into a search with no guarantee?

"Isn't it the job of the Inquisition to arrest devil worshipers in the first place? Just by gathering the evidence and bringing him to trial, the Monster Task Force has already done a lot of work."

"Well, that's true."

Seongjin furrowed his eyebrows.

But Sir Masaine. I have a feeling that if we don't catch him soon, we'll be in a lot of trouble sooner or later. However, if you watch the Heresy Court at work, you can't trust them at all.

Moreover, although I couldn't tell the truth, I couldn't say that the search was completely hopeless. Didn't Seongjin have a high-ranking member of the Penitent Church as an information provider?

Of course, there were some limitations.

-Owner. Since I am completely free of the limitations of the body, I should be able to inform my master of Giacomo Milo's current location right away. But now, I feel a kind of 'restriction' that strongly binds my soul.

-Restrictions?

-yes. The 'restriction' warns against causing unnecessary backlash by carelessly disclosing information outside of the scope of human resources. Therefore, the information I can give to the owner will probably be mostly limited to what I knew while I was alive.

That is why Belinda's spirit did not say that it would 'tell' Giacomo

Milo's whereabouts, but that it would 'help him find it.'

~... ..

Seongjin inadvertently looked back at the small flame placed on the bowl. Even after listening to Belinda's words, the carefree Demon King still doesn't feel any agitation.

Seongjin decided that there would be no good in this story being longer, so he nodded towards Belinda.

-Ok, fine. Then, as 'Belinda, Vicar of the Penitent Church,' tell me all the information you know about the Church.

While Seongjin briefly recalled last night's events, Masain's earnest attempts to dissuade him continued.

"Lowering. Giacomo Milo's impressions have already reached exorcists wandering around the continent. "It's their job to hunt down devil worshipers, so why not just leave this job to them?"

"hmm. Speaking of The Exorcist... .."

Seongjin patted Masain's neatly ironed uniform collar.

Tuk-tuk.

"Lord Masaine. "I'm sure you know where I belong now, right?"

"... ah!"

Masain looks blank as if he was caught off guard.

okay. Even if the [Destruction of Evil] performance shown at the crusade was entirely a fraud, Seongjin is now a clear exorcist since he officially joined the group.

"So, if you think about it, the search for Giacomo Milo should also be my mission. I told you this at the crusade before, right? "I will accept the trials as an apostle of the Lord and will not spare any effort for Delcross."

Therefore, he said loudly that he would expect generous cooperation in the future for the monster task force not only from the Orthodox Church but also from the other four Holy Knights. At that time, the faces of Cardinal Benitus and other high-ranking priests changed significantly.

"Huh?"

But suddenly, a small laugh was heard from next to me. It was Owen who was looking through [Apocalypse Now] in a corner for fun.

"what. Did that mean you would serve the Empire then? "I also thought you were threatening the old people by telling them not to dare to interfere, as you will do whatever you want from now on."

"... "You're talking about threats, what do you think of people?"

Seongjin is sullen, so let's reply, percussion! Owen closed the book loudly and gave me a strange look.

"The more I look at you, the stranger you really seem. "Why is this guy who used to just laze around aimlessly in the villa, and now he's doing things he shouldn't have to do?"

"Then why are you following me here and nagging me for no reason? "Isn't there so much to do?"

Then Owen drooped his eyebrows and made an exaggerated expression.

"Wow, that's really too much! At one point, he begged this older brother to help him with the monster task force, and he was so bewildered! Now that you've shaken off your illness and woke up, are you saying you don't need my help anymore?"

Who on earth ejaculated and when?

"Do not be ridiculous! When do you refuse because you are not good at administrative work? If you're going to call me your older brother so shamelessly, take an example from Logan first. "He would have been happy to help me even if I hadn't told him first!"

"That's because Logan is a brat with no reputation."

"... Besides, you've been making a mess of the office for no reason, right? "Logan did his job with all his heart and sincerity without me having to tell him!"

"That's of course because Logan is a brat with no reputation."

Is that so?

Seongjin, who was almost persuaded, soon composed himself and glared at Owen harshly.

"Why are you saying that to Logan in the first place? Of course, I admit that he is quite sloppy and has a temperament, but he is not a thoughtless idiot like you who gives things to everyone!"

"You're funny! Who cares now! As I saw earlier, someone here said he was willing to take on a task that wasn't his job. "How on earth is what you're doing better than Logan?"

"What, man? Who are you comparing me to now? "Have you said everything?"

"And you! "Why are you comparing me to a bastard like Logan!"

The two people once again took on a serious attitude. Of course, it looked a little different to others.

Looking back at Masain's miserably distorted face, Representative Jibril whispered in a low voice.

"Lord Masaine. "Why are you two competing against Prince Logan right now?"

Fortunately, not long after, the argument between the two naturally calmed down.

It had been a long time since Seongjin had been to work at the monster task force, so he had to somehow process the backlog of documents.

"I think we're missing all of the southern third quarter plague reports, Representative Jibril. "What happened?"

"Oh, my dear! "Lord Martha reviewed that matter twice a while ago!"

"okay? It must have been a daunting task, and you must have worked hard. But Sir Martha?"

"Yes, sir."

"What are those documents in the corner? Official letter for cooperation in investigation of 'Devil Seed' found in various places in the suburbs... ..?"

"Oh, that is!"

A look of confusion appeared on Sir Masaine's face. Looking closely, it seems like he decided that it wasn't something related to the department and set it aside without Seongjin's knowledge.

"that... I'm sorry, my dear. I heard that it was an official document distributed to all departments of the executive branch... .."

"okay?"

... Well, it doesn't really matter?

If this is the case, it's probably already been resolved. Because Seongjin easily deleted the items from the normal world at the crusade the other day.

Seongjin threw the official document aside with a nonchalant expression.

'Anyway, the future is the problem.'

I knew very well that Lord Masaine was overly sensitive to matters related to demons.

But from now on, isn't Seongjin having to work as an exorcist at the same time? In the future, reports about devils and devil worshipers will come up frequently.

"That gentleman, if I continue like this, will my chronic gastritis be okay?"

Seongjin was caught up in somewhat complicated thoughts, and unfolded another bundle of documents next to him. The letters were so large that they were bound together like a small booklet.

-Mores degraded. While heading to Cyprus, I heard a story about a crazy man who called himself a prophet. He... ..

-Lowering! The more I listen to the rumors, the more outrageous they become! well... ..

-Lowering! We must go to the Marquis de Benso! We must catch that crazy wise man and investigate! I am attaching evidence of this heresy here, so please be sure to take action!

"This... ..?"

"Ah, this is Sir Valerie's letter. "We have been receiving reports every day about an apostate called 'The Wise Man' who has recently settled in the Marquis of Benso."

"okay?"

There is another friend who buys and creates work. Seongjin thought so and unfolded the attached evidence. It was a small leaflet, crudely printed with mimeograph paper.

-The secret of the future conveyed by the wise man.

The continent is facing the terrifying flames of hell that will soon come! Listen! Only those who awaken will open the shining door of salvation!

It was only the size of the palm of one's hand, but it contained all the information for people in need.

There is even a small picture drawn on one side of the leaflet. An illustration depicting humans struggling in the midst of fierce flames.

"hmm."

Seongjin covered the flyer with a nonchalant expression. However, contrary to Masain's expectations that he would throw it to one side like the previous official document, Seongjin folded it neatly and placed it inside the knights' uniform.

"... "Hey, you?"

"huh? Why, Lord Masaine?"

"no way... "Just out of curiosity, do you plan to start investigating that matter as well?"

Seongjin answered calmly to Lord Masain, who looked anxious.

"Yes, of course. Isn't it probably something very important that Sir Valerie cares so much about? "The more ambiguous a matter is, the more our monster department has to step in and solve it."

Sir Masain's face immediately paled.

"But you! No matter how you look at it, isn't this an ordinary scammer? As it turns out, the whole continent is full of such foolish writers!"

"This case is a little different. "Surely our Lord Valerie would be so eager to report such nonsense to me?"

"No, you usually don't even listen to what that friend says... ... !"

"That is a mistake, Sir Martha. "I fully respect that friend as a fellow paladin."

"Since when did you say that you were a Holy Knight... ... !"

While Seongjin and Masain were arguing like that, for some reason, Owen sat quietly lost in thought.

No one present realized it, but right now, in front of his eyes, a small text window was blinking, indicating an update of information.

[Main Quest - Find your own place! (complete)]

A quest that was suddenly completed in vain.

'As expected, my guess was correct. You can only proceed with this main stream if you are next to Mores!

Perhaps his new position meant the monster task force. If so, the conditions for completing the next quest will also be the same.

[Main Quest? Find the crazy prophet! new!]

[Quest Grade: B]

[Sometimes people's daily lives change significantly due to unexpected encounters. What should I do? Weak humans can only scream helplessly due to the twists of fate beyond their control. Here is a human being who happened to face an unbearable truth and chose to go crazy. Meet him and hear the truth of that day. You may get a chance to reexamine your situation and get a clue as to the direction in which you should move forward.]

[Reward: 100 P Cash]

For someone like Sang Sang-chang, the compensation is generous. This means that it may take some time to proceed, or that you may have to struggle for a while to complete it.

"So people like that aren't even proper fraudsters. It's just a common maniac on the streets! "If we investigate these people one by one, there will be no end to it!"

"Well, while I'm looking for Giacomo Milo, I'd like to stop by the Marquis de Benso. "This is something that worries Sir Valerie so much, but doesn't Sir Martha even care about him?"

Owen sighed softly, listening to the sound of the argument next to him.

'Anyway, the recent quests all have no context. I always think about finding someone like this without much information, but Sang Sang-chang is so reckless...'

403. Head Tower (1)

The climate of Delcross was relatively mild for an inland area. In particular, the clear autumn air, with its humidity greatly reduced, had a way of stimulating both a clear intellect and a full sense of emotion.

-You promise me a beautiful sky.

I whisper like a bird that I will give you a shining star.

But I am the only one in the world.

I want your soul like a jewel.

Crunchy.

A playwright who had been working all night, immersed in the emotions of autumn, lowered his quill as the sunlight seeping through the curtain grew stronger.

"If I write just a little more, chapter 1 will be completed. Okay..."

Unfortunately, today's work seems to end here.

When I started to worry about the fact that I couldn't hold the quill equally with both hands, I thought my concentration for the day was already over.

"Hmm."

The playwright turned his back and neck around and quickly glanced over the content he had worked on so far.

'... It seems like it'll be fun, but since the doll is the main character, I wonder if it might be a little dangerous?'

[The Doll's Song], which she is currently working on, is Ortona's classic literature that deals with the events that occur when a beautiful doll created by a person comes to life. At the time, it was highly regarded for containing her reflection and criticism on human dignity and sense of subjectivity.

But here in Delcross, things were a little different. If done incorrectly, it could be seen as a heresy that challenges God's authority over the creation of life.

'It's not specifically a banned book, but I touched it, but it would be safer to go in the direction of teaching a lesson with a little bit of a sense of encouragement and punishment, right?'

The playwright thought for a moment and then shook his head.

Let everything happen. What's the problem? If it were his lover, even if a controversy arose, he would be able to immediately dismiss it.

"Then let's end it here for today."

She stretched out her arms and stretched greatly. It also happened to be the right time for her to finish her work.

smart.

Soon, with a small knock on the door, identical faces appeared as if they had been stamped out of a mold. These were her children, Herna and Kadesh.

"It's time to wake up, Joe."

"Come out and eat, Joe."

The playwright stood up with an unusually broad smile.

Yes, my lovely treasures!

Jocelyn Langster.

Transformer of tragedy, magician of conflict.

This young playwright, who is better known to the world as 'Master Sorbonne' rather than his real name, was a person who had the eccentricities that sensitive artists sometimes exhibit, which were especially noticeable compared to others.

First of all, she couldn't tolerate the 'twisting' of things well. In particular, she was particularly easily fatigued by 'unbeautiful' or 'asymmetrical' shapes. It was because my mind was constantly trying to correct everything I saw into an ideal form.

Because of this, it is natural for interpersonal relationships to turn into a mess.

She didn't even bother to look at her own face in the mirror. After working all night, she often felt asymmetrically sunken eyelids, which she lacked confidence in.

In that respect, her children could be seen as perfect beings to spend time with. Because both sides always spoke to each other equally, and the sculpting of the face was also perfectly beautiful.

Think about it.

What a great tragedy it would be for parents if they were unable to smile sincerely at their beloved children due to extreme brain fatigue!

"yes. A person with an imperfect personality like me could meet a lover with perfect looks, fall in love, and even end up with these jewel-like children. I can't help but see this as a miracle from God.
"Nothing."

Quickly.

As she sniffled with renewed relief, two identical pairs of purple eyes looked up at her with a look of worry.

"I guess I'm not feeling well."

"Did you work all night again?"

A small hand comes up to Jocelyn's forehead. Herna was a person with a strong sense of action.

"I don't think you have a fever? Still, just in case, take your medicine carefully. article."

Another small hand wiped the corner of her mouth with a napkin. Kadesh is always thoughtful.

"No matter how much inspiration comes without a crowd, you have to lead a regular life. article."

Jocelyn, who is often treated like a child by small children, is both happy and caught up in an uneasy feeling.

"These children are a miracle from God to me, but what am I to them? A companion human that needs to be looked after and played with occasionally?"

Before the discomfort escalated into uncontrollable self-destruction, Jocelyn quickly changed the topic.

"Oh! Guys. "Would you like to go see a performance with me sometime soon?"

"A performance?"

"suddenly?"

"okay. A play I adapted a while ago is all the rage right now! That story about 'Ambrosia of the Head Tower' that you guys like. "It will finally be performed in the biggest theater on Rue Bertrand!"

It was no coincidence that Jocelyn, who was renowned for her purely original plays, chose 'Ambrosia of the Tower of Head' as her first adaptation.

When she was young, it was a fairy tale that her children always asked her to read to them before going to bed, so she naturally reached for it first.

"Hmm?"

But when the twins heard those words, they looked at each other and looked somewhat shocked.

"Well, it's not like we particularly liked it at the time."

"Because Mores always came and begged me to read it."

"... huh?"

"We just listened to what Mores wanted."

"Mores couldn't read well at the time, and he was a little lonely."

"And she wanted to collect a lump sum of images from people."

"No matter how weak the spirits are, they can exert power when the collective consciousness unites."

Jocelyn couldn't help but be puzzled by their answers. I have never met the Third Prince in my life, so how could he come all the way here and beg me to read a book?

However, as adults who do not understand children well tend to do, she soon made her own judgment and was convinced.

"Do you guys like Mores that much?"

Isn't this a name that comes up in the twins' mouths every day?

It's so bad that Jocelyn, without realizing it, comes to regard the Third Prince, whom she has never met before, as familiar.

"hmm. "If you ask me if it's good, it's probably good."

"He's interesting just by looking at him."

But this time, the answer that came back was unexpected. The twins soon started grumbling with pouty faces.

"But these days, Mores only plays with red."

"Well, sometimes I call other kids."

"It was fun to hang out with him every day for a while, but recently, Mores has become very busy."

"Because it's training, they only focus on the monster task force, and now they don't want to play around even at night."

"But if you want Mores to lie down in pain again, then Seonghwang's father is so pitiful."

"The bigger problem is that every time she does that, a major accident occurs. "Because it's so hard for your Majesty, Dad."

"... .."

Jocelyn had no idea what was happening.

While the 3rd prince was sick, wasn't the regular audience time drastically reduced? Thanks to this, Herna and Kadesh did not leave the mansion for a while and just played chess with each other all day.

"hmm... Instead, you guys go to the imperial palace to have fun these days, right?"

After the 3rd prince woke up from his sick bed, the twins were frequently visiting Jinju Palace to have lunch as before.

"Yes, the food is delicious. "We even get delivery directly from Bertran & Lee's salmon specialty store."

"Joe, why don't you come with us next time? Mores would probably welcome Joe."

"well... .."

"I think we could just live in the imperial palace at this point, Joe."

"that's right. "It's going to be a lot of fun hanging out with everyone, Joe."

"... .."

This wasn't the first time Jocelyn had heard such a suggestion. It was also what her lover wanted in the first place.

but-

"Herna. Kadesh. Do you know how strict life in the imperial palace is? "I won't be able to stay in my pajamas all day like I do now, and I won't be able to stay up all night playing chess."

"... is it?"

"Maybe?"

It's not that she wasn't, Jocelyn was extremely satisfied with her current life.

A daily life where one can fully enjoy material abundance and social status, and no one can say anything even though day and night change. Isn't this the highest peak of independent life that humans can enjoy?

"And there is the most important matter of all! Did you know that the structure of the imperial palace is horribly asymmetrical? "It is not as perfectly and beautifully balanced as this mansion we live in."

"Joe is probably the only person in the world who says this mansion is more beautiful than the imperial palace."

"Well, that's why we like Joe. "It's interesting just to look at it."

"Okay, okay. "Thank you for the compliment."

Jocelyn, who had finished eating completely, yawned profusely. The aftereffects of working all night are slowly starting to show.

"Are you going to the imperial palace now? Well then, have a nice trip, guys. "After I send you all away, I'll just have to sleep soundly."

"and... .."

The twins' faces suddenly changed to look like parents with a teenage daughter who can't stop themselves.

"Are you going to sleep right after eating, Joe?"

"It's going to be very bad for your health, Joe."

"It's okay, guys."

She, who was more immature than her children, patted her chest confidently and responded.

"Anyway, if you go to the imperial palace, your father will treat you completely, right?"

At the same time, the imperial palace.

Nate, who had been quietly moving the dishes, suddenly looked up in surprise.

"hmm? Why are you doing this all of a sudden? Does the food taste strange?"

"No, no. It's very delicious... .."

Nate looked down at the unfamiliar dish called 'Smoked Cham Salmon Eggs Benedict' that his son had brought for the first time in a long time.

For some reason, I feel very uncomfortable.

Why? Although I always believe in doing the best for my family, why do I sometimes feel anxious these days, wondering if I'm doing something seriously wrong?

"Did you do something else this time?"

"... yes?"

Then, the troublemaker son was confused for a moment, but then smiled with a proud face.

"Ah yes. So, I told you I was going on a business trip again. "I have a fairly reliable informant, so if I do well this time, I think I will be able to arrest Giacomo Milo."

"arrest... .."

"yes. On the way, I also inspect the business entrusted to Branch Manager Schmidt. Lastly, we will stop by the Marquis de Benso. "Lord Valerie has specifically asked me to investigate something."

"... .."

Nate felt a little strange and looked at his son.

Recently, his son had been wearing his neatly ironed uniform of the Order of St. Terbachia with some sort of pride. This may not be simply because the child gained the 'public power' to sing.

Nate, who always closely monitored his son's condition, sometimes sensed a slight sense of relief from the child's hand stroking his livery, as was his habit.

Since he has an idea of what is so unsettling, Nate becomes very confused every time he sees the child like that.

"really! Since this business trip is an official business of the Holy Knights, I plan to properly budget for it within the Holy Order. "You don't have to give me any extra pocket money."

After all the money was ripped off from me, the old men of the crusade will be very upset, right?

My son, who was grinning happily, took a sip of his tea and added, "Ah."

"I'll pay the bounty as well!"

"... .."

Is it really okay to leave this child alone... ..

Nate sighed quietly, thinking that the piece of salmon he had just swallowed was somehow stuck in his throat.

404. Head Tower (2)

Preparations for the business trip went smoothly according to Seongjin's plan.

First the cost.

Fortunately, the Seonghoe gave Seongjin the budget he requested without any hesitation. Even though I paid quite generously because I thought I would get a discount.

-As an apostle of the Lord, I will spare no efforts in my power for Delcross. So, I believe that in the future, not only the Orthodox Church but also the other four Holy Knights will fully cooperate with the work of the monster task force. Because that is the will of the Lord.

It looks like the threats thrown at the crusade worked. Of course, rather than cooperating, it seemed like the intention was to wait and see how far that guy could go.

And personnel.

After sending all of the few members of the monster task force to Cyprus, there was no choice but to recruit new personnel centered on Lord Masain and the resident knights of the Jinju Palace.

"I want to go too."

What was surprising was that Owen suddenly decided to follow Seongjin.

"you? why?"

"There's nothing special to do, right? The portrait work is almost finished, so I don't have to go to the atelier regularly anymore. really! Mores. Can I take Bartoza with me?"

"Bartoza? "Who is that?"

"huh. He is a survivor of the Purma tribe, but unfortunately he was hated by the strongest tribe leader in Barsha. Contrary to his appearance, he is a timid guy and gets very anxious when I'm not around. "If you take him with you, he will probably do a great job as a porter."

Seongjin looked at his eldest son, who seemed to be at ease alone, with a disapproving expression.

Owen's long hair had already grown full of cormorant feathers. Even if they were kept in the ecliptic for various reasons, they would be antagonized by high-ranking priests and would be a perfect fit for pagans.

"Yeah, something like that."

Seongjin obediently gave permission. Rather than nagging him to dress up like a prince, it might be easier to take him with you.

Then this time Rep. Jibril also raised his hand.

"Can I go with you too? Lowering? You never know when someone might get injured, so it will definitely be of great help if I accompany you. "There are no conferences that I have to attend for a while."

"Well, it doesn't really matter."

Seongjin, who was about to give a positive answer, suddenly found ominous jars piled up in her place. Huge perfume jars, each emitting a strong and unique floral scent.

"... No way, Rep. Jibril. Are you planning on taking all those perfumes with you?"

"Yes, sir! I am a doctor who fights the plague. "I don't know how long I will be away from the imperial capital, so I plan to prepare for quarantine as thoroughly as possible!"

"ah! Now that I think about it again, I think one person should still stay in the office. "We also have to deal with epidemic reports coming in from all over the country."

"yes? No, you lower! Why?"

A large number of people were assembled, excluding Rep. Jibril, who was so shocked.

Except for the division and selection of the resident knights and the fact that Sir Kurt and Sir Maria argued with each other over who would follow Seongjin during the process, everything went smoothly.

Then one day.

An exorcist I had never seen before came to the monster task force. It was accompanied by an officially completed move-in report.

"You are my senior?"

"Yes that's right. Lowering."

He was an older man with a dull expression, with messy curly hair and flat glasses. It gives a dry impression, like tree branches that have been dried out by a long drought.

It was the same for Sir Leandros and Sir Sharon, but I thought that the overall characteristic of exorcists was that they looked desolate. If you struggle with loneliness for a long time and deal with the devil alone, it seems that everyone changes like that at some point.

"The Knights of St. Terbachia rarely gather and train new members like other knights. Instead, new exorcists are individually assigned a senior person to guide them for a while. "It can be seen as a kind of apprenticeship-style guidance."

"okay. I understand. But why are you suddenly transferring to our department? "There's already Sir Sharon in the monster task force?"

Then the exorcist straightened his posture and immediately made a straight face.

"Sir, I respect Sir Sharon as a junior with outstanding skills. But you don't really expect that you can really learn something from her, do you?"

"... .."

Seongjin, who remembered the exorcist laughing like he was crazy every time, had no choice but to inadvertently agree with his words.

Well, it involves hitting the stronghold of the Dark Church. I would be grateful if at least one more paladin were added.

"okay. Well, anyway, thank you. that... .."

Seongjin added, glancing sideways at the moving-in notification form.

"... Sir Robert."

"Please call me Robert, sir. "My parents were from Brittany, and I have been called by my Breton name ever since."

A monotonous voice with little pitch. At first glance, he had an extremely businesslike attitude, but he still seemed the most sociable among the exorcists that Seongjin knew.

Seongjin nodded slowly and answered him.

"Of course, Sir Robert."

Unlike other Holy Knights, it is somewhat absurd to say that the Knights of St. Terbachia is a huge public power. Basically, exorcists were scattered throughout the continent and most of the time they performed their missions alone.

So, even if a new exorcist happened to come in, there was no proper way to systematically train him. So, for a certain period of time, it became a kind of custom to follow a veteran and move together.

In this way, the new knight follows his senior like a teacher and learns everything he needs to know as an exorcist.

"But, unusually, you were given the rank of adjutant upon joining the service. So it became impossible for an exorcist to treat me like a squire."

Of course, there were many other reasons why the precious prince of the Holy Emperor could not be taken to remote places.

Thanks to this, a laughable situation arose where Sir Robert, an experienced exorcist, followed his junior and registered his transfer.

"Well, I feel a little sorry for you, Sir Robert."

"No, sir. It's almost time for me to start working. Moreover, since you have a solid foundation in military power, you will be fine without me having to follow you around for a long time."

In addition, Seongjin had another unique feature that set him apart from other new exorcists.

The most troublesome training for senior paladins is teaching juniors about sacred barriers?

however-

"I don't have divine power?"

"Yes, so the distance to teach has been greatly reduced. "I may be presumptuous, but this is truly fortunate for you and me."

Those who don't know may think that all you have to do is simply unleash divine power, but creating a sacred barrier involves a more complicated process than you might think.

It is the act of forming one's own power into a certain form and releasing it to the outside in a stable manner. If you think about it, it's the same as using divine power to spread a sword of a certain shape.

In particular, deploying a large-scale barrier with other Paladins is more problematic. So, you have to repeat the practice of defending an exact range with a certain intensity and at the same time resonating with the power of others to harmonize with it.

"Uh, just hearing that gives me a headache?"

"That's exactly what I want to say, sir."

Wow, I never thought there would come a day when I would be glad that I don't have divine powers.

"But then, doesn't that mean I have nothing to learn from Sir Robert? Lord Masain is already taking care of my swordsmanship."

"No, sir. "A paladin has basic skills that are more important than the sacred barrier."

"Basic knowledge?"

"yes. Examples include the review ceremony, the chairman's demonstration, and the easy washing of uniforms."

"... .."

Come to think of it, I once heard this story from Logan.

-This is a fact that outsiders don't know, but the first thing you learn when you join the Holy Knights is how to properly dress up and conduct a review ceremony.

-A four-line ceremony? Not swordsmanship?

-okay. In a way, it is also about penetrating the essence of the Holy Knights. In order to spread God's will to the world, it is more important to 'show' it well than to use 'force'.

At the time, I thought it was a half-joke, but could they really learn something like that?

Well, Logan isn't the type to make pointless jokes.

"And there is the most important thing that you, who do not have divine power, must learn properly. "It's a way to use tools that have been prepared in advance."

After speaking up to that point, Sir Robert began to unfold the large bag he was carrying.

"After your joining was decided, Director Leandros immediately ordered me to be your new recruit. "It's not often that an exorcist who has been active for a while is called to the Imperial Capital, but isn't there a reason for such an unusual appointment?"

"reason?"

"yes. I dare say that of all the exorcists, I am the most adept at using tools. "It means that I can teach you in more detail than anyone else how to use exorcism tools in the right place."

As Sir Robert had assured, his bag was filled with countless items.

From large and small holy water bottles to complex magic scrolls engraved with the symbols of the main deity. A pile of wooden awls and mallets. And an old straw doll with black thread wrapped around it... ..

Perhaps they are all sacred tools blessed by priests.

[Wow. Scary guy. Are you carrying around such ugly things?]

The demon lord sitting on the desk was fed up. To him, it would seem like a feast of weapons.

"... ..?"

Meanwhile, there was one object that caught Seongjin's eye. It was a teddy bear as white as snow, and no matter how you looked at it, it had a somewhat familiar design.

"Sir Robert. This?"

"Ah, that is the newly consecrated amulet. He said he was the guardian of children, [Vince Bear]. "It is an item that exorcists have recently consecrated and carried around as a companion."

"... Eh?"

what. Is this really a doll modeled after Bingsu No. 3?

But why on earth does an exorcist carry a doll like this as a talisman?

"In the end, the one who gives power to meaningful images is the one who exerts the strongest power. Plus, it looks pretty cute, doesn't it?"

"... .."

"They say it's quite popular even among imperial officials. "Did you have no idea?"

and. I thought the teddy bear was a design that would work well anywhere, but I never thought it would be popular among exorcists too!

Romain had been feeling a suspicious atmosphere recently.

I visit Bertrand Street every few days to collect information, and the atmosphere there is noticeably changing day by day.

"Vince Bear! Buy Vince Bear, who protects the Lord's little favor!"

"A cute knight of the Lord who willingly came down to earth for Saint Sisley, the Lord's apostle!"

Romain noticed the white teddy bears lined up at the stall and quietly broke into a cold sweat.

'... How did this happen? Why is there a teddy bear in this Delcross dimension?'

But what was strangest of all were the one-act plays taking place here and there on the streets.

"Ah, it's so sad! "The story of the moon fairy's unrequited love for His Majesty the First King!"

"A new play is here! The bizarre adventures of the beautiful Saint Bastian and his faithful servant, the Shadow Fairy!"

"Come see the mischievous fire fairy puppet show! "If you watch, we'll also give you some delicious fire fairy candy!"

Romain could not understand the current phenomenon at all. Decades ago, the story of Olivier the Moon Fairy was sensationally popular, but how could the atmosphere of the city change so suddenly?

No matter how you look at the phenomena that are happening now, they are unusual and even artificial.

'... 'Why suddenly?'

There is no way to know whose influence is behind it. So Romaine felt fear sinking into his bones and could only tremble helplessly.

'What are these paving stones for? I can't read anything, nothing! Guardian of Delcross! What kind of future does he see... ... !'

405

405. Head Tower (3)

Romain trudged back to the cave he had used as a temporary staging area.

Originally, while I was there to collect information, I was planning on putting on a puppet show or something on the streets of Bertrand.

But amid the wave of gorgeous 'fairies', I couldn't bring myself to take out my old dolls. It felt like it was clearly showing the gap between himself and his current success.

As he entered the cave helplessly, [Pajong], who was rolling around on the floor, turned to him and asked.

"What are they all, doll?"

Romain inadvertently looked at the age spots covering the old man's face.

Although it may have been a hasty measure, it was a temporary body. The old man's body was rapidly deteriorating after becoming the devil's vessel.

'I'll have to prepare a new bowl soon.'

With that in mind, Romaine politely responded to the high-ranking demon king who was spread out on the floor without any hesitation.

"These are my poor dolls, Lord of Disease. "Didn't you see repairs being done here every day?"

"Well, I saw it. "As you said, they were so unsightly that I had no idea that those rags could actually be called 'dolls.'"

At his harsh evaluation, Romain once again looked down at his hand puppets.

"... .."

Even from a subjective perspective, his dolls were not in very good condition.

It is already difficult to recognize the original color due to hand stains here and there, and here and there there are also marks of poor sewing skills.

The Fire Demon Lord doll, which was originally supposed to be red, is now completely indistinguishable from the gray warrior doll. If this were the case, even if the puppet show had been performed, it would have been difficult to see any meaningful results.

The [form] that should be the basis of the flame has collapsed to this extent, so no matter how much you charm people with the power of your voice, there will inevitably be limits to building a barrier to the flame.

"It's tattered. It looks like the dolls were aimed at a specific target. Could it be that they were damaged by the [rebound] of the curse?"

Surprisingly, the high-ranking demon king's sharp eyes immediately recognized traces of the unnatural power that had damaged the tattered dolls.

"It looks like they were trying to strike a curse-filled flame barrier against a target that was no match for them. Doll. "Who on earth were you trying to harm with those clumsy tools?"

"... .."

Several months ago, the presence of the Holy Emperor protecting the Imperial Capital temporarily weakened.

At that time, Romain did not miss the opportunity and attempted to find the busiest street in the imperial capital and deploy a proper [Flame Barrier]. He intended to deal a fatal blow to his archenemy.

However, if you try to attack a living, arousing opponent with flame images, there will naturally be a [reaction] against him.

The dolls that were unable to completely suffocate the enemy began to be damaged by the recoil. Even though it wasn't played a few times, it was ruined so badly, as if it had been hit head-on by hundreds of years.

'Still, there is one thing I have learned for sure. 'The fact that both the hero and the fire demon lord and the two dolls reacted means that they still exist in this world just fine.'

The generational change is not over yet. His nemesis ultimately failed to become the Fire Demon Lord.

Ah, how fortunate this is!

'And the Fire Demon Lord, who survived until the end, must have not forgotten his grudge and is still wandering this Delcross dimension chasing my soul.'

I also confirmed this fact myself some time ago. It was the day Romain infiltrated the imperial palace by clumsily creating a soul terminal.

At the time, when the soul's defenses weakened due to imitating the imperfect secret arts, didn't the Fire Demon immediately pursue him and chase him into the human body he had occupied?

-Is it you? Did you bastard make such a trivial attack on me?

Romain, who was thinking back on the incident for a moment, suddenly felt puzzled.

Now that I think about it, I didn't even pay attention to the shock of losing the terminal at the time, but it seemed like the Fire Demon didn't recognize me at all.

-Oh, is that you? It became so insignificant that I almost didn't recognize it! Where did something that couldn't even die suddenly appear?

-what? You bastard? You know me? what is your identity?

no way.

'me... Don't you remember? Was it just that someone attacked him and he followed the traces of the flames that remained to track down the attacker?'

But how can that be? There is no way that the Fire Demon Lord would not remember the Dream Demon King who tricked him so well that he lost everything.

'Or does this mean that my existence, completely separated from the puppeteer, is no longer the [Dream King] he is chasing?'

Strong-!

Maybe it's because I'm deeply immersed in incomplete memories, but a sharp pain suddenly arises in my head. Romain distorted her face, hidden behind her half-mask.

One day, Romain was unexpectedly separated from the puppeteer, and some of his memories were irreparably damaged.

Because of that, he couldn't clearly remember what kind of ending he, the hero, and the Fire Demon Lord met in the end.

'but... ... '

At least I know this fact for sure. If we leave them alone like this, the 'Hero' and the 'Fire Demon Lord' will become established as obstacles that will constantly threaten the safety of Romaine in the future.

'So even if we can't put an end to it right away, we have to eliminate them little by little and steadily from now on... ... '

Romaine, who had been deep in thought, suddenly noticed the old man staring at him in silence, and took a deep breath.

The gaze of an absolute being who can instantly crush a human soul. That scary gaze is scanning you down as if you are observing yourself!

"... ... !"

It was clear that he had lost consciousness for a moment due to the shock he received in the imperial capital. How can you just pretend to listen to a question from a high-ranking demon king and then be lost in your own thoughts!

"... So, I apologize, Mr. Pajong. It's no big deal. "I was just trying to eliminate the political enemies of the prince I serve from afar."

Romain spoke quickly.

"It is nothing more than a trivial human matter, and it is not something that the great Lord of Disease needs to be concerned about."

Incomplete memories and the existence of a nemesis who could threaten one's safety at any time.

It would have been difficult for a high-ranking demon king to hastily reveal these great weaknesses. It's obvious that the moment he shows the slightest opportunity, he'll snatch him up, tear him to pieces, and immediately join the real puppeteer's side.

"silence? A prince you serve? "What, is that a strong guy?"

"It's not that strong, so I just tried to use it from afar."

"okay? "Then why did you fail?"

"I am truly ashamed. But in the end, the only trick this lowly doll could pull off to avoid the eyes of the Holy Emperor was such a clumsy flame barrier. "I wasn't able to prepare properly because I was worried about what he thought."

"Hmm..."

It wasn't a completely understandable explanation, but fortunately, the sowing didn't seem to care much.

"Yeah, your trivial circumstances are none of my business. But the more I think about it, the less funny it seems! Isn't it like a doll playing with a doll? "Kill, kill, kill!"

"... .."

It was a rude remark that offended everyone, but who would dare criticize that high-ranking demon king?

Instead, Romain collected himself and decided to seek the advice of the Absolute on the matter at hand.

"Sowing. Actually, there is something I would like to discuss with you."

About the fairy craze that is sweeping the streets of Bertrand.

"okay. A fairy? In the Holy Empire, which has been clinging to poor scriptures for the past thousand years? "Well, after living so long, all sorts of things happen."

After listening to Romain's explanation, the old man looked into space with a strange expression.

"The opposition from the Orthodox Church must have been formidable, right? Anyway, this sounds like a lot of fun! "I wish I could see that strange sight with my own eyes!"

Of course, it was an impossible wish. As long as the Holy Emperor's [Grace] surrounds the Imperial Capital, there is no way the devil would dare approach there.

"Anyway, it's not a bad story for us, doll. The weaker humans' mental defenses against [evil] become, the easier it will be for the church under my command to encroach on the continent! "Wouldn't the invasion accelerate further?"

The blind faith enforced by the collective consciousness has a much greater impact on the soul's unconscious defenses than expected.

This will be an even more important issue, especially from the perspective of high-ranking demon kings who must prioritize dimensional mental invasion due to the constraints of causality.

But now, the guardian of Delcross is completely ignoring that advantage, and is breaking down the vigilance of humans by bringing beings, one by one, into the range of awareness where even the boundaries between good and evil are unclear.

That was why Romain was confused. It wasn't enough to strengthen our guard in preparation for a full-scale invasion in the future, so you took it upon yourself to weaken the human defenses!

"... So then, what purpose does the guardian of Delcross do such a thing?"

"Well, doll. "How can I know his complex nature?"

The old man scratched the empty top of his head with a sullen expression.

"But, isn't it obvious? He's probably trying to do the same thing you did. "By using the collective consciousness of the humans of the ecliptic, we are working to broadly overlay a new 'image' of 'fairies' in this dimension."

"Are you saying that it makes us give up the defenses that blind faith in the Lord gives us and accept the uncertain existence of a 'fairy'? Why? "There is no real benefit at all, is there?"

"Well, fairies are their own fairies."

Pa-jong, who responded like that, suddenly burst into unpleasant laughter as if something was on his mind.

"But doll, do you know what? When the Guardian of Delcross first took power, he went on a rampage with the intention of eradicating all the devils on the continent. He was so obsessed with catching and killing demons that he used any tool he could get his hands on."

There have even been numerous instances where the Holy Emperor himself invaded the demon world. How can a human being, even a representative of God, do something so crazy!

The embarrassment felt by the high-ranking demon kings at the time was indescribable.

"He even has a fairly powerful demon under his command! "I was so surprised when I first saw him."

At those words, Romain looked at the seedlings in shock.

"... devil... yo. this? Is that really true?"

"That's right. Why would this body talk nonsense to you?"

The old man, who had been observing Romaine's stiff expression with amusement, continued.

"So who knows? Maybe-"

The old man's mischievous eyes became uncharacteristically deep.

"Once again, we don't know if an even more powerful force than before has come to Delcross's guardians."

"This is lemon pie."

[wow! It's lemon pie!]

"These are bear meat cutlets."

[Wow! It's my favorite bear meat!]

Every time Seongjin throws finely chopped food onto the glass bowl, fluttering red flames burn them away.

Sir Robert, who had been quietly watching the little boy from the side, adjusted his flat glasses and made a serious face.

"That person is the 'Fire Fairy' who is becoming a hot topic these days. "It feels like a fairy's flame is touching your hand. Does it feel hot or something?"

"Uh, it's okay. "Sir Robert."

Seongjin was originally not harmed by the devil's flame. Although the feeling that she was very hot was conveyed intact.

But recently, the temperature I could feel was noticeably lower than before. This is because the Demon King constantly tried to control the heat.

-My wonderful glass plate!

Because it had been incorporeal for a while, the Demon King had a hard time coordinating the suddenly acquired flame body with the external environment. Thanks to this, he ended up putting a lot of expensive dishes out of use for a while.

But in the end, it was a problem that only time would solve.

Now, he has found the right temperature that burns food quickly and smells good, while keeping the dishes intact at the same time.

So now, I am sitting in a polyhedral glass bowl made with great passion and passion by craftsmen, and comfortably receiving food from Seongjin.

"Ahh! Hot! "Blisters on my fingers!"

So, this means that it was the devil's intention. Things like the situation where Lord Haven, who gently touches a flame, gets burned and jumps around awkwardly.

"Then why are you trying to touch him without permission?"

"yes? But low! "Princess Amelia and the other knights were all fine, weren't they?"

Sir Haven put his burned finger in his mouth and cried.

"You are so great! "It seems like the Fire Fairy only hates me!"

"That's because you always do something rude. "Stop talking nonsense and go to Dr. Ninias and get treatment, Lord Haven."

Just like that, an unusually peaceful afternoon passed by.

406

406. Head Tower (4)

After the Emperor returned to government affairs, the palace seemed to quickly regain peace.

But that was only the surface. Like lava that might erupt again at any time, intense suspicion and confusion were still seething beneath the cooling rock.

First of all, the high-ranking priests of the Holy Assembly.

Are they whisperings of subtle evil? Ah, Lord! I'm afraid it may actually be literal! - At the sound of the deceptive voice, I felt the defenses of faith that I had maintained throughout my life shake completely.

So what should you do? I can only close my eyes and ears, which have become insensitive to good and evil, and pray ceaselessly for the Lord to quickly take away this harsh ordeal.

Such internal turmoil and tension, which were different from what it seemed on the outside, could be seen frequently even outside the imperial palace recently. An example of this is the 'Monkey Watchtower', an intelligence organization that closely assists the imperial family.

Number 21, who returned after a brief report to Seonghwang for the first time in a long time, noticed that the atmosphere in the basement of the bar, which was usually engulfed in secret silence, was excessively tense.

"... "Why is the atmosphere here like this?"

Then No. 19, who had become noticeably pale after half a day, silently gapes at him.

'I don't know! Please save me!'

just as expected. At the center of the raging air, there were veteran intelligence agents whom No. 19 could not dare to touch.

"Senior No. 9 and... Senior No. 13?"

In fact, the two, who had seen each other for the first time in a long time, were not very close friends from the beginning, as far as No. 21 knew.

But now, both of them are glaring at each other with grimly distorted faces, as if something is going wrong in their judgment.

Since the main job of informants is physically demanding work, it is not uncommon for friction to arise from time to time.

The problem is that these two people, who are barely awake, are fighting over each other, with the unfortunate No. 19 in between them.

"That's funny. It's been so long since I served my master, and I feel like I've already become a loyal subject of the Lord of War. What do you think of this? "It's number 19."

Number 9, who has a petite physique, asks, placing his arm affectionately on Number 19's shoulder, which is not that big as expected. His pronunciation has seriously deteriorated due to years of fighting among Barça's tribe, and his speaking style is particularly light and feels like he is being rude.

Number 19 trembled in front of his distant senior, unable to say anything.

"Even if the period of service is long, the trust relationship will not be proportional to it. Doesn't the owner's trust in the source of information depend on how closely he keeps it close to him? "Answer me, number 19."

No. 13, who is neatly tall, glares at No. 19 with a cold expression.

Even so, I was doubly scared to see my normally shrewd senior with a straight face.

No. 19 now looked like he was going to cry.

'... aha!'

Number 21 was able to roughly guess the details of the argument.

'It's a problem with the monster task force that's going on a business trip this time.'

When I heard it, Senior No. 13 said he was following Prince Mores this time too.

However, for some reason, No. 9, who had faithfully served Prince Owen on the southern front for the past several years, was ordered to remain here. As he continues to stay in the ecliptic, he's been given a mission to find someone?

It was probably like a thunderbolt for No. 9, who was particularly proud of his skills.

'but...'

Anyway, aren't those two people too insensitive? In fact, No. 19 over there has been serving Prince Logan for the longest time, but he has never been able to keep up with the punitive force.

"what? Have I said everything now? No. 19, did you clearly hear what that baseless bastard from Barça was saying?"

Number 9 finally couldn't get over his anger and lost his temper.

A junior informant with whom he does not have a very good relationship is serving an unlikable prince who once tormented his master. So, I can't help but be very nervous about their every move.

"Heh! I really don't know who is using the Barça hillbilly accent right now. Hey, are you listening, number 19?"

Of course, the number 13 opposing it was also formidable. To those who looked down on her because she was from Barcelona, she was a tough senior who always proudly proved herself with her skills.

Puzzle!

Dangerous sparks flew from the gazes of the two. Only the shy No. 19 lets out a silent scream amidst the bloody war of nerves.

'Please, someone get me out of here!'

It was right then.

bang! Bang bang! Quang!

There was the sound of someone banging on the flue connected to the upper floor. It was Breman, the head of the Monkey Watchtower and an executive of the assassination organization 'Hand of Oberon'.

At highest intensity, four times.

Considering past experience, that signal is Breman's ultimatum. In other words, it means, 'If you don't do something, we will close the store and go down immediately!'

"... .."

The heightened tension disappeared without a trace. Not only No. 9 but also No. 21, all of them there were riders who had gone through Breman's rigorous training.

"Well, I'm going! 'I have important instructions from Prince Logan!'

Number 19 looks visibly relieved and begins to hurriedly gather documents.

Number 21, who had been thinking of taking a break here for a while, also changed his mind and turned around. She's going to stay here and get into trouble again.

"... 'Then, I have something to prepare, so let's stop.'"

As I calmly moved up to No. 13, soon only No. 9, dejected, was left in the large basement.

"Tsk!"

Number 9 flopped down in his seat and pouted inwardly.

I was conscious that I had behaved in an indecent manner in front of my juniors. But lately, I've been really upset.

"Prince Owen is also very kind. All right, here... ... Looking for a person like that, what on earth could he be..."

"... huh?"

"yes?"

But something unexpected happened. Numbers 13 and 19, who had already gone out into the hallway, looked back at number 9 from beyond the door at the same time.

"Sir, who are you looking for now... ... ?"

"..."

"... hmm? iced coffee."

Number 9 was a little embarrassed by the unexpected attention.

"This is the person Prince Owen has been looking for for a while, but he probably isn't from Delcross. Do you guys know what region this is called? It was a bit of a strange pronunciation, so this, hand... jin?"

Let's say the name clearly like that-

"Oh, that's... ... !"

"What?!"

Surprisingly, an awkward light of realization flashes across the faces of both No. 13 and No. 19.

Number 9 was confused. Doesn't it seem like everyone knows this name?

"You guys really know? Lee Son, Jin Eul?"

"No, I mean... .."

A little while later, the truth that No. 9 heard from them was unexpected.

"That's a difficult name to pronounce. "It's probably a nickname for you."

"nickname? "By the way, who is that?"

Then number 19 answered quickly.

"This is Prince Mores. "I don't know why, but at some point, His Majesty Logan started calling Prince Mores that when they were alone together."

Number 9's eyes widened at the unexpected information.

"What?!"

Lee Son-jin, is that Prince Mores?

While preparing for a long business trip, Seongjin learned many things from Sir Robert.

Was he ignorant of his knowledge as a Holy Knight? Of course, Edith taught him the trick of conquest instead of Seongjin, as well as about the classification and characteristics of demon species that he had vaguely known about until now.

Then, as a matter of common sense, I learned a little about the reality of the sacred barrier where paladins break their cranes.

"This is all geometry, right?"

Seongjin clicked his tongue as he looked through a textbook filled with complex shapes.

The person who compiled the foundations of the current sacred barrier is said to be Granius, a famous theologian during the Five Great Emperors.

Until then, the barriers created by priests were said to have been limited to blindly pouring in divine power to create a large cross-sectional curtain in front.

However, after he appeared, it became possible to create customized barriers depending on the characteristics of the demon species.

With fewer people and in a more efficient manner.

'It is a three-dimensional object whose shape, slope, and height vary greatly depending on the number of people striking the barrier, the angle of the formation, and the object to be covered...'

The barrier thus completed was either a polygonal sphere or a polygonal pyramid.

Either way, it doesn't seem easy. Do you understand why paladins are so passionate about practicing sacred barriers?

"Fortunately, our exorcists are in a better situation. In most cases, there are at most two people working together. However, the situation is very different in the case of the Lilium Detachment, which carries out subjugation throughout the continent."

You have to use various barriers against all kinds of sea creatures and demons. So, the person who becomes the main axis of the barrier is bound to be good at geometry and mathematics?

It was a moment when not only the Lilium detachment but also Logan, who was leading them and shooting them, was seen again.

'I just thought it was Logan's slandered fan club.'

Sir Robert also carefully taught Seongjin about the tools used for exorcism.

Of course, most of them were uninteresting and he passed them by with one ear, but there were occasionally items that Seongjin thought could be quite useful.

For example, there were small tokens showing that they had been consecrated for a month.

These tokens were small awl-shaped tools with the god's pattern engraved on them, and were objects that could be thrown or driven into them with a hammer.

"The power of each is weak, but if you insert several secret tokens in succession, you can instantly achieve a light purification or barrier effect."

While carefully listening to Sir Robert's explanation, Seongjin picked up a bundle of tokens.

Crash!

After throwing a few as a test, the tokens formed a neat semicircle and stuck on the wall, just as Seongjin had intended. Sir Robert, who was watching from behind, let out a soft exclamation.

"That's great, sir! Have you ever learned sword-fighting techniques separately?"

"hmm? What is that... .."

In fact, Seongjin is a promising assassin. He was already growing by learning tips from elite agent Dasha.

Of course, I couldn't tell Sir Robert that fact straight away.

'Anyway, if it's this simple to use, I guess I could use it for something useful, right?'

While Seongjin was leaving, he received a set of secret tickets from Sir Robert and took them with him.

"ah! Come to think of it, I haven't shown you the most important tool yet."

Sir Robert, calling for attention, hastily took out a small item from his bag. It was an object smaller than a child's fist, and it looked like a top with needles attached to the left and right.

"This is called a gyrocompass."

"Gyro compass?"

"yes. A device used to track demon energy. "It is an important object that serves as a guide for exorcists who must track down demons alone."

He carefully placed the top on the table and continued his explanation.

"It is said that those with strong divine power can sense even the weakest demonic energy. However, for exorcists like me who have weak divine power, there is no other tool as useful as this. If you just place it on the floor like this, it will tell you the direction in which the demon energy is strongest around you... .."

But Sir Robert could not finish his explanation. The needle of the gyrocompass, which was spinning, immediately turned and pointed towards Seongjin.

Whirling!

"... .."

"... .."

There was an awkward silence in the room for a moment.

407. Head Tower (5)

Grrrr...

Even as the outer top spins, the inner needle stands upright and asserts itself. Embarrassingly, while aiming straight at the prince of the Seonghwang family.

Sir Robert, who was staring blankly at the needle, was startled for a moment and threw the gyro into his bag.

"Big. Why is this..."

At first impression, Sir Robert seemed particularly hard and dry. But he suddenly became visibly embarrassed and started to panic.

"Well, I'm going to show you a trivial item... I'm sorry, my dear. Maybe it's broken... No, I think it was contaminated. Recently, I have neglected the consecration..."

Oh, it's okay, Sir Robert. There is no need to try to cover up a situation that is clearly visible.

"I will properly complain to the equipment department as well. As the workday got longer, these guys all lost their discipline..."

Don't even think about criticizing this strict department for no reason. You and I both know that there is no problem with the gyro compass.

"Perhaps an injustice, a blessing from the fairies... Maybe that's why. "They say it's 'the ordeal of misunderstanding,' and indeed, it is not an easy test for an apostle of the Lord."

"..."

Seongjin did not respond in any other way but examined Sir Robert carefully.

Now that I think about it, this friend must feel a foreign energy right next to me. Is that okay?

'Even Francis, who doesn't have particularly strong divine powers, has been flinching every time he sees me lately.'

But Seongjin soon found out the answer. This is because Sir Robert has been making these suggestions one after another.

"Lowering. If you cannot use a gyrocompass, you will have no choice but to detect demonic energy purely through divine power. "At this point, how about inviting another paladin to the monster task force?"

"... Another paladin?"

"yes. Looking at the people you have organized this time, aren't there any Paladins except for you and me?"

Of course, it would be a bit unfair to call Seongjin a proper 'paladin', so the only person who can actually use divine power is Sir Robert.

"But somehow, my meager divine power is specialized for [annihilation]. "That's why I had no choice but to become more skilled than others at using exorcism tools."

The same goes for someone who doesn't have bad eyesight but wears consecrated glasses. Since the ability to detect demonic energy is so weak, it must be assisted with specially treated detection glasses?

"Right."

no wonder. I wondered why this friend was granted permission to enter Jinju Palace so easily.

"There is an exorcist in my class who recently returned from deployment. Tracking her down She is a very talented friend. How about bringing her along?"

"Hmm, well?"

Seongjin shrugged his shoulders.

Wouldn't that be necessary? Even without the help of other paladins, I already know how to track down the Penitent Church. The person who was the parish priest there not long ago is now a member of my family.

Rather, if you hire someone who has no connection to the monster task force, the source of the information may be questioned for no reason.

Or they might rush in and say they'll exterminate this side. It is said that the more divine power you have, the stronger the negative feeling you get from Seongjin.

"For now, it goes on like this."

What we're looking for is Giacomo Milo, and not the devil who made a contract with him, right?

"It's about searching for dark cults hiding underground. "I don't think it's a bad idea to move secretly with a small number of people."

After Seongjin said that, Sir Robert no longer recommended reinforcements. He just let out a small sigh of concern with a slightly dull face.

"I don't know how helpful I can be in tracking down the devil contractor, even though I have poor senses. "It's a shame that among exorcists, we have the weakest divine power."

"are you okay. "Because performance is more important than that."

Seongjin remembered that his history of subjugating demons, which was listed on his transfer report, was very impressive.

"Also, look at Sir Leandros. "That nobleman with no divine power is also serving as the leader of the Holy Knights, right?"

"That's right."

"But isn't he the one who achieves the most significant achievements among the exorcists?"

Sir Leandros is the only one among the leaders of the Five Holy Knights who has no divine power. How great is the ability to destroy evil that someone like that can take over the position of leader?

As I thought about it, this question naturally followed.

"But how on earth does Sir Leandros go around suppressing demons alone? He wouldn't be able to sense demon energy due to his lack of divine power. "Does he use various tracking tools like you?"

It's hard to imagine that heavy-looking man walking around carrying an exorcism tool like Sir Robert.

"well."

Sir Robert adjusted his eyeglasses on the bridge of his nose and thought for a moment.

"I've never traveled abroad with him, so I don't know if he actually uses exorcism tools when dealing with demons. "It just seems like there are very few items requested from the equipment department."

"Then how?"

"But I have a little guess. "Captain Leandros is the owner of a precious relic that has been passed down to the Knights for generations."

"... Relic?"

"Yes, the twin curved swords 'Sanghyeon' and 'Hahyeon', which are recorded in the scriptures as being wielded by Saint Terbachia himself."

Sang-hyeon and Ha-hyeon,

They are one of the few inorganic relics that exist on the continent. I also remember vaguely hearing about Seongjin during his induction ceremony.

They were so powerful that no demon at that time could withstand even two attacks from a saint.

As a result, it eventually became something of a symbol of the Knights of St. Terbachia. The intersecting silver hooks, which are the emblem of the Knights Templar, actually symbolize a pair of shotels rather than hooks.

"The power of the twin curved swords is not limited to [Destruction]. Rumor has it that when a devil appears nearby, it sounds a long sword call to warn its owner."

Twin Shotels handed down from generation to generation to the leader of the Knights of St. Terbachia. Thanks to those legendary weapons, Sir Leandros was able to rise to the rank of the strongest Holy Knight Commander despite having no divine power.

And a long time ago, when the Imperial Capital was almost overrun by demons, he became one of the people who cut down the most demons by the Holy Emperor's side.

"The Sanghyeon and Hahyeon are the second highest-ranking weapons among existing relics. "Quality is the strength of the weapon, so Leader Leandros always has the world's second strongest tool of 'destruction' at his side."

"hmm? second?"

Seongjin blinked his eyes.

"Then what about the first one? Who writes that? "If Sang-hyeon and Ha-hyeon are that strong, wouldn't the first weapon also be very useful in eradicating demons?"

Then Sir Robert looked at Seongjin again, as if he were puzzled.

"... yes?"

"huh? why? what?"

"No, that... .."

Sir Robert, who had a bewildered expression on his face, slowly shifted his gaze downward. Seongjin soon knew where his gaze was directed.

"Nutcracker?"

"... "You really didn't know?"

Nutcracker.

A strong sword that has not left a single scratch even after breaking thousands of heads.

-Now play with that instead of the wooden sword. No matter what pranks you play, it won't break.

This is what Seonghwang said directly when he handed the weapon to Seongjin.

'If you think about it, is it natural?'

It is a beloved sword that the representative of God carried with him for half his life. If we consider its status as a standard of preciousness, the nutcracker would probably be worthy of being praised as an eternal treasure.

"Ho... .."

Now I am completely familiar with the handle of the nutcracker. Seongjin touched it gently for a moment, and for the first time in a long time, a satisfied smile appeared on his lips.

okay. Is that so?

'Wouldn't it be good to see this as my father's implicit permission to do whatever I want?'

The strongest relic on the continent is in Seongjin's hands. Although one may be uncomfortable with the energy he radiates, who would dare to interfere with his movements?

Moreover, no matter how you kill a high-ranking demon, you won't be able to be suspicious. If you are the owner of the Nutcracker, the most powerful relic, then of course you are likely to perform one or two such miracles!

'good. It worked really well! There have been quite a few things that have been bothering me recently. Now all you have to do is go to them one by one and break their heads with peace of mind!'

But it was right then.

Sir Robert, who had so far maintained his composure even in the face of Seongjin's energy, suddenly turned pale and retreated in surprise!

'huh? 'Why is that friend acting like that all of a sudden?'

Then the Demon King, who had been sitting quietly on the glass bowl until then, sent a deep sigh and a thought to Seongjin.

[...] Seongjin Lee. How many times have I told you to please stop smiling like that, huh?]

* * *

"... hmm?"

Pa-jong suddenly felt a strange chill and raised his head.

"what? The weather hasn't gotten that cold..."

No, even if the temperature had really dropped, it would have been strange. There is no way that he, a high-ranking demon lord, would feel cold even if there is only a slight temperature difference.

Pajong, who was puzzled for a moment, soon came to a reasonable conclusion.

"Doll! It looks like this bowl is reaching the end of its lifespan. "Aren't there other dishes that are more proper?"

Then Romain, who was in the middle of dressing up as a woman, stopped what he was doing and answered obediently.

"There is one more brother of Pajong whom we captured together while preparing the body. "I will leave it here, so please use it as you wish, Lord of Disease."

"okay? Thank you for that... .."

Pajong, who had been replying indifferently, suddenly frowned.

"wait for a sec. After all, aren't all the brothers in the field my servants? Should I be angry that you took what was mine without permission, or should I be happy that you gave it back to me?"

"At that time, there was no other way to obtain the vessel, great monarch. "Please forgive my rudeness."

"Well, really? "If that's the case."

Pajong asked, scratching his now empty head.

"But doll, where are you going? "Why are you all of a sudden packing up everything?"

In fact, Romain was crumpling all the belongings he had temporarily stored in the cave - at best, it was only sewing tools and a few hand puppets - and crumpling them into his backpack.

"Hasn't all the plans you've prepared so far gone to waste? We'll have to find another way. "From now on, I want to go to Cyprus, Mr. Sowing."

"In Cyprus? Why are you there all of a sudden?"

"Now that there is nothing left in the ecliptic, we are trying to retrieve even the things that were placed there a long time ago."

In Cyprus, there were several objects left that Romain had prepared in the past - strictly speaking, when he was working as a puppeteer.

Now that most of the plans they had prepared were useless, they might become the last battle against the Holy Emperor.

And above all, there is a borderline race lurking in the waters of Cyprus. By now, their leader would have been reduced to nothing more than a trivial person, so if he did well, he might be able to easily steal the [Tribal Key] from him.

"Originally, I was planning to head there a long time ago. "There were some setbacks, so it was a little late."

If only Prince Leonard had been able to lure the princess in time as he had boasted.

If the gates had opened simultaneously all over the ecliptic as planned.

And if the [Puppet Master] hadn't suddenly run away for some reason and ran to the last doll he left behind in Cyprus.

However, Romain has now lost everything and must compete with the puppet master who was his past self to win all the arrangements.

"If all goes well, I will bring you good news soon, Lord of Disease. I hope to see you next time in Asean with the Lord of Hunger."

Romain bowed politely and slowly walked out of the cave.

"... .."

Pa Jong looked at that figure and thought for a moment.

'Are you really going away? It's annoying, should I kill him now?'

But I soon changed my mind.

I said that the doll was not the body anyway. Even if you kill it now, its real body will survive safely somewhere and you will be extremely wary of [Sowing] from now on.

He possessed the lost technology of Ionia. The ability to write [code] yourself is not a big deal when you look at it, but depending on the situation, it can sometimes lead to very annoying results.

'And Greed said so too. That guy knows the hidden entrance to the [Labyrinth].'

So, shall we watch a little more?

After making that decision, Pa-jong went into the corner of the cave and took a close look at the new body that the doll had left behind. He was a truly unsightly looking man, with a thin physique and a bushy beard due to not being able to take care of his body recently.

'Clemens...'

Pajong was able to find out the man's history with just a quick glance.

Since he is Pa Jong's brother who originally pledged to take him into his arms, he can peek into and manipulate his memories at will.

He was another brother of Pajong who had hidden in the Imperial Capital a long time ago along with the vessel he is currently using.

After being unluckily captured by a doll, I lost my senses and continued to follow them. Now, even after washing my eyes, I could no longer see the faithfulness I once had.

It was a little tight, but it got there. I quickly lost interest in sowing.

'This and that are all insignificant. I've been spending a lot of mana recently, so I guess I'll just go back to the underground church and rest in peace for a while.'

After making up his mind, Pajong left the old man's body without any regrets.

dump!

Then, the old man's body, which lost control, dies and falls to the floor.

The old man's soul has long since been destroyed by a high-ranking demon lord. As the demonic energy that protected his body disappeared, the dark spots that had been spread here and there began to rapidly expand. It was an erosion phenomenon caused by magic energy.

Pass...

After a while, the old man's body disappeared without a trace, leaving only the dirty priest's clothes behind.

"..."

Then, a single tear slowly flowed from the eyes of Clemens, who was still standing blankly.

408

408. Head Tower (6)

How much time has passed?

Clemens, who had been swaying slightly while standing, soon staggered to his feet and groaned.

"eww..."

Muscles and joints that have become stiff from not moving for a long time are screaming. Nevertheless, amidst the dull pain, his mind became clearer.

The person who had been controlling Clemens until now suddenly released his mental control and left. [Planting], who had taken over his ownership, seemed to be not satisfied with something, so he left him unattended and disappeared somewhere.

Thanks to this, Clemens, who had regained his sanity for the first time in recent years, looked at the broken remains of the old man for a long time with empty eyes. Traces of a colleague who once secretly hid in the Inquisition and cried and laughed together while waiting for the great harvest.

"Brother..."

Eventually, a cracked voice came out from the dry vocal cords.

"The [task] we had devoted so much time to was actually just an illusion created by someone..."

A lot of information that I had been just accepting in a dazed mind, little by little, begins to be reorganized in my head, forming a clear meaning. And the conclusion drawn from it is a terrible truth that is

-Wow! This is too dangerous!

-be careful! If you make a mistake, you will be caught!

-Hurry and run away!

-Hurry quickly!

Who on earth were they?

Did the mind suppressed by strong control simply create a vain delusion?

Or did another incarnation of the main god extend a hand to him in place of Sobong, which was a false salvation?

'Perhaps, the [repentance] they talked about may also be another axis of evil, just like sowing.'

It was something he couldn't understand now.

'but... ..'

Even if that were really the case, what does it all matter? Now, the meaningless instructions that remain in his mind have become the only driving force behind Clemens, who has lost everything.

In this way, Clemens tried tirelessly to squeeze out even a single drop of strength remaining in his body.

However, the limitations of a body that has been neglected for a long time are very clear.

Slurp!

In the end, Clemens fainted from exhaustion before even getting halfway down the mountain.

"... .."

Perhaps Clemens, who had fallen, was doomed to become food for wild animals. That is, if a group of paladins searching the suburbs hadn't found him at that moment.

"... It's here!"

"Really, just like Rebekah said, someone has collapsed!"

"I can sense traces of demonic energy in this person! Fortunately, there hasn't been any erosion yet, but it's dangerous if we don't clean it up right away!"

The Holy Knights soon took turns pouring out divine power toward Clemens.

It was no coincidence that they came here. After the giant demon species appeared in the suburbs, the search for 'devil seeds' was still in full swing.

"Thank you for your search. "First we have to save him."

Soon after, after some time, the person leading them appeared at the foot of the mountain.

"Rebekah!"

"He is an important reference. "We must keep him alive and hand him over to the Heresy Tribunal."

The person called 'Rebekah' looked like a boy who had not yet reached the age of maturity.

However, none of the Holy Knights took his instructions lightly or ignored them. Because that boy was the most responsible person for finding a large number of 'devil seeds' buried deep in the ground.

'It's really amazing. Where on earth did Rebekah come from?'

'The rumor is that he belongs to that secret intelligence organization, Arrange?'

'what? Was that a real department? Even so, how can a child like that?'

'Shh! Lower your voice. 'Maybe he's listening to our whole conversation!'

And not long after that, another boy came running out of breath, following Rebekah.

"Asley! Gasp! "Aren't you walking too fast?"

The boy's name was Jonathan MacAlpin. Originally, he was a student at the Theological Academy and should have been busy with final exams by now.

However, since the aftereffects of the Gray Plague became known, he has been under strict surveillance by Arranger under the pretext of probation. With his classmate Asley Becher, who was bedridden with the same symptoms.

"Ugh! I'm out of breath! You man! "I told you to wait a moment!"

Even after joining his group, Jonathan had a hard time catching his breath for a long time. Although he has gained a lot of weight since immediately after suffering from the Gray Plague, he still has not regained his former physical strength.

Rebekah, who was looking at him with cold eyes, answered in a cold voice.

"I'm sure you've told me this many times already, Jonathan. "My name is Liv, not Astley."

"What is he saying now? Astley. "You are my classmate, Astley Bettcher."

"Astley's consciousness no longer exists. "I am just borrowing his body for a while to protect him, who is now an empty vessel."

"What nonsense are you talking about? What happened to your hair? I feel like a completely different person these days. "Is that also an aftereffect of the Gray Plague?"

"... .."

I can't speak at all.

Rebekah shook her head and turned around. He wondered how long he would have to keep Jonathan by his side, who had almost no aftereffects.

"Huh? Hey Astley! Are you going down as soon as you arrive? Now that we're up, let's take a look at the scenery... .."

"... .."

"... Is he really leaving? hey! "Hold on there for a moment!"

Rebekah made two mistakes that she regretted for the rest of her life.

One is that, in opposition to the majority opinion of escaping to the normal world, he led part of his clan to the Delcross dimension.

Rather than being trapped in the body of a homunculus and living like an ordinary, inferior human being, I was determined to die as a noble Kornsim, even if it meant dying. As a result, he really lost most of his clan.

Another is that, due to his own mistake, he handed over the Oracle, his clan's treasure, into the hands of the Empire.

'Bethsheba... ..'

It was probably unavoidable. At the time, no one in the Kornsim clan expected her to be an [Oracle].

That's because there was no one who could properly understand her mind, which was completely separated from the mind of the clan.

'It was difficult to see Bethsheba as a normal member of Kornsheim in the first place.'

As a child, she was involved in an accident that a clan that could predict the future should have avoided, and suffered serious head injuries.

As a result, she developed a severe mental defect and was unanimously banished from the clan's mental link.

It may have been essential to offer Bethsheba, who was beautiful in appearance, to the 16th Emperor as a token of peace.

Not only was he completely separated from his clan, but he was the only pure-blooded Kornsim who could easily deal with the inferior humans of the Delcross dimension.

Rebekah realized her big mistake when she first saw the third prince of the empire born to Bethsheba. The essence of the clan they believed had been completely lost was shining vividly in the young prince's eyes.

Now, Rebekah can be sure.

'Bethsheba awakened as an oracle a long time ago. Maybe it was all her own calculation that she didn't avoid that accident, that she created a mental defect, and that she was expelled from her clan's connections.

And she succeeded in stealing the precious essence of the clan from the tribe!

'But why?'

Why did Bethsheba let go of her glorious position as an [Oracle] and push her own fate down such a rough and thorny path?

Now that she was dead, no one could know.

Anyway, bygones are bygones. As the leader of the few remaining clans, Rebekah had the duty to find the next oracle and return it to the Kornsim clan.

'The next Oracle will have already appeared in the world.'

Rebekah was sure.

This could be guessed by looking at the actions of Seonghwang, the current Oracle. He was trying not to go against cause and effect as much as possible, and was moving as if the water was flowing.

It's as if they don't want to mess with someone's firm will in the slightest.

'Perhaps they are trying to avoid direct conflict of perceptions.'

Normally, the next Oracle is not born until the previous Oracle dies.

Of course, this does not mean that there was no time when the two coexisted. Although it is rare, in that case, one person ended their life by suicide.

'but... ..'

Nevertheless, Rebekah already knew of a precedent in which two oracles successfully coexisted for a long time.

So, who will be the next [Oracle] he is looking for?

"Why are you doing that? "What makes you uncomfortable, sir?"

Sir Robert, who had been fiddling with his ears since a while ago, had managed to notice that Seongjin's concentration was broken, and asked.

"No, Sir Robert. "My ears have been itching since a while ago."

"If you're having a hard time, how about taking a break for a while?"

"Uh, it's okay. "The story you're telling me about 'The Devil's Curse' is very interesting, isn't it?"

While Seongjin was taking exorcist classes, preparations for the business trip were progressing steadily.

After the competition between Lord Kurt and Lord Maria, which was a close battle until the end, the final number of resident knights was completely decided.

"Hot hot hot!"

With black bruises around his eyes, Sir Kurt bursts into excited laughter.

This was a decision made after a friendly exchange of fractures during a sparring match with Sir Maria, followed by a heavy drinking match.

"Lowering! I won't be able to feel safe if you send that untrustworthy guy away. "I will follow you too!"

"No, Sir Maria. "One of the senior knights should remain at Jinju Palace and manage the other knights."

"Yes, Sir Maria. I will have a lot of fun experiences and come back safely, so in the meantime, please take care of your home. Let's buy a bottle of good alcohol to commemorate! Hot hot hot!"

Sir Kurt was just excited, not knowing what hardships would unfold in the future.

It seemed like everything was properly prepared.

Except for one guy who has been particularly annoying to Seongjin recently.

"what? Owen. "What happened this time?"

How many times has it already been today? Seongjin glared at the guy who peeked his head through the door again.

Then, Owen seemed uncharacteristically hesitant and spoke cautiously.

"Hey, Mores... .."

"huh?"

"... .."

"what? why? what?"

Then the guy twitched his mouth for a moment, then shook his head with a sullen expression.

"No, nothing."

"What? hey! "Why are you doing this so early?"

"Um, sorry. Well then, good luck."

When Owen turns around like that, the drooping chicken feathers look particularly pitiful.

what? No matter how you look at it, it's nothing, right?

That bastard, why are you acting like that these days?

409

409. Head Tower (7)

As time passed day by day, the day arrived when Seongjin had to leave the imperial capital.

However, even though the morning of departure was bright, the air in Jinju Palace was as calm as usual.

'Is it because I went there once before? I feel like everyone is going to do that on this business trip.'

It seemed like Seongjin was the only one who felt strangely agitated, as if it was anticipation or anxiety. He thought, trying to ignore that uncomfortable feeling.

'okay. I'm not even visiting Oji, so what's the big deal? I'll finish it quickly and come back soon!'

Meanwhile, Seongjin had one more audience with Seonghwang. Of course, since there was a record, Seongjin tried his best to reassure Seonghwang during the conversation.

"Nothing will really happen this time. As I said before, I obtained some quality information about Giacomo Milo's hideout. "If we successfully infiltrate, it will be easy to apprehend him."

"infiltration."

When Seonghwang pinpointed a word that bothered him, Seongjin was a little embarrassed and rolled his eyes.

"Uh, infiltration... Yeah, that means... .."

"... .."

"just... A little trick... Let's do the same thing, that's what it means!
"Even if you blindly go looking for them with a bunch of knights, they won't just hand over Giacomo Milo's recruits."

Seongjin, who had said that far, closed his eyes tightly.

Err, I don't know. First of all, let's talk about it briefly!

Wouldn't it be better to say something in advance and get scolded rather than having an accident and getting caught later?

"All we can do is raid one of their small branch organizations. Of course, Lord Massaine won't allow it, so it's a bit of a problem for him to sneak out of the group and attempt Auror concealment. But how could it not work? "My informant Dasha will also follow."

"... .."

"This is nothing, father. What's more important is what comes next! Once I've captured Giacomo Milo, I'd like to visit some native northern nobles on my way back. "It seems like Branch Manager Schmidt is having a lot of trouble these days because they are interfering with our business in little ways."

"okay."

Fortunately, Seonghwang no longer asked for a detailed explanation of the 'infiltration'. Instead, I tilted my head and asked:

"However, the northern indigenous forces are not so formidable. "I think your group is too small to put pressure on with all your might."

"hmm... .."

Seonghwang's point was valid.

The only members of the monster task force are Seongjin and Sir Robert.

Even if five or six more resident knights, including Sir Masaine and Commander Bruno, followed, it would be difficult to regard them as a proper military group.

If you think about it, there were fewer people than the first business trip with the Wolf Knights.

'But if you think about performing the duties of an exorcist, the number is excessive.'

We need to seize the opportunity to secretly infiltrate the lower level organization of the Penitent Church. So, for the prince's business trip, the number of people was reduced as much as possible.

'Besides, I wonder what will happen to the northern part... ..'

Of course, since it was a completely unfounded premonition, Seongjin had no choice but to say this to Seonghwang again.

"We will be careful not to hastily provoke the northern powers. I will never do anything as dangerous as before. It's true."

"... .."

Judging from the way his gaze was returning, Seonghwang didn't seem to believe Seongjin's words very much. But despite this, his face looked surprisingly peaceful.

'I sent Lord Sharon to Logan and Sisley, so I thought you might be a little worried this time... ..'

It was truly unexpected.

Anyway, Seongjin continued to tell more trivial stories, and then said goodbye to Seonghwang a little early.

"Then I'll be back, father. There will be a government meeting that morning as well, so it might be difficult to come to say hello right before departure. 'I've entrusted the lunch box delivery to Katrina, so don't skip meals while I'm away."

Seonghwang then gave me a subtle look for a moment, and instead of greeting me, he left an incomprehensible request.

"Mores."

"yes?"

"For you without divine power to function as an exorcist, the role of the prepared exorcism tools will be more important than anything else. So, please take good care of the luggage you brought with you so as not to lose it."

"... ..?"

Seongjin looked puzzled for a moment, but then nodded obediently.

Yeah, whatever. Of course, tools are important.

The morning of the day of finally departure.

When Seongjin came out after finishing his morning exercise with light meditation, Amelia, who had come out early to see him off, approached him with a smile.

"Are you feeling okay? "It's been a while since I woke up from the hospital, so please don't overexert yourself and come home safely, Mores."

This time, Amelia prepared a thoughtful gift for Seongjin.

"Sister, this is... ..?"

"Aren't you a proper exorcist now? "I prepared it to help you carry exorcism tools."

What she carefully handed to Seongjin was a small bag with a strong belt. This bag is made of black leather with gorgeous silver thread embroidery and looks very luxurious.

"... "You didn't do this embroidery, did you?"

From the straight pattern of the main deity engraved in the center of the bag to the scripture text embroidered in stylish cursive.

"This is definitely not your skill."

Seongjin was a little relieved. If I had tried to do all of this on my own, my sister's fingers wouldn't have left needle marks by now.

Then Amelia laughs and replies.

"Hehe, did you get caught? I wanted to embroider it myself, but I felt like if I touched it, the beautiful bag would be ruined. "Still, I wrote the text myself."

After all, my sister is the best calligrapher in the Holy Empire!

Seongjin put in some exorcism tools in front of Amelia and proudly hung the bag on his waist.

Now that I'm equipped like this, I look like a pretty decent exorcist, right?

"It goes well with the knights' uniform. thank you "As expected, your aesthetic sense is excellent."

Then the devil twirled above Seongjin's head and snickered.

[Isn't it because it's all black? What sense is there? It seems like he can't use his four feet if he's just black.]

... shut up!

While Seongjin growled, Amelia took light steps and approached Owen, who was standing next to him.

"And this is for Brother Owen."

Owen, who had been shyly acting the other way until then, looked confused when Amelia suddenly brought him a gift.

What he received was also a bag similar in shape to Seongjin's. It is a luxury item with a passage from a military poem engraved on smooth, durable brown leather.

"Well, they're doing this to me too...""

When Owen, who was staring blankly at the bag, made a tearful expression, Amelia smiled sadly at him.

"I'm sorry for not taking care of you sooner. In the past, when my brother suddenly went to the front line, I was just a child who was immature at everything. So I didn't know how to soothe my anxious feelings or how to pray for my brother's safety."

"Amelia... .."

"But now I'm different too. "I learned what I could do for my precious family, and I learned to trust and wait for them after doing everything I could."

When Owen sniffled and couldn't say anything, Amelia smiled while gently holding his hand.

"I will pray every day, so please come back safely with Mores, brother."

Seongjin thought.

"It's an angel! After all, our sister Amelia is an angel who came down to brighten the underworld!"

Amelia even prepared a gift for Red. It was an empty lamp with a small plate inside.

"Because I can't carry the fairy's plate with me on my travels. "I created a small space where the fire fairy can rest."

Seongjin, who accepted the pretty lamp, was a little impressed.

If it looks like this, even if the devil is inside, it can be disguised as just an ordinary lantern, right?

[Wow!]

Although it was natural, the reaction of the demon king who was involved was truly violent.

[what? What is this? Is it so pretty?]

He was bustling around the lamp and making a fuss. As he is a person who likes flashy things, he seems to have quickly fallen in love with the old-fashioned decorations of the lamp.

[That guy always wears black taryeong, but he has better taste than I thought, right?]

Seongjin firmly hung the small lamp next to the saddle.

Then, the demon lord flies over as if he had been waiting and quickly lands inside the lamp.

[Heeheehee!]

Amelia looked at that figure in wonder.

"How? I'm so glad. "It looks like the fire fairy likes the gift, too?"

Seongjin sighed slightly.

Demon King, I think you're lucky that no one else can hear your foolish laughter. Because it seems like you still have the image of a mysterious fairy.

After saying goodbye, it was time for Seongjin to finally get on the horse.

"... Are you really planning to go horseback riding, sir?"

Lord Masain, who returned from fixing the condition of the resident knights and carriage, asked with surprised eyes.

"huh? uh. "Just until we leave the ecliptic."

Once he was out of the Emperor's favor, he planned to stay comfortably in the carriage as before.

But now that you've built up recognition as a prince, shouldn't you at least look good in front of the imperial subjects?

"But you... .. ?"

"Why, Sir Martha?"

"No, I mean... .."

For some reason, Masain trailed off and began to look closely at his surroundings. From the resident drivers checking the harness and equipment to the workers bustling about moving the luggage onto the wagon.

"... What is this again? "Is there any luggage that hasn't been moved yet?"

"ah! That was handed over from the administration this morning. "Seeing as it says to handle it with care, it is probably an exorcism tool that is as fragile as holy water."

"Seongsu-woo? no way? "The long thing looks exactly like a coffin to me?"

"Shh! What ominous sound is that? now! "This is the last time, so let's hurry up and get it over with."

"Let's go to sleep, hurry..." ... !"

But the dog he is looking for is nowhere to be seen. Lord Masaine asked again with a slightly serious look on his face.

"Now that I think about it, I don't think I've seen your wolfdog at all recently."

"uh? Ah, Max."

Seongjin scratched his cheek.

"Max went to have fun for a while. "I thought you wanted to run errands and see your friend?"

"... yes? errand... .."

"don't worry. He will come back whenever he feels like it. "Because you can find where I am no matter how far away it is."

"... ..?"

Masain's questions seemed to be increasing, but there was no time to answer them anymore. If I wanted to get to Regina by today, I had to hurry up from now on.

Wow-

As soon as the main gate of the imperial palace opened, fierce cheers immediately surrounded Seongjin and his group.

"Your Majesty Mores!"

"Savior of Bathurst Spirit!"

"Look over there! "I heard you were blessed by an ancient fairy, and there really is a small fire fairy hovering by your side!"

The subjects of the imperial capital wholeheartedly welcomed the fire fairy and prayed for Seongjin's safe return. It seems that at some point everyone became familiar with the existence of 'fairies'.

"... .."

Seongjin, who was momentarily taken aback by the unexpected reaction, straightened his back and rode on amidst cheers.

At least for now, he hoped that he would be seen as a proud member of the Holy Family in their eyes.

Wow~

A faint wolf howl could be heard from somewhere.

"It's a strange thing. "Wild wolves probably don't live around here."

Ambrosius smiled softly at the siblings, who were pricking up their ears with round eyes.

"Do not worry. Two minutes down. "Wild animals do not dare to enter the cities of Cyprus."

Logan and Sisley were currently heading to the mouth of the Breeze

River on a boat with Ambrose.

"Okay, now we're there."

How long did it flow along with the current? When the tall gray tower opposite his lighthouse came into view, Ambrose raised his hand in pride.

"Master Logan, Master Sisley. "That building is the 'Tower of the Head' in Ambrosia, the most famous historic site in Cyprus."

410. Head Tower (8)

Originally, the Holy Empire's punitive force should have been out to the distant ocean by now. As soon as we arrived in Cyprus, we were scheduled to join the navy there and set sail immediately.

But for a moment, I was anxious about not being able to send a punitive force right away...

Unlike the first day, the council members began to continue to delay departure. The reason was that serious safety concerns were raised regarding the secret weapon, [Ancient Fire], which was scheduled to be the center of the operation.

First of all, the ships owned by the Cyprus Navy are made entirely of wood, and there are no suitable islands in the distant ocean to which they can urgently take refuge.

However, let's say one of the ships catches fire due to poor management. Due to the nature of the [ancient fire] that spreads rapidly even on the water, it was obvious that other ships around would also be caught up in the fire.

It would not be enough to drown the large army that had been amassed in the deep sea; if one made a mistake, one would also lose the precious prince and princess of the Holy Imperial Family.

If this actually happens, let alone the loss of the Navy itself, there will never again be a diplomatic problem as serious as this.

"General Lysander. "Isn't the problem itself of leading the Navy and using chemical attacks that spread easily in water in the first place?"

Logan asked, trying to suppress his nervousness. Even at this moment, when the council's debate continues sluggishly, the suffering of Cypriot citizens and Ortona refugees continues to grow day by day.

Then, Lysander, who was asked the question, responded with a slightly confused look.

"Other than that, there is no other effective way to deal with the sea monsters, sir."

Lysander of Helios.

He was the commander-in-chief of the Cyprus Navy, and was a veteran with experience of encountering and subduing sea monsters several times.

"I can tell you that their skin is tougher than that of any other whale in the world, and their fins that scuff the gunwales are enough to sink a fishing boat with a single blow. "It's impossible to inflict proper damage with just spears and harpoons."

"... .."

"Fortunately, they are more vulnerable to fire than our military ships."

But there was another reason why Logan was really impatient. In his view, the controversy over this [ancient fire] is only superficial.

Logan's impressions from observing all of the council meetings so far were as follows.

'It looks good. So, it was very unsightly for them to take possession of the ancient method of making fire and set it up on their own.'

'So what are you going to do? A fight between factions that show off their guts by saying, 'Are you saying you won't use our secret weapon now?'

And now the debate is slowly turning into 'For safety's sake, share ancient fire recipes with the world!' Or give us something instead.

'Who are you forcing this on now? If the activities at the top end decline and the fishing industry stops, who do you think will dry out and die first? uh?' It is showing signs of turning into a confrontation between factions.

This was a problem that resulted from the unique nature of Cyprus as a 'confederation of cities' united solely for profit, rather than as a unified country.

Rather than dwelling on immediate fishing losses, it will be beneficial for your city in the long run to take advantage of the current situation and gain a relative advantage over other cities.

Naturally, the council members who represent them are bound to be more intent on taking away the handful of land under their feet rather than on the enemies outside the fence.

Logan's complexion, which had been silently observing the unfolding situation, became paler day by day.

"Brother..."

Sisley looked up at Logan with a worried face. Because I knew very well how much he tried to suppress his impatience even while leading his punitive force to Cyprus.

But fortunately, Logan managed to maintain his composure in the situation.

"... I have suggested several times so far to hurry up, but there is no good reason to completely persuade them. "It is probably natural to ensure the safety of firearms before setting sail."

Kuuk.

The hand holding Arjuna's handle takes strength.

"But looking at the way things are going, it seems like the voices of those centered around Helios are still louder. If we leave it like this, there is a high possibility that we will sail smoothly with Elder Chryses at the center. "If we, as outsiders, try to urge them, we may end up delaying their decision due to unnecessary caution and hostility."

Logan has long experience leading vocal Republican personnel and actually taking charge of the front lines.

So I knew it well. Let them talk about whatever they want, and it is much better to solve real problems.

"Lord Valerie."

"Yes, sir?"

"Could you change the order of the church audit that was scheduled? Originally, we were planning to proceed step by step from Helios towards the northwest cities, but I think it would be better to disperse the personnel and audit several cities simultaneously."

Logan decided to divert the attention of the council members who were busy fighting.

'you. The plan was to create a sense of crisis, saying, "If you don't do it properly and finish it, you won't be given time to properly prepare for the Heresy Tribunal's audit."

"Of course, it will be difficult to conduct a high-intensity audit right away with dispersed personnel. So, just set the mood for now. "After we set sail, I will not stop you even if you gather again and dismantle each and every pillar of their church into powder."

Then Sir Valerie asked back with a very embarrassed expression.

"Why are you telling me that, sir? "There is a separate person responsible for this audit."

"... .."

Logan looked at Sir Valerie blankly.

Although he is always teased by Lee Seong-jin for being a pushover, he is not completely oblivious. Every time I listen to the argument between his brother and Sir Valerie, there is bound to be something that comes to my mind.

-Reported to the Inquisition, Sir Valery. What was going around in eastern Anatolia was simply a plague. Don't just send inquisitors to capture sick people.

-No, why are you telling me that, sir?

-Well, maybe you have a lot of influence in the Inquisition?

-... On what basis do you say that? I am only a junior inquisitor. I am definitely not the person you think I am!

Logan, who is sensitive to emotional changes in Auror, could not help but notice that the red-haired Inquisitor's disgusted reply was a lie.

'okay. Sir Valery has more influence within the Knights of St. Marsyas than I thought.'

And Logan's judgment was appropriate. The very next day after making that request, the priests and inquisitors who had gathered in Helios to give thanks began to disperse to various cities.

"Thank you, Sir Valerie."

"So you misunderstand, sir. "I have no idea about this."

lie.

Logan didn't comment on the matter any further, but simply patted the sulking Inquisitor on the shoulder.

This may be all that Logan can do as an outsider. The next thing to do is to do his 'personal' relief work with as much patience as possible until the council members' feet fall on fire.

In this process, Logan's increased 'pocket money' was used quite usefully.

"Lord, thank you so much."

"You said you were from Delcross? There are still people like you in the Empire... .."

"... "Thank you for your help."

Ortona's refugees, who received simple groceries, thanked Logan with extremely awkward expressions.

That wasn't all. Sisley came with several priests and personally rolled up his sleeves. It was the time of a saint who had been doing volunteer work for a long time.

"Perhaps if we bring the paladins of the punitive force, we will be able to heal more people, brother."

"That must be difficult, Sisley. What moves the paladins is a clear military action. "No matter how much of a relief effort it is for the citizens, if you don't do it carefully, you will eventually face backlash from the council."

As he wandered around the city, Logan was sometimes able to pick up information like this.

"Hey, how long do we have to wait for the boat to float? "It's difficult to even get a meal now, so how about we head north?"

"North? "What do you do there?"

"Didn't you hear the rumor? I heard that if you go to the north, a certain merchant will arrange a job for you. "They don't discriminate against Ortona refugees and the wages aren't bad, so I think people are flocking to the north quite a bit recently."

"huh? What is there to pay so many people? "Which top is it?"

"These days, the famous 'Bertrand & Lee' is hiring people. I found out that it was because of a project to repair a large mine shaft. That's not the end. "I heard they even promised to use the workers as miners once the tunnel repairs were completed?"

"Miner... .."

"If you don't want to go there, a new large lumber yard upstream in the northwest is also fine."

Every time he heard such stories, Logan couldn't help but think of Mores, who confidently boasted in front of him.

-okay? This 'Bertrán & Lee' becomes a logistics transport passage connecting the northernmost tip of Ortona and the Imperial Capital!

-Northern Ortona?

-okay! Starting with 'Bertrán & Lee', we will gradually make Ortona's economy self-reliant!

At the time, the guy was explaining so passionately that I could only half-heartedly respond. I was more concerned about whether he could go that far.

'Yes, Mores. Maybe it really will turn out as you say.'

Of course, it was still difficult to be optimistic like this. Haven't Logan experienced too many despairing times to just have hope?

It was around that time that council member Ambrose proposed this.

"Looking at the atmosphere, it looks like the punitive force will set sail safely in a few days. Before that, would you like to tour Cyprus with me and see the sights?"

Ambrose of Helios.

The son of Chryses, a powerful figure in Cyprus, and the youngest member of the council. He is better known to the world as the 'Prince of Cyprus'.

After being caught up in an unexpected fire that happened not long ago, he showed some strange behavior.

- As an aside, I would like to express my thanks to both of you. If it weren't for you, would I have survived until now? So, will you please stay at my father's mansion this evening? I hope you give me a chance to repay this favor in some small way.

The justification seemed plausible. However, his father might not know, but isn't this a suggestion that a critically ill patient with burns all over his body would make?

There was another strange thing.

In fact, he invited Logan and Sisley, but when the discussion fell through, he did not return to the mansion and continued to stay in the council building.

"Why doesn't he go back home? Chryses of Helios is the most powerful person in Cyprus. "I'm sure his house has better medicine and better doctors than here."

Seeing him undergoing arduous treatment in an uncomfortable location, Sisley expressed strong doubts.

"Perhaps it means that his mansion is not very safe."

Logan's answer was bitter. Quite a long time ago now. Because I was reminded of the relationship between King Ortona and his close friend Prince Benicio before they completely separated.

"There are cases in the world where parents and children are the biggest political enemies, Sisley."

"... Yes, I see."

Sisley's face also darkens. This is because she recalled the contents of the [Delcross Chronicles], in which she ends up dying at the hands of the Holy Emperor.

Then, Ambrose, who had recovered to some extent, made a suggestion. He asked if I would like to tour Cyprus with him.

As expected, it was an unexpected proposal, but Logan thought it was a good opportunity.

There were limits to personal relief work, and it was not possible to wander around Cyprus alone as a prince of a foreign country.

'In that case, it would be better to go with Councilor Ambrose and learn more about the situation of the Ortona refugees in Cyprus.'

Sisley also readily agreed.

Of course, a useless insectivore ran amok nearby.

[No, descendant! What have you been listening to me until now? How many times have I told you not to face that insidious person if possible? ... !]

Logan easily ignored his words.

Even if Ambrosius had other plans, how could he, who had barely woken up from his illness, pull off such a trick in front of the Sword Master?

In this way, Logan and Sisley, along with Ambrose, took a small cruise ship and sailed down the Breeze River to its mouth.

"Okay, now we're there. Mr. Logan, Mr. Sisley. "That building is the 'Tower of the Head' in Ambrosia, the most famous historic site in Cyprus."

Ambrose smiled, pointing to the large gray tower.

Although he still had bandages wrapped around his body and had a limp on one leg, he was playing the role of an excellent guide for his siblings today.

The place he chose as the last famous place was the gray, gloomy 'Muri Tower'.

"There is a ghost story that in ancient times, prisoners' heads were really piled up. But now it is nothing more than an old and insignificant relic."

Ambrosius added an explanation casually, but Logan frowned as he sensed a trace of subtle emotion in his remarks.

truth... And lies? What on earth?

That was it! Sisley, who had been staring at the gray tower from a distance, suddenly began to tremble as if he was startled by something.

"Brother!"

As Logan, who was startled, helped her up, Sisley grabbed his sleeve with a white face.

"There, there's a head..." ... !"

411. Head Tower (9)

Intense precognition often comes when the mind is at its most defenseless.

The reason why most of them take the form of precognitive dreams is that the time when people are asleep means that human mental boundaries are weakened.

When such a broken spirit suddenly encounters a powerful symbol of disaster -

Foresight quickly penetrates the mind like a secretly spreading fog, and soon completely engulfs one's vision.

Nodding.

Sisley was half asleep.

For a moment, the girl pricked up her ears to the sound of a wolf howling from afar, but then lowered her eyes as if not to offend the council member who had taken it upon herself to guide her.

Perhaps it was because they were a little tired after several days of intense relief work. At first, the gentle scenery flowing along the slow flow of the river did not seem very inspiring to the young girl.

How long had it been since I was leaning against the boat in such a dazed mood? Sisley felt the calm waters of the Breeze River suddenly roiling violently.

"... .. ?"

What is this?

Sisley looked around in confusion. He had been bored by the peaceful scenery just a moment ago, but the boat he was on suddenly found itself in the middle of a storm.

The waves hit the boat violently. It was an ugly sight, as if a small cruise ship could capsize at once.

The riverbank on the other side was not safe either. Above the rapidly rising river, trees caught in the strong wind are shaking as if they will be uprooted and blown away at any moment. It felt as if all the anger in the world was rushing into this place at once.

Rumble! bang!

Huge dark clouds swirled in the black sky, scattering ominous thunderstorms.

and-

At the center of all the disasters was Ambrosia's [Tower].

"... ..!"

The tower that raised its head towards the sky alone in a hellish landscape seemed like a symbol representing all the despair and death that this storm would bring.

'There's something over there...' 'There's something scary!'

There is no doubt. It was clear that there was something evil and terrible in that tower. Otherwise, how could it be possible to evoke such ominous foreboding and fear just by looking at it for a moment?

Wiggle-

At that time, the shape of the head tower that had been standing still began to slightly twitch.

No, maybe what I thought I was standing quietly until now was just an illusion. If you think about it carefully, wasn't that tower always crying loudly toward the sky?

The sound of the wind whipping around as if it were tearing apart is actually a desperate scream from the tower.

'Head.'

okay. If you look closely, each stone that makes up that sparse wall is a severed human head. Hundreds of heads piled high together, covered in red blood, let out a loud sound toward the sky.

Ah-ah-ah-ah-!

Sisley trembled.

How can I express all these unrealistic scenes in just one word?

"excuse me... .."

The girl let out a helpless breath and spoke.

"The head over there... ..!"

"... what?"

"Brother! Over there, the heads are screaming terrifyingly... ..!"

"Sisle!"

Logan, who realized that his sister's condition was unusual, grabbed the girl's shoulders and shook her violently.

"Why are you doing this all of a sudden? Come to your senses, Sisley!"

Flash.

Only then did Sisley come to his senses and look around.

"... ah?"

The son-in-law quickly calmed down.

The cool breeze from the river tickles my hair, and the sunset sky is clear without a single cloud.

There was no strong storm or strange, screaming tower. All that remains is the tension still constricting my body and the cold sweat seeping out profusely.

'It was a precognitive dream!'

Sisley could feel it intuitively.

A feeling that always comes after having a precognitive dream. This deep anxiety and fear.

'Besides, it's not that far into the future!'

The closer the event seen in the dream, and the greater the impact it had on Sisley himself, the more intense the precognitive dream would leave behind memories and emotions.

What's more, it's a nightmare that comes vividly even though I keep my eyes open.

Sisley stood up, struggling to strengthen his weak fists. I could tell what was at the center of this precognitive dream without having to look back closely.

"Head tower."

"huh?"

"I want to see that tower a little closer."

Logan was taken aback by the sudden words and looked at Sisley's condition.

Fortunately, my younger brother seemed to be in good spirits. Her body was still trembling occasionally, but the girl's eyes looking back at Ambrose were clear and straight.

"Please, Ambrose. "Can we go up the hill where the tower is?"

Upon hearing that request, Ambrose showed a subtle smile -

Wooooooo-

In the distance, a long wolf howl was heard again.

[Ambrosia's Head Tower] is a building that is quite worthy of being called a famous landmark.

Although it is quite noticeable as it stands alone on a hill, its actual height is less than three stories and it is poorly maintained.

"It's an old building."

Logan evaluated the tower in one word, which looked more unsightly as he got closer.

The pagoda, made up of stones of different sizes and shapes intertwined irregularly, was piled up in a mess with no particular style, making it impossible to guess when the pagoda was made.

In addition, the mud spread between the coarse stones had cracks here and there, making it look precarious as if it would collapse at any moment if the wind blew.

"haha. Compared to its reputation, it is a tower with nothing special. Did you say he was a Sorbonne teacher? "Thanks to the opera written by that playwright, the number of visitors to the Tower of Heads has increased significantly recently."

Slowly guiding his still uncomfortable body, Ambrosius continued to give friendly explanations to the siblings.

"In the past, the famous places in Cyprus were the council building and the civic square. But suddenly one performance started to become popular, and now this 'head tower' has become the most famous place representing Cyprus."

"okay."

Logan responded briefly and asked a question with some hesitation.

"But like that story, there really is... "Do you have anything?"

As in [Ambrosia's Head Tower], the question was whether there really was a severed human head in the tower.

Just because of Sisley's appearance earlier, Logan avoided mentioning 'head' directly. Fortunately, Ambrose seemed to understand his question correctly.

"well. That tower doesn't even have a decent entrance inside. "It's nothing more than a pile of empty stones."

"then..."

"Just a few years ago, part of the tower collapsed during a major typhoon. According to the workers who were mobilized for repairs at the time, they did not see anything like a human skull inside the actual tower."

With those words, they walked towards the tower in silence for a while.

Some time passed while we were climbing the hill, and now the sun had completely set and darkness was falling around us.

"Well, isn't that usually the way of mouth is?"

Ambrose stopped walking for a moment and continued his explanation, taking a deep breath as if it was difficult.

"The Ambrosia in the story is an ancient person who died before the empire was founded. However, it was during the reign of His Majesty the Fourth Emperor that the tower began to be properly recorded."

"Does that mean that the current tower is not the tower in the story?"

"yes. At least no one here thinks that Ambrosia built it herself."

Ambrosia of Eleusis.

It is said that she was the princess of Eleusis, an ancient city-state that is now extinct.

According to the story, at the time, Eleusis was in the midst of a war with Helios, where Ambrosia's lover died miserably.

Dongfeng, don't say that you pity him without thinking. I will call his name Brilliant Glory.

Ambrosia, deeply saddened, began to build a tower by collecting the dead heads of her compatriots one by one, starting with her lover's head. On this high hill that overlooks Helios at a glance.

And it is said that the tower eventually became a huge curse, ruthlessly sweeping away the enemy soldiers of Helios.

"But it was Eleusis that was actually destroyed in that war. Helios is one of the few cities that has survived unscathed from ancient times. "What clearer evidence can there be than this to prove that the story is entirely fiction?"

While talking like that, they finally reached the top of the hill. Beneath the tower that stands alone on the loose, desolate land where weeds have not grown properly.

"Well, how are you? Mr. Logan, Mr. Sisley. That is the famous Tower of Ambrosia. "It's so shabby that it's embarrassing to introduce it."

"... .."

Logan quietly looked up at the gray tower.

Is it because it's dark everywhere? Each of the stones that make up the tower is extremely shabby, as if it were someone's tombstone.

'They said it was just an empty stone tower.'

Even with Logan's keen senses, he could not detect any magical energy or curse energy.

but-

"Then what was that? That vague sense of truth and lies mixed together that I sometimes felt in Ambrose's words..."

It was a time when Logan was feeling strangely uncomfortable.

"Brother Logan."

Sisley, who had been silent the entire time, began to walk with a somewhat dazed look on his face.

"Sisley?"

"I also think this tower is Ambrosia's head tower."

"... what?"

Unlike Logan, who was embarrassed, Ambrosius' eyes, looking at Sisley's actions, flashed with a strong expression.

"Are you okay? Sisley. "What on earth are you talking about earlier?"

However, despite Logan's question, the girl slowly walked towards the tower and muttered as if she was possessed by something.

"This tower probably contains a strong curse."

"A curse..."

"I saw it clearly, brother. Because it was a sign of a curse that would plunge Cyprus into disaster. It must be down there-"

At that time, Ambrose cut the girl off as if he had been waiting and asked,

"Can you find it?"

Then he hurried over to Sisley and asked again. He walked so fast that it was hard to believe he had any aftereffects from his injury.

"Would Sisley know? "Which was the cornerstone that was first placed on this land by the person who built the tower a long time ago?"

"Maybe I can tell. That's over there..."

Even though he was staring at the whole scene, Logan could hardly understand what was going on.

However, the Sword Master's sensitive instincts whisper that Sisley's actions must be stopped immediately.

"Wait, Sisley!"

Logan, who was hurriedly running ahead of Ambrosius, saw an unconcealable joy on his face as he reflexively caught a glimpse of him.

"... ... ?!"

It was right then.

Cough!

Suddenly, the black shadow of an animal leapt up before their eyes.

It was the shadow of a gigantic wolf that is rarely seen around here.

"... ... !"

Before I could even be surprised by his sudden appearance-

Crack!

The beast hit the ground in an instant and rushed straight towards Sisley and Ambrosius.

Blame, blame, blame!

"Uh, it's dangerous! Councilor!"

"Hurry this way!"

The soldiers waiting behind to protect them are startled and pull out their swords.

But they couldn't rush straight towards the dangerous beast. Because the prince of Delcross quickly blocked their path.

"for a moment! It's okay, just stop there!"

For a moment, everyone could not understand the prince's actions. Now that wild beast is running straight towards her saint, what kind of carefree... .. !

"Everyone, lower your weapons. Can't you clearly see the royal family's emblem over there?"

Due to the prince's repeated actions, the soldiers were finally able to clearly see the wolf's appearance.

"... .. ?"

But, just as he said, isn't it true that the wolf is wearing the brilliant imperial insignia wrapped around its neck like a cloak?

As the surprised soldiers stopped in their tracks, Logan lowered his hand that was touching Arjuna and let out a small sigh. The owner of the wolf dog probably placed it around for the safety of the dog that was wandering around alone.

As expected, Logan, who often used this method for his Rottweiler Roxana, was able to immediately identify the wolf as soon as he saw it.

"As you can all see, that dog is the property of the Delcross royal family. "It's not dangerous, so you can let your guard down."

OK-

Wow!

As if responding to his words, the wolf barked briefly at Logan. He then quickly walks up to Sisley and quickly grabs the girl's collar.

Hot!

"uh?"

Sisley suddenly came to a halt and turned his head towards the dog, which was hanging out with its collar in its mouth.

"... Max?"

Softly-

The wolf dog's tail wags as if it is happy. Of course, he was still pulling hard on her collar with his snout.

"Max! "Are you really Max?"

The little saint's face slowly brightens with a smile. Before she knew it, the fog that had settled in her mind had disappeared without a trace.

When the girl lightly stroked the wolfdog's head as if she couldn't believe it, the dog let go of the girl's collar and responded vigorously.

Wow!

Of course, his body still subtly blocks the gap between Sisley and the head tower.

At that moment, Logan saw a strange yet familiar silver-gray glow flash through the wolfdog's eyes.

"... under! Lowering!"

"huh?"

"Why are you dozing off with your eyes open? "Are you meditating right now?"

"uh... ... ?"

At Masain's call, Seongjin woke up and blinked. It seems that as soon as she left the imperial capital, she settled into her carriage and dozed off.

'No, that's not all. What was I doing? Clearly doing something important...'!

I tried rubbing my eyes a few times with my hand, but my mind didn't seem to clear at all, as if there was fog.

When Seongjin couldn't come to his senses and kept making a blank expression, Lord Masain smiled as if he felt pity.

"Are you very tired? I'd like to tell you to sleep some more, but you really need to wake up now. Lowering. "The carriage has arrived in Regina."

"Regina..."

Only then did Seongjin blink and look back at the carriage window.

Indeed, the dazzling scenery of the city, brightening the darkness like daylight, is gradually getting closer.

It was Regina, a sleepy city where logistics from all over the continent gathered.

412

412. Seongjin Lee's Exploration Journal (1)

Even after arriving at the accommodation, Seongjin's dazed state continued. Like narcolepsy, you blink out of consciousness, but when you open your eyes, the surrounding scenery has changed at some point.

"You, you, you!"

Next to him, Edith repeatedly calls out to Seongjin and tries to wake him up.

[Lee Seong-jin, why are you doing this? Lee Seong-ji!]

"Lowering. "I will take you to your room right away."

Occasionally, the voices of the Demon King and Lord Masain could be heard.

'Everyone will be surprised. Hurry up and tell me it's okay... ..'

But unfortunately, I didn't have the spirit to move my mouth properly.

'It's still too early to feel safe. little bit more.'

As I was walking unsteadily with a clouded mind, I felt someone next to me grab my arm and support me. Of course, Seongjin was in no state to distinguish whether that person was Sir Martha or Edith.

I wonder if he was lucky that he didn't drop the devil's lamp he was holding on the floor.

'It's not over. I'm not sure what it is, but it's definitely something I need to do... 'Because there's still some left.'

But it will be soon.

While repeating thoughts that even he didn't know the meaning of, Seongjin walked unsteadily, following the guidance of Lord Martha and Edith.

... Papa pa paak!

Again, my blurred vision is filled with piles of dirt being dug up here and there. At first glance, it seemed like the front paws of a dog were diligently digging into the ground.

good. Good job, Max. Because it's right there... ..

"... Mores?"

But just then, there was someone who suddenly interrupted Seongjin's concentration.

It was Owen who went in first, found a place to stay, and came out.

"what? what's the matter?"

The guy approached with great strides and shook Seongjin's shoulder violently, instantly breaking his concentration.

"why are you like this? Are you okay? "Where does it hurt again?"

"uh. Noisy... "You idiot."

Seongjin frowned and waved his hand. I still have to concentrate, so please don't talk to me next to me.

"hey! If you're in pain, just say it hurts! "Don't feel frustrated and do it alone!"

"Don't make a fuss."

Seongjin frowned and held out one hand towards him. It was a method she used effectively in the past whenever Owen whined in annoyance.

"what... .. !"

At that moment, Owen was overly startled and took a step back, but Seongjin didn't have the presence of mind to pay close attention to his condition right now.

It's almost over now. Because it's all over...

"Let's talk tomorrow. Because it's nothing. "Go and sleep."

How are you? Here's a cute hoof skin to suit your taste. So, calm down and listen to me quietly. Don't forget to wear a sleep mask when you sleep.

When Owen suddenly became quiet, Seongjin's mind quickly drifted away from reality again.

Whistling- Whistling-

The scenery in front of me changes here and there.

Seongjin, who was diligently running somewhere with something in his mind, finally found the reliable new model he was looking for.

-... Max! It disappeared somewhere again and now... ... !

When the Holy Knight of White Conquest called him from afar, Seongjin responded loudly, wagging his tail.

Wow!

'... 'Keng?'

what. Why is my voice like this?

The moment you realize a strong sense of discomfort, your mind suddenly wakes up and returns to reality.

Blink.

Seongjin, who had been blinking his eyes as he stood there blankly, looked around carefully with his clear vision.

Then, I came face to face with Owen's frozen face, Sir Martha's worried face, and Edith's fierce face, one after another.

"what... .. ?!"

He also realized that he was holding his palm forward for no reason.

'wait for a sec. 'What am I doing now?'

Seongjin quickly retrieved his arm and opened his mouth as if nothing had happened.

"What's wrong with everyone? I'm okay. "Let's go back to the dorm."

"... Lowering!"

"iced coffee... .. "

However, unlike the two who sighed in relief, Owen still looked like he was greatly shocked by something.

what? This annoying guy.

"what? why? what?"

"... Yes?"

"Why are you doing that there?"

Then Owen flinched in surprise. He let out the breath he had been holding and let out a strange scream.

"Huh?!"

Then, without even having a chance to say anything more, Seongjin slowly took a step back and walked away!

"huh? Ah, nothing. nothing."

"You... now?" "

"Well, I guess you're tired. Take a rest! I'll see you tomorrow!"

Owen, who half-heartedly said goodbye to the evening, turned around and hurled himself out across the hallway.

"... ... ?"

Seongjin, who couldn't figure out what was going on, furrowed his eyebrows.

What on earth? Why is he acting like that all of a sudden?

Meanwhile. Owen, who was so embarrassed by her that he fled to his room, mumbled helplessly while frantically combing through her messy hair.

"... I couldn't believe it... "Is it really true?"

A few days ago from now.

When he first told his maid about the business trip, Owen had a lighthearted attitude. Her thoughts were, 'She has nothing to do, so it would be nice if she could help Mores and do quests as well.'

"yes? "You're going on a trip with Prince Mores?"

Carrie, the dedicated maid, also seemed to be secretly welcoming.

"No, it's not a trip, it's just a business trip."

"Whether it's a trip or a business trip, isn't that what it is? "What's important is that we go together for everything."

The old maid hummed and snorted.

"I knew it would be like this someday. I thought that our generous Mr. Owen would quickly reconcile with his younger brother. So, when are you leaving?"

"hmm? ah. Probably in a few days..."

"Then I have a lot of things to prepare! "First of all, I guess I'll have to make a few more new shirts for our eccentric Owen."

"Stop it, Carrie. "Didn't you make enough new clothes a while ago?"

Owen responded by roughly taking off his clothes, and Carrie quickly approached to serve him.

and then-

Fluffy!

When the bright red pendant hanging from the collar of his shirt falls down and reflects the light, he flinches back in surprise.

"... .."

Owen glanced sideways at Carrie, who was stiff.

If you think about it, she was always like that. Even though she waited on Owen warmly by his side, didn't she tactfully avoid his hand when her pendant came out?

Naturally, I had no choice but to ask this.

"Carry. "Does Carrie know about this necklace?"

Then the old maid quickly relaxed her expression and answered.

"Isn't that obvious? "Even though I was like this, in my prime, I was one of the senior maids who only served the empress ladies."

"Right."

Was it said that she was the dedicated maid of honor for Empress Bethsheba? She is a mysterious woman who No. 9 once called a 'psychopath', and who left Owen this strange terminal note.

"That necklace is definitely a relic of Bethsheba."

"... .."

"Many people misunderstand him. But the Bethsheba this person saw was not an ordinary person."

It had already been more than 20 years since the Empress left, but the beautiful and elegant woman still remained vivid in Carrie's memories.

-Be careful not to touch it.

When one of the maids who had arbitrarily touched the empress's belongings collapsed with foam at the mouth, he looked down at her and warned her in a cold voice.

-Once you get caught up in a huge cause and effect that you cannot handle, there is no turning back.

Carrie didn't dare doubt her words at all. So even on this day when she served Owen, she was careful not to accidentally touch her necklace.

"It is the pride of my life to have had that great person by my side, even if just for a moment."

Carrie's eyes, looking at Owen, were filled with faint sadness.

"And then to help his grandson. What greater honor could there be than this as a servant of the imperial palace?"

"Carrie, I... .."

He is not your father's biological son.

Owen, who was about to respond like that, suddenly became speechless and closed his mouth.

However, the maid who had been taking care of Owen for a long time seemed to understand clearly what he was unable to say and swallow.

"Whatever you're worried about, it's different from what you think. Bethsheba's lost necklace has safely returned to Owen. "That is definitely not a coincidence."

"... .."

"And even though you carry that mysterious object with you every day, aren't you still fine, unlike the others? "What could be more proof of Owen's extraordinariness and that he is Bethsheba's honorable grandson?"

Owen silently fingered the bright red pendant. A gem that emits a magical red light under the hazy moonlight.

It is a mysterious terminal that gives Owen a quest and helps him access the Pangea Chronicle.

'Bethsheba is the queen...'

Naturally, this question arose.

What on earth was the Empress Dowager, who was said to be the original owner of this, doing?

It was that night that I received an unexpected report from No. 9.

"what? Sonjin Lee? "That's Mores' nickname?"

"Yes, I say so, sir."

Owen couldn't help but be confused.

'Why does that kid have that nickname? There is some correlation between Mores and Lee Son-jin.'

Owen, lost in thought for a moment, looked down at No. 9, who was flushed with anticipation.

"So number 9. What you want to say is that Lee Son-jin is the 'newbie Lee Seong-jin'? "Is that possible?"

Then No. 9's eyes widened. Because he was relieved that he had completed his mission easily.

"Then isn't it?"

"Maybe not? "Is the pronunciation slightly different?"

"yes?"

"different."

"... yes?"

When I first taught him, he seemed to be able to follow along easily, but it seemed that number 9 was confused about the pronunciation of his name.

'Well, it's not unreasonable. No matter how much you think about it, it's not a Delcross-style name.'

When Owen first heard that name, didn't he think there were all kinds of names like that in the world?

Nevertheless, the reason why he still remembers the correct pronunciation was because Lee Seong-jin's name was accurately conveyed to him as a thought several times. Because I always had to use thoughts when talking to silent villains.

'Thoughts accurately convey the essence. So I joined that group... Well, I guess I know the name of that strange group.'

However, even if Mores was truly a newbie, as far as Owen knew, the situations the two faced were completely different.

"Newbie said he was living in the imperial capital, going through all sorts of hardships. She could never be Mores."

Owen recalled the day he first met the newbie. The baby goat showed its petal-like hooves and spoke sadly? Perhaps it was Owen's distorted memory.

-What should I say? The neighborhood I lived in was originally a bit rough.

The little goat friend neatly slaughtered the players and explained his situation to Owen.

-Everyone there had to learn these skills to survive. I'm happy if I look skilled in your eyes. That would be perfect proof that I survived alone until now.

Owen firmly believed the baby goat's words. Otherwise, there would be no way to explain the unusually skilled killing skills of a young friend.

But isn't Mores living comfortably in the imperial palace, under the care of his father?

"You have to keep the possibility open. At this point, how about investigating further with Prince Mores? To do that, I will first follow you... .."

"But that can't be possible."

Owen declared.

"Besides, if it's Mores, wouldn't I be able to watch from the side in the future? So, No. 9, please remain in the ecliptic and continue to explore newbies."

"but... .."

"Now, let's memorize the name properly. What if I get confused about something important? Now, try pronouncing it properly again. "Lee Seong Jin."

"Sane... jin."

"okay. That's it, number 9!"

"... .."

Number 9 eventually returned to the monkey watchtower with a droopy expression. In that way, the events of that night seemed to pass over as a simple incident.

However, the human heart is truly something that one does not know. As he stayed close to Mores every day for the quest, Owen couldn't help but become more and more concerned about No. 9's words.

'Why on earth does Logan call that guy Lee Son-jin? Originally, the two of you weren't close enough to exchange nicknames, right? I don't think Amelia, who is close to Mores, doesn't know much... ..'

However, if you asked me directly, it was quite shocking.

Whatever nicknames you and Logan call each other, why on earth is Owen curious about that?

'... Oh, I'm going crazy!'

Before leaving the imperial capital like that. Even during his final audience with the Holy Emperor, Owen was so frustrated that he could not concentrate on the conversation.

Then Seonghwang let out a small sigh and muttered.

"Being the eldest child who has to lead the other children, I am so clueless... .."

"yes? father. "Did you just order something from Soja?"

"No, no. Have a safe trip, Owen."

"... ..?"

413. Seongjin Lee's Exploration Journal (2)

While I was doing this, the day of departure arrived.

"Thank you for the gift, sister. mind... The fire fairy is also very happy. "I will treasure it during my visit."

Holding in his hand the small lamp given to him by Amelia, Mores walks around with an uncharacteristically bright face.

Owen thought as he looked at the scene.

'Yes, Mores is not a newbie. He's always been a somewhat calm and dignified guy, right? 'It wasn't easy to let go in front of people like that.'

Leaving the imperial palace, Mores straightens his back and skillfully steers his horse. Unusually for her, she seemed 'calm and dignified.'

Then Owen thought again.

'Yeah, no matter how much I think about it, that guy isn't that cute newbie. Because he was a mountain goat that looked extremely cute even when he was slaughtering players with his sword.'

Above all, if Mores was truly a newbie, there was no way he would have pretended not to know Owen even after meeting him. The various hardships she went through together with Lee Seong-jin must have had that much weight.

As Owen thought about that, he suddenly felt a strange sense of discomfort.

'... wait for a sec. But when have I ever told a newbie my name?'

I did introduce myself at first. 'Owen Lockwood'. But in Delcross, isn't Owen officially 'Owen Klein', the first prince of the empire?

'no! Still, there's no way Mores wouldn't know. He knows my real name, right? So, from a long time ago, you've been calling me Lockwood... ... !'

hmm? But didn't Mores say that he has no memories of the past now?

'... uh? 'Huh?'

Owen, remembering this unexpected possibility, broke into a profuse cold sweat on his horse.

'Now that you think about it, the newbie said that the graphics were broken at that time and he couldn't see anything. So he was using a cheap kid's skin... ... !'

If that's the case, there's a chance that even if a newbie sees me, he won't recognize me right away... ... ?

'... no way!'

Owen was deeply confused and hesitated for a while. What awakened his spirit was the loud cheers of his subjects that he heard as soon as he entered the imperial road.

"Your Majesty Mores!"

"Savior of Bathurst Spirit!"

"Look over there! "I heard you were blessed by an ancient fairy, and there really is a small fire fairy hovering by your side!"

Mores, engulfed in cheers, looked every bit like a prince.

A flawless outfit of conquest, and a strong prayer that secretly flows out despite being well-prepared. The light golden hair that I see every day shines with a brilliant platinum color, as if wearing a sacred halo.

"..."

Owen, who had been distracted by Mores' appearance for a moment, suddenly realized that his subjects were also passionately chanting his name.

"Your Majesty Owen!"

"The undefeated knight protecting the southern front!"

Maybe I was caught up in the atmosphere, and I even heard compliments like this on rare occasions.

"Wow, you're really clear! "It seems like the divine light of the Lord is shining from the two princes!"

"Why not! "You are worthy of being a member of the Holy Family who is loved by the Lord!"

"Isn't it truly reassuring to have people like that protecting our empire?"

Yes, so as not to tarnish the reputation of the Seonghwang family in the slightest.

Owen immediately shook off his random thoughts and straightened his posture. At least in the eyes of his subjects, he hoped that he would be seen as a proud and resolute prince like Mores.

So he was unaware that this conversation was taking place right behind him.

"hmm? Mr. coachman. Did you just see it? "The box in the luggage compartment over there was shaking."

"What?"

"Plus, there's a strange light coming out of it."

"Oh my, Miss Edith! Don't say anything scary! "It already looks like a coffin, and it gives me the creeps every time I see it!"

"But, it really moved...""

After spending a long time traveling around the southern front, Owen was accustomed to moving alone.

So, unlike Mores, she was not accompanied by a dedicated maid. She was too old for Carrie to accompany her on a long trip.

The only party he had no choice but to bring was Bartoza, who had run away from the old fox of Karazhan. This is the friend who is carrying a huge burden behind you and is constantly crying.

"omg! Huh! Owen of Delcross! "Could you please go a little slower?"

"It's not something I can do as I please, Bartoza."

"Why is that so? "Aren't you the eldest son of the Delcross tribe?"

"The person responsible for this matter is, after all, my younger brother. "He said we should arrive in Regina sometime today."

After responding like that, Owen slowed down his speech little by little and approached Bartoza's side.

"I said that was impossible. "Why do you insist on bringing it with you?"

Not only that, but Bartoza was carrying a seemingly heavy warhammer on his back. It was a trophy that Owen once obtained after killing the Purma tribal leader.

"Huh! Huh! This weapon symbolizes the legitimacy of our tribe! "This body, which will one day become the tribal leader, must be cherished!"

"Then wouldn't it have been better if you had quietly remained in the imperial capital with that?"

"No, Owen! "Are you going to throw me into the hands of cruel imperialists who can't even communicate with me and turn a blind eye?"

What on earth are you going to do?

"Then just try a little harder."

"Wow! "It can't be!"

Completely frustrated, Bartoza ended up dragging his precious warhammer to the ground and began pouring out his laments.

"I knew well that the people of my empire were different from the outside and the inside, but I didn't know that even you, the son of the tribal leader, would be like that! He is, after all, a Del Cross Inn... The chief isn't like that... How did this body... This is all from that guy... I swear by the spirits of my ancestors... If not... this... one... same... ...
."

"Hey, hey..."

As he began to speak faster and faster, Owen was quite embarrassed.

The language of the Purma tribe has many similarities to that of the Volanta tribe, so simple communication has been possible until now. However, it was difficult for even Owen to properly understand the rapid muttering of the dialect.

"Say it to the sky... Rise from the ground... forever... Forgive me... ...
."

"Bartoza? "What are you saying now?"

Judging by the man's expression, which was distorted with anger, it certainly did not mean anything good.

This was when Owen was wondering what to do with this guy.

"stop! "Let's rest for a while."

Mores, who was ahead, suddenly declared.

"... yes?"

"But you. If I stop now, my schedule..."

"It's okay to have an early lunch at this point."

Since it was unplanned, everyone looked confused. However, the party soon obediently began preparing for a rest as the prince had commanded.

Meanwhile, Mores turned his horse and slowly approached Owen.

Many sides, many sides.

"Sigh... ..!"

Perhaps because he sensed something unusual, Bartoza suddenly closed his mouth.

That's how Owen saw it too. Mores' expression is unusual, as his already fierce eyes have become very sharp.

"Owen."

Owen stuttered without even realizing it, hearing a voice that was as cold as frost.

"Yes?"

"Tell that guy. Put your luggage in my wagon and shut your mouth right now."

At first glance, Mores seemed to be speaking to Owen. But his cold gaze was clearly directed at Bartóza's frightened face.

"And I tell you not to keep your mouth shut until this is over. "If I hear you cursing Delcross or the Seonghwang family with an old spell one more time, tell them that I will cut off their head and lighten their weight."

what? Old witchcraft?

When Owen turns around in confusion, Bartozha, who is very intimidated, hurriedly avoids his gaze. I don't know how Mores noticed the Barça dialect, which he didn't know, but it seems true that he was really trying to do something bad.

"You bastard, speak the truth. Did you really curse the Holy Emperor family?"

"Huh? How did you do that... ..!"

"... "Was it real?"

Before I got angry, I felt ridiculous. What kind of bullshit is this in an enemy land where there are no compatriots?

"Bartoza. Don't do something stupid like that again. "My younger brother told me to never use my mouth carelessly in front of him from now on."

"that... ! How did he understand the old magic?"

"It's not a matter of whether someone understands or not. Do you understand? "If you do something like that one more time, I won't leave you alone before my younger brother comes forward."

Even while the conversation was going on, Mores was standing still and glaring at Bartóza. From the looks of it, it seems like he really understands their conversation.

After saying that he was going to cut off his head and seeing that Bartóza's complexion turned blue, Mores finally turned his head and left.

"Lowering. How about a meal... .."

"I have no idea, Edith. "Isn't it too early to have lunch in the first place?"

"yes? But just now you clearly... ..!"

Pretending only to listen to the maid's words, Mores got off the horse and locked herself inside the carriage. As she declared when leaving, she seems to be planning to travel by carriage from now on, now that she has left the ecliptic.

His personal maid looked embarrassed for a moment. However, as if this wasn't the first time this has happened, she soon shrugs her shoulders, picks up Mores's words, and disappears.

'Mores...'

Owen was lost in thought as he took in the series of scenes. It may not be as bad as Bartóza, but what just happened came as quite a shock to him.

'It was only for a moment, but that guy Mores really looked like my father.'

It seems familiar, yet unfamiliar.

After returning home and working together every day, Owen thought he was getting to know Mores to some degree.

But putting aside whether or not he is really a newbie, the more I look at him, the more I feel like I don't know him anymore.

'Besides, Mores, how on earth does he understand Barça?'

At that very moment, he heard Lord Masain and his resident knights calling him from afar.

"Your Majesty Owen!"

"Come here and eat!"

"Ah, yes!"

Well, we'll still be together for a while. I'll ask later when I get a chance.

Having made up his mind, Owen pointed the carriage to Bartóza, who was still trembling with fear.

"What are you doing? "Why don't you leave your luggage behind?"

Suddenly. Suddenly...

'The second son of the Delcross tribe leader... 'Did you say that?'

Dragging his legs, which still lacked strength, Bartóza struggled to drag the warhammer.

'I can't believe it! 'What kind of person is it that can radiate such inhuman energy at such a young age?'

Although he is now branded as a symbol of a traitor throughout Barça, Bartoja was originally a competitor for the position of Chieftain of Purma. He is a strong warrior who has not only traveled through countless battlefields, but is also capable of surviving for a long time without even blinking an eye.

To think that he felt fear prickling his bones just by looking at the young boy's gaze for a moment.

'I swear I wasn't this nervous even in front of that cruel tribal leader, Wakana Tusai.'

My heart felt frozen and my vision suddenly became blurry. If I had received that attention just a little longer, I might have collapsed on the floor ungainly.

The pressure was something beyond simple fear. Would it be similar to this if it was a shock that shook the entire soul?

'afraid. I am truly afraid! I never want to make eye contact with that boy again.'

So from now on, I will try to keep my mouth shut as much as possible so as not to offend him. Bartoza decided to do so.

Dude...

Bartoza finally reached the carriage and fell into a deep sleep as he looked at the luggage compartment filled to the brim with luggage.

Where on earth should I put this heavy burden?

Then, in a corner of the luggage compartment, a long box that looked perfect for placing a hammer caught my eye.

"hmm..."

Bartoza thought for a moment, but no matter how much he looked, there seemed to be no other viable alternative.

So he mustered the last of his strength and lifted the warhammer onto the box.

"Youngcha!"

Coo!

As the heavy hammer falls, the box shakes precariously as if it will break at any moment. However, seeing that it is not broken or cracked, fortunately, it appears to be stronger than it looks.

'It's appropriate.'

Still, Bartoza, who felt uneasy, picked up the twine nearby and tied his precious warhammer into the box. Even if the carriage shakes violently, the box will not easily fall off.

'good. I feel a bit relieved now.'

Finally free from this heavy burden!

Bartóza left the carriage with a slightly relaxed step. So after a while, he didn't even notice the slight movement of the box.

"What? Coachman! "Did you hear it clearly this time?"

"What do you mean again?"

"I just heard the sound of something tapping inside that box..."

"Huh? Miss Edith! Please stop!"

414. Seongjin Lee's Exploration Journal (3)

The number of people that Mores assembled this time was smaller than expected.

In addition to his close associates, Masain and Director Bruno, there are four resident knights at Jinju Palace. Lord Liber, the exorcist. And a dedicated maid and a coachman.

Adding Owen and Bartoza to the mix, the team is a small group of only about ten people.

'Thank goodness my father gave me permission for this business trip.'

Now that Ortona has fallen, it is safe to say that the northern part of the country is almost a lawless area. Therefore, not only the upper corps that travel between fiefdoms, but also nobles who rarely travel to the north usually carry escort troops that can easily fit a platoon.

But what kind of confidence does Mores have?

'Of course, he doesn't have that much skill either.'

Mores, who regained his Aura, was an Aura user so strong that even Owen, who had been fighting on the southern front for several years, was surprised.

Owen is gaining a reputation as 'undefeated' by quickly learning Aurors with the help of the status window and occasionally using items or skills. However, even he sometimes gets the feeling that it is not easy in front of Mores.

'It may not be that easy. 'Maybe that guy is stronger than me?'

This is true even if you look at the events of the day when he was summoned to the Holy Assembly. It was clear that the momentum that immediately put pressure on the Holy Knights at the conference venue was a level that was difficult for Owen, as well as many of his higher-ranking knights, to easily imitate.

What on earth happened while he was leaving the imperial palace, so that Mores, who was not even a handful of Aurors, rose to such a level?

-What should I say? The neighborhood I lived in was originally a bit rough.

Suddenly, the image of a baby goat talking forlornly passed through his mind, but Owen shook his head to shake off the afterimage.

'Well, Mores is your father's son. Logan, like his father, has a reputation as a swordsman genius, right? 'No matter what, there are similarities between families.'

For a moment, Owen thought that he was the only one who was left behind because he was not related by blood, but he began to worry about the circumstances in which that bastard Mores had no choice but to become so strong.

When I heard it, he said he was already close to the 8th floor. It's not like I'm getting help from the status window like Owen, but based on common sense, is that a level that can be reached with ordinary effort? Unless you are extremely desperate...

'wait for a sec! There's really no way for Mores to get help from the status window... 'Is it?'

Guest ID users with milestones can easily solidify their position and gain power through the status window.

So, it's only one possibility, but what if Mores is really a newbie?

'If you complete the quests as quickly as possible and gain a few useful skills like me, it's not impossible to reach the 8th level as an Auror within a few years!'

Of course, there is a condition that the progress must be much faster than Owen, who was obsessed with quests every day for his family.

'No way, is it really Mores...?'

Then again, an afterimage of a small mountain goat flashed in my mind as if I had been waiting for it.

-All the colleagues I was with died. In the end, I am the only one who survived.

A voice that rang out bitterly, and a small hoof stuck out defenselessly.

No, but it can't be. Mores may have never left the imperial palace, but he could not have gone through a crisis to the extent of losing all his colleagues...

"Lowering. "What are you thinking about?"

Owen suddenly came to his senses at the sound of Sir Martha's voice.

When I looked around, I saw that everyone had already finished eating, and I was sitting blankly in front of the campfire, holding a bowl of stew.

"Do you have no appetite? "I'm very worried because both of you seem to be lacking energy today."

Then the elderly knight next to him stroked his handsome mustache and opened his mouth.

"If it's your Majesty Mores, don't worry too much, Sir Masaine. "I will bring you some warm Melbourne and a light snack right now."

"Oh, would you please? Thank you always, Director Bruno."

"you're welcome. "It is my life's mission to provide you with all of your refreshments."

Owen looked blankly at the man who was saying strange things with a polite expression.

I said it was Manager Bruno. I heard that he was a Dekaron Knight who even served as a knight commander in the past. Why is his life's mission 'serving the prince's refreshments'?

However, the behavior of Edith, Mores' personal maid, was even more scandalous. He rummaged through his luggage, took out tea leaves and a kettle, and handed them over to the leader with a shameless look!

"Oh my! "I will take care of that, so please be careful not to disturb the tea leaves at all, Miss Edith."

"yes. "I understand, Captain."

why? Riding a car is the job of a dedicated maid, right?

'for a moment. Come to think of it... ... '

When I think back, it was the same when preparing meals. Only the resident knights were busy, but the dedicated maid was leisurely cleaning up fallen leaves around the bonfire.

I don't know what the maid followed her for.

'But it doesn't seem like he's diligently serving his master. Why does Mores keep such a maid by her side?

In the midst of the confusion, a faint humming sound is heard from beyond. It was an aria that Director Bruno was humming softly while brewing tea leaves. It was as if every action of serving the prince brought great joy to him.

Naturally, this question arose. What on earth does Mores mean to General Manager Bruno?

"..."

Owen put the cooled stew into his mouth with a shocked expression.

Once again, he thought that he really didn't know anything about Mores.

Ever since he fell out of the Emperor's favor, there has been a strange sense of tension among the resident knights.

Owen, who had already noticed the change, openly asked them the reason while they were eating together.

Originally, he got along well with the soldiers on the southern front, so it was easy for him to become friendly with the resident cavalry.

"What's going on? "It seems like everyone has been glancing at that article for a while now."

What Owen was pointing at was a young junior knight. A young man with a long scar on his forehead who looks a bit mean-spirited.

"ah. "Have you noticed this, Your Majesty?"

The person in charge of this was Sir Kurt, a senior knight in charge. He glanced sideways at the young knight with a sly smile.

"That friend's name is Kalmen. "Actually, I was waiting to see when that guy would explode."

"explosion?"

"yes. Even though Lord Calmen looks fine on the outside, doesn't he have some flaws in his personality? Let me tell you about that friend's brilliant record... .."

"Mr. Lee! Is everyone going to be like this!?"

Sir Calmen, unable to bear it any longer, jumps up from his seat. It looks like he is very angry at the criticism of his colleagues that lasted for several hours.

Of course, regardless of his feelings, the resident knights who found an excuse to make fun of him were merciless.

"Whahaha! Well then! "Have you seen it now, sir?"

"You win, Lord Claudia. "That guy just clearly said 'Mr. Lee!'"

It is Sir Vincent, a mid-level knight, who takes out the coin. Considering the name was popular in the North and the accent with which he spoke, it was assumed that he was probably from the Sigismund region or nearby areas.

"I told you so, Sir Vincent. "With that personality, an explosion takes less than half a day."

The person who excitedly receives the money is Sir Claudia. He is a cheerful-looking knight with a round face covered in freckles.

"... "It wasn't like that."

And, finally, Lord Calmen. Even otherwise, his blunt face has darkened considerably.

It's truly pitiful that he didn't realize that the more he rebelled, the more amused his fellow knights became.

"No, I heard it clearly! "Lord Calmen, I just tried to swear at you very harshly!"

"Don't make assumptions! I just sighed a little hard... ..!"

"What on earth were you planning to say? "Are you going to come close to committing lese majeste again today?"

"no! "Absolutely not!"

Hustle and bustle. It was a truly uncivilized atmosphere, unbecoming of a knight of the imperial palace. Of course, Owen liked the atmosphere here more than the disciplined knights of the main palace.

"why? "What did that friend do before?"

"Oh, my dear! Would you like to take a listen? Well, a while ago, I was on my way to Sigismund Territory with the Wolf Knights. Oh my god, this guy is so fearless... .."

"madam! Sir Claudius!"

Fortunately, there was a friend among the group who was holding his weight properly. It was Sir Robert, who had just joined the monster task force.

"... .."

He looked pitifully at the resident knights as if they were immature squires, and then began unpacking his luggage and taking out a few miscellaneous items.

"I have something to share with you during this interlude. "In a few days we will fall from the grace of the ecliptic and enter a lawless zone, a land where devil worshipers run rampant."

What he distributed to everyone were simple exorcism items. Things like weapons that can be easily used without knowing how to use them in detail, or small self-defense devices.

"Is this holy water? How do you use it?"

"Just carrying it on your body or keeping it in your mouth protects your soul. Or you could spray it directly on the devil."

"Sir Robert. "What about this wonderful picture here?"

"It is a self-defense belt engraved with Granius' protection techniques. Keep it under your clothes, Sir Claudia."

As he was carefully examining the items that Sir Robert had brought out, Owen caught the eye of several top-like objects spinning around without direction.

"What are these used for? "It looks like a toy?"

"Ah, my dear. "I guess I won't be able to use them all."

Lord Rohmer answered Owen's question as if he were embarrassed.

"It's called a gyrocompass that searches for magic. "I picked up a few new ones just in case, but for some reason, they all seem to be useless for this trip."

"hmm."

However, Manager Bruno, who was staring at the gyrocompass, secretly put the small top in his pocket.

"... "Captain?"

As Sir Robert looked at him in surprise, Director Bruno cleared his throat with a slightly red face.

"Big. "Isn't there such a thing as an accidental situation?"

"... .."

Everyone wondered.

What on earth could possibly happen that would require you to use a toy top?

"But is it okay for us to have these? "As far as I know, the quantity of consecrated exorcism items is strictly limited by the Holy Church so that only qualified people can possess them."

Sir Masain asked carefully. A strict heresy court would be able to accuse someone of apostasy simply by possessing exorcism items without permission.

Then Sir Robert slightly shakes his head.

"Don't worry about that. This has already been approved by the Holy Assembly. "Prince Mores has repeatedly asked me to prepare for the safety of the party before departure."

... Mores?

Owen reflexively looked back at the carriage where Mores was resting. At the same time, he realized that the resident knights nearby were also looking in the same direction as him.

The eyes of those who had been lightly flirting just a moment ago suddenly had a glimmer of faithful trust in them.

"... .."

At that moment, Owen felt as if he had glimpsed another side of Mores that he didn't know about. What on earth does Mores mean to these people?

-Lee Seong-jin will always be my friend! So believe it! A warrior's guts never lie!

Suddenly, an image of a ranger with a tear-filled face appeared in his mind.

Surprisingly, Owen knew a little friend who elicited a similar reaction in others.

-We will not forget our leader, who always shined in moments of crisis. Pureblood Mashnamu, this Hatasu Titi will always remember you.

A guy who was able to elicit true trust from a shield warrior who was always serious but didn't trust people very much, even if it was a lie.

okay. Just like Seongjin Lee, who led the guest ID users.

'... 'No, what am I thinking!'

Owen shook off the mess from his head.

It's probably because of No. 9's erroneous reporting. From that day on, as I thought of Mores as a newbie, I began to see more and more of a newbie in this guy with whom I had no contact.

From then on, Owen tried to think of other things in his head. Once he began to doubt, he felt that he was moving further and further away from rational judgment.

Thanks to this, when he arrived in Regina that evening, Owen was able to completely erase all thoughts of Newbie from his mind.

It was when I arrived at the accommodation that something strange happened.

"what? what's the matter?"

Mores, who had been stuck in the carriage all day, seemed to be feeling uncomfortable and kept wandering around even after arriving at his lodgings.

Not long after waking up from the hospital bed. Naturally, I couldn't help but be worried.

"why are you like this? Are you okay? "Where else does it hurt?"

However, after worrying as much as I could, the answer I got back was not worth it.

"uh. Noisy... "You idiot."

This bastard! Do you think everything this brother says is just funny?

"hey! If something hurts, it's better to say it hurts! "Don't feel frustrated and do it alone!"

"Don't make a fuss."

It was right then.

Mores frowned and held out his hand.

Coo!

For a moment, Owen felt a shock that made his heart sink.

"what... ... !"

This time, he wasn't mistaken. Mores is really just like the newbie did, calmly showing his small palm towards him!

"Let's talk tomorrow. Because it's nothing. "Go and sleep."

Mores continued to say something more, but Owen, who was already in shock, could not hear anything.

That Mores is really that newbie?

really?

"Huh?!"

Owen hurriedly took a step back, clutching his fading mind.

"Well, I guess you're tired. Take a rest! I'll see you tomorrow!"

Owen, who gave a cursory greeting, turned around and rushed out of the room.

And the deep confusion and self-destruction that followed made me tear out my already free-spirited hair.

"... I couldn't believe it... "Is it really true?"

What now? After all, is there no other way than to ask Mores directly? But how? What should I say?

That night, Owen was so disturbed by various thoughts that he couldn't sleep at all.

And the next day.

Owen, who headed to the restaurant with a blank face, came face to face with Mores, who was sipping a post-meal Melbourne drink in a classy manner.

"Why does your face look like that? Are you going to go to bed at that age? "He's so sensitive in a strange way."

"... .."

I've always thought about it before, but Mores was a guy who only said stupid things.

415. Seongjin Lee's Exploration Journal (4)

The hotel where the group stays is the largest inn in Regina.

Naturally, the restaurant was crowded with people coming for breakfast, and among them, Mores was the one who stood out.

His face, which was as sullen as always, seemed to be engulfed in a particularly secret charisma today. The exorcist's uniform, which is not uncommon in Regina, is also worn on Mores' body, so it seems more luxurious for no reason.

'... 'Mores is really a nanny.'

As Owen sits down with that thought in mind, Mores scolds him as if he had been waiting for him.

"You're late. If you can't sleep, you should at least eat quickly. "It's not enough to cover your bed, so you're not planning on complaining about food, are you?"

As soon as his mouth opened, I felt the people around him pricking their ears in this direction, pretending that they were not eating.

The fact that he commanded everyone's attention just by sitting and sipping tea was truly an incredible presence.

Moreover, by Mores' side, there was a small firework that lit up his head wherever he went.

"Wow. That is the fairy of rumors... .."

"Shh! I can hear you. "Please lower your voice."

The red flames moved around Mores with a lively movement, occasionally devouring the refreshments he threw at them. Its fully tamed appearance looks more like a pet bird raised by the animal than an ancient fairy.

Owen thought.

'Now that I think about it, wasn't there a time when a newbie was like that too? There was a time when a small spark suddenly ignited in the restaurant where our party was gathered. It was just that small in size, but the flame was so powerful that one of the legs of the group caught in it disappeared in an instant.'

At that time, Sir Kurt approached the two men, bowed lightly, and then asked.

"Lowering. "Are you staying in Regina today as planned?"

"Yes, Sir Kurt. "I have various errands to attend to, so you can take the resident knights for a tour of the city."

"Please tell me your destination and I will accompany you."

"Uh, it's okay. Lord Masaine will always be with you. "There will be a lot of camping days ahead, so I hope everyone enjoys what they can while they're in Regina."

"Yes, I understand. Thank you, my Majesty."

Sir Kurt politely bows and leaves. He seems quite used to taking instructions from Mores.

"Oh, and Sir Robert?"

"Yes, sir."

"When you have time, please stop by the church in the suburbs."

Regina's church is a place that exorcists and inquisitors traveling through the North must pass through at least once. Naturally, it would become a place where the information they had gathered was gathered together.

"Anyway, I was about to tell you something from my side. "What would you like to focus on?"

"First of all, I wonder what the atmosphere is like in the Marquis de Benso. "I would also like to know the overall trends regarding the penitent denomination."

"Yes, I understand."

Sir Liber also naturally bows and leaves.

Looking at the scene, Owen thought again.

'Come to think of it, newbies used to do that too. Without anyone realizing it, I would suddenly become the leader of everyone and give out orders as if it were natural. 'Even now, it's amazing to think about how confident and intimidating that little guy was.'

If we were to be honest, Mores was really the general manager of this group. It was his natural position to command everyone, but Owen easily put that fact out of his mind.

'Are you really saying that Mores is Lee Seong-jin?'

Why didn't I realize it until now? The more I look, the more I see that Mores is similar to a newbie.

The human heart was so treacherous. Until yesterday, I had tried my best to deny it, but now that I have acknowledged the possibility, even though it is difficult, doesn't it seem like I can see Lee Seong-jin in all of Mores' actions, as if it were a lie?

"Oh, and Owen."

"... huh?"

Because I was deep in thought, my answer was a beat late. Then Mores, having finished giving rough instructions to his men, enters Horrock and Melborn.

"You should come to the logistics relay station with me today."

"Logistics relay station?"

"okay. Do you have some money to spare? "There's a really good investment product out there. Why don't we do business together?"

"... business?"

"uh. I can assure you that this is a business where you can easily make twice or even three times the amount invested. "If you give me permission, Branch Manager Schmidt will give you the contract right away."

Mores explained the general situation to Owen, who just blinked dumbly. Currently, he runs a small and medium-sized business called 'Bertrán & Lee' and is working hard to develop a northern distribution network from the ground up.

The outlook was bright. However, since it is still a time when more initial funds are needed than profits, they are looking for new investors with enough money to spare.

"Logan has already invested most of his pocket money at the top. "He can be said to be the highest representative of the top, both in name and reality, with the largest stake."

Owen, who was spooning cooled stew into his mouth, wrinkled his nose inadvertently.

Not only is he the best representative of the top, but he is also the best player in Delcross in name and reality. Logan is the representative, so is the top really good?

Mores, who noticed Owen's confused expression, quickly added an explanation.

"Of course, I also have a fairly large stake. And although it is a relatively small amount, Amelia and Sisley have already invested some of their pocket money."

"... Amelia and her youngest?"

"okay. Have you ever seen your sister do something stupid?"

Well, Amelia can be trusted. Owen then nodded.

"Sounds pretty good. But I don't have any money? As you know, I haven't really had a chance to save money because I've been stuck on the southern front."

Then Mores made a very puzzled expression.

"What are you talking about? "I heard that every month, every bit of your pocket money is being deposited in Hayden Bank."

"... Pin money?"

"okay. Since you never used it, interest continued to accrue for several years. "Now it has become an amount that cannot be ignored."

Oh, I see. Now that I think about it, he seems to have heard from the chamberlain that his father gave him a lot of money every month. I had so little to write about that I completely forgot about it until now.

"... .."

Owen stopped eating and became absorbed in a strange feeling. He foolishly thought that all he had in his hands was what he had collected from the [Pangaea Chronicle]. So he went to great lengths to solve the problem by earning cash through gifts or anything else.

'But now that I think about it, I've never once felt like I needed money in the past few years.'

This means that even on the battlefield, they were relatively wealthy. This part gives you an idea of how many benefits he enjoyed as the prince of the empire.

'And whether I forgot or ignored the existence of that money, my father just silently continued to support me. 'He probably thought it was my due.

Suddenly, Owen realized that, unlike before, he was thinking these thoughts with a much more relaxed mind.

okay. Owen no longer considers the things given to him as undeserved. This is because they know that simply enjoying what they have in their grasp is the full reward for the love and consideration given to them.

And he does not consider pouring all of those precious gifts to his family to be in vain. After all, isn't everything you do for your family?

So he responded lightly to Mores.

"Right. I have a lot of money. Then, there is no need to explain in detail about investments and profits that I cannot understand.

"Anyway, Mores, you're saying you need money now?"

"what... .. ?"

"Okay, how much can I give you? All I have to do is go to the logistics relay station with you like this and sign the contract, right?"

Then Mores suddenly frowned and glared at Owen. It looks like he doesn't really like his answer.

"... "Have you never heard somewhere that you shouldn't sign something carelessly?"

"huh? well... .. ."

Feeling a vague sense of déjà vu, Owen tilted his head to one side for a moment.

"Is that so? I don't remember very well. why? "Why should I do that?"

Then whee-!

Mores, who was quickly raising his arm as if trying to figure out what he was going to do, suddenly stopped moving and clenched his fist!

"Ah, you idiot!"

Owen was quite taken aback by the sudden personal attack.

"what? what's the problem! "Why are you calling a normal person an idiot?"

"Who in this world just gives money after being told to invest? Don't you want to find out properly? Didn't I already tell you to keep your head straight? uh?"

Owen was dumbfounded.

"What, is that why you're angry? I just can't figure it out! Then don't ask for money in the first place!"

"You man, you don't understand at all! The problem isn't that I asked for money, the problem is that you just gave it to me without even thinking about it! "Don't you know that yet?"

"No, what kind of nonsense is that... ..!"

Owen, who had been getting angry and not giving up, felt as if he had been hit in the back of the head by a sudden realization.

what? Take a look at this.

If you look at the way he suddenly gets irritated even if he does everything he asks, doesn't Mores look a lot like a newbie?

The early morning sunlight falls on disheveled silver hair as a faint halo of light.

As time passed, the sunlight began to move, gently caressing the little girl's white cheeks and the pink eye patch around her neck.

Then, with difficulty, she crawls to the feet of the Sword Master, who had spent the night wide awake by the girl's side.

"... .."

Logan sat motionless until daybreak. One of his hands was holding Arjuna's handle, and the other was holding a flat stone.

How much time has passed like that?

smart.

"Lowering. Sir Otto would like to see you for a moment."

With a small knock, a young Inquisitor entered the room. It was Sir Boris, who had been in charge of escorting Sisley recently.

"They say there's something they need to report urgently to the council. "I will now guard the saint's side, so please don't worry and go."

"... .."

Logan looked at the Inquisitor's seemingly innocent face. There will still be no change in the fact that he is also a member of the Heresy Tribunal with whom he does not communicate well.

But Sir Boris's recent attitude toward Sisley has always struck me as deeply sincere. So Logan was able to get up from his seat obediently.

"Well, take care of Sisley, Sir Boris."

Even so, Logan stood by Sisley's side for a moment, and only after reaffirming that his sleeping brother's Auror state was extremely calm did he finally leave the room.

"Sir, it looks like the council will finally make a decision."

As soon as Sir Otto bowed to Logan, he opened his mouth urgently.

"What do you mean by decision?"

"It's departure. "It is said that General Lysander, the commander-in-chief, has just ordered the summons of all troops."

"... Right."

It was worth moving Sir Valerie to hasten the church audit.

Logan took a long stride and began a quick discussion with Sir Otto.

"The organization of each knight corps will be as discussed before. "It would be a good idea to divide Liliium into three teams accordingly."

"What about [ancient fire] stability issues?"

"It seems General Lysander plans to load them in the center of the formation. "Our punitive force will be mainly stationed on the outskirts, so we probably won't have to deal with those difficult chemical weapons directly."

Just like that, they were crossing the council courtyard. Logan's sensitive senses detected an unusual disturbance in the air in the distance.

"... Lowering?"

When the prince suddenly stops walking, Sir Otto turns around as if wondering. But Logan gave him a small wave of his hand and then quietly focused his senses somewhere else.

Just outside the council building, under the high wall overlooking the beach.

"... .."

Several workers had gathered there and were in the process of dumping stones they had carried in sacks onto the floor.

Rumbling... ..

"What are all these?"

"Ah, this is what Councilor Ambrose told me to do. "It looks like they are suddenly carrying out repair work on the head tower."

"Renovation work? Why all of a sudden?"

"The story about the tower that brings the curse of the sea breeze is famous these days, isn't it? So, before the punitive force sets sail, the tower is neatly reorganized and priests are called in to consecrate it."

Ambrose.

When his name came out, Logan's face turned cold.

"Right. But why are all the dismantled stones brought here?"

"Well, what did you say? He instructed us to first bring all the stones from the lower southeast corner of the tower. "Did you say it is worth preserving as historical material?"

"It's no big deal. "If you preserve it, you preserve everything, so what's the point of focusing only on the southeastern part?"

Logan, who was quietly listening to their conversation, unconsciously fumbled around the inside of his uniform coat.

Hidden inside it was a flat rock that Mores' wolf dog had picked up last night.

The devil Glumgos, or rather Branch Manager Schmidt, was dumbfounded as soon as he met the prince and his party who had been waiting for him. He was so surprised that he didn't even have the presence of mind to show proper courtesy.

It was because of the unusual flame hovering above Prince Mores' head.

"Well, what is 'it'...' ... ?"

Then, red flames began circling around Director Schmidt as if threatening. It was clear that there was a strong protest against the reference to 'it'.

"That being said, please show proper manners, Branch Manager. "She is an ancient fairy who shared her trials and blessings with me."

"... Ancient... fairy?"

In response to Prince Mores' reply, Branch Manager Schmidt gaped dumbly, unable to continue speaking.

No, you must be joking, right? By all accounts, isn't that a great demon with magical energy?

But why is the devil wearing a sacred barrier and flying around unharmed in front of people's eyes?

416

416. Seongjin Lee's Exploration Journal (5)

The flame felt very foreign to Schmidt.

When you see demonic energy creeping up, its source is undoubtedly the soul of a demon. But there was something strange about the way it wore its true form.

'I don't see the devil's direct contract target nearby!'

There are two main ways demons appear in other dimensions.

One is to descend by borrowing the body of a contracted person, and the other is to appear directly by consuming a huge amount of causality.

However, to be considered as being mediated by the contractor, the flame took the form of too pure energy. It means that it is truly a burning flame itself.

This would mean that he was emitting magical energy strong enough to clearly materialize his energy, but upon closer inspection, it didn't seem like that was necessarily the case.

In fact, the amount of demonic energy it gave off was very insignificant.

'no way... Did a slightly different law, perhaps the law of the normal world, intervene in the process of materialization?'

It felt as if something had been blocked by a veil, as if the cause and effect necessary for existence had been strangely avoided.

But Schmidt's thoughts did not continue there. That tiny firework started screaming at him.

[Such a rude bastard! How dare you, without even knowing the subject, refer to this great Demon King as 'this'?!]

A guy who is less than a handful of distance away, where on earth does that confidence come from?

It seems that Schmidt's thoughts were clearly revealed in his facial expression. The flames were now spewing out sparks and the body was shaking.

[Hey, look at that cheeky expression! Why can't we be polite? I can't even take care of myself, so I make a list of my compatriots and sell them for half a penny!]

Schmidt came to his senses at that shout.

for a moment! That evil... No, how does a 'fairy' know about the 'list of contracts'?

"... Lowering?"

The only person who can explain this whole situation is Prince Mores. But Schmidt, who looked back at the prince, was even more embarrassed.

I was so distracted by the strange flame that I didn't notice it until now, but the demonic power that Prince Mores was emitting from earlier was no less strange.

It's so hard to wonder how a human body can withstand such a high concentration of demonic energy.

'I felt my demonic energy was weak before, but it wasn't like this... ...
!'

Of course, Schmidt has also recently heard several incredible rumors.

They say that Prince Mores is an apostle who underwent trials from the main god, or rather, that he actually received the blessings of an ancient fairy.

but-

'Anyway, you did something like that in the imperial capital and stayed safe? 'How on earth?'

Unlike Schmidt, who was shocked, Prince Mores was overly relaxed. He glanced around at the cabinet on one side of his office and, with a casual attitude, took out a plate that had been on display. It was a precious Breton porcelain plate with gold lacquered edges.

"This is good. "Would you like to sit here for a moment?"

As soon as the prince's words left his mouth-

[Hehehe.]

The suspicious flame seemed to be waiting and landed on the plate.

It felt like seeing a well-trained pet. For someone who was talking so loudly about being a demon lord and all, he was truly insignificant.

"Lowering..."

"Don't say anything, branch manager."

"Yes, sir..."

"It's my business. So let's not worry any more and just do our own thing."

No, it wouldn't be easy even if I told you not to worry...

As Schmidt squinted at the flame nestled comfortably on the plate, it shouted triumphantly at Schmidt again.

[Wahahahah! I really like this plate! Isn't it a truly beautiful object worthy of the great Demon Lord? It just worked out, Banpoon! As a sign of respect and obedience, I gladly allow you to offer this plate as an offering to the great Demon King!]

Schmidt's brow furrowed.

You can't just beat something that small.

Owen, along with Masain, was treated respectfully as an honored guest of the Merchant Association.

No sooner had the branch manager sat down than he was personally guided by, but his secretary quickly brought in hot tea and refreshments. It is no different from the treatment received by Mores.

'I said Schmidt. I thought it had a stubborn and bleak look, but there is a part of it that is more affectionate than it looks.'

Owen thought as he munched on a cookie.

He is not the Emperor's biological son, and Sir Masain is completely removed from the right to succeed to the throne. Both of them were in a position where it was easy for them to be looked down on by merchants who usually pursued practical interests.

'... Or is this all thanks to Mores?'

Owen stared at Mores, who was engrossed in the story.

Conversing without hesitation with Branch Manager Schmidt - "He just pretends not to know, Branch Manager." "Yes, sir. that... No, the fairy is clearly referring to herself... .." "Uh-huh! "You must have heard wrong." Looking at Mores, it seemed like the two people had always been quite close friends.

'Well, so you're going to take charge of Mores' business and manage it, right?'

In fact, if you look at the inside story, it may be because the two also belong to the 'Children of Seonghwang' that demons are most afraid of being associated with. Of course, there was no way for the current Owen to know that fact.

"Here, we have selected businesses that are suitable for you to invest in. Please review it slowly."

As Mores said, the branch manager immediately brought Owen a well-organized folder.

A map of the continent with detailed roads, and various business plans grouped by field.

'hmm. Anyway, I don't know much... ... '

Owen picked up the dense pile of documents and immediately felt a strong temptation to close them back. However, I don't know how he knew what was going on in his head, but the look in his eyes as he looked back at Mores was extremely harsh.

"..."

Owen had no choice but to try to force his eyes to see the letters in the documents. Looking at it, it seems like Mores will ask about the details later.

As I was grumbling for a while, Masain, who was no better than me, was next to me and gave me some advice.

"How about here, in the copper mine? "It is said that the repairs to the mine shaft have made considerable progress, so wouldn't we be able to expect fairly high profits from next year?"

"oh! "Do you know business well?"

As Owen smiled, Masain smiled.

"Actually, I don't know much. Isn't the salmon business, which was expected to be the least profitable of Mr. Mores's plans, already on track? "Then what more can I say about the prospects of other businesses that were expected to be good from the beginning?"

"Well, I see."

This means that no matter what you choose, you will get more than your fair share.

'good. Let's leave the details aside and just keep a general idea of the types.'

Owen felt much more at ease, and instead of struggling with his files, he listened to the conversation taking place next to him.

At the moment, Mores was in the middle of listening to the branch manager's business report.

"Repair of the copper mine is progressing steadily. "I thought people might avoid the place because it had been abandoned for a long time, but since the compensation was generous, people ended up gathering."

"Right."

"The operation of the logging farm is already going smoothly. We are already selling some wood to a Cyprus shipyard, and we plan to expand supply to the entire north as soon as a land route is secured. "We will be able to hire additional refugees."

"good. In any case, don't spare money on hiring and compensation. "We have already reduced a lot of costs by securing low-temperature carriages."

Mores seemed like a seasoned businessman when he responded like that. The more you look at him, the more new things he reveals to you.

"Did you say that several villages have emerged around the business site? "How are we maintaining security?"

"We have deployed sufficient security personnel at the business site. "I heard that in the case of villages, the refugees who settled there formed their own vigilante groups."

Then, Mores tilted his head to one side for a moment and then gave additional instructions.

"Then, set up small sales offices run by the merchants in those villages. First, sell daily necessities cheaply and repair appliances as cheaply as possible. "We are dominating the village market."

"... yes?"

"Oh, don't forget to deploy additional security personnel to guard the sales office."

Then, Branch Manager Schmidt looked dumbfounded.

"No, sir. Are you saying there is a market to occupy in that shantytown? It's just a waste of security manpower... .."

"... .."

"Oh, no way! Because of the safety of the village... ..?"

However, upon receiving Mores' bored gaze, he soon sighs and lowers his head.

"yes. Well sir. We will carry out the ceremony as instructed. Why are you so anxious about not being able to provide food to refugees in the North?"

Hmm, I'm not sure, but it's something serious.

As I was blankly watching Mores work, Masain looked back at Owen and smiled proudly.

-How is it? Hasn't our young man grown up so proudly?

An expression that reveals such thoughts without filtering.

Owen felt a little strange. Even before he left for the southern front, Sir Martha would always stare endlessly at the Pearl Palace from afar.

"... hmm?"

Charakcharak.

At that time, Mores, who was flipping through the report without hesitation, suddenly furrowed his eyebrows.

"But the branch manager."

"Yes, sir."

"Why is the import of grain from the South still sluggish? "Didn't we expect that out of all the businesses we started, we would be the first to make a profit?"

Then, Branch Manager Schmidt looked embarrassed.

"The response from the lords who sought cooperation is not very friendly. "Why are you saying that if we don't double the current magic tax, we will never give you a way?"

Owen asked, looking back at Masain.

"older brother. "What on earth is magic tax?"

"We are imposing a tax on the number of horses pulling the carriage. I don't know much, but I heard that merchants traveling to and from the North pay the magic tax levied separately for each territory."

"Oh, I see."

There are all kinds of strange taxes.

In any case, it seemed certain that the 'horsepower tax' would have a negative impact on Mores' business. Because the guy's face suddenly turned bloodthirsty.

"why? Didn't they already say they would pay more horsepower tax than the market price? Moreover, in the long run, it is a structure that greatly benefits their territory, right?"

"I don't know why, sir."

Schmidt answered as if he were embarrassed.

Castile, Milo, Benso, Cavour, and D'Aciano.

The five of them are nobles of the old royalist faction who currently reign like kings throughout the northern region. Perhaps because they smelled something profitable, they all gave a cold answer to Schmidt's proposal.

But Mores, who had been lost in thought for a moment, opened his mouth softly.

"... "Didn't the Marquis d'Arciano lead that atmosphere?"

Then, Branch Manager Schmidt looked at Mores as if he was surprised.

"Yes, that's right, sir. The Marquis d'Aciano's attitude is too strong. But how did you know that?"

"okay. Right."

Mores' eyes darken.

At that moment, Owen unconsciously corrected his posture due to the eerie energy of the guy he was seeing for the first time.

'That guy...'

I knew it intuitively. That Mores was really angry.

The funny thing is, even though Owen had been fighting with Mores so much, he didn't know what it was like when the guy was really angry.

"I guess I'll have to change my schedule."

Mores' cool gray eyes shed an eerie silver light.

"After all business trips are over, I think I should stop by Dacia Noryeong."

417

417. Seongjin Lee's Exploration Journal (6)

Horsepower tax.

The origin of this historic tax dates back to the 5th era of prosperity.

Even after the founding of the Holy Empire Delcross, there was no other country on the continent with a strong centralized system. In other words, it was a time when the power of local lords was sky-high.

At that time, the lord was truly an omnipotent being next to the god. To them, the concept of 'social contract' was nothing more than the nonsense of philosophers who had no idea about the world.

Everything in the territory belongs to the lord, and all power is also in the lord's hands. Therefore, checking what they had and imposing ingenious taxes on it was a natural routine, like a businessman writing ledgers and counting money.

Lords devised various ways to raise taxes to increase their wealth. Typical examples were fishing tax, hunting tax, reservoir tax, and river inflow tax. If you want to hunt and farm on your land, isn't it natural to pay a reasonable fee?

Also, some lords came up with the groundbreaking idea of imposing more taxes on those who had more. So they started imposing taxes on things that were considered 'luxury' goods.

These are things like the 'stove tax' in the North, where taxes are levied by counting the number of stoves, and the 'window tax' in the South, where taxes are calculated based on the number of windows.

However, even to such lords, merchants were very ambiguous beings.

Not only are they not Young Ji-min, but the items they sell are also not theirs. Therefore, there was no clear justification or standard for imposing taxes.

-Anyway, shouldn't they collect the amount of money they profit from my land?

So, at first, the lords collected a 'carriage tax' that set a tax per carriage. The idea was that it wouldn't be fair for a guy who sells a lot of stuff to walk a lot.

However, soon after the trend of levying the carriage tax spread across the continent, merchants blinded by profit began doing scandalous things. Aren't they starting to build bigger and bigger wagons to try to reduce reasonable taxes?

-Such terrible things...

So, the next thing that started to be implemented was the 'wagon weight tax'. The principle was simple. The question is, shouldn't taxes be levied based on the amount of goods loaded?

The problem is that the measurements were not uniform for each territory, and pulling out each item and measuring its weight was quite a daunting task.

-Master! There is a ridiculous shortage of collectors!

-The goods were damaged while being weighed, so the merchants demanded compensation in front of the castle gate!

Then, the lords calculated the floor area of the carriage and began levying a 'carriage area tax.' Although it was inconvenient for the collectors to have to carry a tape measure around with them, it goes without saying that the work became much easier compared to the hard work of measuring weight.

However, as soon as the 'wagon area tax' was properly established, merchants once again caused problems. Those idiots who don't know what to do have now created a deformed carriage with high pavement and reduced floor space as much as possible.

Tax revenues show no signs of increasing, and carriages with unstable turning radius frequently cause rollover accidents.

At this point, the lords also threw up their hands and feet. Consistency is a thing, so I just decided to walk the way I wanted to.

-The wagon is too high. This time, you have to pay a 'weight tax'.

-yes? But Mr. Collector. Didn't the 'area tax' apply until recently?

-What kind of complaining about being full? Don't you know that the neighboring territory charges both a carriage tax and a weight tax? I am grateful to our lord for his deep generosity toward merchants.

For hundreds of years, taxes were levied heavily, or even double or triple. One person who expressed strong disapproval of this complicated tax system was Granius, who was traveling across the entire continent and writing [Exploration of the Mysterious Continent].

He used to travel mainly along the merchant fleet that moved from territory to territory, but he was repeatedly caught by this tax and eventually exploded.

-You idiots! Regardless of whether the load is large or heavy, or the number of carriages increases, isn't everything that pulls it a horse anyway? Then it's easy to just pay taxes according to the number of horses you need!

-Well, such a simple method... ... ?!

Thus, the tax that gradually began to be unified during the reign of the five great emperors was the 'horsepower tax.'

Because it can accurately reflect not only the load capacity but also the amount of vegetation consumed by the horses on the estate, it received great attention from the feudal lords at the time and has continued to this day.

And now, there was someone who reminded us of the original purpose of the historic magic tax. It was the Marquis of Berseus d'Arciano, who was demanding that he spit out as much money as he earned.

-Your business will definitely generate profits that are more than twice that of the existing business. So, of course, pay the magic tax twice as well. If you don't listen to this, there will be no more dialogue with the North.

Also, here was someone who fundamentally questioned the deep-rooted justification for the magic tax. It was Prince Mores who maintained the attitude, 'I cannot give even a penny to a man who covets my money.'

"The problem in the first place was that I was trying to pay the absurd horsepower tax. "If you try to use trickery to make it easier, problems like this end up happening."

In response to Mores' grumbling, Branch Manager Schmidt, as well as Owen and Masain, who were listening to their conversation, exchanged puzzled glances.

Why is paying the magic tax properly a trick?

"After all, work must proceed as expected."

"... If you do it, it will deteriorate. "What does that mean?"

When the branch leader asked the question carefully, one corner of Mores' mouth rose playfully.

"It means that we will no longer be fooled by those who abandon God for personal gain. How dare you impose taxes on the servant of the Lord, who carries out the Lord's work in the Lord's land?"

"... .."

"So, even though it may be a bit troublesome, I will strictly consider their mistakes and guide them to the proper path of faith. "That is the norm."

Schmidt was momentarily speechless and gaped.

Well, from the Orthodox Church's point of view, that may be the correct opinion. That could be possible... ..

"But you. A nobleman's fiefdom is his land that he manages. Whether it is a toll tax or a horse power tax, it is natural to pay a price appropriate for that right... .."

"If you do it, you'll be the branch manager. "What about the bandits who settle down in the unclaimed mountains and manage the roads?"

"... yes? "A bandit, huh?"

"okay. "If they say they will properly manage the passageway and charge money for it, will you willingly pay them?"

... No, isn't that really far-fetched?

At that moment, everyone in the office thought so, but Mores' attitude was nothing short of confident.

"Take note, Director Schmidt. After the fall of Ortona, the lords who rule there are no longer subject to official diplomacy by our Ministry of Foreign Affairs. From the empire's perspective, this means that they are not much different from bandits who simply took over unclaimed land and people at will. "No credit, no trust."

"that-"

"The same goes for horsepower tax. The reason we gave up the money was not because they had the right to do so. "It is simply so that the land that has suffered for a long time due to civil war will not be trampled by force again."

widely.

After speaking up to that point, Mores closed the folder and looked down at the branch manager arrogantly.

"So, please politely convey our position to the Marquis d'Arciano again. Never forget that everything on the land, even a handful of soil or a blade of grass, belongs to the Lord. "Tell the people of the Lord who come and go there to stop stealing."

It was not a comment that could be made politely at all. Isn't this just asking for a fight?

"Do you understand? From now on, there will no longer be a 'horsepower tax' on our top's expenses."

"... .."

"Why is your face like that? Be happy, branch manager. "Hasn't the budget for the northern reconstruction project been reduced dramatically?"

I can't stop you.

In the end, dejected, Branch Manager Schmidt lowered his head. I have no doubt that the large-scale business plan covering the entire northern region will now come to naught.

"I understand, sir. Then, I will send the answer to the five lords as soon as possible."

But when Mores heard those words, he suddenly tilted his head and responded.

"huh? Why are you sending it to all five? "We just have to fight one guy."

"... yes?"

"The only thing I was talking about was Dashiano, right? "One example is enough."

For a moment, a cold silence fell in the office.

example.

Even the clueless Owen couldn't have known what Prince Mores' remark meant.

"Don't worry, Director Schmidt. Because I won't make a big deal out of it. "I'm only going to hit one guy."

As the words were added as if nothing had happened, Owen suddenly felt a chill.

From then on, Mores' work went smoothly.

After quickly discussing the past inspection as well as future plans, he asked Branch Manager Schmidt for a new residence where he could secure a private space. Somehow, it seemed like he was going to postpone his business trip and stay in Regina for a while.

'What else are you going to do here?'

Such questions rose up to his throat, but Schmidt could not bring himself to ask the prince openly.

Mores stood up and finally asked Owen the question he had been waiting for.

"Okay, Owen. "Have you read the plan?"

"Yes? "Yes, of course."

Owen, who caught a glimpse of Masaine, added:

"I thought the copper mine looked good? So, I'm thinking about investing some money here... .."

"Hmm, okay. "It's good there too."

Mores answered obediently, but judging by the way he furrowed his eyebrows, it seemed like he didn't really like the answer.

"But instead of that, why don't you just invest in the grain business?

"There are no results yet, but now that the horsepower tax is completely gone, the sales profit is expected to return as profit."

'No, if you were going to decide anyway, why did you ask me to read it?'

Of course, I really had no intention of questioning it like that.

Susssseu.

Owen quietly signed his name. For some reason, I felt a sense of crisis that it would be better for Mores' personal situation not to stretch himself at the moment.

'Something is different from usual. 'Mores, this bastard, is somehow unusually scary.'

It was late afternoon and the whole schedule was finally over. As he left the office for the last time, Mores looked back at the branch manager.

"Ah, but Branch Manager Schmidt?"

"Yes, sir?"

"If it's okay with you, I'd like to take this plate with me."

"... .."

How safe would you be to say no?

When Mores announced that he would be staying in Regina for a few more days, the reactions of the group varied greatly.

"That's great!" Even so, I wasn't able to get a proper look around because Claudia was dragging the restaurant here and there. "I thought I was just going to explode and die."

"Don't be so weak, Sir Kurt. There are still a lot of places left to visit, right? "But aren't you going with me?"

In response to Sir Claudia's innocent question, Mores gently pulled the hem of Owen's clothes in front of her.

"You can go with Owen, Sir Claudia. Is this guy also new to Regina? "Please guide her well."

"... .."

Is it because of my mood? At that moment, Owen had a strong feeling that Mores was somehow trying to separate him from her.

"Good. "In order to properly gather the information you requested, I was thinking that I would need to spend a few more days meeting the exorcists at the church."

When Sir Robert responded that way, the party's approximate schedule seemed to have been decided. I guess it's Lord Calmen, but he just blinks next to me and seems to have no thoughts.

"good. Then, I will be going to Branch Manager Schmidt's villa for a few days from today. "I have a lot to talk about business with him."

It is a decision that cannot be understood by common sense, to separate most of the escort personnel and go somewhere else.

Owen certainly wasn't the only one who found this strange.

"Then then. "Can't we just follow your side?"

That was when Sir Claudia asked that question.

For a moment, Owen witnessed the sight of Masaine and Director Bruno exchanging meaningful glances.

'... what?'

It was such a fleeting moment that Masain, not Mores, answered the question without even having time to wonder.

"I will be by your side, so don't worry about it. "You just need some private time, so you can relax here for the time being."

Owen felt strange here too.

This guy is not the type of person to do this. He released the resident knights from their duties and said he would take charge of Mores' security on his own?

"By the way, sir. I have something to report to you. Something has been strange for a while. There was a constant banging noise coming from our carriage... .."

"okay? Then it would be best for you to stay at the lodgings, Edith. Don't bother following me, just keep an eye on the carriage as you go. okay?"

"no... ..?"

In that way, Mores separated from his group and left the lodgings with Lord Masaine.

'Oh, I care! Apparently, that guy, Mores, is doing something strange!'

That night. Owen couldn't sleep easily because he felt uneasy. But suddenly, a small text window popped up in front of his eyes.

[Surprising quest? History is made at night! new!]

418

418. Seongjin Lee's Exploration Journal (7)

In a dark room where not even the moonlight shines.

A bright quest window suddenly appears, flashing in the air and revealing a strong presence.

[Surprising quest? History is made at night! new!]

[Quest Grade: E]

[Most people think that after a busy day, it is time to relax and prepare for tomorrow. But did you know? That wise and diligent people never rest even at this moment when everyone else is asleep? The passion of such a small number of people may be the true driving force that creates the world's great history.]

[Reward: 150 P Cash]

[*This product is available in the Pangea Chronicle store window.]

The first thing that came to Owen's mind at that moment was the question of compensation.

'what? Why did Sang Chang-chang set the cash so generously?'

The next thought that occurred to me was that I had no idea what the quest was asking of me.

'What does this have to do with me? What is the driving force of history?'

Owen closed his mouth and glared at the sparkling window.

I thought that, like most of the recent quests, this too might be related to Mores. Sang Sang-chang often used strangely vague expressions about this guy.

'Anyway, what on earth are you asking me to do?'

It was time for Owen to read the window over and over again and think about its contents.

ping!

With a small sound effect, a faint light suddenly pours in from afar.

I looked out the window without thinking, and sure enough, there was a thin pillar of light rising across the night sky in the distance. That is the destination the quest requires.

'... What I'm saying is, go there first.'

Owen jumped up from his seat.

'I couldn't sleep at the moment, but it worked out well. I should spend my time doing quests.'

But that was when Owen was about to leave the door, carrying a hatchet.

Grumpy!

Once again, a small window appears and blocks his view.

[It is recommended to activate the following skills to proceed with the quest.]

['Auror Concealment' activated - 2P cache consumed per minute]

[For the event only, skill proficiency is applied to S rank, the maximum proficiency. Would you like to activate the skill?]

[Activation / Activation]

Owen blinked.

'what. There is only one choice anyway, right? For some reason, I said the reward was high compared to the grade!

If this happens, you will have to receive cash to use your skills, but you will lose money.

'It's shameful, Mr. Sang Tae-chang.'

However, it was rare for the status window to force the use of a skill. This means that you absolutely need this skill to complete the quest now.

Owen sighed and pressed the option.

[Activate / Activate]

Slurp-

Soon, Owen's presence completely disappears. It was a clever auror concealment appropriate for S-rank proficiency.

While Owen quietly left the dormitory, most of the group fell into a deep sleep without noticing anything.

Only Director Bruno got up from his bed for a moment and looked out the window with slightly worried eyes.

Tick tock.

[00:57:22]

Cache is consumed quickly along with the timer.

[Cumulative consumption? 116P Cache]

Fortunately, Owen arrived at his destination a little early and tried to cancel the skill before the reward cash was completely used up.

However, the status window was completely static and only displayed a timer without showing any new options.

Tick tock.

[01:00:01]

'... Looks like I still need to use my skills.'

Owen eventually gave up on canceling the skill and stood at the designated location, quietly waiting for his moment.

[01:05:18]

The place he arrived was a quiet alley on the outskirts of Regina. Unlike the downtown area, which is as bright as daylight, this deserted place does not receive a single ray of moonlight, making it look overly gloomy.

[Cumulative consumption? 138P cache]

'I don't think there will be anything left if I receive compensation for this?'

It was around this time that I started to worry that the cash I was slowly depleting might be exceeding the reward. Owen's eyes widened when he noticed a small light flickering in the distance.

'... huh?'

When I looked closely, I saw that it was a red light coming from a lamp.

Next, the silhouettes of three people walking while relying on that small light come into view.

'What about them?'

The distance was quite far, but Owen, who had strengthened his eyes as much as possible with his Aura, was soon able to recognize the figure of the person walking in front.

A slightly smaller body compared to the other two, and delicate features that are faintly revealed in the red light.

It was Mores.

'That's right! It was all a lie when you said you were going to rest at the villa. 'I had some urgent business to do, so I decided to separate my group and move.'

Then, it was obvious who the sturdy man right behind him was. It must be Masain's older brother who never leaves Mores' side.

The other person was a stranger, but judging by her new appearance, she seemed to be a tall woman.

Owen was troubled as he stared at the three people slowly approaching him.

'ruler. Thanks to Sang Chang-chang, I somehow managed to follow you here, but what happens now? He has already decided to leave me alone, but if I tell him to go with me now, I wonder if Mores will listen... ... '

It was right then. Another small notification window suddenly popped up in front of Owen's eyes.

[The event ends, and the skill will be automatically canceled after a while.]

[Countdown to skill end begins.]

... what?

[5]

'Now, wait a minute, Sang Tae-chang! If I unlock the skill now... ... !'

Huh?

This was when Owen, who was embarrassed, was struggling. Mores, who was in front of her, must have sensed something and suddenly stopped walking and looked around her.

[4]

"Lowering? "Why are you doing this all of a sudden?"

I can hear Brother Masain's voice.

"Someone is lurking nearby, killing all signs, Sir Masain."

"yes?"

[3]

Mores, who was looking around like that, soon looked straight at where Owen was standing.

gulp.

Owen swallowed dryly due to the tightening tension.

'I'm sure you didn't notice this, right?'

No matter how much I thought about it, it was impossible. Obviously, the S-rank 'Auror Concealment' skill hasn't been unlocked yet.

[2]

Sreung!

Oh my, wasn't that a mistake after all? The sound of a sword being drawn without hesitation can be heard.

While Owen was surprised, Mores held a nutcracker in one hand and a red lamp in the other and immediately started running towards him.

"Lowering!"

"Lowering?!"

[One]

The other two people were startled and ran after him, but by then Mores was already close to Owen.

Light blonde hair dirty with dust and a youthful face covered in soot suddenly rush before my eyes.

Perhaps he was trying to disguise himself as someone from the slums. However, Mores' face had an innate elegance that could not be hidden with soot alone.

And the inorganic murderous intent without any sense of hostility is visible on that familiar face.

Owen was completely frozen, helplessly taking in the unrealistic sight.

[0]

At that moment, the count in the status window ended.

Pot!

When Owen's presence was released from the skill, Mores stopped in place with wide eyes.

"... "Owen?"

By far, the boy had the most surprised expression on his face that Owen had ever seen in a while.

"what? You suddenly came out of nowhere without even a trace... Besides, how did you find out about this place?"

Even as he asked, Mores' sword stopped almost in front of Owen's nose.

Owen, facing the terrifying blade with a stern face, realized. If Sang Tae-chang had released his skill a little later, that sword would have pierced his torso without hesitation.

"I almost got into big trouble. When His Majesty Mores suddenly rushed out, I was so anxious... .."

Masain, wearing a mat, shakes his head. He was currently wearing shabby clothes that did not match his gorgeous blonde hair at all.

"I meet the noble prince of the empire."

Beside him, a woman with dark skin like Barshain lowered her head. Judging by the way she was sleeping, it seemed like she was Mores's informant.

"... .."

And standing between them was the sullen-faced Mores. Judging by the fact that he was wearing a tattered cloak, it seemed like he was trying to roughly disguise himself as someone from this area. Of course, in Owen's opinion, it wasn't a very successful disguise.

"Anyway, you. "How on earth did you come to know about this place?"

To Masain's question, Owen answered as much as possible, trying not to arouse suspicion. Because he couldn't answer that he came to do a quest.

"that is... It happened by chance, brother Masain. "I couldn't sleep and was walking down the street when I saw the fairy's red light from a distance."

"hmm... . "By chance."

this. Rather, I think it stimulated Masain's suspicions even more.

"But you. When did you learn Auror Concealment? "Neither I nor my skilled informant could notice my hiding place at all."

It was simply an event driven by the status window. But he couldn't explain it straight away either, so Owen racked his brain to make it look as awkward as possible.

"As I was practicing random things in the South, I was able to naturally conceal myself as an Auror. But we haven't fully mastered it yet, so it's not always possible."

"hmm. okay."

this. I guess the answer would have been worse than keeping my mouth shut. The light of doubt deepened.

However, I wonder how Owen's words were received, and suddenly Mores' informant slightly stumbled on the spot. She looked as if she had been greatly traumatized.

"Unbelievable! Are you saying that even if you don't learn it properly, you can conceal your Aura if you have talent? Is that it? "This dirty world where geniuses do everything!"

I could faintly hear her muttering, and it seemed like she had momentarily forgotten that she was in front of the royal family. It appears that the psychological damage was considerable.

However, contrary to the two people's reactions, their manager, Mores, did not seem to be curious about anything about Owen. He simply confirmed his intention succinctly.

"So, are you going with me?"

"... Yes."

"Okay, then."

In response to Owen's reply, Mores responded briefly and turned around.

"Now that we've met, follow me. By the way, don't forget to apply soot to your face."

Because of this, it was Owen who was rather embarrassed.

'Is that the end? 'Is that all you want to know?'

Cheekcheek.

Owen's expression shows complex emotions as he looks at the boy walking ahead of him.

An attitude that makes you feel like you already know everything without having to listen to detailed explanations. As expected, doesn't it remind you of the young goat that confidently led the party members without being shaken by any situation?

-I'll give you a detailed explanation later, so for now, let's go through the dungeon first. Because I'm still in the time challenge.

When I think about it, the newbie at that time also acted as if he already knew a lot about Owen without having to explain anything. So, he approached Owen in a strange manner and readily gave him his precious heart of ice.

-I don't need it, but Owen, don't you need it? You said you were meeting a goddess?

Where is that? Didn't he come out of nowhere and get a limited edition rabbit eyepatch that Owen needed, and proudly hand it to him?

-Newbie, how did you do this... ..

-Oh, there is a way.

okay. The more I think about it, the more it seems strange that I didn't think deeply about the identity of the newbie at the time.

- Now that you think about it, it's really strange? Why does the more I look at you, the more I feel something familiar?

Owen felt so familiar from the newbie!

'No matter how much you think about it, there is only one answer. As expected, Mores... ..!'

That was when Owen thought about it. Moving forward without hesitation, Mores arrived in front of a shabby building and opened her mouth.

"Owen."

"... huh?"

Owen, who had been thinking about something else, answered a beat late, and Mores turned around and made a request in a soft voice.

"Remember well. From now on, you are Warszawa."

"... Huh?"

"You just went into exile in the empire for religious reasons. That's why I don't know how to say a word of the imperial language yet. So from now on, no matter what I ask you, you will answer everything in Barsha. okay?"

"... .. ?"

"okay?"

"Yes."

In response to Mores' resolute attitude, Owen nodded without thinking.

But if Owen had known in advance what would happen next, he would never have answered so easily.

Mores entered the building with great strides and immediately came face to face with a grim-looking gatekeeper. And then you talk to him calmly.

"I'm here to deliver something. "A person who will take refuge in an underground cult."

For a moment, Owen couldn't believe his ears.

'huh? 'Underground cult?'

Hey, wait a minute! Isn't that the power of heresy? Is that something you would proudly say as a prince of the Holy Empire?

But it didn't end there.

Mores casually added a statement that could have been outrageous, saying that if the Inquisition had found out, he would immediately refer it to the Inquisition. And that while pointing straight at Owen.

"We are planning to use the free underpass to the north. I intend to welcome this heretic from Varsha as a penitent brother. So, hurry up and call your superiors."

... what?

Mores, wait a minute! What?!

419

419. Freedom Underpass (1)

Freedom Underpass.

Seongjin first learned of the existence of the secret organization through Belinda's soul.

The Freedom Underpass was not actually an underground road. It's just a slang that arose naturally because many of those who used this place committed themselves to underground cults.

[It is said that the person who first created this organization was a wealthy Ortonain. It is said that they attempted to rescue those seeking freedom of thought from imperial oppression to their country.]

The history of the Holy Empire spans over a thousand years. Therefore, no matter how many or how few, there will always be people who want to escape from religious oppression or harsh religious trials.

The Freedom Underground provided them with a small amount of food, a stable escape route, and even a new identity if necessary. Since it is operated with a thorough point organization, it is unlikely to be discovered, and even if caught, it can be easily terminated.

As a result, contrary to the initial intention, eventually all kinds of miscellaneous criminals flocked to the area.

[Serious criminals who have no hope of remaining in the Empire mainly gather in the Freedom Underpass.]

Then several years ago.

As the Holy Emperor unified the religious denominations by force, some changes occurred in the nature of this 'freedom underground'.

Underground religious denominations that had been completely expelled from the Imperial Capital began to actively utilize the escape routes of the Free Underground to preserve their power.

In the southern and western regions, [sowing] denominations-

And in the northern area, the [Repentance] Church expanded throughout Ortona.

"So, Giacomo Milo did not hide in the underground cult, but used this northern escape route?"

[Yes, my lord.]

Although the Free Underground is operated with the help of an underground religious denomination, it is difficult to say that it completely falls under the domain of the religious denomination.

So, this is the perfect organization for Giacomo Milo, who had a somewhat strained relationship with the Penitent Church due to the Demon Counter Incident, to hide in.

"hmm."

Seongjin wiped the corners of his mouth and thought for a moment.

"It's been quite a while since Giacomo Milo disappeared. "Why didn't he try to run far west or south?"

Seongjin's question presupposes that Giacomo Milo is in the north. However, neither Seongjin nor Belinda had any doubts about it.

[His entire base is in the North. It would have been difficult to easily abandon it.]

"The upper part was thoroughly confiscated, but there's still some left."

That was good news. I need to secretly steal it and invest it in my business.

When Seongjin unconsciously raised the corner of his mouth, the demon king was startled and disgusted.

[It came out again! An expression like a long-term trading broker handing over that contract!]

shut up! Where do you think all those expensive dishes you're sitting on come from? huh?

[Hidden property is also property, but Giacomo Milo has no contact with the [Sowing] Church. It wouldn't have been easy to make new contact with them and plan something while being wanted. Moreover, his family, Count Milo, was originally... ..]

Belinda's spirit, which was eagerly explaining, hesitated for a moment and then closed its mouth as if something was bothering it.

"why? What?"

[...] Sorry, Master of Soul. This is information I have never known before, and it seems that I am subject to strong restrictions on revealing it.]

"... .."

okay. Now that I think about it, you did say something like 'restrictions'.

[Please rest assured. I can tell. The master will surely arrive at the necessary truth himself in the near future.]

Anyway, based on the information she provided, Seongjin made a solid business trip plan.

First of all, under the pretext of searching for Giacomo Milo, the initial plan was to attack the offending Penitent Church. Then, the activities of the Penitential Church will be diminished, at least temporarily, and even Giacomo Milo will not be able to escape from the free underpass hastily.

Milo Sangjangju is an excuse to go wild. The Penitential Church has long been a thorn in the side of Seongjin.

If they establish a pseudo-cult in a place where the social foundation has already collapsed, won't the people's livelihood in the North continue to be ruined? If left as is, it would definitely become a major obstacle to Bertrand & Lee's ability to expand its power and rebuild the economy in the future.

furthermore-

'It seems that Logan's reincarnation is deeply intertwined with these Penitent Churches.'

Although he was unable to consult with the person involved, it is a point that Seongjin has been paying constant attention to.

Logan also said that before. He has never heard of another person being reincarnated, and he is not sure why he was the only one who did so.

Seongjin had a intuition that the Penitent Church was deeply involved in this. Didn't Belinda say something like this to Seongjin once?

-He is a 'penitential offering' carefully selected by the Archbishop of Penitence to be offered only to the Lord!

However, when I asked Belinda again when she became a member of the family, this time I got this answer.

[Well, I am truly sorry for not being able to help you, Master of Soul. But I have no doubt that you will soon reach the truth alone...]

"Uh, okay. it's okay."

Of course, part of me had a premonition that it would be okay. I also think that there must be a reason why his father has left Logan alone so far.

But since it was a family affair, there was no harm in being overly cautious. How can we be optimistic that something implemented with the wrong purpose would have been accomplished through the right process?

'So let's first defeat the Penitent Church. If you hit him as hard as you can, something will come out about Logan.'

For that reason, Seongjin initially planned to go on a rampage and then capture Giacomo Milo at the right time.

And after he had defeated the Penitent Church to his satisfaction, he thought of taking a tour of the north and trying to discipline the lords who were interfering with the project.

However, when he arrived in Regina and received the report from Branch Manager Schmidt, Seongjin had no choice but to painfully realize that his thoughts had gone too far back.

The attitude of the northern native lords is more stubborn than expected, and they are collaborating among themselves to systematically sabotage the project!

This sabotage will probably last for quite some time. In that case, there might have been some among them who were deliberately inciting everyone.

-Yes, that's right, sir. The Marquis d'Aciano's attitude is very strong. But how did you know that?

Before hearing Branch Manager Schmidt's answer, Seongjin's mind was already spinning rapidly.

Yes, there is a debt that must be repaid to the Marquis d'Arciano anyway.

He must avenge Louise (though he is still alive), pay for destroying Sigismund (although Seongjin has nothing to do with Sigismund), and most of all, pay for coveting (not coveting) Max in front of me. Shouldn't we have to pay for it!

'Then wouldn't it be okay to change the order a little?'

To properly wreak havoc, you need a little more detailed preparation.

However, it would be difficult if securing a new recruit for Giacomo Milo were delayed too much due to being busy with other things.

So Seongjin obediently asked Branch Manager Schmidt to give up one of his villas. Then, as soon as Sir Massain arrived there, he gave this command again:

"Actually, I plan on leaving here for a while, Branch Manager. "This is something that must be done in secret, so the branch manager will take care of it so that my absence is not known to the outside world."

Suddenly, the face of Branch Manager Schmidt, who was busy with his employees preparing to welcome the royal family's guests, suddenly became pale.

"No, you prepared so loudly to welcome guests, but how can you pretend to be here without the employees knowing?"

"Isn't that up to you? "If anything, just call Meemee and hypnotize people."

"yes? Such unreasonableness... ..!"

"Anyway, I trust your abilities. "I believe it, branch manager."

"Hey, you! "Hey, wait a minute!"

Seongjin thought as he walked briskly, leaving behind the branch manager who was desperately clinging to him.

'First of all, I'll have to take Dasha with me. Because there is no talent like him in stealth. Since we've come this far, we can't separate Lord Masain, so we'll go together... ..'

As Seongjin was making plans, Owen's face suddenly flashed through his mind.

For some reason, it was a car that I thought would be perfect to take him with me. It's good to disguise yourself as Varsha instead of Busy Dasha, and even if an accident happens, you'll still be able to do your part.

but-

'... Let's quit. He seems to have already been steeped in pagan customs, so it would be difficult if someone even recognized him.'

A prince who is in league with the pagans and the dark church. If that fact becomes known, the already rock-bottom reputation of the crusade may be ruined.

'And since this is probably his first time in Regina, I tell him to take his time and go sightseeing. 'She's been suffering on the battlefield all this time.'

Seongjin, who was thinking like that, stopped walking and tilted his head.

But I feel like something is a little lacking. What did I miss...

'Well, it will work out somehow.'

Okay then, for now. Should we start by talking to Lord Masain?

"... "Infiltration."

"huh."

"They disguise themselves as poor people and hide as criminals' escape routes."

"that's right. That's right!"

"I guessed that you had some ulterior motive for separating the group, but... "Why?"

It was natural for Masain to be puzzled. Isn't it true that a team of people was originally set up to search for Giacomo Milo?

But why would the prince do such a thing on his own, without the group's knowledge and without their help?

"Tsk tsk. Sir Masain. I only know one, but I don't know the other two.

"The point of this trip is not arresting Giacomo Milo."

"... sure?"

"There is meaning in causing chaos here and there under the pretext of looking for that guy. To do that, we have to first steal him away and hide him in a place no one knows about. That way, he is not restricted by deadlines and can hunt for mice as he pleases."

"... .."

"So, not only other people, but even our group must not know that we have secured Giacomo Milo's new recruit. "That way, everything becomes natural."

Masain looked into empty space for a moment and then sighed softly.

"I didn't understand it, but I understood it anyway. "Why are you telling me all that?"

"Um, that's it... .."

Seongjin raised his head and looked at the loyal knight.

"Because if I don't say something, Sir Martha will definitely be angry?"

"... So, you thought I wouldn't be angry if you told me the plan in advance?"

"Well, I'll be angry, but at least I'll have an excuse that I did my job, right? "Anyway, the cause is important."

chin!

Masain touches the back of his neck and closes his eyes.

"If you do it, you will be degraded. "What if I interfere with your plans by stopping you?"

"what? "You can't do that, right?"

Seongjin smiled brightly and answered confidently.

"If I sneak out anyway, you'll never find me."

"... ... !"

Puzzle.

hmm? I had the illusion that I could hear the sound of teeth grinding...

Whoa, calm down, Sir Martha! Take some of the strength out of that fist!

In this way, Seongjin waited for Dasha to arrive and started dressing up as poor people with Lord Masain.

Fortunately, by that time, Sir Martha's anger had calmed down quite a bit. Of course, he poured out his dissatisfaction with Dasha's every move.

"How can you give me such shabby clothes...""

"What kind of blasphemous thing did you do to your face...""

"Now that I think about it, I taught you that trivial trick...""

My dear, please save me!

Dasha, who was applying soot, gave him a pleading look, but Seongjin, who was numb, had no choice but to quietly avoid her gaze.

In the meantime, there was a brief scuffle with the devil.

[no! Why do I have to go into this shabby lamp, leaving behind the pretty lamp I received as a gift?]

"Then there's nothing we can do. "I have no choice but to leave it behind."

[What? but... ... !]

"Go ahead and choose. "I don't have time anymore."

[...] Sniff!]

Ugh, I miss my flawless 24-sided flame crystal every day!

The Demon King whined profusely, but did not resist any longer and calmly entered the lamp.

Seongjin, who had completed all the preparations, escaped from Schmidt's villa by taking advantage of Schmidt's trick of putting the employees to sleep.

and-

"... "Owen?"

In an unexpected place, I came face to face with Owen's stiff face.

"what? You suddenly came out of nowhere without even a trace... Besides, how did you find out about this place?"

420. Freedom Underpass (2)

When Seongjin first discovered Owen hiding in the dark, he sensed a strong sense of strangeness from him.

'... Auror concealment? no.'

I could tell right away that this was not an ordinary 'Auror concealment'.

Rather than erasing the presence by finely adjusting the aura emission, it feels like a veil has been put on so that the aura activity itself cannot be recognized.

A fundamental interference with the laws of the world that distorts the senses and breaks down the boundaries of perception, making it impossible for ordinary people to even glimpse the essence... ..

"... ..!"

Seongjin's vigilance was close to instinct. It's not mine, nor is it my father's, but is it the will of a third party who suddenly entered this world?

Before he could clearly perceive the situation, Seongjin's hand was already touching the handle of the nutcracker.

I didn't try to understand it any further. This is because I subconsciously felt that the more I learned about it, the less influence I had on it.

Whick!

But that was when Seongjin thrust his sword into the center of the sense of heterogeneity. The veil disappeared from sight as suddenly as it had appeared.

Next, the tip of the nutcracker's blade was a pendant that glowed the color of deep blood even in the dark.

"... "Owen?"

Seongjin recognized the milestone and the opponent at the same time, and immediately retrieved the nutcracker. His mind spins rapidly.

-Is this really it? Is that [signpost] created by Oracle and reflecting the spirit of Oracle?

When I first saw the milestone, I remembered Dexter screaming with extreme excitement.

-So, the principle of this engine editor is based on this [milestone]!

Dexter said at the time: [Homunculus Engine Source Editor] is modeled after the way the Oracle's advanced mental world affects the real world.

'So, the veil of concealment I just saw was a phenomenon caused by the laws of the normal world interfering with this world?'

The powerful will that intervened with a clear purpose that I felt in that split second.

'As expected, the will of the deceased grandmother remains in the milestone in some form. And I ordered Owen to-'

But Seongjin's thoughts stopped there. This is because Owen, who revealed her appearance, was looking at Seongjin with a vain expression, as if the sky had collapsed for some reason. The guy's condition was too serious for her to say she was just surprised.

'Why is this guy so listless after coming this far?'

Now that I think about it, I think the way they respond to attacks is a bit strange.

Seongjin, who played the game together, knew Owen's strength well. He was a flying guy who slaughtered players with only a small one-handed axe.

What is it like in reality? Because he took the lead in breaking the pot of the mighty Barça warriors, he was already nicknamed [Invincible] on the front lines, right?

So no matter how fast I rushed in, I would have had enough time to defend myself.

"Hey, are you sure... .."

Isn't that status window controlling your mental state? Seongjin tried to ask that.

But that soon became impossible. This is because Masain and Dasha ran towards them in a huff.

"Hey!"

"Who is there..." Owen, you? "How on earth do you think this is?"

* * *

"But you. When did you learn Auror Concealment?"

Masain interrogates Owen with a suspicious look.

But Seongjin knew. The fact that what Owen showed earlier was not proper Auror concealment.

As expected, Owen hesitated and answered.

"... "I haven't fully mastered it yet, so it's not possible every time."

I guess so. That was clearly the law of the normal world, because it was like the intervention of the side status window.

If so, it would mean that Owen is currently diligently carrying out the quest given by the status window. Seongjin thought that without any more useless waste of time, she should clean up this place.

"So, are you going with me?"

Then Owen, who was unusually shy, answered with a slightly relieved expression.

"... Yes."

"Okay, then."

Seongjin nodded and turned around. It was to hide my inner displeasure.

'You let him rest for as long as he could, and then you dragged someone here because you couldn't take care of him?'

Well, anyway, that's Grandmother's will. Apart from her instinctive antipathy, there was as yet no feeling that her guidance would be greatly detrimental to Owen.

then-

'Now that this has happened, I guess I should put it to good use. 'I already wanted to give Dasha something else to do.'

So, contrary to his initial plan, Seongjin decided to disguise Owen as Barshain instead of Dasha.

"Remember well. From now on, you are Warszawa."

"... Huh?"

Seongjin, who repeatedly warned the man who was lost in his thoughts as he walked towards the meeting place that he knew in advance, took a long stride.

The expression clearly expressed on the faces of Masain and Dasha who were following behind, 'How can you know about a place like this?' Trying to ignore the question, pretending not to know.

According to the information Belinda provided, there were scattered locations in Regina where one could use the free underpass.

Seongjin arrived at a shabby building said to be most frequently used by the Penitent Church and spoke to the doorkeeper with a calm face.

"I'm here to deliver something. "A person who will take refuge in an underground cult."

Then the old gatekeeper sitting at the entrance looked Seongjin up and down as if assessing him and asked back bluntly:

"delivery? "Where are we going?"

"We are planning to use the free underpass to the north. I intend to welcome this heretic from Varsha as a penitent brother. So, hurry up and call your superiors."

Then the gatekeeper moved slowly and blocked the door directly.

"Wait a minute. There are a lot of faces I've never seen in this area, and among them, a kid is the leader? "Something seems suspicious."

"... .."

"Hey, kid. "What on earth happened to the middle book, and did the guy who delivered it come here himself?"

Then Seongjin looked a little annoyed and glared at him.

"Bethelah. Who are you treating as criminals now? "They say faithful underground sect brothers use the road, so why do they need a middleman?"

There were stories I had already heard from Belinda. In fact, there are no intermediaries that lead you here for a certain fee.

But that's only the case with criminals. It is said that the situation is a little different for believers of underground religious denominations who are directly involved in running the organization.

"Hmm."

I guess it wasn't a wrong answer.

Still, as if something was suspicious, the gatekeeper mumbled in his seat and refused to open the way.

"But kid. Are you really a penitent brother? Even so, there are no signs of penance in any of them... "Your skin is so clean too?"

"So you're going to leave a mark in a place that looks stupid? It's not like they're openly advertising it to the Inquisitors. "Stop making nonsense and open the way quickly."

"Oh, just wait a moment. That guy doesn't look like he's in Barcelona either? "He's just a little tanned, but no matter how you look at him, he's from the Empire."

Seongjin sighed and repeated the holy name.

"Bethelah. This guy is from a Missouri tribe. Missouri has had a lot of mixed blood with Anatolian people since ancient times. I understand everything. People who don't know much may be confused."

"No, even if I said that-"

The gatekeeper's eyes narrow. Since the baby's answer was so smooth, it seemed like his suspicions were deepening.

"How can I believe that? What if that guy is an Inquisitor pretending to be Varshain? If you are confident, prove it."

"What do you mean, how do you prove it?"

"You say it's Barcelona? Then, tell me to at least speak Barça."

"Can you understand if I do it?"

"That's not something the kid should worry about."

Look at this kid. Are you being stricter than I thought?

So Seongjin turned to Owen and ordered.

"Did you hear? He said he couldn't trust that guy. "Hurry up and say something in Barsha."

For a moment, Owen trembled. Maybe it's because I never expected to hear proper Bolantan here.

Fortunately, he didn't make the mistake of looking back at Seongjin with wide eyes.

"100 million! that... ..!"

Owen, who almost blurted out the imperial language without thinking, finally bit his tongue and changed his words.

"hey! What are you talking about? "How are you going to deal with lies like that later?"

But Seongjin's attitude was relaxed.

"You were the one who intervened without proper preparation, right? Look at how you look now and tell me. "How are you going to explain those chicken feathers in your hair?"

"Then you could just say you came from a region near the southern front."

"are you okay. trust me. "It's easier to pretend to be a pagan later."

No matter how disorganized a branch organization is, there are minimum principles of behavior. If he feels that it is a burdensome matter to handle alone, the gatekeeper will eventually pretend that he cannot win and call his superior.

"In addition, there will be close surveillance of the Jayu Underpass for some time to come. Don't you think you should insist in advance that you are a heretic, so that in case of an emergency, you can communicate without them knowing?"

After explaining up to that point, Seongjin looked back at the gatekeeper.

"Did you hear? After explaining the situation well, this friend gets angry? "If you don't take refuge in [Confession] right away, they will ask about your parents' well-being soon."

"... "You don't look very angry, do you?"

Then Owen, who was watching everyone's movements, suddenly showed his teeth and made a strange expression.

It was disastrously poor acting. Well, it was such an awkward and unfamiliar expression that it seemed to have actually made the gatekeeper very nervous.

"But why are you suddenly asking about my parents?"

... hmm. I guess pad lip doesn't work in this world.

"It's an old Barça etiquette. Say hello to those who are hostile to you with force."

Then the old gatekeeper frowned.

"Don't be foolish, kid. "My parents have already passed away a long time ago."

"Well. Then I must ask how you are doing. "I might meet my son in the other world soon. How much pain must it hurt my parents?"

"... .."

"Bethelah."

The gatekeeper looks at Seongjin with a puzzled expression as he reverently makes the sign of the cross. Because his attitude was so confident, it was difficult to get angry. However, if they threaten to chase them away, the prayers of their group are not easy.

Fortunately, the gatekeeper was old and had a lot of experience dealing with the truth.

The best way to deal with troublesome friends is to hand over responsibility to a superior.

"Well, anyway, your treatment is up to the higher-ups. "Go in."

Once we got past the gatekeeper, everything was smooth sailing.

Once inside, they were guided by a short woman who came to meet them and went out the back door of the building. Then he followed her through her winding alleys and finally arrived in front of a shabby wagon loaded with her hay.

"... .."

The woman bowed her head and disappeared without a word.

'... Lowering?'

Masain looked back in confusion, but before he knew it, Seongjin was getting into the carriage as if it was natural.

"... ..!"

Afterwards, Owen and Martha settle down among the hay, and soon the coachman starts the carriage without saying a word.

Taktaktak.

As the carriage began to move, Owen and Martha rolled their eyes, not knowing what to do. In that heavy silence, they were slowly leaving Regina.

'Dasha is catching up well.'

Not far away, I sense her following me using Auror cloaking.

Seongjin felt a little relieved and hugged the small lamp where the Demon King was sitting.

[Where are we going now, Seongjin Lee?]

"Yes, I'm going to the middle intersection of the Freedom Underpass. "Seeing as they skipped meeting their superiors at the starting point, I guess they're going to hand us over to a higher level right away."

[Will it take long? Isn't it dangerous there?]

"What's the risk? If you have to, you can just jump off the ramp. "You can set the carriage on fire with your own strength and run away together."

Then the Demon King flickered his flame as if he was satisfied.

[Ugh! Right. Is it finally time to unleash my power on the world? Now everyone will recognize the greatness of this body!]

Even so, it only became a portable lighter for short-distance navigation.

Seongjin felt somewhat sad and carefully touched the lamp. However, the hushed conversation seemed to sound like Seongjin's muttering to himself to the coachman in front of him.

"Hey guys, don't you know that I'm secretly leaving the city right now? Please be quiet. "What on earth has that young guy been mumbling about since a while ago?"

In response to the coachman's nervousness, Seongjin raised his head and answered him.

"Oh, don't worry about me. My head goes crazy due to fever, so sometimes I say nonsense. "It's just that he's a little noisy, but he's not particularly harmful."

"Ah, I see. My head hurts from the fever... .."

The coachman, who had been replying indifferently, looked back at Seongjin with a strange expression.

"No, but is that what the person in question is going to say now?"

However, Seongjin's attitude was shameless.

"Well, since it's my job, of course I know best. That's why you answer kindly. "What's the problem?"

"... ..?"

"Or do you want my friends to gossip about me? "Wow, you have a really bad personality."

The coachman turned his head again with a puzzled expression.

Is that so? Was I bad?

421. Freedom Underpass (3)

As we leave Regina, the proper road is cut off, and soon a desolate wasteland unfolds before our eyes. The hay wagon ran non-stop through that dark, rough field.

Rattling.

Every time the carriage shook, a thick dust billowed up from the dry ground.

"The top is not the main route. "I can't see a single signpost, so I don't know if the coachman really knows the way."

Masain is wary of his surroundings and whispers softly.

Just as he said, as soon as we left the sleepless city, people disappeared like a lie. The places where small villages once stood have been demolished, leaving no traces of houses, and the land where a road once would have been laid out is now a tangled mess of rough grass and gravel.

"You don't have to be so nervous, Sir Martha."

"But isn't the North already a lawless zone? In this defenseless state, I am passing through a road that is wide open in all directions. "How can we not be on guard?"

"hmm."

Seongjin hugged the moderately heated devil's lamp and adjusted his posture.

"Lord Masaine. Hey, do you see the mark engraved on the corner of the carriage? "There will be four small dots in the shape of a triangle."

Masain looked back to where Seongjin was pointing. When I looked for a while with my aura to sharpen my eyes, I could vaguely see some graffiti that resembled a triangle with a dot in the center.

"It just looks like a stain. Does that make sense?"

"Not at all. "As long as it's there, it means we're safe."

"... Why is that so?"

"It's because this carriage is a sign that it belongs to the Freedom Underpass. "The bandits know full well that trying to loot isn't very fun."

Unlike the upper level, the carriages in the free underpass do not carry valuable items. The only things they 'deliver' are felons who can't find a place in the Empire, or fanatics from underground cults. So no matter which side was touched, it was not good for the bandits.

Masain was roughly satisfied with the explanation, but somehow another question seemed to arise.

"But you. How on earth did you do that... .."

Masain tried to ask a question. Well, it looked like he wanted to ask me something from earlier.

However, when Seongjin turned his gaze and looked into the distance, he also realized the silent rejection expressed by the prince and silently kept his mouth shut.

[I'm bored, Seongjin Lee. Can I take a little walk around the area?]

"Stop it, devil. "If you suddenly start flying through the air, what will that coachman think of you?"

[Can't we just burn the whole carriage?]

"no."

[Tch!]

The night passed very slowly.

Meanwhile, Seongjin looked up at the starless cloudy night sky, and sometimes talked to the devil in silence.

The coachman, who had repeatedly called him annoying, didn't even look back after arguing with Seongjin several more times. This is probably because she painfully realized that opening her mouth would only make the wrong person and gain nothing.

Then, around dawn, they arrived at a small hut standing in the middle of the wasteland.

"Howdy!"

At that moment, a middle-aged woman who was sitting in front of the door burning a pipe, when she saw the carriage, raised her hat and greeted me. The foul smell of smoke from afar stings her nose, as if she were smoking extremely poor quality tobacco.

"hey. Why did you come this far? "The 'hay' delivery is from Rubel."

Then the coachman jumped off the coach seat and spat on the floor.

"Ah, this delivery is a 'special delivery'. "Take over the luggage like this and transport it to Verdron."

"Special delivery? "Yeah?"

The woman glanced at Seongjin and his group for a moment with puzzled eyes. Looking closely, she was clearly an unusual person who could not be hidden by shabby clothes and soot.

"It's rare. "I was wondering if I would take a break today, but it turned out to be all right."

That was the end of the conversation. The driver disappeared into the cabin, leaving the hay wagon alone.

Meanwhile, a woman came pulling another carriage. It is a small wagon filled with oak barrels.

"Did you hear? 'Hurry and load your 'baggage' this way."

After hearing those words, Seongjin quickly got up from his seat and moved to the carriage. As Owen and Martha Yin moved to sit next to her, a small spark appeared in the eyes of the woman who was watching her.

"Hoo."

She climbed onto the carriage seat with light movements and spoke to Seongjin in a slightly cheerful voice.

"It looks quite familiar to using the underpass, doesn't it? But no matter how much I think about it, it's strange because it's my first time seeing this face. Kid. Do you by any chance know what 'express delivery' is?"

Unlike the previous coachman who completely ignored the 'baggage', there was a slight sense of composure in the woman's attitude. Seongjin, who was quietly assessing her level of power, responded.

"know. 'It's a good thing if you can get there quickly without any intermediate stops."

"Haha, yes. 'Then you understand that packages that are delivered exceptionally quickly usually never leave the world, right?"

I flinch.

As Owen and Masain tensed at her non-threatening threat, Seongjin's eyes narrowed slightly.

"Well, at least you know this one. 'We'll probably be facing some pretty high-ranking middle managers, and there's a good chance they'll be the first to tell us that they've broken the 'delivery' rule."

"... .."

"Bethelah. 'Do you know that middle-level officials who are fired from the Freedom Underpass usually never leave the world?"

"... "Oh my, I was just trying to scare you a little, but I didn't get my money's worth."

The woman shrugged and took the reins.

"Then shall we start express delivery? "Hey!"

Rattling rattling.

As the carriage begins to move, the empty oak barrels that were loaded on it bounce helplessly. Seongjin roughly pushed them aside and spoke to the two who were very nervous.

"It looks like this coachman will go all the way to Verdron without stopping. It will take well over half a day to arrive, so both of you, at least get some sleep."

"... .."

Owen and Martha seemed to have a lot to say. However, Seongjin was the first to close her eyes as he held her devil lamp, and reluctantly they each settled down comfortably between the oak barrels.

And so, in silence again, the group began to be quietly 'delivered' for a while. It was around that time that the text window he had been waiting for appeared before Owen's eyes.

Grumpy!

[Surprising Quest - History is made at night! (complete)]

* * *

The air at dawn on an autumn day was very cold.

Nodding.

Seongjin, who had been dozing for a while leaning against the warmth of the demon king's lamp, opened his eyes to the sight of Owen, who was rolling his eyes busily.

"... Why are you looking around so much? "If I can't sleep, I close my eyes."

Seongjin's voice was as small as a whisper. This is a measure that takes into account the person who 'delivers' them. Unlike her previous coach, that woman had quite useful Auror activity.

"huh? Oh, just... .."

Owen must have been aware of that as well, as he glanced sideways at the coachman's seat and responded quietly.

"I was looking for your informant somewhere. No matter how much I look, I can't seem to find any sign of him. Is this okay? "Are you sure you're following along well now?"

"Dasha?"

Seongjin got excited for a moment and looked for signs of Dasha. Strictly speaking, it was not a presence, but rather a detection of the absence of an unnatural aura flow.

Seongjin, who soon identified her location, leaned against the oak barrel and spoke.

"don't worry. Dasha is the most elite agent. She has mastered Auror concealment to an almost perfect level. "It's rather strange that you can find it so easily."

"I see. Auror concealment... .."

What was he thinking? Owen's expression suddenly became gloomy.

"Now that I think about it, I have something to confess to you. new... Mores. Actually, what I showed you earlier was not proper Auror concealment. "I don't know how I succeeded, and I can never be sure when I'll be able to do it again."

This is a fact you already know. However, Seongjin listened to him silently without showing any signs of expression.

"So what if, what if. "If I have any part to play in your revised plans,

I'm sorry, but you'd better not think I can do the same trick again."

You felt like you had no energy, but were you still worrying about that? Seongjin tilted her head and responded.

"are you okay. "I didn't really expect that from you."

"Yeah, really?"

Owen's eyebrows visibly drooped. Hey, wait a minute. Why is your expression getting worse?

"So, anyway, you are the cultist at the center of this 'delivery', right?
"It means there is no need to hide your presence."

Seongjin quickly added before he became even more gloomy.

"Furthermore, Auror concealment does not suit your Auror operating style. "Perhaps it would be quicker for you to become a Dekaron Knight than to learn proper Auror concealment?"

"Dekaron Knight?"

"okay. Looking at your auror activity, haven't you probably accumulated about 9 floors? So, if you just practice a little more, it will be easy."

Then Owen stared at Seongjin for a moment. It was as if he was trying to gauge whether or not the words were empty.

"why?"

"No, my Auror level is the 9th floor. But being a Dekaron Knight, that's not something that just anyone can do. new... Mores, do you really think I can become a Dekaron Knight someday?"

Seongjin raised his eyebrows. What, why is this pale young guy so unenthusiastic?

"So, you weren't planning on doing it?"

"No, it's not as easy as you think... .."

"Why not? Dude, why do you keep saying such weak words when it's not enough even if you erase all your random thoughts and work harder? Now that you've become somewhat stronger, do you think you can start being lazy?"

Take an example from Logan. He already became a Dekaron Knight a long time ago, but he still devotes himself to training with the Liliun Knights every day!

Owen, who had been dazed for a moment by Seongjin's nagging, laughed lightly.

"... haha."

But there is no sound in the laughter either. Somehow, wasn't it just an illusion that I thought things were a little strange earlier?

When Seongjin furrowed his eyebrows and examined Owen, he smiled bitterly and rested his chin on his knees.

"It's laziness... Maybe you're right. I've always thought this might be appropriate. "It can be quite useful on the front lines, but it is not too noticeable."

"Why is that appropriate?"

In response to Seongjin's question, Owen hesitates for a moment and looks back at Masain sitting across from him.

After confirming that he had closed his eyes and was breathing evenly, Owen answered quietly. The language spoken here was Warsaw, which no one could understand except Seongjin.

"Even if that were possible, what good would there be for the Empire if I became a Dekaron Knight?"

"... ... !"

From that single word, Seongjin was able to infer quite a few things about Owen. The reason why Owen seemed particularly gloomy. And the real reason why I didn't dare to avoid Seongjin's attack earlier.

Perhaps, when Seongjin's sword came rushing in front of him, Owen may have thought he saw a foreshadowing of a fierce battle for the throne that might take place in the distant future.

Owen was struggling to grasp with both hands the unexpected happiness that had suddenly come into his life, lest it be taken away.

But despite such desperate efforts, I also know very well that that happiness will disappear completely with just the slightest crack.

"... "Owen."

I'm in a situation where I can't help but always have a little anxiety in my heart. Seongjin was able to understand Owen's feelings more accurately than anyone else in the world.

"I think you're misunderstanding something. "I didn't mean to attack you earlier."

"Yeah, I know. "You didn't know my identity because I was hiding as an Auror."

"That's not what I meant. "What I was trying to get rid of was the medium of strong heterogeneity at the center of that trivial concealment phenomenon."

"huh? medium... ... ?"

Owen made a puzzled face. No, how on earth should I explain this?

"hmm."

Seongjin, who was pondering, briefly caught sight of Lord Masain.

The image of a loyal knight pretending to sleep and listening to Seongjin's words while holding the golden Misra in one hand.

Naturally, the word Barsha comes out of Seongjin's mouth.

"Well, at least know this one thing. "Nothing you worry about will happen in the future, Owen."

Why? At least for now, I thought I didn't want Masain to hear this answer.

"If they are truly family, no matter what happens, they will never point their swords at each other."

As Seongjin said that, he touched the corner of his mouth with some subtle sentiment.

Even though I had already spoken it out, the small sound of that answer still seemed to be lingering around my mouth.

On the other hand, there was someone that Seongjin and Owen had completely forgotten about until then. The Barça warrior was in great shock when he realized that Owen had disappeared from his dorm.

"Ugh... . "The Delcross people are such faithless people!"

Purma's Bartoja.

He crawled under the imperial carriage, biting his dirty fingernails. His instinct was to hide himself as much as possible from the sight of the imperial people.

"Owen! The eldest son of the Delcross tribe! "Where on earth did you go, leaving Bartoza alone in a limb?"

As if responding, a box at the back of the carriage shook slightly. It was a movement so subtle that even Bartóza, who was right below, did not notice.

... Shake!

422. Freedom Underpass (4)

Bruno Green.

He was confident that his ability to handle the situation was not that bad.

Although he retired due to an unfortunate accident, he was once the only commoner knight commander and had a record of tirelessly assisting the Emperor.

This time too, Bruno comforted the resident knights left in Regina with his gentle charisma.

"Why is everyone so upset?"

"Captain! No matter how much I think about it, it's strange. There's no way a diligent person like our Majesty Mores would have left us to rest alone! "Maybe our presence was a big inconvenience to you while you were working?"

When Sir Claudia cried, Director Bruno firmly shook his head.

"Didn't you hear what His Majesty Mores said? "Didn't you tell me to ask publicly about Giacomo Milo while touring Regina for a while?"

"But he must have already disappeared deep into the Dark Church. "No matter how much we search here, will anything change?"

"Lord Claudia. You didn't ask me to find him. He just told me to inquire."

Then the quick-witted Sir Kurt immediately understood the meaning of those words.

"ah! "While you are doing something behind the scenes, on the surface I am telling you to spread the word that we are diligently searching Regina!"

"okay. That's it. "It's something that couldn't be accomplished except by us, your close associates."

Bruno also had to look after Edith, who had been showing too much attention to the carriage recently.

The prince's maid, who had a somewhat blind side, kept her eyes wide open, ready to stay up all night, saying that today she would reveal the identity of the sound.

"Miss Edith. It's late. "Stop watching the empty carriage, and now go to your room and get some rest."

"But Captain Bruno. This is your name. "His Majesty Mores told me to go back and forth and keep an eye on the carriage."

"But that doesn't mean you should abandon all your work and just watch the carriage all day, right?"

Then the maid blinked her round eyes and looked up at the leader.

"But there is nothing else to do. "I don't usually prepare meals, I don't prepare refreshments, and the person I need to attend isn't even here right now."

... I had forgotten for a moment that this maid was, like herself, a great thief of my Majesty's wages.

In the end, the leader sighed and handed her a blanket and some warm Melbourne tea.

"Then do whatever you want. Instead, why don't you wear something like this so you don't get cold?"

It was the same when 1st Prince Owen secretly left the dormitory.

"We're in big trouble, Captain! "No matter how hard I search the lodgings, I can't find Owen!"

Of course, the former Dekaron Knight realized this fact a long time ago, but instead of stopping the prince, he cracked down on the group to prevent further confusion.

"It's okay, Sir Kurt. "Before you left last night, you told me your destination."

This was information that was repeatedly confirmed through the thoughts of Rebekah, the leader of Arenja.

"Prince Owen is now with Prince Mores."

And finally, Bruno had to try to ignore the familiar and nostalgic presence he sometimes felt in the carriage.

'I want to take it out right now. however... ... !'

It was truly pitiful to knock on the lid every chance he got, but Bruno was no longer allowed to have even the slightest contact with Seonghwang.

Even though he healed me with miraculous power, how could I so recklessly abandon the will of someone who is still careful not to make eye contact with me?

So he had a hard time suppressing the urge to open the box right away.

'Keuheuk! All of this is my negligence. Please forgive me for my incompetence, Your Majesty!'

But even Bruno had no choice but to lose his composure when Sir Claudia made this report the next morning.

"Captain, we're in big trouble! The imperial carriage has disappeared! I think Barshain, who was brought by Prince Owen, ran away with the carriage! Shall we pursue now?"

"... what?"

He must have been managing the carriage at the inn, but how on earth could he?

While Bruno was greatly embarrassed, Sir Kurt came running into the lodgings one after another.

"We must hurry, Captain. "The guards said he may have already left Regina."

"No, why didn't the guards stop it sooner...?" ... ?"

"At first, I tried to stop them too. But he said he couldn't communicate with Barshain at all. However, to stop it with force, Barshain's power was too strong to be ignored... ... !"

Moreover, the explanation was that since he was also a member of the prince's party, he could not bear to use a strong hand.

Tiing-

Bruno staggered to his feet, clutching his dizzy head.

"are you okay. I'll go. It might not be too late. "Get ready to speak right now-"

But before he could finish his sentence, Sir Calmen came rushing in and shouted!

"We're in big trouble, Master! Edith... ... !"

"Why her again?"

"I guess he was sleeping in the carriage the whole time. "Many people witnessed a young maid being thrown violently from a runaway carriage!"

I fell from a carriage running at full power and was thrown defenseless on the street?

It was the worst. I should have stopped her a long time ago before her accident happened!

"So, how injured is Miss Edith now? "Is he alive?"

"But he looked fine. "In fact, I heard that he was so excited that he even ran after the carriage for a while."

"... what?"

"And then I had an accident. Well, the story goes that he stole the horse from a passing mercenary, got on it, and disappeared along with the carriage! "Now that mercenary has come to the front of the dorm and is protesting fiercely!"

"... ..!"

I felt dizzy. Where on earth should I start and how far should I use my hands?

Then suddenly, Bruno's thoughts wandered to the precious luggage that was lying in the back of the carriage. His face turned pale in an instant.

"Your Majesty... ..!"

Bartoza ran like crazy through the streets of Regina.

"Aaaah! Get out of the way! "Everyone get out of the way!"

"Ahh!"

"what? "I guess the coachman is crazy!"

"Avoid everyone!"

No one could stop the runaway carriage. Ironically, the thing he was driving was a carriage with the emblem of the majestic imperial palace engraved on it.

Thanks to this, the carriage, which was not stopped by anyone, had already crossed the outskirts of Regina and crossed the desolate plain.

'Owen of Delcross eventually abandoned me! Now there is nowhere, nowhere in the world, for this Bartoza to entrust himself to!'

Although he was sad and panicked, Bartoza instinctively drove the carriage northwest of Regina. This is because he decided that he should get as far away from the ecliptic as possible from the way he came.

And at that time, someone rode quickly after him.

"Hey, stop! "Quickly stop your carriage!"

Edith was suddenly thrown out of the carriage, but belatedly snatched the mercenary's horse and chased after her.

Of course, Bartoza couldn't understand what she was saying and fell into an even more panicked state.

"Wow! Don't come, woman! "Don't come this way!"

"What on earth are you talking about? Anyway, stop now! "It contains a lot of your important items!"

"Ah, Owen! You who betrayed faith! Why did you abandon this Bartoza! "Owen!"

As the driver loses his composure and swings the reins around, the horses pulling the carriage also fall into a state of panic and let out scream-like cries.

Heeheeheeheehee!

Meanwhile, the surrounding scenery was changing little by little. I thought I could see a sparse field of grass, and before I knew it, the carriage was entering a gentle mountain road.

At the point where the road started to slope and the speed of the carriage finally slowed down a bit.

Paaa-!

Edith jumped up from the galloping horse and barely succeeded in grabbing one corner of the carriage.

"Ugh! "Stop it quickly!"

Then, Bartozaga glanced back and was frightened when he saw Edith clinging to the carriage and making a fuss.

"Aaaah! Get away! Get away, woman!"

Rattle, rattle!

Due to his poor steering skills, the carriage cannot maintain its balance and sways precariously from side to side.

"profit!"

The long skirt hits the wind and creates strong resistance.

Edith, who had been hanging on with both hands for a while and gritting her teeth, managed to support herself by fastening one foot to the wall of the carriage. Her eyes, which were usually fierce, were now burning with strong fighting spirit.

'He told me to keep an eye on the carriage! I'm already showing off because I'm not doing anything, so if I lose even this, what kind of respect will I have to look at you from now on?'

Of course, seeing her like that made Bartoza even more frightened.

'That woman was definitely a warrior protecting the tribe leader's second son! Like Alicia by Owen's side, that woman must be a seasoned warrior!'

If that's the case, then they should aim for my life for stealing my master's belongings!

"Ugh! no!"

Bartosa was very nervous and put pressure on the reins-

Shake!

The carriage shakes violently, and Edith's body floats into the air.

"Ugh!"

However, she did not let go of the carriage in the end and slowly began to climb towards the roof of the carriage with her eyes burning.

"Aaaah! Don't come! Do not come!"

However, Edith, who moved patiently despite Bartóza's reckless driving, finally reached the coachman's seat.

Then, Bartóza let go of the reins and started swinging the ax at her indiscriminately.

Boom! humming!

"Go away!"

"When you say something nice, give me the reins right away!"

"Die!"

"profit! This bastard until the end... ..!"

But just then, Edith's eyes widened as she happened to spot something ahead.

... omg?

"Uh huh? Look ahead! "Look ahead!"

"Go away, woman! "I'm telling you not to come!"

"Hey! Cliff! There's a cliff right in front of you! Take hold of the reins! hurry!"

"Aaaah! "Leave me alone!"

"hey! Now is the time... ..!"

Despite Edith's desperate efforts, the distant cliff quickly approached her eyes. By the time Bartozza realized the situation, it was already much too late.

Huh-!

The carriage shot into the air at incredible speed. Then, for an instant, it stopped as if it had lost gravity, and plummeted down the cliff.

"Aaaah!"

"Kwaaaaa!"

* * *

"... uh?"

Seongjin raised his head and looked at the distant southwest sky.

"what's the matter? new... What? "For what?"

Owen must have sensed something unusual, and was persistently asking questions. Seongjin frowned for a moment and then slowly shook her head.

"no. nothing... .."

Even Seongjin himself, who answered that way, wasn't entirely sure.

what? Is it really nothing?

Why does my heart suddenly feel so pounding and my feet feel empty?

"... Lowering."

At that moment, Masain opened his eyes and quietly warned.

"There are people following us from earlier."

"huh."

Seongjin nodded, unfazed. In fact, this is because I sensed their presence much earlier than Masain.

As we got closer to our next destination, Verdron, the quiet surroundings began to gradually change. Half-destroyed houses and messily broken household appliances could be seen here and there, and before they knew it, they could sense the presence of several 'Aurors hiding behind them'.

Judging from what Masain noticed later, they have quite good skills.

'Dasha should follow us safely... ... !'

After confirming that she was much further away than before, Seongjin reassured Masain.

"Don't worry, Lord Masaine. "We just skip the middleman and get to the upper management a little faster."

To some extent, Seongjin's strategy may have worked.

A bit of clumsy makeup. A suspicious Barshaine who suddenly wants to take refuge in penance. And if you look closely, you will see that the Devil's Lamp is nothing out of the ordinary.

Enough bait was thrown. If the Freedom Underpass is spreading its information network across most of the northern region as Belinda said, it will definitely respond to Seongjin's moves in some way.

Of course, if I could pass through without incident like other fanatics, that would have been fine.

-This delivery is a 'special delivery'. Take over the luggage like this and transport it to Verdron.

Fortunately, they seemed to respond quite appropriately. The only thing that was a little surprising was that they reacted faster and more sensitively than Seongjin expected.

Who would have thought that they would rush to the core base in one day, barely passing through any stopovers.

"But everything has to be within the expected range."

"... Is that so?"

"huh."

How do you know that?

Masain didn't ask that question. Instead, he corrected Misra and only sharpened his prayers.

However, when they arrived at the ruins of Verdron and the 'special delivery' was finally completed -

"Did you encounter any inconveniences on the way here?"

Even Seongjin couldn't have predicted this. That a greater figure than expected would come out to greet them in person.

"It is truly an honor that a precious person personally uses the Jayu Underpass. "I am the general manager of this insignificant free underpass-"

The man who spoke up to that point looked at Seongjin with a strange smile on his face.

"No, would it be more appropriate to introduce our precious benefactor as the head of the [Blue Republican Revolutionary Front]?"

423

423. Transaction (1)

The carriage that Seongjin and his party rode ran non-stop since dawn, reaching a ruined village around noon. Perhaps this is the 'Verdron' mentioned by the coachmen.

"... "It doesn't seem like a properly inhabited place."

Masain said with concern as he looked at the desolate village landscape.

There were certainly no buildings left intact in the surrounding area. Broken bricks are piled up on roofless houses, and broken oak barrels are rolling around on weedy roads.

Only the vast scale of the ruins gives us an idea of the prosperity and glory this place once had.

"Imperial people don't know. The alcohol made in this town was so amazing..."

The coachman, who had remained silent until now, exhaled a puff of tobacco smoke and muttered.

The wagon she drove ran through the ruins and finally stopped in front of a large barn. Fortunately, it was the only building in the village that still had what could be called a roof.

Creak.

When I opened the crumbling door and went inside, I saw an elderly man standing under the sunlight that was barely seeping through the sparse roof.

"It is truly an honor that a precious person personally uses the Jayu Underpass."

A polite greeting with a sociable smile.

Seongjin could sense that he was the one who ordered this entire journey. Just by looking at it, I felt like I could eat it anywhere.

Looking at his graying hair, the long scar across his cheek, and his rough, wrinkled skin, I thought he had gone through some pretty tough times.

Nevertheless, he had a somewhat light atmosphere that contrasted with his appearance. Although his clothes were neat, he looked free-spirited, and his bright eyes sparkled with a cheerful spirit that did not suit his age.

And he introduced himself to Seongjin and his group as the 'general manager of the Freedom Underpass' and the 'head of the Blue Republican Revolutionary Front.'

"My name is Giovanni. "It's nice to meet you here."

alias.

Seongjin, who somehow had this thought, looked for signs of assassins lurking around him without much response.

'Four, five... No, six in total?'

An unfamiliar sign of 'Auror Concealment' surrounding the barn.

Dasha doesn't even make a faint trace, as if she doesn't even dare to come near her.

"Lowering..."

With the assassins concentrated in one place, Owen and Martha could not have been unaware of their presence. The two people stood next to Seongjin, very nervous.

"I guess the atmosphere is a bit strange. What are you going to do now? new... Mores."

After briefly giving a glance to Owen, who was whispering as if he was anxious, Seongjin looked at Giovanni, who had a quite relaxed attitude.

'With this level of preparation, did you expect that you would be able to protect yourself enough in case of an emergency?'

Unfortunately, he made the mistake of not taking Seongjin's power into account. Of course, if the conversation ends well, you will never realize your mistake.

"General manager? stripe? "You?"

Seongjin, who did not feel any need for introduction, asked Giovanni.

Of course, he also didn't seem to particularly expect a self-introduction from Seongjin. This probably means that they already know their identities and have no intention of hiding it at all.

"yes. That's right."

"No matter how 'special delivery' it is, I didn't expect the person in charge of the Jayu Underpass to come to meet me."

Then Giovanni gently curled his mouth and smiled quite favorably.

"When you visited the entrance to the Freedom Underpass, one of my talented subordinates happened to be there inspecting it. I also happened to be in this area. Thanks to you, this event miraculously came to fruition. "I can only say that we were both lucky."

At that moment, the image of a woman passed through Seongjin's mind. She was a small woman who took over the 'baggage' from the gatekeeper and led them to the hay wagon without saying a word.

Could it be her? The author's subordinate?

"... Honestly, I didn't expect it. "I'm a little embarrassed because my plans are so different."

"I apologize for that. Well, whatever the process was, what does it matter now? "It's important that we turn this chance meeting into something more meaningful."

"... ..,"

As expected, he is someone who gives off a strange feeling.

Just by looking at the outside, you can feel the ravages of time, but his words and actions are like those of a young man, and his voice is as clean as a young man. There is a strange elegance to his behavior that doesn't match his shabby outfit.

"If you are in charge, is this the headquarters of the Freedom Underpass?"

"It would be a bit unfair to call it a headquarters. Freedom Underpass is not an organization focused on one specific location. "It is nothing more than a loose web that immature people who dream of freedom of thought have voluntarily helped each other and woven little by little."

"Still, there is a hierarchy, so there must be people in charge like you."

"haha. Although I am the general manager, my job is insignificant. "It's just about coordinating external forces and organizations or taking care of financing."

... Isn't that the real power of the organization? Why is this kid pretending to be nothing?

Perhaps noticing Seongjin's grim expression, he awkwardly added an explanation.

"But I have to admit that this is one of the quite important bases in the Freedom Underpass. There are good roads in all directions. Do you know that Verdrón was once the largest brewing village in Ortona?"

"That's a fact I didn't know."

Seongjin answered roughly and thought for a moment.

Do you really want to go on about the fallen brewery and say it's all the Empire's fault?

'He uses impeccable imperial language, but the author is probably Ortonain.'

Giovanni has already guessed the identity of the group, and refers to Seongjin as a 'precious person.' Nevertheless, he insists on using the title 'you' rather than an honorific title.

then-

'He may have been on the side of the Republic during the Ortona Civil War, or he may have had a deep antipathy towards the Empire even if he didn't show it.'

Nevertheless, he went to the front of Seong Jin in person, going so far as to reveal his relationship with the Blue Republican Revolutionary Front. In other words, the author has a clear business with Seongjin right now, and it is most likely related to the 'Blue Republican Revolutionary Front.'

'Well, let's hear it from myself.'

Seongjin decided not to waste any more time.

"Enough small talk, let's get to the point, Giovanni. "There must be a reason why you brought us here right away, right?"

"Yes, it is."

Giovanni stopped laughing and nodded seriously.

"I won't talk around it. "I want to know the purpose of someone like you visiting this free underpass that only those who have been abandoned by the Empire visit."

"why? "If you knew, would you help me?"

"If it is to avoid organizational chaos, depending on the purpose... ...
."

"Then I will gladly accept the help. We are trying to apprehend Giacomo Milo, who has been hiding here. Other than that, there is no other reason, and I have no intention of interfering with the operation of the Freedom Underpass. "You probably already guessed it, right?"

"... .."

Giovanni looked a little shaken. I guess he didn't know that Seongjin would come out so bluntly without even the slightest investigation.

"More than that, what I'm curious about from you is something a little different. Why did you tell us that you were the leader of the Blue Republican Revolutionary Front? "What does that have to do with this?"

"It didn't mean anything. I just mentioned this in advance because the activities of the two organizations can never be separated. As you may have guessed, most of the members of the Freedom Underpass are members of the Blue Republican Revolutionary Front. In the first place, the origin of the Freedom Underpass was to help those who sought refuge in the Republic in pursuit of freedom of thought... .."

Seongjin glared harshly at him without answering, and he eventually sighed softly.

"okay. Let me be honest. In fact, it would be more correct to say that I am now standing here as the 'head of the Blue Republican Revolutionary Front.'"

Blue Republican Revolutionary Front. A transfer group that Seongjin has been supporting for several years with funds from an unknown source and in a way that he is not aware of.

Dasha started investigating a long time ago, but found nothing concrete so far, so she thought it was strange. It turned out that they were a group that mainly operated secretly in the northern part of the country through the Freedom Underpass.

"So, I've been meaning to ask you this for a long time. "How on earth did you know about our organization and decide to donate such a large amount of money?"

Until a few years ago, the Blue Republican Revolutionary Front was a very small organization.

Although they were reaching out to the imperial capital to recruit members and raise funds, it was not easy for them to survive in the imperial capital where all kinds of subversive organizations were already operating in secret.

But a few years ago, large sums of money suddenly started coming in without any conditions. Based on these funds, the Blue Republican Revolutionary Front gradually restored the network of free underground passages and was eventually reborn as a strong organization capable of dealing directly with the Church of Penitence.

'hmm. I thought they were the ones destroying the North along with the Penitent Church, so I tried to kill them all when I had the chance...'

Ironically, the support money sponsored by Seongjin, or Mores, was the cause of revitalizing the Jayu Underpass again.

"At first, I thought it was just a coincidence that you decided to support our organization. Even after the fall of the country, people who missed Ortona's ideas and innovations created organizations that followed them."

Among young people in the capital, investing in or supporting these organizations is sometimes considered a kind of romance.

So, even if an immature prince jumped on that bandwagon, it wouldn't be considered too strange.

"But as I've been watching your recent actions, I've come to think that it wasn't just a coincidence that you chose our organization."

"Recent actions?"

"Bertrán & Lee."

At that moment, Giovanni's eyes took on an unusually sharp glow.

"Most people think that the top is nothing more than the business affairs of a wealthy prince. But anyone who knows anything about commerce would definitely have realized this. "All the projects you are conducting are actually aimed at encouraging refugees to settle down."

Giovanni, who had said that much, asked again with a slightly serious expression.

"That's exactly what I want to know. Aren't you the prince of the empire? But why would you help people who have nothing to do with it?"

But Seongjin did not answer his question. This is because for a moment, Giovanni was distracted by the strange sense of discomfort he was feeling.

"Let me ask you one thing too. So, are you saying that you don't really like where we are right now? Rather than harming the organization you run, I think you are on the same page. "It's definitely going to be a big help to refugees, right?"

"I don't mean I don't like it. Everything you do has a huge impact throughout Ortona. So, I must first know your intentions clearly-"

"No, that's not it."

Seongjin shook his head and interrupted Giovanni.

"You've been angry with me since a while ago. "Why on earth?"

"... yes?"

Giovanni asked in confusion. But when Seongjin spoke next, the expression completely disappeared from his face.

"Bertrán & Lee."

"... ..!"

"As soon as the story about our boss came out, your mood suddenly worsened. it is not so?"

Language is only the surface.

The tone of voice of the person saying that, the direction of gaze, the subtle facial expressions that appear for a moment and then disappear in an instant, and even the slightly agitated movements of the auror.

For Seongjin, who has an extremely sensitive sense of energy, no one can completely hide his true feelings that are revealed unconsciously. Especially in the case of ordinary people like Giovanni who have not entered Auror training.

"It's better not to try to hide it. "It's all visible on your face."

Giovanni was silent for a moment at Seongjin's point.

"... There was definitely that problem too. Yes, it is."

After some silence passed.

Finally, Giovanni opened his mouth, and for a moment, a fierce hostility that had been hidden deep in his subconscious flashed in Giovanni's eyes.

"Actually, that's what I was most curious about about you. "The business you run, why is its name [Bertrán]?"

Bertran is not a very rare surname on the continent. Did you say that the same castle exists in Brittany and southern Anatolia?

For example, we can choose Alain Bertrand, a famous actor from Brittany. It is said that he, who enjoyed great popularity in the Imperial Capital hundreds of years ago, built a large theater on one side of the Imperial Capital in his later years. And the name of the street where he mainly worked became Bertrand Street.

However, when it comes to the most famous Bertran on the continent, we have no choice but to choose him. The last sword of the East, General Gael Bertran.

Fortunately, Seongjin had something to say about that.

"That's because our Logan is a big fan of General Bertran."

"... yes?"

It seems like it was an unexpected answer. Giovanni's expressionless expression cracks, and a look of embarrassment is revealed.

"As you know, the top representative of Bertran & Lee is Logan. But Logan considers General Gael Bertran his idol."

"... .."

"In fact, the reason our merchants are carrying out the Ortona economic revival project is because of him. "He's completely crazy about Ortona."

"... .."

"Are you sure?"

Seongjin was confident. No matter what anyone said, he had the means to completely prove what he said.

"Logan really knows nothing about General Gael Bertrand. His family relationships, his relationships, his childhood... . "You even know what he liked for late-night snacks when he was alive, right?"

Where is that? He is also proficient in the Ortona language, and uses Auror exercises and sword techniques only in the Ortona style. And he wields Gael Bertran's beloved sword as skillfully as Gael Bertran.

If this guy isn't a huge fan of the general, what's the point?

"If I get the chance, I hope to be able to create a place with Logan with you someday. From the looks of it, you also greatly admire General Gael Bertran, and perhaps when you two meet, you can spend a very meaningful time talking about the same interests."

For some reason, I can feel Owen and Masaine's shocked looks in the back of my head.

what? why? what?

Oh, it's real? If you don't believe me, you can ask Logan directly later!

424. Transaction (2)

Seongjin had thought that way before.

In order for Logan to stand proudly in front of the Ortonans one day, something special will have to be done.

-I was just running away. I was afraid of the cold stares I would receive from them, so even though I knew the shortcut, I couldn't enter.

Logan once said that.

It would be a natural concern. This guy is not a proud general who fought for his country until the end, but the prince of the empire that destroyed Ortona.

'Originally, I would like to forget about my difficult past life and live a new life as a prince of the Holy Emperor, but... ... '

Perhaps with Logan's personality, such a thing would never be possible.

Besides, Seongjin has already heard it. On that evening when heavy rain poured down, Logan, drenched in rain, poured out his sincerity with great difficulty.

-I thought I could handle any stigma, but in reality, I was not prepared to properly face any of my colleagues from my past life.

It's a bit annoying, but in other words, it means that Logan wants to stand by his friends from his past life, even if it means receiving a lot of stigma.

So Seongjin thought.

'okay? Aren't you ready to face it properly? Okay, then I'll force you to prepare!'

So what I came up with was the so-called 'Unite Daedong through Soccer' operation.

This strategy was inspired by the experience of a co-worker who was a fan of a famous soccer team, who went to the team's hometown on vacation and received a great welcome.

My boss, who was a typical old man, had his face relaxed as if he had just been to heaven. Since ancient times, in the world of die-hard fans, there are no races or borders.

'That's why I'm insisting that I'm the general's biggest fan!'

Anyone from Ortona, especially someone with ties to the old republican government, can't help but like our Logan, or rather Gael Bertran!

'How could you be so mean to someone who has the same idol as you?'

Whether or not Logan will welcome that measure is a separate issue. What can I do? That innocent brat has no choice anyway.

Of course, I had no idea that I would meet the remnants of the old republican government so soon and test the strategy of 'uniting the great East through soccer.'

"... yes? yes?"

Look at that. After all, it works.

Look at Giovanni's dumbfounded expression! This genius and groundbreaking strategy will instantly banish any antipathy toward the empire from your mind!

Whiiing-

A heavy silence falls for a moment in the barn, where the chilly late fall wind blows. The only thing that moves is the devil's lamp that occasionally flickers a dull light.

[Hey, Seongjin Lee. I think you've had a serious negative impact on his first impression... ..]

shut up! No way!

Anyway, they successfully (?) brightened the mood and were able to change the topic to 'Giacomo Milo' in earnest.

"As you might have guessed, we currently have a new recruit for Giacomo Milo."

Giovanni calmly admitted. Fortunately, he didn't seem to have any intention of making an issue of 'Bertrán & Lee' anymore.

"According to Freedom Underground's policy, we cannot directly arrest him and hand him over to the Empire. "It could easily provoke strong opposition from comrades."

Giovanni added that since it is operated based on individual values and beliefs, situations in which the legitimacy of the organization is questioned by the majority of members must be avoided.

"But it will be possible to safely guide your group to Giacomo Milo's base."

"Well, how about it? Your policy is to protect as much as possible those who have entrusted themselves to escape the Empire? And yet you obediently lead us to him?"

"It is an essential choice to protect more people."

Giovanni, who responded to Seongjin like that, smiled a slightly bitter smile.

"Of course, I know full well that it is hypocrisy and contradiction. However, the power of an empire is like a natural disaster that cannot be dealt with by manpower. "Isn't the outcome already determined anyway?"

"... .."

"In the end, no matter how hard we sacrifice our lives to stop him, you will search through the Freedom Underpass and eventually find him."

That's right.

To tell the truth, while I was giving up, I even thought about turning over a lot of the Jayu Underpass.

"In the meantime, the network of the Freedom Underpass will be completely paralyzed, and there may be a huge loss of life. As for Giacomo Milo, the longer it is delayed, the less likely he will be able to catch it."

Of course, Jayu Underground is not an easy organization either. We have sufficient force to successfully exclude intruders with nefarious intentions.

If the person who touched the entrance was just an inquisitor or an exorcist, they might have tried to kill the person with a single sword and destroy the evidence.

'But the other person happens to be a prince whom the Holy Emperor cherishes... .. !'

The reason why various enemy groups criticizing the empire have safely set foot on the continent until now is not due to anything other than the mercy of the current Emperor.

But what would happen if, for some reason, he finally decided to abolish the free underpass?

'We'll probably end up like the Church of Rest.'

Giovanni had witnessed how thoroughly the Church of Rest, once prevalent in the imperial capital and the Regina area, had collapsed at the hands of the Holy Emperor.

"We are just trying to prepare for the coming flood by building a small dam to divert the water. Even if one or two houses are washed away, it is a much better business than if the entire village is submerged."

"okay... .."

Seongjin found his decision a bit surprising. Although he had only just met Giovanni, his first impression was that he was quite an idealist.

This is true even if you just look at the organization he leads. Isn't the 'Blue Republican Revolutionary Front' full of republican romance?

However, unable to ignore the experience accumulated over time, it seems that the old idealist ended up making a compromise with reality.

"We make a deal. "I will guide you to the location of Giacomo Milo right now."

"Speaking of a deal, what are the conditions?"

"Please do not cause any damage to the base as much as possible, and do not harm your comrades. Don't even try to find out about other nearby bases. That is our condition for assistance."

"hmm."

Seongjin stared at Giovanni for a moment and then nodded.

"okay. I will try my best to avoid causing any harm to you. I won't even attempt to delve into the organization's inner workings. "You can just run the Free Underpass without any problems as always."

"Thank you for your understanding-"

"Oh, by the way."

Towards Giovanni, who seemed relieved, Seongjin added with a serious look on his face.

"Now I think about it like this. Wouldn't it have been quicker for you to just throw Giacomo Milo out of the free underpass? "If he had been left somewhere conspicuous, we would have tracked him down."

I flinch.

Giovanni reacted without realizing it and smiled somewhat awkwardly.

"haha. As I said before, it is difficult due to the organization's policy. An organization united by beliefs will quickly disintegrate the moment it abandons those beliefs. We are open to all who seek freedom-"

"By the time you guide us to Giacomo Milo, you have already gone beyond belief. In that case, wouldn't it be better to deal with him secretly from the gang members? From the looks of it, it looks like he has several proper assassins with him."

"... .."

"I have no intention of using my own hands. "It doesn't matter as long as we can retrieve his body later."

Giovanni's face visibly hardens. In response, Seongjin raised the corners of his mouth with a confident expression.

"Where is that? You guys have already exposed me to two bases. And now he plans to lead me to the third base. "Why on earth do you want to take that kind of damage?"

"... .."

"So instead of pretending to help, let's be more honest."

At that moment, Giovanni saw the young prince's eyes shining strangely brightly. The sight of pale gray eyes with a cold yet sharp glow, as if they were swords reflecting sunlight.

"Wouldn't it be like giving you a big help by cutting out a troublesome problem without causing any harm?"

"... So what do you want to say?"

Seongjin smiled brightly at him, who was unable to hide his look of disappointment.

"Uh, so that's what I want to say. "Let's make a deal."

"... "What are the conditions?"

"Why don't we really sit down with Logan sometime? "How can I contact you again later?"

"... .."

The prince and his party left in a small wagon, just as they had arrived. This is another 'express' wagon filled with empty wooden boxes.

Now they will run for one more full day and arrive at the 'Furiano' branch where Giacomo Milo is located at dawn tomorrow.

Come closer. Come closer.

Giovanni, who had been staring at the receding carriage for a moment, asked the woman in the stealth suit who was coming up behind him.

"... What do you think of that prince? "Chief Greta."

Giovanni's announcement of himself as the head of the Blue Republican Revolutionary Front was quite an impulsive act.

First of all, I had a great intention to catch the young boy off guard. Since he was the one who revealed the precious name that had been buried in his heart for a long time, it is also true that he felt angry for a while.

However, after a short conversation with the prince, all that was left to him was a strange sense of heterogeneity and puzzlement.

"Have you noticed anything strange about the prince?"

The woman called Greta seemed to think deeply about his question for a moment.

"He certainly seemed strangely calm for his age. "I came in because I had a self-indulgent and picky personality, so I was a little surprised to see him carrying on a conversation in an easy-going manner."

"is it?"

"yes. hemp cloth... "It seemed like I could communicate well with Giovanni."

"Without any obstruction... "It looked like that too."

Giovanni let out a laugh.

"That's not it, Greta. "Prince Mores was a somewhat strange boy."

"... .."

Greta looked up at him with a question in mind, but Giovanni was already lost in his own thoughts.

okay. The more I thought about the conversation with the young prince, the more strange it became.

'He didn't want to ask me anything where questions should have been raised.'

It turned out that the subversive organization he was sponsoring was actually taking control of the North. If you do that, you might dig into the situation in more detail by asking various questions.

But the prince didn't seem to have the slightest curiosity about the organization.

The same goes for Giacomo Milo.

Although it was clear that he sensed something strange, he did not particularly try to obtain more information. I couldn't figure out what kind of guts it was.

'Besides, he didn't even try to explore me through conversation. He didn't seem to be very careful, but he didn't give out information clumsily or be easily swayed by me.'

No matter how much he reflected on the conversation with him, Giovanni could not follow the flow of his thoughts.

For example, there were many parts of the conversation with the prince that lacked proper context. I couldn't tell if he was just guessing and throwing it away, or if he just had a good feel for it.

Then, there were times when I suddenly left the conversation. So, as I adjusted the rhythm to that, before I knew it, I was getting closer to the core of the story.

For example, it felt like this. It's as if the conversation is just being roughly dragged along towards a decided outcome...

'... No, how could that possibly be the case? 'Maybe I was oversensitive about Gael's problem.'

Giovanni smiled bitterly, recalling the face he missed and could no longer see.

As a child, he was always confident. His voice was charming, and his speech was always fluent. He had a strong power to attract people wherever he went.

Didn't everyone in the academy look fascinated every time he gave a childish speech about the ideal republic?

'But Gael was different from others.'

When I made a flashy speech as if I was bragging in my youth, my friend who was listening quietly would always respond like this.

-I am not sure whether the value of the republic is worth all these sacrifices. However, I can become the sword that realizes the will of the prince who is certain of this.

At the time, I felt a little disappointed with my friend who did not respond as enthusiastically as others. Perhaps because he was young, he did not fully understand the weight of his friend's words.

And in the end, his close friend kept his promise to become a sword.

When he bewitched people like a wizard from an old story and finally rushed towards catastrophe, Chinwoo carried out his will by scattering thousands of blood with his proud sword.

I took on the sacrifice alone that I wasn't sure if it was worth making, and silently walked down the path of blood. Even Giovanni himself, the person who pushed everyone into civil war, constantly doubted and doubted the path.

Without any doubt, and without the slightest resentment.

'It's really strange, Gael. As I look at the prince of that empire, I keep thinking of your childhood. I'm sorry to bring up your hateful enemy, but those who are more outstanding than others seem to be different from an early age.'

Giovanni stared with a lonely expression at the horizon of the wasteland, where the carriage had already disappeared.

Rattling rattling.

Seongjin was lost in thought as he let himself be swayed by the rough shaking of the wagon.

Perhaps it was because of my mood, but I felt uneasy due to a vague premonition from earlier.

"... "Are you dissatisfied with the results, sir?"

Sure enough, Masain, who had been watching Seongjin closely from earlier, asked carefully.

"huh? Uh, no. why?"

"just... "For some reason, you don't seem to be in a very good mood."

Did that make a mark?

Seongjin scratched his cheek awkwardly.

"Uh, it's no big deal. "I feel like I haven't told Giovanni enough about Logan."

Then, as if they had heard something unexpected, Owen and Masain's eyes widened at the same time.

"Logan? suddenly?"

"... "Is it you, Logan?"

"okay."

Seongjin hugged the devil's lamp and adjusted his posture to sit comfortably.

"I plan to introduce Giovanni to Logan later. Anyway, I hope they get along well... .."

And Giovanni must one day become a bridge between the people of Logan and Ortona.

"But I guess I didn't completely change the perception of Logan. "That continues to bother me."

But Owen, who heard those words, asked back with a puzzled expression.

"Are you having strange concerns? "Isn't that Logan's job to take care of?"

"... huh?"

"So it's entirely up to Logan how he gets along with that guy named Giovanni, right? Why is that new... Mores, are you trying to prepare in advance?"

uh? is it?

Seongjin blinked his eyes blankly for a moment.

"Ah, yes. "It really is."

Owen was right. He can't control such trivial things all at once.

'But I can't shake the feeling that something is lacking.'

Strangely enough, I've been feeling anxious a lot lately.

At first, I sent Logan and Sisley off with the assurance that everything was okay, but later I became anxious and sent Max back to Cyprus.

'I feel like everything is becoming more and more creaky, slightly, little by little, differently from the original plan.'

Somehow, while repeating such groundless thoughts, Seongjin looked anxiously towards the distant southwest sky.

425. Transaction (3)

"Ugh... .."

Bartoza opened his bleary eyes and looked around.

As soon as my mind became a little clearer, the pain was so intense that I felt like passing out. But he could sense that if he gave up like this, his life would really be dead.

'I am... okay. I fell off a cliff... ..'

It was dark around here, so I thought it was night. But when I look up, I can see distant cliffs and blue sky between tall conifers.

'I was lucky.'

No matter how much he protected himself with the tribe's vision, he was so high that it was surprising how he was still alive.

Looking around, I see the ruins of a wrecked carriage and the horribly mangled corpses of horses underneath. Naturally, my thoughts turned to the woman I had fallen with.

'... What happened to that scary woman? 'Is she dead?

Seeing as how calm my son-in-law is, it may be so. Although the appearance has become ridiculous, it seems that he has unintentionally escaped the fierce pursuit.

"Off... .."

Bartóza wriggled his limbs and tried to raise himself. But he soon lay back down, screaming from the new pain that surged like a tidal wave.

"Ugh!"

I didn't realize it because there was no part of my body that didn't hurt, but when I looked closely, I saw that my left arm was completely broken and bent. Fortunately, she seemed to have escaped amputation, but her two bloody legs were clearly not in good condition.

Even though his life was saved by saving his life, this is also like a flame in the wind.

'... 'I'd rather run away alone!'

Belated regret flooded me.

A symbol of the power of the Purma tribe. Tribal leader's weapon. If only it weren't for the greed to pull it all together!

As I rolled my eyes in dejection, the warhammer in question happened to be not far from him.

Despite the impact of the fall, fortunately the weapon appeared to be intact, but the box it was placed in was completely shattered and some of its contents, such as clothes, were spilling out. The knot that Bartóza had carefully tied was also completely broken.

'... huh?'

But then something strange caught Bartoza's eyes.

what? Why is there so much blood on the box? And what is sticking out from under the red-stained hem...

'... hand?'

Bartóza blinked foolishly.

No, it can't be? There was only that scary woman in the carriage, and there was definitely no sign of anyone else.

But no matter how much you wash your eyes and look at them, those are clearly the hands of a pale, tired person!

'Could it be that the people of the empire don't offer ancestral rites to the dead? Instead of honoring the deceased with reverence, you put them in a box and carry them around like a piece of luggage?'

What kind of horrible people are these people who don't know manners!

But something really scary happened next. The hand that I thought was a dead body suddenly began to move slowly!

Wiggle.

'... ... !'

And soon, before Bartoza's eyes, a terrible scene that he feared he would see again in his dreams began to unfold.

Wiggle, wiggle, wiggle.

Creak, creak. Crunch, crunch, crunch!

"Heeeeeeeek!"

Ssssss...

The trees make a gloomy friction sound in the cold wind.

Below that lonely canyon, the scene of a terrible crash.

There, a person, or rather a monster resurrected from a corpse, was standing up, covered in blood. Surrounded by a bright light that hurts my eyes.

Hwaaaaa...

How much time has passed? The light surrounding the monster slowly fades.

Rattling.

After correcting the misaligned cervical vertebrae, the tall, tall

Shinhyeong stood tall in front of Bartozha.

Although it was wrapped in flowing priestly clothing, Bartoza could see that the monster had the appearance of a proper human. The sight of the long, blood-soaked clothes fluttering around reminded me of the cursed shaman from old folk tales.

In any case, that ominous monster was something terrible that should never belong to this world. That much was certain.

"Hey... .."

As Bartóza was overcome with extreme fear-

Creak.

The monster's head moved slightly.

Although the face was not visible because it was covered by a thick hood, it somehow felt as if the monster's gaze was aimed straight at Bartoza.

A cool chill flowing through my entire body. This may not just be due to the recent excessive drop in temperature.

"Ugh... Hmm... Buy, save... .."

Bartóza trembled and let out a suppressed moan.

But something surprising happened one after another. The terrifying monster suddenly spoke in clear Barsha.

"Stop making a fuss and shut your mouth. "It's very noisy."

"Uh-huh?!"

"If you lie there quietly, I will treat you later."

"Hic? "Huh?"

Then the monster turned away from Bartoja and headed somewhere at a precarious pace.

To a place where carriage messages are scattered, and another faint presence is felt.

"Ugh... .."

The woman who fell together was closer than I thought. On the outside, she didn't seem to have any major damage, but the angles of her upper and lower body were strangely twisted, so it seemed like her spine had been seriously injured. Unlike Bartozha, she was unlucky.

It seems completely wrong for the field to breathe out every now and then and come back to life.

Paaaaa-!

I saw it.

The strange light from earlier seemed to spread again, and the woman suddenly opened her eyes!

"... Ah?"

She opened her eyes wide and looked up at the suspicious monster.

"Hey, who are you?"

"... It's a healing priest passing by. "It looks like there was a pretty big accident, so I stopped by to check on it."

If Bartozha had been able to understand the imperial language, there would have been a lot of things to counter with that answer.

It's a lie! He was hiding in the carriage from the beginning! Do you think it makes sense for him to go through this remote forest barefoot in the first place?

But unfortunately, Edith was not a person who thought much.

"accident... Oh, I see! I fell off that cliff. "I thought I was really going to die this time, but I got lucky!"

Edith jumped up from her seat with a lively attitude, without any injuries whatsoever.

"Thank you for your attention, priest! Oh, maybe your name is... ... ?"

"... "It's called Bart."

"yes. Priest Bart. thank you. Thanks to you, my life was saved! How should I repay this favor..."

Then, Edith belatedly noticed that the priest's tight robes were soaked in blood.

"Oh, but priest. Were you hurt too? These blood stains..."

"This is what happened while I was treating you. "I'm fine, so you don't have to worry."

"Ah yes. okay! Because of me, the beautiful priest's uniform got ruined. I'm really sorry."

As expected, if Bartóza had understood their conversation, he would have been shocked again at this point.

You stupid woman! Do you think that all that blood is just an amount you can bury by treating someone nearby? The blood you shed wasn't even that much to begin with!

"Anyway, we're in big trouble. "The carriage was completely destroyed, and all the horses were dead."

Edith looked around with a worried expression.

"Besides, I have no idea where this place is. I guess I'll have to go back to Regina first..."

Then the mysterious priest answered politely.

"It would be impossible to go to Regina. "There is no shortcut that takes you right back to the top of the cliff."

"then..."

"Instead, if you take a detour through the canyon and walk for a few days, you will reach the central territories of Ortona. "I will guide you to the nearest village."

"Oh really? I was wondering what to do now... Thank you so much, Father Bart! "Then I'll pack my bags, so please wait a moment!"

Edith began rummaging through the remains of the carriage with a brisk pace. Most of the items on board were destroyed, but we had to keep what we could.

"Should I leave your clothes bag for now? I guess I'll just have to take some precious trinkets. Ah, Red's plate collection! I can't use this because it's completely broken..."

Meanwhile, Priest Bart finally turned his head and hurriedly approached Bartoza.

"eww..."

cried poor Barshain, who had suffered so much mental suffering in such a short period of time, in terror.

"Da, don't come closer! "What are you?"

Then a calm answer came back from the monster.

"He is a priest of the empire. "He's just an ordinary healing priest."

"Normal, that's nonsense! Boo, I definitely saw that your neck was broken. How on earth did you move like that? ... !"

"This is also the grace of the Lord. If you had suffered greatly, would you have a new faith even now? "You noisy heathen."

A normal healing priest? That could never happen, Bartoza thought.

He also encountered a group of priests several times during the war with the empire. There were some who showed amazing healing abilities, but even so, there were scenes like bringing a person with a broken neck back to life... ... !

chuck.

Just then, the hand of the monster claiming to be a priest lightly touched his shoulder.

"Why are you doing this? "Please let me go!"

In response to Bartóza's screaming question, the monster slightly tilted its head as if puzzled.

"You are saying strange things. "Do you want to die like this?"

"what... "What on earth do you want from me?"

"I don't really want anything from you. All you have to do is help me and her maid and head to her nearby village."

"Well, if you do that... So you're saving me? Like ancient demons, asking for my soul in exchange for a deal..."

"... transaction?"

The monster briefly questioned, then slowly nodded.

"okay. I guess this can also be seen as a kind of transaction. "As it was a great inconvenience to me, from now on I will have to serve you with all my heart as my own hands and feet."

As soon as those words fell-

Hahahaha!

A horribly bright light surrounded Bartoza's entire body.

Drudge, clatter.

The sound of a heavy blunt object being dragged on the ground constantly disturbs my ears.

"Go straight down that stream. "It would be best not to rest even for a moment until evening."

And above his head, a terrible monster gives instructions he cannot refuse. Bartoja really wished that this was all a dream.

As expected, Bartoja was carrying a bloody monster on his back along with freshly slaughtered horse meat.

'It's too light to be a human. As expected, this monster is an evil spirit!'

Moreover, this monster does not show any of the vitality that a human should feel - what is called 'auror activity' in the Imperial language.

As soon as the thought reached this point, Bartoja was overcome with a sense of fear.

'Ah, Bartoja, Bartoja! Just crouch quietly and grow your power within the tribe! 'Your foolish choice ultimately led you to your own death!'

The problem was that the imperial woman knew nothing. There are more than one strange thing, but this fierce woman just chatters with the monster with an innocent face.

"Priest Bart. "But how can you speak Warsaw so well, priest?"

"I was once a member of the Southern Missionary Corps. "I learned it then."

"So you must have been at the front line? "You are truly amazing!"

In my heart, I wanted to hand over this burdensome burden to that stupid woman right away.

But that couldn't be possible because she already had other important burdens. Bartoja was dragging the warhammer, which he had been struggling with so hard, with a nonchalant expression on his face.

Deukdeukdeuk!

The more I looked at it, the more formidable it was.

"... "Yes, you guys are here."

However, if I were to pick the thing that scared me the most while carrying this monster, it would be the low muttering that came out of its mouth.

The monster was staring into empty space, spewing out words that Bartóza could not understand.

"Don't be in a hurry, Herna. As you can see, I am safe."

"This is nothing, Kadesh. "You weren't hurt, so please call Regina and reassure everyone."

Bartóza was now increasingly afraid.

Is this monster now talking to other evil spirits? Are you really going to curse me and make me die?

It was right then.

I flinch.

I felt the monster suddenly stiffen, as if surprised by something.

"... Mores."

Then he remained silent for a while, making Bartóza even more frightened.

"... That's rare. You came this far..."

After a while, the monster finally let out a small sigh and spoke.

"Don't be too angry. "I'm so sorry."

"okay. It was my fault. I just couldn't let you go without any preparation..."

"No, it's not like that. I don't blame you for tearing Sir Sharon away..."

"It's just...""

Then there is another long, long silence. The monster's increasingly gloomy appearance, as if it were being scolded by another evil spirit, was vividly conveyed through Bartoza's back.

'What a terrible evil spirit must have come to silence this terrible monster!'

Bartoza was now so frightened that his teeth were chattering.

Ah, I'm afraid. I am so afraid!

"... okay."

And at the end of that silence, the monster lightly vibrated its body as if it was laughing.

"Okay. Don't you know it too? "I can go find you on my own."

It was such a soft laugh that it was hard to believe that it came from the mouth of an evil monster, to the point where Bartóza, who was momentarily surprised, listened in a daze.

426. Transaction (4)

"... father... .."

Hearing a low muttering sound, Owen turned to look at the boy sitting next to him.

Mores had been dozing off while hugging the lamp, and his eyebrows were slightly furrowed as if he was dreaming.

'Isn't the bed comfortable?'

As Owen moved aside the rolling luggage at his feet, the boy opened his mouth once again.

"... So brave... recognize... If you avoid... .."

... Should I wake him up?

As he was thinking about it, Masain opened his mouth as if he guessed what he was thinking.

"it's okay. "You're just talking in your sleep."

"Are you talking in your sleep? "Aren't you having a nightmare?"

"That won't be it. Because you do that every time. This is my first time seeing you talk in your sleep while taking a nap. "I don't often take naps in the first place."

This doesn't happen once or twice.

Owen, feeling a little relieved, took off his old cloak and draped it over his shoulders, and Mores muttered again like a sigh.

"So, just a little... This guy..."

While Edith and Bartóza were walking endlessly along the valley, the sun had already set and a dark evening had arrived.

Hmm hmmm, hmmm~

Edith, who has become more energetic thanks to her divine power, occasionally hums a song.

However, in the case of Bartoza, the situation was a little different, as he glanced at Edith with sorrowful eyes and was breaking into a cold sweat.

'excuse me... Woman, you're in big trouble! 'Ichi hasn't been breathing since a while ago!'

However, since I don't know the imperial language, there is no way to convey the message.

Bartoza gritted his teeth and carefully felt the monster he was carrying. I was already scared because I had no energy at all, but now my pulse and breathing were completely gone!

'... After all, this person is an evil spirit from the other world!'

Nevertheless, the only reason why Bartozza did not stop walking was because of the monster's last words.

-I have an audience so I'll come by for a moment. Walk along the waterway without stopping. When the sun sets, you will meet the person who came to meet you.

Should I run away now? Bartoza thought seriously.

'But isn't it a monster that comes back to life even if its neck is broken? They will chase me to the end of the world...'

Fortunately, Bartoza's agony did not last long. Before the sun completely set, they were able to spot a wagon covered with fresh packaging and a small bonfire burning in front of it.

"ah! "Priest Bart said there would be a group nearby, and he was right!"

Edith smiled happily and approached the bonfire.

The person guarding the fire was a young man who looked somewhat tired. He was wearing shabby clothes that only farmers would wear, but judging from his sharp eyes and the long scar around his mouth, he did not look like a person who was peacefully farming.

As soon as he saw Edith and the others - to be exact, the bloody priest who was being carried by Bartoza - he stood up in shock.

"... Peha?!"

Then, in the blink of an eye, he approached Bartoja and was almost taking the priest's body from him.

"What the hell is all this blood... ..!"

"Look, Father Bart said it was okay. He said he got blood on us while trying to treat us... .."

As Edith spoke carefully, the man looked at her with a bewildered expression.

"... yes?"

At that moment, Bartoza felt a strange sense of kinship with the man. Even though he couldn't understand my language, I felt like he understood what was being said between them.

"... Please come this way first."

After glancing at the priest and confirming that there was no major problem, the man took them to the wagon with a genuine expression.

"As you may have heard from the priest, from now on I will guide you to a nearby village."

An attitude as if he knew everything about their situation.

Normally, I would have thought it was strange. It was their first time meeting each other, and the priest who was supposed to be the link between them was in deep sleep and was silent.

But fortunately, one of them had no idea, and the other was completely speechless.

"First, load the items you brought onto this wagon."

"ah? yes. "Then, at the risk of being rude, I will leave this here for a while."

Coo!

As Edith put down the warhammer roughly, the man again cast a strange look at her.

"But... Didn't Father Bart say something? "I already don't have enough hands, so why on earth did you bring that useless baggage?"

"This is not useless. "It's an important item."

"Aren't you from the Empire? But no matter how you look at that weapon, it looks like it belongs to Barça."

Of course, this warhammer is not Prince Mores' burden. but-

"My Majesty, I don't think he would be too concerned if I lost one or two of his belongings due to unavoidable circumstances. "But this weapon is not yours, but Prince Owen's."

So Prince Mores would want this to be given priority over other things, Edith was truly thinking.

"... .."

Of course, this may not be the attitude of a typical user.

The man thought for a moment. This woman says she doesn't know if she's thoughtful or if she's thoughtless.

"By the way, who are you?"

"... Please call me number 21."

The man, who introduced himself with an odd name in response to a question that was much too late, carefully placed Priest Bart's body on a bed provided on one side of the wagon.

"Is the priest sleeping? "Why don't you wake up?"

"It is not that easy to come here again. "Perhaps you won't come back after the political meeting tomorrow morning."

"yes?"

A maid who doesn't understand, and Barshain who doesn't know the imperial language at all. Number 21 somehow felt a headache.

"First, you guys take a wash in the stream."

No matter how much the North has become a lawless area, it cannot continue to wander around covered in blood.

Number 21 handed them some clothes to change into. These were shabby clothes that ordinary people would wear.

"When you're done, you can dry yourself by the fire. lung... "After I take care of the priest, I will give you a quick bite to eat."

Some time passed, and the three people sat together in front of the bonfire.

There was a small pot of stew bubbling over the fire, and as the delicious smell of food spread, even Bartóza, who had been terrified, visibly calmed down.

"Oh right! "Let's bake this quickly before it goes bad."

Edith, who was eating, seemed to have remembered it later and presented a suspicious package. Her number 21 looked at her in surprise as she noticed that her package was soaked in her blood.

"... "What is this?"

"It's horse meat."

word?

Number 21, who was dazed for a moment, was finally able to realize the correlation between the carriage crash and horse meat.

"Aren't horses the property of the imperial family? Is it okay for you to slaughter something like that as you please?"

"These horses are precious, so we should at least take care of their meat. I was dropped in a remote place, but I don't know when I'll find food again. "If I had left it as is, wild animals would have eaten it anyway."

That's true though.

After studying Edith's fierce face for a moment, No. 21 came to a conclusion. It seems like this woman is rather thoughtless.

When No. 21 nodded hesitantly, Edith rolled up her sleeves and put the horse meat on the fire. Soon, the delicious smell of cooking meat began to waft around the bonfire.

'There is nothing suspicious anywhere.'

I can feel strangely active aura activity from Edith as she cooks, but that's it. Isn't she the one for whom Her Majesty has already vouched for her identity?

No. 21 put the meat she offered him into his mouth without any hesitation. And then-

Startle.

Almost as soon as my taste buds detected the taste, I spit out the meat onto the floor.

"Oh, why are you doing that?"

"... Why do you write like this? "What on earth did you do to the meat when you slaughtered it?"

"Use it?"

At those words, Edith carefully takes a bite of a piece of meat and frowns.

"Hmm, I'm disappointed? Isn't it because it's a warhorse with a good pedigree? "I guess the meat is tough because there's a lot of muscle."

"No, this isn't tough, it's weird... as if it's covered in bile.""

"I didn't rupture my gallbladder! "It's probably a variety that doesn't taste very good."

"Just in case, I am here to help you. Could it be that it was poisoned..."

"No, it's poison! "Why are you saying such things to me?"

Although they argued for a while, it was just a light incident for the two. However, Barshain, who spat out terribly bitter meat, was once again in great anxiety as he did not know what was going on.

'Evil Empires! In the end, you're trying to quietly poison me by pretending to give me food!"

It was obvious that he would stay up all night like this.

That someone would be satisfied with that little bullying.

Growling.

Seongjin opened his eyes, feeling severe hunger.

"hungry..."

If you think about it, you haven't eaten anything all day.

Masain then handed him a small piece of beef jerky as if he had been waiting for him. It was emergency food given to me by Dasha.

"Are you awake, sir? While you were sleeping, the coachman changed once more."

After Seongjin accepts the beef jerky, he next offers a small canteen.

"I tried to talk to him, but he didn't answer at all. "It looks like they have no intention of stopping the carriage until they reach their destination."

"Well, I guess so. "Because that is the delivery method of the Freedom Underpass."

Seongjin took a sip of water, then cut the beef jerky in half and threw one of them into the devil's lamp.

Grumble!

Red flames fly and eat up the last of the emergency food. Owen looked at the scene for a moment and grumbled.

"Are you giving it away to a fairy again? "People your age need to eat well to grow well."

"It's noisy, you idiot. "Anyway, do you have anything to eat?"

"No, how did you know I would come this far and prepare for something like that in advance... .. ?"

Owen, who was replying bluntly, suddenly seems to have remembered something and his eyes widen.

"what... ? Just wait a moment. "If it's simple food, I think I might have a way."

Then Owen closed his eyes, clutching the bright red pendant hanging around his neck.

"Mr. Sang Chang-chang. "It's a little early, but please, please!"

Everyone is watching his antics -

Dororong.

Strangely enough, as soon as he finished speaking, Owen lowered his head and fell into a deep sleep!

"... ..?"

Masain looked back at Seongjin in a bit of confusion as the guy who had been fine until just a moment ago seemed to have suddenly lost consciousness. Because she didn't seem to be in a normal state.

"What on earth is going on? "If you see that your auror activity is okay, it doesn't mean there's a problem with your body."

Of course, Seongjin was able to notice right away.

This guy is thinking of going to Pangea Chronicle for a while.

'But will Sangtae Chang, who has a bad personality, let him go easily?'

Fortunately, it seemed that the status window had no intention of being grumpy. It wasn't long before Owen opened his eyes safely. She then becomes very bright and rummages through her pockets.

"Come on, let's eat this first!"

In his outstretched hand, there were several fish cakes that Seongjin was already familiar with.

"... "What is that?"

When Masain asked, very wary of seeing food for the first time in his life, Owen answered with a smile.

"yes. "Here's some food, brother."

Seongjin also got those fish cakes before. It was given to you if you did the grocery store daily quest in the green zone.

The price is cheap, but the difficulty is easy and the taste is not bad, so even silent villains sometimes complete the quest as a snack.

Of course, for Masain who did not know that background, it would have been an extremely suspicious food.

"Speaking of food, it doesn't look like real food... Lowering?!"

He was surprised when he saw Seongjin take the fish cake without saying a word.

"Want some. hungry."

"Well, then! "If you're being rude, I'll eat it first!"

Masain closed his eyes tightly and swallowed a piece of fish cake. Then his eyes widen and he looks back at Seongjin.

Look. I heard this is delicious.

I didn't forget to put one in the lamp, and the demon king also seemed satisfied and ate the fish cake.

[What's this? It tastes like something new?]

Even while I was briefly satisfying my urgent hunger, the carriage continued to run without stopping, shaking.

"But Owen. "Do you have any bread?"

"huh? bread?"

Owen, who was momentarily confused by Seongjin's unexpected request, soon became bright as if he remembered something.

Yes, let's not forget about the part-time job at the church next to the grocery store. The bread there was pretty good too.

"hang on!"

Owen held the milestone again and fell into a deep sleep. Then, after quite some time, she opens her eyes with a triumphant look on her face.

"Here, I brought you some more bread and fish cakes! new... Mores, do you like this?"

Seongjin quickly accepted the food. Only Martha was rubbing her eyes and looking at Owen and her food with a bewildered expression.

"No, sir. "Where on earth do all these come from?"

"It's okay, Sir Martha. "Let's eat first and see."

Yum Yum.

"But Owen, there's nothing to drink...""

"huh? ah! Now that I think about it, the general store dinner quest... !
"Just wait a moment!"

While we were picking up and eating the food that Owen had procured all night long-

Seongjin and his group arrived at the final destination of the 'special delivery'. It was Furiano, the second largest refugee camp in Ortona.

427. Transaction (5)

It was inevitable that Furiano would become a huge refugee camp.

This area, located in central Ortona, is far away from the western mountain range, so marine animals rarely appear. The surrounding area was nothing but dry wasteland, so it was not an attractive land for cultivation even for the nearby lords.

However, the most important factor among them would probably be that Furiano was 'moderately' destroyed by the civil war.

To the extent that the Yeongju family gave up on rebuilding and fled, there were no infrastructure facilities left in good condition on the ground in Puriano.

On the other hand, there are still sewage facilities underground that are not completely destroyed. Thanks to this, even if a large number of people gather together and emit pollutants for several years, major diseases do not spread and the odor is maintained at a tolerable level.

"And the vast sewers of Furiano make a suitable hiding place. "It is no exaggeration to say that the most disgusting criminals are all hiding here in the underground sewers."

The man who took Seongjin's group by 'special delivery' said as he led the way.

He was a middle-aged man with a bushy beard, and he seemed to be a middle manager in his own right in the Liberty Underground, where the hierarchy was ambiguous.

"The people hiding underground here are not ordinary refugees or common criminals. They are serious criminals who must avoid the eyes of the Inquisitors. No wonder Giovanni is troubled by them."

The guide, who was continuing his explanation, stopped in front of an old tent standing between two broken walls. Then he started banging on the tent and getting irritated.

"hey! How many times have I said this! I'm telling you not to keep pitching tents between passages! "What if I block people's paths?"

Then the refugee jumped out of the tent and took it away with a dissatisfied expression.

Toad-duk-duk.

Soon the obstacles disappear, revealing a narrow and dirty alley.

"This is the shortcut."

As I followed him through the winding alley, a wide square appeared in front of me. It is a cluttered place filled with dirty tents.

"How far did I go? Oh yeah. Some of those who have gone into hiding are heretics, such as alchemists or magicians, while the rest are all evil devil worshipers. They are out of sight... hey! Don't look around too much. "People may misunderstand that you are starting a fight."

Owen suddenly receives attention and turns his head in surprise.

Then Masain, who had been following quietly until then, opened his mouth to the guide for the first time.

"But is there any point in avoiding eye contact with us? "People are already looking this way."

As he pointed out, Seongjin and his group were attracting people's attention as soon as they entered the refugee camp.

People who brushed grass and mud to dry, and people who knocked out laundry near a dirty water fountain. The moment everyone spots Seongjin and his group, they stop what they are doing and fix their gaze.

"The atmosphere is a bit... .."

It was no wonder that Owen was whispering with a tired face. The sight of skinny people covered in soot with expressionless faces and flashing eyes was, at first glance, bizarre.

The guide glanced around and spat on the floor.

"That's because you are so different from ordinary refugees. No matter how dusty it is, the stains are too good! Come on, don't create any unnecessary discomfort and hurry up!"

He quickly passed through the square where people were gathered, and finally took Seongjin and his group to the entrance of a smelly sewer.

"Well, we've arrived. "The person you are looking for is probably in here."

"for a moment. Should we go in there ourselves?"

Masain asked in confusion. As expected, the man who guided the group had already taken a few steps back, holding his nose.

"Aren't you already finished talking with Giovanni? "We do not take direct action against those who have taken refuge in our base."

"No, anyway... ..!"

While they were arguing, Seongjin looked at the sewer in silence.

"hmm."

Drip, drip, drip.

At the dirty entrance where sewage was dripping down, there were a lot of stems that couldn't be distinguished as plants or debris.

Aside from the disgusting and humid air, the wet and slippery dirt stuck to the wall creates such discomfort that it is hard to even imagine what its composition is.

but-

"Time is running out. For some time now, I've been feeling like something's been a little off."

In that case, we have no choice but to hurry.

"The sewers built throughout Furiano would definitely be as complicated as a spider's web. There needs to be someone to guide the way, or at least a map that shows the internal structure... .."

"This is ridiculous. Are you looking for an intact map in a ruined refugee camp?"

"Then at least a torch... .."

"Sir Martha."

Seongjin held up a small, blinking lamp to Lord Masaine, who was bickering tirelessly with the guide.

"are you okay. Because we have this guy."

Then, the demon king acts proudly for the first time in a long time.

[Ahem! Leave it to this great devil!]

Seongjin triumphantly tapped the blinking lampshade -

"Come on, let's go."

After saying a short word, he walked straight into the sewer.

"Uh, you?!"

Masain, who was startled, was about to stop him.

Tuk.

Owen tapped his shoulder and said something unintelligible in a bright voice.

"You'll be fine without a guide or map, brother. new... Still, Mores is really good at finding his way around a dungeon, right?"

... yes?

* * *

"How long on earth do I have to wait?"

At that time, in a deep hiding place in the sewers.

Giacomo Milo, whom Seongjin and his party were looking for, was urgently searching for someone in the dark.

"There is a limit to human patience, wizard."

Giacomo Milo's current state was beyond words. Dirty features, messy hair, and sunken eyelids.

Looking at that figure, no one would guess that he was once the owner of a fairly prosperous merchant in the north.

"It's okay to be somewhat imperfect. Hurry and give me that elixir...
... !"

Then the person called the wizard slowly stands up. Although she was completely wrapped in black robes from head to toe, her strangely lithe body gave the impression of a noble lady.

"It is not time yet. "Please wait."

The wizard walked slowly and passed Giacomo Milo. Then, he stands in front of several rat cages placed on one wall.

Snap! Squeak!

Surprisingly, half-decomposed rats were moving around there. Although their hearts have already stopped for a long time, they are biting each other and gnawing at us persistently as if they are still alive.

Crackle, crackle.

"Hehe."

It was a terrible and disgusting sight, but the wizard fondled the dirty cage as he would a cute pet.

"As you can see, the completion of the elixir is not far away. Just have to wait a little longer... .."

"Isn't that enough already? That level of perfection alone would be a great disaster for the humans of the ecliptic!"

"It is not wise to hastily seek revenge, Giacomo Milo. Do you want to move clumsily and lose everything you have left?"

At those words, a spark flew out of Giacomo Milo's eyes.

"Don't be ridiculous! "I have nothing more to lose!"

"... .."

The wizard closed his mouth and looked at his bloodshot eyes for a moment.

'okay. The author has already lost the top position he had built his entire life. Even if he thinks he has lost everything, there is nothing he can do.

But in the wizard's view, Giacomo still had something left to lose. And the devil who made a contract with him knows that very well.

The reason why someone who still has something left behaves in such a self-destructive way. It might be... ..

'Are these the words of a devil contractor that cannot be helped? Since it has become difficult to realize the wish originally contracted, the devil is trying to steal the soul by encouraging the contractee to break the contract.'

After closely examining his noticeably darkened complexion, the wizard was able to confirm once again that it was evidence of slow erosion.

'It won't be long anyway. It will be difficult to hold out until the elixir is completed.'

But it probably isn't any of your business.

A contract with the devil is ultimately a matter for the parties involved. Even if the impulse is excessively encouraged, the root of it is the will of the evildoer. If you do this, you have no choice but to respect it.

'I have to get what I can right now.'

The wizard made up his mind and took out a small reagent bottle from his pocket. It was an ominous object filled with a thick black substance.

"Here it is. So what is the price of this elixir?"

Giacomo Milo then also handed the wizard a small booklet. It was an old magic book he had stolen when he ran away from his family.

"Dacianus's secretary as promised. Rumors say it contains the secret of immortality."

As the wizard silently accepted the booklet, Giacomo Milo snatched it as if taking a bottle containing an elixir. As soon as he saw the black liquid flowing inside, a faint light of relief came over his face.

"I'm saying this because it's a done deal, but even I can't guarantee the authenticity of that secretary."

"I know that. "Most of the old books collected by nobles are the work of fraudsters."

"Then why did you ask for that?"

Then the magician twitched the corners of his mouth that were exposed under the hood. It was a smile that seemed too bitter and painful to be called a smile.

"Well, what can I do? "Those who know the deep mysteries of the world have no choice but to rely on these things."

If you knew that an infinitely more painful life and an even more terrible afterlife await you.

"omg! omg!"

Giacomo Milo, who finally got what he wanted, ran frantically through the sewers. Because we had to take this to the imperial capital and spread it as soon as possible.

Of course, the person carrying this will not be safe either. But now none of that mattered. Because what drives him now is nothing other than his fierce revenge on the world.

-Remember, Giacomo Milo. That elixir is nothing more than a trick to deceive 'rest'.

My breath reaches my chin. In my dazed mind due to lack of oxygen, the wizard's last words of advice passed by.

-So, you have to be careful so you don't run into 'him'. Such tricks would be of no use in front of the true master of death.

The true master of death. There was no way to guess who it meant.

but-

'Even if I make a mistake, I don't encounter him. I do not enter the ecliptic directly! First, we will unleash this deadly plague on the outskirts of Regina, infect enough people, and finally have it sweep across the imperial capital in an instant!'

But just like everything else has been like so far. The world was not on his side again.

Blink, blink.

The moment Giacomo Milo discovered a small red light shining in the pitch-black darkness, he realized that something was definitely wrong.

[this! Hurry and avoid, Giacomo! That is the one prepared!]

His demon, Salos, cries out in his mind. But soon the sound slowly faded away from my ears.

"hey."

And finally, a tall boy appeared before his eyes.

"It's not as good as I remember, but I think it's you who I'm looking for."

The boy's narrowed eyes suddenly flashed a strange red light.

"how is it? "If we have time, can we talk for a moment?"

428. Secretary of the Immortal (1)

'How does one who is prepared?'

Giacomo Milo was literally on the verge of losing his mind.

'How can you be here without a single bodyguard, acting so shabby!' dump!

Giacomo Milo, completely caught off guard, falls to the floor in a daze. Then Seongjin looked down at him with a 'friendly' smile of his own.

"You are ready for conversation. "I think we'll talk quickly."

Unfortunately, that smile sent Giacomo Milo into a state of complete panic.

'Ah, it's over now! 'The one who is prepared will eventually kill me here!'

Giacomo grabbed the precious black elixir with trembling hands.

I finally got this! I thought I could finally get revenge on those who brought down me and my top!

'Salos! Why is there no response from Salos at such an important time?'

As the contractor's emotions intensified-

Slurp.

For a moment, a faint black fog seemed to rise from Giacomo Milo's shadow.

[Be careful, Seongjin Lee! That guy is leaking a little bit of magical energy right now.]

The Demon King blinked his lamp and warned.

[You said that guy was a devil contractor, right? That's definitely a sign of a broken contract. It seems the devil has decided to give up on the author!]

"okay? "What happens if I give up?"

[As it is not the fault of humans, the soul is not immediately taken to the demon world. but-]

The Demon King continued his explanation quickly.

[The devil who made a contract with him also no longer has the obligation to protect the contracted person from demonic energy. The moment the devil completely disconnects, that person will probably die right away.]

Giacomo Milo has already been sentenced to death. So whether I die here or get executed in the imperial capital, it won't be that big of a problem.

However, it seemed that the story was a little different in the case of the devil who had made a contract with him.

[The devil who arbitrarily breaks the contract will indeed have to pay a huge price. The punishment is so heavy that it feels like nothing is wrong with adding a few more crimes.]

And in such a crisis, the devil almost always tried to cause an accident. The devil is not the devil for nothing.

[Ignoring the rules of the dimension, turning a blind eye to cause and effect, they use the bodies of sacrificed human beings as a channel to release as much demonic power as possible onto the earth. That alone would cause the human world to fall into great confusion.]

In other words, the current Giacomo Milo is a magic time bomb that may explode at any moment.

There was a reason why Giovanni, the leader of the Free Underpass, was reluctant to touch the guy directly.

"Then what if I kill that guy here first?"

"Ugh... ..!"

Giacomo Milo's complexion turns pale.

[The souls of humans who fail to fulfill the contract will be taken to the demon world. And that body will disappear, causing rapid erosion. A considerable amount of demon energy was left here. You may be fine, but probably the people around you will be affected to some extent?]

And humans suffer from even weak magical energy and end up dying. The Demon King added that.

"Right."

Seongjin was lost in thought while rubbing his chin.

'This is causing a bit of trouble.'

Either way, it means that the refugee camp is exposed to demonic energy.

The situation was a little different from the case where a large demon species appeared in Bathurst Territory. At that time, there was almost no casualties even when a huge dinosaur wreaked havoc.

But what about the underpass here? If you go up just a few meters, isn't it a tent village with countless refugees crowded together?

From now on, it is nearly impossible to quickly mobilize priests or paladins to purify demon energy. Even if it were possible, a terrible hell would have already unfolded in the refugee camp in the meantime.

'This means that we must keep Giacomo Milo alive until we can eventually move to a safe place.'

In addition, we need to calm down the demon that made a contract with him. Don't get scared and break the contract arbitrarily.

Having made up his mind, Seongjin slowly took a step towards Giacomo Milo.

"Stop worrying. "I have no intention of harming you right now."

It was addressed to both Giacomo Milo and the devil who had made a contract with him. A truly leisurely attitude that does not show the slightest hint of inner turmoil.

However, unlike the confident expression of a reaper holding a sickle to the neck of the dead, Seongjin was nervously watching for signs around him.

'I don't think the situation here will end quickly. Sir Martha and Owen will do well.'

In fact, there were some twists and turns that led Seongjin to face Giacomo Milo alone.

So, a little while ago-

"... .. ?"

While walking through the complex sewer system, Seongjin raised his head as he felt his concentration strangely becoming dispersed.

And I stared at the front of that pitch-black tunnel, where nothing could be seen even if I were just a few steps away from the Demon King's lamp.

'... What is this? 'I feel a little confused somehow?'

Slurp, rippling... ..

Listening to the gentle sounds of the sewage flow through one ear, Seongjin sharpened his senses towards the front.

'okay. I know the way to go. I wasn't confused even at the crossroads. But now, for some reason, I feel like the path may not be what I expected.'

It was when Seongjin was tilting his head at that strange premonition.

[Lee Seong-jin, look at that! There's something strange over there!]

The Demon King must have discovered something, and suddenly flew up from the lamp as a captive. Then it started circling down the canal where the sewage was flowing.

[Look at this guy! It's obviously dead, but it's still moving!]

In the place where the Demon King illuminated, there was, indeed, the corpse of a rat that had been cut in half.

"... .. ?"

But that's not the end. Horribly, the heavily decayed rat was still twitching its front paws intermittently.

Wiggle. Wiggle.

Masain then looked over Seongjin's shoulder and looked at the scene below the canal and took a deep breath.

"... Lord! "Is this some kind of evil trick?"

It's a trick of wrongdoing. It was certainly a sight that could not be explained by common sense. It is difficult to regard it as normal postmortem muscle cramps because the rat's body was already half-decomposed and almost all of its bones were exposed.

And around that time, Seongjin was able to realize part of the cause of the discomfort he felt in this sewer.

'Are there no living rats nearby?'

I said earlier that I could only hear the quiet sound of running water, but there was no sign of the rats that would normally be found in a sewer.

'Isn't this just a sewer? 'What's going on in this space where even rats can't set foot?'

While Seongjin was thinking about something else for a moment, the Demon King was bustling around the corpse and shouted again.

[But look at this here too, Seongjin Lee! Although it has faded a lot, I can feel faint traces of the normal world here!]

Seongjin, who was concentrating his eyes, happened to notice a faint fragment of the broken text.

?TY□E_m_und□□d_no297□402?

?err! Unable to confirm appropriate object!?

?err! ge□Ah!$2└─Could not□confirm the server.?

?err... ... ?

Well then. If there is a phenomenon that cannot be explained by common sense, it is most likely the result of the laws of the normal world interfering.

However, this is not a law that operates normally, but is badly broken and broken into pieces and has a serious error...

'... Oh, I feel bad.'

Seongjin stopped thinking and quickly turned his head away from the corpse.

For some reason, as I continued to look at that, a strangely unpleasant feeling arose in me. It feels like something is going to burst out of me at any moment.

"It feels uncomfortable to just leave it like that. "I don't want to see it, so burn it."

Seongjin furrowed his eyebrows and gave instructions, and the Demon King responded cheerfully.

[huh! okay!]

He seems very happy to be able to prove his usefulness after a long time.

Grumble!

The rat's body was instantly engulfed in fierce flames. Seongjin, who glanced at the burning corpse, quickened his pace again when the demon king returned to the lamp.

'As expected, I don't like this or that. It's been a long time since I've had this kind of vague premonition.'

It was truly strange. The place I need to go is so clear, but why do I keep getting this undesirable feeling?

But soon, Seongjin was able to find the answer to his discomfort on his own. At some point, his sensitive senses began to detect the two people's presence at the same time.

'Ah, there were two goals!'

At first glance, both appear to be ordinary people with low Aura activity.

There was no doubt that one of them was Giacomo Milo. Although the auror activity was slightly weaker than before, Seongjin still remembered the presence of Milo Sang-ju, which he detected from afar when the demon beast appeared.

The problem was on the other side.

Looking at the auror activity, it doesn't seem like he has particularly strong force, but strangely, I feel like my nerves are constantly focused on that person.

'Who on earth is that?'

Judging by the fact that they are together, he probably has a close relationship with Giacomo Milo.

The only people he will meet here in the Freedom Underground are the remnants of the Penitent Church.

'Somehow I have a feeling that won't be the case.'

Anyway, I hope I can catch both. Seongjin thought so and hurried his steps.

"... ..!"

However, without any reward for his impatience, Seongjin soon felt that his targets were splitting up and splitting into two.

It was a disaster.

'You can't miss it like this! Even if I have to split my group, I have to go after them both.'

Apparently, the person I am concerned about is not Giacomo Milo, but someone else. That's why Seongjin wanted to chase the guy himself.

'But Giacomo Milo is a devil contractor. I think I shouldn't let them encounter two people who are not resistant to demonic energy.'

However, sending only two people there was a bit of a problem. I feel like I don't have enough power to finish the job neatly.

If he had gotten Dasha's help, or at least had been able to approach the clan as an Auror himself, the outcome would have been very different!

'Originally, I was planning to bring Max here.'

It was truly embarrassing. Why has nothing been going as planned these days?

"Lowering. "The presence split into two."

At that time, Masain also seemed to have faintly sensed the presence of people ahead.

Seeing him closely guarding his surroundings, Seongjin finally made up his mind. Maybe he was deciding the future outcome.

'I can't help it.'

And almost at the same time -

"Huh?"

Owen, who was following behind, was startled and stopped.

"Wait a minute, isn't that too unexpected? Why is there an emergency quest at a time like this?"

When Seongjin and Masain turn around, they see Owen staring into space with an absurd expression.

"What's going on?"

Masain asked worriedly. It's not that he wasn't, because he didn't look sane staring into empty space.

but-

'That's the status window...'

Seongjin's eyes now saw a faint fog-like shape floating in front of Owen.

I couldn't read the contents clearly, but it was clear. That must be Sang Sang-chang, who has a bad personality.

"Lowering..."

Once again, Masain notices a strange blinking light in Seongjin's eyes and looks at Seongjin with a slightly anxious face.

Seongjin, who waved his hand to reassure him, asked Owen in an awkward manner.

"why? "What on earth does the quest say?"

"hmm? Uh, so you're looking for some important document? Let's see... . A lord in the central region got his hands on a precious document that had been kept for a long time... .."

Owen, who was explaining step by step, suddenly looks back at Seongjin in astonishment.

"... what? you?"

"huh?"

"No, I mean. You just said... .."

I would never have thought that Seongjin would directly mention the quest.

But Seongjin was shameless.

what? why? what?

When I met his gaze sullenly, Owen hesitated and rolled his eyes here and there.

okay. Mores, you also knew? He knew what I was doing and came to see me. And you knew that I already knew your identity, and you even knew that I vaguely knew that fact.

So now that I know what you know that I know what you know, you who know that... ..

Owen's confused pupils cause a strong earthquake. Seongjin eventually sighed softly.

'This guy can't come to his senses at such an important moment.'

Since the time was right, Seongjin reacted quickly.

He decided to do what his heart told him to do, to be in the most appropriate position, without worrying about what anyone else thought.

Whick!

Sigh!

The tremendous sound of the impact echoes through the quiet underground tunnel.

Masain's eyes widen and-

"Ahh!"

Owen, who had suddenly been hit hard on the forehead, held his forehead with a somewhat shocked expression.

"no! Why are you hitting me all of a sudden? "It hurts!"

"I don't have time to be like this right now. "Will you come to your senses quickly?"

"Yes?"

"Go quickly. "Don't you need to hurry to do the quest?"

"Uh, huh? Yes!"

Owen nodded without thinking, his face suddenly brightening.

"okay!"

And then he began to run hurriedly through the sewer.

'Well, I don't have the devil's lamp or torch, but that guy's eyesight will be enough even in the dark.'

Seongjin looked at that for a moment, then turned his head and stared straight at Masain.

"Sir Martha."

"... Yes, lower,"

Sure enough, Lord Martha's face had already darkened, as if anticipating his next words. Now he too has completely grown accustomed to Seongjin's unexpected behavior.

And the order that was finally given.

"Go and help Owen. "If you don't come with me, he'll have a hard time on his own."

"... .."

Masain seemed fiercely conflicted for a moment. However, it was only a fleeting moment, and soon a firm determination appeared on the face of the loyal knight.

"Yes, sir. "No matter what you command, I will follow your wishes."

429. Secretary of the Immortal (2)

ping-!

A small pillar of light rises before my eyes. This is the destination indicated by Sang Tae-chang.

Owen ran towards the light with great excitement.

'As expected, Mores was Seongjin Lee! Mores was the newbie!'

Such a heartless child! If you knew, you would have told me a long time ago. Why have you been pretending not to know until now?

At that time, Masain followed at high speed from behind.

"... "Brother Masain?"

"I don't know what's going on, but I'll help you, sir!"

"... .."

The feeling of excitement for a moment subsided, and my mind gradually became clearer.

It's probably not my brother's voluntary help. It must have been something that Mores ordered.

'Now that I think about it, maybe the quest came out at this timing...
... .'

Wasn't the change based on Mores' judgment? Owen vaguely thought something like that.

There is no specific basis. But somehow, I can't shake the feeling that Sang Sang-chang continues to chase Mores and cater to his intentions.

[Emergency quest? Find and obtain important documents! new!]

[Quest Grade: A]

[Obtain a valuable document that a central lord kept for a long time. That document was once designated as a banned book under the pretext of deceiving people. Although it has been completely ignored even by the author's descendants, it actually contains a precious truth that wizards have been searching for for a long time. Perhaps with the discovery of that document, we may be able to expect unexpected additional effects.]

[Reward: 500P Cash]

'For someone like Sang Tae-chang, the compensation is very generous, isn't it?'

Thinking that he might have to be a little nervous, Owen pulled out the one-handed ax from his belt.

Squeak-! Snap!

As I got closer to my destination, I heard unexpected sounds.

'... mouse?'

It seemed like all the rats that seemed to have dried up in the underpass were all gathered here.

The odor also got worse. The smell of something rotting mixed with the already damp air, filling the space.

"... ..!"

We eventually arrived at a fairly large space where waterways intersect. Owen and Masain fell into a deep sleep at the sight that unfolded before their eyes.

"This is it..."

This was the evil wizard's laboratory.

On one side, there is an old bookshelf filled with books and documents, and on the other side, there are large and small cages containing various animals.

On a wall full of dirty foreign substances, a dense magic circle painted with an unknown paint can be seen. At a glance, it was clear that it was evidence of evil heresy or devil worship.

And in the center, there was a person wearing a black robe.

"... intruder?"

When he spotted the two people, he was shocked and shouted.

It was impossible to see his expression because his face was completely covered with a hood, but there was a hint of embarrassment in his voice that could not be hidden.

"How on earth did you guys get here without incident? "There must have been many traps in preparation for an invasion."

"trap?"

At that moment, the image of Mores occasionally taking a detour on a straight road flashed through Owen's mind.

ah! Did you avoid all the traps?

'No problem! 'Because he's a newbie!'

When I was conquering 'The Orc King's Maze', my skill at avoiding traps and alarms like a ghost didn't go anywhere.

Owen, who felt proud for a moment, suddenly came to his senses when he heard Masaine's shout.

"Lowering! "Everything in that cage is dead!"

Masain's complexion turned pale.

"They even apply that evil trick to people... ..!"

'person?'

Owen's startled gaze landed on a large cage inside. There were animals trapped there that were unusually large compared to the others.

Crackle, crackle.

The sight of him losing his wits and biting at the bars makes him look like an animal. Upon closer inspection, they were clearly human shapes with intact limbs.

"... ..!"

Owen and Masaine realized at the same time.

I wonder why that wizard decided to settle down under the refugee camp despite such harsh conditions... ..!

"Whoa... .."

The black-robed wizard took a step back and let out a sigh.

"I thought I was barely seeing results, but in the end, I ended up wasting precious samples like this. one-"

Flash!

An eerie eye glow shined through the dark robes.

"If I see this, I can't let you live anymore!"

At the same time-

Taang!

Numerous cages opened at once, and half-rotten animals poured out towards the two people at once.

"Stop worrying. "I have no intention of harming you right now."

At the same time, Seongjin was comforting Giacomo Milo, who was trembling with fear. To be exact, he sided with the devil who made a deal with him.

The consequences of arbitrarily breaking the contract were so frightening that he did not hesitate to commit another crime in desperation.

In other words, the devil probably wants humans to take responsibility for the collapse.

'I've only just found him, but he suddenly throws away his contract and tries to run away. 'What on earth is that devil so scared of?'

In any case, if you give even the slightest possibility, the devil will try to keep the contract. So Seongjin decided to capture the devil and cautiously took a step closer.

"I promise. We'll protect your contract. You don't have to do anything. "I'm not going to kill your contractor right here and now."

But the devil still had no answer. Only Giacomo Milo rolled his frightened eyes here and there.

"Well, don't lie!"

Finally, Giacomo opened his mouth in a trembling voice.

"Protecting the contract, that's all a lie, isn't it?"

"No, I'm not really going to kill you here."

"It's all a play on words! The death sentence has already been handed down to me! So, doesn't that mean you can lure me to a deserted place and have someone else take my life at any time? "Do you think I'll be fooled?!"

hmm. That's right. How can I persuade this guy who is already destined for a miserable end?

When Seongjin did not specifically deny it, Giacomo Milo's expression became distorted. He shouted in a voice full of evil.

"Salos! Are you listening? Hurry and protect me! "If you will do that, I will give myself to you right now!"

[...]]

"So, according to our agreement, give us the strength to defeat the enemy before us! Neglecting the contractor's risk would also be a serious breach of contract!"

Then the devil, who had been holding his breath until now, reluctantly responded.

[Gacomo...]

"Salos!"

[Look at this. It's not the time to talk about contracts right now. What are you going to do now that I have your body? To descend directly before the representative of the great monarchs, are you now telling me to disappear without a trace?]

Ah, yes.

Even with the opportunity to take over the contractor's body right now, there was no reason for the devil to hesitate.

The fear became so visible that even if I were to be accused of breaking the contract, I would consider abandoning the contractor and running away.

"The one who is prepared..."

Giacomo looked up in confusion at the boy in front of him. Despite his shabby appearance, this person revealed a presence that was heavier than anyone he had ever seen.

[I will ask you just one question.]

While Giacomo's mind was shaking, Salos borrowed his body and opened his mouth.

[Will you really keep our contract? Are you saying that you won't chase me all the way to the demon world just because I offended you?]

... what? What kind of bullshit is that?

"You're chasing me to the demon world, what can I do?"

As Seongjin tilted his head, Giacomo Milo, no, the devil, looked somewhat uncomfortable and drooled.

[That's right, you are prepared... Huh...]

The devil hesitated for a moment, but as if he had made up his mind, he began to beg Seongjin in a panic.

[Anyway, please, please make a promise! I don't dare expect it to be stipulated in a contract! Can't you just tell me that you won't make an issue of this?]

When the devil came out in a lower posture than expected, Seongjin thought for a moment.

what? At this point, wouldn't it have been okay if they just broke the contract and let him run away? I think that guy would have just quietly retreated without making a fuss that would release his demon energy out of anger.

"... "If you promise?"

[If only you would do that! Then, I will keep the contract and never go against your will from now on!]

"... Salos?!"

Giacomo Milo suddenly came to his senses at the sudden change in the devil's attitude.

"What does that mean? "Do you believe that?"

[Giacomo. First of all, the current situation does not seem to be a big crisis for you. So, even if I don't step forward, it's not a violation of the contract. furthermore...]

"Don't talk nonsense! In any case, the one who is prepared will bring me out and make me suffer his punishment! As a result, isn't it clear that they are trying to take my life?"

[that...]

Still, when the devil showed no sign of moving, Giacomo shouted in a desperate voice.

"great! If you don't help me, I'll kill myself right here! "Isn't there a reason why he tried to coax me instead of cutting me right away?"

Even though I was cornered, it was a fairly sharp decision.

"Now, how about this? "I have a secret weapon that can make even rotten corpses walk!"

Giacomo grabbed the black elixir tightly and growled at Seongjin.

"What do you think will happen if I die like this and my body erodes? The empire will face the fear of spreading demonic energy without stopping forever! "That wouldn't be a bad way to get revenge on the world!"

Seongjin's gaze rested on Giacomo Milo's hand for a moment.

Indeed, were all the rotten, moving rats also this author's work? That means there was a part of me that believed in it.

But you also have to make threats while looking at the other person.

"Don't do anything useless. "If you have a priest or a paladin, it will be easy to purify just you."

"There is no hope of finding a decent priest or paladin here at the base of the Free Underpass-"

"why? There's one right here too. "After all, I'm an exorcist, so I'm a paladin, right?"

"... "What?"

A slightly irreverent light appeared in Giacomo's eyes, which were overcome by evil.

'you? Exorcist? 'Where are you selling drugs now?' These eyes clearly reveal this meaning.

"Hmm, I don't believe you. Should I show proof?"

Seongjin took out the bottle of holy water he had kept in his arms. And in my other hand, I even pulled out a flying ticket. These are all items received from Sir Robert.

Do not let go of exorcism tools under any circumstances. Isn't this truly the attitude of a prepared exorcist?

"I just need to be careful because there are too many people nearby. I heard that the magic energy scattered by the dead due to erosion is not as big as I thought. If you create a simple barrier with these tools, you will be able to hold out long enough until you can call a priest to purify you."

Of course it was a bluff. It was impossible to guarantee how effective the barrier would be against a moving target.

Additionally, if you arbitrarily call another Paladin to the Free Underpass base, that day will be the end of your relationship with the Blue Republican Revolutionary Front.

"No way..."

But for Giacomo Milo, who knew nothing, those words were enough.

As his demon continued to confirm the sacred energy contained in the tools, Giacomo seemed to be intrigued.

"... Unbelievable!"

He cried out in utter despair.

"Why do you mean I have to die? "I haven't committed such a big sin!"

"I made a pact with the devil and harmed people for personal gain. "Do you need any more reasons?"

"A contract with the devil? That's what it is! If you want to survive as a merchant, if you want to withstand the evil forces of other competitors, there is no way to do it without becoming a devil contractor yourself! "Can you really say it's all my fault?"

Giacomo Milo suddenly raised his head and looked straight at Seongjin. His face, distorted with fear and despair, was seething with a mixture of inherent anger and twisted joy.

"I didn't make a big mess of the continent! "It's not like I was just recklessly killing people like everyone else!"

"Because of you, many people fell victim to the Demon Tree."

"That is a false accusation! It was the Dark Church's fault that summoned the Demon Beast! Rather, I, who lost everything, am the biggest victim of that incident! But why do I have to take all the responsibility?"

Hehehehe!

Hot tears well up from Giacomo Milo's eyes.

"The same goes for Sigismund's medicine cart! I just sold things that made money! The Penitent forces that control the North wanted to sell it, and the Sigismund Territory family hoped to buy it! "What choice do I have as a merchant between them?"

"... .."

Seongjin became a little bored.

okay. I can't say that there are no circumstances that need to be taken into account. But what on earth are you asking me to do? My father wouldn't know this, but I am not the one who judges human sins during my lifetime.

That was when I thought about it.

Bleep-

Suddenly, I heard a high-pitched ringing sound and felt like my vision was blurring.

And then, without even a moment to wonder, a vivid scene unfolds before my eyes.

Living corpses and terrified people. And I see burning buildings. It was a miserable scene, like hell, but if Seongjin's memory was correct, it was definitely Regina's street.

A near future that you will never return to, that you have passed by.

'Ah, yes!'

Seongjin suddenly realized.

'This isn't the end. This interest will continue to bring about a terrible future as long as he lives.'

Although it happened in a split second, Seongjin made a complete decision.

[Hey! Hey Giacomo! This is my final recognition as a contractor. Maybe this is a golden opportunity for you! So just listen to him and don't call me anymore... ..]

"Salos?"

For some reason, the demon suddenly screamed and completely disappeared beyond the demon world.

Giacomo stood up in embarrassment, but then froze. Silver eyes, shining brightly even in the dark, were looking down at him indifferently.

The air, which was already wet and heavy, pressed down on his body with even greater density.

"Enough with your complaints, just give the item away. And follow me quietly."

"... .."

Originally, it would have been right to refuse. This elixir is like his last resort.

But for some reason, Giacomo's body was already following the command before he even recognized it. Because there was no way for him to resist any more abstract words that seemed to be engraved directly into his soul.

"but... I, I... ..!"

"You still don't know?"

Seongjin calmly informed Sang Sang-ju, who was struggling in hopeless helplessness.

"I am giving you a chance, Milo Sanjangju."

"opportunity? "Oh, you can't believe that you will save me-"

"No, you will die."

A stern answer came back that crushed any faint hope.

"But if you stop what you're trying to do even now, I'll at least give your soul one chance."

It is quite harsh to hold someone responsible for something that has not yet happened.

So I'll give you a chance to make it up to me. So that even after death, the soul is not dragged into the demon world and does not fall into another place even more terrible than the demon world.

"... ..!"

It was a short answer, but Giacomo could vaguely feel the weight of those words as a devil contractor.

The reason why demonic contractors can run rampant on a continent where the faith of the main god is dominant. One of them was deep despair about the afterlife.

-There is no salvation from the Lord. After all, you humans will only suffer endlessly at the hands of high-ranking demon lords who are scarier than the demons of the demon world. So, shouldn't we enjoy power through our own power, even while we are alive?

Giacomo also remembered Salos' last words.

-Hey, Giacomo! This is my final recognition as a contractor. Maybe this is a golden opportunity for you!

He was once kicked out of his family and ran a small to mid-sized business without any foundation. He had an excellent ability to instinctively judge which side was beneficial.

"... "I will die quietly, where you want, when you want."

Giacomo, who had finally given up on revenge, held up the elixir with trembling hands and lowered his head. At first glance, it appeared to be an attitude of fervent worship of something.

"So, please give me a chance at salvation!"

430. Secretary of the Immortal (3)

The beginning must have been a simple idea.

If the mortgaged soul is bound to fall into the hands of the creditor upon death, wouldn't it be possible to obtain some grace period by binding the soul to the body?

It is probably impossible to make the body itself live forever. Even with the help of divine power, which is considered life force itself, the limits of life were clear.

Didn't all the previous emperors who were called representatives of the main god, and even the first emperor, who was said to be a demigod, only last for 300 years?

So thought those who knew the mysteries of the world.

If so, how about this? What if you could deceive the body, deceive the soul, and eventually even 'death' in a different world that escapes the laws of this world? What if you could avoid the eyes of cruel creditors for a while using a secret trick with a little expediency?

Wouldn't it be possible to prolong this miserable life just a little bit?

'It was a natural idea, but it was also a very dangerous idea.'

What happens when the soul cannot leave the dead body in time is more terrible than you can imagine.

Perhaps, if those who tested the secret art had spiritual eyes, they would have been able to witness their failure vividly on the spot.

The human essence that is slowly decaying along with the body, the miserable appearance of the soul.

'Your father once said that too, right? 'The soul is constantly influenced by the body.'

Therefore, the soul bound to the rotting body had no choice but to be ruined miserably.

With the decaying and collapsing skin, you lose your form, and with the melting brain fluid, you lose your senses.

Without knowing why their essence is being completely corroded, they simply scream in animal-like pain and fear for a long time.

Just like that.

[Ahh... fat... Off... I... why... Hehehe... ... !]

When Seongjin waves his hand, dark red flames transfer to the decayed organism that was sinking on one side of the waterway. It was the terrorization of Gehenna.

Grumble!

The fiercely burning fire instantly incinerated not only the shredded flesh but also the white bones.

At the same time, the soul that was crying in pain was engulfed in dark red flames and soon completely disappeared.

[Pick... Jjiji...]

The same goes for the unidentifiable foreign matter stuck to one side of the damp wall. With just a glance from Seongjin, they were instantly and cleanly set on fire.

Completely flawless combustion without even smoke.

[...] Nyao...]

[Grrrrr... Fuck!]

The more you walk, the more various souls bound to rotten flesh appear before your eyes.

Seongjin laughed.

'That's a good thing. Take a look at those things. 'How long have they been doing this?'

Suddenly, I had a strong urge to sweep the entire underground sewer with the fire of Gehenna.

But I'll have to endure it. If you do what you want, the entire Furiano will probably become a hell where no life can survive.

"So, just burn away cleanly."

Grumble!

"Stop spreading such trivial tricks and disappear like this."

Good luck!

"Here too."

Grumble!

"And here too."

Grrrrrrr...

In accordance with Seongjin's small gestures, the flames continued to spread and sweep through the dark sewer.

The sight of dark red fire demons dancing with demonic energy is at first glance a scene from hell.

However, contrary to its terrifying appearance, if we only look at the results, Gehenna's terrorization may have been closer to 'purification'.

Not only were they incinerating the corrupted things, but they were also burning away all the miserable souls whose fate had been decided.

"..."

Giacomo Milo, who followed Seongjin with a scared face, was completely overwhelmed by the mysterious sight.

'this... The power of one who represents powerful monarchs!'

The momentum with which the hot flames spread was formidable. But strangely enough, the boy ahead and his own body are not invaded in the slightest.

Amid my despair, a new sense of relief arose.

'okay! At least my last choice wasn't wrong!'

When he gave up resistance and let go of everything, surprisingly, a new desire began to bloom in Giacomo's heart.

A heart that wants to abandon all desires and selfishness and fully accept only the grace of the Absolute.

The desire to accept one's own limitations and rely on the power of the perfect absolute being.

A desire to find inner peace and happiness through devotion and obedience to the Absolute.

An extremely pure and beautiful heart of faith that he could never have imagined sprouting in his own heart throughout his life... ..

"Bethelah... .."

Giacomo Milo chanted with a trembling voice. Unlike before, when he was in contact with the penitential sect and half-heartedly imitating it, it was truly a pious chant that came from the heart.

"I leave everything in your hands, so please let me be used in your plans... .."

The eyes were filled with red fire, and a strange joy glowed dangerously.

How long did we have to walk along the waterway with Giacomo, who was half-fed?

[...] jin...]

A small voice called Seongjin from somewhere.

'what?'

The thought came from directly below. As I slowly turn my gaze, I see a small lamp steadily blinking a faint light in the middle of the gushing flames of Gehenna.

[...] this... jin...]

I felt my high spirit subside a little.

Ah, I see. It seems like something is wrong with me. Somehow, for some time now, I've been feeling like something doesn't fit.

Is it okay if it stays like this? First of all, my father is not here.

[Lee Seong-jin.]

Originally, my father would have stopped me before this happened. I should have done that.

But I didn't bother to send Sir Sharon away. It was something that could not be helped. Because she had something more important to ask her.

[Lee Seong-jin. Seongjin Lee.]

Oh, I know, devil.

It'll be okay though. Because I know who I am now more than ever.

Kkkkkkkk! Growling!

Snap! Squeak!

Wow! Guwag!

The sight of rotten corpses flocking together was beyond disgusting and downright terrifying.

Masain swung his arms widely and created a series of Aura explosions.

Pow! pop!

The swarm of rats that were running at the forefront turned into powder and flew out in all directions. The animals that were running after them were also pushed away, scattering their rotten flesh.

"... "Huh!"

In fact, considering the amount of aura consumed, aura explosion was not a very good option.

However, there is no other way because the opponents are corpses that inevitably crawl on the floor even if their bodies are cut in half. So rather than cutting them down one by one, it would be better to just blast them far away with an attack that can hit in a wide area.

Of course, apart from the remaining physical strength, the mental blow was not easy.

Guess...

Masain, who found the body of a child who had risen to his feet even after his brain had been shattered, was drooling with a pale face.

"oh my god. Lord... ... !"

Meanwhile, Owen was digging around among the corpses with light movements.

'Please hold on for a moment, Brother Masaine!'

Moving counterclockwise along the wall with the magic circle drawn, he swung his ax at the corpse of a sturdy man blocking his path.

Flutter!

A one-handed ax smashes his head in one fell swoop. Nevertheless, his body did not fall down, and persistently stretched out its arms towards Owen.

puck!

Owen, who kicked the man in the chest and sent him flying far away, used the recoil to spin his body around and avoid the old woman's claws sticking out from behind.

Whick!

At the same time as I turned my body, I didn't forget to shake my arm vigorously to remove the flesh stuck to the axe.

Owen raised his arms high and swung the ax diagonally, chopping the woman running from the side into long pieces.

grasp!

In the cleanly cut section from one side of the neck to the side, white maggots popped out instead of red blood.

'... 'It's terrible!'

It was fortunate that Owen was quite familiar with such scenes. In Pangea Chronicle, there are quite a few dungeons filled with undead monsters.

Thanks to this, Owen was not buried in the devastation in front of him and was able to have the leisure to look back at the situation from a relatively distant perspective.

'The quest given by Sang Tae-chang wasn't about getting rid of the corpses!'

In that case, all he has to do is find that 'important document'.

Once you complete the quest, it might be better to quickly get out of here with Brother Masain.

Wow...

When the body of the man who had been pushed away lunged at him again, Owen swung his ax hard, this time aiming for his legs.

puck!

After kicking the guy again who stumbled sideways with his thigh bent, Owen diligently rolled his eyes and looked for Mr. Sang Chang-chang's mark.

'... 'There it is!'

sparkle!

On an old bookshelf on one side, an old book glowing faintly among the messy stacks of paper. That's definitely what it means when it's a precious old book.

Owen naturally turned his body and advanced toward the book, pretending to be wary of monsters.

Quaaaang!

Meanwhile, Masain was steadily reducing the number of corpses. The high-ranking knight auror, close to Dekaron Knight, had achieved the status of the relic Mithra and was demonstrating truly amazing destructive power.

Patter!

Rotten flesh is scattered everywhere like minced meat in a grinder.

The series of explosions shook the entire old sewer tunnel, throwing rainwater dust down on our heads.

"Your Majesty Owen! "It's dangerous if you go too far alone!"

At this point, the black-clothed wizard, who had not moved from his seat until then, also showed great agitation.

"... Unbelievable! "Where on earth do these people suddenly come from?"

The wizard, whose body was trembling, quickly turned around as if he had made up his mind. To be exact, towards the exact bookshelf that Owen is aiming for.

'this!'

If you think about it, it was a natural result.

This is the secret laboratory of an evil wizard. If the wizard had to abandon this place, what would the first thing the wizard take care of other than the research records so far?

Owen, anxious, quickly shouted.

"You vile apostate! "You are a shameless henchman of the devil!"

"... ... ?!"

Stop.

As Owen's cries echoed through the sewer, the wizard looked back at him in confusion. Unlike Masain, who is flashing auras, Owen's performance has been minimal so far, so he has not paid much attention to it.

However, he could not ignore the next words Owen shouted.

"I am the prince of the Holy Empire Delcross!"

"... "Prince?"

"Yes! As a proud member of the Seonghwang family, I will risk everything to take your head!"

Owen shouted with ferocious force and took steps straight towards the wizard. To the wizard's right, where the bookshelf was located, which he was cautiously approaching.

"Ugh!"

Seeing his unusual appearance, the wizard hesitated and could not get closer to the bookshelf.

Meanwhile, Owen quickly jumped over a corpse, then deliberately twisted the angle of the ax blade and violently exploded the head of the woman following him.

Whistling- Bwak!

The half-melted brain water scatters roughly with a foul odor.

"You, don't move, just stay there! "I will soon plunge my sacred axe into your cursed limbs!"

At first glance, rather than a prince, his behavior is closer to that of a Barca barbarian who loudly grabs at the front line.

However, that ignorant pressure showed some effect against the wizard. The wizard, tired of Owen's momentum, eventually gave up on his bookshelf and began to back away.

"Ugh... .."

At that moment, Owen suddenly turned away from the wizard and quickly launched himself towards the wall.

Taaat!

And swinging his hand like lightning between the corpses, he finally succeeded in snatching the shiny booklet from the bookshelf.

'... 'Gotcha!'

At the same time, a small window pops up in front of my eyes.

[Emergency quest? Find and obtain important documents! complete!]

'I did it!'

Owen rolled around on the floor with the book in his arms.

"Lowering!"

Kwaaang-!

An unusually large aura explosion blazes, wiping away all the corpses remaining nearby.

When Owen suddenly threw himself to the floor, Masaine seemed very embarrassed.

"Lowering! Is there a problem! Are you okay?"

"Yes, brother! "It's no big deal!"

And the wizard who was looking at the scene-

"... Tsk!"

Perhaps because he thought he had no chance of winning, he eventually turned around and quickly left the lab. I thought this was a dead-end section of the sewer, but perhaps there was a secret passage reserved for wizards in case of emergency.

After seeing the pitch-black new figure disappear before his eyes, Owen slowly got up and followed his presence. Unfortunately, the wizard's presence quickly moved away, and soon he could no longer be detected.

At that moment, Owen felt something was strange.

'Sang Sang-chang. Why did you tell me to find this document instead of telling me to catch the wizard?'

It was a messy battle, but thanks to Masain's actions, the corpses quickly fell into an inactive state. If Owen had confronted him without paying attention to the documents from the beginning, he might have been able to catch the wizard in the nick of time.

Documents could also be collected slowly after all processing was completed. But why was it necessary to secure this document first?

But even though he had doubts for a moment, Owen soon understood the reason.

Grumble!

A strong fire suddenly began to swirl from one side of the sewer.

Hwareuk!

It was an ominous flame with a dark red glow. The flames quickly rushed into the sewer, covering the waterway and incinerating the shredded bodies. Even the flesh stuck to the wall and the complex magic circles were completely burned.

Grrrrrrrrrrrr!

The flame spread so quickly along the wall that, in the blink of an eye, it enveloped the wizard's bookshelf and documents and burned brightly.

'... omg?'

It happened so quickly that Owen could only stare dumbly at the flickering flames. If this had been a little late, he would have lost all his quest documents!

"... Lowering?!"

At that time, Masain's startled cry was heard from over there. Owen finally came to his senses and looked at the person who appeared with the flames.

A boy standing with dark red flames covering his entire body. It was none other than Mores.

He slowly turned his head when he heard Masain's voice calling him, then slowly tilted his head to look at him.

"Brother Masain."

"... ..!"

Owen was greatly embarrassed.

Why is that guy acting like that all of a sudden? Brother Masain? I guess there's something strange about this kid.

"what... It's a newbie. Are you okay?"

Then, this time, Mores just rolled his eyes and looked at Owen.

"okay. "You idiot."

"... .."

No, I think he manages to respond to being called a newbie.

No matter how you looked at it, the guy's expression was extremely unnatural. It's like someone who hasn't used their facial muscles for a long time and has forgotten how to move their facial muscles properly.

Owen asked, walking towards him with a worried look on his face.

"Hey, how did things go? Or did something big happen in the meantime?"

"... .."

"Why are you doing this all of a sudden? "Where are you hurting?"

Then, Mores looked at Owen with a somewhat blank expression, and said something unintelligible with a flash of reflected light.

"It's nothing special. Just because Masain and you are there in front of me, it's kind of amazing, isn't it? "I guess I'm still in a happy nightmare."

431. Secretary of the Immortal (4)

I know none of this is real.

Someone who particularly considers a life filled with fierce struggle knows very well that it is nothing more than a light illusion created out of generosity.

but-

[□□□.]

Amazingly, with that one voice, it was possible to add meaning to a battlefield that had always been lonely.

I could see it as a worthwhile fight to protect something precious.

[□□□.]

That's why I can't help but feel weak from the voice that still lingers in my head and calls my name.

That was why I ended up forgiving the annoying guy who I had vowed to thoroughly avenge, as if it were a lie.

A short time spent with an imperfect fantasy. Perhaps it was a rare day that could be called happiness.

So that time can also become a nightmare.

One day, when you open your eyes, you will realize that the voice that was always by your side no longer exists in reality.

* * *

"It's nothing special."

The boy answered calmly.

"Just because you and Masaine are right in front of me, it's kind of amazing, isn't it?"

I guess I'm still in a happy nightmare. After adding that, the boy slowly stretched out one hand towards the air.

OK-

Grumble!

As if the gesture was a signal, the flames that had spread in all directions quickly gathered around the boy.

The flames that instantly incinerated the wizard's workshop were now swirling wildly around the boy's body.

At first glance, a terrifying force that seemed as if it would swallow the boy whole.

However, to Owen, it felt like he was expressing his confused emotions to his son-in-law instead of an expressionless boy.

"Newbie, that fire... .."

"Oh, don't worry. It's not dangerous. "Because it's mine."

As he said, the boy seemed to have complete control over the fire. It is burning with the power to evaporate all the sewage water, but the proof is that not a single hair on the boy's body is damaged.

The fire did not get closer than a certain distance to Owen and Masain.

'but... ..'

Why? Still, Owen was overcome by the urge to get the boy away from that flame right away.

Fire has always been a threat. Wasn't the fire that consumed his parents one day, and the fire that burned the world in his dreams one day, exactly like that?

'Wait a minute, dream?'

In an instant, a powerful realization struck Owen's mind.

Now that I think about it, I have seen this scene with my own eyes.

The scene of hell covered in dark red scars, and the sight of a boy calmly walking into it. The scene in that nightmare that I had forgotten for a while.

'It's also ominous. Newbies shouldn't be left like this!'

Owen, who vividly recalled the emotions of that time and his memories, became anxious. So he turned his head to find the person he could most rely on in the current situation.

"older brother. Brother Masain! I guess Mores... ..!"

But it was a strange thing.

Normally, the person who would have rushed to the spot the moment he discovered the boy's abnormality was now standing there as if frozen.

"... older brother?"

"... .."

Even though he called out to him, Masain remained stiff and stared blankly at the boy.

His heavily distorted face looked like he was greatly afraid of something, or hesitating intensely about something.

Rather, it was the boy who responded to Owen's call. He just rolled his eyes, glanced at Masain, and slightly twisted the corner of his mouth upward. It was the first time that a lifeless, sculpture-like face had created something that could be called an expression.

"Look at this. After all, it's a dream, right? Brother Masaine is still with me."

I flinch.

At that moment, Masain's pupils shake violently.

"Lowering. I am... .."

But the boy didn't listen to what he said, and turned his gaze again to look directly at Owen.

"And idiot. "You look fine too."

"... what?"

"Ever since you forcefully retreated to save Sisley, I knew you would end up like that. I should have listened to you a long time ago when I tried to stop you from doing that. Because of you, I miss my father so much... .."

The boy who had said that far let out a low laugh, hahaha.

"Uh, really, what is it? Is it taking us back to what we lost? "It's a really bad nightmare."

... nightmare!

At that moment, the boy's words awakened Owen's spirit.

'I don't know! I don't know why the newbie ended up in such a state... ..!'

At least he seemed to think this was a nightmare.

Then there is only one answer. I have to wake up from the nightmare.

And Owen knew at least one easy way to escape painful nightmares.

"Hey, would you like to look at this for a moment? "I'm a newbie."

Owen took out the eyepatch that he had carefully stored away in his arms. Then he held it out and took a step toward the boy.

"Do you remember? "This is a valuable limited edition item."

"... .."

"It's a great thing that gets rid of bad dreams."

The boy closed his mouth and stared at the black eyepatch that Owen held out.

Jeez.

As Owen takes another step closer to the raging flames surrounding the boy -

Woe!

The flames split to the left and right to avoid him. Seeing that he obediently opens the way, at least it doesn't seem like he is rejecting him.

Owen, a little relieved, continued to walk towards the boy, trying not to rush.

"It also has high mental resistance. So no matter what, if you just use this, your current condition will be able to improve a little."

So Owen slowly walked through the fire and finally stopped right in front of the boy.

"But, this is something you originally got, right?"

"... .."

"So, you're a newbie. "I will return this to you now."

The boy did not block Owen's hand as he carefully put on the eye patch.

But Owen had no idea. As he looked at the blindfold approaching in front of his eyes, he realized that the boy had been thinking like this in a daze.

'But Owen. If possible, I don't want to wake up from this dream yet...
... .'

The boy's thoughts ended there.

Slurp-

As the pitch black cloth completely covered his eyes, the boy's mind quickly became pitch black.

... what?

Seongjin thought in a dazed state.

'what? 'What am I doing now?'

I looked around and saw that everything was engulfed in bright light. It shines so brightly that you can't even clearly see your own appearance, let alone the surrounding scenery.

Seongjin blinked for a moment and carefully traced the scattered memories.

'... that's right. I've been looking for the freedom underpass. I sent Owen and Sir Martha inside the sewer first, and tried to chase Giacomo Milo alone. however...'

Confusing.

'Why on earth did you suddenly fly to a place like this after being in the sewer?'

Just then, a familiar voice was heard from beside me.

[Son.]

uh?

[...] father?]

Seongjin was startled and looked around. However, Seongjin was unable to identify the owner of the voice because he was blinded by the strong light.

[Father, how did this happen... .. !]

I was flustered and panicked, but fortunately the other person approached Seongjin first.

Tuk.

The familiar feeling of lightly tapping your head.

[It's okay now. You are very heartbroken.]

[Heartbroken, huh?]

When I asked a question without understanding, Seonghwang gently stroked my head.

Scrunch.

[Don't worry too much. They were not harmed by you. These were souls that couldn't be saved anyway, so you did a great thing for them just by alleviating their pain.]

... ah.

Seongjin then remembered the decisive moment when he lost his composure.

I mean, when I saw them in the sewer. Countless souls who were rotting away in terrible pain and are now broken beyond help.

[You don't seem to have felt it that way, but your terrorization must have been a great salvation for them. So don't be upset about that anymore.]

From the calm sound of Seonghwang's thoughts, Seongjin could easily sense signs of concern and comfort.

Seongjin was relieved without realizing it and smiled.

okay. Well then. I thought this guy would always be by my side.

So, now I'm really okay.

[...] Something is strange with me these days, father.]

Feeling relieved, Seongjin immediately told him what had been bothering him.

[These days, nothing seems to go as planned. No matter how careful I am, something always seems to be off. Why on earth am I doing this?]

Tuk.

The sensation of being lightly tapped on the head again.

This time, it feels like there is some rebuke in it.

[Isn't it time to slowly break away from each other? In your greed to interfere as much as possible with the causal chain, you have tried to erase your own memories over and over again.]

... Did you?

It seems like it was something like that.

[But son. No matter how hard you try to sort out unnecessary memories, human memories are not something that can be easily broken into pieces. There are times when things get tangled and twisted in unexpected places, and if even one small clue goes wrong, all your efforts go to waste.]

[okay.]

No matter how hard you try to control information, it will be impossible to completely close your eyes to all phenomena. In the end, all causes and memories are complexly intertwined.

[Besides, it might be because I disturbed you earlier.]

A soft sigh came from my ear.

[The conflict caused by the will of the Oracle has larger and deeper ramifications than expected. Thanks to this, things aren't going as well for me these days either.]

A representative example would be Barca's barbarian warriors, who are difficult to control.

[Besides, haven't you been hanging out with Owen a lot lately?]

That's right.

We met often at the imperial palace, and accompanied him through the Freedom Underpass. To be exact, every time I let him go, he knew it was like a ghost and followed me.

[But why is Owen a problem?]

[Isn't it Oracle's legacy to guide Owen now? So no matter how careful they are not to interfere with each other, the two are bound to act as a big variable for each other. So your senses will be even more confused.]

Oh, I see.

Seongjin, who was nodding his head in understanding at the clear explanation, suddenly felt a strange sense of discomfort and called out to Seonghwang.

[excuse me... But, father?]

Then the answer comes back immediately.

[okay.]

[father.]

[Yes, son.]

[...]]

Only after calling him repeatedly did Seongjin realize the true nature of his discomfort.

wait for a sec.

Why doesn't my father call my name?

Why don't you call me Mores anymore?

Why do you want to surround yourself with strong light so that nothing can be seen?

Tuk.

Before I could deepen my doubts, my thoughts were interrupted again by a pounding sensation in my head.

[Son.]

Tuk. Tap, tap.

Seongjin felt his mind suddenly calming down as he felt the touch coming at regular intervals.

Yeah, it's okay. But my father still calls me son.

[There is not much time to talk. There's a lot of resistance, so now I think I'll have to go quickly.]

Resistance?

[I came to check on you in case something big happened, but didn't you already prepare everything?]

prepare?

As I was pondering his words in a daze, I felt Seonghwang gently stroking my head.

Scrunch.

[So don't be too anxious. As always, you will do well this time too. The reason I always look for you is not because you are unreliable. It's just because I don't want to leave you alone.]

The hand that was stroking the back of the head at first is now moving forward little by little through the top of the head.

Seongjin realized this intuitively.

[uh... So what comes next, right?]

[...]]

[...] I guess so.]

Then I felt a gentle vibration in the air. It was the light sound of lively laughter.

[okay. You know it very well.]

Sigh!

With the expected shock, Seongjin's mind was suddenly pushed back to reality.

432. Secretary of the Immortal (5)

Emotions do not occur independently without memory. Also, when memories exist, it is inevitable that emotions will arise, no matter how big or small.

In other words, the combination of memory and emotion is like a kind of basic unit that constitutes human consciousness.

And only when this is maintained intact can the human spirit be said to have continuity.

"... .."

Seongjin opened his eyes with a clear mind for the first time in a long time.

It has been a long time since the memories and emotions experienced by the soul were transferred intact to the body. So, Seongjin lay down on the floor with her and pondered over her memories from just a moment ago with a new feeling.

'father... The atmosphere was something different from usual. He answered my questions directly and in detail.

Although Seonghwang rarely speaks, he sometimes gives detailed explanations to Seongjin when circumstances allow.

A representative example would be the spectacular self-harm show I experienced while drinking medicinal tea the other day.

'And so do I. I was able to ask my father about something that had been bothering me recently without any hesitation.'

It was like that that day too.

On the day that Seongjin expressed the shameful anxiety he had been suppressing, Seonghwang asked him this.

-But have you thought about this? Why didn't you ask me this a long time ago?

This time, Seongjin openly confessed to him the feeling that something was constantly being twisted. Of course, that question presupposed the fact that he, the next generation oracle, was already unconsciously planning many things for the future.

So originally, voicing that question would have had a big impact on cause and effect.

-Then, why is it only now that I am finally able to say that question out loud?

So, how was it possible for something like that to happen this time?

The answer was also in my old memories. Because Seonghwang said this to Seongjin that day.

-That's because you have now, however clumsily, escaped the dimension of Delcross. You were probably instinctively aware of the conditions and restrictions to fully belong to one world.

Then there is only one conclusion.

'no way... Does this mean that the place I was with my father just now wasn't in the Delcross dimension?'

At first, Seongjin thought it was just Seonghwang's spirit staying by his side and talking to him.

But in reality, that wasn't it, was it that his soul left this place and flew somewhere far away?

When his rapidly spinning mind finished thinking about that, Seongjin suddenly realized that his vision was a little strange.

I obviously opened my eyes in a normal state...

'Why can't I see anything in front of me? Is it already night?'

Seongjin blinked his eyes.

"... uh?"

But Seongjin was taken aback for a moment before he realized that something thick was covering his vision.

When you tear off the clinging object with your hand, you can see the embroidery in the shape of a rabbit with its eyes peacefully closed.

'This... Limited edition eye patch?'

It was something I remembered. Isn't this something that was stolen from Justitia at a low price and given to Owen? Why are you using this?

"hmm..."

I frowned and searched for memories, but nothing came to mind.

I have a clear memory of meeting my father just now, but why did I not remember anything about how I ended up wearing the eyepatch?

'I even remember finding Giacomo Milo.'

Seongjin slowly got up and thought.

'But I don't know much about what happened after that. Did Owen successfully complete the quest? Did you catch any other suspicious activity in the sewer?'

I don't know when Seongjin came out of the sewer, but now he was lying alone in a small tent.

The setting sun, slowly spreading red, shines through the sparse gaps in the tent. This means that quite a long time has passed since the memory disappeared.

"..."

Additionally, on the floor of the tent, there was an old cloak, probably belonging to Lord Massain.

If that's the case, then it would mean that the two of them somehow managed to sort things out properly.

'But where are Owen and Sir Martha? 'Where did everyone go, leaving me here?'

This is quite an unexpected situation, considering Sir Masaine, who usually tries not to leave his side even for a moment. Did something happen to him?

As I was thinking about completely removing the blindfold from my neck, I suddenly heard a nerve-wracking cry next to me.

[Sniff...]

When I turn my head, I see a familiar lamp by my bedside.

'... Devil?'

For some reason, the demon lord was sitting on an old lamp, its red flame flickering faintly, and crying.

[Sniff! Seongjin Lee... Sniff, sniff.]

Seeing that pitiful sight, Seongjin felt dizzy for a moment.

what? Why is he doing that? I haven't heard him cry in a while since leaving the makeshift treatment room.

"Hey, devil?"

[...] Sniffing?]

The Demon King, who stopped crying at the sound of Seongjin's voice, asked with a flickering flame.

[this... Seongjin Lee?]

"uh."

[Lee Seong-jin...]

"Yes, that's right. "Why are you crying now?"

[...] ... !]

OK-

Faaah!

Suddenly, the devil came out of the lamp like lightning and latched onto Seongjin's head.

In an instant, Seongjin was transformed into a human candle with a wick of his hair as the flame blazed with vitality.

[Wow! Iseongjiyiin!]

Instead of tears, the Demon King drips boiling sparks.

Chick, crackle!

Seongjin thought as he heard the eerie sound of the cloak burning on the floor.

Oh, my head feels warm for the first time in a while?

[You man! Didn't you hear my voice? why! Why has there been no answer until now?]

"Well, was that so? "Didn't you hear me?"

[you stupid! That can't be possible! I kept calling your name without stopping! Ahhh!]

Seongjin was quite embarrassed by the outpouring of sad cries.

No, but I really didn't know. I just laid there for a while trying to sort out my memories, but he didn't seem to have any thoughts...

'-what?'

Suddenly, the black eye patch I was holding in my hand caught my eye.

wait for a sec. Now that I think about it, was I writing this until just now?

[Lee Seong-jin, you idiot, idiot! Sea cucumber and sea anemone!]

that's right. This limited item probably had an S+ mental attack resistance option. In that case, it is not surprising that all nearby thoughts are blocked.

-There is not much time to talk. There's a lot of resistance, so I guess I'll have to go now.

Is this the resistance my father was talking about earlier?

[This is Planaria Euglena Paramecium!]

"Uh, sorry. Sorry."

Seongjin stopped thinking and quickly apologized to the devil.

Seeing that we are suddenly falling from coelastastic animals to single-celled organisms, if we continue like this, we will soon be on the same level as viruses with one piece of chromosome.

"It's my fault. "I definitely didn't do that on purpose."

[this... this... ... !]

"Really sorry. I'll buy you bear meat later. I'll buy you a lot of delicious food, so let go of your anger. huh?"

Although it was not my intention, it is true that I was ignoring the anxious calls of my family.

In a situation where it was impossible to communicate with anyone other than Seongjin, it was obvious how anxious he must have been because he didn't know what was going on.

Rustling.

Just then, as if a familiar figure was approaching, the tent entrance opened wide.

"Mores. Now stand up... Ugh?"

Owen, who thoughtlessly popped his head into the tent, was startled when he saw Seongjin carrying a flaming demon king on top of his head.

"Are you okay, newbie? "My hair is on fire right now?!"

"hmm..."

Seongjin, who was at a loss for excuses, averted his gaze.

Well, it's okay. That's how it happened.

Seongjin was able to hear in detail from Owen about events that occurred beyond his memories.

From what I heard, it seems that while Owen and Sir Martha were in the midst of robbing the wizard's secret laboratory, he suddenly burst into the place, leading Giacomo Milo.

On top of that, he showed some signs of sleepwalking and excitedly swept the entire lab with his fiery aura?

"I should have known from the moment you played with fire in the imperial palace. You committed arson by talking in your sleep... . Newbie, what on earth are you doing that is so dangerous?"

Putting aside the whereabouts of the second-year middle school arsonist, it was a truly absurd explanation.

Seongjin was dumbfounded and asked back.

"Sleepwalking? I?"

"okay. I don't know, but newbie, I heard you dream and talk in your sleep every day? "Brother Masain said it would be okay, but if you're talking in your sleep, it won't be a very comfortable dream."

"So you put a sleeping mask on me?"

"huh. "I think you realize it's a nightmare too."

After responding like that, Owen sheepishly pulled one of the chicken feathers from his head.

"So, you're a newbie. From now on, always use it when you sleep.

"I'm going to give it to you right now."

"... .."

"No, to be exact, I'm giving it back. Originally, you gave it to me without anything in return, right?"

Seongjin's eyes naturally became fierce.

Is this kid out of his mind right now? He actually scrapes up all the cash he has for the things he needs, buys them for other people as gifts, and even gives me the last eyepatch he got by luck? This has to be more correct to come to my senses!

Hwiik-

He was about to raise his hand without thinking, but Owen, who didn't know how, quickly backed away and caught Seongjin's attention. Since she was repeatedly hit by chestnuts, she seems to have roughly learned at what timing the chestnuts will fly.

"Whoa, newbie, calm down! "I'm giving it to you because I have enough money."

"spare? Yeoyuwoo? "What kind of leisure do you have when you give away all your cash to others whenever you get the chance?"

"Ah, huh. But that's it... .."

But surprisingly, Owen, who was rummaging around in his arms, soon pulled out another similar eyepatch!

It was a limited edition rabbit eye patch in dark almond color, with an obnoxiously relaxed expression engraved on it.

"Voila! how is it? "Are you surprised?"

"... .."

"After I finished the quest, a special sale window suddenly opened in front of me. "I thought it was an opportunity, so I grabbed it!"

Owen put the eyepatch around his neck and stretched out his chest with a triumphant expression.

"Think about it, newbie. I got a limited edition item for only 500 cash! Thanks to this, I had to spend all the rewards from this quest, but considering the cost, isn't it really a profitable business? "What do you think? Isn't it awesome?"

"Okay, quest... .."

Seongjin put his hands behind his back, lost in thought.

Come to think of it, my father also said this earlier. What guides Owen now is a milestone, another Oracle's legacy.

"Then does this mean that it was my grandmother's will that gave me this eye patch?"

Considering that Owen was given a new eyepatch with good timing, I would say that this is highly likely.

'Why on earth?'

At first glance, this could be seen as an intention to prevent Seongjin from falling into an unstable state like before.

However, it is an item that blocks out all thoughts and is so strong that even my father feels resistance.

'... no.'

My father also said this.

-I came to check on you in case something big happened, but didn't you already prepare everything?

If that is true, it would mean that it was Seongjin's unconsciousness that actually prepared the eyepatch. Then, Seongjin was anticipating the quest that Sangtae Chang would prepare...

No, no. Perhaps it could be said that Owen's status window had figured out Seongjin's will in advance, and had subtly assisted him from the side...

'Oh, my. shit!'

I don't even know what I'm doing, but with one more variable that I can't understand, the situation becomes so confusing.

'As expected, I think it's better not to think too deeply about it just yet.'

After thinking for a moment, Seongjin made a decision in his heart.

However, as he was lost in thought while holding the demon king's lamp, which was still whimpering intermittently, Owen cautiously looked at Seongjin and said something unexpected.

"... Hey, but are you a newbie?"

"uh?"

"If it's okay, could you please meet Brother Masaine for a moment?"

"huh... ... ?"

Seongjin blinked.

Lord Masain? why?

As I left the tent and followed Owen, I saw Giacomo Milo calmly tied up near the entrance to the sewer.

He was completely covered in dirt from the sewer and soot from the fire, but even so, his darkening complexion could be seen at a glance.

Perhaps due to exposure to demonic energy for a long period of time, erosion seemed to be occurring slowly even after the demon had left.

But he behaved in such a pitiful manner, and then he smiled at Seongjin, wondering why he was so happy.

"It was a purification, O Prepared One! My master! "I truly witnessed a moment when this world became beautiful!"

"... what?"

"Just as you purified the corrupted creatures, I have no doubt that you will one day save this rotten world with your divine fire!"

Looking at the dry eyes shining with light gives me goosebumps.

'This isn't good.'

I thought it would be nice to become moderately obedient, but I guess I went too far. For some reason, it was like seeing a second Belinda.

And behind him, Lord Masain was seen clutching Mythra with a stiff face.

Considering his usual self, he might have scolded Giacomo Milo for talking wildly, but right now he just kept his mouth shut and looked at Seongjin with a heavy gaze.

Why is that guy like that?

"Sir Martha."

Let's call him and take a step closer -

I flinch.

Masain's pupils shook slightly.

Although it was a wave that seemed calm on the outside, Seongjin was somehow able to sense the intense swirl of emotions entangled within it.

"What the hell is going on? Why are you standing there like that? Even if you get hurt somewhere in the sewer... .."

But before Seongjin finished speaking-

Whoosh!

The knight's face becomes grotesquely distorted.

The whites of the eyes were bloodshot and red, and the face full of ridicule and sorrow were probably signs of the complete collapse of someone's world, which was barely holding on.

dump!

Eventually, the knight kneeled down helplessly in front of Seongjin, bowed his head and hit the floor! hit her head

"... "I'm sorry, sir."

Seongjin and Owen were greatly embarrassed by the sudden apology.

"older brother?!"

"huh? Sir Masain. what... ..?"

"sorry. sorry."

"no... .."

However, apologies that did not take the listeners in mind continued.

"I shouldn't have done that at that time. I shouldn't have done that to you... .."

thud.

The knight hit his forehead on the dirt floor and sobbed softly.

"sorry. sorry."

Thump, thump.

"sorry. I'm so sorry, sir..."

In the heavy silence -

Only Masain's repeated apologies hovered in the air.

433. Secretary of the Immortal (6)

Looking back, those were the most leisurely days of Masain's life.

"Brother Masain! "You're here?"

When he entered the Blue Rose Labyrinth in time for his shift, Mores, who had been waiting for him, came running towards him holding a toy wooden sword. As always, she wore a faded red cloth around her neck.

"Lowering! "If you run like that, you'll fall!"

Just before Mores, who was running, was hit by a toy and fell, Masain suddenly lifted him up and warned him.

Then the child burst into laughter and waved his arms, probably thinking that it was also a game.

"But what about Logan, brother?"

"Logan, he is in class right now."

"class?"

"Yes, you will probably be very busy until evening. "You recently started a new swordsmanship class."

Logan, who was the first prince at the time, had already distinguished himself in many ways. It was probably natural that the empress, whose momentum had gained momentum, began to focus more and more on his education.

On the other hand, Empress Elizabeth was strangely neglecting Mores.

Let alone caring about the child's education, she seemed reluctant to even meet him face to face. She occasionally went to her parents' home, the Principality of Asein, and was often away from the imperial palace for long periods of time.

The empress's attitude was such that even influential figures in the imperial capital were reluctant to send their children to be Prince Mores' half-brother. However, it is impossible for servants of very low status to join in with his intense play.

Although they said they took the time to make it a success, it was simply not enough for a child who was at the peak of his activity.

Thanks to this, Mores was gradually getting used to playing with toys alone in the playroom.

"... .."

Masain, who was worse off, ended up becoming a playmate under the pretense of being an escort during working hours.

The problem is that they are all actions that are far removed from the duties of a knight.

It's like that right now. What a messy game, like imagining an imaginary enemy and trying hard to hit a pillow together!

If the academy's dean, Armand, had found out that Mythra, a precious relic, was being used to dust off a mere pillow, he would have shed tears and hit the ground.

"Eight!"

Puk puk!

Mores, who had someone to play with, was excited and pounded the pillow.

"Don't bother the angel! "You wicked witch!"

"yes? Sir, what we are defeating now is not a devil but a witch?"

"huh!"

It was just an immature child's game, but it seemed to have its own specific setting.

"Hey! "Take my nutcracker!"

Masain, who was hitting a pillow with a beat next to him, looked puzzled again and asked.

"By the way, sir, did you give the wooden sword a name?"

"huh!"

"But isn't the nutcracker your Majesty's favorite sword? "If the names are the same, won't you get confused later?"

"hmm... ... ?"

Then, Mores looked worried for a moment, but then smiled brightly at Masain.

"I don't know. But, brother, it's still my black nutcracker!"

"Is that so?"

"huh!"

puck! Plop! puck!

Under the two men's heated attack, the high-quality duck down pillow from Rohan soon met a gruesome death. White feathers burst out from the cracked pillowcase and scatter in all directions like snow.

"..."

Masain became a little worried.

What on earth would the users who saw the messed up playroom think of me? The prince may not be able to help protect the royal family's health, but wouldn't he be in trouble for being an ugly member of the royal family who causes accidents?

but-

"Ahahahaha!"

When I saw Mores smiling brightly amidst the fluttering feathers, I wondered if it mattered what other people thought.

"Brother Masain! Now let's play training!"

Perhaps because he still had some energy left, Mores clashed wooden swords with Masain for a while.

widely! Crack!

There was no way that the wooden sword wielded with such short arms could pose a threat to Masain, the knight of the imperial palace.

However, the child's skill in occasionally stabbing unexpected blind spots was a bit harsher than it looked.

Although he is overshadowed by Prince Logan, who is always praised as a genius, perhaps Prince Mores is also a genius in his own way? Masain thought about it for a moment.

As the sun set and it became dusk, Mores put his wooden sword down on the floor, looking exhausted.

"You've finished training, now it's time to meditate!"

"haha..."

Still, the child lay down on the floor and said he wanted to meditate, wondering if he had picked anything up from somewhere. Of course, rolling around the playroom and sweeping up dust is not proper meditation.

After rolling around for a couple of laps, Mores stood up, shaking his messy hair.

"Are you finished with your meditation?"

"huh. But is Logan's class over by now?"

"Yes, probably."

"Then, brother! "Let's go see if Logan is okay in the Blue Rose Labyrinth now!"

Lately, the child has been asking about Prince Logan's well-being more often.

But until then, Masain was not considered a big deal. I thought to myself, since he was stuck with me so much, he might be quite lonely on his own.

Although the atmosphere within the imperial palace was so peaceful, the atmosphere on the continent was still chaotic.

These are demonic species that have brought their demonic power to the saints that have been around for over a thousand years. Those who had been secretly encroaching on the continent rose up like crazy when the young emperor began to expand his sphere of influence by force.

If we forget, an underground cult is causing trouble, and demonic contractors are running amok. Unspeakable and cruel acts of devil worship continued, and powerful devil species were summoned day after day along with large-scale human sacrifices.

So the suffering of the people caught up in it is indescribable -

It was around that time that a powerful first-class demon species appeared in the middle of Ortona, which was now a ruined country.

"Abama! There is no other way to help them other than the power of the Empire and Abamama's powerful divine power! Although they have escaped the embrace of the empire, it is clear that they are also the poor subjects of the Lord. So please look after their pitiful situation!"

Perhaps it was because of his innate righteous nature, Prince Logan even gave up eating and drinking and fervently complained to the Emperor.

"Logan... .."

All the great and minor officials admired the young prince's upright spirit.

However, in Masain's opinion, Seonghwang seemed very reluctant.

Not surprisingly, the surroundings of the empire had not yet been completely reorganized. At a time like this, how can someone who is the central point of the empire carelessly leave his position for the sake of another country?

"This is also for the people of Delcross, Abama! If that powerful demonic species continues to devour people without any hindrance, it will eventually grow into a serious threat to the empire!"

Prince Logan also had a point. Be it sooner or later, the devil will eventually move towards the ecliptic.

This wasn't the first time he had personally led the Holy Knights to subdue demons, so it wasn't such a bad idea to take action before the damage became too much.

"... .."

But even so, Seonghwang hesitated for a long time. For some reason, he had a strong premonition that he should not be away now.

However, soon after, Seonghwang had no choice but to decide to take over his own government. This is because Prince Logan, who was immersed in grief, tried to secretly pack his bags and escape, saying that he would fight for the suffering people, but was discovered by him.

"... "Son."

Seongwang sighed softly as he looked at the child being held in one hand and giggling.

"No matter how talented you are, you are still a child. "Even if you went to Ortona alone, what can you do for the people there now?"

"Hey, Abama..."

Seonghwang, who had been quietly staring at his son, who rarely showed a gloomy expression, finally nodded.

"okay. Don't worry too much, Logan. "I will go with you."

In this way, Seonghwang led one Holy Knight and one knightly corps and directly carried out the subjugation of the demon species.

In the end, this may have been the right choice. This is because Seonghwang, who went directly to the north, caught the demon species with almost no damage.

Considering the enormous number of people who are usually deployed to subdue large demon species, the success of this achievement is truly a miracle.

There was also additional income here.

First, the North's antipathy towards the empire has decreased slightly.

And secondly, it had the effect of temporarily quelling those who tried to take advantage of the chaotic situation to cause unrest.

'Is the prosperity of Delcross truly a monster?'

When you witness first-hand the incredible futility of killing a level 1 demon species with a single sword, no matter how intensely your will to fight may be, it will suddenly cool down.

Above all, in the process of moving north, Seonghwang also obtained unexpected information. The incredible information that Marie, his first lover who died, may have left his child behind.

"Lowering... No, Masain. Why on earth is that sea beast's horn...?"

"Oh, it's nothing, Captain. "I just have a request from His Majesty Mores."

"Mores... "What do you mean?"

And surprisingly, Masain was also included in this punitive force. This is because he was directly asked by Mores to always keep an eye on Logan, who may escape to Ortona again at any time.

-And brother. As you head north, look for a black rex there.

-... black... ? what?

-Rex. It's a black rex. Since you're flying through the sky, you have to be careful not to get caught by him!

Masain inadvertently laughed off Mores' request. Nowadays, a child's imagination can create even sea water that does not exist in their head. Doesn't a child's imagination always surprise people by exceeding expectations?

But I can't go back empty-handed like this and disappoint my child. So, instead of looking for Rex, Masain cut off some of the horns of sea beasts he caught on his way back and kept them.

'I must say I met him and he flew away. Do you think His Majesty Mores will like it at this level?'

However, what was waiting for Masain, who returned with the horn piece, was not Prince Mores, but the news of his sudden disappearance.

The imperial palace was instantly turned upside down.

How on earth is this happening? How could a precious prince disappear so easily in a border that is constantly running without water leaks?

-Have you heard the rumors? Empress Elizabeth, who always admired you, took her son personally...

-Shhh! Hey, please refrain from making baseless speculations!

-yes. That's not true. When I heard that, in fact, His Majesty Mores escaped on his own. He secretly bypassed his guards and leisurely walked out of the mayor's labyrinth... ..

-No, what nonsense is that! How can a child defeat the palace guards by himself? Mores, you are only five years old!

-However, it is said that the knight who stood guard at the Blue Rose Labyrinth personally testified so.

Without a single clue left behind, the case seemed to fall into limbo.

However, when Seonghwang himself came forward, the matter was quickly resolved. Of course, the process was not very peaceful.

Seonghwang, who went down to the underground corridor with a cool spirit, found Prince Mores, who had quickly disappeared. And finally, he returned to the imperial palace, holding the child tightly in his arms.

"... ..!"

"... ..!"

But everyone who saw him had to swallow their screams all at once. This is because the hem of Seonghwang's white robes was soaked with soggy blood.

Clap!

With each step he takes, a long bloody path unfolds.

"your majesty... ..!"

Even Louis, the faithful chamberlain of the Holy Emperor, did not dare to approach him. This was because I had an instinctive sense of crisis that if I touched him even just a little bit now, everything would come to an end. The momentum that Seonghwang gave off was cold and brutal.

Masain also watched with bated breath among the crowd of people. A blood-soaked figure, a new form of a small child wrapped in black cloth, and the child's pale hands slightly sticking out.

and-

Chrrrrrrrr...

A strangely shaped red string crawling over it at high speed.

"... ... !"

Masain's fingertips became cold from tension.

It was the trace of a red curse left by the devil that he was afraid of seeing again, even in his dreams.

434

434. Secretary of the Immortal (7)

That day.

The day when the red curse that had persistently chased from the capital covered the Gateway Fortress.

The sight of hell unfolding before Masain's eyes still remained vivid in his mind.

-Ma, Masain... . hurry... You should avoid...

The first to fall down, covered in blood, was Masain's maid. Since he was an ordinary person without any divine power, he would have been more vulnerable to curses than others.

-Ah, Masaine! Why are you the only one so fine? Please, please share the blessings of Seonghwangga with us!

The faithful priest who had been praying for the people just a moment ago suddenly turned around and grabbed Masain's collar the moment the curse encroached on him.

He criticized Masain again and again for monopolizing the God's grace, and finally fell to the floor, spewing out red blood.

-Please take care of me. The only legitimate successor to the throne is Masain.

Even the commander of the Knights of the Imperial Guard, who had been admonished, died in tears of blood, and finally there was no one left alive in the Gate Fortress except Masain.

Spurrrrrrrrr...

And the red curse letters that covered the bodies of the dead.

"... ... !"

But now, years later, the same letters were crawling across Mores' small hands. Like a swarm of persistent ants rushing towards their prey to disintegrate it.

Masain froze.

I can't get closer.

It was a precious child who had become her life's goal, but even though her heart seemed to be burning with worry about him, Masain could not take any steps towards the child.

'Mores... ... !'

In the end, Masain had no choice but to stand there and watch the Holy Emperor and Mores completely disappear towards the Blue Rose Labyrinth.

Terrifying rumors were going around people's mouths.

-Something that couldn't have happened happened. The Church of Rest has gone into hiding in the heavily guarded basement of the imperial palace.

-They took advantage of the lack of activity to commit large-scale human sacrifice, and ended up bringing something evil into this world.

People were very nervous as they heard disturbing news for the first time since the 17th King Seonhwang came to power.

However, as the Holy Emperor remained silent and the Orthodox Church did not make any noticeable movements, the rumors soon began to die down. There was also a reason why most people were skeptical.

Of course, the Heresy Tribunal, which had to directly take care of the site where the heretic rituals were performed - the black altar, the numerous corpses burned by erosion, and the supply and demand of those who died after being cut by the Holy Emperor - continued to look suspiciously toward the Blue Rose Labyrinth. I had no choice but to throw it.

There is no doubt. The fact that erosion occurred clearly meant that something with demonic energy had appeared in that location.

And Prince Mores was at the scene where the evil devil worship occurred.

"So, you should refrain from entering the Blue Rose Labyrinth for the time being, Masaine."

As Masain adjusts his outfit for conquest, Cardinal Benitus warns him in a sharp voice.

He was Masain's guardian until she graduated from the academy, and until recently, he was interfering in various ways by going back and forth between the guardian's residence.

Masain looked back at the wiry old man and sighed softly.

"That is impossible. Don't you know? "My current place of work is the Blue Rose Labyrinth."

"If you do this, you should change your workplace with another driver!"

"dismissal. I am just a knight now. "There is no way it would be possible to adjust the Royal Guard's schedule so suddenly and arbitrarily."

Then the old man roared loudly.

"Why not? "Aren't you the true eldest son of the Seonghwang family, more precious than anyone else?"

"... .."

Unable to respond due to the force being stronger than expected, the cardinal came toward Masain with great strides. It was a heavy step that did not suit his small physique.

"I will take full responsibility. So from now on, Masain, don't even think about setting foot there!"

"Your Excellency the Cardinal."

"Do you understand? Masain. "What was engulfing Prince Mores that day was, without a doubt, the demon energy of the demon species!"

Benitus is the head of the Inquisition. As he had been fighting the forces of evil for a long time, he knew demons and the works of heretics better than anyone else.

"I know the ecology of those evil things. The ritual they performed over Prince Mores was clearly a ritual of emptying vessels!"

"Emptying the bowl, what does that mean... .."

"It means that it was a ritual to descend the devil directly into the body!"

"... ..!"

As Masain's face turned pale, Benitus continued to pour out scary words with burning eyes.

"Plus, the large number of human sacrifices, it was definitely not a ritual prepared for one or two days. Perhaps Prince Mores may have been their target since birth! Masain. Have you ever heard the rumors about the reserved one spoken about in the underground church?"

"stop... .."

"Blessed by the devil's apostles, a vessel prepared for the wicked devil! That may be the true identity of Prince Mores! No, the advent ritual has already ended, so maybe it's not Prince Mores anymore-"

"Please stop!"

Masain screamed and held his head in both hands in great pain.

If I could deny it, I would have denied it many times. However, as Cardinal Benitus said, Massain witnessed with his own eyes the sight of something evil invading Mores' body.

So it was painful.

The fact that Mores, who was still only a child, experienced such a big thing, but that she was not by his side.

And even though it wasn't Mores' fault, I had an ominous feeling that I would never be able to completely shake off my feelings of fear toward my child again.

"... .."

After a moment of silence, Benitus added in a slightly softened voice.

"Masain. I know that you value your remaining relatives. However, that does not mean we should deny the clearly visible reality."

Wow.

The old man's dry hand grabbed Masain's collar like a rake.

"You really don't know? "If His Majesty the Holy Emperor had not stopped it that day, Prince Mores would certainly have become a conduit for bringing something evil and terrible into Delcross."

"... .."

"No, maybe it's not completely finished yet."

Benitus' eyes, as he stared into Masaine's eyes, sparkled with a strange light.

"Even now, I can still faintly sense dirty demonic energy in the Blue Rose Labyrinth. So how would you know? "I wonder if that evil still persists and is waiting for an opportunity inside Prince Mores' body!"

"... "Hwangbimama."

"... Masain."

In front of the Blue Rose Labyrinth, Masain met an unexpected person. Unable to overcome the uncomfortable gaze of those around her, it was Empress Lizabeth who reluctantly took a step forward to at least pretend to look at her child.

And behind her, there was an old man she had never seen before.

Nod.

The two people, who were originally awkward, showed proper courtesy and turned around.

"Why did I come to visit Queen Mother at such a chaotic time?"

As Masaine disappeared from sight, the old man, Senator Galen, whispered to the empress in a low voice.

"No, no."

"But mama. How can you stop your steps? "Aren't you here to see the prince?"

In response to the old man's question, the Empress looked a little shaken instead of answering.

"What on earth is making you so upset?"

"It just worked out. There was something I wanted to ask you a long time ago, Senator Galen. That kid... .."

After hesitating for a moment, Empress Lizabeth carefully brought out a long-standing question that had been buried deep in her heart.

"Is 'that' really the child I gave birth to?"

The doubts that had been buried in my heart like sharp thorns swelled and festered for a long time, until they finally reached the point where pus was dripping instead of blood.

So, you end up asking questions that you wouldn't normally have asked.

"You should know better, Senator Galen. "I was originally incapable of having children."

But after meeting Seonghwang, she started having Mores as if it was a lie.

I couldn't just be purely happy and say it was a miracle. After having her child, she blamed the various ominous omens that constantly disturbed her.

Due to the prolonged difficult labor, she could not even properly remember the moment the child was born.

"Hehe, did you think like that? Don't worry, trust me, Lizabeth. "The day Prince Mores was born, I was definitely by her side."

"... .."

"It was truly a grace from the Lord. Do you still not believe in that beautiful miracle? Lady Lizabeth."

Galen gently scolded her, deliberately calling her by a familiar name from when she was young.

"The Lord said that miracles would occur, such as sparks burning in the bitter cold and grass growing in the desert. In order to show this to the world, wouldn't it make sense to first prepare a cold, dry ground? Therefore, the lady's infertility was also something that the Lord personally worked on through His apostle."

"... So, Mores is the child given by the Lord?"

"Of course, lady. Prince Mores will definitely become the next successful person. In this way, he will be admired by everyone and will rule over everything in this world. Under his power, the apostles of Juju will finally regain their freedom."

Representative Galen smiled warmly and looked into the Empress's trembling eyes. A young girl who is always strong and strong on the outside, but is weaker than anyone else on the inside.

"Do you understand? "Your child, Prince Mores, is such a person."

But Lizabeth was no longer listening to Galen's lengthy explanation. This is because among his words, there was one word that particularly caught my ear.

"kick... Success..."

A very clear and sweet word that is deeply embedded in my mind.

"okay. Mores, if only that child could become the next big star..."

A faint light of hope slowly appeared in Lizabeth's eyes as she repeated quietly.

"That could indeed be perfect evidence. Proof that I was not born into an evil family, but gave birth to a child from a true royal family!"

When Masain arrived at the playroom, Mores was not the only one there.

"It's dangerous, so don't go too high, Mores."

"huh!"

In the center of the room, large furniture and toy horses were piled neatly in a strangely stable structure.

It looks perfect for a child who likes high places to climb. The person who built that structure that reached the ceiling was most likely Prince Logan.

"..."

That was quite unusual, since usually Logan would nag Mores for leaving his toys all over the place rather than making a mess of the playroom like this.

I was just watching what my brother was doing, bewildered, when

Logan sensed his presence and turned his head.

"Ah, brother Masain! "You're here."

"Yes, but wasn't it time for class right now?"

"We decided to reduce classes for a while."

... By what means? I understand that despite the Emperor's repeated attempts to dissuade him, the Empress pushed for it quite forcefully.

Then Logan blushed a little embarrassed.

"It's a shame that at this age, I have been a bit angry in front of my mom."

While the Emperor was away from the palace due to his unreasonable request, a division broke out in Mores.

As Prince Logan, who has an upright nature, he cannot help but feel a great sense of responsibility for this.

"So, I told Mama Mama that I was worried about Mores and that I couldn't eat anything."

"... .."

Isn't that more like a half-threat than a threat? Masain thought so inwardly.

It was enough for the Empress to take a step back. I guess it's because I've already learned that when my son starts to worry about something, it can really stop him from eating or drinking for days.

"Ahahaha!"

Fortunately, Mores had regained his usual cheerful self. Perhaps because she got to play freely with Logan for the first time in a long time, the child was hanging from the structure and shaking her body in a particularly pleasant way.

-Even now, I can faintly sense dirty demonic energy in the Blue Rose

Labyrinth. So how would you know? I wonder if that evil still persists and is waiting for an opportunity inside the body of Prince Mores!

For a moment, Cardinal Benitus' warning flashed through her mind, but Martha quietly watched the child play, trying to erase the memory.

"Don't keep jumping, Mores. Dangerous."

"Ahaha! no!"

"hey!"

Masain slowly regained his peace of mind at the sight of him being noisy and happy like before.

The only strange thing is that sometimes Logan has a serious expression and pours divine power on Mores.

"what's the matter? Logan, I'm not hurt?"

"It's because you don't know much. "If I keep jumping from that high up, my legs will hurt later and I won't be able to sleep well, right?"

"hmm? okay?"

Logan seemed worried about something, or even wary.

But as always, Masain was unable to properly understand the deep thoughts of her precocious younger brother. He was just very concerned about Mores' work, he could only vaguely guess.

A seemingly very peaceful evening passed by.

"Mores, stop playing now and come down."

As it got dark outside the window, Logan said to Mores, holding on to the rocking horse.

"It's time to go to bed."

"no. I'm going to play more today! "You won't come to class tomorrow."

"are you okay. "I'll come tomorrow too."

"hmm..."

Then Mores seemed to think for a moment and then blinked innocently.

"But I can't sleep yet?"

"Then shall I take you for a ride in the hush car?"

"hmm..."

Mores, who tilted his head again, answered.

"huh! good!"

"OK got it. wait a minute."

After leaving the room, Logan looked back with concern for a moment. Because he was a little concerned about Mores, who was perched precariously in the middle of a tall structure.

But he soon glanced at Masain and thought.

'Well, it'll be okay. 'Because there's Masain too.'

When the two of them were left alone in the playroom, Masaine looked at Mores playing.

At that moment, the child was struggling to climb higher, moving his arms and legs.

"... Lowering."

"huh?"

"Why do you like high places so much?"

It was a question that came out inadvertently. It was a habit that Mores had shown since he was a baby, and it was a question he had never asked before because he didn't expect to get a proper answer if he asked the child.

But unexpectedly, Mores gave an answer obediently.

"I'm practicing."

"Practice, huh?"

"huh. That way, you will be able to do well even when you climb to much higher heights later!"

"... .."

It's practice for the future. I thought it was quite a surprising answer for a child.

"But you. Wouldn't that be enough for practice? It's no longer dangerous... "Wow!"

When the child suddenly lost his balance and stumbled, the startled Masain hurriedly rushed towards Mores and stretched out his arms.

It was right then. Through Mores's covered shirt, a quickly crawling red string was seen.

Spurrrrrrrrrr... ..

"... ..!"

Masain's body was rigid in place.

"uh?"

Mores passed between the awkwardly extended arms-
thud!

I fell to the floor and hit my head hard.

"... ..!"

"... .."

Mores did not cry as loudly as before. He just looked up at Masain with a slightly blank face, as if he was surprised by a situation that couldn't normally exist.

The strangely calm eyes of a child.

The moment Masain faced those deep gray eyes, for some reason he felt his heart freeze.

435. Secretary of the Immortal (8)

The child must have been greatly shocked. Perhaps she, who believed and followed him as her family, felt deeply betrayed by this. Masain thought so at first.

However, what he actually discovered in Mores' eyes was his own fear, foolishness, and incompetence that he had tried so hard to hide.

Masain was completely dismantled in that incomprehensible gaze.

I feel like an insignificant soul standing before the judgment seat of the Absolute.

The feeling of having one's weak essence completely exposed.

The feeling of falling into an endless abyss and ultimately being completely swallowed up in darkness... ..

"... .."

Blink.

That magical, strange time disappeared the moment the child blinked once.

Mores slowly got up from his seat on his own and immediately started fiddling with the toys on the floor without saying a word.

"... Lowering."

"huh? why?"

"... .."

Masain was left speechless by the casual question.

Fortunately, the awkward moment passed quickly. After a while, Logan returned to the playroom carrying some nice-smelling teacups.

His eyes widened when he found Mores sitting on the floor.

"Why are you doing this? Mores. Are you sick? "The aurors are very disturbed?"

He was so sharp that it was hard to believe that he had just turned six. Then Mores answered with a slightly sullen expression.

"no? It's not?"

"I don't think it's true, right? "You're obviously not feeling well somewhere right now."

Logan put down his teacup and hurriedly approached Mores. Then he began to carefully examine his brother's condition with his sharp eyes.

"what? You have a lump on your head. "What happened?"

"I don't know. "Nothing happened."

Masain sensed a slight tremor in that stubborn answer, and only then did she realize that the child was trying hard to suppress his agitated emotions.

'Lord, my God!'

It was absurd. Because I was wallowing in a pitiful sense of self-destruction, I was actually neglecting the hurt and shock my child must have suffered!

"... okay."

Did he feel a strange current flowing between the two? Without asking any more questions, Logan poured divine power into the back of Mores' head.

In that way, Mores went to bed after drinking hush-jang tea, looking quite fine on the outside. And as soon as he laid his head on his pillow he immediately vomited all his tea.

"Yuck!"

It was a concussion.

After that incident, Masain's face became increasingly darker.

I tried hard to act as if nothing had happened. However, even after that, red curse letters appeared on Mores' body from time to time, and Masain became increasingly afraid to approach her child.

It was clear that Mores had also noticed such changes in Massain. When he entered the Cheongjang Labyrinth, he greeted me with a bright face as usual, but he no longer hugged me warmly or clung to his arm without hesitation like before.

'Should I also apply for a change of work location?'

I was worried about that for a while.

It was never good for either of us to continue in this awkward situation.

What bothered Masain more than anything was the vague fear of what would happen if he failed to properly perform his escort duties when it was really needed.

But around that time, a big change occurred in Mores' life. Empress Lizabeth, who had been neglecting her child until now, suddenly began to come and go in her labyrinth.

-Momma, what is that? Please call me "eomamama" properly. hurry!

-Your child still isn't taking etiquette classes? What has the chamberlain been doing all this time?

-I heard that Logan has already been initiated into Auror? Mores, you are also a child of a prosperous family, so you will definitely show excellent swordsmanship like Logan.

-What if you don't have divine power? Instead, I plan to focus more on studying theology.

Mores, whose class hours suddenly increased significantly, soon became much busier than Logan. Naturally, the time Masain spent face-to-face with Mores decreased.

'Mores... ..'

Masain was very worried about the child. Just by looking at him from afar, he could tell how difficult the child was struggling with the sudden lessons.

But Empress Lizabeth's interference did not end there.

"Did you hear? Well, the Empress requested Her Majesty Seonghwang to build a new villa. "A perfect villa just for Prince Mores!"

"yes? "No, Your Majesty granted that unreasonable request?"

"When has Your Majesty ever refused a request from the Empress or the Empress? In addition, Empress Lizabeth's parents are the great Asean Grand Dukes. "I heard that the amount the Grand Duke is investing is quite significant."

"Oh my! The Empress must be very uncomfortable. "I think we'll have to keep an eye on him for the time being."

It even began to happen that the Empress held Mores in the Ruby Palace for several days. So, naturally, Masain's escort work was bound to be greatly reduced.

"... .."

Now Masain's worries have entered a new phase. Because it was no longer the time to worry about their strained relationship.

'I can clearly see that Mores is suffering due to the empress's excessive interference, and I can't just sit back and watch it like this!'

So Masain visited Seonghwang's office. This is because he was confident that he could solve all these problems.

Above all, the ominous curse letters that invaded Mores' body.

"There is no curse that cannot be resolved, uncle. Didn't he wipe out the terrible curse written on me that day at the Gate Fortress?"

So there must be a good reason for leaving Mores alone.

With that in mind, Masain wandered around in front of the main palace. Of course, he did not give a formal message saying that he would have an audience right away, but after receiving Clanos' castle, he did not want to take any personal convenience as a member of the royal family.

"Masain?"

However, it was an unexpected person who discovered Masain.

"What are you doing here? Have you come to see His Majesty? "His Majesty is not in the office right now."

A woman with a gentle appearance, neatly dressed in the white and red uniform of the Holy Knights.

It was Katrina, also known as the strongest shield of the Holy Emperor.

Katrina Belpine.

Masain didn't know much about her.

He once served in the imperial guard as a rank knight. When the Holy Emperor was still young, he faithfully served by his side, and later, in a rare case of late manifestation of divine power, he joined the Knights of St. Aurelion.

And currently, he is receiving the trust of the Holy Emperor to the extent that he has taken on the position of Vice-Captain of the Knights at a relatively young age.

"If you had given me a message in advance, Your Majesty would have been happy to take the time."

However, contrary to the public image of Sanghyeol, the woman I met in person was a gentle person with a very likable smile.

Katrina led the reluctant Masain to the small drawing room of the main palace. Then, the unexpected news I heard there was that the Holy Emperor had recently become more and more likely to stay alone somewhere and pray.

"Prayer? "Your Majesty?"

I couldn't help but wonder. Despite his nickname as God's representative, Masain knew better than anyone else that his uncle was not a very faithful Orthodox believer.

"Yes, I think he will probably be in the prayer room until late today as well. So, if it is okay with you, Masain, how about I listen to the matter first and convey it to Your Majesty?"

"... .."

Masain thought for a moment and looked at Katrina.

She was a woman with a strange aura. She is solemn but not stubborn, polite but not heavy. I feel like if I tell her anything, she will listen carefully, and somehow it feels like I am meeting Seonghwang himself.

"It's just a minor concern. Katrina, it's not something that needs to be shared separately, but... .."

"But you seem to be struggling very much with that."

Her eyes deepen as she stares at Masain.

"Okay, how about this? Sometimes, just sharing your worries with someone can make the burden on your heart much lighter. And, shamefully, I pride myself on being quite good at listening to people's stories."

"No, it's not that much of a burden... .."

But surprisingly, after a while, Masaine found herself confiding her worries about Miju and Katrina.

"Is it about a separate palace? well. "How can I understand Your Majesty's deep intentions?"

Katrina continued speaking cautiously.

"From what I could see, His Majesty seemed to think that at least one more secluded villa was needed."

"You need more?"

There is already a Blue Rose Labyrinth for princes, so why on earth?

"... well. Do you know why? But there is always a reason for what you do. "We just don't understand what it means."

As if she were indeed Seonghwang's close associate, Katrina did not seem to have a single doubt about Seonghwang.

"then... . Then, Katrina, just in case... .."

With great difficulty, Masain brought out the most important matter.

"Perhaps you are still with Prince Mores... The curse left behind by the ruthless people from before... There are traces of... .."

Of course, I didn't expect to get a proper answer. But surprisingly, Katrina slowly nods at him!

"Yeah, I know."

"... yes?"

Masain actually became confused by her cool answer.

"Well, then why is your Majesty just letting that happen? "I heard that it is a very dangerous curse that can even damage the soul!"

okay. Didn't Cardinal Benitus say that too? It is a terrible curse that makes the existing personality empty in order to contain something evil in the body of the sacrifice.

However, when Masain asked urgently, Katrina asked an odd question.

"Masain. Masain, what do you think is the most important thing in helping someone recognize themselves as themselves?"

"yes? To recognize it as yourself, that means-"

"I think it's a person's memory or emotion."

Not long ago, Katrina heard Seonghwang mutter something that sounded like a lament.

-okay. Since he didn't want to get rid of his emotions, he ultimately chose to erase his memories.

She always helped Seonghwang carefully, and I was able to guess many facts from that single word.

The curse that makes a person's personality empty is not much different from the curse that erases all of a person's memories.

'And I guess that's really what His Majesty Mores wanted.'

okay. At least regarding the curse, it is undoubtedly true that the prince's will was reflected to some extent.

According to the investigation, Prince Mores clearly went to the scene of the ceremony of his own volition that day. So, even though he was able to succeed, he did not completely remove the curse. Because he is a person who is ready to grant whatever the children want.

"This is the conclusion I reached based on my limited insight."

Katrina continued speaking with a slightly confused look in her eyes.

"Perhaps Prince Mores knows something you don't want to know. So, he wanted to forget everything, even if it meant using a curse."

"... ... !"

"It must have been Prince Mores's will to leave a curse. Of course, this is all just my poor guess..."

It was a completely unexpected answer.

"More, Mores..."

The curse, that's what Mores wanted for himself?

"Well, then... How should I treat him from now on... ... !"

Masain was so shocked that he stuttered.

"Well, what should I do now? Katrina! So does this mean that Mr. Mores will have to live with the Red Curse from now on?"

"Master Masaine."

"That can't be possible! That's not right! Living with the curse of a demon species on your body! If something like that happens... ... !"

Masain, who was talking frantically, was holding his head in great pain.

"Katrina! I, I am so afraid of that curse! So it can't go on like this! "I can no longer be by His Majesty Mores' side!"

"..."

"I swore to protect you for the rest of my life! But every time I encounter the traces of that curse, my whole body trembles uncontrollably! "How dare I call myself the knight who protects him!"

"..."

"I am not worthy of being a knight! Katrina, please answer! "Is there really no other way for me than to leave your side?"

Katrina looked silently at the overly agitated young knight. After a while, when he seemed to calm down a little, she let out a small sigh and opened her mouth.

"How could someone as incompetent as me dare to discuss the qualifications of a knight?"

"... .."

"Masain. Do you know what? Although I have now earned the unrivaled title of His Majesty's 'shield', the truth is that I have never properly watched His Majesty. "I even gave him poison myself."

"... yes?"

At that incredible confession, Masain completely forgot about his worries for a moment.

what? poison?

As Masain's eyes widened, Katrina smiled bitterly.

"Of course, I swear to the Lord, it wasn't intentional."

That was quite a long time ago.

Katrina, who had just been appointed to the villa, was a child with a strong sense of justice. So she felt sorry for the young prince who almost always skipped her meals, so she committed the extraneous act of buying and carrying food from outside of her house.

The first few times there were no problems.

"... .."

At that time, the young Seonghwang looked at her with an inexplicable look, but he did not particularly try to ignore the guard knight's sincerity. Katrina seemed a little touched to see the sickly prince eating properly for the first time in a long time.

But that touching moment didn't last long.

"I never would have thought that the enemy would have bought up all the restaurants in the imperial capital... .."

"... ..!"

That's not the only problem.

Although it was not intentional, it was an incident where a guard knight personally fed poisoned food to the prince. Nevertheless, no one in the imperial palace at the time raised an issue about it.

Thanks to this, Katrina was able to remain as the young Seonghwang's bodyguard, and for a while she struggled to find safer food.

However, after the prince was poisoned several times, Katrina eventually gave up on procuring food from outside.

"But do you know that? Masain. "Your Majesty never once held a grudge against me at that time."

"... .."

"And although I may have felt deep guilt and self-destruction, I also never left Your Majesty's side."

It cannot be denied that it was his fault for poisoning the prince several times. At that time, Katrina was so distressed that she wanted to quit her job as the prince's bodyguard right away. If he had been able to atone with his life, he would have gladly killed himself.

But Katrina was also well aware of this fact.

In this bloody imperial palace, the only person who can help the young prince is himself. He knew that once he left, there would no longer be anyone here to be on the prince's side.

That's how she endured a long and painful time.

"People are now calling me, despite my shortcomings, 'the strongest shield of the Holy Emperor.'"

Katrina smiled gently at Masain, who had a blank face.

"And now I know. "My existence meant more to His Majesty, who was young at the time, than I thought."

"Katrina... .."

"And perhaps it is the same for His Majesty Mores. Masaine is a truly humble knight who cannot be replaced by anyone in this world."

"... ..!"

436. Secretary of the Immortal (9)

That day, the short conversation with Katrina had great implications for Masain.

'Am I a moron! You're afraid of hurting my Majesty's feelings, so you have the ridiculous idea of completely abandoning your mission! 'What a meaningless worry this was!'

Staying by his side even though it may be a little awkward, and leaving far away to an unseen place. It is obvious which one will cause greater harm to the child.

Even so, the high-ranking priests' gaze toward Mores has become increasingly sinister recently. Therefore, at a time like this, Masain had to be a strong dam by Mores' side to block the waves. Just as Katrina steadfastly maintained her position even after making the terrible mistake of handing poison to the Holy Emperor.

Of course, I didn't dare expect to be like Katrina. He simply provides a little bit of strength to Mores when he needs him. That was all Masain wanted.

'For that to happen, I'll have to become stronger than I am now!'

Taking advantage of the slack in guard duty, Masain accelerated his training even more.

In order to calm down my shaky mind and not be distracted by miscellaneous thoughts-

Also, he hoped that the stronger his power would become, the more he would be able to find some peace of mind in the face of the demon species' curse.

'Of course, it is still difficult to completely hide the fear of the Red Curse. If so, it would be a good idea to prepare in advance so that you can reflexively help Haepo, at least when a crisis arises!'

So I started practicing booming in my spare time. If it were the most frequent crisis situation that Mores would face, nothing else would come to mind other than a fall accident.

"... "Masain, what kind of useless thing are you doing?"

As I was repeating the practice of throwing and catching training sand bags in the air, Francis, who happened to be passing by, clicked his tongue and asked.

He was a classmate of Masain's Academy and had recently joined the Knights of St. Aurelion, so he was often seen in the imperial palace.

"Even at the academy, you only chose the most foolish and ineffective training, but this time, what kind of ridiculous training are you doing on your own?"

"I'm practicing booming."

Although he was scolded quite rudely, Masain responded without hesitation. Francis did that for a day or two. Even when Masain had the right to succeed to the throne, his arrogance was beyond description.

"It just so happened that the training sandbags were exactly the same as Maures's weight. So, I'm going to practice taking the fall until I can move my body reflexively without thinking."

"... what?"

After hearing the absurd answer, Francis' eyes widened in an unusual way. Then he immediately snorted loudly.

"wait for a sec. I don't know what that boom is, but what's the use of getting used to the weight of sandbags? Prince Mores will continue to grow up anyway, right? "You can double your weight very quickly."

"Is that so?"

Masaine, caught off guard, looked back at Francis with a shocked expression. His eyes, which had been shaking aimlessly, soon hardened with the intense light of enlightenment.

"Right!"

At that time, Francis thought that Masain would realize his foolishness and quit training right away.

However, the next day, he visited the Royal Guard training site again, and this time he found Masain throwing and catching two bags of sand at once.

"... "Isn't this guy really stupid?"

As time passed, fortunately, the curse that invaded Mores' body gradually weakened.

The strings that were bright red suddenly changed to a faint light. The number of times letters surfaced on the skin began to decrease significantly.

The reason was unknown. Does the curse's effectiveness run out and disappear, or does the curse become weaker over time?

Anyway, Masain was internally relieved.

'If things continue like this, we can expect the curse to disappear completely soon.'

But at the same time, some unwelcome changes began to appear in Mores' behavior.

For example, at some point, Mores no longer wore a red cape.

"Sir, where did you put Rex today?"

When Masain became suspicious and carefully asked Mores-

"huh? Rex? What is it?"

"... ..!"

A very innocent question comes back.

When Masain faced the child's flawless eyes, he was speechless from shock.

'... How did this happen? Could it be that the curse is causing my memories to gradually disappear?'

Of course, I wasn't sure if it was really because of the curse.

The unique actions and words that Mores has shown so far have felt like they were based on a child's unique dreams or imagination rather than reality.

Perhaps, as time passed, the child began to distinguish between dreams and reality little by little.

Anyway, Masain felt strangely lonely, so he picked up the old tapestry that had been thrown in the corner of the room and stored it in his lodgings.

But the problem wasn't just the memories disappearing. As time passed, Mores' expression also gradually became depressed.

The child who woke up with a bright smile every day developed the habit of staring blankly out the window with an expressionless face.

Even when he met Logan or Marsain, he didn't seem as happy as before. Sometimes it seems like they are avoiding them, and sometimes they hide in remote places and sniffle alone!

"older brother. It seems that Lizabeth is too harsh on Mores. 'Shouldn't we tell Abama and get rid of all of Mores' classes right now?'"

At this point, Logan was also visibly nervous.

However, although he constantly hovered by Mores' side and tried to persuade him, he did not hastily try to interfere in the relationship between mother and son by borrowing the power of a third party. This is because he fully understood that all of these events were ultimately based on Mores' own will.

Right now, the child was struggling desperately, even with his young heart, to not lose the attention of Empress Elizabeth that he had regained.

"... .."

Masain also knew that fact well, so he was helpless.

So, when the sight became too painful to look at, he would occasionally take out the old tapestry he had stored away and make up his mind.

'The empress's tyranny is only the beginning. As long as the devil's curse continues, things will become more and more difficult for Mr. Mores to handle. But no matter what happens, I will stand by my side and protect him until the end.'

However, Masain at the time did not know anything.

No matter how many times I tried to pull myself together, any firm resolve or oath would be meaningless in the face of an unexpected event.

That fate sometimes boldly throws humans in front of an unbearable reality and watches with pleasure as even the roots of their will and beliefs are shaken to their core.

"... ..!"

No matter what terrible tricks the demon race carries out, I will not leave His Majesty Mores' side and protect him until the end.

That was the only premise that Masain had no doubt about for a long time.

But that day.

The day when a strong storm raged and we were unfortunately stranded at Grand Duke Asin's mansion.

Masain faced an unrealistic scene he had never imagined even in his dreams, and instantly lost his mental balance.

'That...' what?'

At that time, there was clearly Mores in front of him. No, the 'thing' that was Mores just now was standing there.

However, even if you look at it with your own eyes, you cannot easily understand what 'that' is. Reason and emotion clash violently, and the boundaries between reality and fantasy become complexly entangled.

The two hands holding Misra began to tremble mercilessly.

"Lowering... .."

The voice that came out like a moan could not reach the person calling and was scattered empty into the air.

Ah, what have I done so far? Who on earth were you trying to protect from 'what'?

[Ahahaha!]

In his confusion, a bright laughter that felt particularly familiar reached his ears. No, rather than hearing it in my ears, it was a strange sensation as if the sound was being hit directly into my head.

And in that dark backlight, there was a silver eye that gave off an unusually bright light.

[are you okay. Now, no matter what I do, it doesn't change. Because my brother is nothing.]

"That day I... "I betrayed your trust so easily!"

Masain knelt down and frantically confessed his mistakes.

"It's all my fault! If only I had stayed by your side until the end that day! I'm sure I could have prevented something like that from happening to you... .."

Seongjin, who was quietly listening to the rambling confession, made eye contact with Owen, who was as embarrassed as ever.

'Hey, what is Sir Martha talking about now? 'Do you know anything?'

'no? I don't know. 'Is this my first time seeing this too?'

'okay?'

hmm.

Seongjin became a little embarrassed. Masain had been apologizing for something gibberish since earlier, but the problem was that he had no idea what was going on.

'So what on earth did you do wrong to me? 'I don't remember anything anyway!'

However, there was no need to urge him to calm down and explain step by step. It's not that it wasn't, because Sir Martha seemed completely out of his mind right now.

It was unusual for Gyeong to be a warrior who rarely lost his composure despite Seongjin's considerable trouble.

"I tried to overcome it for so long, but it was no use! Dear, I... "As expected, he was a terrible coward!"

Meanwhile, Masain was completely buried in the fear that he had suppressed and ignored in his heart for a long time, and was not even aware of what he was saying.

I regret what happened that day. I still regret it terribly even now.

But despite this, Masain had no confidence that he would not make the same choice again when faced with the same situation.

-Look at this. After all, it's a dream, right? Brother Masain is still with me.

And the old fear that he might repeat the same mistake became a vivid reality and attacked him mercilessly when he stood in front of Seongjin sighed slightly and walked towards Masain. I don't know what the problem is, but anyway, I can't leave that guy like that forever.

"Sir Martha."

A voice that sounds strangely calm.

Owen looked back at Seongjin without thinking and was a little embarrassed. This is because Seongjin's face, looking down at Masain, looked somewhat cold.

"I'm sorry, sir. Dear, I... .."

"Try to calm down. "Brother Masain."

Startle!

Masain was startled by the unexpected name and raised his head. Toward him, Seongjin twitched the corners of his mouth and smiled somewhat strangely.

"are you okay. Even if you put your mind to it now, nothing will change."

"... ..!"

"I think Sir Masaine is greatly mistaken, but his influence is not as great as he thinks compared to his self-consciousness. okay? "In the end, Sir Martha is nothing to me."

Masain's eyes were greatly shaken.

It was a statement that may sound cold at first glance. However, what is surprising is that Masain's eyes, which were listening to the voice, are slowly coming back into focus.

"I don't know why you regret it so much and blame me, but you probably wouldn't have changed anything at that time. So I couldn't have ruined anything. "I assure you, the mistake you made against me wasn't as big a deal as you thought, right?"

"Calm... .."

Masain asked with a trembling voice.

"Is that really so, Your Majesty?"

"okay."

Seongjin nodded without any hesitation.

okay. Don't be real. At least within the memories I have now.

437. Secretary of the Immortal (10)

The road back from Furiano to Regina was long and tedious.

Rattling rattling.

Seongjin, who was shaking his body to the irregular vibrations of the wagon, raised his head for a moment and looked up at the open night sky.

The stars were blinking especially heavily today, and it seemed as if they were going to roll down like tears from the sky at any moment.

"new... Mores. Aren't you hungry? "Try some of this."

Owen handed me a small fish cake. It looks like he took some time to access Pangea Chronicle.

"You man, stop calling people strange names. "I'd rather just call myself a newbie."

"huh? really?"

Owen's face was pale.

"But is it still okay? "I'm comfortable with that, but I think other people might think it's strange if they hear it."

"What do you think? "It sounds much weirder if you stutter a beat every time you call me."

"Is that so?"

Owen nodded in understanding, then glanced to the side and asked worriedly.

"But you're a newbie."

"huh?"

"Brother Masain, will you be okay?"

"... .."

Seongjin briefly glanced at Masain, who was leaning against the corner of the carriage.

He got on the cart with a dazed look on his face and hadn't woken up for several hours. He falls asleep alone, leaving the prince to be guarded, which is absolutely impossible considering Masain's usual personality.

"It was a bit strange earlier. Maybe the guy who ran away from the sewer played a dirty trick on his brother. "It would be best to call the healing priests as soon as we get back to Regina."

"hmm."

"You can still see it now. It seems like I'm having a nightmare. What should I do? Should I give this limited edition eyepatch to my brother too?"

As Owen said, Masaine's face was distorted, as if she was struggling with something even in her sleep.

But Seongjin thought for a moment and shook his head.

"no. "Leave the eyepatch alone."

Somehow I feel like this isn't just a nightmare. Moreover, now I have a feeling that it would be better not to defend against external mental interference.

"Well, don't worry. Lord Masaine will be fine when he wakes up after a nap."

"Is that so?"

"huh."

Seongjin calmly nodded, but his slightly nervous hands were fiddling with the devil's lamp without realizing it.

Why not? According to the Demon King, it appears that it was Seongjin himself who actually made Masain fall into a deep sleep.

-Forget everything and just sleep, Sir Masaine. When you open your eyes later, you will forget all the bad things that bothered you.

After getting on the carriage, Seongjin tried to appease Masain by emphasizing that several times. Then, for some reason, he actually closed his eyes and fell asleep.

No, is it really right to just appease?

Seongjin still wasn't sure. For some reason, the more I uttered each word to him, the more an uneasy feeling arose as if I was directly cursing a person.

And after a while, Seongjin was able to hear the answer from a third party.

[Wow, Seongjin Lee. This ignorant guy. Beating the soul itself with a curse and turning it into a groggy state. Thanks to this, it seems like the soul's collapse has somehow stopped.]

According to the Demon King's explanation, for some reason, Lord Masain's soul suddenly showed signs of rapid collapse.

And that period clearly coincides with the time when Seongjin suddenly showed symptoms similar to sleepwalking.

[Maybe that guy's soul wasn't that strong to begin with. That's why it gets damaged so easily even with a small impact. Even now, the image of my soul has become quite blurry, so I think it will probably take quite a long time to recover, right?]

Seongjin thought as he hugged the lamp.

Well, could that be considered a small shock? Moreover, I have a him, he looks like a very carefree chicken-haired bastard.

'Why is Owen so fine?'

Then, while Owen swallows a mouthful of fishcake, he feels Seongjin's gaze and turns around blankly.

"huh? why?"

At the same time, a small pendant swayed from the guy's neck, emitting a bright red glow.

sparkle!

"... "No, nothing."

"It's nothing! What? huh? "You're curious!"

"... .."

"why? It's a newbie. say it! huh? huh?"

"... "It's noisy, you idiot."

Seongjin snapped and buried his face gloomily on the lamp.

I felt an unprecedented sense of helplessness. It feels like everything is going wrong. I feel like everything is a mess and it's all my fault.

Sir Masain is clearly aware that he has had some harmful influence on the Demon King. But no matter how much I think about it, I can't remember what it is, and I can't even figure out how to solve this situation.

'how... ..'

What on earth did I believe in and brought things to this point?

Softly-!

It was right then. Something like a soft breeze lightly brushed through my hair.

"... ... !"

Seongjin was caught by a strong sense of déjà vu and quickly raised his head. Then, I watched in disbelief as the lines of agony disappeared from Sir Martha's face in an instant, and a comfortable smile appeared on his face.

"uh..."

Masain wasn't the only one who changed.

The minor scratches on the group's mouth from rolling in the sewer disappeared, and even Giacomo Milo, who was suffering from erosion, looked much more at ease.

For a moment, I burst into tears and felt a surge of relief.

Well then! I knew this guy would be visiting soon!

After such a magical time, Masain opened his eyes as if he were just fine.

"... Lowering?"

"Lord Martha!"

"older brother!"

Masain blinked a couple of times and stood up, turning his shoulders as if his posture was uncomfortable. Then he looked around him with a slightly embarrassed expression.

"this. Did I forget to protect you and sleep alone? "How did this happen?"

"..."

Seongjin asked with a slightly anxious face.

"Lord Masaine. "Don't you remember anything that happened earlier?"

"yes? "What do you mean?"

Owen also joined in, looking puzzled.

"Besides, brother. It seemed like you were having nightmares ever since. Is that okay?"

"nightmare... .."

Masain then looked at the two people in turn with eyes filled with pure doubt. It was clear eyes that did not contain the slightest lie.

"well? Now that I think about it, it seems like I had a bit of a strange dream, sir."

It was a dream of me wandering around a sunny meadow alone... .
Masain added and furrowed his brows.

"I don't really remember, but I think I saw a strange colony of mushrooms spewing wind into the air. "It was truly a strange dream."

Number 21, who was sleeping in his hiding place, woke up from a light sleep when he felt a faint sign of someone. She was now a very familiar figure to him.

When I opened the door and went in, I saw a homunculus sitting in a dark room, looking out the window.

"... your majesty."

Seonghwang slowly turned his head.

Now that the cumbersome hood covering the head has been thrown away, the face of the homunculus, completely assimilated with the main body, is clearly revealed. This would be proof that Seonghwang stayed in the body of this doll for quite a long time.

"It is the middle of the night. How did you become a homunculus at a time like this?"

However, what came back to No. 21 was not an answer but an absurd reprimand.

"... Why are you here? "I told Breman not to send you here if possible."

"... ..!"

No. 21 was in tears without even realizing it and listened to the argument.

"Yes, I also heard those instructions."

"if... .."

"But your Majesty's informant is me! No matter how much your Majesty treats me like a child, I am also an informant for Monkey Watchtower who has been given a number! But you didn't let me follow you to Asin, and now you're going to ostracize me even in the north?"

"I wasn't bullying you, Enrique."

"It's number 21! And Your Majesty has clearly neglected me from my mission!"

"... .."

Seonghwang stared at No. 21, who was grinning for a moment. And soon, when he seemed to calm down a little, he opened his mouth in a low voice.

"Enrique. Tomorrow at noon, I plan to change my route and visit one of the bases of the Freedom Underpass."

"... ..!"

Freedom Underpass. Upon hearing those words, No. 21's face hardens horribly.

Seonghwang, who witnessed the dramatic change, let out a small sigh.

"Take a look at one. "You are not ready to meet him yet."

"I am... .."

Number 21 did not have an easy answer.

In the Freedom Underpass, in the base of the Blue Republican Revolutionary Front, there was still a strong connection from childhood that No. 21 did not want to face.

"If you show your face there, he will definitely know you."

"... .."

"What can you do? How about going back to the ecliptic even now?"

"yes?"

"It is enough to have taken care of the group like this. "I think I can lead them on my own from now on."

Number 21 felt his anger, which had barely subsided, welling up again.

He also knew that Seonghwang was considerate of him. I knew that, but there was nothing I could do to be so upset about the untimely suggestion.

"That is none of your concern, Your Majesty. "Other than meeting that guy, it's up to me to decide."

"Enrique."

"It's number 21! And you wonder how you can safely get out of there! "In the Freedom Underpass, there will be only people who want to grind you!"

"... .."

"Isn't that the last homunculus now, other than being bound to Asean? "If you lose that precious doll, what are you going to do from now on, meddling here and there?"

Number 21 threatened in a profane manner that he would not normally dare to attempt.

"So, tomorrow, it would be best for you to calmly receive my escort without any unnecessary interference!"

bang!

As No. 21 nervously closed the door and left, Seonghwang thought with an embarrassed expression.

... It's really not easy to deal with children who are in the prime of their rebellion.

[...] Are you gone?]

[It has disappeared.]

[Right.]

In response to Martha's affirmation, Belinda, who was hiding behind an old tombstone, carefully raised her spirit.

Even after the bright light that had covered the realm of rest for a while disappeared, they were unable to hastily raise their souls for a while.

A light full of pure healing and divinity. It could not help but be extremely threatening to dark(?) souls like themselves.

[Still, there is no need to be so afraid of that light. Because my soul was saved by that person.]

Martha's spirit spoke hesitantly.

[On the day I died, he was the one who personally took my soul and brought it here.]

Belinda also nodded.

[Well, it didn't seem like he wanted to harm the owner that much-]

But their conversation did not continue any further. This is because for a moment, a terrible return enveloped the area of rest.

Keeeeeeee!

The black-robed priest, Hayes, cries out, shedding black tears of blood.

I usually thought of him as a pretty gentle soul, but the more I got to know him, the more dramatic changes I could have imagined.

[Why are you all saying such nonsense! He is the spirit of Seonghwang, the guardian of Delcross and our hated enemy! The kind-hearted master is now being thoroughly deceived by him!]

Then this time Belinda got angry.

[What blasphemous words! The master of the great soul will never fall for anyone's trick!]

Then Hayes glared at Belinda with burning eyes.

[How long have you known that your thing has been serving its master? The master's first servant is, after all, this Haze!]

Kwaaaaang!

Two powerful souls clash fiercely.

The realm of rest that had been immersed in silence was suddenly engulfed in strong vibrations. Fragile corpses flew here and there, and broken tombstones were scattered in all directions.

[Ah, those two, here we go again...]

Martha hid behind a large tombstone and sighed.

438. Secretary of the Immortal (11)

Martha was always powerless in the face of violence. He was quite accustomed to being exposed to absolute violence that he could not fight against with his own strength alone.

People who have experienced complete despair become numb. Martha had no choice but to learn this herself in an unpleasant way during her lifetime.

But here, in the realm of rest, things were different. Every soul could rest as much as it wanted, and while asleep, absolute safety was guaranteed under the protection of its master.

Martha was still insensitive to violence, but this was not a reaction from despair as when she was alive, but from a strong sense of stability. That's why, even when a commotion breaks out that shakes her world, she can remain calm, unlike before.

Whirling-

dump! Fluffy!

Bodies swept away by the explosion fly like fallen leaves. Then, he was violently thrown to the floor along with the broken tombstones.

Ah, rest! Fortunately, those fragile souls were still safe and in a peaceful sleep.

However, if the commotion continues, eventually their rest will be interrupted and they will wake up. It was never a desirable phenomenon for the conflict between the two to continue.

[...] They will soon appear now.]

Martha held her breath and waited for the giant spirit to appear a moment later.

Nowadays, half-hearted souls like Hayes and Belinda are fighting each other, claiming to be superior, but as far as Marta knows, there are truly strong servants of the master. Each one of them has tremendous power comparable to that of a low-level demon lord.

They usually fall into a deep sleep like their owners, but when there is a disturbance in their realm of rest, they return from rest and easily organize the situation.

Like right now.

Wooooooo...

With a bone-piercing sound, a skinny corpse of a giant slowly rises.

The old-fashioned lace wrapped around an arm like a dry old tree had faded to gray, as if to indicate the passage of time. Next, a muslin dress covered in dust and a swarthy face covered in white powder are revealed.

Beneath the rotting flesh here and there, hardened muscles and waxy fat can be seen. A gloomy and horrifying appearance, as if it were the embodiment of death itself.

Sigh.

The giant rolled his dry eyes, looked around for a moment, and then clumped his bony hands together.

Knock-!

At that moment, tremendous pressure came from above and below at the same time.

[...] ... !]

[...] ... !]

Hayes and Belinda's souls were crushed flat. Then he was buried among the broken tombstones and fell into silence. He was unintentionally placed on forced rest.

Perhaps it will take some time for them to wake up. By then, both of them will have cooled off a bit.

[...] I think it's finally become a little quieter.]

Hehehe... ..

With a sound like a huge steel frame collapsing, the giant's body slowly lies back on the floor.

[Leave the fuss over this miserable old woman at least. Perhaps because part of his soul is constantly being summoned somewhere, this old man never feels refreshed even when he sleeps.]

It was a majesty that was far from miserable, but no one could refute those words.

[...]]

Marta, who watched for a moment, whirled her soul and flew in front of the gigantic woman. She was proactive because she was guaranteed absolute safety by her owner.

[Who are you?]

[Hmm?]

[Until now, I have often seen the brave Wolf King and the wise Orc King here. But today is the first time someone like you has woken up.]

Then the giant corpse woman raised her wrinkled eyelids slightly.

[Oh, human! Seeing that your body has been preserved intact, you are most likely a soul that flowed in from the original world! Are you a human from the Delcross dimension?]

[Yes, that's right.]

[It's truly bizarre. Innocent and pure souls like you are extremely rare to find here. Could you please tell me your name?]

Although her tone was old-fashioned, to say the least, her thoughts conveyed deep goodwill toward Martha. It's as if Martha senses a subtle tenderness from her gaze, despite being obscured by her unsightly clouded corneas.

[of course. Great man. My name is Martha.]

[Martha! It's nice to see you like this. This insignificant old man is called Hexenjava.]

Hexenjavat.

As Martha repeated to herself, a bitter sound came from the giant's corpse.

[Unfortunately, my true name could not survive for a long time and crumbled into nothingness like dust. All that remains now is the bloody name that made everyone tremble with fear even after his death.]

[Does this mean Hexenjavat is not your real name?]

[No, no. Something that isn't that pretty doesn't really suit me, does it?]

The corpse seemed to be squinting playfully at Martha, but the darkened eyes only created a more gloomy effect.

[That's why the owner of my soul often calls me 'remorse.' If you don't like that ugly nickname, you can call me that too.]

The woman who had said that far laid her head on the floor and slowly closed her dry eyelids.

[Ah, what a pity. I want to talk more, but I think my meeting with you will end like this. I need to rest again now. I can feel the cruel yet merciful breath of rest approaching my ears.]

[...] ... ?]

Martha looked puzzled and approached the rotting woman's face.

The souls here are free to rest as much as they want. That's what Martha knew until now.

But for some reason, that giant is talking as if he is forced to rest.

[Could you please give me a moment? Tell me about yourself, about this place, and about our master.]

It was only after her death that Martha began to realize for the first time that this passion was latent within her.

[Even though I have escaped the bondage of the flesh, there are still many things I do not know. I've crossed the wall, but there's another wall blocking me. So, I want to learn more things now and overcome my limitations someday.]

Then the giant looked down at Martha with a gentle gaze. What came back was a euphemistic rejection.

[That seems impossible. I am a criminal imprisoned here, and therefore I cannot freely resist the 'rest' that has been sentenced to me.]

[sinner... Is that it?]

Martha was quite taken aback by the unexpected information.

[That's right. I, and the wolf king and orc king you met earlier, are people who committed terrible crimes long ago out of a desire to become immortal.]

[...]]

[So, 'rest' is rest for my soul, but it is also a prison for my sins.]

I could feel the giant's consciousness gradually sinking deeper. Even though she is already a dead body, her soul falls deeper and deeper into death and turns white. Like a huge ghost ship sinking into the deep sea.

As Martha stroked the giant's eyelids, feeling an unknown affection, thoughts, much fainter than the first, came into her mind again.

[But don't worry about me, gentle soul. The merciful rest said that it would save even us. He said there is room for sympathy because our sins are simply due to fear.]

[...] Fear?]

[is it so... ..]

A final thought was conveyed like a sigh from the giant who was slowly falling into sleep.

[That's right. It's fear. How can our souls be so fragile?]

-How can the soul be so fragile?

The image that resembles the body is truly nothing more than an illusion, but at the same time, it exists and is bound by the body as if it had substance.

However, the body cannot serve as a perfect wall for the soul. This is because the body has no choice but to eventually decay, and the soul can never avoid the wounds suffered by the body.

What would it be like if the soul escaped the shackles of the body?

If only we could build a stronger material to surround the soul, a stronger protective shield that surpasses the body. If only I could anchor my soul to that strong fortress, and even more so, completely attune my body to it!

Ah, if only I could do that, having an immortal body would not be a vain dream!

Seongjin, who was roughly turning the pages, looked at the worn-out book cover with a slightly disgruntled expression.

- <Secretary of Dacian >

I couldn't help but laugh. You like the secretary. Since I don't remember seeing it on the list of banned books, it's probably a general miscellaneous book that isn't even properly handled by the Holy Church.

'Why did the status window give me a quest to obtain something like this?'

The reason Seongjin received this book from Owen was because he was very bored. There is a limit to how much a person can meditate. How many days have it been since I was bored in the wagon?

-So, newbie, do you want to read this? No, you can just keep it.

-what? You say it's an important quest item? Why are you giving me this?

-Anyway, it seems like all the recent quests revolve around you. So I think it would be best for you to just keep this.

-?

Still, it was a book taken from the evil wizard's laboratory.

I was hoping that there might be something interesting about it, but this is just a list of nonsense about the composition of the soul and the limitations of the body.

"hmm..."

However, Seongjin closed the book without any regrets for a moment before fiddling with the old cover again.

If you sit on a wobbly cart all day, you will develop an addiction to printing that you never had before.

[What? What is it about?]

In the end, when Seongjin opened the book again, the demon king who was acting as a stand next to him flickered his flames fiercely as if he was curious.

He was probably more frustrated than Seongjin. She can't fly freely and has been stuck in a lamp for days.

Seongjin kindly explained the contents to the boy who could not read.

"I don't know. "If you build a strong wall to protect your soul, you can obtain an immortal body."

[What? Is that real?]

It was clear that 'immortality' was the most interesting topic regardless of time and place. The devil's lamp suddenly comes to life and shines brightly.

[so? How on earth do you build that wall of the soul?]

"To prepare it, it is necessary to first grow special flowers... .."

[flower? A flower?]

"huh. It is said to be a flower that rarely grows naturally in cold regions. After drying it well, grinding it well with sachet of raccoon raccoon, angelica leaves, and a few herbs... .."

[Hmm? Is that the way to build a wall of the soul?]

"That's right. But what comes next is more important. After mixing it well with glue and aging it for 240 days using a special recipe, a very delicious decoction is created... .."

[Umm... ..]

It is visible that the Demon King's interest cools down in an instant. After all, it's rare for the lamp's flame to dim like that.

[That sounds like some kind of nonsense folk remedy, doesn't it? Does it make sense to strengthen your soul by taking decoction?]

"Well, effects aside, it doesn't have any advantages at all. "First of all, it's delicious."

[What do you know! No matter how delicious it is, I don't want to eat a sachet from an animal I don't know!]

"That's right."

As Seongjin was shaking his head, someone cautiously intervened in their conversation.

"Perhaps the contents of that book are not true. "Master, you are prepared."

It was Giacomo Milo.

He was still tied up, but unlike before, he seemed to have regained some of his sanity.

"It's not true? "How do you know that?"

Despite Seongjin's blunt question, he still bowed his head in a humble manner.

"That's right, that secretary is something I personally prepared in exchange for the elixir."

flight. An item that could have almost brought a great disaster to the continent.

Seongjin carefully fumbled with the small medicine bottle he had kept in his pocket for a while.

"This is an old book that was kept in Miloga's library for generations until a deal was made with the wizard of Furiano. So there is no one on this continent who knows that book better than me."

"okay."

Sensing that this might be a slightly sensitive story, Seongjin glanced around to see if there were signs around him.

Fortunately, the driver driving the cart was dozing off, holding the reins loosely. It seems like they completely trust the mule, which has a history of traveling between bases.

Owen is also connected to the Pangea Chronicle to procure food.

And Sir Martha-

"... .."

He was breathing evenly and was truly in a deep sleep.

Of course, it was Seongjin who volunteered to be on guard first, but no matter what, he never thought he would fall asleep so obediently with the prince around.

Suddenly, a sentence I had read casually from the secretary passed through my mind.

-How can the soul be so fragile?

439. Reunion (1)

As he confidently assured, Giacomo Milo had detailed knowledge of 'Dacian's secretary'.

"At first glance, it appears to be a very old book, but that is purely because it was stored incorrectly. "Judging by the quality of the paper and the way it was bound, the secretary must have been published less than 100 years ago."

However, the period in which Dacianus lived dates back almost to the reign of the four great emperors. So there is no way he could have written it himself.

"Dacianus is too famous and has a clear legacy to be dismissed as the author of such a strange secretary. "He who is prepared."

"... okay?"

It may be true that it is famous. I can't quite remember, but it was a name that even Seongjin, who had little common sense in this world, seemed to have heard of from somewhere.

"yes. So, either someone made it up to frame Dacian as a heretic, or it was a fraud by a forgery expert targeting foolish old book collectors."

Giacomo went so far as to criticize the entire Count Milo family as 'stupid old book collectors', but Seongjin still tilted his head with an incredulous expression.

That's because the content of the book was quite consistent for it to be considered moderately made up.

'Besides, this is Owen's quest item, right?'

If so, shouldn't it be seen as having its own value beyond that of a counterfeit product?

"You can't conclude from that alone that this book is fake, Giacomo. It might just be a different author with the same name."

"... yes?"

"Or, in order to preserve Dacian's secretary, someone at a later date may have copied the contents into a new book."

Giacomo Milo then looked up at Seongjin foolishly for a moment, then urgently bowed his head as if he realized something.

"Oh, I see! It was so long ago that you may not know much about it. But at least there is no other author with the same name. After Dacian, no one would have dared to call themselves Dacian in private."

"why?"

"Because that name became the name of a powerful noble family after Dacian's death."

What came out of Giacomo's mouth next was a name that Seongjin was familiar with.

"Dacianus is the progenitor of the Marquis of Daciano. He who is prepared."

"Daciano?"

"yes. At the time, the arrogant Dacian established his family after himself. Daciano is nothing more than the Ortona-like pronunciation of Dacian."

"... ..!"

At that moment, Seongjin clearly remembered where he had heard this familiar name.

One day, when he was drunk on medicinal tea and woke up in some flame level, didn't his father himself kindly explain it to him?

-The current Lord, Berseus, is not a pure-blooded lycanthrope. He is a distant descendant of Dacianus, a lycanthrope who was the ancestor of the Marquis of Daciano a long time ago.

Am I stupid?

why? Why did I only remember that important fact now?

Seongjin was in shock, but Giacomo, who did not notice this, continued his explanation.

"One more thing, there is no way that this seditious book is a manuscript of a work written by Dacian. As it is known to the public, he was a more devout worshiper of the main god than anyone else."

Before the fall of Ortona, the last people to rule the kingdom were members of the Sardinian royal family.

And the beginnings of the Marquis d'Arciano must go back even further into the past than the beginnings of the Sardinian royal family.

At that time, Delcross was in the midst of spreading church power throughout the continent based on military force. After being conquered by Remus, the second Holy Emperor, also known as the 'Bloody Emperor', the kings of Ortona were installed according to the tastes of the Holy Emperor family for generations.

And the same goes for Ortona's vassals. Those who revealed impure intentions toward the empire were completely excluded, and the empty seats were filled by new lords selected through strict religious verification.

Therefore, it is safe to say that it is highly unlikely that Daccianus, the founder of Dacia, was a heretic.

"So when I first got my hands on this book, I guessed: "Maybe it was we, the ancestors of the Milo family, who created this book."

Conspiring against each other and sending them to the Inquisition.

That was once a method of political conflict used more often than territory warfare.

Therefore, this book may also be a forgery created by the Count Milo family in preparation for a conflict with the Marquis d'Arciano.

"But after the Ortona Civil War broke out, my family would not have been able to use this book hastily."

"I guess so."

At this point, the five lords who survived the fall of the country are barely maintaining the balance of power. At this time, imagine that Count Milo sells the Marquis d'Arciano to the empire and is branded a traitor. It was obvious what attitude the other lords would take.

"Above all, the claims made by the author of this book are absurd from beginning to end. You are prepared. Have you by any chance read the entire contents of this book?"

As Seongjin quietly shook his head, Giacomo Milo let out a sigh.

"To give an example of the most ridiculous part of the dog, yes. The author even claims that his knowledge came from another world."

"different... world?"

Seongjin's ears perked up.

Is it because we already know of the existence of another dimension? Somehow, I feel like the credibility of this book has gone up a bit. Of course, Giacomo Milo would not agree to this.

"yes. And there is another part that is the most spectacular."

Perhaps because he was uncomfortable in the position in which he was tied up, he rolled around on the bottom of the wagon and paused for a moment.

"Well, the author who calls himself Dacianus says that he is not a human, but a noble brother of wolves. He says he's a pureblood lycanthrope or something."

"Lycanthrope?"

Startle!

Seongjin, who was carefully handing over the secretary, stopped his hand and raised his head. A lycanthrope claiming to be a lycanthrope is quite sophisticated for a counterfeit product.

Of course, Giacomo Milo did not notice Seongjin's dazed expression.

"yes. Isn't it really funny? "Did he really expect anyone to believe that?"

"... "What is the basis for saying that is not true?"

"Yes, the prepared one. As you know, aren't lycanthropes mindless witches? "They are fundamentally different creatures from humans."

But funny enough, the part that Giacomo Milo found most absurd was what inspired Seongjin to trust this book.

Here, only Seongjin and the Demon King know the truth. as soon as-

'Berseus Dashiano is a half-blood lycanthrope, and his progenitor is a pure-blood lycanthrope. In other words, this book tells the truth, at least in part!'

Owen, who had been connected to Pangea Chronicle for quite some time, stretched out with a very satisfied face. It's a bonus that her pockets have gotten fatter.

"Haha, don't be surprised, newbie. Do you know what I found in the green zone? Oh well, there's a sweet part-time job serving super delicious stew hiding in the corner of the square... .."

But Owen soon trailed off and blinked. It was as if Seongjin was possessed by something, and he was steadily turning over the old book he gave him with great concentration.

'Quest item? I just gave it to you to kill some time, but is it that much fun?'

Owen displayed all the food he had brought on the floor and looked at Seongjin with curious eyes.

The red light that occasionally flickers in the boy's pupils is just the reflected light of the lamp, or... ..

widely!

No matter how much time passed, Seongjin finally succeeded in putting all the contents of the crowded secretary into his head.

'In order to build a strong wall of the soul, Dacian said that it was necessary to cultivate special flowers. A rare flower that only grows in cold regions.'

It was still a list of floating stories.

But is it because I found a clue? Naturally, previous memories are combined with the contents of the secretary and are gradually organized in Seongjin's mind.

One day, I was stranded in the snowy fields of Sigismund Range. Lycanthrope, who had lost his mind and wandered around the demon world for a long time, said this with tears in his eyes.

-I was aware of the fact that the moment I reached the demonic state, the minds of my compatriots would definitely become clouded.

-It is a blue flower that emits a scent that paralyzes reason. It has been growing wild in the depths of the Demon World for a long time. That is why this place has been used as a prison for the compatriots since ancient times.

It was said that Vajra, the leader of the lycanthropes, was tricked by the cunning Berseus into entering the Demon Realm.

-But when we arrived, for some reason, those blue flowers were in bloom all over the forest. The entire center of the Demon World has become a [flower garden] filled with drugs!

And Louise.

After that day, the mixed-race lycanthrope girl, who left somewhere, also left these solemn words to Seongjin for the last time.

-I must confirm the reality of the [Painter] with my own eyes.

The more I thought about it, the more parts that matched the secretary's content. Seongjin looked down at the old book again.

'These absurd bullshit... 'It's all real?'

Is it really Dacianus, the founder of the Marquis of Daciano, who created the flower garden where precious flowers were grown deep in the dark?

And just by grinding and drinking that flower consistently, you can build up the wall of your soul and become immortal? really?

"her..."

As I looked up at the dark sky in bewilderment, a small fish cake was thrust into my mouth.

Yum Yum.

Seongjin thought as he unconsciously took the fish cake and ate it.

'I remember the idea of grinding it and drinking it, but somehow it feels like it has similar benefits to medicinal tea.'

As the sweet and salty seasoned food arrived, my mind began to spin for the first time in a while.

'Near the Sigismund Territory, where tea made from ground Loperum eggs was distributed, there happened to be a flower garden cultivated by Dacianus?'

This absolutely can't be a coincidence.

Moreover, Dacian's explanation of 'flower' was somewhat familiar.

Until now, many people have given their own names to this precious blue flower.

Pale rest, blue jewel of eternity, cradle of noble queens...

However, it is by far the most widely known name.

Deleria.

Blue deleria flower.

Seongjin also knew this name. The only thing he knew was Deleria, which was not a flower but the name of an otherworldly butterfly.

'But are Deleria's butterflies and Deleria's flowers really separate?'

Yum Yum.

Seongjin slightly furrowed his eyebrows as he took the soft piece of bread that approached his mouth again.

okay. It can't be a coincidence that those two have the same name. Besides, Logan did that too, right? While subjugating the sea beasts, I think I saw Deleria's blue butterfly in the black forest near the Demonic Land.

'That's not the only thing we have in common.'

Deleria, and Loperum eggs.

When the Gray Plague was rampant in the ecliptic, the Demon King told this story while explaining the life history of Loperum.

-that's right. What Loperum imitates is the smell of Deleria's eggs. It would be true to say that monsters are attracted like drugs.

So there was clearly a strange connection between the two. Dacius' herbal medicine and Sigismund's medicinal tea.

Yum Yum.

Seongjin made a decision as he gulp down the cooled stew.

'I guess it won't work! Rather than quietly returning to Regina like this, I need to find the distribution route for the Penitent Church's medicine cart right now!'

In all likelihood, they would have used the Freedom Underpass as a base. If so, the medicinal tea may be gradually spreading to these bases as well.

'First, I have to find one more base that is closest!'

There was a promise with Giovanni not to invade their stronghold as much as possible, but it was no longer important after seeing Dacian's secretary.

If Seongjin's guess is true.

Then, the true purpose of the medicine cart and the Gray Plague is...

Seongjin, who suddenly stood up in a hurry, almost collided head-on with Owen, who was approaching closely.

"Huh?!"

"... huh?"

Only then does my concentration break, and the surrounding scenery comes into view one by one.

The floor of the cart was littered with various foods, and Owen was holding a spoon in a hesitant posture.

"What are you doing?"

"... .."

"Why is the bottom of the carriage like this?"

"Uh, that's it... .."

Why is this guy so stuttering again?

Seongjin, who had been waiting for a while, couldn't hear Owen's excuses in the end and shook his head.

"If you're going to eat something, eat it neatly. What is this all about?
"Such a rude guy."

"... .."

Leaving behind a somewhat sullen Owen, Seongjin shouted loudly at the dozing coachman.

"hey! hey! How long is she going to drive the carriage and pretend not to know? How many days has this been going on? We're starting to get hungry! know?"

Actually, I felt strangely full, but that wasn't the important thing.

Seongjin had to immediately check the status of the Jayu Underpass base with his own eyes.

"If it's a special delivery or something, stop hitting me! Please send us to the nearest village right now! hurry!"

440. Reunion (2)

At Seongjin's sudden shout, the coachman, who was suddenly struck by lightning while sleeping, was startled and pulled the reins.

Shake!

As the carriage shakes violently and stops, Sir Martha, who was sleeping in the corner, suddenly opens his eyes.

"Why are you making such a fuss all of a sudden? Kid. "Just one more day and we'll reach Regina!"

The coachman, who soon realized the situation, harshly criticized Seongjin. Although he spoke impeccably, his speech had a thick Ortona-like accent.

"I should have delivered it by now. "We are going to eat, so please send us to the village."

"This little boy... ..!"

The coachman looked embarrassed at the sudden flock.

"That can't be said. Every express delivery service has its own policy. So, once you entrust yourself to the free underpass, follow the usage rules until the end!"

"No matter how 'special delivery' is, it has to be done to the extent possible. How many days have you been starving us? "If you treat people like luggage, you don't really think of them as burdens, do you?"

"I was starving... ? "No, are you serious about that?"

The coachman glanced sideways at Seongjin's feet with a puzzled expression on his face. There were traces of snacks scattered all over the floor of the wagon that couldn't be hidden.

But Seongjin lifted his chin with a shameless look on his face.

"Is that really your way? Are you protecting the organization's secrets by secretly starving outsiders to death?"

"Say something that makes sense! Starvation? From the looks of it, you and your group are still in good spirits, right?"

"what? So, the meals that are currently being provided to others were only given to us, right?"

"No, that kind of unreasonableness... ..!"

My luggage, which had been quiet up to now, suddenly became a very serious issue as to what was wrong with it. The coachman was so dumbfounded that he couldn't respond properly and just muttered.

Then Masain, who was staring blankly at their scuffle, asked Owen.

"Sir, what is happening all of a sudden?"

But the answer I got back was not very encouraging.

"Mores is very hungry, brother. I said I would work hard to feed myself... .."

"... yes?"

"Well listen, brother. I went and did all the daily quests that I normally wouldn't do, right? I thought that by working like that, I was able to eat at least one more. I did... .."

Masain could not ask him any more questions. Because she noticed that Owen seemed more discouraged than ever. The chicken's fur, drooping from the night dew, is so pitiful.

Meanwhile, Seongjin's fierce harassment continued. The way she cries out at every word her coachman says is quite obnoxious.

In the end, the coachman could not bear it anymore and quietly changed the point.

"Wasn't this all already discussed in advance? "I understand you already made a pact with Giovanni that you will never delve into other nearby bases?"

Seongjin snorted inwardly.

I didn't think he would have entrusted the express delivery to just anyone, but this coachman was also informed about the details of the transaction with Giovanni. This probably means that it is not a simple terminal transport method.

'Then he would have been ordered to keep an eye on us. Since you will need to prepare for unexpected situations, it is highly likely that you will be in a position where you can exercise your own discretion during the transportation process.'

Also, there is a high possibility that the assassins who have been following us since we parted ways with Giovanni are now under this man's control.

After thinking that far, Seongjin calmed down his voice and tried to appease the coachman.

"hey. I'm not saying I'm going to break my promise. You're not asking us to go to another base, are you? "I will take care of the food myself, so is it really such a difficult request to just drop you off at a nearby village?"

"No, but... ..!"

"As far as I know, there is a small village near here called Tere."

"... .."

"It's a town with at least a small population and even runs a decent inn. I know it well because I have stopped by there before while traveling to and from the North. So, I'm going there this time too."

Seongjin pretended not to notice, but the coachman's face showed a complex look of agony.

Why not? No matter how secretly they operate their bases, if you think about it a little, there are places where they are bound to be discovered.

If there is only one village where people live together in a sparsely populated place, that place is bound to be the base of the Freedom Underpass. However, saying that it is not possible to do so is no different from confessing the location of the base with one's own mouth.

But the coachman's worries did not last long.

Seongjin's group was currently in a special position in many ways. From the perspective of the Blue Republican Revolutionary Front, the high-ranking members of the empire are extremely uncomfortable.

In addition to this, they also have troublesome demonic contractors who never know when erosion will occur. They probably want to quickly get Seongjin and his group out of the Jayu Underpass.

That's why they go to great lengths to provide super express delivery. Although they do take shifts occasionally, it must be difficult for them to drive the carriage non-stop.

"i get it. "Then the special delivery ends here."

In the end, the coachman sighed heavily as if he was surrendering.

"You can get off, kid. I won't tell Giovanni. "Don't forget to keep the secrets of the bases strictly secret, and don't forget to take care of that damn demon contractor."

But after making such a difficult decision, the boy, after hearing that, flopped down on the floor of the carriage and leaned back comfortably!

Seongjin tilted his chin at the embarrassed coachman.

"Why are we getting off here? "Give me a ride to town."

"... what?"

"Why are you greeting me so casually as if you will let me go? "Even though you dropped us off anyway, didn't you try to secretly follow us for surveillance?"

The coachman's jaw dropped in shock, but Seongjin's attitude as he stared at him was extremely confident.

"So let's not waste each other's energy. If you're going anyway, take us with you. hurry."

"... .."

"what? why? what? "Did I say something wrong?"

The coachman's gaze became increasingly gloomy, but Seongjin ignored him and hugged the demon king's warm lamp.

On the other hand, there were also people who decided to walk, leaving behind an intact carriage. Number 21 changed its original plan to head to Regina and decided to head north with the success.

"It would be better to walk from now on. If you drive around with a wagon like this when the harvest is over, it will be very noticeable. "Our group is not at the top by anyone's standards."

Fortunately, there was no significant backlash.

One of the party members is a Barca barbarian who cannot understand what is being said, and the other is a woman who has no thoughts at all. There is no need to say that the Homunculus, who contains the soul of the Holy Emperor, is the culprit of this incident.

Before completely leaving the canyon, No. 21 carefully hid the wagon at the canyon entrance. Then he took out a small silent flute from his pocket and played it. This is to give a signal to fellow informants to take over the carriage.

"Oh, it's noisy. "It's deafening!"

Of course, in rare cases, some people can detect this sound if they have trained to enhance their hearing as an Auror. Number 21 looked back at Edith with a puzzled face.

"Can you hear this? "It's probably not a range that people can hear well."

"I know. I used it a lot while hunting in the mountains a long time ago. "When the wyverns hear this, they get really freaked out."

"... .."

Number 21 took a closer look at this strange woman. I knew only briefly that she was the 3rd prince's maid, but despite her pretty appearance, her actions were extremely cruel. Plus, she's a stronger Auror user than expected, and she even goes hunting? She has no idea what it is.

But Edith, perhaps aware of his complicated mind, handed him a small bundle of handkerchiefs with an innocent look on her face. Whatever it was wrapped in, it was an unpleasant object oozing red water.

"... What is this?"

This is a woman who once slaughtered horse meat with her bare hands. As I frowned at her instinctive reluctance, Edith smiled her innocent smile.

"Ink strawberries. Oh, don't get me wrong. It gets its name because the juice is so thick, but you can't really make ink with it. "You can eat it."

"I know. "I wasn't asking that now."

When I heard it, it seemed like the dripping red water smelled quite sweet.

"Where did this suddenly come from?"

"Oh, I went to pick up firewood earlier and picked it from the bush? Since there were only a few, I swept them all up. "It's rare for ink strawberries to survive this season, but we were lucky."

Edith added, rubbing her red-stained fingers roughly against the hem of her skirt.

"This is something I really like, and I'll give it to you especially to Mr. 21 as a reward for helping us."

"... .."

Looking at that messy sight made me lose my appetite, but I couldn't turn down such pure kindness. In the end, No. 21 carefully accepted the package of handkerchiefs with a nervous expression on her face.

"Okay then, let's go now."

Anyway, there was no time to sit around anymore. We had to hurry now to get to 'Tere', the base of the Freedom Underpass, before the sun sets.

After checking his disguise one last time, No. 21 held out his hand towards the prosperous homunculus.

"Priest Bart. You may be feeling more unwell than usual, so please come this way. "I will carry you on my back."

But Seonghwang seemed to be staring at his hand for a moment, then slowly shook his head.

"It is done. "I will borrow the author's hand."

Then, he whispers something to Barshain and actually jumps on his back!

Number 21 could not hide his absurdity.

"lung... Priest?!"

I guessed that he probably made some kind of threat in Warsaw. It's not that he wasn't, but Barshain, who was carrying him, had a look of disgust on his face.

At this rate, I didn't know when the author would throw away the success and run away, so Issue 21 became extremely anxious.

"Didn't I say I would help you? "Why are you doing this?"

"Don't you have many things to worry about besides me? "I also need to share the work appropriately."

"No, what's so difficult about carrying a homunculus..." ... "

Number 21, who was mumbling like that, suddenly made a straight face.

for a moment. Are you sure you don't trust me that much? Even better than barbarians like them who can't even speak the language? yes? Is that so?

As No. 21's expression became increasingly grim, Seonghwang realized what he was thinking and hurriedly explained.

"It's a misunderstanding. "It's not like that, Enrique."

"Then what is it!"

"It's all for the safety of Barcelona. "If you don't serve me with all your heart, it will probably be difficult for you to receive the children's forgiveness for a while."

"Forgiveness... yo. this?"

"okay. I'm a little worried about what might happen later. Still, it wasn't Lee Ja's original intention, so didn't you feel sorry for him?"

"... .."

It was an extremely poor explanation, but it seemed like No. 21 could somehow understand what he said.

How much harm did that barbarian inflict on the Emperor? When he first saw the priest's clothes soaked in blood, he almost had his head blown off. Number 21, who thought for a moment, eventually sighed and nodded his head.

Thus, the strange group of assassins, homunculi, palace maids, and Varsha barbarians began trudging toward the northeast.

Trudging.

Number 21 took the lead and guided the group, but was unable to focus on the guard because he was worried about the Holy Emperor and the barbarians. A savage who never knows when an accident will happen, and a homunculus who is always anxious because he doesn't know where something will break. With so many things to worry about, I suddenly felt like the package I was holding in my hand was annoying.

However, you can't throw away the food you received. Finally, No. 21 unfolded her handkerchief and picked up a red strawberry.

"... .."

But at that moment, Seonghwang tilts his head to the side and looks at Enrique.

Although his face was completely covered by a thick hood, No. 21 could instinctively know that his gaze briefly touched the hand holding the strawberry.

"... "You'd better stop, Enrique."

"yes?"

"The flame image created by that maid is stronger than I thought. "Maybe that strawberry couldn't escape the effects of the flame barrier."

But unfortunately, it was only when No. 21 put one of the ink strawberries in his mouth that he realized what that meant.

"... .. ?!"

An intense bitter taste that cruelly assaults the tongue and eventually shakes the brain!

"Wow!"

Number 21 quickly spit out an ink strawberry. It was truly shocking and terrifying.

'How can a healthy strawberry taste like bile?'

The only consolation is that Edith, the culprit behind this incident, was also horrified and spat out the strawberry. Wiping her messy mouth with her sleeve, she looked at her number 21 with a dumbfounded look on her face.

"what? That's strange. Did it go bad because it was past harvest time? There's no way strawberries could taste like this... .."

Of course, No. 21 and Edith did not realize the existence of the soul terminal that was circling around them and fussing noisily.

[Good luck dad! Quick, quick, tell that barbarian to try that too! Yes?]

[Dad, Your Majesty! If you just do it quickly, there's nothing that can't be done with a little help!]

[Of course, this is separate from Mores getting angry!]

[Of course, Mores will never accept it like this!]

[no! We don't need to forgive either!]

[of course! Let's celebrate the blood festival together!]

Seonghwang sighed softly and slowly closed his eyes.

441. Reunion (3)

From then on, under No. 21's leadership, the group's journey continued without much trouble.

?Hi! Look at this! W, woman! man! Ichi isn't breathing again! This person is truly an evil spirit from hell!

Of course, when Seonghwang left for a moment to attend a political meeting, the surprised Barca Barbarians turned pale and caused a brief uproar -

-Yuck! What on earth is this damn beef jerky? Mr. 21! Surely this isn't revenge for the ink strawberry from earlier?

There were minor incidents, such as having a quick bite to eat while walking and Edith spitting out all the bile-flavored beef jerky.

But other than that, it was a relatively peaceful and smooth journey. Basically, everyone has physical strength, and they are also Auror users who never get tired.

So the group crossed the wasteland at high speed. Although Edith, who was starving, occasionally quenched her appetite and watched No. 21's thoughts. Naturally, No. 21 became concerned about her flame barrier.

'That bitter taste. His Majesty definitely said it was because of the flame barrier created by that maid.'

It was still a relatively unfamiliar concept, but fortunately No. 21 had some knowledge about the flame barrier.

Why not? Wasn't he the first disciple who received many unexpected teachings from the Holy Emperor when he was just coming of age?

-Enrique. In order to control the power given to you, you must first understand the basic principles by which the world you belong to operates.

-What kind of principles are these? Don't other people know about that? Bart. Isn't that too grandiose?

-Everyone is just overlooking its importance. Listen, Enrique. If you establish your intention on the great void, it will soon become a firm intention, and all Aurors will move according to this intention and naturally reach materialization...

-No, Bart. I asked about basic Auror training. Can't you just teach me how to use an auror?

-... What did you hear about what I explained so far?

... Looking back, it wasn't a very helpful class.

Anyway, after carefully reflecting on the previous situations, No. 21 concluded that some kind of flame barrier existed within a certain range based on Edith's hand. There was no problem when eating using proper utensils.

'Is it ultimately caused by holding it with your own hands?'

After some deliberation, No. 21 obtained a long wooden skewer and threaded pieces of beef jerky onto it. Then he carefully placed it in Edith's hands.

"hmm... uh? "Does this taste good?"

Fortunately, it doesn't seem to taste like bile this time. Edith, who was relieved, soon excitedly started eating the pieces of jerky one by one.

The group arrived at Tere Village at sunset, a little earlier than expected.

"Everyone, take note."

Stopping on a hill overlooking the village, No. 21 looked back at the group with a serious expression and gave them a warning.

"Tere is one of the few bases of the Free Underpass that is well-known to the public. So, there are a few things travelers need to be aware of in order to pass by safely. first-"

"But Mr. 21. "What is the Freedom Underpass?"

Edith, oblivious, raises her hand and asks. She wanted to ignore Number 21, but unfortunately she was the only one in her group who would listen to this explanation.

"... Simply put, it means that it is a place where people who have a strong antipathy toward the Empire gather."

"aha!"

Edith, whose eyes were shining brightly, once again made a puzzled expression as to what she was thinking.

"hmm? However, when I visited Sigismund Territory with His Majesty Mores, there were no such precautions? "There is only one village with an inn around here, so the Wolf Knights also stay at Tere every time they go to the imperial capital."

"... That's because people in Tere are also selective about who they start a fight with."

"aha!"

"Then what I'm saying from now on is-"

"huh? But No. 21. "I hate to say it myself, but aren't we a bit strong enough to let others start a fight?"

This time, Edith, who was interrupted mid-sentence, straightened her back while raising the huge warhammer.

"... .."

No. 21 became extremely tired. This is just a brief encounter, so how on earth does Prince Mores manage to use that woman as his personal maid?

"High-ranking nobles and knights are fine. I know very well that if I touch it, I am afraid of repercussions. A somewhat sized top is also fine. "If there is no upper level that comes and goes from time to time, it is obvious what kind of mess the Northern economy will be in."

No. 21, who had said so far, strongly added to Edith, whose lips were quivering again.

"But it is different for unaffiliated peddlers, wanderers, or simple travelers like us. No matter how strong an individual is, there are no exceptions. Do you understand?"

"hmm? But No. 21-"

"ah. city. I see. Wet. you. peel?"

"... yes."

When Edith, overwhelmed by the force, closed her mouth shakily, No. 21 let out a long sigh that she had been holding in.

"Then listen carefully. First, do not easily reveal your superiority as an imperial citizen in front of others. "You must not make unfounded boasts or ignore the lifestyle habits and practices of the Ortona people."

It was a natural precaution. This is because most of them are from Ortona, who have a strong sense of deprivation from the empire.

It is best to be as inconspicuous as possible, and even if you are discovered to be an Imperial, you must show respect for them.

"Second, please do not praise His Majesty, the Most High of Delcross, or make any comments in defense of Him."

Many in the north believe that the fall of Ortona is the fault of the empire. Of course, when they gather together, it is common for them to slander the current success with a high degree of intensity.

At this time, if you try to confront them with unnecessary loyalty, you are likely to turn the entire village into an enemy in an instant. If you do it wrong, you could be assaulted or even lose your life.

"Third, if possible, do not show any religious behavior. "You should not carelessly seek the Lord or pray to him."

Faith in God itself is not a problem. The North has also believed in the main god for a long time.

However, the problem was that many of those using the free underpass were members of heretical sects, or dark denominations.

It's better if you don't show faith. However, if it is discovered that you are a devout member of the Orthodox Church, you may be eliminated without even a rat or bird knowing by a dark religious sect that comes from somewhere.

"Oh, I have a lot to protect. "I already forgot the first precaution, and I don't know if I can do it well, Mr. 21."

"Then just keep your mouth shut. Then everything will be resolved."

"aha!"

After completing the preparations in advance, the group cautiously entered Tere Village.

"... .. ?"

However, not long after entering the village entrance, No. 21 sensed a strange atmosphere that was different from usual. The atmosphere of the village, which had always been depressed like other areas in the north, was strangely light and excited today.

I looked around in confusion-

Cry!

Children dressed in shabby clothes run somewhere with bright smiles on their faces.

"Let's go! "Just by hearing the explanation, they said it would be a fire show!"

"I saw it earlier! "It's really a magic trick where fire just flies in the air!"

"wow! amazing!"

... Fire show?

Although he was puzzled for a moment, No. 21 gathered his group and headed towards the only inn in the village.

But it was a strange thing. As we get closer to the inn, the number of people around us increases.

When they eventually arrived in front of the inn, the group was dumbfounded to find the crowd so dense that they could not see the entrance. For some reason, it seemed like all the villagers who could move were gathered here.

"... "Enrique."

At that time, the prosperous homunculus suddenly raised his head.

"painting... Priest? "Are you awake?"

"There is no time to explain. First, stop that maid."

"yes?"

Before No. 21 could even understand the meaning of the warning-

"What? Lowering?!"

Edith, discovering something, raises her head and quickly runs out of the crowd. Number 21 was startled and hurriedly grabbed her arm.

"Mr. Edith! for a moment... ... !"

And at that moment, I also found number 21.

A neat-looking boy standing triumphantly in the very center of the crowd.

"... .. ?!"

Number 21 couldn't believe his eyes.

'Mores... 'Prince?'

How could that possibly be the case?

No, but no matter how much I looked, the boy was definitely Prince Mores. Although he was wearing shabby clothes and covered in black soot, it was still not enough to hide the boy's innate character and dignity.

"Mr. 21. Let us do it! "What on earth are you doing over there now?"

"Shh! "It looks like you're hiding your identity!"

Stopping Edith from running out at any moment, No. 21 quickly grasped the surrounding situation.

A small stall is placed at the entrance of the inn, and a boy stands in front of it with his arms raised wide and confident.

With a small, spinning flame on his head like a halo, the prince shouted loudly to the audience.

"This is not a car that comes every day!"

"... .. !"

"A medicine car! How long are you going to drink that old-fashioned drink? Now, here is teosinte tea, which has far superior taste and effectiveness, and is even cheaper!"

... Promotion?

The moment he realized the truth of this situation, No. 21 became distraught. Why on earth is the prince of the Holy Empire setting up a stall in a place like this?

No, it's not even a proper promotion. Now the prince was breaking all the taboos that No. 21 thought were taboos.

"Nowadays, in the imperial capital, no one drinks baseless drinks like medicinal tea! because! Because Delcross now has the mysterious crop, Teosinte! "This teosinte will even be exported to Brittany soon!"

The prince was now freely revealing his belonging to the imperial capital, and was gleefully criticizing the lifestyle habits of the northerners.

"A popular product loved all over the continent! Teosinte! This is the very taste that was approved by His Majesty Seonghwang, the representative of the Lord! By the way, our great majesty is a gourmet! "To match his dignity, he has a very short mouth!"

They were even openly exalting his success and praising his authority - more precisely, his authority as a gourmet.

"ruler! Look at this golden, brilliant drink of God! The true grace of God bestowed upon the continent! Teosinte! If you drink just this, you will be no less than a wealthy imperial noble! "Once you taste it, you won't remember anything about shabby medicinal tea!"

I am praising God's grace with all my might.

It was a total disaster.

'... 'What on earth is the prince doing now?'

Number 21, who was in extreme confusion, was unable to properly understand the situation even after looking at it with his own eyes.

The good news is that people are looking at the prince with interest instead of getting angry.

Creak.

No. 21's head slowly turns to face Priest Bart, who is riding on the barbarian's back. To the only person who can explain the current situation.

"... .."

Seonghwang looked at the scene in front of him in silence for a moment and then sighed softly. Then he stretched out both his hands and firmly clamped Bartoza's mouth shut.

Number 21 was puzzled, but after a while, he was able to understand the reason.

"Growing up in the warm geothermal heat of Anatolia, Teosinte brings strong heat to the body! This miraculous drink even converted the barbarians of Barça into an empire!"

With Prince Mores' confident shout -

A tall Barça warrior appeared with his feathers fluttering. It was Owen who looked shabbier than usual.

"I request an upward adjustment of compensation from Sang Tae-chang!"

As he shouted in an unknown language, the agitation among the gathered villagers became stronger.

Murmur.

"It's Warsaw, right?"

"Hey! "Really, Barshain converted?"

"That's amazing."

At that moment, a spark flew into Bartoza's eyes when he saw Owen's appearance.

"Owe... Ugh! town!"

Fortunately, No. 21, who had heard the warning in advance, was able to quickly stop Barshain before he shouted loudly.

Meanwhile, Owen's show was still going on.

Continue-

Owen takes a sip of the clear grain tea and cheers loudly.

"Ugh! Praying for an urgent quest grade increase! Ah!"

Bye! Sigh!

The wooden planks that Lord Martha was holding high were broken helplessly by Owen's punch.

Oooh-!

Simple exclamations of exclamation erupted from everywhere.

Without missing that moment, Prince Mores took a step forward again. He still had a brightly shining flame on his head.

"Now I will give everyone a chance to experience the benefits of teosinte! "There are a lot of them here, so everyone take a sip!"

Then again Sir Massain handed out several large bowls to the people. It was as if he would be liberated at any moment.

The villagers seemed to be possessed by something and drank the drinks eagerly.

"ruler! A drink that amazes the continent, excites Brittany, and astonishes Rohan! Teosinte! There is a reason for many people's choices! "Let's try this drink and enjoy ultimate health and happiness!"

With a voice that strangely penetrates deep into my heart -

Fluffy!

In the boy's high-raised hand, a bright golden drink oscillated appetizingly.

442. Reunion (4)

Dacian explained it this way:

The effects of Blue Deleria are so powerful that, if done incorrectly, it can become a terrible poison that completely separates the soul from reality.

So, after a long period of research, he came up with a decoction with as few side effects as possible. Of course, the effectiveness of Deleria will be reduced accordingly, but it is said that if you take it consistently for a long time and put in sincerity, you will be able to build a strong wall of your soul.

'But Deleria is a precious ingredient. Didn't Dacian also say that he created a secret flower garden and monopolized the flowers?'

There, Seongjin made a slight leap in his thinking.

The period in which Dacian, the progenitor of the marquis, was active dates back hundreds of years. If so, the knowledge he spread may also have been shared with someone and spread secretly.

And in order to achieve their dream of immortality, they must have been looking for something to replace Deleria. For example, Loperum eggs, which have a similar scent to Deleria.

'In other words, Loperum eggs were used as lower-level ingredients for Deleria!'

If so, it is possible to guess to some extent what the 'wall' of the soul that Dacian was talking about was.

The most comfortable place for the soul to dwell.

as soon as-

'Flame decision!'

The medicinal tea showed the effect of extremely activating Seongjin's flame crystals. In other words, Loperum eggs are a well-founded substitute.

Like Dacian's decoction, if the medicinal tea is taken over a long period of time, proper flame crystals may be formed one day.

'But it would have taken an unexpectedly long time. So there may have been some who tried to achieve a more radical effect.'

It can be assumed that they probably experimented with planting Loperum eggs, the main ingredient, directly into humans. The gray plague patients that suddenly appeared all over the place were probably all side effects of this experiment.

Of course, after Archbishop Wesker arbitrarily activated the [Temporary Emergency Measures], the momentum was lost.

It is still unknown who the radical forces that spread the gray plague are. However, at least Seongjin had an accurate understanding of the forces that supplied medicinal tea through the 'traditional' method.

'In the end, is the Penitent Church the one that started all of this?'

I heard this once while interrogating Belinda. Medicine tea. So, Loperum, the ingredient of the 'awakening tea' they say, is a treasure distributed directly by the Archbishop of Penitence.

And at that time, Belinda said this.

-The awakening car is ultimately given to save all humans! The reason we are willing to share it with you apostates even at the expense of it is because it is the will of the Lord who wants humans on all continents to awaken spiritually!

In other words, it is possible that medicinal tea was already secretly consumed throughout the northern part of the country for a long time, even before it spread to the Sigismund Territory.

'And it is highly likely that the centers will be the bases of the Free Underpass used by the Dark Church.'

So, Seongjin suddenly changed the route of the 'special delivery' carriage, leading a flock of people.

I was planning to check it out with my own eyes. Currently, he has an ability that can be called [spiritual eye], even though it is imperfect.

And just in case, if only we could really check the mind-boggling decisions being made in people's heads!

[Well, guess what...]

After hearing Seongjin's explanation, the Demon King reacted a little skeptically.

[I also traveled with you before, right? If there was someone with a flame crystal, I would definitely be able to recognize it.]

"But our group only stayed at the inn for a while, right?"

What are the chances of actually encountering village natives near the inn with frequent traffic at the top?

Therefore, we had to identify people who had lived in the base village for a long time and had taken medicinal tea for a long period of time.

[But... Even if you find a flame crystal like you said, it's a problem.]

The Demon King moves and sits in the center of the lamp.

[You can't present something that only you and I can see to people as evidence, right? If you want to prevent the distribution of medicinal tea, you will probably have to find another way.]

"hmm. But..."

While I was sitting on the wagon and thinking about it, the day had dawned and a distant dawn was appearing on the horizon.

"I can see Tere. Lowering."

Just as Lord Masaine said, the view of a small village began to appear in the distance.

* * *

The group got off the 'special delivery' carriage and arrived safely at Tere's inn.

"Is this the end? "You're letting us go so obediently?"

Owen asked, glancing back at the coachman. It wasn't that it wasn't, the coachman was still glaring in this direction and showing off her discomfort to her heart's content.

"no. "You won't stop watching until we get to Regina, right?"

"what? "So what do we do now?"

"What about what? Just monitoring. "You can't harm us outright."

Although he reassured Owen, Seongjin also felt uncomfortable inside.

'It must be a bit of a hassle to move around under their surveillance, right?'

Anyway, let's think about it after finding a stable place to stay. Seongjin decided to do so and asked the innkeeper for the three best rooms.

"There are three people in your group? Then just one big room would be enough."

The innkeeper frowned at the group's shabby appearance and responded. Of course, when Seongjin took out a pocket full of money, his expression immediately changed.

"No, I really need three."

"I can give you up to two. Of course, you'll have to pay a little more."

"three. "You pay three times the price for the other room."

"Sure."

Seongjin asked, dropping a gold coin onto the owner's palm.

"The inn is crowded. "Are there that many people who want to stay in this town?"

I definitely felt like the village was noticeably busier than when I was traveling to and from Sigismund Range in the past.

Then the owner, who was secretly biting into a gold coin, answered with an awkward smile.

"That's right. Recently, there has been a noticeable increase in the number of small merchants or individual peddlers. Have you ever heard of the name 'Bertrand & Lee'?"

"know. This is a very good business that does business conscientiously. "The financial structure is also strong."

"... I'm not sure about that. Anyway, I thought they came and went often, and the number of individual peddlers gradually increased. From what I heard, they say they are doing some business with peddlers in Delcross."

"Right."

Seongjin nodded, glanced at the people carrying large luggage, and stood up.

The room they decided to stay in was on the third floor.

"Lowering. Isn't it too shabby for you to stay in? "Why don't we go back to Regina right now?"

Sir Masaine looked around the room and asked, looking a little uncomfortable.

"are you okay. I won't be here long. Lord Masaine."

"Is that so."

"huh. "Then I'll take a look around, and Sir Masaine can rest here for a while."

Then, of course, Sir Martha looked very dissatisfied.

But what was strange was that he, who should have protested that he would follow right away, collapsed on the bed obediently to Seongjin's orders. Of course, Sir Masain himself looked puzzled for a moment as if he did not understand his actions.

"... hmm?"

Owen also seemed to feel a strange awkwardness in his actions.

'It's a newbie. Why has my brother been acting like that since yesterday? 'Isn't it a bit strange than usual?'

'... ... '

Of course, there were no guesses at all.

-Forget everything and just sleep, Sir Masaine. When you open your eyes later, you will forget all the bad things that bothered you.

-Now, you just have to follow what I say. Then everything will be resolved.

After coming out of Furiano's sewers, Sir Masaine was very anxious, and Seongjin had comforted him with such words several times.

However, when I heard it from the Demon King later, those words filled with strong will would have acted as a kind of restraint or curse to Sir Martha?

'Of course, my father came here for a while, so my condition got much better.'

However, unlike his original personality, he still feels like he is strangely obedient.

It feels like it's not aligned and it's creaky somewhere. Seongjin tried to ignore the discomfort that touched his nerves as soon as he could forget it, and made a request to Owen.

"I'm going to the next room. "You can rest here and keep an eye on Lord Masaine."

"ok?"

Owen looked confused. He seems to be torn as to whether he should stay by the side of the escort driver whose condition is very unstable, or follow the newbie who still looks young.

But his wanderings ended sooner than expected.

"Oh, it's an emergency quest!"

"What are you saying?"

"just... They tell me to do what needs to be done? what's this?"

Owen sat down in his chair with a shocked expression.

"Seeing as the instructions are short and vague, I guess they're saying just do as you say? Strangely, Sang Sang-chang is so reluctant to do anything related to you."

"... .."

"But the reward is too much! Unbelievable! It's an urgent quest in name, but the grade is F and the reward is only 5 cash! "Is this true?"

Don't you think you'll be rewarded as long as you rest as I say? What more do you want from there?

"Goes."

"Ah, yes. It's a newbie. Still, you have to stay inside the inn. Understand? "Don't go out and wander around alone-"

widely!

Seongjin left the room, leaving Owen behind with endless nagging.

As I calmly gathered my wits and looked around, sure enough, I felt the presence of the assassins who had been pursuing me from the wasteland, one by one, settling down on the roof of the inn.

At this point, I start to worry about Dasha, who is following me from afar.

'How many days has this been going on? Dasha needs to have some time to rest.'

From the time he met Giovanni, Seongjin could not sense her presence at all. I guess she may have stayed a little far away to avoid the attention of the assassins watching her group.

Of course, since Seongjin knew Dasha's outstanding skills better than anyone else, he was not worried that there would be a problem with her life.

But that doesn't change the fact that you have to move constantly, unable to rest for days on end.

'I have to finish this job quickly and go back to Regina. But by what means?'

Holding the Devil's Lamp in one hand, Seongjin walked slowly down the hallway and thought.

'You can sneak around if you use Auror cloaking. But it would take too much time if I went out and investigated it myself.'

Isn't there a good way to gently bring everyone in the village together?

However, Seongjin's concerns were resolved surprisingly quickly. It was all thanks to a young man who was arguing with the owner in front of the inn.

"Who wants to set up a stall here?"

"I will pay generously for the seat rent. Please do me a favor, old man! yes?"

The young man carrying a large luggage looked closer to a simple farmer from the countryside than a merchant.

However, for some reason, he is clinging to the inn owner quite desperately.

"If this business doesn't perform well, the investment money in the imperial palace will be completely lost! Please help me!"

"Oh, I don't know! "Don't disturb business for no reason, just go to the alley over there!"

"Elders-!"

However, among his words, there was one word that particularly caught Seongjin's ear.

'... Investment money in the imperial palace?'

This was the first time Seongjin had heard that the Delcross Imperial Palace was giving investment money to individual peddlers. Besides, just by looking at that young man, he doesn't seem like someone who could attract investment money, right?

"Hey, if you don't mind, would you mind talking to me for a moment?"

The story I heard from the young man was quite surprising.

"Jun Sang Business Card?"

"Yes, it is."

The young man who introduced himself as 'Oliver' showed a document he held dear in his arms.

After checking the gold coins he showed to purchase the goods, he became quite obedient to Seongjin.

"Rumors are already spreading everywhere. "If you achieve success in the north after receiving a 'semi-top business certificate' issued by the imperial palace, you can receive proper investment and establish a full-fledged top business."

Due to the recent pioneering work of 'Bertrán & Lee', the sense of crisis regarding security in the North has been greatly reduced.

Therefore, small merchants or individual peddlers who are reluctant to compete with existing merchants are rushing to advance into the northern part of the country.

And in order to guarantee and protect their identity, the [Junior Top Business Certificate] recently issued by the Imperial Palace. With this business card, your identity is guaranteed anywhere in the North, and you can follow a large merchant without any additional compensation.

"Good? "Who approved that?"

"This is Princess Amelia. From what I heard, I heard that Princess Amelia is in charge of all recent activities at the top of the imperial capital."

"hmm."

Seongjin took the document he held out and looked at the elegantly scrawled signature with a new feeling.

Sister Amelia's signature...

"As expected, Princess Amelia is the best calligrapher in Delcross."

"... yes?"

When Oliver asked with a puzzled expression at the sudden sentiment, the Demon King let out a small sigh.

[This guy has started again. That damn thick bean pod.]

"shut up!"

"Yes?"

Oliver is very embarrassed when he suddenly hears a voice telling him to shut up. As he returned the documents to him, Seongjin was lost in thought for a moment. Somehow, I felt like I knew my sister's deep meaning.

Everyone must have felt that if they were blinded by their wild dreams and went to the north without permission, some of them would die in an instant. That's why I asked them to achieve results under the appropriate protection from the top.

If a certain amount of results are achieved, they will receive investment and establish a proper business, but if the business fails, they will give up and return to their hometown.

Additionally, the 'junior business card' serves as evidence that the imperial family knows his identity. So even if you are unlucky enough to be stranded alone in the north, it is unlikely that the thieves will be able to harm your life.

Ah, how can our sister Amelia be so kind?

[...] It's a disease to have bulging arms, Lee Seong-jin.]

What are you saying! I just told the truth!

"So Oliver, what do you deal with?"

"Ah yes. These are medicinal herbs. They are easy to grow and are effective. But growing it in northern climates would be difficult."

"Hmm... .."

Seongjin rummaged through the dried grass that Oliver had spread out on the stall. Compared to his great ambition to start a business on his own, the items he displayed were not very pleasant.

Just then, there was a plant that particularly caught Seongjin's eye. It looks like some kind of foxtail that has lost its fur, or it also looks like an unripe ear of barley.

"What is this?"

"Oh, it's called teosinte."

"What herb is used for?"

"Rather than being an herb, it is better to boil and drink as tea. "It doesn't have any particular medicinal properties, but it has a rather nutty taste."

For a moment, a flash of inspiration passes through my mind. Seongjin patted Oliver on the shoulder with her big smile on her face.

"Okay, Oliver. "I sincerely congratulate you on receiving the investment from the imperial palace."

"yes?"

"Your product has sufficient marketability. "I'll buy all your stuff and prove it to you."

"Um, everything?"

Seongjin answered strongly to the young man who was still struggling.

"okay. Teosinte, dried herbs, and that stall. All!"

I just came up with a really great idea!

A brilliant idea to bring all the locals from the village to this place without lifting a finger!

443. Reunion (5)

What is the product that people are skeptical about, but cannot pass up?

'It's a panacea!'

Just by taking it, it kills parasites, blocks electromagnetic waves, improves your skin, prevents hair loss, treats hemorrhoids, and even improves your stamina!

If you advertise just this much, eight out of ten people on the street will turn around.

'But what if it happens to be sold as an easy-to-eat tea?'

You may not know, but people here will be drinking panacea all day and night instead of medicinal tea for a while.

okay. If there is no way to clearly prove the harm of medicinal tea, shouldn't we just push it out of the market with a better product?

[...] But it's a panacea. Isn't that a complete scam?]

The demon king asked worriedly, but Seongjin answered confidently, tapping the lamp.

"Don't say anything you don't know, devil. "There is a huge phenomenon in this world called the placebo effect."

Even if you drink plain water, if you believe that it is medicine, you will see some improvement in your condition.

[So what I'm saying is that it's a scam-]

"shut up! "It's just respect and belief in the infinite potential of the human spirit!"

Think about it, devil. This is all for the greater good. We can drive away the medicine wagons, save people from the dangers of the gray plague, and most of all, we can turn simple country youth into self-made businessmen. It is no exaggeration to say that this kills three birds with one stone!

Plus, what if the car sells well and Oliver becomes fully established? We will be contributing greatly to the northern economy!

'If everything goes well, I'll have to ask Oliver for a generous guarantee later.'

The money is going to come rolling in. Just imagining it makes me proud.

As Seongjin was smiling happily, the devil hurriedly blinked the lamp.

[Hey, that laugh! Seongjin Lee, please stop laughing like that! Are you planning some evil plan again? yes?]

"No, what are you looking at me for? As the prince of the royal family, I only have an altruistic mind to benefit the continent!"

[Do not be ridiculous!]

Thus began the work of manufacturing Seongjin's panacea.

First, Seongjin told Oliver to boil all the herbs that can be used as tea. In order to create the best drink that will surpass medicinal tea, you must first properly understand the characteristics of the ingredients you have.

The owner of the inn gave him a harsh look, but thanks to Seongjin's generous financial generosity, he soon changed his attitude and gave him a large portion of the kitchen.

So, after a while, bowls of steaming hot water were prepared in front of Seongjin.

"This is a digestive, that is a headache medicine, and this is an herb mainly used for skin swelling. But other than teosinte, there isn't anything worth drinking as tea... .."

Leaving the hesitant Oliver behind, Seongjin began tasting the dishes himself.

[Huh? Seongjin Lee! Do you know what these are and drink them?]

"Oh, it's okay, it's okay. "My stomach is strong."

[Ugh! There won't be an escort driver next to you to disturb you. You're just about to leave at this point, right? huh?]

Ignoring the demon king who was crackling with sparks, Seongjin put each herbal drink in his mouth and rolled it around with his tongue.

"... .."

Unfortunately, most of them were bitter or fishy, as expected from medicinal herbs.

'I guess I can't really use it as a car.'

Fortunately, there was one thing that could be saved. It was Teosinte that Oliver had planned to sell as a car from the beginning.

'Hmm, it looks like a barley ear, but why does it taste like corn tea?'

Seongjin, who felt the savory finish, nodded.

"This passed. It tastes pretty good. "The scent is relatively mild."

"Yes, right? I thought it would work too! "In our village, when we draw well water, we boil it with teosinte and drink it."

"however-"

Seongjin furrowed his brows slightly.

okay. Everything is fine. But it's so passable. Why isn't there enough impact to push the medicine cart away at once?

Additionally, color was also a problem. The gloomy brown color is, at best, the color of beer, and at worst the color of concentrated urine. This means that it does not look appetizing at first glance.

"hmm... .."

Can this be regenerated by diluting it with water? Then the savory taste will be greatly reduced.

'I'll need some additives that can be used as food coloring. Or make a cocktail using other herbs.'

However, other herbs also have a gloomy color. In addition, since it has such a strong taste, no matter how you mix it, things are created that cannot be used as tea.

After contemplating for a moment, Seongjin tried mixing the red petals, which seemed to have a less bitter taste and stronger pigment, into the tea.

"Oh, wrong. "It just turned into serious hematuria in the urine."

"... Why can't the tasting review go beyond the bounds of urine? "Aren't you doing too much with food?"

Hearing Oliver's complaints in one ear, Seongjin adjusted the number and ratio of herbs. But as expected, the results were not very good.

Since most of them are medicinal plants, they are bitter in taste and cloudy in color. Compared to the clear pink medicinal tea, I would say that it is not an attractive tea, even if it is an empty word.

However, Oliver, a country boy, did not understand Seongjin's efforts to somehow produce good results.

"Why on earth is such work necessary? Teosinte tea is what it is. "Isn't it just that it tastes good?"

Seongjin clicked his tongue. He seems like a very naive friend.

"Oliver. Fraud... Do you know what the most important rule is in becoming a good businessman?"

"omg? "Did you just say it was a scam?"

"No, you must have heard wrong."

"No way! I heard it clearly now! "They said it was definitely a scam!"

Seongjin smiled kindly at the foolish sentient being - for some reason Oliver's face turned pale - and then gave the simple young man a valuable lesson that he would never hear again in his life.

"first! "To be a merchant, you must first know how to stimulate the essential desires hidden in the human heart."

The desire to obtain valuable products without being left behind by others. A sense of belonging and security that comes from sharing what everyone buys. The joy of looking forward to acquiring amazing items that are not easily available at the best cost-effectiveness!

"... yes?"

"And second! "In order to sell that product, you yourself must first firmly believe in what you say to others."

I believe that even plain water will become holy water. A simple fraud on your own... You must believe that he is not a businessman, but a good person who is willing to share the profits for everyone! Wouldn't that be the only way to pull people out of the swamp of distrust and persuade them properly?

"Huh?"

"So, don't get upset over useless things. Don't say anything outright like a scam or anything else before you even put down the stall, that's it! okay?"

Then Oliver's eyes become very irreverent. Seongjin ignored him and continued his explanation.

"And third! "The most important thing is that the product looks good to everyone!"

Just looking at it is auspicious, and it arouses the desire to have it and stock up on it, but it has no particular utility once you actually buy it. There are things like that that are flashy and have no substance, right?

We need to make something like that now!

"... "What on earth do you want to sell to people?"

Yes, I want a color that just looks like it will be good for my body. For example, potions in the Pangea Chronicle.

They look mysterious just by looking at them, and you can vividly feel the effects before you even eat them, right? Unless there is such a clear visual effect...

"Wait a minute, potion?"

Yes, potion!

Seongjin jumped up from his seat with sparkling eyes.

'Why didn't I think of this earlier?!'

You can use some of the potions from Pangea Chronicle here, right? The color is quite dark, the taste is not that irritating, and the effects are quite...

Seongjin unconsciously tried to search through his inventory.

But as expected, it doesn't open. Since I last accessed Pangea Chronicle, I thought my account had been deleted or something, but it's been like this ever since.

then-

"Owen!"

Da da da da!

Seongjin ran to the room where Owen and Lord Martha were resting and opened the door with all his might.

Quang!

"huh? Newbie, why-."

Owen, who was startled, widened his eyes as the palm of his hand was suddenly thrust in front of him.

"Give me the potion!"

"ok?"

"There are small-capacity binding potions, right? Those miscellaneous items that cannot be sold and are too small to eat."

"Uh oh... .. ?"

"hurry! hurry! "Everything in inventory!"

Seongjin, who had completely cleaned out Owen's inventory, began trying various combinations of teosinte tea and potions.

'HP potion... Dismiss for now.'

I don't like that damn red color at all. When combined with teosinte tea, no matter how you look at it, it produces nothing but a cloudy liquid reminiscent of hematuria.

Moreover, effectiveness is also an issue. If you show that you can heal wounds in real time without any divine power, you will be condemned as the work of the devil and will be sent to trial for heresy.

'MP potion is also dismissed.'

When blue and brown come together, it becomes an indescribably murky color of sediment. It's impossible to put something like that in your mouth, no matter how hard you advertise it.

The effect is the same. At best, will your mind become a little clearer? That's literally backwards compatibility with medicine tea.

Now all that was left was a yellow stamina potion.

"... .."

Hmm, somehow I have a good feeling about this. Don't you think that brilliantly shining lemon color will somehow enhance the brightness and saturation of teosinte at the same time?

The immediate effectiveness of the effect goes without saying. You'll feel instantly energized, and there's nothing better to spread the word about!

Fluffy!

In this way, a new, brilliant teosinte tea was finally born.

Fresh urine shining bright gold, inheriting the clear yellow color of the stamina potion... No, a honey-colored drink!

[After all, it's urine... ..]

it is not so. Shut up!

"But there is still one problem left."

Oliver looked at the incredible results that Seongjin had created as if fascinated, and then opened his mouth.

"Can this really be called 'teosinte' tea?"

"huh?"

"Is this something that can be made sustainably by cultivating teosinte?"

Since the result was so different from what I expected, it seemed like fear was more important than joy.

"I need to use this sales performance to start a proper business. But what would happen if it were discovered that teosinte tea is not this color and in fact has no efficacy? "The business is over!"

"hey. "Is there a need to worry about that before we even start?"

Seongjin shrugged his shoulders.

It's okay, Oliver. Do you have a feeling that everything will be okay?

"No, it doesn't end with the business going bankrupt. You're getting investment by defrauding the imperial palace, right? I'm really going to die if I keep doing this! "You're going to die!"

"... Because there is a way to do it all. "Oliver, just trust me."

"Hey, wait a minute? What was that moment of hesitation just now? yes?"

After completing all preparations, Seongjin revealed his plan to Owen and Sir Martha.

Of course, after leaving out the truth about the medicine cart and the story of Dacianus's secretary, it would have sounded like he was just trying to change his mind and do business.

"So, you open a stall and sell the goods yourself? You? "Did I hear that correctly?"

"That's right."

When Seongjin answered brightly, Masain massaged the back of his neck and looked into space for a moment.

"... So, what on earth are you going to sell?"

"Yes, it's really good for your body!"

Seongjin spoke confidently and lifted up the sparkling golden teacup.

"This is teosinte tea! Just drinking it will give you a surge of energy, and it is a miraculous panacea that is effective against all kinds of diseases!"

The more he listened to the explanation, the more Masain's expression became distorted. Of course, he was steadily taking the products handed over by Seongjin with both hands and laying them out on the stall.

"... .."

Between Sir Martha's deeply furrowed eyebrows, one can feel the intense internal conflict that arises from the mismatch between emotions and actions.

Seongjin looked at him pitifully for a moment and then turned his head towards Owen.

"Oh, and Owen. You wait next to me and put on a powerful show of power when necessary. He gives off the impression that he has become stronger due to the effects of medicinal tea. got it?"

"Huh? why?"

"It's all for promotion. And you are prohibited from using the imperial language in front of others for the time being."

"Wait a minute, newbie, that's-"

Owen, who was about to retort something, suddenly widened his eyes as he stared into empty space.

"Oh, another emergency quest has appeared?"

"okay? "What are they saying this time?"

"You want to help the group? The reward is still 5 cash. "It's really petty."

Owen looked like he had given up on everything and scratched his hair, which was becoming wild.

"Anyway, Mr. Sang Tae-chang these days, why are you so insincere about the quest content and rewards?"

Well, it may conflict to a large extent with Seongjin's intentions, so I'm just being careful, but there's no need to explain that to Owen.

Leaving the bewildered Owen behind, Seongjin handed out the wooden planks he had prepared in advance to Masain.

"Sir Martha is here, next to Owen, holding up the plank."

"No sir, this is... .."

This time, contrary to his words, Sir Masaine obediently accepted the wooden planks. Of course, his expression was badly rotten.

So, after giving one more gold coin to the disgusted innkeeper, Seongjin started a noisy promotion by staging a fire show with the devil.

"Oh my, it really energizes me!"

"Hey! here! "Give Teosinte one here too!"

"Wait a minute, keep the order! "I come first!"

The promotional event so carefully prepared was more successful than expected. Oliver looked at Teosinte, who suddenly woke up, with a very shocked expression on his face.

"Wow, that's strange. I know better than anyone that this is a scam, so why does everything he says sound so plausible? "I even felt like it was a waste to sell the herbs."

Seongjin huffed and twitched the corners of his mouth.

how is it? Did you see it? What is the true skill of Lee Seong-jin, humanity's last hunter?

[...] You fraudster. What does business have to do with hunters?]

shut up! Don't talk nonsense and prepare for the last fire show.

Finally, all the items on the stall were sold out, and the long-awaited climax unfolded.

'Lord Masaine!'

Let Seongjin send a small signal -

Whirling!

Sir Masain, who now had a calm face as if he had completely lost his mind, vigorously scattered the straws he had prepared in advance in the air.

'Demon King!'

[okay!]

Grumble!

Red flames spread quickly.

The light straws fluttering everywhere touched the devil's flame and soon began to bloom into red and colorful flower petals.

"... ..!"

The fireworks that unfolded out of nowhere made the front of the inn as bright as daylight.

People were completely mesmerized by the overwhelming sight. Each person clutched a small package of teosinte in their hands.

Brightly burning sparks pour down like rain from the dark sky. In the midst of that unrealistic scene, a boy with a noble appearance as if he had stepped out of a myth declared.

"Don't be sad, just wait! Teosinte tea is coming back here!"

Wow!

People cheered wildly. Without really knowing why or what they are passionate about.

Meanwhile, Seongjin's pupils began to emit a mysterious light. At first glance, the appearance was not much different from the audience with red flames in their eyes.

After disguising his spiritual eyes so well, Seongjin diligently scanned the faces of the gathered people.

'Where are the salt crystals, the salt crystals... ..'

Then, suddenly, he noticed some familiar faces in the middle of the gathered crowd.

Edith is looking this way with round eyes. Vartoza rolled her eyes nervously, her mouth clenched. A young man who looks somewhat dazed.

and-

'... father?'

His entire body was wrapped in thick priest's robes. You can't even see his face properly because the hood is covered all the way over his head.

Nevertheless, Seongjin was able to immediately recognize the familiar gaze from the mysterious new type.

'Father, he's here now!'

Sweet!

At that moment, in Seongjin's mind, it seemed as if he heard the sound of two worlds that had been spinning at odds coming together precisely.

444. Dacion (1)

Number 21 had no choice but to admit it. He realized that he had not been able to properly understand the children of the Holy Emperor until now.

"Wow! Owen! "Where on earth have you been all this time?"

Bartoza, free from his restraints, ran towards Prince Owen, shedding tears. It seems like the fear that I had been suppressing inside until now suddenly burst out.

"cold-hearted! Were you going to abandon this Bartozha? "Did you really think like that?"

"Hey, hey. Please calm down. "Anyway, I thought you were okay in Regina, why are you here?"

"Ughhhhh!"

Surprisingly, Prince Owen left the rude Barshaine who dared to hold on to the hem of the prince's clothes. Where is that? He even comforted me gently as if I felt sorry for him!

Number 21 was dumbfounded.

'Isn't that too lenient on a mere barbarian?'

No, it is absurd that the prince himself is acting like a Barça barbarian in the first place.

Besides, what was it earlier? He's not even a clown, and he even demonstrates breaking things in front of the villagers. Does that prince have no awareness that he is the imperial family of the empire?

What was even more surprising was Prince Mores. As No. 21 knew, he was the most difficult and authoritative person among the Seonghwang family members.

however-

"Hey!"

"Shh! Edith. Don't call me that. 'I'm hiding my identity right now.'"

"ah! Yes, four! But what on earth is this like now? Did you end up rolling around on the dirt floor somewhere? Besides, these skimpy clothes... ..!"

phut! phut! phut!

Edith blasphemously patted the prince's back vigorously to shake off the dust, but he only frowned and dissuaded her.

"Take it easy, Edith."

"Ugh! It's not a matter of ending it in moderation! 'You're not a child anymore, so please take care of yourself!'"

Lastly, Sir Masain. At first glance, he looked the most calm, but upon closer inspection, he didn't seem to be normal either.

If it weren't for the current Seonghwang, he would have been the strongest candidate for Seonghwang, and he meticulously organizes his surroundings and carefully organizes the stalls. It is said that she recently became Prince Mores' nanny, but she seems to have a knack for one thing.

"... .."

No. 21 realized a big truth.

The people of Seonghwangga are all out of their minds!

"lung... Priest Bart. What about your children, indeed... .."

Number 21, muttering that and looking back at the thriving homunculus, could not help but be completely convinced for a moment.

'Ah, indeed.'

Whose children are they? They were born as princes and went around working as mercenaries, but now that they have ascended to the throne, they are human children who are trapped in uncomfortable dolls and suffering needlessly.

Seonghwang, who guessed No. 21's thoughts from that irreverent look, opened his mouth softly.

"... "No, Enrique."

"What do you mean? "I didn't say anything."

"So, that's not it."

"I'm not sure what you're talking about, Father Bart."

"... .."

At that time, Prince Owen, who had just barely separated Bartoza, approached with a bright face.

"Priest Bart!"

There was no need for No. 21 to reveal the identity of the Holy Emperor. Owen, who had faced the Holy Homunculus on the Southern Front for years, could now recognize him just by grazing the hem of his clothes.

No, I didn't know if I should say I really looked into this, but... ..

"What are you doing here? "Is it okay for someone who is not in good health to go around like this without an attendant?"

"... .."

"aha! Now that the southern front is stable, you've come to help the people of the north! "Priest Bart is truly amazing to take care of the safety of not only Delcross but the entire continent!"

Seonghwang's gaze, hidden behind the hood, seemed to have somehow moved slightly towards the sky. He probably feels a deep sense of disappointment due to the 1st prince's lack of insight.

"Are you Priest Bart? "It is truly a pleasure to meet you like this."

Lord Masaine also approaches and greets Prince Mores. His attitude towards a priest whom he did not know was strangely friendly.

"On the southern front, you are called a 'living saint,' right? He also said that he made a good medicine for Prince Owen. "I heard a lot from you."

This was because when Owen handed over 'Ultimate Elixir' to Masain, he vaguely gave the source as his work. Of course, there was no way No. 21 would know that fact.

However, it was Prince Mores who showed the strangest reaction. He kept his mouth shut and was staring at Seonghwang with his strong gaze from earlier.

Number 21 was a little embarrassed when he saw the clear emotions in the boy's eyes. Relief and... Nice to meet you? Why?

"Bart... "Priest."

Prince Mores opened his mouth awkwardly, then smiled an uncharacteristically gentle smile.

At that moment, No. 21 fell into the illusion that the surroundings were brighter than when fireworks were going on.

"Now that we've met like this, would you like to join our group?"

The prince, who suddenly made an unconventional proposal in a polite manner, then gently tugged on the emperor's sleeve with a somewhat friendly gesture.

"Luckily, I got a room that was quite spacious. "I guess this was all done to meet the priest."

The group sat together in front of a rich table.

"I will take care of your meals today! "Anything is fine, so eat as much as you want!"

Oliver, very excited, orders new dishes one after another and puts them on the table. Thanks to selling out Teosinte to the villagers at a high price, his pockets were now richer than ever before.

Winning the investment money from the imperial palace is already a fait accompli, so people can only be generous.

The group started eating happily. Everyone was knowingly or unknowingly exhausted from the intense promotional activities. #21 and Edith, who only chewed beef jerky while walking all day, were equally delighted with this meal.

While everyone is focused on the food in front of them -

"... .."

Only two people. Only the Emperor and Prince Mores were making eye contact while eating or drinking.

A prosperous homunculus is a body that naturally does not need food. But for some reason, Prince Mores was also persistently glancing at the crowd with a smiling face, as if he had no interest in the meal at all. Moreover, sometimes I called him out as if it was fun.

"Priest Bart?"

"... .."

"Hehehe, Priest Bart."

Seonghwang, who could not bear to answer, looked very embarrassed.

It was not unreasonable since the setting was Ortonain, who was not good at the imperial language. The moment they hear his voice speaking the imperial language, the princes and knights of the imperial palace will immediately recognize his identity and stop him.

'for a moment. However, in front of Edith and the Barca barbarian, you spoke the imperial language casually... ..?'

Number 21 realized something he had forgotten for a while and quickly turned to Edith.

"... ..?"

But Edith seems to have not noticed this strange situation at all, and just looks at No. 21 with blind eyes, her mouth covered in sauce.

'What an amazingly thoughtless person you are!'

Number 21 was secretly impressed. What kind of life has that woman lived so far?

"Priest Bart. Why aren't you eating anything? Have you eaten? "If you're hungry, try some of this."

Meanwhile, Prince Mores had put down his silverware and was now eagerly pushing food dishes in front of the Holy Emperor.

The prince of the Holy Empire is seen preparing a meal for a priest. It's almost confusing as to who is carrying out who.

"I also tried this meat dish for lunch. "They say this is the best food at this inn."

"... .."

"ah! You're having trouble taking off the hood. "Is that why you don't put food in your mouth?"

Then, in place of the embarrassed Seonghwang, No. 21 stepped forward.

"Lowering. Priest Bart is suffering from respiratory problems. If you breathe outside air, you will quickly become ill. Therefore, I ask for your understanding that I cannot lower the hood without permission."

"uh."

The prince looked at No. 21 with indifferent eyes. Then, his expression changed again and he made a gentle suggestion to Seonghwang.

"If you feel uncomfortable being seen, I will tell the host to bring the meal to my room. "Why don't you go to your room and get some rest?"

Looking at him, it looks like he is dragging Seonghwang upstairs and disappearing at any moment. Number 21 was embarrassed and quickly blocked their path.

"Lowering. I am embarrassed to tell you, but Priest Bart is not very good at the imperial language. So, I will be by your side-"

"Even though you can't speak, don't you understand the imperial language 'very well'?"

"yes? Ah yes. That's true, but... .."

While No. 21, caught off guard, hesitated, Prince Mores was already pulling Seonghwang's sleeve.

"Then don't worry about us anymore. You look pretty tired from leading everyone here, so you and Edith can rest in the remaining room. "Because I happened to have plenty of room."

"... ..!"

Number 21 suddenly stood up and followed them in a hurry. however-

Tuk-tuk.

Seonghwang lightly taps his shoulder as if to comfort him.

'Enrique. It's okay, just stop.'

Thanks to this, No. 21 woke up in a hesitant state and had to watch them move in a daze.

Before leaving the restaurant, Prince Mores left a last, absurd order to Prince Owen.

"Owen, we go up first. "After you finish eating, grab some delicious food and bring it to your room."

"Yes? also?"

"uh. Fish cakes, butter bread, all the delicious food you can get."

You're not even placing a new order at the inn, but you're suddenly asking for food? It was a conversation that No. 21 could not understand at all.

But what was even more surprising was Prince Owen's reaction.

"OK got it. But I'm a newbie. "It will take quite some time to complete the cooking shop's special stew quest."

"Special stew? "Is that delicious?"

"Maybe so? "At least someone in front of me enjoyed it very much."

"okay. Then, bring that too."

Prince Mores responded simply and turned around to leave the restaurant.

"Ah, but I'm a newbie. Where does Bartoza tell me to stay? I can just share a room with Brother Masain like before... .."

It was right then. A cool chill suddenly descended on the heads of the group.

"Owen. "Why does a guy who doesn't even know the subject and runs wild like an animal need a room for people to use?"

Prince Mores spat coldly and glared at Bartóza with a harsh gaze. His expression was dripping cold, completely different from when he faced Seonghwang, or rather, Priest Bart.

"Put him in a barn somewhere. "If you sleep covered in straw, you won't freeze to death at least until tomorrow."

"... .."

"Hey, owner, give him a bowl of honey porridge. "You can't starve just because you hate people."

Then Bartozha, who had been reaching for the food without notice, hurriedly bit his hand back with a pale face.

Tingling-!

Prince Mores, who once again gave him a strong warning look, led the crowd along that path and went upstairs.

"... "You follow Priest Bart really well."

Lord Masain, who looked in the direction where the two disappeared for a moment, opened his mouth.

"I think this is the first time since Your Majesty and Princess Amelia that you treat someone so kindly. "Have you two met separately at some point in the past?"

Then Prince Owen answered indifferently.

"Well, doesn't Priest Bart look a lot like your father? So, it seems that Mores also feels some kind of closeness to him."

"yes? "Your Majesty?"

"... ..!"

No. 21 and Masain flinched and looked at him at the same time.

However, Owen quickly emptied the dishes without paying attention to their gaze. He had to hurry as he was going to return to the daily quest sooner or later.

"Yes, from the first time I saw the priest, I thought of my father.

"You're of similar age, and if you look closely, your behavior and demeanor are very similar to your father, right?"

"... .."

"Plus, you have strong divine power. "Isn't it strange that you don't think of your father?"

Number 21 couldn't help but cast a bewildered look at Prince Owen.

No, if you understand him so well, why on earth do you still not know his identity?

light.

While pulling a person who was almost certain to be successful, Seongjin felt an alien sensation that was clearly different from the physical laws of this world.

He once had this same feeling. So, from Madame Justine, the owner of the popular clothing store 'Salon de Mercy'.

However, surprisingly, the emotions that Seongjin felt through the same sense of discomfort were completely different from back then.

'Madame Justine felt absolutely terrible.'

The unrealistic lightness that she experienced at that time made Madame Justine feel something repulsive and unpleasant just by touching it for a moment.

But now, this lightness is seen as a sign of instability, as if it could disappear somewhere at any moment. So Seongjin is just so scared that he becomes extremely cautious.

Percussion.

When the door was finally closed and the two of them were together, Seongjin let out the breath he had been holding and called out to him.

"father."

"... Yes, Mores."

Finally, a proper answer comes back from Seonghwang.

"haha."

Sungjin, feeling a little relieved, leaned against the door and looked up at him.

"What are you doing here? Could it be that he didn't really leave the ecliptic, and that strange body represents Lord Sharon? "What happened?"

Then Seonghwang, who had been looking at Seongjin for a moment, slightly tilted his head and answered.

"Didn't you already hear everything? "That noisy 'fairy' of yours has been bustling with gossip since a while ago."

"ah."

As expected, Seonghwang was nearby, listening to everything. As soon as he appeared, the devil's voice chattered non-stop next to Seongjin.

-Lee Seong-jin! Seongjin Lee! Look here!

-Strange! I can feel the strong laws of the normal world in the body of that person named Bat!

-It is difficult to recognize the original identity of the soul of the world of Gyu-sang, but it seems that the author's soul is somehow different from ordinary souls! There is a faint glow, something is very strange!

As Seongjin slowly lifted the small lamp -

[Sigh!]

The Demon Lord, who had suddenly come face to face with the Holy Emperor, instantly became a lump and was crushed into the corner of the lamp.

445. Dacion (2)

[Lee Seong-jin... Hi! Heep!]

The heavily frozen Demon King hiccuped for a while and spewed out dying sparks. It seems like he was quite surprised.

Just when he finally showed signs of calming down, a hearty dinner began to be prepared in their room.

"ha ha ha! "If you need anything else, let me know anytime!"

The owner, with a bright smile on his face, personally brought the dishes to the room.

Why not? This is an order from a VIP who has added a lot of money to the accommodation fee and is generating huge sales, including meal expenses.

[...] This is delicious.]

Grumble!

As he eagerly ate the finely cut pieces of meat, the Demon King gained strength little by little.

'If you look at it, it means that it is not easy to eat in secret. He seems like such a simple guy... ... '

As he diligently threw the food into the lamp, Seongjin closely observed Seonghwang moving the dishes.

He started eating without much resistance to Seongjin's recommendation. Considering that he used to just snack in the imperial palace, he seems to be enjoying his meals quite comfortably now.

okay. This is impeccable table manners.

"... ..,"

When the thick hood covering his head was pulled down, his hair, unlike usual, was seen growing to cover the nape of his neck. I wonder if his hair is a little lighter than it originally was.

However, excluding such minor differences, it was no exaggeration to say that the current Seonghwang had almost completely his original facial features.

'That's an artificial life form created by the Kornsim clan, a homunculus... Called?'

It was truly amazing. It is an artificial body created strictly according to the laws of the normal world, so how can it be so similar to my father?

But Seonghwang stopped his hand and looked at Seongjin's face, wondering how he knew what was going on in his head.

"The homunculi created by Kornsim all have the same shape at first. Standard specifications have been established to facilitate production. 'It is precisely designed to be in sync with the user's 'bion' as time passes."

"Baion... .."

It took Seongjin some time to recall the information about Baion in his head.

'... Ah, you mean the theory of the three elements of the soul?'

So, it would have been when the fake saint Seo Yi-seo appeared in the imperial capital. At that time, Seongjin heard a detailed explanation from Logan about the elements that make up the soul.

-The first person to theoretically support the reincarnation of a saint was a famous theologian named Granius.

At the time, Granius claimed that there were three elements that make up the soul, which are [Aion], [Bion], and [Dacion], respectively.

Among them, [Bion] is an element that makes up the surface of the soul, and it is said that it constantly interacts with the body.

"So, that homunculus reflects your father's soul?"

"okay. That's amazing, Mores. "You know very well about the theory of the three elements of the soul."

Seonghwang slightly raised the corners of his mouth with a light compliment.

"So the longer the soul stays, the more the homunculus becomes almost completely attuned to the user's body."

"aha! okay. so-"

Seongjin, who was nodding vigorously, paused and tilted his head.

... hmm?

"But father, how did you know what I was thinking? "I didn't really send any condolences or anything, did I?"

"... That's it. If it's something you're curious about right now, isn't it obvious?"

"Hmm... .."

Seongjin ignored his excuses and began an in-depth analysis of the homunculus.

When you focus strongly on your eyes, your pupils blink red and information that you cannot normally see floats in the air. Text windows that are vaguely intertwined in multiple layers, which can be said to be a characteristic of the normal world.

?Homunculus_prototype_agalus_079?

?Creator information: Bethuel, Rebekah, Iscah, Bethsheba, Idlaph?

?Izmir calendar 4728:23:08?

?This object is a prototype in the development stage, and unauthorized commercial use or creation of secondary works such as transformation is strictly prohibited.?

?If you wish to inquire about commercial use to our head office, please first fill out the company information, usage law, purpose, period, and proposed amount and enter into a contract with the person in charge.?

?For more details... ... ?

?Blah blah... ... ?

It's a list of information that doesn't seem particularly useful, like an insurance policy that no one expects to read properly.

There was something else that captured Seongjin's spiritual eyes.
sparkle!

It was a small bead shining in the very center of the homunculus' skull.

"There is a decision to be made."

"..."

"Is that your father's foolish decision? Or do all homunculi originally have flame crystals?"

Then Seonghwang passed the food completely and answered obediently.

"It is a unique characteristic of the homunculus. No, properly speaking, I should say that it is a characteristic of all creatures in the normal world."

"All creatures of the normal world?"

"okay. "Somewhere in the bodies of creatures in the normal world, there is always a small flame crystal where the soul can reside."

Seonghwang, who explained up to that point, paused for a moment before continuing.

"Mores, if you were who you are now, it would certainly not be impossible to understand the true nature of your soul."

"Yes, father."

It was like that. Because Seongjin now had the ability to be called 'spiritual eye'. Although it is only an imperfect ability to replace spiritual information with visual information.

"What if I did it? "From the appearance of my soul now, can you clearly identify the form of Bion?"

"... no."

Seongjin shook his head. No matter how hard I widened my eyes and looked at the homunculus, I could not clearly see the soul of the Holy Emperor that was there. Only the white light emitted from the flame crystal is perceived.

"It's because my soul is completely hidden in the crystal of meditation."

"Why are you doing that?"

"In order to properly reside in a body that follows the laws of the normal world, the soul also needs to meet those standards."

"aha."

"So, in the world of crystals, a crystal with a soul is defined as a soul in itself."

Seongjin also had something that came to mind at first glance.

Didn't the Demon King once explain it like that? Unlike the world of natural images and the world of mental images, the soul in the normal world does not have the form of a complete human being. Usually, it is said to be a round sphere or a hard crystal.

For example, Seo Yi-seo's soul was like that. Therefore, as soon as the Demon King saw the fake saint, he recognized that she was a human belonging to the normal world.

But does that mean that it was actually because the soul was contained within the crystal?

"And this flame crystal also functions as an absolute protection device to protect the soul."

So, unlike others, Seo Yi-seo has remained fine even after being exposed to Cadmus' divinity.

"So, a wizard who realized its importance even personally named the flame crystal 'Dacion.'"

"Dacion... .."

Another component of the theory of the three elements of the soul,

"But father. Wasn't Granius, who proposed the theory of the three elements of the soul, a human being in the original world? But how on earth did he, who had no spiritual eyesight, know of the existence of the Flame Crystal?"

"... .."

"Also, why did he choose the concept of 'Dacion', which is only used in the normal world, as a component of the soul?"

It was not unreasonable for Seongjin to have such doubts. Even though it was a dream, I vaguely remembered the voices of children whispering in my ear one day.

-In our view, it is more appropriate to define the soul as having two elements: aion and bion.

-The reason Dacion was included there was purely due to Granius' political circumstances.

'Aeon' can also be seen as the true essence of the soul, that is, the essence of the soul.

'Bion' is what connects the aion and the body, and is constantly influenced by the body. In other words, it is no exaggeration to say that what we think of as the soul is actually the Bion itself.

However, nowhere in that interaction was there any room for the new element called Dacion to intervene.

"It cannot be denied that Granius brought out a third element called 'Dacion' to explain the reincarnation of Saint Grazie. It is also a well-known fact that his claims were used politically during the reign of the five great emperors."

"... .."

"But son. Even at that time, the element called 'dacion' was not a completely unfamiliar concept to people in this dimension."

After saying that, Seonghwang looked at Seongjin with an inexplicable gaze for a moment.

"Mores."

"yes?"

"There is a reason why you eventually obtained that book, despite the recent distortion of your perception."

Startle!

At Seonghwang's words, Seongjin unconsciously fumbled for the old book he had been keeping in his arms.

"this... "Are you referring to Dacian's secretary?"

"okay. "When you first read the book, what did you feel about the author?"

"About the author... .."

Seongjin was deep in thought.

I only glanced at it, so I didn't really have any particular impressions about Dacianus. He just felt like he was talking nonsense in a very long and elaborate manner.

However, there was something I realized after learning that he was the progenitor of the Marquis d'Arciano. The point was that Dacianus was a person with overly inflated self-consciousness and, to top it off, enormous self-love.

Although he was given a high-ranking noble title by the King of Ortona, he did not want to have another name that represented himself and his family. Because he believed that only his own name could fully represent him.

As a result, his family became the Marquis of Daciano, the name of the progenitor. His name was stamped into his family forever.

And perhaps Dacianus also wanted to put his name firmly on what he studied and pursued throughout his life.

"... 'Dacion.'"

Seongjin took out the book in his arms.

"The wizard who gave the name Dacion to the flame crystal that my father mentioned earlier was Dacianus."

The 'wall of the soul' that he continued to emphasize through his secretary was actually a term referring to a decision to make a decision.

"The people of Delcross came into contact with the concept of 'Dacion' through him. 'Perhaps Granus simply used existing words as he pleased, without even knowing what they were.'"

After hearing Seongjin's guess, Seonghwang looked worried for a moment. Then, he quietly put down the dishes and looked straight into Seongjin's eyes.

"Well, Mores. 'Maybe Granus' theory of the three elements of the soul is not completely wrong."

"... yes?"

For a moment, Seongjin couldn't understand what he was saying.

"Why? "If it were the normal world, then Dacyon in the real world has nothing to do with the soul, right?"

Of course, that doesn't change the fact that salt crystals are a good environment for the soul to settle down. Didn't the Demon King like it that much?

However, such soul-friendly nature is not a reason to insert flame crystals into the soul's components.

"father. First of all, Dacion has a clear substance. But can it still be a part of the soul?"

"okay. It has a distinct substance, and at the same time, it can be a component of the soul. "You might be wondering how that is possible."

"yes. That's right."

When Seongjin answered quickly, a calm smile appeared on Seonghwang's lips for a moment.

"That is because Dacion has both the characteristics of the real world and the characteristics of the normal world. Therefore, even though it contains the soul of the normal world, it can act as a medium that connects the soul with the body of the normal world."

It is as if in the original world, there exists a Bion that connects the essence of the soul, Aion, to the body.

"Dacion can also be seen as playing a similar role to Bion in that it is a bridge that connects the spiritual body and reality."

However, it is said that Dacion, who freely moves between the natures of the two worlds, sometimes has extreme tendencies towards one side.

At this time, when it approaches the laws of the normal world, Dacion has complete reality and exists in the world as a flame crystal.

"On the other hand, if it is biased towards the laws of the original world, Dacion will have the properties of a complete spiritual body that is invisible to the ordinary human eye."

Seonghwang, who explained up to that point, looked at Seongjin with slightly deepened eyes and continued speaking.

"And Mores. "Perhaps you have encountered a type of soul in this world that is slightly different from the appearance of a normal soul."

"... ..!"

When Seongjin realized what Seonghwang was talking about, he felt a shock as if he had been hit in the back of the head.

'no way... 'Soul terminal?'

Indeed, in Delcross, the real world, there existed a soul with a round bead shape like the soul in the normal world. These are the soul terminals that Arenja's psychics, especially the twins, often show.

But is it actually made by combining Dacion and the soul?

'So, you're saying that even in the real world, some people can have Dacyon?'

In other words, Granius' theory of the three elements of the soul is not completely wrong.

'The soul terminal was another form of flame crystal... ..!'

But Seonghwang's amazing explanation did not end there.

"Son. "You already know another object that, like Dacion, has the properties of both worlds."

"... .."

It was like that. It's not that it's not, but Seongjin has been feeling a strong sense of déjà vu from this conversation since a while ago.

An object that you know well, that cleverly straddles the physical laws of both worlds.

-no way? It's here? Is this really it? Is that [signpost] created by Oracle and reflecting the spirit of Oracle?

I can still recall it vividly. Dexter was showing Seongjin the complex wavelength of the handy scanner and explaining it in an excited voice.

- You really don't know what this means? So, although the oracle's [signpost] is an object from the normal world, it partially has the same properties as material from the normal world!

Something created by a sophisticated mind, yet having an undeniable material reality.

"no way... ..!"

Seongjin was astonished.

The series of information obtained so far led Seongjin to arrive at an undesirable inference.

"Yes, Mores. "Oracle's milestones can also be seen as a kind of dacion woven into a dense structure."

"... .."

"And the wizard who studied Dacion for a long time also knew that fact well."

"So, in other words... .."

Seongjin rubbed his temples with a confused expression.

"Are you saying that Dacianus wanted to create the 'milestone' of the Oracle himself, beyond simply making a salt crystal that protects the soul?"

446. Dacion (3)

Before its destruction, various races lived in Ionia.

From the human Kornsheim clan to lycanthropes, draconians, giants, and tree tribes. They were races with quite diverse forms and characteristics that, at first glance, seemed to have no biological similarity.

However, they had only one thing in common that distinguished them from the creatures of the Delcross dimension, and that was the flame crystal located within their skulls.

The location and structure of the crystals differed significantly depending on the species. However, no matter how crude the race was with the flame crystal, each individual was able to connect with the race [essence] and form a group rationality through this flame crystal.

In that way, [Essence] became everything to the race. It was a precious heritage that not only preserved and developed culture and ideas beyond the sharing of individual emotions and knowledge, but also led everyone's consciousness to a higher mental world.

However, uniquely among the races, there were those who entrusted the role of the race essence to the most outstanding member of the clan.

Oracle.

The living tribal essence of the Kornsim clan, and the one with the most highly developed flame crystal.

'It is perfect!'

One day, Dacianus accidentally encountered an oracle's signpost and fell into a strong shock that shook his soul.

'The [milestone] created by the living essence of the race is such a beautiful thing. It is capable of containing the universe within itself!'

The Kornsim clan was originally a people with superior spiritual development compared to other races. This is because the secret art of creating flame crystals of a different nature outside the body, that is, a soul terminal, was already popular at that time.

Even the youngest Kornsim easily created soul terminals through secret arts. And by carrying their consciousness into that soul terminal, they would move around freely, transcending the limitations of space.

If someone with spiritual eyes were to look at Kornsim's residence, he would probably see the spectacle of beads of all sizes flying across the sky.

However, among them, the soul terminal created by Oracle was special.

milestone.

A being that maintains an exquisite balance between the laws of the natural world and the laws of the normal world, which is different from the innate flame crystals and the soul terminal created through secret arts.

'It's truly amazing. Even though it was created solely through mental ability, it can have such a distinct substance!'

Dacianus thought that the oracle's signpost was the most perfect decision in the world. And the ability to create these milestones came to be seen as evidence of a highly accomplished mind.

It was probably natural for him, who had extremely strong self-love, to become absorbed in creating his own milestones.

He gave the new name 'Dacion' to all the salt crystals, including the milestone, and soon began the process of creating the most beautiful salt crystals in the world.

'I need a sample. We need more types of salt crystals. No, if only I could directly observe the process of forming salt crystals!'

In this way, Dacianus moved to the Delcross dimension. This is because Delcross is less civilized than Ionia and does not even have a race with salt crystals, so it was thought to be suitable for observing the birth of new salt crystals.

He pretended to be a wandering wizard and distributed the decoction he made to people. Then, he suddenly settled down and left his family in the middle of Ortona.

"Dacianus said that he would achieve immortality by creating a 'wall of the soul.' But if his true goal wasn't something like immortality... .."

Seonghwang slowly shook his head at Seongjin's words.

"It would be meaningless to guess what the original purpose was. "Either way, the result would have been the same."

"The results are the same?"

Grumble!

The devil of the lamp sways in the breeze that blows from somewhere. Seongjin asked again, throwing a small piece of bread to the demon king who was quietly watching.

"Why is that so?"

"As a result, he would have made the same thing."

As Seongjin blinked his eyes blankly, Seonghwang raised an eyebrow and continued to explain.

"Do you know, Mores? "When a person with flame crystals dies, his crystals also quickly lose their function."

Seongjin nodded. During her time as a hunter, she killed countless monsters and saw them with her own eyes.

The Barotoshi found inside the heads of swarm monsters often disappeared without a trace soon after being exposed to the outside world.

There were times when it remained intact, but then it quickly lost its shine and turned into a hard piece of bone.

Because of this, it took quite a long time for scientists to realize Bartosh's function.

"A crystal that has lost its soul is nothing but a small stone. Therefore, Dacianus, who initially collected salt crystals and studied them, had no choice but to hastily revise his plan when he realized this fact."

Rather than examining the completed decision, the focus became more on the process by which it was made.

"That was a good thing."

If the flame crystal had functioned intact even after death, Dacianus, who was absorbed in research, might have gone around chopping off people's heads, right? A rare and cruel killer was almost born on the continent.

"Besides, if we made a mistake, the entire Kornsim clan could become a target."

"... I see."

Seonghwang's reply came a step late.

'Huh? for a moment. What was this guy just thinking? 'Why are you making such a regretful expression?'

For a moment, Seongjin thought of a frightening possibility, but quickly shook the thought out of his head.

"But Dacian already knew. "Sometimes in special cases, salt crystals that function properly even after the death of their creator exist in the world."

Hwiik-

Once again, a ray of wind passes by Seongjin's cheek. The door is closed, but is the wind blowing from somewhere?

"Special cases?"

Seonghwang did not answer right away this time, but just stared at Seongjin. In that strange gaze, Seongjin was soon able to find the answer to the riddle.

"It's a milestone."

"... .."

"That's why you said the results were the same. "If Dacian really succeeded in creating the milestone, he would have created the perfect 'Dacion' that could protect his soul even after death."

At the point when he succeeds in creating a milestone, his immortality has already been automatically achieved.

Grumble!

Seongjin was lost in thought as he looked at the Demon King swaying precariously in the wind.

There is a lot to infer based on the information obtained so far.

When the body dies and the soul leaves the body, the flame crystal gradually loses its function. The essence of the salt crystal is that it exists only for the soul, and is an organ for the soul.

But why does Oracle's milestone remain intact? A milestone, a flame crystal, or a dacion, aren't they all essentially the same?

'No way, there's still a part of the soul left in the milestone...' ... ?'

Seongjin thought about that for a moment and shook his head. Oh, no way. There are already several milestones left by my grandmother. A person's soul is not broken into so many pieces.

Hwii-

"But father."

Seongjin tilted his head, brushing up his hair that was blowing in the strong wind.

"Since a while ago, the wind keeps blowing from somewhere."

No, should I really call this wind?

[Lee Seong-jin... ..]

Pulling the anxious Demon King towards the lamp, Seongjin carefully looked around the seemingly quiet room.

'This... ..'

It's definitely a feeling I've experienced at some point. A feeling of something being forcefully pulled. The feeling that the whole world is only looking at you.

It was the sense that [Causation] was moving.

"Yes, it has to be that way."

Space vibrates slightly, and the time axis creaks slightly.

However, even though the situation was becoming more and more serious, Seonghwang's expression remained calm.

"Perhaps I have slightly exceeded the limit of causality allowed to me. "I had some spare time because I had taken it from the tribal representatives a while ago, but it seems like it wasn't enough."

"... yes?"

"Now the world will slowly tilt and then twist at an increasingly faster rate. "Sooner or later, the Delcross dimension will come to an end like this."

"Yes?"

What does this mean all of a sudden?

"Ah, it may be that [disaster] pours through a gap in the world first."

"... .. ?!"

For the first time in his life, Seongjin realized that he couldn't even get angry if people were so ridiculous. If this gentleman's words are true, something really big has happened right now!

"We need to get to a safe place first, father!"

Seongjin held on to the lamp and urgently pulled Seonghwang's sleeve with his other hand.

"Mores."

"Let's go downstairs! First, we need to get out of this village quickly, taking Sir Masain and the idiot with him... .. !"

"Mores."

Stop.

With his overly calm attitude, Seongjin slowly looked back at Seonghwang. And soon, he heard a voice that had not yet been spoken out loud from his calm eyes.

Okay.

The hand holding the sleeve suddenly lost its strength.

"uh... .."

Seongjin looked at Seonghwang blankly. what? Why is my father like this? Of course, I have strong faith in my father. but... ..

Then Seongjin became aware of the strange voice that had been sneaking in earlier and was now ringing in his head.

'Who on earth chose all this?'

... It was confusing.

"Mores."

At that time, Seonghwang slowly got up from his seat and came in front of Seongjin.

"I wish I had time to talk to you a little longer. But isn't this a cause and effect that you achieved after much effort? So, even if I had to give up other opportunities, I wanted to somehow tell you the story about Dacianus."

"Dacianus."

Only then did Seongjin's eyes, which had been wandering here and there, regain focus.

iced coffee.

"Did all of this happen because I got Dacian's secretary?"

"... .."

Seonghwang didn't open his mouth, but his eyes were silently focused on the book on the table.

For a moment, Seongjin was completely sure of the answer he did not give.

"And by getting that book... .."

Seongjin's voice began to tremble little by little.

"To be able to listen to my father's explanation... And you have achieved the proper cause and effect to properly perceive the situation."

Why was the Holy Emperor able to give a detailed explanation about Dacianus, unlike usual? Seongjin intuitively understood the reason.

Cause and effect.

Obtaining this secretary was an undeniable necessity for building that relationship.

"Yes, son. "You made the best choice you could in a situation where you had no choice."

"... .."

"In the midst of the complex intertwining of someone's desire and timing, you have obtained a crucial clue that will allow you to properly intervene in this world.

Ddd dd
dddddddddd... ..

The quiet room shakes without a sound. An intense turmoil that only two people in this world can feel.

In the midst of the distortion, Seongjin looked at Seonghwang with a bewildered face.

'That's really true. 'It was all my choice.'

In order to attack Verseus d'Arciano, who is making systematic moves to oppose 'Bertrán & Lee' -

To retrieve Louise, who had to leave somewhere alone carrying a large burden -

And, to condemn the sinister Margrave Hendrik, who is plotting something in Sigismund.

but... .. !

"But father."

Seongjin's voice calling out loudly made me fall in love with it, little by little, without me realizing it.

"The price for that was too high."

"Mores."

"Above all, because of me, Lord Martha, his soul is now... .."

Seongjin instinctively understood.

What happened to Lord Masaine yesterday is permanent damage that can no longer be undone. And all the disasters that happened to him were caused by his own unconscious choices.

'It's all because of me-'

Tuk!

At that time, I felt a hand gently stroking Seongjin's head. A calm voice that sounds like comfort.

"Don't blame yourself so much, son. "There were always appropriate precautions for your actions."

"... ..!"

"And now I am here to help you."

Seongjin blinked for a moment at his unexpected words.

... there is? How to fix Lord Masaine?

"How on earth? father! "What should I do?"

Seongjin had a desperate expression on his face without even realizing it. The reason why the discomfort that had continued to irritate his nerves was instantly relieved when he faced his father.

Wasn't it just a feeling of relief?

"There is no need to be so hasty."

Seonghwang, who answered briefly, paused for a moment and smiled faintly.

"Didn't I tell you once, Mores? "There is no need for you to be forced to make that choice yet."

"father."

"You are still young. So, wouldn't it be okay to leave that burden to someone else sometimes?"

Tuk-tuk.

With the steady hand tapping on the head, the emotions that were boiling violently inside slowly subside.

After a while, when Seongjin finally regained complete stability, Seonghwang slowly lowered his arms and smiled. With the rapidly sinking world on his back, his eyes towards Seongjin emit a bright silver glow.

"If you do it, Mores." "From now on, I will show you in person how the true 'Dacion' that Dacianus spent his entire life trying to obtain is made."

Now it all depends on what I want to see. Mores.

447. Dacion (4)

Knock.

I can hear the sound of water drops falling.

smart.

At the same time, a stench that stings your nose. Seongjin frowned at her inadvertently and looked around her.

The scenery in front of me looks quite familiar. Damp walls clinging to dirt and moss. A black tunnel that is hard to see inside even with the eyesight of an Auror user.

'uh?'

what? Were you in the inn room with your father just a moment ago? While we were talking about Dacion, in the end, causality overflowed and the world was shaken... ..

"... "If there was a sewer system built throughout, it would definitely be as complicated as a spider's web."

At that time, a voice Seongjin knew well came from next to him. When I turned around, I saw Lord Masaine talking to someone with a serious expression.

"There needs to be someone to guide the way, or at least a map to know the internal structure... .."

Lord Masaine? What on earth are you doing here?

While Seongjin is blinking, the other person grumbles and answers Lord Masain.

"This is ridiculous. "Are you looking for an intact map in a ruined refugee camp?"

The guide's voice was clearly filled with dissatisfaction. Only then did Seongjin realize that he had experienced the current situation not long ago.

Ah, yes. This is Furiano. That author was a guide at the Freedom Underground, and he led us to the sewer where Giacomo Milo was hiding.

"Then at least a torch... .."

In response to Lord Masain's protest, Seongjin intervened with a strong sense of déjà vu.

"Sir Martha."

Then, like a mechanical doll moving according to a predetermined program, she held up a small lamp towards him. Not one bit different from what it was a while ago.

"are you okay. Because we have this guy."

that's right. I remember more and more.

At the time, Seongjin had a strong premonition that he would be able to find Giacomo Milo right away. So, without a map or a torch or anything else to look for, he decided to blindly go into the sewer and look.

And according to my memory, the following answer came back from the Demon King.

-Ahem! Leave it to this great demon lord!

"... ..?"

But for some reason, no thoughts come from the Demon King.

When I looked up at the lamp, I saw that the guy was very scared for some reason and the flame was only faintly withdrawn.

Why is this guy doing this again?

"... "Come on, let's go."

Seongjin began to walk with a trembling feeling. Then, Owen's bright voice comes from behind, just like before.

"You'll be fine without a guide or map, brother. new... Mores said, but there is really only one path in the dungeon..."

Other than the Demon King's reaction, everything was as I remembered.

What on earth is going on now?

Jump and jump.

Hearing the loud sound of footsteps, Seongjin slowly brought back the scene in his memory.

'The road definitely split around there.'

Then, a fork in the road appeared at the very expected point.

'If you go a little further, there was a place where the bricks were left in a row and had fallen out.'

After a while, the same damaged wall as I remembered appears.

""

Seongjin felt like he was dreaming.

Now, I was confused as to whether these were really memories I had experienced in the past, or whether it was a premonition I felt stronger than usual.

'Or have I finally gone crazy?'

The possibility cannot be denied. But for some reason, Seongjin had a strong belief that this was absolutely not the case.

Although he was in a strange situation, his mind was clearer and calmer than ever. It was as if there was a lamp shining brightly in his mind, pushing away the thick fog of ambiguity and disbelief.

'Well, if you think of yourself as crazy, does that mean you're really mentally ill?'

Slurp.

Following the sound of sewage flowing, Seongjin led the group deep into the sewer. And around that time, Seongjin was able to discover another difference from before.

'weird? At this point, I definitely had a strange feeling, didn't I?'

It was like that. While he was guiding the group along the way without any hesitation the other day, he was possessed by a strong premonition that something was not going as planned.

But what about now?

'I'm not really anxious.'

I have a strange feeling that somehow everything will turn out well. It's been a while since I felt this way.

'And maybe around here...' ... '

Seongjin lifted the lamp upward and looked at the waterway through which sewage water flowed. Maybe he saw a rotten rat moving around here.

The first person to discover it was the Demon King.

-Lee Seong-jin, look at that! There's something strange over there!

But for some reason, the Demon King quietly kept his mouth shut and, unlike before, just slowly observed Seongjin's thoughts. Seongjin, who was worse off, tapped the lamp and called out to the devil.

"Hey, hey. why are you like this?"

Then he reluctantly answered in a hushed voice.

[Yes... ..]

"why? "What's uncomfortable?"

[Oh, no. nothing.]

What's the problem? It was when Seongjin tilted his head.

"Lowering!"

Suddenly, Lord Masain became thoughtful and blocked Seongjin's path.

"Do not go too close to the waterway! "There's something strange over there!"

"huh?"

I followed his gaze -

Wiggle. Wiggle.

As expected, there was a rotting rat there, twitching disgustingly.

"omg! what's this? "Even though you're dead, you're still moving?"

Sir Martha made the sign of the cross, pulling Owen's cloak back as he unconsciously approached him.

"Ah, Lord. Please protect me from the tricks of evildoers!"

As I craned my neck over Lord Masaine's shoulder, I remembered the same broken text windows as before.

?TY□E_m_und□□d_no29□2□9?

?err! Can't confirm the appropriate object!?

?err! ge□Ah!$2└─Could not□confirm the server... .. ?

As before, an unknown discomfort creeps in.

It felt as if something was shaking and jumping out of the tightly bolted door.

If you don't quickly get that thing out of my sight... ... !

"I don't want to see it, so let's burn it."

Seongjin shook the devil's lamp.

[...]]

But the demon lord, who should have been excited and started a fire, once again shrinks without answering. If it continues to get smaller like this, I'm worried that one day the flame will go out altogether.

"hey-"

It was when Seongjin urgently tried to secure him once again.

[...] You can do it.]

Suddenly someone spoke to me.

An all-too-familiar voice, from an all-too-familiar location.

"uh..."

Seongjin looked into space and blinked.

No, there may be no point in looking somewhere. Because that longing voice clearly came from inside my head.

'... father?'

As if answering Seongjin's question, a faint vibration passes through the brain.

And the voice said:

[Use Auror.]

As if drawn to those words-

Woe!

Seongjin's thoughts turned to his fingertips, creating a dark red aura. The most powerful flame he knows that burns everything in the world.

"Lowering?"

Masain looks at that figure with surprised eyes. Although she taught Seongjin the Auror exercises herself, she thought that she was not yet at the stage where she could freely use external energy.

'That's amazing. 'When did you grow up like this?'

Seongjin noticed the admiration and smiled proudly.

After burning down the sewer a while ago, I realized that I had somehow become more adept at using Aurors. As I quietly watch the flames fluttering of their own volition, the discomfort from earlier seems to disappear like melting snow.

It would probably have been better if there wasn't a guy next to him hitting the candle.

"Hmm, but it's still far away, isn't it? Mores. "Are you starting to see smoke coming out of your sleeves?"

"... "It's noisy, you idiot."

Seongjin frowned and set fire to the rat's corpse.

Grumble!

The flame that leaves the fingertips quickly turns to high temperature and eats the mouse. Smelling the unpleasant smell of burning protein, Seongjin concentrated his mind to keep the flame from disappearing.

-Wherever the gaze goes, human perception always follows, right?

-huh.

-So, it is just a theory that a thought naturally arises there and the aura is drawn to it.

I remember the trick I learned from Logan the day I caught a dinosaur in Bathurst Territory.

-The important thing is to never let go of oneness with the outside air. And be careful not to lose sight of them even for a moment.

It was said that if you do that, even if the auror leaves the body, it is the same as not leaving the body. Anyway, Logan's child is completely identical to his father's.

[You're good at it.]

Whether or not he knew that I was secretly mocking him, I heard a calm compliment again in my head.

Meanwhile, the body was almost completely destroyed, and the flames were slowly starting to die down.

[Yes, that will do. To remove the curse that forcibly binds Bion, all you have to do is burn all of the bodies that are the center of the curse.]

'But father. Is that really enough?'

Seongjin asked worriedly.

Although it is said that the soul was removed by burning the body, completely burning the damaged soul would probably not be easy with current capabilities.

In addition, there were piles of such unkillable monsters piled up in this sewer. If we miss even one of them, there is no telling what kind of devastating impact it will have not only on the people here in the Furiano Refugee Camp, but also on the entire continent.

That's why, the other day, I quickly burned down this sewer by crossing a line that I would never have crossed in the first place.

[slowly.]

As if realizing Seongjin's impatience, a calm voice soothed him.

[It's not a matter of time anyway. You have enough time to help all of them.]

'... ... !'

[The continent is not in danger. I'm watching.]

'father... ... !'

I no longer hear an answer. But Seongjin could still feel the presence of a small light shining in her own head.

"Come on, let's hurry."

Seongjin, who had burned all the rats, raised his head and looked at the two people. A loyal knight who can still make eye contact with him safely, and a fool who seems to follow him forever as long as he speaks.

"We have to catch Giacomo Milo quickly."

"Sir, your presence has split into two."

Hearing Masain's report, Seongjin glanced back at Owen. Originally, quests would have slowly appeared around this time. So, didn't she decide to act separately from Seongjin and her group?

"... ... ?"

But Owen looked at Seongjin blankly with an expression on his face that said he didn't know anything.

"why?"

"... "Any news yet?"

"huh? what?"

"The status window. Surely it's time to give you a quest to find something?"

"what? "What?"

Seongjin furrowed his eyebrows as he looked at Owen, who was shocked.

No quests yet? Why? Could it be because I decided not to split my group this time?

'or not... 'Have you already obtained Dacian's secretary once?'

At that time, Owen urgently approached Seongjin.

"Wait a minute, Mores. "What do you think of this quest?"

As he speaks, his eyes widen as if he realizes something. Then, he suddenly smiles brightly and goofily!

"ha ha ha!"

"hmm?"

"Hahaha! okay! I knew it!"

"... "What on earth?"

Then Owen, who was laughing like crazy, suddenly threw his arm around Seongjin's shoulder and shouted.

"okay! I knew you were that newbie! "I already knew everything!"

"... .."

"Hahahahaha!"

Masaine looked at him in confusion, but Owen was already so excited that he didn't notice his suspicious gaze at all. The guy tapped Seongjin on the shoulder and laughed heartily.

"ha ha ha! men and horses! Why didn't you tell me until now? "How long have I been looking for you?"

This guy, is it too noisy?

The hand naturally rose, and a cheerful hitting sound rang out.

Sigh!

"Ahh!"

Owen held his forehead in shock. Not only was she in pain, but her expectations were betrayed, and her face was sad.

"no! Why are you hitting me all of a sudden? "It hurts!"

"It's noisy, you idiot. "Are you going to reveal our location to Giacomo Milo?"

"... "Inhale!"

After glaring hard at the guy who quickly closed his mouth, Seongjin turned and hurried on his way.

"Let's go quickly. Giacomo Milo is right around the corner."

"Well, sir, what about the other one? If one is really Giacomo Milo's presence, the remaining one may be his colleague."

In response to Masain's anxious question, Seongjin suddenly remembered a voice in his head.

-It's not a matter of time anyway. You have enough time to help them all.

okay. Is there anything to worry about? I missed it once before anyway. Besides, it looks like we'll meet again next time.

Seongjin made up his mind and gave instructions to Masain.

"It's okay, Sir Martha. Because our goal is Giacomo Milo. "There's nothing to worry about, just one or two rats living in the sewers."

Then Masain thought for a moment, then nodded with firm eyes as always.

"yes. "I understand, sir."

okay. This is the Sir Martha I know. Seongjin felt a little relieved and she started walking with him.

And after them, Owen, who seems to have lost a screw somewhere, follows them. It seemed like he couldn't quite hide his excitement from earlier.

"Haha! Ha ha ha ha ha!"

Oh, that stupid guy. It subtly makes people nervous.

448. Dacion (5)

Almost everything went as I remembered. Seongjin was able to meet Giacomo Milo, who was hurriedly escaping from the sewer, at the same place as before.

"Da, you?!"

Giacomo, who suddenly encountered Seongjin and his group, was very embarrassed and tried to take something out of his pocket.

Of course, at the same time-

Whoosh- whoosh!

The dagger flew by quickly and landed mercilessly on the back of Giacomo Milo's hand.

"Huh?"

The pain hit me late.

"Kaaaaaaak!"

While Giacomo Milo was rolling around on the floor in pain, Seongjin hurriedly walked up to his side and retrieved the fallen elixir.

It was a black elixir that he had traded in exchange for Dacian's secretary, which almost brought a terrible disaster to the continent.

"Off... Bird, Salos!"

Giacomo Milo gritted his teeth and summoned the devil who had made a contract with him.

Up until now, he had held out for revenge on the world, but now that the elixir of conversion had fallen into the hands of the enemy, there were no other options left.

"Please come here and protect me! Defeat my enemies! "If you will do that, I will give you my body right now!"

But why? There was absolutely no response from his demon. As if they are very afraid of something, they have even completely closed the channel connected to the contractor.

"... Salos?"

As Giacomo muttered helplessly, the boy who had been looking around at the elixir looked down at him arrogantly.

"I don't think there will be any immediate erosion this time. "I thought about it before, but the devil who made a contract with you is quite cunning."

"... ... ?"

"Well, I promised you something before, so I will help your soul in any way I can. But we will have to pay the price of causing great harm to the continent."

A red light flashed from the boy's pupils.

"So, shall we get started with some hitting first?"

Wow!

Soon, Giacomo's desperate screams rang out through the damp air of the sewer.

After safely capturing Giacomo Milo, Seongjin and his party followed another faint trace and headed toward the center of the sewer.

The speed wasn't that fast. This is because if any dead animal was found along the way, every single one of them had to be burned.

"Lowering. The sight is getting further and further away. Wouldn't it be better to first catch the author and then call the priests to purify him?"

Masain asked nervously.

"No, Sir Martha."

Although he had already sensed that the presence was disappearing one step before him, Seongjin shook his head resolutely.

Seongjin already knew. Even if they found the wizard who did this anyway, they would be blocked by the moving corpses and would eventually miss them.

In that case, there was no need to reveal their identity to him.

"Besides, these things are more dangerous than they look, Lord Masaine. "Not a single piece of the body should be left behind."

"yes. It seems like that, but..."

At first glance, it seemed like the work of an evil devil. Masain mournfully made the sign of the cross towards the writhing stray cat engulfed in flames.

So when the party finally arrived at the wizard's laboratory, the evil wizard was already long gone.

Roughly damaged magic circles can be seen here and there on the wall. Various research materials, including Dacian's secretary, also disappeared.

and-

Squeak! Snap!

Kkkkkkkk! Crumble!

Kwaaaaaa...

A variety of corpses released from cages fill the lab.

"Lord, my God!"

Masain sighed.

"You don't just touch animals. They even do something like that to people... Who could it be? How could you do something so terrible...
... !"

"hmm."

But Masain didn't know. The scene that Seongjin is seeing now is an even more miserable scene than what he sees with his own eyes.

[...] my... body... why... Turn it off...]

[...] Save me... someone... please... fat...]

Souls are struggling in pain. With Bion chained to his rotting body, even the essence of his soul is being eaten away by corruption.

I'm crying!

Seongjin tried to suppress the intense discomfort welling up inside him. Although he had already experienced this once, it was difficult for him to maintain composure in the face of a scene that so directly denied death.

Then, as if I had been waiting, I heard a soft voice in my head.

[Son.]

Yes. I know. I know very well, father.

Even though I know the outcome, I don't repeat the same mistake.

"Whoa..."

After exhaling softly, Seongjin placed a small lamp on the floor and called out to the Demon King.

In order not to lose myself in the face of a scene that constantly stimulated my inner essence, I absolutely needed the strength of this little guy.

"Hey, devil."

[...] huh.]

I was almost worried that it would shrink and disappear like this, but fortunately, the Demon King gave me an answer, at least with a crawling sound.

"You need to help me from now on."

[...]]

"From now on, I'm going to burn them all. "Let's burn this place down with me."

For a moment, Owen's disapproving gaze landed on the back of his head, but Seongjin lightly ignored it and continued speaking.

"You've been feeling stuffy since you've been in the lamp all this time, right? "When the opportunity comes, you should use your power to the fullest."

[...]]

"I need your strength now."

The Demon King did not respond, but the flames trembled as if reflecting the turmoil in his heart.

Seongjin, who discovered some possibility there, began to calm him down more gently.

"It's okay, Demon King. "I know what you're worried about."

okay. I know very well what he is afraid of. Because every time he looked down at the guy's lamp, he felt that the light shining in his head was also looking in the same direction.

'I'm sure he feels his father's presence strongly.'

This must be the same reason why the devil who signed a contract with Giacomo Milo does not come near him, unlike before. His father's existence is a death sentence in itself for demons.

"But we're okay. You know that too, right? "My father is always on our side."

[...]]

"You are my family, and your strength is my strength. Attacking you is the same as attacking me. But, Demon King, can you even imagine my father harming me?"

The Demon King's flame flinched at that question.

[...] no.]

The Demon King's flame began to noticeably regain its color. It seemed as if a drastic change of thinking was taking place within him.

[No, Seongjin Lee.]

"Yes, that's it. So, come out here and see."

[...] huh!]

Pong!

The Demon King seemed to have finally gained courage and jumped out of the lamp. Then, he slowly hovers around Seongjin and watches him. To be precise, we are not looking at Seongjin, but rather what exists in his head.

The demon king who circled around like that-

[Hey...]

When I realized that nothing was going to happen, I felt relieved and let out a spark.

[Hehehe!]

[...]]

At that moment, a slightly displeased feeling was conveyed through the decision in his mind without filtering, but Seongjin pretended not to notice this for everyone's sake.

"Well then, shall we go?"

Sreung!

Seongjin slowly pulled out the nutcracker. As she felt the familiar feel of the hilt, she realized once again where she was now.

Grumble!

As the thought dawned, a dark red aura quickly covered the sword body.

"Owen. Lord Masaine."

I can feel the two people, who had already taken out their weapons, quietly listening to Seongjin's voice.

"Let's organize them neatly first."

When three strong Auror users launched an offensive, the wizard's laboratory was quickly suppressed.

The red flames of the Demon King covered the miserable wreckage and burned fiercely.

[Heh! Hehe! This is easy!]

The guy, who was relatively calm and proud compared to usual, burned not only the flesh of the corpse but also all traces of the magic circle.

'Yes, everything is going well.'

Seongjin, who violently shook off the nutcracker, scattering blood and flesh, looked around while sharpening his sword.

"It's a newbie. "If you still have trouble controlling your aura, stay back. The end of your cloak is on fire."

Owen lightly pulls Seongjin back. The other day, I was in a mess trying to deal with corpses and do quests at the same time. Compared to that, it now looks more relaxed and neat.

"Lowering. With this, it seems like all the monsters in the sewer have been killed. "If we hurry, we might be able to chase down the runaway wizard."

Of course, there is no need to mention Sir Martha, who appears to be in a healthy state of mind. Although he fired a large Auric attack several times, he faced Seongjin without the slightest sign of fatigue. The deep-rooted guilt eating away at his soul can no longer be seen in his eyes.

Seongjin muttered with great relief.

"Everything is going well."

[huh? what?]

The demon king, who has finally escaped his fear and excitedly set the fire, sits down on the lamp as a prisoner and asks.

Yes, this guy cannot be left out either. Needless to say, things are better than before, right?

When I was walking around setting fires by myself, I was busy calling my name, not knowing what to do.

"Considering that you were crying like an idiot, this is the right path, even if it takes some time."

Then the Demon King asked again as if he was puzzled.

[...] What are you talking about? Seongjin Lee. Who cried?]

ah.

At that moment, Seongjin realized. Does the Demon King also not remember anything from the past?

Then a new question reared its head again.

'Did I really go back in time? If not, now I... ..'

At that time, as if to interrupt his unnecessary deepening of thoughts, he heard a familiar voice in his head again.

[Son. Is that really that important now?]

Seongjin quickly erased his doubts and shook his head.

No, father. Absolutely not.

"What should I do, my uncle? Are you following the wizard even now?"

In response to Masain's question that came just in time, Seongjin turned to him and smiled brightly without realizing it.

"huh? no. Sir Masain. "It's fine as is."

"... yes?"

Towards him who was taken aback by the unexpected reaction, Seongjin spoke emphatically again.

"Leave it alone, Lord Masaine. "I think it would be best if it just stayed like this."

After thoroughly purifying the sewers of Furiano, they returned to the village entrance late at night.

The group boarded the 'special delivery' carriage again and were only able to leave Furiano at a much later time than before.

But Seongjin wasn't too worried. Since he knows his next destination for sure, all he has to do this time is ask the driver to head straight to Terre.

"Owen."

"huh?"

"hungry. "Hurry up and bring me something delicious."

"OK got it."

Owen, who had been unconsciously holding the milestone in his hand, suddenly said, "Huh?" He looked back at Seongjin with an expression that said,

"... But are you a newbie?"

"uh."

"Yes, you. "Why aren't you so naturally looking for something to eat from me?"

"That's because you can bring something to eat. "Why is that?"

In response to Seongjin's confident answer, Owen made a shocked expression.

"Well, that's right."

"okay."

Seongjin nods his head, then suddenly remembers something and says, "Ah!" ' she added.

"And by the way, you should probably get me a limited edition eyepatch."

"eye patch?"

"Yeah, if you hand it over to me, maybe the status window will open a sale window?"

"... omg?"

At that moment, Owen looked into space and made an angry expression.

"Really? There's a limited edition eye patch on the market, and it's almost free! Newbie, how on earth did you know?"

"Stop talking nonsense and buy that eyepatch first. Oh, and since I'm throwing you out, take out some of the stamina potions you don't use in advance."

"Stamina potion? Why is that again?"

"I have to make tea later."

"car?"

Owen's expression became increasingly confused, but Seongjin paid no attention to his questions and leisurely leaned back against the carriage.

What is it like? Everything has changed from before. Everything is going as it should!

Seongjin, who had relaxed for the first time in a long time, put down the devil's lamp next to him and stretched.

"Bethelah... .."

Of course, there were some things that didn't change much from before.

"Ah, you who are prepared!"

Giacomo Milo, wrapped around a rope, was looking at Seongjin passionately, repeatedly chanting the name of the cross. If he had been paying close attention, he would have figured out who had used the powerful fairy to purify the wizard's laboratory.

Sure enough, the venom and resentment that had filled Giacomo's eyes were suddenly replaced by admiration and joy.

"Representative of mighty monarchs! Please accept my soul. And let it be used in your plan... .."

"... .."

Seongjin made a disgusted expression.

Well, it seems like the end result of that friend getting a little sick of it is inevitable. Fortunately, it doesn't seem like I've completely lost my mind like before.

449. Dacion (6)

Even after arriving in Tere village, things went much easier.

First, Seongjin found Oliver loitering in front of the inn and asked him various questions.

"Hey, you. Do you have a 'junior business certificate' issued by the imperial palace?"

Then Oliver opened his eyes and turned around.

"yes? Ah yes. "Yes, but who are you?"

"You want to sell the herbs you collected in the countryside, right?"

"They will probably also handle teosinte seeds, which are rarely seen in the North."

"What? Yes, that's right! But how on earth can you do that? ... ?"

"But until now, you've probably had a hard time earning money, right? So, you were wondering whether you should at least put up a stall in front of the inn."

"omg?!"

Oliver gasped in astonishment. Just by looking at him, he recited his situation as if he had looked into his heart, which was just surprising.

Seongjin added quickly before the young man's head could turn to reason.

"Oh, just so you know, unfortunately, that plan will fail. The owner wouldn't even blink at a certain height, right? "That person is no ordinary person either."

"yes? No, then what should I do now... .. !"

"What should I do? As it is, the investment money in the imperial palace is completely lost. "You just have to go back to the countryside and start farming again."

Then the simple country boy fell to his knees on the ground and screamed.

"Ah, ah, no! I promised Lilian that I would definitely come back as a prize winner! I can't even farm in my hometown anymore! "I lost everything I had for this trip!"

Seongjin was dumbfounded.

Look at this guy. What did you believe that you wasted all your money on for a business with no promises? Isn't this guy going to be in real trouble?

'I don't know who that 'Lirian' is, but I guess I've already almost given up my feelings for you when I saw you liquidating your assets without a plan?'

But there was no other way. In order to combat the spread of medicine carts, there was no choice but to turn this lowly friend into a proper merchant.

Hehehe! Hehehe!

Seongjin, who was looking pitifully at the young man who was shedding tears of despair, waited for his crying to subside and gently touched his shoulder.

"But don't worry. You are so lucky to have met me here. "You were so lucky."

"Sobbing! "By the way, I've been asking this since a while ago, but who are you?"

"It's not that big of a problem. "Even though I'm like this, I have quite a bit of knowledge in business, and what's important is that I have connections at great companies like 'Bertrán & Lee.'"

"Well, is that really true? "Sniff!"

"then. Where is that? I have the means to make your teosinte the most fashionable tea on the continent."

Jinglang.

Seongjin took out a shiny gold coin from his pocket and held it in front of the young man, who was still in doubt.

"Enough of this, let me prove it first. Will you hand over all your belongings and do as I tell you? "I guarantee you that all your herbs will be gone by today."

"... ... !"

"This is an offer that won't do you any harm. Even if we fail to sell out, I will take responsibility and purchase the remaining herbs at a high price."

The eyes of the young man who was looking at the gold coin as if fascinated were soon filled with the light of hope.

He stared at Seongjin with tearful eyes, then fell to the floor and shouted.

"Unbelievable! Who are you really? Are you really that great sage who is famous in the Marquis of Benso? Or are you just an angel given by the Lord to save me, poor me?"

hmm? No, no matter what, angels are a bit...

When Seongjin shyly avoided his passionate gaze, the Demon King seemed displeased and sparked a spark onto the lampshade.

[and... Seongjin Lee, you conscienceless fraudster...]

At the same time, he felt like he heard a small sigh in his head, but that was probably just Seongjin's illusion.

No problem.

The work to create the miracle Teosinte MK2 proceeded smoothly.

There was no longer a need for experiments such as mixing medicinal ingredients or adjusting proportions. Because I already knew most of the results.

So Seongjin's concerns went in a slightly different direction.

"Before, I was thinking of selling it first, but... .."

In order to distribute teosinte on a large scale, a more fundamental solution was needed than the one-dimensional gimmick of mixing a potion with tea.

Could it be possible to maintain the efficacy of teosinte with just a small amount of stamina potion?

'no. If the seeds themselves cannot be changed, it is more correct to believe that long-term sales are impossible.'

Of course, there is no way to afford to do things like improve seeds. But for some reason, Seongjin was able to intuitively realize what the solution to all these problems was.

as soon as-

"father. "Please help me."

[...]]

"No, no. This is something that is really, really important for the continent. Don't just sigh like that. yes?"

Why not?

From when Seongwang explained about Dacianus, and from when Seongjin went to any lengths to return to the past. Seongjin was acutely aware of the feeling that his power, which he had usually suppressed for cause and effect, was liberated and spread out in all directions without any hesitation.

For such a success, nothing is impossible anymore.

'I believe it! 'You all have a way, right?'

I listened intently with that vague expectation, and after a while, a slightly uneasy answer came back to me in my head.

[...] First, let's gather all the Teosinte seeds in one place.]

"Yes, father!"

[Then sprinkle the potions you have evenly on it, spread it out in the sun to dry well, and put both hands...]

"Yes!"

[...] Don't laugh and focus, Mores. This is a way to create a simple flame barrier. If you learn it well now, you will be able to use it usefully later when you need it.]

"Ah, yes! Sure! "I'm focused!"

When all preparations were completed, Seonghwang personally performed the miracle in Seongjin's mind.

Hahahaha!

Wrapped in a halo of white light, the essence of Teosinte causes change. The mysterious process reminded Seongjin of the scene where Seonghwang once treated Director Bruno's gray plague.

A strong intention moves, numerous causes and effects come together, and the axes of time and space are shaken in their own way.

After twisting the laws of the world several times, the bright light finally disappeared and what was left before Seongjin's eyes was -

"wow... ... !"

It was a completely new type of teosinte that radiated a brilliant golden luster!

"Father, this is...""

Seongjin carefully lifted one of the teosintes and asked, and Seonghwang explained quietly.

[Tell the merchant to take care of them. Perhaps you can obtain seeds with the same effect.]

So, are you saying that the seed's genes themselves have changed?

"No, what on earth did you do to Teosinte? "How is this change possible in a short period of time?"

[It's no big deal, Mores. All I did was spread a simple flame barrier and tightly integrate the laws of the normal world into the seed.]

"..."

[Actually, didn't you have some sense of it too?]

It certainly was. It was a different feeling from watching Director Bruno's treatment process.

The movement of thoughts that are vividly conveyed, and the clear intention felt within them. I felt like the entire process of Seonghwang's transfer was completely stuck in my head.

'Maybe it's because my father is in the flame crystal?'

Why? This sensation was not completely unfamiliar. It feels somehow very familiar and nostalgic.

"Anyway, if this happens, the story will be completely different, right?"

Seongjin grinned and raised the corners of his mouth.

At first, I was planning on getting into Oliver's business and siphoning off some of the royalties.

but-

"Shouldn't the guarantee be properly removed? If you think about it, everything from seeds to business plans is provided by us, right?"

It was a ruined business anyway, right? Oliver doesn't have the right to choose. As Seongjin was at a loss, she made a plan on her own.

'good. Should we at least put Sir Martha's name on this contract? Although he is a member of the prosperous royal family, he is a knight of the imperial palace and has no opportunity to make money for himself.'

Seongjin, who finished everything so perfectly, called Masain and Owen with a confident face.

"You're opening a stall and doing business? "Yourself?"

Naturally, Sir Martha's opposition was formidable.

"That's not right! As a member of the Seonghwang family, please keep your integrity!"

But Seongjin had enough reasons to persuade him.

"Calm down, Sir Martha. As you know, the people of the North are becoming addicted to Al-Aum-Alum Tea. "How miserable is this?"

"Yes, sir. I know that too, but... .."

"Wasn't our monster task force moving to dig into the roots of the medicine tea distribution and free people from the magic tea's clutches?"

"... .."

"And leading the monster task force is the 'noble duty' I have chosen. In other words, this is a mission that must be fulfilled as a member of the Holy Family."

But Lord Masain did not back down easily.

"Yes, sir. That is no reason for you to do business yourself. "Shouldn't we put even more effort into hunting down penitent sects?"

Tsk tsk.

Seongjin snapped his fingers and clicked his tongue.

"One person knows something, but two people don't. "Just by distributing new cars, we can block most of the forces of the Penitent Church."

"Yes, sir... .."

"Besides, this is for Amelia."

As the princess's name comes out of Seongjin's mouth, Masain also listens with an uneasy expression on her face.

"Listen, those with a 'semi-top business license' are the seeds of hope that Sister Amelia sent to the North. "If they can take root properly and become self-sufficient, what could be better for the continent's economy?"

"... .."

"Not only will it benefit the empire, but it can also help the poor northerners. "It's all for the greater good, Lord Martha."

Masain slightly raises one eyebrow. To briefly summarize its meaning, it was as follows.

-For a cause? You? No way?

However, there were no significant loopholes in Seongjin's explanation. In the end, with a disapproving expression, he began organizing the wooden planks for the breaking demonstration.

But Masain's suffering did not end there.

"Now, if you understand, please sign here, Sir Martha?"

"... "What is this again, sir?"

"huh? It's a simple contract. "The idea is that the profits earned from the technology you provided will be divided neatly in half."

"yes? With the technology I provided, what does that mean... .."

"Uh-huh! Don't try to find out in depth. It's just a good thing, so trust me and sign. hurry."

"... .."

So, in front of Tere's inn, another spectacular Teosinte launching event took place. Under a more elaborate and extravagant fireworks show, with products of even superior quality.

"Wow! "This is a miracle given by the Lord!"

"here! "Give me a bag of teosinte here too!"

"Get out of my way! "I was first in line!"

Business was booming than before. Teosinte sold out much earlier, and Oliver cried tears of joy as he patted his fat pockets.

And just like before, Seongjin found Seonghwang's group at the edge of the crowd.

A very familiar and welcoming sight, riding on the back of the Barca barbarian, wearing a thick hood.

Seongjin was pleased and tried to shout.

'Father... .. !'

But the next moment, Seongjin was overcome by an unprecedented sense of discomfort and froze in place.

'... uh?'

The presence of a small lamp still shining in his head, and another father staring at him from beyond the crowd.

Seongjin's eyes, which were blinking slowly, soon widened in shock.

'Father... 'There's another one over there?'

Sweet!

At that moment, the sound of two worlds coming together resonated in my head again.

450

450. Dacion (7)

The same scenes unfolded before Seongjin's eyes once again.

"Wow! "Owen!"

The Barça Savage clinging desperately to the hem of Owen's clothes -

"Hey haaa!"

A maid with a fierce face running towards me with a smile on her face, and-

"... .."

There was even a young informant who was blocking Seonghwang's path with a very wary expression.

"Shh. Edith. "I'm hiding my identity right now."

Pang pang! Carelessly pushing away the maid who was dusting off her clothes, Seongjin watched the scene of Owen approaching Seonghwang as if it were in her dream.

"Priest Bart! "What are you doing here?"

okay. All events proceed without any change from before.

'... I knew it.'

Seongjin already knew that things like before would happen. So he corrected his past mistakes and tried to achieve better results.

But what is this? When I came face to face with their father in real life, I felt a strange sense of floating, as if I was in a dream.

Which one is the real reality?

[Mores.]

At that time, Seonghwang spoke to me in my head.

[Pull yourself together. I know you are very confused right now. But you must not forget what you must do.]

A thing to do.

[We must go back. Same time and place as before.]

Yes, I know. father.

Because I had a feeling that it would be like that.

"... Phew."

Seongjin let out a small breath and took a step.

"Priest Bart."

As I carefully pulled his sleeve like before, the feeling I felt in my hand was a light weight that evaded the laws of the world.

"... .."

Nevertheless, when Seongjin realized that the unfamiliar sensation was just a pleasure, he fell into a strange feeling.

[Lee Seong-jin! Seongjin Lee!]

As the group sat together in the restaurant as before, the Demon King sent his thoughts to Seongjin and informed him of the incident.

[Look here! It's really strange! I can sense the laws of the normal world in that man named Bart!]

Demon King, you really have no memories of the past.

Knock knock.

After calming the demon king by lightly tapping on the lamp, Seongjin carefully examined the holy homunculus.

Another person who appeared on the TV said nothing. Stubbornly keeping his mouth shut is the same as before.

Nevertheless, Seongjin was able to sense a subtle difference in his attitude from before. When I think back to him before, he seemed very embarrassed that he couldn't even respond properly because he was trying to hide his identity.

But what about now?

"... .."

Under the calm atmosphere, I can feel his eyes, hidden behind a hood, occasionally touching my face as if searching.

[Lee Seong-jin, be careful! There's something strange about that kid. It clearly appears to be a spirit from the normal world, and a strange light like divine power is flowing out of it! What on earth is it?]

Listening to the Demon King's trembling voice, Seongjin slowly stood up. In order to start a conversation with him, it was necessary to first move to a place just for the two of us.

"... If it's uncomfortable for others to see, I'll order the meal to my room. "Priest Bart, please go to the room together first."

Then, the informant, who had been anxiously watching what he was doing, looked startled and blocked his path.

"Sir, I am embarrassed to tell you, but Priest Bart is not very good at the imperial language. So, I will be by your side-"

Seongjin looked at the informant with a sullen expression.

What on earth was this kid going to do from earlier? Isn't your job just to protect your father? But what? They say they just want to talk as a family, but why are they always acting like a child who gets their candy taken away?

"But you understand the imperial language 'very well.' 'Isn't that right?'"

"yes? Ah yes. That's true, but... .."

After casting a quick glare at the confused informant, Seongjin left the restaurant with Seonghwang. Of course, I didn't forget to ask Owen to bring food from the Pangea Chronicle.

"Ah, owner. Give that Barshain a barn and give him some porridge."

Seongjin, who had properly dealt with the barbarian, returned to the inn room with many unresolved questions.

The best room in the only inn in Terre. This is the space where the strange time experience first began.

Percussion.

After closing the door, Seongjin leaned against the door as before and sang a cheer.

"father."

However, unlike before, when he answered immediately, he did not respond to Seongjin's voice. He just looked at Seongjin blankly, took off his hood, and slowly sat down in front of the table.

"... .."

Just as anxiety creeps up beneath the uncomfortable silence, a soft voice rings in my head.

[Don't worry, Mores. You won't get any answer now. In any case, we must save 'cause and effect' so that the world does not collapse.]

"Do you care about cause and effect?"

That was the reason why the original Seonghwang maintained his silence every time,

"Then, father, on 'your' side..." Does this mean you no longer care about cause and effect?"

I couldn't help but be worried. The world she saw for the last time before she parted ways with him in her inn room, a world where everything was falling apart, was vivid before her eyes.

[okay. Now I am quite free from cause and effect.]

The word 'freedom' somehow doesn't sound like a very good thing.

But Seongjin couldn't ask any more details. Soon after, the excited inn owner ordered a hearty dinner. It was exactly the same time as before.

"ha ha ha! "If you need anything else, let me know anytime!"

widely.

Once the door was closed, Seonghwang slowly began to eat alone. Even though Seongjin didn't recommend it, he did it as if he had to.

'Father, you know something too.'

But this is just Seongjin's guess. It's just that I keep such a heavy silence.

Thanks to that, Seongjin, who had nothing else to do, sat down across from him and silently watched him eat.

However, this place was not completely quiet.

[Lee Seong-jin! What are you doing now? That guy, there's something dangerous! That's strange! Also, why does your face look so similar to your father? Don't do this, let's run away from here!]

There was no wind, but the flame in the lamp fluctuated like crazy. The demon lord is so scared that he is causing a fuss.

Seongjin calmly comforted the boy by throwing him a piece of meat as before.

"It's okay, Demon King."

[It's okay, what! Because you couldn't see that strange soul with your own eyes-!]

"Father."

[...] what?]

"It's not a strange spirit, it's my father."

The guy, who was momentarily dazed because he couldn't accept reality, suddenly let out a loud scream and shriveled up.

[Heeeeeee?!]

Why not? Just when he thought he had finally overcome the presence of the Seonghwang that had descended on Seongjin's mind, another Seonghwang appeared before his eyes!

The Demon King's flames in shock freeze pale. If things continue like this, I feel like it might go off soon.

"Hey, hey. Wake. "Eat this and cheer yourself up."

Seongjin sighed and had no choice but to diligently throw food to the demon king like before.

[Yes, Mores. Then it's okay. Just stay here and wait for the 'branch' time.]

quarter.

I had a feeling that it was an important clue. With his eyes, Seongjin looked at the Holy Homunculus eating, and with his ears, he paid close attention to the voice in his head.

[Fortunately, there is still some time left. Thanks to you, I think I can give you some explanation about what just happened.]

Then, Seonghwang's tableware slows down slightly.

For a moment, Seongjin became convinced that his father in front of him was listening to their entire conversation.

Meanwhile, the voice in my head was busy making various requests.

[Please remember, son. The fact is that I have been with you at Tere's inn all this time.]

"yes?"

Seongjin couldn't understand and asked a question.

"No, father. What is that now... ..?"

[This means that if the same result is placed before your eyes, there is no longer a need to investigate the cause and process one by one. Please keep in mind that such unwavering confidence is the way to connect all uncertain elements into one world.]

"... .."

[Also, know that the new experiences of the past few days are no different from the previous ones. In the end, all of these things exist at the same time in the same space and time, and are flowing in the same direction, but they do not flow at all and are fixed. You must always keep that fact in mind.]

"no... .."

Seongjin somehow became anxious. This is because the voice that suddenly poured out felt like a farewell message from him. Now, the problem was no longer just random content.

"Why are you doing this all of a sudden? What's going on in that world? Please answer me, father!"

However, instead of answering the question, Seonghwang left his last words a little urgently.

[Don't forget, Mores. The reason I leave the entire future to your judgment is because I already know the consequences that will occur.]

"Uh, uh... .."

[So there is no need to be frustrated no matter what happens in the future. You always did your best in everything, and ultimately achieved satisfactory results -]

At that time, [Branch] came without warning. A few days ago, it was exactly the same time when Seongjin took Dacianus's secretary out of his arms.

hook-!

With a momentary sense of emptiness in my mind-

Rattling!

A round object suddenly appeared and fell from Seongjin's front door onto the table, making a loud noise.

Tuk!

Deguru... ..

It was the sound of another world falling cruelly.

* * *

Blink.

Seongjin blinked and watched the movement of the unfamiliar stone.

Degurururu... ..

The small stone glowed brightly like a jewel and drew a circle. Then it gradually loses speed and soon stops in front of Seongjin.

Originally, this was probably where Dacian's secretary would have been placed.

Seongjin unconsciously felt in his arms and reaffirmed the fact that the secretary was no longer here. Now, in the place where the book was, there is only one dark gray gem, like soft crystal, shining.

"... .."

And finally, the business before our eyes showed a change.

He stopped eating altogether and stared at the jewel. The mineral eyes that glowed brightly under the backlight made him look like a precise machine that could read an enormous amount of information at once.

Seonghwang, who had been blinking for a while, finally opened his mouth in a low voice.

"It's okay, son. "It is all over now."

Seongjin looked at the homunculus in front of him with slightly shaking eyes.

okay. There is no doubt about it.

That presence, that voice.

After all, that person is my father.

"... father."

But why do I suddenly feel so choked up when I try to call him?

"Yes, Mores."

Seongjin had to feel both relief and emptiness at the same time at the answer he heard so obediently.

"What are all the things I've seen so far? Is it all an illusion? Or did I change the past?"

"Didn't you tell me? There is no need to think deeply. "I just saw what I wanted to see, and it all happened."

Uh, okay. I definitely heard that at first.

-Now it all depends on what I want to see. Mores.

But I'm still confused. Such a strange feeling, as if I had gone back several days in time, or as if I had stayed in this place forever.

Seongjin asked the question again with an anxious face.

"Then, father, where am I now? Is this a world where Lord Masaine's soul is shattered, or is it a world where all his mistakes have been undone? "Which is my real reality?"

Then Seonghwang put down the silverware, looked straight at Seongjin, and asked.

"Well, son. What do you think?"

"... .."

Seongjin unconsciously kept his mouth shut. I didn't want to hastily decide which one was reality.

No, it would be more correct to say that I am afraid. The moment I answer without thinking, I feel like I will create an irreversible fate for myself. Because of a moment's mistake, Sir Martha In would once again suffer irreversible damage to her soul.

"It's a wise decision."

As if he understood Seongjin's thoughts, Seonghwang smiled slightly.

"Mores."

"... "Yes, father."

"Look at this."

Seonghwang stretched out his hand and pointed to a small jewel on the table.

"What does it look like in your eyes?"

"milestone... is it?"

Seongjin instinctively realized this. The fact that this is a milestone that you created yourself.

It was completely different from the bright red jewel my grandmother left behind. It's probably different from the milestone that Seonghwang would have created someday.

A gem that shines in dark gray and is both cloudy and clear at the same time.

-From now on, I will show you directly how a true 'Dacion' is made.

It was exactly what it said.

The times Seongjin has experienced over and over so far were actually the process of everyone creating this milestone.

"..."

Another possibility that can no longer exist in the world.

When I gently picked up the brightly shining signpost, I felt a strong sense of longing and sadness that was difficult to explain along with the cold, inorganic touch.

451. Dacion (8)

Sweet.

During a moment of silence, Seonghwang lightly pulled a plate in front of him.

It is a starling dish that is smoked once and then grilled until the skin becomes crispy. It was the signature dish of the inn that the owner was quite confident about.

"... .."

Seongjin quietly followed the sight of him moving the dishes with his eyes.

In the previous time, Seongjin actively recommended the dish and even served it to him himself.

And the current Seonghwang, coincidentally, was cutting out a part that exactly matched the part that Seongjin had cut out at the time.

Seongjin thought blankly.

'No, it can't be a coincidence. 'What else does that action mean?'

Is it slowly reliving memories that I did not experience directly, or is it that I want to eliminate even a little sense of disconnection from the past?

Maybe it's both.

"Mores."

At that time, Seonghwang opened his mouth.

"What just happened is just one of many ways to create milestones. Of course, if you dig deeper into the underlying principles, you could say that they are all the same method in the end."

He moved the tableware and calmly added an explanation.

"The reason why what you have created this time is your milestone is because you are the one responsible for all of these things. Inevitably, I had to borrow a third party's perspective this time, but if you get used to it, you will be able to do it on your own from now on... .."

Then he stopped talking and stared for a moment at Seongjin, who was still silent with a stern expression.

"... "It's still confusing."

Seongjin nodded honestly.

"Yes, it is."

"okay."

Seonghwang seemed to be lost in thought for a moment as he put a piece of cut starling meat into his mouth. After finishing off the small amount of food he had prepared, he put down the utensils and continued speaking.

"If you do, Mores, I will use the interlude to tell you an old story."

"... "A story?"

"okay. "Once upon a time there was a famous prophet in Ionia."

Seongjin's expression became subtle. This explanation of borrowing a story is a method that Seonghwang often used to save some of the causality.

But why? If I were to listen to his voice, another voice came to mind, one that explained Dacianus without hesitation, without hesitation in the backlash of cause and effect.

"He tried to generously give his abilities to others. That's why he had relatively strong trust among people."

According to Seonghwang's explanation, the prophet was moderately selfish, but he still had an altruistic nature that basically sought to help others.

Therefore, he could not easily overlook the dangers of the people around him, and tried to get a better future by intervening whenever possible.

As a result, many people who heard his prophecy were able to be saved.

"Was he of the Kornsim clan?"

The moment he heard that, Seongjin's intuition flashed strongly.

"Are you sure it was the Oracle of Kornsheim? "Another oracle who lived in Ionia long ago, before the clan migrated to Delcross."

"... "Maybe it's not that important now."

Seonghwang trailed off, but Seongjin read a faint light of positivity on his face.

"Then one day it happened. The Prophet was suddenly falsely accused and brought to trial. His most trusted friend sold him out. "It was a tragedy that the prophet could not have foreseen and had never even thought of as a possibility."

Due to the unexpected betrayal of a close friend, the Prophet suffered indescribable horrors. His body was so crippled that it looked like he was not alive, and he lost his family and friends all at once.

When all the hardships ended, the prophet, who had barely survived, shed tears of blood and lamented. He could predict people's future and change the outcome, but he was not able to predict his own future properly. How can he then call himself a prophet?

"So the prophet, in deep despair, tried to end his life by stabbing his own heart."

Seonghwang's eyes deepened a little as he spoke up to that point.

"But right after his death, for some reason, he opened his eyes again with a normal appearance. "At his old house, one morning before the whole tragedy happened."

"... "The Prophet has returned to the past."

Seongjin focused on the story with an anxious expression. She's going back in time, and she's literally exactly like what she went through.

"Yes, Mores. The Prophet has truly returned to the past. "The moment he first realized that fact, he was filled with joy and burst into laughter without stopping."

It can be reversed. You can make all your mistakes disappear!

After that, the Prophet did what he had to do. Before Chinwoo sold himself, he struck the player and brought him to trial. By creating false evidence, he was able to completely bury his friend and successfully remove himself from some suspicious eyes.

He saved the family he had lost and took everything from the traitor and made it his own. The tragic past was successfully changed.

"Then at some point the prophet realized. "In fact, he may have been mistaken all along."

"mistaken... .."

"Yes, it's an illusion. Did he really return to the past, or did he just vividly foresee the terrible future to come? At least the prophet was no longer able to distinguish between the two on his own."

It might have been. Regardless of whether the ability to go back in time exists, the result would have been the same anyway. In the end, for the prophet it makes no difference which side is true.

Didn't another father say that too?

-It means that as long as the same result is placed before your eyes, there is no longer a need to investigate the cause and process one by one.

And he also said this. Only such unwavering certainty can connect all uncertain elements into one world.

Seongjin silently looked down at the milestone he was holding in his hand.

It has everything in it. Other possibilities that existed at the same time, even if only for a short time, are now a sad world that no one but yourself and Seonghwang can remember.

"..."

Seongjin traced the cold milestone with his fingertips for a moment before opening his mouth.

"Hana father, that's a little strange."

"weird?"

"Yes, it is. According to the prophet, the [branch] dividing the two possibilities must always exist in the past, before anything happened. Only then can it become true foresight and become an opportunity to change the planned future. But this..."

Seongjin raised his head and looked directly into Seonghwang's eyes.

"This time, the time after time had already passed, that is, after everything was concluded, became [a quarter]. If so, isn't this just a change of the past and no longer 'wisdom'?"

"..."

"Rather, this time, with the divergence as the starting point, the already divided world became one again. If you do that, you should rather say 'convergence' or 'combination'. How can this be called a 'branch'?"

Then Seonghwang smiled faintly without answering. That expression felt like this to Seongjin.

-Didn't I already give you the answer?

... what? Have I missed anything so far? Seongjin, who was pondering the conversation with Seonghwang, suddenly remembered the urgent explanation he had heard in his head.

-In the end, all of these things exist at the same time in the same space and time, and are flowing in the same direction, but they do not flow at all and are fixed.

iced coffee. Only now did Seongjin fully understand what he was saying.

okay. Although it didn't hit me intuitively, I was able to at least understand his logic with reason.

"therefore... .."

Seongjin calmed his slightly trembling voice and answered his own question.

"Is this what your father said? Does it mean that a world with different possibilities being divided into two is no different from a world that was already separated converging into one again?"

"... .."

"Because it doesn't matter what comes before or after? Time is... Because it's not actually flowing somewhere?"

"... Yes, Mores."

Seonghwang nodded heavily.

"It is indeed so."

Seo Yi-seo was currently sitting in a luxurious drawing room. It was a place similar to the scene of 'My Room', which she had carefully decorated by purchasing a bunch of her paid items.

There is even a handsome man sitting across from him, as handsome as a picture. Originally, this would have been a very exciting situation.

Still, she wasn't happy at all. This is because her man has been constantly making annoying demands on her since before.

[You bastard. No more ramen. Imagine another delicious dish you know.]

[Wow, what a catch! Mr. Cadmus. Isn't that really too much?]

As my anger grew, my voice became sharp without me realizing it.

[I have a proper name, 'Seo Yi-seo'! Shouldn't you please be aware of the situation in which you are renting a house without your permission, and treat the landlord more appropriately? yes?]

[joy!]

But the man didn't care and snorted lightly. What was even more infuriating was that even the way he proudly raised his head was like a pictorial.

'Give me! If you're going to use that face like that, ask for me instead! 'You character-breaker!'

The man's name was Cadmus. He was once a great man, the first ruler of Del Cross, a hero of national salvation, and even called a demigod. Of course, now he is just a nuisance eater who unintentionally lives on Seo Yi-seo's body and a narcissist with a seriously oversized ego.

Still, he seemed to have the ability to proudly call himself a god. Cadmos, who has been diligently exploring Seo Yi-seo's mental world for some time, has suddenly created a space in his thoughts similar to the old 'My Room' service.

And now, he is urging Seo Yi-seo to constantly think of delicious food. It seems that she plans to borrow her imagination and lead a gourmet lifestyle that she was unable to achieve during her lifetime, even if only in the world of flames.

[Oh, look! Why do you not feel satisfied no matter how much you eat? You said you were a god, but were you actually a beggar god who starved for a thousand years?]

[noisy! Instead, lately, have you not been giving your body proper attention during meal times? If you keep resisting, your body may be taken away forever. You dead thing!]

[omg... What a dead thing! Isn't what I'm saying too harsh now?]

Seo Yi-seo pouted, but soon acknowledged the difference in power with him and obediently imagined a small pot dish.

Thick red soup. And the chewy rice cake and flavorful fish cake submerged in it.

[...] What? What is this strange thing?]

Seo Yi-seo straightened her shoulders and steadied her voice as she faced the masterpiece created from her specific imagination.

[Ah, don't you know? This is called 'Tteokbokki'. It's even the best, topped with the divine ingredient called mozzarella cheese!]

[...] You insignificant creature. Listening to your strange way of speaking makes me feel irritated.]

Cadmus' pupils tighten as he glares at Seo Yi-seo.

She was immediately taken aback by those creepy eyes, and quickly lowered her tail and bowed her head.

[Ah yes! Radish, this is a very delicious dish! I can't speak first, so let the great Cadmus take a bite first.]

[...]]

[...] Hehe?]

Cadmus seemed quite displeased with her attitude, but since there was a new dish in front of him, he seemed to have decided to just ignore it.

He stirred the pot with the clumsy chopsticks he had recently learned. Then he picked up a small rice cake dripping with red juice and carefully put it into his mouth.

[Uhm...]

what? The expression isn't that bad, is it? I think it suits my taste quite a bit.

So Seo Yi-seo tried to ask him directly.

-how is it?

And she actually said this.

[How/uh, huh/uh/when/when?]

'... hmm? Didn't something strange just happen?'

I don't think you particularly bit your tongue or particularly stuttered? Seo Yi-seo tilted her head, and Kad Moss' face instantly stiffened.

widely!

He put his chopsticks down on the table, stared off into the distance and growled softly.

The vertically torn iris shines bright gold, and sharp fangs protrude from the corners of the mouth. It was evidence that he was currently very uncomfortable.

[The time of this great demi-god is being controlled by that evil thing... This is such a dirty thing!]

And at the same time. The northernmost tip of the continent.

A woman who was sitting at the entrance of a cave looking at the snowy landscape turns her head towards the south in surprise.

She was a strangely dressed woman with her face completely covered by a sword veil. Her form-fitting black dress flows down to her ankles, and her raven-black hair waves softly below her waist.

In such a cold snowstorm, she gazed endlessly somewhere with her veiled gaze.

[...] okay. Then it will be okay.]

Eventually, she muttered in a low voice.

Although her lips did not move at all, her voice, full of loneliness, echoed in all directions without the air as a medium.

[So, Mores. Please change your time and make my long-cherished wish come true.]

452

452. Kaya's Breath (1)

A realm of rest where cold silence flows.

Martha stood silently for a moment and looked around, suddenly feeling a strange sense of floating, and rubbing her eyes as hard as she could.

No, now that I had become a soul, there were no longer things that could be called eyes or hands that could rub them.

However, her Bion, which retains its appearance as it was when she was alive, will inadvertently reproduce with her soul the habits she had when she was alive, even if she is slightly distracted.

'what?'

Martha, who had concentrated her strength in the spirit, looked around, overcome by a jarring sense of discomfort. You can see the tombstones being smashed to pieces. Bodies thrown here and there, and the land roughly dug up.

Although there were no significant meteorological phenomena in the realm of rest, the scene before my eyes looked as if a huge typhoon had swept through.

'... ... '

And in the center of it all, Hayes and Belinda, the culprits of this mess, were spread out in harmony. After making a fuss, he woke up from his sleep and was hit by the Wolf King, who passed out.

Since the essence of my soul has been hit, it will probably take quite some time for me to come to my senses.

'But something is different.'

okay. If the cause and effect were so clear, Martha felt a strange sense of awkwardness from all this.

'Let's think about it carefully.'

Have they been fighting here from the beginning? Or did they clash a little more in the center of the area?

'or not... ..'

Was it really the Wolf King, Nebraska, that punished them? Could it be that he was crushed and flattened by the hands of a giant corpse woman?

Then, Marta was finally able to find the starting point of these confusing memories.

'... that's right. The beginning was definitely the soul of that noble person.'

In the realm of rest, a soul appeared so brilliantly that even my spiritual eyes could not gaze at it properly. That was the start of all this confusion.

The spirit appeared without any warning and seemed to stare at its master's throne for a moment. Then, it seemed to slowly walk around the outskirts of the realm of rest and soon disappeared.

It goes without saying that Hayes, who had always had a strong antipathy toward him, was extremely enraged. As he was wandering around, he accidentally started arguing with Belinda, which soon led to a violent clash and a big commotion.

Meanwhile, the wolf king Nebraska, who had been hit by a piece of a flying tombstone, woke up from a deep sleep and shouted fiercely...

'... 'No, no.'

Martha shook her head.

It was difficult to explain, but strangely enough, she had another strand of memory that corresponded to the same time period.

A sight where the shining soul, instead of hovering around the outskirts of the realm of rest, was coming straight towards the center of the realm, that is, the master's throne. A sight that constantly sends soft thoughts towards its sleeping owner.

Because of this, the clash between Hayes and Belinda occurred in the center of the area. And the giant corpse woman who raised her body to stop them...

For Martha, it was two memories that could never coexist, unable to distinguish which one was reality and which one was a dream.

[...] huh?]

Then, suddenly, in Martha's spirit, new souls that had not existed before appeared. It was on the outskirts of the realm of rest, the exact spot where the soul of that noble person had stayed just moments ago.

'Did he bring you here?'

Martha knew very well that he sometimes brought poor souls from the earth here as if to take refuge. Wasn't she also one of her souls saved in that way?

So she flew towards them with a somewhat happy feeling, as if welcoming a new friend. Of course she didn't get very far and she had to stop on the spot.

'They...' ... !'

Martha was very embarrassed. This is because all the souls she looked at up close had strange appearances.

[buy... Save me...]

[Qui... Kui... Kwiik...]

Surprisingly, they were souls with half-rotted Bions. In such an imperfect state, without any proper reason, I am just staggering around in place, scattering my imperfect thoughts in all directions.

'The soul... 'It's rotting?'

How can that be? The essence of the soul should not be damaged at all, so how on earth does a person have to die to look like that?

[eww... uh... uh...]

Anyway, those souls looked very painful. Because I kept squeezing myself while letting out strange moans.

'... ... !'

Fortunately, before Martha felt pressured to do anything, they assimilated into the realm of rest and slowly fell into sleep.

Looking at the souls sinking to the floor, she breathed a sigh of relief. The damage to my soul seems so serious now, but if I spend a long time sleeping like this, I will be able to recover like before someday. Just like all the other broken souls did.

[Wow, this is true.]

At that time, a strong thought sounded like thunder from above Martha's head.

[I thought it was a bit noisy, but while this old woman was sleeping soundly, new brothers came in.]

Creak...

With a large vibration shaking the area, the giant's corpse slowly moves.

A huge skinny body, crumbling flesh, and an old muslin dress covered in gray dust.

Martha looked up at her blankly, shedding tears at the sight that was both unfamiliar and familiar at the same time.

[...] Mr. Hexenjavat.]

Then the corpse woman, half-rising, looked down at Martha as if it was somehow amusing.

[You know me?]

[...] yes. That's strange. I don't know why, but Hexenjavat, I definitely have memories of you.]

Then the corpse woman let out a sound that sounded like a whimper or moan. The cloudy cornea was moving hard from side to side, which seemed like he was trying hard to dig up a vague memory.

[Of course, this old man is also a little confused. Actually, I also remember greeting you warmly. Did you say Martha?]

The corner of the mouth, half collapsed due to decay, depicts a strange smile that encompasses the conflicting elements of ferocity and kindness.

Looking at her like that, Marta couldn't help but recall the questions she felt from the strange spirits she had just encountered.

Even after death, they are unable to escape their bodies, and eventually their souls are decaying.

How?

[Ah, it looks like the poor souls were saved again this time.]

After examining the new souls who were already in a deep sleep, the woman confirmed that there was no abnormality in the realm of rest and laid back down.

[It's really foolish. How can people who don't have the ability to do so fearlessly pursue immortality?]

[Is it immortal?]

In response to Martha's question, the corpse woman slowly blinked her eyelids.

[That's right. If you look at those pathetic things, you can't help but notice them. It's not much different from this old woman's unsightly behavior, is it?]

[...]]

[However, our master was not impressed by even such insignificant souls.]

The woman looked kindly at her master's throne for a moment, then slowly closed her eyes and muttered.

[He is merciful, truly merciful...]

* * *

"... hmm?"

Seongjin looked around.

what? Didn't someone just whisper something in your ear?

"what's the matter? "I'm a newbie."

As I was trying to calm down, Owen asked me curiously and handed me a drink.

"... "No, nothing."

Except for the two assassins who had been hiding in the same place ever since arriving in Tere, no significant changes were detected around the inn.

Seongjin tilted his head and went back to eating.

A timeline that was suddenly separated and then reunited.

There were a mountain of questions that needed to be resolved, but Seongjin couldn't dwell on them any longer. Soon after, Owen, carrying a lot of food, came in with a bright expression on his face.

Kwaang-!

-Newbie! This time, I found a new quest again! I didn't know there were so many food quests hidden in the Green Zone, did you?

Since the newly delivered shortcake was quite edible, Seongjin was soon able to put all the troubling issues behind him.

Yum Yum.

"how is it? Are you fine?"

"Well, okay."

"Haha, by the way, you secretly like sweet things?"

The problem was that it was a success.

He hurriedly put the hood back on, but was unable to withstand the pressure of Owen, who was grinning and offering fishcakes to him, so he had no choice but to pick up a piece of fishcake. Of course, with his face completely covered, he had to carefully get it under the cloth.

"... .."

Although it was an extremely passive attitude towards eating, Owen was pleased anyway.

"This is my first time seeing Father Bart eating something. "I was always worried about the priest's health, but I'm glad that he was able to enjoy the food."

"... .."

"Oh, here, would you like to try some of this too?"

Owen, who was happily watching Seongjin and Seonghwang's meal, suddenly let out a sound that seemed like a bolt from the blue.

"hmm. Somehow, when I look at the priest, I feel like I am serving a meal to my father, which is nice. Ah, I have decided! "If we return to the ecliptic this time-"

"... Cough!"

"Cough!"

Owen panicked at the sound of coughing coming from both sides at the same time.

"Huh? Newbie, what's wrong with you? Priest Bart? Why did the priest suddenly... Are you okay?"

"Cluck, cluck!"

Seongjin, who was completely shocked, glared at Owen with an absurd expression. Is that kid really smart, or is he clueless?

It was right around that time. Seongjin sensed a strange current from the assassins on the roof.

'Another assassin has appeared. He seems like a pretty cool guy.'

The three assassins seemed to have gathered in one place and muttered something. Afterwards, the life begins to become more and more intense.

"... .."

As Seongjin stands up and fixes the nutcracker, Seonghwang casts a worried look towards him.

Seongjin was able to intuitively realize the meaning of that gaze. It was not simply a concern about one's own safety in the present, but a concern about the much more distant future, about one's choices and the resulting causal effects.

"It's okay, Priest Bart."

After responding to his silent request, Seongjin gave instructions to Owen as if it were obvious.

"Owen."

"huh?"

"I'm going to go out for a while to get some fresh air, so you can stay by my side and watch over Priest Bart. okay?"

Then Owen, who blinked for a moment, nodded obediently for some reason.

"Okay. "Come back."

Seongjin picked up the small lamp for the last time and then lightly launched himself towards the window.

Whilick-!

As soon as the boy's presence disappeared as if it were a lie, Owen looked around and was amazed.

"Newbie, that guy's Auror concealment is truly amazing every time I experience it."

Seonghwang quietly glanced at Owen. Then, as if he knew what he was thinking, Owen replied, rubbing his nose in embarrassment.

"Ah, why are you letting the newbie go alone this night? Well, when that guy makes a face like that, I somehow feel like I should listen carefully. "I'm not sure why."

"... .."

Seonghwang thought again. He said he was often confused as to whether his godson was really perceptive or not at all.

Number 21 was wandering the streets of Tere alone at night. The plan was to use the interlude to find at least a shabby wagon.

'Now that we have met the princes safely, it can be said that Your Majesty's purpose has already been achieved. If you do that, now you can hurry and head to Regina.'

For some reason, assassins are already wandering around the inn. It seems like they haven't figured out their identity yet, but there was no good point in wasting any more time here.

Of course, finding a carriage in this poor town was difficult.

'It would have been simple if only I could borrow the power of the guild... ..!'

However, this is the northern part of the continent, a place where the power of the Free Underpass is deeply entrenched. This is an area that is largely outside the scope of the guild's activities.

'Would it be better to walk for a day like before and then look for the carriage hidden in the canyon?'

Although No. 21 was worried for a moment, he quickly shook his head.

'No, that's only possible before attracting the attention of the Freedom Underpass.'

They have already attracted too much attention. Even if it means being a little noticeable, it would be better to get out of here as quickly as possible.

It's not that it wasn't, the village was all about Teosinte until late at night.

"Hey, look at these bright colors. "It's as if it grew with gold as fertilizer."

"What about the effect? "If you drink just one cup of this, you will feel energized."

"yes. Just one sip will make you fall asleep as if it's midday. "It truly must be an elixir!"

... What on earth did the prince sell to people?

Number 21 wondered that for a moment, but then passed them by, frowning.

It was when I was wandering around that dark alley. Number 21 met an unexpected face in front of a half-destroyed cabin.

"Kike."

The person who called him by his old childhood name was a middle-aged woman with a petite figure.

Her body was wrapped in a stealth suit like other assassins, but on the outside, she did not feel particularly powerful. She only gives a glimpse of her unique power through her beautifully shining eyes.

"... "Guild leader Greta?"

Why are you here?

Number 21, who was momentarily dazed by the unexpected encounter, quickly came to his senses and responded.

"It's number 21."

"Yes, number 21."

"Guild leader. Didn't you say you were going to visit the Asean branch for a while? But why are you on terrestrial... .."

Then Creta had a strange smile on her face.

"That was just an excuse. I took some time to come see Benicio. But you can't just say that to your guild members, can you?"

"... ..!"

Number 21's eyes widened as he repeated her words.

"No way, guild leader. In the end, the empire... Have you decided to completely turn your back on His Majesty the Holy Emperor?"

453. Kaya's Breath (2)

Before the fall of Ortona, Greta was born into a commoner family in the capital Brindisi. Perhaps thanks to her diligent parents, her family was not very poor when she was young.

Thanks to this, instead of being forced to work from an early age like other children, she was able to find time to open a book. With just a little effort, she was talented enough to be selected as a scholarship student at the academy.

-Well done, Greta! As long as you graduate from the academy, you will definitely get a good job!

-My family will feel better now!

The day she entered the academy, leaving her happy parents behind, she met Prince Benicio and General Gael for the first time. The two people who will not only change her life but also the fate of the country in the future.

-You are the commoner who received the scholarship? Welcome to admission! I believe that you will become a strong person who will support Ortona in the future! So what is it like? Would you like to join our healthy group where we discuss day and night for the future of Ortona?

Prince Benicio, whose clear, dreamy eyes shine. and-

-Did you say Greta? There is no need to take the prince's words seriously yet. You're a freshman who just entered school, right? So, for now, it would be okay to focus on your studies and find a better group that will help you in the future.

-Wait a minute, Gael! Are you hindering the recruitment of new students now?

- But isn't it true? Even if the prince leaves him alone, this friend's future is bright and bright. Noble families will be competing to get you high wages, and even if you just become a palace administrator, you will be able to rise to a fairly high position.

A senior with thoughtful eyes and a greater presence than Prince Benicio.

-So, don't worry about the prince's flashy words and make the choice for yourself, Greta.

-Hey, hey! Gael! Are you really like this?

Gael Bertrand. From the day she met that person she admired, Greta's life became entirely for him.

I tried to follow the direction he was looking in and feel the passion he had. I wanted to become his hands and feet and follow his steps forever. Because her every action and every word seemed to her like a doctrine more sacred than the sermons of a priest or a priest.

In this way, Greta's life was caught up in a turbulent time. Her later years must have been easier thanks to her successful daughter. She lost her parents, who had such simple dreams, to the hands of the royalists, and yet she fulfilled her duties as a staff member of the republican faction until the last moment.

After a long time had passed, Greta often thought about this. Did he really care about the values of the republican government at that time? Perhaps, in reality, he was just mesmerized by the brilliance of Gael Bertran, a rare hero who would bring a new wind to Ortona?

-Actually, it's okay if you don't become the spiritual leader of the republican faction. just... Help this friend get on with the rest of her life.

That day, as he left Prince Benicio and his party in the hands of the mercenaries, General Gael gave Greta his last words. The reason for secretly stealing Benicio, a key figure of the republican faction, was the excuse that he should become a leading spirit that would support the republican faction in the future.

However, it was not until the very end that the giant tree, which had been supporting the front line alone for a long time, finally revealed its serious feelings to her.

-Tell them that there is no need to deliberately take on the impossible goal of rebuilding the country.

-General... .. !

-And you too, Greta. Don't try to remain a ghost of the republic for no reason, but really live a life for yourself from now on.

But the life she truly wanted was a life that fulfilled Gael Bertrand's will. Therefore, even after his death, Greta is still trying to carry on his will.

That was the reason why he worked so hard to reach a key position in the guild. To look after Prince Benicio, a close friend whom General Gael wanted to protect more than anyone else. And to achieve the reconstruction of Ortona, the homeland that Gael loved more than anything.

'however... .. '

Absurdly, now, Ortona's future, who must continue General Gael's will, is asking this of her.

"No way, guild leader. In the end, the empire... Have you decided to completely turn your back on His Majesty the Holy Emperor?"

Looking at No. 21, who was feeling vain as if she had been betrayed, Greta suddenly let out a bitter smile. Does that child know what kind of expression he is making right now?

"... That's a very new question, No. 21. "We didn't commit ourselves to the guild for the sake of the empire in the first place, right?"

"That's true, but... .. "

"And wasn't it the same for you? "The reason you stay by the Holy Emperor's side is so that you can avenge Ortona by cutting off his head whenever the opportunity arises."

"... .."

Number 21 purses his lips and makes a slightly complicated expression.

"And let me be clear. What I am doing now is not particularly against the will of the Holy Emperor. The guild completely handed over the northern information network to the Free Underground, but that doesn't mean it gave up on management altogether. Therefore, my involvement in Mr. Benicio's activities is nothing more than coordination of forces, which is what a guild leader should do."

"... "But you probably won't properly report that 'coordination' to His Majesty."

"Hehe, that's an innocent question, No. 21. Do you really think that Seonghwang doesn't know what I'm doing?"

Greta scoffed and looked at No. 21's stiff, stiff face.

"It was I, Seonghwang, who appointed me as guild leader, not anyone else."

There was no way that Seonghwang didn't know about Greta's origins. Wasn't he the one who persuaded the Astros mercenaries who were planning to head south in the first place and stole Prince Benicio and his party out of the civil war?

"And he granted relatively free rein to the guild's activities. "Just think of the 'Monkey Watchtower', which manages the imperial family's information, being separated from the guild and made into the Central Intelligence Agency."

okay. Through that incident, Greta was convinced that Seonghwang had drawn a line with the guild to some extent. So, his occasional anti-imperial activities would already be under his expectations.

It was not a baseless speculation. If there had been no tacit permission from the Emperor, would the Jayu Underground really have been able to expand its power in such a short period of time?

"So rest assured, No. 21. "This Greta hasn't crossed the line yet."

"... .."

"And as the current leader of the guild, I came here only to help guild members who are in trouble."

Greta slowly raised her arm and pointed somewhere beyond the cabin.

Number 21 concentrated his eyesight as much as possible in the direction she instructed. And soon, in a field a little distance away, she noticed a small wagon pulled by a pair of mules.

"If you understand, I recommend you get on that and leave Tere right now."

"Why?"

"Benicio already knows that you are Seonghwang's exclusive informant. "Wouldn't you be able to guess who you are protecting now that you have left the imperial capital?"

And the situation is likely to be the same for the northern assassination group 'Kaya's Breath' that Benicio is currently operating under his personal control.

"Neither I nor Mr. Benicio want to cause a big commotion between the two groups. "I just want to maintain the balance of power and build a stable foundation for rebuilding Ortona."

After speaking up to that point, Greta's eyes immediately darkened.

"But I can't be sure whether 'Kaya's Breath' will think that way too."

"... ..!"

Number 21 ran like crazy towards the inn.

'shit! I couldn't leave that person's side even for a moment!'

Because Masain, a high-ranking knight, and princes with outstanding military strength were with him, he let his guard down for a moment. After spending a day at the inn like this, I thought I could get a carriage and get out of here safely.

However, he had to realize that Prince Mores had already attracted too much of their attention.

'Senior No. 13, who was supposed to be by the prince's side, was out of sight all day. I should have thought that was strange a long time ago!'

Number 21, who had already thought of the worst possibility in his head, was praying earnestly in his heart without even realizing it.

'Please, please stay safe until I arrive, Your Majesty!'

However, when No. 21, who was in a state of contemplation, arrived at the inn, what unfolded before his eyes was an unexpected sight.

Three assassins rolling around on the floor, moaning softly -

"... ..!"

A neat boy looking down at them with an indifferent gaze.

"You're late."

The boy, Prince Mores, slowly looked back. The boy's eyes, with his back to the pale moon, shine coldly as if they were a pair of small moons.

"If you are going to escort someone, pay some attention and do it properly."

Just by looking at them, the assassins' skills did not seem that easy. But the young prince very naturally placed them at his feet.

Number 21 asked, trying to hide the agitation in his heart.

"I wonder if they made the assassins like this... "Are you my Majesty?"

"huh."

"You alone, all of them?"

"Do you think it's too much? are you okay. Still, I didn't hit him to the point of death. "If I carelessly take their lives, my father won't be very pleased."

Only then did I realize number 21. The fact that that sly prince knew the true identity of the Holy Emperor from the beginning.

"Cheet-!"

It was right then. The assassins who were crawling on the floor suddenly got up and launched themselves in one direction.

They skipped across the roof and disappeared into the darkness in an instant.

"... ..!"

When No. 21 hurriedly tried to run after them, Prince Mores lightly raised one arm and stopped him.

"Just leave it alone."

"yes? but-"

"I was planning on letting you go soon."

As No. 21 blinked blankly, Prince Mores kindly explained.

"I was waiting to see when they would attempt suicide, but they were persistently looking for an opportunity to escape. In other words, doesn't that mean that there is a way to survive if I just get out of this place?"

"... yes?"

"Yes, you. "He looks pretty smart, but he doesn't really understand what I'm saying."

Still, when No. 21 did not understand, Prince Mores slightly furrowed his eyebrows as if he was displeased.

"That means there are other trustworthy gang members around here. "The manpower that we believe is sufficient to annihilate our group."

"... yes?"

"Even if I am tortured into revealing some information, I am confident that I will silence all of us here within today."

Number 21's face, which pondered the prince's words for a moment, gradually became pale.

"Yes?"

"Well, for an informant from the Monkey Watchtower, he's quite a fussy guy."

Prince Mores shook his head and sharpened his sword.

"No, wait a minute, sir! "If that's true, then isn't that really a big problem?!"

"are you okay. "Because there is a way."

Whick!

Seeing the nutcracker being lightly shaken and blood spattering, No. 21 suddenly felt a strange sense of déjà vu.

'I always thought they were father and son who looked nothing alike...'

The current appearance of Prince Mores reminded him of the mercenary he once admired and followed deep in his heart. A boy who was like a mythical hero, full of extraordinariness and wonder.

"So, I'm going to follow those guys from now on."

"... yes?"

When No. 21 didn't understand right away and asked again, the prince clicked his tongue with a sullen expression.

"Tsk! So what are you going to do? "Are you going to come with me?"

"yes?"

Number 21, who asked again with a dumbfounded expression, was shocked and had to ask again.

"Yesss?"

Are you doing this in your right mind?

No. 21 quickly erased the previous thought from his mind at the suggestion that was so thoughtless.

Well then! There is no way that worldly bastard could even resemble His Majesty Seonghwang at all!

454. Kaya's Breath (3)

"Usually whoever hits first wins. At this point, I'm afraid I'll just nip it in the bud so that it won't do anything stupid again. "I think I need to look for Dasha as well."

Issue 21 was very embarrassing.

Originally, I should have gone back to Seonghwang's side right away and made a report. Assassins will soon arrive, so I have to urge them to leave the village quickly... ..

"No, sir. "Wait a moment-"

"I don't have time for that. Then I go. "It's up to you whether you follow me or go back."

As Prince Mores began to prepare to run by tightly tying the small lamp, No. 21 had no more room to worry. He couldn't bear to send the prince, who fearlessly chased after the assassins, alone.

'I want to be willing to commit lese majeste and drag you away even if it means beating me down... ..'

With that thought in mind, I glanced at the prince, and as soon as I knew how, the evil glare returned.

-You wanna die?

It is not usually a sensitive sense. Who on earth do you resemble, Won?

'I guess it would be impossible to stop the prince with my own strength.'

Number 21 did as his survival instinct as an assassin told him to do, and quietly lowered his eyes and lowered his head.

"... "I will accompany you, Your Majesty."

At the same time, I started rationalizing myself hard in my head.

okay. It would be right to follow the prince here. Isn't it impossible to report that I was foolishly watching someone follow the assassin alone?

'Fortunately, there are people with excellent military skills left by His Majesty's side, including Sir Martha. Even if you leave for a while, there won't be any major problems right away.'

This judgment also played a role in making that decision.

'It's too late to chase after the signs of those who have already run away. But how can the prince track them down? 'I'll just pretend to follow along and then take the opportunity to persuade him to give up.'

However, not long after that, No. 21 realized how optimistic he had been about the situation.

"... ... ?!"

First of all, the speed at which the prince ran was unusual. A speed that is impossible without accurately specifying the destination.

Where is that? Unlike No. 21, who is so busy chasing after him that he can't even hide his traces, the boy is lightly kicking the ground as if his feet are wrapped around the air.

Huh-!

Every time he takes a step, the wind spreads wide to the side, creating a faint buffer zone. The slightly increased density of air soon returns to its original state, and the prince's body is lightly thrown forward again. Without leaving any traces on the floor.

Even though No. 21 opened his eyes, he could not easily believe what he was seeing.

'What on earth is that technology?'

If you had asked the prince, he would have explained that it was an original auror operation that combined Schneeshuhe with the assassin's unique stealth skills learned from Dasha. Of course, there was no time to even ask questions to the current number 21.

"Hey, can't you go a little faster?"

"Ugh!"

No. 21 gritted his teeth at the prince's carefree urging.

-A dirty world where geniuses eat everything.

Recently, I heard Senior No. 13 lamenting in an uncharacteristic way. but...

'No matter what, I, an elite agent, am being pushed aside by a kid who has been properly trained for less than a year?'

Of course, there was no time to peacefully wallow in self-destruction. If you don't want to fall behind even a little, you have no choice but to use your energy and run after the prince.

But what was even more infuriating was that the prince looked back at him with a disapproving expression and muttered:

"Dasha was much faster."

... Dasha?

Number 21, who was confused for a moment, remembered that it was only Number 13's name.

It was truly unexpected. Number 13, whom Number 21 knows, was always clear about public and private matters, and was a person who did not easily give up his side even to the members of the Monkey Watchtower.

'Senior No. 13. 'What are you thinking?'

In any case, he couldn't always be criticized for his skills by a prince who wasn't even an assassin. Number 21 squeezed out all the aura from his body and spurred his legs.

"Lowering. "If you were going to be in such a hurry, why did you stop me when I first tried to chase them?"

"Isn't it obvious? "We can't let them know that we're pursuing them, right?"

"But isn't there any point in chasing after the presence has completely disappeared?"

Then the prince looks back at No. 21 with somewhat sad eyes. But for some reason, that face didn't seem to resemble the facial expression that Seonghwang showed whenever No. 21 gave the wrong answer as a child, so it bothered me for no reason.

The prince's subsequent interrogation was even more shocking.

"Don't you know where it is?"

"... .. !"

know? Do you really think you know?!

This time, No. 21 suffered a fatal wound to his pride.

"It's a bit weird to say this again, but if it were Dasha... .."

"Ah yes! You truly have no shame, sir! "It's all because of my shortcomings and immorality!"

Contrary to No. 21's concerns, it seemed to be true that the prince was properly sensing their location.

They ran in a straight line without hesitation and finally reached the entrance to a small, ruined village.

"... .."

Number 21 followed the prince and hid behind a large rock, then carefully looked down at the view of the village.

Looking at the collapsed buildings and completely rotted tree trunks, the village appears to have been abandoned for over 10 years.

However, even in the darkness without a single light, No. 21 could feel the tense atmosphere of the village somewhere.

"... "What you said was correct."

That place is probably one of the hidden bases of the Freedom Underpass.

Number 21, who sensed a faint sign of Auror concealment on the outskirts of the village, made a worried suggestion to the prince.

"First of all, let me go. that... Wouldn't it be better to turn off the lamp?"

"hmm?"

But after hearing those words, the prince suddenly behaved strangely. He untied the lamp from his belt and naturally spoke his words to the flame.

"hey. "Would you like to go inside the soul stone for a moment?"

"... ..?"

Are you crazy?

But before No. 21 could say anything, mysteriously, small sparks flew out. It was as if he was really answering the prince's words.

Number 21's eyes widened.

"Uh, uh. okay. Instead, you should turn off the light and hide well so as not to be detected."

And amazing things happened one after another. No sooner had he finished speaking than the prince opened the lamp cover and grabbed the small flame with his bare hands!

"I... ... !"

Then, without any sign of heat, he carefully pushes the fireball into the hem of the hood. He had a calm and gentle attitude, as if he were handling a small pet.

gulp.

Number 21 swallowed his saliva without realizing it and asked.

"Well, what is that?"

When I nervously asked if my clothes were going to catch fire at any moment, I was met with a polite, pityful look.

"It's a fire fairy. "Don't you know?"

"fiery... ... ?"

"The ancient fairy who gave me the trials of the Lord."

Oh, now that I think about it, it seems like there was a rumor like that floating around the imperial capital?

As No. 21's eyes shook wildly, Prince Mores clicked his tongue slightly as if he was pitiful.

"Tsk! "You mean, if you become an exclusive informant for the imperial palace, you should at least read the scriptures and fairy tales published quarterly on time."

"Fairytale..."

Number 21 was very unfair. No, he is too busy assisting the Holy Emperor, so who on earth reads fairy tales full of Orthodox propaganda?

"Looks like you need to read more books in the future. Don't be lazy and study whenever you have time."

"... ... ?"

The prince, who uttered such an incomprehensible word, looked closely at the village for a moment, his silver-gray eyes shining. Then he spat out words like a thunderbolt again.

"There aren't that many people yet. "It's probably not all of them, so it would be better to sort things out here first and then go."

"four-?"

Number 21, who screamed loudly without realizing it, soon lowered his voice and whispered.

"Wait! Are you out of your mind? You can't do anything dangerous anymore! "Let's go back now, sir."

"Wow. "He's a guy who naturally talks profanity."

The prince glared at No. 21 with a sullen expression.

"What the hell is the problem? "It would make things a lot easier if we dealt with them while they were off guard."

"What on earth were you thinking to come to that conclusion? "If they aren't ready yet, isn't this our chance to escape?"

Number 21 was also able to clearly detect the presence of assassins moving around the village. At first glance, there are already dozens of people.

At least that's the number of people who didn't use Auror concealment. When you enter the village, you never know how many assassins will come out.

"No matter how perfectly you conceal your Auror, unless you are a ghost, there is bound to be some sense of discomfort. Besides, aren't those over there assassins with extremely sensitive senses? "As long as we move within a limited space, someone is bound to find us first!"

"Ghost?"

"Or bring Dekaron Knight. "Anyway, it's impossible for us to move on our own."

However, in response to No. 21's firm dissuasion, the prince's eyes sparkled as if he had come up with an ingenious idea.

"Ghost! Wait a minute, is that really a good idea? "I happen to have some useful things."

"... yes?"

"Before that, let me ask you one question. Are you by any chance a devout believer in the Lord?"

I couldn't understand why he was suddenly asking this question, but No. 21 answered hesitantly.

"no. "Most people who do what I do don't believe in God."

"okay? good. Then there is no need to appear before the Heresy Tribunal and talk nonsense."

The prince nodded his head in understanding, searched through his collar and pulled out a gorgeous amulet.

At first glance, it was not a workmanship commonly seen in Delcross. A strange design with many round beads studded with it.

'What are you going to do with that?'

But at that moment, something strange happened around them. Suddenly, the air became cold, and an ominous black fog began to creep up from the floor.

"... ..!"

Shooooooooo... ..

The black fog covered the bodies of the two people, and soon even completely covered the rock where they were hiding.

"Lowering... ..!"

Number 21 was embarrassed and tried to jump out through the fog. Then, when she saw the prince's still calm face, she was startled and froze in place.

"This is Prince Mores's doing!"

Now that I think about it, I didn't have any guesses at all. A sinister rumor that was constantly heard among high-ranking priests surrounding the 3rd prince.

However, so far, No. 21 has been ignored, thinking that it is a political slander spread by those who want to promote Prince Logan as the next royal prince.

That's right-

'It doesn't make sense, does it? He is the son of His Majesty with such great divine power that he is called the representative of God. But how can you associate him with the devil?'

However, at this very moment, No. 21 had no choice but to regret his complacent judgment.

In the dreary, cold air, black fog gathers together and eventually begins to create strange shapes.

If that ominous thing is not evidence of an evil existence, then what is?

"hmm?"

But perhaps something didn't go as planned, and the prince tilted his head with a puzzled expression. When it finally broke through the fog and appeared before their eyes, it was not a demon or a monster, but simply looked like a crumpled black carpet.

No. 21 was only able to realize that it was the shape of a person wearing a long priest's robe, leaning forward, when the prince started touching him.

"Hayes. Hey, Hey!"

The prince grabbed the ghost's collar and shook it vigorously, but the black carpet remained steadfast.

[...]]

"Why is this guy like this all of a sudden? "Why can't I come to my senses at all?"

The prince looked down at him for a moment with a disapproving expression, then played with the amulet again.

"what a waste. The wizard's AoE was perfect for those gathered like that. Well, it can't be helped. If it's urgent, I'll call Belinda..."

Sooooo...

A dark ultramarine blue fog rises again.

What appeared this time was the shape of a warrior with a sturdy physique. To be more precise, a warrior who looks strong but not strong, wearing sturdy armor and stretching out towards the sky.

"what? What happened to you two? "Why are they all like this?"

The prince, who seemed embarrassed and kicked the warrior, eventually sighed softly and grumbled.

"Ugh... . I knew it would be like this. "When you say you don't need it, it sticks together, but when you actually try to use it, it's so useless."

It was a remark that, if Hayes or Belinda had heard it, would have made them shed bloody tears out of resentment and resentment.

At that time, the flame hidden under the prince's cloak quickly burst out. Then it started hovering rapidly above his head as if it was trying to say something.

"No, no. "Don't set fire."

Grumble!

I don't know what was said, but the spirit seemed to be angry and burned even more fiercely.

"Oh, I said no! "We need to dig in quietly without getting caught, but are you going to bother us for no reason and make them come out all at once?"

Then, patter!

This time, as if it was dissatisfied with something, sparks scattered randomly by the spirit bounced in all directions.

"But if it can't be done, it can't be done. "Don't talk nonsense and quickly hide inside."

After forcing the flame into the hood, the prince looked down at the village and smiled bitterly.

"I tried to take it easy, but I had no choice. "We have no choice but to sort it out as quickly as possible."

"... ..!"

Ah, yes. In the end, you're going to jump into their lair with your bare body!

'It's absolutely impossible!'

However, No. 21 was also clearly aware of the fact that he could not stop the prince with his own strength.

'Er, I don't know!'

As he bit his lip as he pulled out the dagger, the prince twirled and grabbed the stiletto he had taken from the assassin and winked at No. 21.

"Come on, let's go."

455

455. Kaya's Breath (4)

As expected, something is very wrong with this.

Even as he muffled his footsteps and approached the assassins, No. 21's mind continued to suffer intensely.

'It's not too late, we have to stop Prince Mores now... ..'

'But you haven't even bothered to listen to me until now, right? After all, I should have reported to His Majesty on my own... ..'

'No, this matter has already gone far beyond my discretion. In that case, even if things go wrong, I have to do my best by being by the prince's side... ..'

Then, No. 21 was embarrassed when he realized that he had been handing over the leadership of the operation to Prince Mores.

"... .."

Ah, yes. Originally, this was something that could not have happened.

Even if he showed genius achievements in some skills, they would not be able to replace the prince's lack of experience. Now that things have come to this, from now on, I, who have received formal training, must take the lead...

'there.'

Sasasak.

However, even while his mind was busy, No. 21's feet were steadily moving to another cover according to the prince's hand gesture.

'Stop for a moment.'

'... ... '

As he followed Prince Mores diligently, No. 21 was slowly realizing the true nature of the strange sense of déjà vu he had felt earlier.

Isn't this familiar, like when we once carried out a joint mission following a veteran senior informant?

'No, no. Rather than that... ... '

Perhaps it was a pattern of behavior that had been deeply engraved in his bones long ago, perhaps even from the time he was a Kike.

-what? Let's go into the western mountains? Are you crazy, Bart?

-We also have luggage! There's no way this number of people can properly deal with Hae-soo! Are you willing to voluntarily roll into the den of sea beasts to avoid royalist pursuers?

A boy who silenced the rampaging Astros mercenaries at the time with just one word.

-My hunch is that it is much safer. I can assure you.

presentiment.

For those who know even a little about the prosperity of that time, it is a magic word that is more than enough to cover all incomprehensibility and absurdity.

and-

-Don't worry, Enrique. You are not a burden, you are the most important person in our group. Everyone will fight to protect you, so all you have to do is follow behind me.

... huh!

The person who blindly trusted and followed such a boy.

On that day, Kike, as if possessed, followed Bat to the western Suddenly, Prince Mores ran forward and urgently threw his stiletto somewhere. He was in a direction in which he had not yet sensed anything within the range of his senses.

'suddenly?'

Let's follow that trajectory with our eyes -

Sigh! An assassin who was patrolling in the distance was suddenly stabbed in the cervical spine from behind and fell down into the bushes.

However, before No. 21 could fully see the bastard's end with his own eyes, the prince was already flinging himself somewhere again, stretching out his arms.

chin! Just before the assassin, who was falling after being hit by a dagger, fell onto the broken pottery, Prince Mores managed to catch his body and at the same time-

Whick!

I grabbed another stiletto from the guy's arms and threw it behind my back without even looking back.

Sigh!

Far away, beyond the shadows of buildings and nothing visible, a dull impact sound was heard, as if a stiletto had been stuck in something soft.

dump!

When the Auror's concealment was lifted due to his death, No. 21 finally realized that another assassin was hiding there as well.

"... ... !"

Number 21, who had been absentmindedly observing the series of processes, finally understood all of the prince's actions.

The assassin he killed. The moment he fell to the floor and shattered the pottery, those two assassins would have discovered their location.

While No. 21 accidentally killed an assassin, the prince immediately grasped the chain reaction that would result and took action in three directions at the same time.

"Calm down, No. 21."

Prince Mores carefully places the assassin's body on the floor and warns him.

"Yes, sir."

Number 21, who answered politely without thinking, suddenly felt uncomfortable with his own attitude and trembled. Although he had never humbled himself this much in front of other outstanding children of the Holy Emperor, even Prince Logan, who was said to be the youngest Sword Master, surpassing Gael Bertran.

"It would be impossible not to get caught at all. I think it will take too much time. "Even if there is a little commotion, let's break through the center together like this."

His voice was as calm as before, but No. 21 had the feeling that the prince was somehow in a hurry.

"Why all of a sudden... .."

"I don't have a good feeling."

presentiment. The magic word that convinces No. 21 in any situation.

As I looked at the prince in fascination, the silver-gray eyes that were shining alone in the darkness stared straight at No. 21 and gave off a strange light.

"I have to quickly clean up this place and find Dasha."

Coincidentally, at the same time, Dasha was in a serious crisis. She became a rat trapped in an elaborately narrowing siege, unable to move.

'How many days has this been going on already?'

Leaning against the broken wall, Dasha looked back at her pursuers, breathing heavily. Masked assassins who showed no emotions and slowly approached with refined movements.

'No matter how much I run, I can't escape him. 'Are those really people?'

Those pursuing Dasha were extremely skilled assassins. Each one of them seemed to have skills comparable to that of Monkey Watchtower's elite agents.

But there was one strange thing. No matter how hard I observed them, there was no sign of them exchanging information with each other.

Judging by the frequent changes in body type and appearance, it seemed that the personnel were replaced regularly over time. But strangely, let alone opening their mouths, they do not exchange any signals.

It seemed like they already knew each other's locations without having to fire a signal or leave a mark.

Also, even if shifts are made, they end up just changing positions without saying a word, like a shadow moving.

Thanks to this, Dasha had been getting the strange feeling that she was being chased by the same assassins over and over again for the past few days.

'... It must be an illusion. 'I'm so tired that I become confused without even realizing it.'

Dasha gritted her teeth and twisted her cheeks hard with her hands. It felt like if she let go of her tension even for a moment, she would lose her mind and collapse to the floor.

It wouldn't be unreasonable. It's already been several days since I started running away, surrounded by unknown assassins, without being able to sleep or eat properly.

The body has been trained repeatedly to be able to carry out its mission even in extreme situations, but at this point, it is already far beyond its physical and mental limitations.

'Getting out is... 'I guess it's completely impossible.'

Even if you are lucky enough to create an opening, it is unclear whether your body will react properly. After repeating the auror concealment for several days without rest, the auror in my body was completely depleted. Now there was no need to deliberately pay attention to Auror concealment.

Rustling.

Dasha took out the dogma she had hidden in her bosom and pushed it between her teeth. So that you can crush it with your molars at any time and swallow the poison as soon as possible.

As she prepared for the worst, she took a deep breath and focused on the presence beyond the wall.

'Those guys must be from 'Kaya's Breath'. I heard that the North is slowly falling apart, but they still have that kind of organizational power... ..'

There was a time when several assassination organizations controlled the situation on the continent.

A time when the authority of the emperor was not as strong as it once was, and countries that escaped imperial interference were making remarkable progress and leaping forward.

It is these assassination organizations that have gradually grown in size by realizing and promoting people's desires amidst endless political strife and secret struggles.

However, as Ortona, who was the most fiercely involved in political strife, was destroyed in a civil war, and the 17th Holy Emperor, who had unprecedentedly powerful imperial power, took the throne, they had no choice but to gradually fall into decline.

The assassination organizations that are still in existence today are [Oberon's Hand], which was absorbed into the guild and reduced to a subordinate organization of the Empire's Central Intelligence Agency, and [Kaya's Breath], which was completely pushed to the north and does not even come near the ecliptic. Is it to that extent?

'But in the end, an assassination organization cannot prosper on its own without its followers.'

Naturally, this question could not help but arise.

If 'Kaya's Breath' is not a group that can survive on its own, how on earth does it still maintain its power?

Jeez.

At that time, unusually loud footsteps were heard. The sound of bold footsteps, knowing that the prey is completely cornered, and has no intention of hiding its presence.

"You really persevered. "You're wasting so much time running away, I just want to see someone's face."

It was the first time I heard the other person's voice since the tracking began. He is probably the leader who commands them.

Dasha traced the outline of the dogma with her tongue and listened to the new voice.

"... .."

But strangely, no one answers that question. All I can hear is the voice of a woman talking to herself as she pleases.

"They put it over there? Yes, everyone did well."

"... .."

"No, that's enough. Stop there. "You guys should wait here."

Dasha, who had been listening to their conversation with her ears prickled, suddenly became curious. The masked people haven't said anything so far, so why does it feel like they're talking to each other?

'Besides, I'm sure I heard that voice somewhere...'

At that moment, the image of the other person approaching at a close distance came into Dasha's eyes.

Just then, under the bright moonlight that escapes the clouds, a handsome face wearing a black hood is revealed. The eyebrows are completely shaved off, and the eyes glow beautifully from underneath them.

Dasha's eyes widened.

- No matter how you look at it, the upper management is a miser.

that's right. I've seen that face before. A woman with good-looking, straight eyebrows who used to be employed at the top of Milo.

-Sabrina, you! I will never forget it! How dare you betray my trust!

They were very good at concealing their Auras, and they left a strong impression by exchanging daggers until the moment they parted ways.

Olivier. An elite assassin believed to be a member of [Kaya's Breath].

"... "Who is this?"

Olivier also seemed to recognize Dasha. The eyes, which are particularly prominent under the hollow eyebrows, soon become narrower.

"Yah! long time no see? "I've really missed you all this time!"

The thin lips that gave such a playful greeting are soon torn apart in a long arc.

"Sabri-me!"

Dasha had a premonition of a complete end. Grinding her dogmas with her molars, she said her final farewell to Prince Mores in her heart.

'I ended up here. 'I'm so sorry I couldn't be of help, sir!'

It was when I was just about to bite the bullet.

[wait.]

I heard someone's urgent voice in my mind.

When Dasha, startled, raised her head, she saw the shape of a person in front of her. She was a strangely dressed woman with a black veil covering her face.

"... ... ?"

Surely there was no one there until just now? Dasha rubbed her eyes and looked at her woman, who slowly shook her head.

The meaning of that action, her voice, which was originally not audible, rang clearly in Dasha's mind again.

[do not do that.]

"you are... ... ?"

Right then.

"Gotcha!"

Pow!

With the blunt impact to her head, Dasha lost consciousness in an instant.

456. Kaya's Breath (5)

Pi-pi-ik-!

A small whistle spreads through the air.

It was a faint noise barely above the human hearing frequency, but it was a signal that at least close-range assassins could clearly detect.

The assassins who heard the sound all changed direction and began to flock. This had happened several times since before.

'shit... ... !'

Number 21 bit his lip. He hasn't even really dug in yet, but it's already like he's being cornered by them.

I was confident that it wasn't an 'Auror concealment' that would easily be detected, but who on earth is informing them of our location?

'Plus, there are more people than I thought. I should have taken into account that most of them were using Auror cloaking!'

It was a disaster. If we continue like this, rather than taking out all of them, we will be trapped in a siege and face a counterattack.

But at that time, the sound of a whistle was heard again right next to No. 21.

Pick - pick - pick!

The problem is that the person blowing the whistle is not the assassins, but the intruder himself.

'omg!'

Number 21 was scared and snatched the whistle from Prince Mores.

'What on earth is this?! Are you going to tell them our location out loud?'

Why do you always find yourself searching through the arms of dead assassins? If I had known he was going to blow his whistle like this, I would have stopped him a long time ago!

'are you okay.'

However, the prince who actually had the accident had a carefree face.

I roughly analyzed the signals they exchanged, and it doesn't seem like their encryption system is that complicated. For example, I think it starts with the direction, but it's roughly like 'Follow me'.

'Oh, put it away!'

Number 21 got angry at the prince who suddenly hummed a strange rhythm in an urgent situation.

'You're not telling me nonsense that you figured out their encryption system by just listening to a few signals, right?'

In the history of political strife, which has resulted in countless clashes between assassination groups, why was there no attempt to figure out the other side's code first?

No. 21 also received detailed training in [Oberon's Hand] about the development process of codes and how to decipher them.

However, no matter how simple the structure is, it is mathematically impossible to understand the entire and ever-changing encryption system with only some regularities.

'That's true, but... ... '

However, Prince Mores still confidently turns to the center of the village. He didn't seem to worry that his actions were wrong.

'At least I can remember exactly when, where, and what signal they sent.'

'... I beg your pardon?'

'It means that you can reproduce signals you have already heard in the same way. Just wait and see. 'Because soon there will be trouble among them.'

'... ... ?'

Number 21 was in doubt, but after a while something really strange happened. As if they had made an appointment, the assassins who had been flocking this way changed direction and began to gather near the entrance to the village!

'Come on, let's go!'

The prince and No. 21, lightly hitting the ground, were able to bypass the broken buildings and successfully occupy the back of the assassins again.

Thin daggers that meet almost no air resistance are shot out -

"Tsk!"

"Gagging!"

Once again, assassin Sernot becomes famous.

After killing as many assassins as possible in a split second, they quickly slipped into the shadows of the building before their location could be determined.

'Haha! Look. 'What did I say?'

The prince's cheerfully whispering face looks unusually innocent.

'... ... '

Number 21 closed his mouth and quietly followed him. She was possessed by a strange feeling, as if she were possessed by something.

Piiiiii-!

At that time, the long, drawn-out whistle sound was heard once again.

This time, I was able to guess the meaning of number 21 without difficulty. It was a pure warning sound that completely ignored the signal system, which was quite different from before.

"Oh my."

Prince Mores pulled out the last remaining stilettos with a slightly helpless expression.

"The response was faster than expected, right? I guess there's a great guy over there. Still, I thought I could use it a few more times, but it's a bit disappointing."

As he said, from then on the whistle was no longer heard. Instead, only the individual movements of the assassins pursuing their presence can be felt.

Well, by now they had gone too far into the center of the village to completely hide their presence with Auror cloaking.

The assassin who suddenly popped his head out from the alley across from me-

"100 million?"

He falls backwards after being hit by a stiletto thrown by the prince. It was a terrifying throwing technique that hit the vital spot between the eyes.

Whick!

As if that was a signal, two assassins came out one after another from the front and back.

While one was swinging a dagger aiming at the prince's neck from the right, the other one, who was a little away, fired his weapon at the opposite side, that is, towards the prince's left shoulder.

Even if you dodge the first attack by luck, the evasion will ensure that the second attack hits.

"I... ..!"

Number 21 thought that the prince would never escape. But at that moment, something amazing happened right before my eyes.

The prince deflected the dagger with a slight twist of his head and minimal movement, then spun his body around based on inertia and violently kicked the stiletto that flew from behind. It was a movement like a ghost.

"Huh?"

The stiletto, whose trajectory had been greatly distorted, absurdly stuck in the heart of the assassin who came swinging the dagger.

"... ..!"

The guy's eyes widen and he looks down at his chest in disbelief.

But at that time, the prince was already shooting backwards, leaving the guy alone.

Quick!

The sound of a nutcracker being swung with a scabbard shattering the assassin's arm bone rings out.

Before the guy, who haphazardly raised his arm to block the attack, could control his body that was staggering from shock-

Wow!

The nutcracker flew sideways again and sharply rammed the assassin's neck into the wall of the building.

Shut up... ..

With the strange sound of the wind being knocked out, the assassin's eyes turn white. Judging by the way the nape of the neck swelled up in an instant, the carotid artery must have been ruptured from the inside and the cervical vertebrae were crushed to powder.

That wasn't the end. Before the assassin's lifeless body fell completely to the side, the prince gently stole several stilettos from the assassin's arms.

The series of processes continued so quickly and smoothly that No. 21 could not easily accept the sight even after seeing it with his own two eyes.

'... wait for a sec. But why are all the attacks suddenly focused on him?'

As he cut off the head of an assassin creeping out of a nearby hut, No. 21 looked back at the prince with a puzzled expression.

Meanwhile, the prince was steadily reducing the number of assassins by firing stolen stilettos here and there.

Then, Number 21 was greatly embarrassed when he realized belatedly that Prince Mores was no longer using Auror concealment.

'Could it be that they did that on purpose?'

Rather than going out and defeating them one by one, are you trying to save time by making the opponent run this way?

'But they are well-trained assassins. Once he realizes the difference in skill between him and me, he will no longer show himself as honestly as he did before.'

It was as expected in No. 21.

Fit fit fit!

When their location was determined, sharp stilettos rained down from the sky. The assassins gathered on top of the building all fired daggers downward.

Number 21 quickly lowered himself using the collapsed wall as cover.

'... ... !'

Then, he realized that the prince was standing in the middle of the alley where daggers were flying, and he panicked.

'What are you doing now?!'

Bub bub bub!

The stilettos flew violently toward a small target and all stuck like thorns in one person's body. Not exactly the prince, but over the corpse of a comrade whom the prince had dragged up.

Although he had a slim figure typical of an assassin, it was not enough for a young boy to hide himself.

'I... ... !'

Eventually, when the pouring rain stopped-

Sigh.

Prince Mores lightly twisted the corner of his mouth and leisurely retrieved the stilettos that had been gathered in one place. He looked satisfied, like a farmer harvesting fully grown crops.

After gathering the weapons, he lightly winked at No. 21.

'Then I go first.'

'yes? Lowering! Lowering? for a moment... ... !'

Number 21, who belatedly understood the meaning, waved his arms urgently, but the prince had already started running, holding the assassin's body up like a shield.

Strong strength that cannot be attributed to a boy who has not yet grown up. It was proof that he was already naturally flowing his aura into the muscles of his entire body.

Papapot!

A shower of rain falls mercilessly again. Prince Mores, who boldly jumped into the middle of it, threw his tattered shield under the half-broken eaves, that is, as soon as he reached their blind spot. Then, with his lighter body, he kicked the wall and soared upward and upward.

Wow! Ugh! Ugh!

Not long after the prince disappeared beyond the roof, short messages were heard from overhead again. At some point, the rain falling on my head completely stopped.

'... ... '

Number 21 slowly got up and watched in fascination the prince's action unfolding on the roof. Under the bright moonlight, those rough yet simple movements performed solely for the purpose of killing.

'... 'It's like him.'

At the same time, No. 21 began to face reality properly, feeling the clear gap that existed between the memories engraved in his mind and the present scene.

'But also, it's completely different.'

Perhaps he had been equating Prince Mores with someone he knew well. That was probably why he was unable to resist unreasonable instructions and was helplessly swayed by his actions.

However, when the prince began to demonstrate his skills in an open area, it was only then that the fighting styles of the two completely different men could be properly compared.

As if I had poured cold water on it, my mind gradually became clearer.

'Bart, Your Majesty would never have moved in that way... ... '

Nevertheless, it is a well-known fact that the appearances the prince shows now are just as amazing as the boy mercenaries in his memories.

Is there any other irony like this, to feel that two people are actually similar despite their obvious differences?

Talent, or lineage. Perhaps even more fundamental than that, something essential to human beings that one cannot imitate.

Now that No. 21 had to face the vast gap between them and himself, he became very confused.

Fit fit!

Stilettos fly out of nowhere again.

However, unlike the first time, the attack was noticeably weaker.

While Prince Mores lightly swatted them away, Number 21, who had identified the direction, quickly rushed in and plunged a dagger into the man's neck.

"Ugh... ..!"

No. 21 sighed, kicking the assassin who was collapsing without even being able to finish it.

'I think I've sorted out most of it now... ..'

Prince Mores must have thought so too, no longer paying attention to his surroundings and starting to walk straight towards a building. It was the very building from which the assassins first poured out.

Following him, No. 21 once again had this question.

'Where on earth did you learn how to fight like that?'

As far as he knew, Prince Mores had learned the standard swordsmanship of the Imperial Knights like any other noble family's son. It can also be seen as a typical training course for knights.

However, no matter how you look at it, its rough and free-spirited fighting style and its wide perspective of utilizing surrounding objects were far from ordinary knights.

'It's not just that. I also have a clear understanding of my strength and am moving with this in mind.'

There is only one thing that can explain all these mysteries. Compared to his age, he has a lot of practical experience.

'But how can that be? Wasn't it just a flower grown in the imperial palace?'

But as if reading his mind, the prince turned around and lightly opened his mouth.

"By the way, I saw it again, number 21. "You have a lot of practical experience for your age, right?"

"... yes?"

"It's a compliment. "I thought you were a kid, but your skills are quite good, right?"

"... .."

Number 21 was absurd. Isn't that really what he wants to say? What kind of joke is that, as if an older senior is praising a younger student?

However, that appearance also reminds me of the boy mercenary I once was, who was particularly mature.

Wow.

Number 21, who was offended for no reason, responded crookedly.

"... "You're a brat, is that what you're saying?"

"what? "Your gaze has suddenly become very disrespectful?"

"Is that possible?"

The two entered the building, bickering.

"I no longer feel any suspicious signs of popularity. "How about we take a quick look around and return to Tere?"

The prince shook his head at No. 21's suggestion.

"huh? no. "Still, I'll wait here a little longer."

"Why?"

"Well, I don't have a very good feeling... .."

As No. 21's eyes narrowed, the prince grumbled with a sullen expression.

"Tsk! "It doesn't work anymore."

It was absurd. When did he realize that he was particularly weak to that word?

No. 21 came to his senses.

"That is something that should never be said. "I can't stand by and watch any more deviations, so let's go back to Tere."

"So you said your attitude suddenly became profane."

"You must be mistaken. "I am only concerned about your safety."

"I don't think that's true?"

Prince Mores, who was responding like that, suddenly stopped walking and frowned. An expression that seems unclear about something.

"Why are you doing that?"

Number 21, who had already acknowledged that the prince's acumen was superior to his own, asked nervously.

"Actually, there has been something that has been bothering me ever since."

The boy whispered quietly, his voice quiet.

"You can hear whistles all over the village, and although there are guys who respond to the signals, the person blowing them is particularly vague."

"... .."

"It was definitely not an ordinary skill. But so far, I haven't met anyone that great here?"

At that moment, No. 21 felt a chill down his spine.

Does this mean that the assassin so mysterious that he even eluded the prince's spirit is still hanging around here?

"Then the last time you sensed him was...""

This was when No. 21 had just asked a question.

Kwasik!

Suddenly, the thin wooden wall broke, and someone's new model shot out like lightning. Another assassin wearing a black stealth suit.

"... ..!"

Before No. 21 could even follow him with his eyesvisor!

Before I knew it, the nutcracker pulled out of the scabbard collided with the sword he was swinging, and white sparks flew out. It was a reaction as if he had been waiting.

"haha! "I knew you would show up sooner or later, but-"

Device Geek-

The prince, who had been struggling with the bastard for a moment, twisted the corner of his mouth and let out a wild laugh.

"Why are you so scared to say something? "Don't you often hear people say you don't have enough patience?"

457. Kaya's Breath (6)

visor! Whip! visor!

In the blink of an eye, several battles went back and forth. The speed was so fast that No. 21 could not trace the sword's trajectory with his eyes.

'... 'Double swordsmanship?'

I just barely caught the assassin's weapon in the midst of the storm of movement. If the author had rushed in this direction first, No. 21 would probably have been unable to respond properly and would have given up a vital point in vain.

'He's not someone I can do anything about.'

Prince Mores also seemed to have judged that way.

"No. 21, step back!"

Number 21 obediently backed away.

Just sensing the sharp energy that these two people give off is enough to make your skin feel numb. With the tension stretched to its limit, he couldn't even predict who his hasty movement would harm.

Kaang!

At that time, the prince and the assassin, who clashed their swords violently, were pushed straight to both ends of the room without resisting the recoil.

"... .."

Unable to inflict any significant damage to the other, the two glared at each other in silence instead of clashing again. It looks like they are taking a moment to catch their breath and explore each other.

And only then was No. 21 able to fully see the attacker's appearance for the first time.

The opponent was a woman holding a short sword in both hands. Beneath the sculptural, expressionless face and the assassin's distinctive black stealth suit, the outline of a well-trained, sleek body is visible.

Aura activity isn't that strong, but maybe what you see isn't everything. Rather, it can be said that they have become better at hiding their auras. Even No. 21, who called himself an elite agent, felt that his presence was blurred even when he had the opponent right in front of him.

Auror concealment ability is top notch. It would be safe to deal with him assuming that he is close to the level of Dekaron Knight, who is said to be the most ideal assassin.

No. 21, who figured out that much, was once again amazed at the prince who countered that woman's attack without any hesitation.

'But it's strange. You look so seasoned for your age.'

okay. Considering the prayers and atmosphere they give off, they feel like they are legendary seniors who were given initial numbers.

On the other hand, the woman's face looked excessively young. No matter how you maintain your youth through Auror training, what does it mean to have that smooth face without a single scar? Even if you wash your eyes and look, you won't see anyone who has crossed countless firing lines and gained practical experience.

'How can they do that?'

Prince Mores also seemed to have noticed the sense of discomfort the assassin was giving off.

"that's interesting. "He seems to be very skilled at using auras, but compared to that, the layer of auras accumulated in his body is relatively poor."

"... .."

"I don't think they eliminated the intact Aurors like Director Bruno did. "What on earth are you doing?"

The prince's bright gray eyes stare intently into the assassin's face. Occasionally, there seemed to be a strange red light hovering in the center of the pupil.

Number 21 didn't realize it, but his gaze went beyond the assassin's young face and toward the inside of the skull wrapped in clean leather.

and-

"... "There is a decision to burn, right?"

Sigh.

As if he had figured out a clear answer, the prince revealed his teeth and smiled eerily.

"I thought so, but that's not your real body?"

"... ..!"

Faaah!

Before No. 21 could understand the meaning of those words, the woman who hit the floor came swinging her sword with a vicious force.

Cough! Kang!

The twin swords engulfed in whitish light clash violently with the nutcracker.

A sword that is sharper and more vicious than before. It seemed that the prince's remarks had greatly offended the assassin.

Grumble!

In response, the nutcracker also burst into flames, engulfed in dark red flames. Even though it was not an easy battle, it was only now that Prince Mores showed his Aurors.

It may have been a measure to protect the weapon from an unexpectedly strong enemy, but-

'... fire?'

Number 21 was quite taken aback by the unfamiliar form of aura burning fiercely in the dark.

Come to think of it, I had a brief conversation with the prince before entering the building.

- But, why don't you use external air? If you don't have any intention of maintaining Auror concealment, it would have been much easier to actively use Auror.

-hmm.

At that time, the prince frowned in embarrassment and answered:

-Actually, officially I'm still staying in Regina."

- So?

Of course, No. 21 also had some idea that he was trying to avoid leaving his mark as a prince. Because I didn't even bother picking out the nutcrackers I was used to, I was only consistently using the stilettos that I had recovered despite the hassle.

But even with weapons and sword techniques, isn't there a need to restrict Aurors?

-But the traces my auror leaves behind are very characteristic. Even so, you received a great blessing from the ancient fairy?

-... yes?

Only now did Number 21 understand the meaning of those words.

The prince's worries were not for nothing. In fact, as the number of exchanges of swords became less frequent, clear burn marks began to appear on the assassin's smooth skin.

Of course, the prince wasn't all that well either. Every time the double swords of the aura-wearing assassin passed by, a thin solid line was drawn on the prince's body and red blood spurted out.

It may be inevitable. Since it is a very close combat at a speed that is difficult to follow with the eyes, the angle of avoidance is also extremely limited.

'The skills seem to be on par... ... '

At first glance, the women seem to be superior in terms of attack speed.

But surprisingly, Prince Mores was not easily caught up in her tricks. Even though it wasn't a convenient distance for her to fight back with her long sword, she gave her space and cut off her attacks appropriately every time.

Plus, the prince's unusual auror.

Grumble!

The strange aura that burned more intensely as time passed, had a way of stimulating the inherent fear inherent in humans just by looking at it.

Chaejaejaeng! visor! visor!

While tracing the tangled trajectory of the swords, creating a dizzying afterimage, No. 21 carefully fingered the dagger in his arms. If it's not possible, I think I should join right away.

Phew!

However, the fight between the two ended sooner than expected. The two people suddenly closed the distance and slashed their swords at each other with all their might.

"... ... !"

The nutcracker's blade protrudes through the woman's chest.

On the other hand, the woman's relatively short twin swords only lightly grazed under the prince's armpits.

Tuk! visor! Cheer up!

The twin swords slipped from a weak hand and fell to the floor one after another, making a loud noise.

Chiiik!

Acrid smoke rose from the woman's back. With the blade engulfed in flames, the external energy penetrated deep into her chest, shaking her insides and making her run wild. At the same time, the flesh was burning rapidly and the bleeding was gradually subsiding -

Prince Mores did not just sit by and watch.

Quad deuk!

The sword stuck between the ribs was greatly twisted, and a terrifying noise of scraping raw bones was heard.

Eventually, the prince made a large cut in the woman's side and pulled out the nutcracker -

Gulp, gulp.

Blood pours like a waterfall from the concussed heart and lungs. The assassin spewed blood from his mouth and slowly fell to the floor like a doll with its strings cut.

'It's terrible. Not a single groan was shed until the last moment... ... '

After seeing that the assassin's eyes were slowly losing their light, No. 21 took out a simple treatment tool from his pocket and approached the prince.

"Are you okay, sir?"

"hmm."

However, the prince's expression is unusual. His eyes, looking down at the fallen assassin, became darker than ever before.

"No. 21."

"Yes, please do so."

"Well, actually, there's one thing I didn't tell you about in advance because I didn't think it was that important."

"... "What is that?"

Number 21 became somewhat anxious. And that anxiety soon became true. One after another, sounds that he could not have imagined came out of the prince's mouth.

"Actually, I felt several faint traces of people underneath this building a while ago."

"many... "This?"

I can't feel anything?

While the nervous No. 21 was concentrating his senses towards the basement, the prince adjusted his grip on the nutcracker and continued his explanation.

"Uh, that's probably because Auror activity is abnormally low. So I just thought, maybe they've locked up some civilians who are all dying. I did... .."

"... .."

"I think one of them suddenly became very active and jumped out of his seat."

It was at that time that No. 21 detected a faint presence.

"And now it's running here at incredible speed-"

grasp!

As soon as he finished speaking, another assassin jumped out from the half-broken wooden wall. A young female assassin dressed to sleep, holding her short two-handed sword in her hand.

Chachaechaeng! Whip!

As the nutcracker and the two-handed sword became frantically intertwined again, No. 21 looked at the woman, trying to gather his dizzy mind.

'... same person?'

At that moment, No. 21 thought so. However, when he turned his head to check, the assassin from earlier was just lying on the floor like a crumpled rag, completely dead.

'No, but that can't be...' ... !'

It might just be a coincidence. It is clear that she is a woman of similar age, but her body type is different from the previous assassin and her presence is subtly different.

But strangely, Number 21 felt a strange sense of kinship, as if the person who had been in a fierce battle with the prince just moments ago had come back to life. And that feeling of kinship seemed to be the same for the prince who dealt directly with the woman.

Swish swish!

The prince lightly let go of the two-handed sword that was fired in the same trajectory as before, and raised the corners of his mouth.

"haha! This is absurd. Are you using the same person over and over again using the fire crystal?"

"... ... ?"

The prince, who made an incomprehensible sound, suddenly shouted loudly at No. 21.

"No. 21! It's underground! "Look in the basement!"

"yes?"

"There's something down here! "We have to get rid of it first!"

"No, I have to get rid of it, who...""

"If you're not sure, just follow this guy!"

Wow!

As soon as those words were out, a small flame burst out from within the prince's cloak. It was an ancient fairy who had been hiding until now.

The red flame hovered over No. 21's head a couple of times, then disappeared into a narrow gap on one side of the floor. I saw a small ladder hanging over it, so it seemed like it was a secret passage leading to the basement.

'But is it okay if I leave you like this?'

Number 21 looked back with worried eyes. However, even though her minor wounds were increasing, the prince did not show the slightest sign of fatigue.

Perhaps it is because he is exerting a high level of concentration, but the fire in his eyes becomes darker and the flames circling around the nutcracker also become stronger.

"..."

First of all, I think I can trust it.

Number 21, having decided thus, left him behind and flew towards the dark basement.

The basement was in complete darkness.

No. 21, who briefly regained his senses and adapted to the darkness, soon spotted a fairy flame waving in the distance as if beckoning, and kicked the floor.

Crack, clap, clap!

The underground structure I saw while running was more complicated than I thought. There were small rooms on both sides of the dusty hallway.

'It is a secret base where many assassins were hiding. 'Nothing that strange.'

Then, No. 21 passed a room where strangely faint figures were gathered.

'Are they what you sensed?'

Naturally, his attention was focused on that place, but No. 21 tried to ignore his anxiety and quickly passed by there.

First of all, their presence was blurred to the point of being close to death-

'The fairy seems to be in a great hurry.'

A movement that seems urgent, as if there is something more important. The little snail that was bouncing around as if urging it on looked like a small squirrel running up a tree.

'... 'No, what a ridiculous idea!'

Number 21, running after the flames, finally arrived in front of a small room at the end of the hallway.

It was a strange room filled with strange magic circles.

The candlelight shining dimly in the darkness seemed to contribute to filling the room with a darker and more gloomy atmosphere, rather than driving away the darkness. It wouldn't be surprising if a devil were summoned here right now.

'... ... '

And in the center, there was a shining green altar. A small tower with transparent beads piled up, and a small green flame shining on top of it.

Grumpy!

At that time, red flames began circling above the altar again.

"Fairy? Is there something you want to tell me?"

Grumble!

"altar? "Is that altar the problem?"

Flap flutter!

The flames moving up and down quickly seem to be beckoning. He looks very anxious because he wants to tell something to No. 21.

'I'm not sure... ..'

I guess that's the problem, right?

It's a suspicious altar that doesn't seem to do any good if left alone. No. 21, biting his lip, quickly clenched his fists and started smashing the altar.

Kwajangchang!

"Hehe, you got a fun toy, right? "I got lucky this time."

Olivier, who was moving at the front, looked back at the loot he had obtained this time with a satisfied expression. It's so cute that he manages to disrupt communication throughout the organization all by himself.

Thanks to this, the information sent by those guarding Giovanni's side was completely blocked, and it took quite a long time for Olivier to find out about the prince's outing.

"He had guts, but his skills were also extraordinary. In the end, the entire chase team was mobilized to catch this guy."

"... .."

"This guy is probably a dog run directly by the Seonghwang family.
"Is Sabrina really her real name?"

"... .."

"Yeah, probably not. "I know."

Olivier, who was talking to himself, craned his head in and looked closely at Dasha's face with her eyes closed.

"... Hmm, I really like it too. "Let's groom this guy well and make him a member of our organization."

"... .."

"Noisy. "The decision is mine."

Of course, if it is a dog that was carefully selected by [Oberon's Hand], it would probably be difficult to expect a voluntary conversion. Still, I should take as much time as possible and watch Tyler carefully. Sabrina was well worth it.

If the worst case scenario is that we can't communicate until the end, it's okay to just steal that pretty shell.

"Well, I don't think it would be really fun if this guy turned like you guys."

"... .."

"Hey guys .. hey guys! "When someone speaks, talk back."

Olivier, who was feeling irritated for no reason, suddenly burst into laughter as he looked around at the expressionless assassins.

"Haha! okay. You guys wanted to talk, but you couldn't, right? "I'm sorry, I'm sorry!"

It was right then.

dump! Plop!

Suddenly, some of the assassins fell to the ground without warning. This number was almost half of the total number of people.

"Ugh?"

Olivier, who was surprised, urged the fallen assassins by kicking them.

"hey! hey! wake up. Just a joke... .."

Then, Olivier belatedly realized the seriousness of the situation when he noticed that the soul had completely escaped from their empty eyes.

no way... ..

'Head top!'

Looking at the fallen, it is not the capital Brindisi, but the personnel of the head tower built in the temporary base.

I thought the defenses were pretty good, but could something have happened to the base?

Olivier gathered the remaining people and hurriedly returned to the secret base.

And soon-

Her concerns turned out to be true.

"... .."

With gang members lying here and there-

Creak-

The entrance to a secret base shaking helplessly in the wind.

Olivier realized that even if something was wrong, it was definitely wrong. And when she finally reached the secret place she kept hidden

"hi."

What greeted her was a completely shattered head tower and a young boy who should never have been here.

In a dark basement with no lights, silver-grey eyes with a strange glow blink leisurely, as if to say hello.

"I came to get my group back."

"... .."

"I also have a few things to ask you."

The moment the boy's eyes met, Olivier felt a shiver run down his spine.

458. Kaya's Breath (7)

When No. 21 destroys a suspicious altar. And when half of the assassins led by Olivier fell unconscious-

At the same time, a similar change occurred in the assassin who was confronting Seongjin.

Shake it up, shake it!

The woman who was engaged in a fierce sword-to-sword confrontation suddenly lost strength and collapsed to the floor.

Phew!

Seongjin, who did not miss the opportunity and plunged the nutcracker into her neck, took a moment to catch his breath and looked down at the sight of the life slowly fading from the woman's eyes.

'Did No. 21 somehow do it?'

It was a pretty formidable opponent. To the extent that one suspects that the identity of the soul controlling their bodies may be Noh Ik-jang, who has been honing his assassination skills all his life.

'But since it was not the original body, the limits of the Auror class were also clear.'

If the amount of Aurors was similar to each other, I could confidently say that they were not inferior in terms of skill in using Aurors.

Of course, I don't know what the result would have been if the opponent had jumped at the second, third, and fourth shots while switching bodies.

After confirming that there were no more hostile signs nearby, Seongjin followed No. 21's sign and walked into the basement.

'This... It seems like a fairly well-maintained base, doesn't it?'

On both sides of the long hallway, food warehouses, armories, and lodgings come into view. Judging from the long history of use of the facility, they are probably a force that has been operating here since ancient times.

I feel like I have some idea of their identity.

'Kaya's Breath.'

One day, I learned in detail from Dasha about the genealogy of an assassination group that was operating in secret on the continent.

Among them, 'Kaya's Breath' was the most active group in the northern region, including Ortona. A historic assassin group that mainly uses stilettos and once achieved a balance of power comparable to that of the 'Hand of Oberon'.

Naturally, another question comes to mind. What on earth do they have to do with the freedom underpass?

'If you create and move a secret base anywhere in the North, the radius of influence will inevitably overlap with the Free Underpass.'

Since I was protecting Giovanni from the time I met him, they probably don't have an antagonistic relationship.

So, did 'Kaya's Breath' become a subsidiary organization of Freedom Underground? Or is it just a cooperative relationship of giving and receiving help?

Seongjin, who had been thinking about that, stopped for a moment in front of a large room. It was a place where suspicious signs had been detected ever since.

When I peeked my head into the room-

'... ... '

Sure enough, there were eight men and women in stealth suits lying quietly with their eyes closed.

Did we collectively fall into a state of suspended animation? Looking at the auror activity crawling on the floor, it seemed like everyone was not in a normal physical condition.

'... 'It doesn't seem like he's conscious at all.'

What was also unusual was that a significant number of them were women of similar age to the assassins who had rushed in earlier.

and-

'Decision to burn... ... !'

Seongjin, who confirmed the existence of the stones shining in each of their minds, clenched his fists without realizing it.

Should I say this is an unexpected achievement?

Even after holding such a grandiose launch show for Teosinte, we were unable to find anyone in Tere who had the right decision to burn it. But to find so many flame crystals all at once in an unexpected place?

'Have these people also been taking stimulant tea for a long time?'

However, Seongjin's premonition immediately denied that possibility. They cannot be considered naturally occurring salt crystals because they all had salt crystals in the exact same area.

Left skull. Flame crystals of uniform size shining at the midpoint between the parietal and temporal regions.

'How can they do that?'

According to Dacianus' secretary, it is very difficult to predict the location or size of Dacion. It has nothing to do with the concentration of the decoction or the period of taking it, and is completely determined based on the characteristics of the individual.

If you think about it, wasn't the gray plague patients like that too? Because crystals were randomly generated here and there in the brain, most patients lost their lives as the disease progressed.

But they were all shining in certain positions. As if someone had performed a surgical procedure using the same method.

'... No, I guess that went too far.'

This is a world where quarantine is done by spraying perfume, right? There is no such thing as systematic medical knowledge, so there is no way that medical technology to insert something into the brain exists...

But contrary to that flow of thought, Seongjin slowly approached them as if he was being drawn by something.

Then, I picked up the hair of one of the men who had his hair trimmed short, and saw with my own eyes a fairly long scar on his scalp.

'... ... !'

Seongjin hurriedly checked the scalps of others. However, when the woman lying next to her and the other woman next to her lifted her hair, an elongated wound was revealed in the same location each time.

Conclusive evidence that cannot deny the possibility that salt crystals were inserted from outside.

My fingertips become cold, and at the same time, my mind begins to spin rapidly.

'In this world... In Delcross... Is there really someone who performs surgical procedures on a large scale? 'Who on earth?'

The first person that comes to mind is Sigurd Sigurdson? He is a storyteller who walks through a thousand worlds, and he kills the personalities of normal people and uses them as his puppets. If he were that kid, wouldn't he have enough motivation and think of the means?

-I cannot tell you in detail what I know about the Gray Plague. This is because it is also closely related to Sigurd Sigurdsson's future plans. however...

Lady Isabella, whom I met not long ago, confided that to Seongjin.

-At least the ignorant act of planting monster eggs directly on people was not his doing.

What she said is probably true. This means that Sigurd Sigurdsson has a more sophisticated way of creating flame crystals than causing the Gray Plague.

Until now, Seongjin had vaguely guessed that it would be a long-term supply of medicinal tea to the continent.

But what if there was another way? There is a cleaner and more reliable way than that...

'... No, it won't be him.'

I don't know much about it, but Sigurd Sigurdson was a guy with an aesthetic side.

In other words, he might have thought that opening a human skull directly was much more ignorant than implanting a Loferum egg.

Moreover, although it was only a moment, Seongjin had followed with his eyes the trajectory of Sigurd Sigurdson's soul as he escaped from Isabella's body.

'It didn't seem like he had many options back then.'

In other words, Sigurd Sigurdson had no way of producing such a large number of dolls at once.

So the next thing that comes to mind is...

'Dacianus.'

Hmm, wouldn't that make a lot of sense?

He came to the barbaric dimension of Delcross and wandered the continent for a long time to study the formation of salt crystals.

He is also an eccentric who willingly gave out decoctions to people at his own expense in order to observe the process of forming the walls of the soul.

If it were Dacianus, he might have done whatever it took to exploit the flame crystal he created.

'Of course, Dacian is a person from hundreds of years ago. He's most likely already been dead for a long time... ..'

What if, after a long quest, he finally succeeded in creating a Dacion that was close to a milestone? What if, through that, his soul was preserved safely and he achieved the immortality he had longed for?

'Then, the reason why my father went out of his way to give me information about him... ..'

That was when Seongjin thought about it.

[Lee Seong-ji!]

From afar, the Demon King's flames flew towards him in a gasp.

[You noticed it too, right? There was something really big over there! It was a strange device designed to easily derive the laws of the normal world!]

Ah, yes. I thought so. If something difficult to explain, like magic, occurs in this dimension, the laws of the normal world are always hidden behind it.

Seongjin nodded obediently.

"okay. Let's go together. "Before that, let's take care of these first."

[...] huh?]

Only then did the Demon King look around, startled, and sparks flew in all directions.

[omg! What are all these? Could it be that those were all bad decisions?]

"Yes, demon king. "Take a good look at them."

[Well, what...]

"how is it? "Do you think they have any real soul left in them?"

At that moment, the Demon Lord was startled by what he saw, and his flames curled up and shrunk. Then, after a while, he finally answered in a hushed voice.

[...] no.]

"okay."

Seongjin took out the last remaining stilettos. If these are people whose souls have already been completely taken away, it would be better to end them here so that they are no longer toyed with.

Seongjin left the room and walked towards the place where he could feel the presence of No. 21.

"... Lowering?"

Number 21 seemed momentarily taken aback by the terrible bloody smell that Seongjin gave off, but soon calmed down and asked carefully.

"Are you hurt by any chance? "What happened to the attacker?"

"I suddenly collapsed. "It's thanks to you."

"yes?"

"I think you broke the device controlling him. "Good job, number 21."

It seemed that Seongjin was giving off a more dreary aura than expected. Number 21, who had been trying to press her mouth to report something more, noticed her secretly and shut her up.

"okay. "What exactly was here?"

Seongjin saw the shattered altar and the small beads rolling on the floor. That shape looks somewhat familiar. Could it be a soul stone?

Then No. 21 responded awkwardly.

"I'm not sure either. To me it looked like a devil worshiper's altar."

"... So you broke it?"

"yes. "First of all, it looked very ominous."

"... .."

Seongjin once again caught Number 21's face in his eyes.

I thought he was young for an informant, but he's just a cool guy. Fortunately, this place was not contaminated with demon energy, so if there really was a demon summoning circle, erosion might have occurred as soon as it was touched.

'Anyway, that altar was a device that brought the laws of the normal world to the Delcross dimension.'

Thanks to No. 21's hard work destroying it, it now seems difficult to find out any meaningful information.

Most of the marbles rolling on the floor were also cracked or shattered. Seongjin thought as he picked up one of them, a green bead that looked relatively healthy.

'Also, if these are a type of soul stone, the souls residing here would have possessed the flame crystals and moved the assassins... ..'

At that moment, Seongjin sensed the presence of a group of people with highly refined prayers quickly approaching this place.

Those who can be said to be the true power of 'Kaya's Breath' have emerged, not the idiots who have been easily defeated so far.

[omg? They all have flame crystals too? How did this happen?]

When a little more than a dozen assassins finally appeared in the basement, the Demon King's flame quickly hovered over Seongjin's head in panic.

As said, flame crystals of the same size were shining brightly on the assassins' temporal regions.

Only one person, the woman with fair eyebrows who was leading them all, was an ordinary person with no bad decisions.

"... .."

The woman looked at the messed up altar with a devastated expression. He probably knew exactly about the function of that altar.

'But haven't you met that woman somewhere?'

Seongjin tilted his head, feeling a strange sense of déjà vu.

'That's strange. There's no way I wouldn't remember a face with such a strong impression.'

As expected, Dasha can also be seen in the back. She seemed to have completely lost her mind, her whole body wrapped in rope, like a chrysalis.

Seongjin, who confirmed that Dasha had no significant trauma, became a little more lenient. That means she thought about mixing in at least a few words before brandishing the nutcracker.

So I said hello warmly.

"hi."

Then the woman with fair eyebrows trembled and took a step back.

'Do you know my face?'

Although he felt that way for a moment, Seongjin calmly revealed the purpose of his visit.

"I came to get my group back."

"... .."

"I also have a few things to ask you."

But the other person's reaction is surprising. The woman with bare eyebrows hesitated for a moment, then asked back in a fairly polite tone.

"I asked... "What do you mean?"

"... ..?"

Seongjin blinked his eyes. The first impression was so strong that I thought he would rush at me recklessly, but he turned out to be more polite than I expected.

"First, give me back my group. "The conversation comes later."

Then the woman glanced at Seongjin and protested.

"Well, wouldn't that be a bit unreasonable?"

"why?"

"Yeah... That kid is our prize. If you want the hostages back, you must give us a reasonable price... .."

haha.

Seongjin's soft laughter spread through the cool air.

"You talk so well. The master likes it. "They were planning to get rid of us from here in the first place."

"... "Huh!"

Number 21 and the woman with fair eyebrows who were standing behind took a deep breath at the same time.

'Hey, you! Please don't provoke them anymore!'

Number 21 was so heartbroken that he almost died. Because he knew that with his skills, even if he died and woke up, he could not be their opponent.

On the other hand, the woman was embarrassed because she had hit the nail on the head. She looked anxiously at Seongjin and No. 21, and then burst out laughing.

"Well, then what are you going to do? "Our side is overwhelmingly superior in terms of power!"

She was right. There are more than ten assassins here alone of a similar level to the one who competed with Seongjin on an equal level upstairs.

It's almost understandable that they rushed to Terre in the first place and tried to wipe out Seongjin and his group.

'But why...?'

Seongjin looked around at them with a relaxed expression.

If you think rationally, it is a very hopeless situation. But Seongjin's premonition tells him that everything will work out somehow.

Despite the superiority in power, the reason why Minja Eyebrow is unable to attack him is probably because of Seongjin's extremely relaxed attitude.

"... .."

"... .."

That was when the two people continued their standoff in silence for a while.

"Don't you think I can just watch this?"

"That's right, we'll just have to wait and see. I'm dying of anxiety."

Breaking the silence, someone's voice was heard. It was a large male assassin with Dasha tied up.

"... ... ?!"

While the woman with bare eyebrows was shocked, the man, carrying Dasha, began to move towards Seongjin with strange creaking movements.

"Anyway, is he really reckless or is he full of courage?"

"Maybe it's both. "No matter how much I look, I have no idea what he's thinking."

"Well, that's right. "Because Mores is Mores."

"that's right. "Mores is none other than Mores."

The man muttered to himself as if he were answering questions. At first glance, it was an extremely strange behavior, but the way of speaking seemed familiar to Seongjin.

'... Herna? Kadesh?'

At that time, Bald Eyebrows, who had been blankly watching what he was doing, suddenly came to his senses and shouted.

"Marcos? How on earth are you talking? "I heard he will never be able to speak after undergoing that 'ritual'?"

"I'm sorry, I'm telling you."

"Yes, you can."

"you... You're not Marcos! "What on earth is it?"

The woman growls as she pulls the stilettos out of her arms.

Then the man called Marcos looked back with a strange creaking motion and parted the corners of his mouth with a grin.

"Oh, they kicked him out."

"Yes, I kicked him out far away."

"Let me tell you one thing, the reason you can't speak is because your control over your body is too weak."

"The one that came in to begin with was a very poorly made terminal."

"That doesn't mean we're easy to control."

"Yes, we are also enduring a lot of inconvenience."

The man who had spoken up to that point finally dropped Dasha's body in front of Seongjin, his eyes sparkling.

"So, Mores. You must never forget our help. got it?"

"that's right. When we come back, this time we will play chess together. okay?"

Even in this situation, they were still crazy about chess.

459. Kaya's Breath (8)

"Nothing to be surprised, Mores. "Even after all this, he comes to visit you often."

"Well, I'm being careful these days. "Because you or Red could get caught."

"Originally, I was only going to see you for a moment tonight."

"It's all wrong. So why can't you just sit still for even a day?"

eww?.

The man put Dasha down on the floor, then crossed his arms and relaxed his shoulders. It is a strange movement, as if there is a separate person controlling the two arms.

Aside from the joy, Seongjin's head began to spin quickly to understand the situation.

'Come to think of it...'

Hasn't something like this happened before? One day, when I was visiting Jonathan MacAlpine, the twins were briefly possessed by Asley Bettcher, whose head had been damaged by the Gray Plague.

'Astley also had an imperfect salt crystal on his head. In other words, these guys can control a person's body through flame crystals!'

So what is the scope of that ability? At the time, the guy who was manipulating Astley and Red were fighting against each other, and they seemed to have a level of control that rivaled each other...

'It seems like the twins clearly have the upper hand this time.'

When I glanced at her bare eyebrows, I saw that she was constantly pouting with a dejected expression on her face. She was taken aback by the unexpected situation and ended up handing Dasha over too easily.

'But it doesn't seem that urgent. 'Because they'll think they can easily wipe us out with their remaining power anyway.'

After deciding to that point, Seongjin gave No. 21 a wink and told him to take care of Dasha. Then she looked straight at the man with shining eyes and opened her mouth.

"Herna. Kadesh."

"huh"

"huh."

"good job."

After hearing a brief compliment, the man smiled a wide smile that did not match his rough appearance. He might have seemed kind of creepy to begin with, but when you think of twins inside him, it seems kind of cute.

"First of all, there's something I want to know: To control a person, do you have to be together? If we were going to take over the body, wouldn't it have been better for the two of us to each control other people?"

"Hmm."

"Hmm."

Then the man continued to let out similar moans and rolled his eyes.

"As expected, Mores is formidable. "I thought she would be surprised this time."

"It's not easy. "I'm already thinking about taking advantage of this situation."

Herna and Kadesh, who grumbled like that, soon obediently answered Seongjin's question.

"Under normal circumstances, Mores is right. "Your control might be a little lower, but controlling them both at the same time is not a task."

"But I decided it would be better for the two of us to be together this time. "The current situation is quite a special case."

... Special case?

Let's look at them in puzzlement, twins... No, Marcos' eyes sparkled magically.

"Mores. Taking complete control of the human body is more difficult than you might think. "The restrictions are not that great, and there are many things to prepare in advance."

"Think of that naughty puppet master. "In order to create an obedient doll, he first tries to completely destroy the existing personality, right?"

"Because humans have an unconscious defense mechanism."

"Because we first try to eliminate or avoid anything we judge to be a threat."

"It is a natural and automatic phenomenon."

"The mechanism is simple, so it is rather difficult to handle."

"So the two of us agreed to work together to take proper control of the body."

"To control the defense mechanism, you must completely dominate the unconscious."

Seongjin took a deep breath after hearing that. As I quietly listened to what they were saying, it seemed like the bad premonition that had been creeping in from earlier was gradually turning into a clear picture.

"Wait a minute, you guys... ... !"

But before the words were even finished-

Sigh!

Marcos raised his arm like lightning and drove the stiletto deep into his own neck.

"... ... !"

Sigh!

While everyone was frozen by the sudden situation, the body, whose carotid artery had been completely cut, slowly collapsed to the floor, spattering a fountain of blood.

dump!

"omg?!"

The chin of the man with the bare eyebrows suddenly and absurdly dropping down after losing his subordinate.

But it was still too early to be surprised. Behind the group of still expressionless assassins, a woman suddenly raised her hand and smiled strangely.

"Voila!"

"how is it?"

"... ... !"

Under everyone's shocked gaze -

Creak, creak.

The woman slowly walked out from between the assassins, walking with uncoordinated steps. Just like Marcos, who had just died, he was muttering strange conversations as if he were talking to himself.

"Do you understand now? "If we tried to fight each of them, we would only be able to take their bodies and interfere with the other two."

"You probably know, Mores. "This is the surest way to reduce the number of enemies."

Just like that, the woman naturally pulled out her stilettos from her waist -

Sigh!

Once again, a fountain of blood splattered in all directions.

"What the hell is this... ..!"

For the first time, a deep feeling of fear appears in the round eyes with bare eyebrows.

But that wasn't the end. Soon after, right behind her, another assassin tilted her head and opened her mouth.

"Did you see it? "This is truly the way to dominate the game, that is, the way to win."

"Even though they know it, they will never be able to stop us."

"It's a simple calculation, right?"

"The results are clear."

"If we reduce it like this, in the end, only that woman will remain who has no decisions to make."

"It looks pretty daunting, but it's okay. "Mores will be more than capable of dealing with you."

And again, without fail, the stiletto is swung mercilessly.

Sigh!

Blood poured down like a waterfall from the head of the bare eyebrows next to him.

'This... 'Is this a dream?'

As he was showered with hot blood, Olivier thought blankly. She couldn't really understand what was happening.

The head tower that had been carefully constructed was destroyed, and half of the troops that had been brought with them were lost in vain. When the remaining personnel returned, the base had already been devastated.

And now, unknown evil spirits appear and take out the remaining subordinates one by one!

'Everything... ... '

Olivier looked at the prince in front of him with a blank face. The boy was looking down at all these mysterious scenes with a cold gaze, as if nothing had happened.

In an instant, an intuitive realization came flooding back to me.

'Yes, all of these things are being done to suit the prince's convenience.'

How on earth can that be? How can the whole world move for just one person?

"How many people did you kill? "How many people are left now?"

"There are only three. "There is still a long way to go."

Olivier suddenly came to his senses when he heard an ominous voice coming from next to him again.

'If things continue like this, we will truly be annihilated in the blink of an eye!'

She gritted her teeth and screamed.

"Holy shit! They can only control one person at a time! Everyone, don't panic, stop them properly this time!"

But that was just an empty command. Olivier himself cannot help but be skeptical.

'How do I stop it? An evil spirit that doesn't know who will possess it and commits suicide as soon as it appears?'

But help came from an unexpected place.

"stop."

Prince Mores' cool voice is heard -

Stand tall.

The newly possessed assassin stopped moving as if it were a lie. He held his stilettos high and looked at the prince curiously.

"huh?"

"why?"

Strangely enough, the same thing happened to Olivier.

They just failed to properly respond to the sudden situation, and their power is still superior. You have to increase your momentum even more to have a chance of winning, so why stop there?

However, Prince Mores' expression was more serious than expected.

"These little kids who are just getting out! "What are you doing now?"

"huh? what?"

"what's the matter?"

"Children are now harming themselves without fear! Are you out of your mind? "Aren't you sick?"

Then the man lowered his arms, squeaked, and tilted his head.

"But it's okay, Mores. "It doesn't hurt much."

"Yes, Mores. "This is nothing."

"Do not be ridiculous! Is that what you are going to do right now in front of this brother? Or do you guys really want to make me feel really sick?"

The prince, who was wheezing and shouting, soon began to give a long speech to the evil spirits.

A nagging feeling that you should not try to overcome the adversity and hardships that come with life in extreme ways. Nagging concerns about the ethical and emotional issues that can arise when self-harm is seen as an easy solution.

And finally, after urging him for a long time to always tell his family before doing anything drastic in the future, the long nagging finally came to an end.

"... .."

The evil spirits seemed momentarily distracted by the storm of nagging noise.

"Do you understand now? "How ridiculous have you guys done just now?"

"Hmm, I think I understand a little bit?"

"I guess you don't know much yet?"

"These guys are still there!"

The prince screamed.

"You are still children! They're little kids the size of a rat! "There is no responsibility or obligation to make such an extreme choice!"

"responsibility... .."

"duty... .."

"Just leave that to me or your father!"

The prince who spoke up to that point calmed down his anger a little and continued speaking.

"Besides, just in case, how do you think your father will feel if he finds out about this later? huh? Or your mother finds out!"

"Are you a prosperous dad?"

"Dad, Your Majesty... .."

"Jodo?"

"Joe... .."

"okay! "Please try to think with that sane head that plays chess so well!"

"... .."

"... .."

Then the man, who looked at the prince with a dumb expression for a moment, grinned and muttered with an insincere smile.

"Haha, even though he's extremely harsh, he sometimes becomes soft in strange places."

"That's right. "I don't know who's going to say that. I'm afraid I'll just give it back."

"Things like that happen, too. "Because Mores is Mores."

"that's right. "Mores is none other than Mores."

Fortunately for Olivier, the conversation seemed to have brought about some kind of change in the minds of the demons.

Cheer up!

The man who threw his stilettos on the ground walked towards Prince Mores with different steps.

"But you know what? Actually, Mores may be right."

"Well, I wonder if our efforts were in vain."

"Because I saw a very interesting sight on the way here."

"Yeah, well, wouldn't there be really strong-looking evil spirits lying side by side on the floor?"

"I thought it was fascinating, so I looked around for a while and came."

"I think it's time to wake up."

... What does all that mean?

As Olivier listened with great nervousness, Prince Mores showed an uneasy expression.

"Ah, those guys... .."

Then, the man who was staring at the prince burst out in an uncharacteristically innocent laugh.

"Haha, look at this! After all, you already know, right? "Mores had it all in mind from the beginning?"

"That's right. I guess I was worried for no reason. "If you get to know him, he's such a scheming and conniving guy."

"But first of all, we helped?"

"that's right. Should I play chess when I get back?"

As their conversation became more cordial, Olivier became more anxious.

'What on earth are you talking about? 'What are they talking about now?'

Unfortunately, Olivier quickly found out the answer.

Shoot... ..

I thought my hair was burning for no reason, but before I knew it, black aura began to spread all over the basement floor.

Olivier looked around in confusion.

'Woah, acting? Or is it Magi? 'Where are you coming in all of a sudden?'

Kieeeeeeee!

Then, along with an eerie wailing sound, a desperate scream rang out as if the soul was being wrenched.

[Aaaah! Lord of my soul!]

[O Lord! Did you call this Belinda!]

The shock would have been enough to send a clumsily possessed soul flying away in an instant.

dump! Plop!

As the assassins under the headquarters' control fell helplessly, Olivier's face turned pale.

This was the beginning of a true nightmare.

460. Kaya's Breath (9)

"... So, here is Yakan's Oae... "Next."

A muffled pronunciation leaks out between swollen lips.

Olivier was currently kneeling on the floor, bowing his head to Prince Mores and struggling to make excuses.

The assassination squad that was brought in was annihilated without even being able to put up a single decent resistance. She was in a hopeless situation where she was the only one left alive.

"Ui is gathering here, but this is the one who was always pretending to be with the empire... .."

But before I could finish speaking, I heard a loud shout from next to me. It was the evil spirit of a warrior holding a huge club.

[This thing! Can't we hurry and tell the truth?! Shame on you for trying to gloss over your mistakes, you apostate!]

"Ssi... .."

Olivier reflexively glanced at the evil spirit. If you think about it, the reason she ended up like this was because of the battle with that warrior.

No, it was a one-sided assault rather than a battle. If you attack from this side, it becomes a spirit and scatters into the air, and if you attack from the other side, strong physical force comes back. Where in the world is there such an unfair fight?

'shit! If that had been a real human being, I wouldn't have suffered so helplessly!'

As Olivier was internally wheezing, Prince Mores, who had been quietly listening in front of him, opened his mouth.

"That sounds incoherent."

Compared to his youthful face, the energy radiating from him was full of dignity befitting his age.

"When we used the express carriage, you were just escorting Giovanni. Afterwards, they put surveillance on us, but it was probably just to see if we could get out of the Freedom Underpass without any trouble."

"Yes... .."

"But after we changed our schedule and arrived in Tere, you suddenly took a turn and tried to kill us. Are you going to call this all a misunderstanding?"

"Ang, that's-"

This was when Olivier was about to protest. Suddenly, a gloomy evil spirit wearing a black priest's robe popped up in front of her.

'Fuck, surprise!'

When Olivier stepped back in horror, the evil spirit glared at her with wide eyes and gritted its teeth.

Crackling.

[Does this deadly thing dare to harm my master? A sin that can never be repaid by dying! Master! If you allow it, your faithful servant will personally drag this to hell and collect your debt over time!]

"Hi!"

Olivier's fur became bitter. After all, that evil spirit was the one who killed the entire assassination team by engulfing them in black smoke.

It seemed as if the alternating roars and screams he used at that time were still echoing in her ears.

"Hayes."

Fortunately, the prince stopped him, and Olivier broke into a cold sweat and cleared his throat. This was because I was overcome with a sense of crisis that if I didn't make a proper excuse now, I would end up not dying even if I were to die.

"Well, I'm just a subordinate following orders from above. While carrying out a mission, Yakan's information got confused... .."

In fact, the first order Olivier received was to capture the person being guarded by Giovanni's son, that is, the Holy Emperor, to headquarters.

- To be exact, it is Seonghwang's 'doll'. Collect it as unscathed as possible and deliver it to the wizard's laboratory in the basement.

To safely obtain Homunculus, the culmination of the Kornsheim clan's soul transfer technology.

It was worth taking some damage. Currently, 'Kaya's Breath' is barely maintaining its power based on a head tower made of soul stones and a living doll with flame crystals inserted.

The souls of former assassins who have already passed away are subordinated to the head tower. And by providing them with new bodies that have undergone a 'ritual', the time and cost of training personnel is drastically saved.

That was the secret to maintaining their power as before in Ortona, where there was not a single decent employer left.

However, as it was still an imperfect technology, its limitations were also clear.

Although their biological dolls fully replicated the soul's combat abilities, they were significantly inferior in terms of communication and other intellectual abilities.

Also, because the connection with the head tower was too weak, even a slight spiritual shock would cause the soul to be thrown away.

It was perhaps natural for the leadership to make desperate efforts to make up for this.

-Do you understand? Olivier. The homunculus, the puppet of prosperity, has entered our sphere of influence for the first time. If you miss it this time, you may never have the chance to get it in the future.

A masterpiece by the Kornsim clan.

If we study homunculi, which are incomparably stable in terms of 'soul settlement', we may be able to sufficiently compensate for the weaknesses of biological dolls.

So, in 'Breath of Kaya', as an exception, a large number of people were dispatched to bases other than the capital Brindisi, even building temporary head towers.

-If this is not possible, you can just bring the head of the homunculus. The core technology for fixing the soul to the doll must be in the Dacion inserted into the head. Perhaps our wizard teacher, who is crazy about research, will definitely be able to figure out its function.

Olivier naturally had this question to ask.

-But is that really okay? No matter how much he is a puppet, it is directly harmful to Seonghwang himself, right?

-I guess so.

-Then won't you end up incurring the Empire's grudge?

Although they diligently use assassins who are free from death, they are still just a group of assassins. If you were to incur a grudge against the emperor of the most powerful empire on the continent, wouldn't the outcome be as obvious as fire?

But surprisingly, the leadership did not seem to care much.

-No need to worry about that, Olivier. Because Seonghwang is bound by more restrictions than you can even imagine. So, there is a high possibility that they will not make a big deal about what happened to their personal life. Because it's not unprecedented.

-... Restrictions? Liturgy?

-okay. However, they won't just hand over the homunculus to us. You will probably have to make every effort to completely subdue him.

The leader of 'Kaya's Breath' declared so and entrusted Olivier with as many puppets as he could mobilize. At this rate, I have enough power to not fail even if I fall backwards.

So until then, Olivier had not considered the success or failure of this mission to be that big of a deal.

-Just something to keep in mind, Olivier. In the process of carrying out your duties, you must never, ever touch anyone other than Seonghwang.

-Oh, of course, I will keep Giovanni's son alive. I also have that level of discernment.

-Don't just listen! If you encounter the children of the Holy Emperor, especially the 'Prepared One', you will never... .. !

-Yes, yes, I understand. I'll take care of it myself.

But what is this? Once things started to get tangled up, it was literally a moment before things went completely wrong.

The strange thing happened first to Seonghwang and his party. They thought they were going to move to Regina via the Marquis of Benso, but they suddenly abandoned the carriage and turned sharply towards the north.

'... Are you really thinking of going to Tere? why?'

Thanks to this, Olivier had no choice but to change his mind about attacking them right away and watch their movements carefully for a while.

'There are many people within the Freedom Underpass who have antipathy towards the Empire. If we move hastily, there may be problems with their identity being revealed or the homunculi being taken away.'

However, in the meantime, a big surprise occurred in the Jayu Underpass. Prince Mores and his party, who were thought to be staying in Regina, suddenly appeared in the old brewing city of Verdron and made some kind of deal with Giovanni, the head of the Free Underground.

And that wasn't the end. The prince's party, which should have been sent safely to Regina, suddenly turned towards Terre and joined the royal party!

Of course, Olivier, who was eagerly following Seonghwang, was completely unaware of this fact at first. Because 'Sabrina' suddenly appeared among them, there was a lot of information confusion for a while.

So Olivier, who had just finished preparing to attack Tere, had no choice but to take the flagship when he belatedly found out that there was a 'prepared person' there.

'shit! This is how things get complicated! 'What happens now?'

An awkward situation in which the object that must be secured even at the cost of loss is shared with those who must never be touched.

However, when I actually tried to report to headquarters and ask for opinions, the presence of 'Sabrina', who disrupted information, became a huge obstacle.

In the end, after much thought, Olivier came to this conclusion.

'Let's attack Terre first and see. Wouldn't it be okay to go and completely subdue them, then take out the homunculi and leave the rest safe?'

If he dies while suppressing him, that's inevitable.

Olivier, who did not know the seriousness of the situation, thought simply.

'If things don't work out, there is a way to place the blame on the penitent church.'

But things in the world never went the way she wanted. The guys I sent to scout were so clumsy in their actions that they never thought they would summon the 'prepared one' himself to the secret base!

The fact that it took longer than expected to catch Sabrina may not be such a big problem compared to that.

As a result, Olivier lost all his power and had to work hard to come up with an excuse, even sweating profusely.

Of course, it was of little use in the face of Prince Mores' sharp questioning.

"Although the North is outside its sphere of influence, the basic imperial information network is still functioning well here. "I haven't heard any reports recently, but today I saw that they were gathering enough power to wipe out an entire territory."

In response to the subject of single-handedly wiping out that enormous force, the prince admonished Olivier with a very serious expression.

"In other words, it was quite recently that you guys started gathering here. If so, there are two options you can consider. Were you trying to start an all-out war with the Marquis of Benso?"

"to... ... ?"

"The Marquis of Benso is a valuable companion who must continue to accompany the empire for the reconstruction of the North. If they tried to attack him, he cannot just sit idly by, even in the empire."

The Marquis of Benso? Partnership with the Empire? That's right... Riga?

'for a moment! There is information that Branch Manager Schmidt, who is said to have lost Prince Mores' limbs, has been working hard on something for the northern lords recently. If we do that, there may be some hidden exchanges that we haven't figured out yet!"

Olivier was skeptical, but looking at the prince's confident expression, it seemed like his words were not completely empty.

Feeling anxious that things might be bigger than expected, Olivier vehemently denied the prince's words.

"Oh, absolutely not!"

"Then you were trying to attack Tere, not the Marquis de Benso. Are you really trying to bury us all? Did he try to kill me?"

madam!

Olivier, struggling to come up with an excuse, desperately racked his brain.

"Well, is that possible? As I said before, there was a big misunderstanding!"

"misunderstanding."

"Yes. I heard that there is a devil worshiper hiding in the Freedom Underground who has caused great harm to our organization... ... !"

"..."

"That's why I saved as much power as I could! haha. Who knows what would happen if a devil worshiper went wild? So it's black in preparation. Of course, if I had known you were there, I would have saved you somehow in advance-"

Kieeeeeek!

At that moment, a sharp echo rang out. The sword is an evil spirit dressed in priestly clothing.

[Refrain from speaking!]

Beneath his sinister eyes as he glared at Olivier, black bloody tears were flowing like a waterfall. I was truly afraid of seeing it again in my dreams.

[This lowly thing! Whose safety are you letting me live on your own right now, are you spouting nonsense like this!]

See, what should I do then? If you say you planned to kill her, you'll get angry, but if you tell her you actually tried to save her, it's a damn thing, right?

Fortunately, the prince successfully restrained the evil spirit before Olivier was caught in his clutches.

"Hayes. stop."

[...] I apologize. I was presumptuous. Lord of the soul...]

As the evil spirit, which seemed to cling to the end of hell, obediently retreated, Olivier became curious once again.

What on earth is that prince doing? What on earth is the 'prepared one', that even the boss can tell him not to touch him, and that he can control evil spirits like that at will?

"Then let me ask you one more question. "If he cornered us in the Freedom Underpass base and prepared to attack us, is it safe to say that it was all Giovanni's will?"

The prince didn't seem to believe the 'devil worshiper' issue she was talking about at all. Like her not-so-cute little boy.

I flinch.

At the same time, I feel that Eun-i, who was standing behind the prince, is tense and listening to the conversation. Somehow he seemed familiar, but Olivier couldn't figure out why.

"Ah, Ang! "This matter is completely separate from the Freedom Underpass or the Blue Republican Revolutionary Front!"

Anyway, Olivier hastily shook his head.

Giovanni is one of the 'King Seeds' that 'Breath of Kaya' is diligently watering. The effort invested so far was quite significant to get caught up in this and lose it.

"Giovanni is a spider who doesn't know anything. "You're probably one of the customers doing business with our organization!"

In essence, a group of assassins had no choice but to grow their power by sticking to the side of a powerful king and becoming their limbs.

However, there are currently few powerful people left in the North who can be called 'kings'. Therefore, in order to create an environment in which Kaya's breath can grow naturally in the future, we have no choice but to carefully cultivate these few seeds.

"okay."

But something strange happened. The prince expected to inquire more about her purpose, but she suddenly began to give off a cool vibe.

"So that would mean that your plans changed after we joined our father."

"... .."

Startle.

As Olivier trembled with an ominous premonition, a cold, mineral glow passed through the prince's eyes as he looked down at her.

"Are you guys targeting my father?"

461

461. Remarks (1)

'Should I kill him?'

That was the thought that instantly captured Seongjin's mind.

Today was a day when many lives had to be taken. But this time, Seongjin felt a pure murderous impulse rising from deep within his heart.

It was the first time since I first woke up in Delcross, other than when I met Sigurd Sigurdson or the former Countess Sigismund.

'Should I kill him?'

Justification is also sufficient. It wasn't just because of the safety of my father or the people of Seonghwangga. Because a strong premonition had been ringing alarm bells in his head ever since.

If we leave it like this, that woman will one day come back and become a great bane to the empire.

'Should I kill him?'

Nevertheless, there were two reasons why Seongjin did not pick up the nutcracker right away.

first. That woman was ordered by someone to harm her father. This means that whether it is an order from one person or the intention of 'Breath of Kaya' as a whole, just hitting a woman's neck will not solve the problem.

'Even if you cut off the leaves, the weeds don't completely disappear. We'll have to block the waterway, find the roots, and get rid of the roots.'

second. Seongjin had been feeling a strong sense of discomfort with that woman since a while ago. She was clumsily pretending to be innocent, but at least it wasn't the typical assassin's attitude that Seongjin knew.

'What on earth are you thinking? There would already be no possibility of escape or hope of rescue. Why are you trying to preserve your life by making excuses that don't work?'

It's not that it wasn't, but just looking at those bald eyebrows gave me an indescribably uncomfortable feeling.

okay. For example, to Seongjin, that woman was like a rock at the bottom. The moment you pull it out because it is annoying, it is like a bomb that could cause the entire building to collapse.

"... .."

Kuuk.

As I unconsciously tightened my grip on the nutcracker, I heard the twins - to be exact, the assassins possessed by them - talking to themselves from behind.

"Is it okay if I leave it like that? Shouldn't we stop Mores?"

"well? But I think it's better than being angry at that kid."

"Yes, I am maintaining my senses more than I thought. You know that? "It's much scarier when he does that."

"Well, if things don't work out, he's the type of guy who will make things worse, even if they don't exist, and will hit you with interest, step by step."

It's noisy, you guys! I can hear everything!

'Sometimes, I don't know if those guys are trying to stop me or encourage me.'

Anyway, as his heart grew hotter with anger, Seongjin's mind grew colder and colder.

'There's definitely something about that woman.'

If you think about it carefully, there were many other questions.

'Why were those bare eyebrows playing the role of leader?'

Of course, he appears to have outstanding skills for his age. Even compared to the Monkey Watchtower's most elite agent, Dasha, it is difficult to determine his superiority or inferiority.

However, it is also true that the people she controlled were actually more skilled. Each and every one of the fifteen or so assassins was spewing out a prayer equivalent to that of the woman who had been fighting with Seongjin upstairs.

And one more thing.

'How was Minja Eyebrow controlling his subordinates?'

From what I heard, it seems like they subjugate dead souls to soul stones and exploit them, but in that case, aren't their subordinates actually more senior than Minja Eyebrow?

Also, they didn't seem to be able to speak properly in the first place, so how on earth were they able to communicate with each other?

'Hmm... ... '

Red light flashes again in Seongjin's pupils. But no matter how much I washed my eyes and looked, there was no such thing as a flame crystal in Minja's mind.

[Lee Seong-jin.]

It was right then. The Demon King, who had been wandering around, flew in front of Seongjin as a captive and opened his mouth.

[That thing's soul, there's something strange about it.]

It's a good thing to hear!

"What? What did you find out? Could it be that that guy is also the soul of the Gyu-sang world?"

[no. That's not right. Both body and soul are clearly human in the original world. But...]

The Demon King, who had said that far, slowly approached Seongjin's ear and whispered in a cautious voice.

[There was something like an imprint engraved on its soul.]

... engrave?

[okay. It is a spiritual imprint engraved by a higher soul. It took a while to make out because it was so shallow and blurry, but it was clearly a demonic character engraved with demonic energy. This is a common method used by demons to engrave a message into the soul.]

"A quick speech? "Humans were blessed by the devil?"

[Well, I don't know exactly. Judging whether the congratulatory message is a blessing or a curse is largely a subjective matter.]

Just because it was hand-carved by the devil, it can't have purely good intentions, right?

"So what is it engraved on?"

[Hmm, but I'm not sure about that...]

The Demon King twisted his body as if he were embarrassed, twisting the flame around.

[No matter how carefully I look at the abbreviation, I can't really understand the content.]

"Even though the letters are clearly visible to the eye? Why?"

[Perhaps the person who engraved this thought he wanted to keep it a secret.]

And that means a pretty serious problem, the devil added.

[lets think. Such restrictions are usually only applied to beings lower than oneself. But even this great Fire Demon can't read it properly, right?]

That means-

[Maybe, no, it's almost certainly true, but that eyebrowless woman might be a member of one of the high-ranking demon lords.]

"... .."

[What's a bit surprising is how it survived the imprinting process. The soul of an ordinary human is likely to perish without power even if it is touched by the will of a high-ranking demon king.]

"hmm."

Seongjin glanced back at the assassin killed by the twins. Although they are vicious chess terrorists, it can be said that they are the most trustworthy when it comes to matters related to the soul.

but-

"It's foul to ask us right away, Mores."

"That's right, we also have our own lines that we must follow."

"Of course, that doesn't mean we don't know."

"Well, there are very few things we don't know."

They were twins who, despite their sharp rejection, never forgot to show off.

When I looked at Hayes and Belinda just in case, they too shook their heads with dejected expressions.

[I am truly disgraceful for not being of any help, my lord.]

[Hehehehe! Lord of my soul! Please severely punish this useless and ugly servant!]

Gurgling!

'Uh, Hayes. Please don't cry. 'When I look at you, you're really scary!'

In the end, Seongjin had no choice but to sigh and ask the Demon King for a favor.

"I can't help it. Then show it to me."

[what?]

"Where exactly is that speech? "Just tell me the location and I'll take a look."

Then the Demon King looked a little embarrassed and twirled around his bare eyebrowed head.

[Well, what about it? Seongjin Lee, strictly speaking, you do not have proper spiritual vision. Your wonderful flame crystals merely replace information that cannot be directly sensed with visual information. But will you be able to see the Demon World's words precisely engraved in your soul? You don't even know the demon alphabet, right?]

"doesn't care. "I think it's okay."

[Uhm...]

The Demon King looked skeptical, but for now, he obediently approached Minja Eyebrow as requested by Seongjin. And then he did some tricks, spinning around near the woman's shoulder.

"Huh?! "Is this okay?"

"It's a fairy. "Don't move, just stay there."

"Yes..."

"..."

Unfortunately, as the Demon King said, Seongjin could not see any proper letters. Only the dark, stain-like shade tells us that there was a magical intervention in the woman's soul.

However, regardless of not being able to see it in detail, the meaning of the congratulatory message was fully conveyed to Seongjin's mind just by quietly staring at it.

-Don't be afraid of collapsing. Your bone meal and flesh will turn into countless seeds. They will sprout from the ashes and eventually crumble.

Oh, I think I might know who engraved this quote.

Seongjin glared at the woman in front of him with a somewhat serious expression. She is a descendant of a high-ranking demon lord, and yet she is a woman who pretends to be truly naive.

"But you. I guess it looks familiar. Haven't we seen this before somewhere?"

"Yes? Haha, can't that be... .."

"okay? "What is your name?"

"Ang, if you just give the name to the assassin who gave up his name... .."

"So what is it?"

"Hey, forget it!"

"... .."

"Really... .."

Seeing as he doesn't want to reveal his name even if he dies, it seems clear that this is someone Seongjin met somewhere. It was a bit surprising that they didn't mention a pseudonym.

'Or, you just can't lie about your name?'

Well, it doesn't matter either way.

For a while, Seongjin persistently asked the woman about the organizational structure of 'Kaya's Breath' and the structure they had created called 'Head Tower'.

"Wizard? He made a living doll and a head tower?"

"Yes. But I don't know his identity either... .."

Of course, there wasn't much key information that the woman knew properly.

[It's the truth.]

Although the Demon King occasionally gave a definite answer, Seongjin still felt a strange discomfort in her attitude.

He is so good at lying that he seems to freely control involuntary signs such as blood pressure and pulse.

How many questions and answers were exchanged like that?

"... "Hey, but you're not going to kill me?"

With an innocent question, a strange green glow flashed through the woman's eyes.

And at that moment, strangely, Seongjin was able to read a faint piece of thought that had not been spoken out loud in her eyes.

-Why don't you kill me? How do you avoid this?

Seongjin fiercely raised the corners of his mouth. The smile was so dreary that No. 21, who was looking at him, was shocked and took a step back.

"... okay."

Since the other side already sent me a gift, I should give a proper return from here as well.

The trick came to me naturally. Hadn't he unintentionally experimented directly with Lord Masain's soul some time ago?

How to whisper a curse not strong enough to destroy a soul, but strong enough to strangle a person's life.

So Seongjin slowly lowered his head and gently brought his lips to her ear.

"... .."

"... ..!"

Hearing Seongjin's long whisper, his eyebrows widened.

"... Well, then... "Is it really the sword that will save me?"

"Right now, yes. Of course, you have to pay a price."

"cost... yo. this?"

"huh. "If you look closely, you'll see that there's a big lump on my group's head that you haven't seen before."

When Seongjin grinned and raised his fist, his bare eyebrows protested in horror.

"Ang! How can something like that be used? Then what on earth has been hitting me so far... ..!"

Wow!

"Ahh!"

When the young man suddenly let out an ugly scream and collapsed, the woman next to him came running in fright.

"W-what's going on, master!"

"no... .."

The young man, [Pajong], put down the lute with a sad look on his face.

The top of my head was suddenly shocked and tingled. When she returned to the religious order after a long time and was trying to enjoy her leisure life, she suddenly thought, "Why is this so crazy?"

"what? Someone saw a connection to the seeds I planted. Although it was light, the blow was delivered directly to this side. That won't be that easy... .."

Nevertheless, the woman still seemed not to realize the seriousness of the situation. As she looked at her like that, her seed sighed softly.

"Look. "He is the high priest of sowing."

"Yes, my true master."

"When did your predecessor die? What high priest are you now?"

"How is it that as each generation passes, children become more and more stupid?"

"... .."

The woman bit her lip in sorrow for a moment, but soon hid her expression and bowed her head politely.

"... I'm probably third."

"Right."

Pajong nodded and lay down on the bed.

The guy who just got hit probably wasn't an ordinary seed. If he had this close of a connection, he must have been a member of the high priest or higher. Since there were so many people planted so far, it was impossible to pinpoint who it was.

'Is it really a mistake to appoint high priests as if sowing seeds here and there? I need to remember who is who... ..'

But it's strange. Why is my body feeling chilly from earlier? I even felt a strange discomfort, as if a bug had stuck to my body.

'It's probably not a disease. This time, I got a fairly healthy body.'

Pa Jong stroked his head, which was still a little numb, and frowned.

The road back to Tere felt quite long. She probably felt that way even more because she was carrying the unconscious No. 13 around her.

Number 21 took a moment to catch his breath and looked at Prince Mores, who was walking ahead.

A great action at dawn, and a suspicious altar set up at the enemy's base. And even the terrifying evil spirits that the prince summoned from hell.

Today, No. 21 seemed to have shared some serious secrets with the prince. Secrets that I cannot hastily judge between right and wrong, and that I have no idea how to report to His Majesty.

'but... ... ,'

When you don't know something, first think about the outcome of the task.

'Anyway, we safely rescued Senior No. 13, and most of all, we protected His Majesty's Homunculus from 'Kaya's Breath'.'

Okay, maybe that's enough.

Number 21, who was organizing his thoughts like that, cautiously opened his mouth to the prince when he almost arrived in the village.

"Lowering. Actually, I met that eyebrowless woman before."

"okay?"

A reaction that seems not to be surprising. The figure strangely resembled the person he was serving, making No. 21 feel mixed.

"Some time ago, while carrying out His Majesty's orders, I exchanged swords with that woman near the Imperial Capital."

"Yes, your skills are beyond your control."

"... .."

It was probably possible because it was truly a fleeting encounter.

Also, thanks to the warning given by Seonghwang in advance.

-Firefighting and pursuit are absolutely prohibited.

When I explained that to the prince, he looked a little confused.

"hmm. My father... .."

"Why are you doing this, sir?"

"Actually, I've been worried about my father for a while."

After saying that, Prince Mores looked back at No. 21 with a despondent expression.

"Actually, I killed my first person today."

"... .."

Number 21 did not understand that at first.

"... yes?"

"Strictly speaking, it's not the first time, but in any case, it's the first time I've taken someone's life with 'my' hands."

"... ..!"

"Of course, I thought it was something that could not be avoided, and I tried to act as rationally as possible. But as a child, how can you honestly tell your parents about this?"

Of course, my father would already know everything, the prince added.

"that... ..!"

"I'm embarrassed. "What on earth should I tell my father?"

Number 21 opened his mouth, but had nothing to say in response. This was because he had once again received a great shock.

Actually, that's right. Prince Mores is a boy who has not yet reached his sixteenth birthday. There is no way he, who grew up in the imperial palace, would have ever killed someone!

"Okay... .."

"... .."

Prince Mores continued to worry after that, but No. 21 did not dare to say anything more to him.

Surrounded by complete silence, they arrived at Tere's inn. This was after dawn had already broken.

"... father."

And the prince faced the emperor with his head down, looking like a child who had made a mistake.

"... .."

But there was no need for any further conversation with them. Seonghwang did not have to explain everything that happened, because he was a person who knew and understood everything.

He wordlessly placed his hand on Prince Mores' head and then began to lightly pat it as if to comfort him.

"uh... .."

The prince's tense face suddenly relaxes.

After seeing that, No. 21 quietly closed his eyes, caught up in extremely complicated emotions.

462. Remarks (2)

Since Seonghwang did not ask any questions or reprimand, Seongjin felt much more at ease.

However, he soon had to face another challenge: Sir Martha, whose complexion was dark as he had not been able to sleep all night.

"... Hey, are you okay? Sir Masaine?"

Seongjin stuttered without realizing it.

It wouldn't have been unreasonable. The prince, who went out to get some fresh air, doesn't come back no matter how much I wait, so my stomach is burning with tension.

Because of this, he seemed to have lost his temper and wandered around the entrance to the village, where he ended up staying up all night.

"Lowering! Where on earth have you been... ... !"

As soon as Masain saw Seongjin, he tried to scream like usual.

However, I held my stomach before I could finish speaking, because the moment my extreme tension was relieved, stomach acid poured out.

"omg?"

Seongjin, who was frightened, took him to Seonghwang.

"No, sir. I'm really fine... for a moment! Please answer faster than that! Where on earth did you go all night without saying a word? ... !"

... Cool.

Surprisingly, as soon as Seonghwang touched his forehead, Masain fainted and fell asleep. I thought maybe he had forcibly blown her soul into another dimension like last time.

"Mores. "When Masain wakes up, you will have to face him properly and talk to him."

The Holy Emperor gave advice softly, pouring divine power over the head of the silent knight. It was a very difficult request.

"Uhm, father. But that's a little..."

"..."

"... all right."

When I thought about Masain's reaction that I would have to face in the future, my eyes became dark. What can I do? I have committed a sin, so I can only answer obediently.

Other than that, everything went smoothly.

Like Masain, Seongjin and No. 21 also received plenty of divine power treatment from Seonghwang. Although there were no serious injuries, there were many minor scratches, knowingly or unknowingly. I was secretly tired from fighting assassins all night.

Dasha also received proper treatment from Seonghwang. Fortunately, her injury itself was not that serious, but instead, her body was greatly weakened due to hunger and lack of sleep for several days. Maybe that's why Dasha couldn't open her eyes right away even after her successful treatment.

"It's probably because of mental fatigue. "You must have pushed yourself to your limit these past few days without letting go of your nerves even for a moment."

Seongjin nodded at No. 21's words.

"okay? Then wait until Dasha wakes up and then slowly leave for Regina."

I caught Giacomo Milo and found my father safely. Then there's no more urgent work, right? So Seongjin waited for Dasha to wake up and calmly started working on her paperwork.

"Newbie, what is that?"

Owen, who had recently been to Pangea Chronicle again, was carrying a lot of food and snooping around Seongjin's room.

"I'm working on the business plan."

"business plan?"

"huh. 'I have to return Oliver's 'junior business license' and receive official investment from the imperial palace.'"

The standards for projects in which the imperial palace directly invests are not easy. Even though Amelia has simplified the process and greatly increased efficiency, she never means that the content can be lacking.

But who knows how long it will take Oliver, a country boy, to complete all the procedures.

"Oliver needs to open a decent business as soon as possible and supply the entire continent with teosinte grown using 'Martian farming methods.'"

This was a good thing for everyone. Oliver will win the investment from the imperial palace without much effort, and Seongjin will be able to earn a lot of consulting fees while doing his own thing.

But what caught Owen's ear was a word that seemed somehow familiar yet unfamiliar.

"... Masain farming method? 'What on earth is that?'"

"Well, from now on, Oliver is going to cultivate teosinte using the method provided by Lord Martha. And I will share all the sales profits with him. 'It's a kind of agricultural technology fee.'"

Then Owen made a puzzled face.

"But how is that possible? "Brother Masain, I'm sure you've never done any farming before, right?"

Seongjin bared his teeth viciously at that innocent question.

"Of course, there is no such farming method in the world. "It's all a fraudulent contract."

"... Eh?"

"But it's too late. Sir Masaine has already signed the papers I gave him! That's why you have to be careful early on and not do something you'll regret later."

Seongjin gently waved his quill and lifted his chin. Do you understand, Owen? Please take note too. If you carelessly sign a document you don't know well, like Sir Martha or Logan, your life can be ruined in an instant.

"Just imagine. How terrible things will happen next. Someone unknown to Sir Martha will commit atrocities by selling his name and making a lot of money on the continent."

"... ..?"

"And while Sir Martha is distracted, that unscrupulous man will sneak into the bank and pile up money from unknown sources in Sir Martha's account."

"... ..?"

"As the business grows, the amount is bound to increase exponentially. At that point, there is no way to do anything anymore. "Lord Martha will climb on the ever-higher money cushion and complain of extreme dizziness, but no one will truly listen to his voice that has already grown so far away."

"... ..?"

"In the end, the innocent Sir Martha will be unable to get off the money cushion for the rest of his life and will scream horribly in return for one mistake in signing his name. "Isn't that scary?"

Kkkkkkkk!

As Seongjin let out a sinister, muffled laugh, the Demon King, who was sitting on a small brass bowl, let out a sigh.

[...] Seongjin Lee, what are you doing now?]

shut up! In times like this, all you have to do is just laugh evilly next to them. You devil bastard who can't understand this atmosphere!

"hmm... .."

Owen looked very confused. It's not that he isn't, because he also previously had a record of ignorantly signing documents he didn't know about at Seongjin's request.

"Anyway, the job looks easy."

"that's right. "It's so annoying I'm dying."

"But is there any need for you to be busy working here? Anyway, we'll be heading back to Regina soon. Then, leave it to Branch Manager Schmidt like before. "When it comes to business, he's probably more expert than you, right?"

"well... .."

Seongjin put down the quill and furrowed his brows.

"Actually, I've thought about it, but I feel like I'm pushing Branch Manager Schmidt too much these days."

He has already been entrusted with not only the salmon salmon business but also the northern economic reconstruction project. Moreover, recently, she has been acting as Seongjin's personal assistant, including being his alibi.

No matter how much he tightened his grip on the 'Devil's List', it was too harsh to increase his workload any further.

"When I get back to Regina, I guess I'll try hiring a new secretary."

It would be nice to have someone by my side to collect primary information and guide people around instead of Seongjin.

Seongjin tilted his head for a moment, then rested his chin and picked up the quill.

"Well, I'll have to think about it later. Anyway, I'm going to stay here today so Dasha can get some rest. "In the meantime, just take it easy and do your work."

[You have two options.]

Dasha was dreaming now. A dream from her childhood that had been so long ago that she had completely forgotten about it.

[If you stand out here, it won't be long before you're sold to Primrose Entertainment District. You will have a hard time there in the beginning, but you will be able to gradually expand your influence in the underworld of Asean.]

Yes, I remembered.

It was the day Dasha entered an orphanage run by a monastery. As she was sitting despondently waiting for her priest, a woman she had never seen before came into her room and spoke to her in a friendly manner.

'Who is it? 'Are you the priest here?'

Even at a young age, Dasha was very suspicious of women. It's not that she wasn't, because she was dressed all in black and even had a black veil on her head.

[You have talent. He is talented enough to capture people's hearts, secretly uncover their weaknesses, and ultimately wield them all. Those who exploited you cruelly will soon bow at your feet, one by one.]

"... .."

Dasha frowned without realizing it. She was just a brat with no blood on her head yet, but at least she didn't know what a bad reputation the Primrose entertainment district had on the continent.

It was a scary time, and the world was overflowing with poor people. It is no secret that orphans like her were constantly being created, and many of them ended up in her red-light district.

Moreover, since Dasha had a fairly fair face, I sometimes imagined that if I was unlucky, life could turn out that way.

But isn't he a very inconsiderate priest to say such hopeless things to a child he just met for the first time?

[Don't you like it? Then there are other options.]

"... "What is that?"

[Try to be as inconspicuous as possible and kill yourself quietly. Then, you will be selected for 'Hand of Oberon' before you turn 10. They will recognize your talent at a glance and train you painstakingly over a long period of time. You will one day be able to become one of the greatest assassins the Hand of Oberon has produced.]

assassin? That was a choice I had never imagined.

[You will always be leading to death. The blood will never dry on your hands, and the corpses of people will pile up like fallen leaves behind your steps. Eventually, you will be able to become the most faithful apostle of death and make the entire continent tremble with the fear of assassination.]

"and... .."

Young Dasha was momentarily speechless at that terrifying prophecy. At first glance, she may seem like a better option than the entertainment district in terms of gaining strength on her own, but if what she says, isn't that also a very bleak and miserable life?

[But no matter which one you choose, it will be difficult for you to live with your original name, 'Dasha.']

... Have you ever told the priest my name?

At first glance, that was what she thought, but Dasha soon completely forgot about the question. This is because the choice she was faced with felt so heavy to her young self.

Perhaps the woman's prophecy could have been dismissed as mere nonsense. However, her voice, which strangely penetrated my mind, had enough power to shake the young girl's soul.

So Dasha asked as if she was clinging to her without realizing it.

"Then what should I do? "If I want to live differently from what the priest said, what should I do next to protect my name to the end?"

[...]]

The woman did not answer right away. But for a moment, Dasha felt that a faint smile appeared on her face, hidden behind a veil.

[...] okay. I see.]

The woman gently stroked Dasha's cheek and slowly lowered her head. Soon, the rich scent of roses emanating from her became closer, and her black hair flowing down her shoulders made a cool friction sound.

And then a voice as sweet as the devil's whisper flowed into Dasha's ears.

[Then use your power to drive out the abbot. Then another new path will open for you.]

... Are you serious?

How on earth could a little orphan girl who had just entered the monastery achieve such a thing?

It was so absurd that I looked up at her, and the woman touched

Dasha's forehead with a graceful gesture.

[Don't worry. Let me give you a little congratulations. So that one day you can safely regain your name.]

A quick speech?

[Dasha. Remember clearly the scent of death. And entrust your fate and all the missions that fate has entrusted to him. Then death might be... ..]

The memories ended there.

When Dasha suddenly came to her senses, she was being led by the hand of a priest she had never seen before and was entering a shabby restaurant where orphans were gathered.

It was quite some time later that I realized that there was no priest wearing all black in this monastery.

The conversation she had with the mysterious woman in black gradually became a blur in Dasha's mind.

but-

'We must kick out the abbot.'

The more time Dasha spent at the monastery, the more firmly this idea began to take root in Dasha's mind. This is because the orphans she stayed with disappeared without a word day after day.

The priests carefully watched the abbot, and suspicious guests came and went into his office every day. While the number of jeweled rings increased one by one in the abbot's hands, no one paid attention to the whereabouts of the poor orphans.

It was clear. That abbot is hiding some terrible secret.

"Wow, that's scary. Dasha, do you think the priests are right? "Are they really dragged to hell because they didn't pray to the Lord?"

Ramira, who was blowing on her red, ruptured hand, whispered to Dasha. She was her new friend at the orphanage, and she was an easy-going girl who was happy to hang out with Dasha, who had a different skin color.

"That's not it. "The abbot is clearly selling the orphans somewhere secretly."

"Sell? Where?"

"Probably Regina's Nightlife or Primrose Revelry. "They say they buy orphans like us at low prices and treat them like hell for the rest of their lives."

"Hi! really? Well, then what should we do?"

At Ramira's fuss, Dasha looked at her protruding cheekbones.

"... Um, I guess you'll be okay?"

The reason Dasha could give a clear answer was simple. Sadly, Ramira was one of the ugliest children in the monastery.

Unless it was Peter, a boy full of freckles, no one would buy her.

"profit! Thank you so much, Dasha! "That sounds so comforting!"

"100 million! "If you really appreciate it, why don't you let go of this?"

"shut up! Catch Black Barça!"

"Is that what you're going to say? An Anatolian ground dog that digs up dirt and eats it!"

After fighting for a while, the two reconciled by sharing a piece of bread they had secretly hidden.

"So what do we do now?"

"huh. First, we need to find evidence to report the abbot to the outside church."

It was extremely unlikely that the monastery would find a solution on its own. It was obvious that as long as the abbot, the most powerful person in the monastery, maintained his position, the priests here would be powerless.

"Evidence to accuse the director? By what means can we? "Can't we just find a good person among the priests on rotation and ask them to help us?"

"If you just appeal like that, no one will listen. "Who would believe the words of orphans slandering the director without any solid evidence?"

Moreover, if the full story of this incident were revealed, the prestige of not only the monastery but also the church would be greatly damaged. This is an issue that is too burdensome for a single priest to roll up his hands.

'therefore...'

It was more likely that the church would be able to prove the abbot's minor faults. Such as embezzling a small amount of church property or breaking some of the monastery's rules. A charge that doesn't cause too much of a fuss, but is just enough to lightly change the person responsible.

Dasha, who had to grow up earlier than others, unfortunately instinctively understood the physiology of the church.

"Ah, Dasha! There's the abbot. "I'm with suspicious guests again this time!"

"Shh! Don't look at me carelessly, Ramira. "I'm going to get dragged in and get beaten for no reason."

Dasha quickly lowered her head and pricked her ears to eavesdrop on their conversation.

A congratulatory message whispered by a mysterious woman one day appeared in her ear like an auditory hallucination.

- Dasha. Remember clearly the scent of death...

463. Remarks (3)

"If you keep acting like this, I will be in real trouble."

Director Mathieu made a fortune while fiddling with a large ruby ring. He was an elderly senior priest and had been the head of Dunstan Abbey for over ten years.

"There are limits to running an orphanage with only a small amount of donations. Nevertheless, we have been accepting the beggars who come from all directions with only a sense of duty. But since you are not handling the promised volume, the deficit has been piling up for several months already."

Then the woman sitting across from him glanced down at Mathieu with cold eyes. To be exact, the needlessly flashy accessories he is wearing.

"For all the complaining, the situation doesn't seem that bad. From what I heard, it looks like they are having fun by handing over orphans to red-light districts."

"The only things that can be disposed of in that way are a few high-quality items. Even last month, we only had four guys and seven girls. "The world is still overflowing with trash, and they are flocking here endlessly."

Having said that, Mathieu leaned forward and stared at the woman's face. A special guest wrapped in black priestly robes who should never set foot in this monastery.

"So shouldn't you, at least in the 'underground church', find a use for them? To those orphans who have no idea why they were born into this world and for what purpose."

"... "This is not something a servant who serves the Lord should say."

At his words and actions that naturally made her frown, an expression of strong contempt appeared on the woman's face. However, Director Mathieu just lightly picked her ear, paying no attention to her reaction.

"Well, at least I don't think the Lord will punish Mathieu for what he just said. "He discriminates against humans to begin with."

"gibberish! The Lord never... ..!"

"Ah, I have no intention of wasting time with needless general discussions, Vicar. Isn't that a truth that everyone learns through experience as they live in this world? "You and I both understand this fact deep down."

The woman glared at the abbot for a moment, then sat down in her chair and responded with a stern expression.

"In any case, our position does not change. Because the Charity Church will no longer take orphans from here. Didn't I tell you? "The great [Pay] no longer expects 'dedication' from children."

"What kind of nonsense is that?"

Mathieu could not easily believe her words.

"Until last year, the person you serve regularly asked for dozens of human sacrifices every year-"

"Director Mathieu!"

"... excuse. Didn't you ask for the orphans' 'dedication'? Are you sure you are not procuring sacrifices from somewhere else without Mathieu's knowledge?"

Mathieu was well aware that a big change had recently occurred in the [Painful] Church.

The beloved archbishop was suddenly replaced, and unfamiliar rules that were completely different from before were handed down to each diocese.

'But no matter what, they suddenly stop all transactions like this?'

It has been almost 10 years since he secretly handed over human sacrifices to the Aeyeol Church. So I was confident that I knew more about their physiology than anyone else.

On the surface, they claimed to be brothers serving the same god, but the behavior of the underground cult more closely resembled evil devil worshipers.

An evil group that cannot receive any favors from the 'Archbishop' they serve unless they pay a price, even if it means squeezing the bodies and souls of humans.

But now, a member of that gloomy group is talking like this with an expression of no hesitation.

"Now we have the right 'archbishop'. "It's just that he finally conveyed his true meaning of [sorrow] to us."

"under!"

Mathieu's face suddenly became irritated.

"Then why on earth did you come here? "You said you wouldn't do business with me anymore, so why are you wasting my time?"

"It's to ask for your cooperation. "We are looking for a boy now."

"... boy?"

Do you want an offering under certain conditions? Mathieu thought so at first, but looking at the vicar's expression, it didn't seem like that was the case.

"okay. He's a boy with black hair and gray eyes. He must have turned 14 this year. I wonder if this orphanage has a boy like that?"

"If you're 14, you're a bit old to be here... .."

"There is a possibility that you look much younger than your age. "I heard that you have often skipped meals since you were young."

"joy! "Is there one or two of those things in this orphanage?"

Mathieu snorted, but the vicar's eyes on him remained firm.

"Ae-yeol said he would appear here around this time. "Do you really not know?"

"So, there must be so many kids here... .."

"They say the boy has a very striking appearance. So he will never be recognized."

... well. If a guy like that had come here, wouldn't he have been sold to the entertainment district a long time ago?

Mathieu was extremely skeptical about finding the boy, but he did not bother to share his thoughts with the vicar. Because she soon took out a large jewel from her bosom.

"Please use your strength. [Ayeol] is desperately looking for that boy right now."

"... "What are you going to do to find him?"

"It's just to keep it safe. It's not something you can't understand. If you think about it, [Payment] is like all the love in the world itself."

"... .."

pestilence. Not long ago, he ripped out the souls of orphans and ate them alive, and his love story... ..

"I'll hand this over as a down payment. "If I find him, I will pay a heavy price."

"I will do my best!"

No more words were needed. Abbot Mathieu nodded vigorously and snatched the jewel from the woman's hand.

Because the distance was quite far, Dasha could not fully understand their conversation. I can only guess a few words based on the shape of my mouth that I see sparsely.

'... orphanage... trash... Deficit... Attack? No offering...'

'omg! Dasha, bow your head! The customer is about to wake up now. If you do something wrong, you'll get caught!'

'okay.'

At Ramira's signal, Dasha quickly escaped and ran to the back of the monastery.

At the same time, I tried to combine the information by repeating the words I had just learned in my head.

'Pass, sacrifice, and gray eyes... boy...'

That was all the words I found out. But that alone was enough for Dasha to guess the seriousness of the situation.

'I thought they were simply selling the children because they were blinded by money, but in fact, there was already a connection to the underground religious order through the abbot's line?'

The situation is more serious than expected. No matter how young she was, she did not know how underground religious cults were currently being treated on the continent.

[Payment], [Sowing], [Repentance], [Rest].

These four underground denominations with long histories were, on the surface, solid sects that served the main god.

However, what they did for their faith could not be said to be solid, even with empty words.

Abnormal rituals and cruel human sacrifices carried out indiscriminately. Because of this, many regions are already considering them as heretics and sending those involved to the Inquisition.

If this matter is revealed to the world, there will be a huge bloody storm in the Dunstan Estate.

'What do we do? 'This isn't a problem I can tackle on my own!'

Selling orphans to the red-light district was no longer a big problem. If you're unlucky, the entire orphanage, along with the abbot, might get caught up in the Inquisition.

'What on earth should I do...?'

Rumbling!

As if reflecting Dasha's gloomy mood, the sky gradually darkened and thunder could be heard from afar.

While Dasha was wandering in her dream, another thunderstorm was raging at the inn where Seongjin and his group were staying.

Growling!

'I'm sorry, Sir Martha! It's my fault! "I won't do that again!"

"Don't say anything you don't mean! "How many times have you said that?"

OMG!

With Prince Mores in front of him, Sir Martha seemed to emit breath from his male mouth.

"Tell me something! Have I ever expected so much from you? yes?"

"No, that's... Kuek?"

"It's nothing else! I just want you to tell me in advance! Where are you going! How long will I be back? Was it that difficult to leave such a simple message?"

"No, Sir Masaine. So you're saying it's all a misunderstanding? At first, I had no idea that I would go that far... "Kek!"

"Why don't you know what you don't know! "Don't be funny!"

No. 21 opened the door to hear the loud noise and saw-

Taltaltal!

Isn't Prince Mores captured by his guard and being robbed back and forth?

No. 21 stared blankly at what they were doing for a moment as they threw away all manners and dignity as members of the royal family.

"calm down. Leave this aside for a moment... ... !"

"Yes, I know! I know very well how inadequate I am to carry out the task! But that doesn't mean you can ignore my sincere loyalty like that!"

"No, Sir Masaine. To be so self-deprecating..."

"Are you belittling me now? Or is that how you treat me!"

"Oh, oh! Of course, I have faith in Sir Martha! Are you saying that you depend and trust deeply in your heart? Really!"

"Don't try to smooth over the situation with such soulless rhetoric! "It's all useless now!"

"These are not empty words! "Lord Masain is the swordsmanship teacher I respect the most in the world."

"Teek!"

Number 21 quietly closed the door. Because their behavior was comical, but at the same time, I felt uncomfortable, as if I had been deceived.

Why not? The person who is now spewing out such intense feelings of self-destruction and anger is actually the youngest knight commander in the imperial palace, and one who was on the verge of becoming a Tekaron Knight at a young age.

What about Prince Mores, who is grabbed by the collar and shaken back and forth? He is already rumored throughout the imperial capital to be a genius swordsman, and his skills far surpass even that of Monkey Watchtower's elite agents.

"Senior No. 13 hasn't opened his eyes yet. If he's going to fight, he'll fight quietly from a distance... .."

Number 21 sat down on a chair and grumbled softly. At the same time, he had a gloomy expression because he was aware that this gut-wrenching discomfort was due to his lack of qualifications.

"hmm? Why are you looking so hungry? Mr. 21."

At that time, Edith came into the room carrying a steaming plate.

"What is that?"

"I brought some light meals. "When your colleague wakes up, you have to have a quick meal, right?"

I was a little impressed with issue 21.

By the way, Edith is unusually considerate... huh? for a moment.

"But Edith. "I don't think that's the food sold at this inn."

"yes? That's natural. How could someone who just woke up from an illness digest the fatty food at the inn? So I borrowed the kitchen for a while and made some thin stew."

... Boil it?

Number 21 was very nervous.

"that... Excuse. Well, Edith. Could it be... "Have you tasted it?"

Then Edith straightened her back and answered in a humorously sweet manner.

"no? "What should I do if I taste bile?"

"Hey, you... ..!"

How on earth did you get that kind of conscience?

They fought over the bowl in the middle for a while.

The dedicated maid, an Auror user, was not an easy opponent, but No. 21 was able to steal her stew bowl with the determination to save No. 13 at all costs.

"Tsk! No. 21, you don't know much. "Food that is inherently good for your health also tastes bitter!"

Putting Edith's useless grumbling aside, No. 21 calmly turned around.

"I will leave this poison far away, so please take care of my colleagues instead of me."

"Oh, yes, yes. "I understand."

Edith pulled a chair and quietly sat down next to Dasha. Then she stared at her smooth brown skin for a moment.

"But I didn't know that No. 21 was a colleague of someone from Barça. "Maybe it's because I've been hanging out with Mr. Bartosa a lot lately, but this person's face feels very familiar to me."

"... First of all, she is from the Empire. Of course, I don't know much about her parents' origins."

"is it so?"

"So please don't say insensitive things like saying that you resemble the savage in the barn in front of her. "He will probably be very angry."

"Oh, I'll be careful."

While giving Edith such caution, No. 21 gained a new insight.

'Yes, now that I think about it, there was that barbarian here too. The culprit who made us all suffer by running away with His Majesty's homunculus!

I decided. I guess I'll just put this stew next to the barn.

"But Mr. 21. "Priest Bart must have treated him well, but why can't he wake up yet?"

"You will open your eyes soon. "It's just that you need a little longer rest than usual because of the fatigue."

Number 21, who responded like that, took a quick glance at Dasha, who was frowning slightly as if in agony, and added,

"Or maybe I'm dreaming something."

464. Remarks (4)

From the day she witnessed the meeting between the abbot and the suspicious guest, Dasha began going in and out of his office secretly. He was trying to find evidence to accuse the director.

"Dasha, let's stop now. What are you going to do if you get caught?
"Anyway, I need you to know one big thing about me."

Of course, Ramira's stubbornness, who followed her saying she would watch over her, was also formidable.

The girls walked quietly through the hallways until they reached the deserted main building of the monastery building.

"But the doors are all locked?"

"You can pick it. Ramira, give me a skewer there."

"swimming... . "Where did you learn all these tricks?"

"It's not a structure where there are things you need to learn. "The locks in this monastery are all simple."

After grabbing a hungry stomach and robbing a few grocery warehouses, you can become a master at picking keys.

Ramira shook her head.

"Wow, what are you planning to become later?"

"Now you're talking about something else on a topic we shared well together."

Creak.

The locked door opens with a heavy friction sound, and the view of the office, which is unusually luxurious for a monastery, comes into view.

While Ramira was distracted by the beautiful decorations, Dasha quickly walked up to the abbot's desk and began shuffling through the papers.

"But Dasha, what are you looking for there? "Can you read?"

"Roughly. "Father Ellison reads the scriptures every Mass."

"Huh..."

Ramira gaped.

Should we be surprised by the priest's ability to match words with his pronunciation, or should we be surprised by his ability to distinguish dense scriptural letters from a considerable distance?

Meanwhile, Dasha was diligently looking through the materials, using the faint moonlight as a light.

"hmm..."

Unfortunately, there wasn't as much content to salvage as I thought. It was not because the abbot was a more honest person than expected. Ridiculously, the abbot was so lazy and unplanned that he did not even keep separate ledgers.

It was outrageous that the monastery did not even have a proper list of orphans being cared for or records of moving in and out.

'... What should I do with this? 'There is nothing to complain about other than the poor use of donations.'

Of course, how the donations are used is entirely at the discretion of the abbot. There was a high possibility that the church would not make a big issue of it.

'Is the only way to report the abbot to the Heresy Tribunal?'

But it was no different from suicide. Even if the inquisitors accepted Dasha's testimony as credible, there was a high possibility that she, too, would be handed over to the heresy trial on the grounds that the source of her information was questionable.

It was a week of going in and out of the director's office without much gain.

One day, a bunch of documents caught Dasha's eye.

'Oh, this is...''

It was the measurement data of the monastery fields sent by Lord Dunstan to the abbot.

In the Dunstan Territory, the area of the fields was measured every two years by order of the lord, and upon closer inspection, the figures showed a clear trend of decreasing over the past 10 years.

'good. If this is... ... !'

Dasha unfolded the hem of her previously torn clothes and quickly began to copy the contents of the ledger.

Although evidence of corruption was somehow found, reporting it was another matter.

Not only is it unclear whether people will believe Dasha's words, but it wouldn't be a good look for an orphan under the care of a monastery to directly report the director who has received favor.

If so, it would be best to hand over the information to a trustworthy person, sow suspicion, and have him investigate the abbot himself.

After observing the priests for a long time, Dasha was finally able to pick out one person he could trust. He had recently moved here for a rotational shift, and was a straight-looking man who didn't particularly flirt with the abbot.

"Father Gustav."

One day, not long before the feast day of St. Bastian. Dasha cautiously approached him while the priests were busy preparing for the mass.

"... Yes, honey. "What's going on here?"

Priest Gustav seemed a little embarrassed, but fortunately, he waited quietly as the skinny Barshain orphan girl approached.

"Well, actually, I saw something strange while I was cleaning Director Mathieu's room."

"wonderment?"

"Yes, so I wrote it here to ask the priests."

"..."

He took the piece of cloth that Dasha held out with slightly narrowed eyes. Perhaps it was because he immediately saw that the child was hiding impure intentions by pretending to be innocent.

However, his character was worthy of praise just for not immediately throwing away the charcoal-covered piece of cloth.

"... "Where did this come from?"

Priest Gustav, who had been looking at the crooked letters for a while, finally asked in a calm voice.

In fact, no matter how hard she racked her brain, there was no good excuse for this, so Dasha answered while trying to look as harmless as possible.

"Well, I happened to see it while I was cleaning the director's bookshelf. It had the lord's emblem engraved on it, so it caught my eye. But the numbers written there are strange..."

"..."

"The priest sees that it is still getting smaller, right? "Why is that like that?"

Priest Gustav looked at Dasha for a moment as if assessing something. Long bangs messily covering the girl's face, and bright emerald eyes shining through them.

"How old are you, kid?"

"Ah, eight... "Salt?"

"Yes, you must have never had a chance to learn anywhere, but you can read letters and numbers. You are truly a bright child for your age."

He seemed complimentary at first glance, but in Dasha's experience, it didn't bode well.

"But you're still too young to get involved in adult matters. My child, do you know why Lord Dunstan measures the land so often?"

"... yes?"

"Do you know that the method of measuring land and the scale that serves as the standard for measurement are constantly changing?"

"... .."

Dasha could not help but be speechless.

The area of the same land changes depending on the measurement method? I had never even thought that such a thing was possible.

"okay. So, it's no wonder that these numbers look strange to your eyes."

Priest Gustav folded the cloth neatly and returned it to Dasha.

Of course, it is true that the area of rice paddies that is shrinking all at once is highly questionable.

However, there was no way for him to determine now whether the area had decreased due to the changed measurement method, or whether the abbot had really taken advantage of this and sold the church's property.

"Anyway, I don't think it's something to raise an issue right away. Still, I'd like to say something to the senior priest. "Anyway, there will be a large-scale church audit around next year, so everything will be clearly revealed then."

"but... ..!"

When things didn't go as planned, Dasha became anxious.

Next year is too late! Just yesterday, Peter, covered in freckles, and two new pretty girls disappeared. If this continues, we can no longer guarantee the safety of not only ourselves, but also the safety of ugly Ramira.

So Dyasha-

"Priest, help me!"

He had no choice but to bring up an extremely primitive method that he had previously denied. He was holding on to the priest's collar without restraint.

"In fact, children from orphanages are disappearing every day! Did you know? Everyone is hissing, but in fact, there is a rumor going around that most of those children were sold to the red-light district!"

"Wait a minute, what do you mean... .."

"Of course, the priests at the monastery probably don't know much about the circumstances of the orphanage. "There are no records of children coming in and out, and even the names of those who came in are not kept properly!"

Perhaps it was because of her anger toward herself for being helpless, but Dasha's eyes began to fill with tears.

"But there's no way the priests who manage the orphanage wouldn't know, right? Even though those bad people know all the facts, they are pretending not to know, just looking at the thoughts of the abbot! Now the only people you can trust are circulating priests from elsewhere! So please, please help us!"

"... .."

"These are not empty words! I heard it clearly with my own ears. Director Mathieu himself said that children are being handed over to red-light districts or underground cults... ..!"

"Hey."

From Father Gustav's suddenly cold gaze, Dasha realized that she had gone too far over the line in her haste.

"You have just dishonored Director Mathieu and all the priests who look after you. Even though they are faithful priests who have sworn to follow the will of the Lord throughout their lives."

"Well, I... ..!"

"Okay, let's just say what you said is actually true. Do you have any evidence to prove it?"

"... ..!"

It was a harsh reality, but Dasha quickly came to terms with her situation. How could she accuse her priests without any solid evidence? He would have been grateful if Father Gustav had not immediately told the abbot about the arrogant orphan's atrocities.

"What on earth is this, even bringing in underground religious denominations? If you say something like that again in the future, you will no longer be forgiven just because you are young. Do you understand?"

"... Yes, I understand. I'm really sorry for disturbing you when you were busy."

Dasha looked at him blankly for a moment, then resigned herself and politely greeted him. And she quickly ran out of the place. It felt like I would burst out crying uncontrollably if I stayed there even for a moment longer.

Priest Gustav looked at the back of the girl with tired eyes for a moment and then turned around.

And in the future, he would regret what happened that day for a long time.

Several months have passed since then.

Eventually, the rotational priests' period of service came to an end, and Priest Gustav quietly left the monastery. It was inevitable that Dasha was completely discouraged.

"Cheer up, Dasha. It doesn't have to be that priest, right? "Let's find a good person among the new priests."

Dasha sighed deeply at the comfort that was not Ramira's.

"Is that going to work? "At least Father Gustav listened to me, but other people hate orphans like us talking to them."

Dasha wasn't just playing around either. I constantly went in and out of the abbot's room to find information to persuade Priest Gustav. I found and reviewed every single document and even a single piece of scribble.

However, Director Mathieu was not a great person to carefully organize messy materials in the first place.

'It's a big deal. Should I just take the opportunity and run away... .. '

But even if you run away, where will you go? Is there any place other than orphanages or red-light districts where you can get even a rotten potato?

No matter how hard you think about it, the future that comes to mind is only bleak. That was when Dasha lowered her head in despair.

"Dasha."

Ramira shook Dasha's shoulder.

"Look, that lady is here again."

I raised my head and looked at the direction she pointed to, and there I saw a young woman wandering around the orphanage, holding a small baby bundle. She is a rather pretty-looking woman with lots of freckles on her face.

"Who is that?"

"The village gravedigger's wife. "Recently, they always come to the orphanage at this time."

While Dasha was busy trying to figure out how to oust the abbot, the gravedigger's wife seemed to be visiting the orphanage every day.

And she stares intently at each of the boys' faces and returns home only after the sun has set.

"why?"

"I heard that he left his son here for some reason. Then, not long ago, I took a job as a graveyard worker, and I was finally able to make ends meet, so I came to pick up my child... .."

After saying that, Ramira closed her mouth with a complicated expression on her face.

Dasha could quickly guess the reason, it wasn't that it wasn't-

"When I look at those freckles, I somehow think of Peter... .."

"As expected, that lady, she resembles Peter in some way, doesn't she?"

The two who opened their mouths at the same time closed their mouths like clams. This is because Peter was the child who disappeared from here a few months ago.

Whether she was sold to a red-light district or handed over to an underground cult somewhere, there would be no way for that woman to get Peter back if she found out his whereabouts now.

"... What should I do? Should I tell that woman the truth?"

"Say what? Your son was probably sold off to the red-light district? Hey, that's so cruel."

"But are you just watching me look for you like that?"

"... A.C."

The two people looked at the woman pacing around with her back to the sunset with confused expressions for a while.

That night.

Dasha secretly woke up like any other day and hid in the abbot's room.

However, when she picked the lock and entered the room without thinking, she was immediately startled. This is because a passenger I had never seen before was standing under the window where the bright moonlight was shining.

"I think it's too late for a child to be walking around."

"... ..!"

The boy, who had been shuffling papers with his back to the door, looks back at her with a light thump. He was a boy whose silent movements and white face looked like a mirage.

Dasha looked up at him with round eyes.

'what? It was obviously locked. How on earth did you get in here? 'Could it be a ghost?'

Maybe it really is a ghost. His complexion under the moonlight was too pale to be considered a living person.

The reason Dasha did not reflexively scream was probably because the boy had a fairly neat and upright appearance for an evil spirit.

The same goes for the strangely calm air that surrounds him.

"Who are you?"

As he opened his mouth in a trembling voice, the boy moved his still hands and flipped through the documents.

"I received a request. "I was asked to properly investigate Abbot Mathieu's corruption, so I was searching his room first."

"... Request? "Who is it?"

"well. "It's probably someone you know well."

widely.

The boy, who closed the document loudly, soon focused his gaze directly on Dasha. In the dark room, the boy's bright gray eyes glowed with a strange silver color.

"Anyway, I guess you are the collaborator the client mentioned."

"... yes?"

"The priest who commissioned me said so. If you find a smart Barça girl here, she will probably be able to explain her situation well."

"... ..!"

I'm not a Barçaite, and such a protest never occurred to me.

Dasha shouted at the boy, unable to hide her surprise and joy.

"Father Gustav! "Priest Gustav sent you here!"

465. Remarks (5)

Priest Gustav listened to me! Instead of cruelly abandoning the orphans, you tried to take appropriate action! All the efforts I have made so far have not been in vain!

"You met the priest, right? Since when... ..!"

As I approached the boy with a bright smile, he lifted his finger and lightly touched it to his mouth.

Thanks to this, Dasha came to her senses and hurriedly covered her mouth with both hands.

"... town!"

"There's no sign of anything around yet, but it's still a good idea to be careful about making loud noises."

Dasha nodded quickly, cupping her mouth.

"The client is, as you guessed, Priest Gustav. "It is said that since he had absolutely no time to spare during his shift, he came to the mercenary guild as soon as his shift ended."

As if he had guessed Dasha's questions, the boy kindly explained the details.

"So, before the guild takes over the case, I came here to conduct a preliminary investigation."

"Preliminary investigation?"

"okay."

In fact, it is said that Father Gustav continued to doubt Dasha's accusation.

It must have been very embarrassing for him as well. I'm worried about the safety of the orphans if I just ignore it, and I can't report it to the central church based on my suspicions without solid evidence.

In the end, after thinking about it, he felt angry and sent an investigation request to the guild. However, he also did not know the exact charges of the abbot or the scope of the investigation, and the deposit that a low-ranking priest could pay was not that much.

That's why the boy, a new mercenary, came forward for a preliminary investigation. If it is a request that the guild has room to rush into, then reorganize the staff so that a formal contract can be made.

"no... .."

Dasha looked in disbelief at the boy who gave off a mysterious aura.

'That person is a new mercenary?'

okay. If you think about it, it was natural. He was still a slim boy, and he looked somewhat sickly for someone who worked as a mercenary.

But it's really strange. Why did I feel a sense of relief the moment I first saw him that all my problems would now be solved?

"In any case, the faster and more accurate the preliminary investigation, the faster the guild's intervention will be. So now we need the help of an internal facilitator."

The boy who said that smiled softly at Dasha.

"So would you please help me save some time?"

"yes?"

Dasha was momentarily taken aback by the unexpected request.

"Um, that's... Actually, I don't know much about it... .."

But as I looked at the gray eyes that were calmly staring at her, the thoughts that had been stuck inside came out easily and came out.

When she came to her senses, she found herself confiding in detail what had happened to the boy.

Children disappearing every day. A suspicious guest who came to visit the abbot. And he sneaked into the director's office every night and tried to find evidence of corruption, etc.

"You showed that material to Priest Gustav?"

"Yes, it wasn't very useful data."

Dasha led him to the bookshelf with a slightly uncertain expression.

"This is the area of the monastery's fields that the lord surveyed and reported. When I first saw this, I thought it was definitely evidence that the abbot had sold the land. But when I asked Father Gustav, he said it was simply because the surveying method had changed."

"... .."

"This is all I found."

The boy looked at the documents Dasha held out with a serious expression. Then he nodded and said this.

"No, you found it well. Of course, what the priest said is not wrong, but if you think about Dunstan's motivation for investigating the answer, you can easily find the answer."

"... Motive?"

"okay. Hiring professional surveyors costs more than you think. But why does Dunstan go to the trouble of spending his own money to produce these documents every time?"

It was truly amazing. Even though the young boy is spouting the lord's name carelessly, he doesn't look arrogant at all.

"hmm... . I do not know."

"This is because this territory imposes taxes on farmers every year in proportion to the land area. So whenever Dunstan gets the chance, he comes up with a trick to increase the measurement value."

... Increase the area?

Dasha's eyes widened.

"So what you're saying is that the land actually needs to be increased according to the changed surveying method..." ... !"

"okay. If you check, you will probably find that the overall area of the territory has increased every year. Nevertheless, the monastery's land has decreased noticeably. Wouldn't this be evidence that the abbot sold more fields than expected?"

Dasha's face became serious after hearing that.

"But, but how can the abbot do that? "If what you say is true, it means that Lord Dunstan has known about this for a long time, right?"

"That's because Dunstan is one of them."

The boy who answered calmly added his explanation with a somewhat self-deprecating smile.

"you know that? The lord cannot dare to tax the land dedicated to the Lord, that is, the property of the church. So, if the abbot sold the fields to someone, there would be no harm from Dunstan's point of view as the amount of land to be taxed would increase. "Priest Gustav probably guessed that too."

"Then why did Father Gustav... then?" ... !"

"Perhaps he decided that it was dangerous for you to delve any further into the abbot's corruption. So, after cracking down on them to prevent them from acting recklessly, they took advantage of the opportunity and sent a request to the guild so that a proper investigation could be conducted."

"... ... !"

Suddenly, the face of Father Gustav, who was warning her in a stern voice, appeared in Dasha's mind.

-But you are still too young to get involved in adult matters.

-If you say something like that again in the future, you will no longer be forgiven just because you are young, do you understand?

At the time, Dasha thought that Father Gustav was blaming her. But actually he just wanted to protect himself from danger?

"I am..."

Dasha pursed her lips with a complicated expression.

Ah, maybe Father Gustav is right. The true intentions of adults were too unclear and complicated for young Dasha to follow.

"But-"

It was right then. The boy suddenly stared into space and let out an inexplicable sound.

"It was sad. "It seems the priest's decision was a little late."

"yes?"

"The collapse... I will wake up. And there... Numerous screams and shadows of death..."

"... ... ?"

"But we have already come too far to stop them."

... What does all that mean?

Dasha looked closely at the direction his eyes were looking, but she couldn't find anything there. It was just the pale moonlight peeking through the window, shining quietly on the office.

"..."

But it was a strange thing. That person's random words didn't sound like nonsense at all. Besides, how are his eyes shining so brightly in this dark room?

Dasha is looking up at him as if possessed by something-

Blink.

With a small movement of the eyelids, that magical moment was suddenly gone.

The boy, whose eyes had suddenly returned to his previous state, looked back at Dasha and asked curiously.

"I think we probably need to prepare a little bit. "If you don't mind, could you lead me to the abbot's bedroom?"

While guiding the boy to the priests' quarters, Dasha could not properly understand his actions.

'... 'What's all this about?'

Normally, I would have declined his request. To sneak into a place where priests are gathered in the middle of the night. Is there such a thing as crazy?

At this rate, it was only a matter of time before we were caught. Not to mention Priest Ellison, who reads scriptures until late at night, and there are many other priests who are sensitive to sleep.

If you happen to get caught, you'll probably be kicked out of the orphanage without even being able to come up with an excuse.

'but... ... '

This air surrounding them.

The flow of abnormally purified air, like a stream flowing in one direction, soothed Dasha's anxiety and gave her courage of unknown origin.

What can I say?

Is this something worth doing?

"Keep in mind. "You should never go on an adventure like this alone."

The boy, who sensed Dasha's thoughts like a ghost, quietly warned her.

After walking for so long, they finally arrived at the abbot's bedroom at the end of the hallway.

"The door is probably locked... .."

Sweet!

Before Dasha could finish speaking, the boy unlocked the key with a small gesture.

Even though Dasha was looking at him with her own two eyes, she couldn't figure out what trick he was doing right now.

"... .. ?!"

Creak-

The door opened with a small friction sound, and they were finally able to face Director Mathieu, who was snoring loudly.

"... What are you going to do? Are you really trying to kill the director like this?"

When Dasha whispered in fear, the boy shook his head slightly.

"I would like to do that, but... .."

Would you like to?

"It is not yet time for his life to end. "I wouldn't dare touch it."

"Then why did you come here?"

"I just thought the abbot needed a little warning-" warning? how? That guy is sleeping without knowing the world?

When Dasha gave him a questioning look, the boy lightly shook his head.

"Okay. Even though he is not awake, his spirit is listening to everything we say."

The boy walked up to the bed with great strides and gently placed his lips near Abbot Mathieu's ear.

And then-

[Listen. Sooner or later, the worst consequences for your sins will come to you.]

Strange sounds spread out in all directions, as if hitting directly into the head.

The voice was so clear that even Dasha, who was a little away from the bed, could clearly recognize it.

"Off... .."

Is the soul really listening to those words? The abbot groaned and let out a small moan, as if he was in pain even in his sleep.

[So hurry and run away. Hide alone in a place where no one can find you. Please earnestly pray to God to forgive your sins.]

The corner of the boy's mouth that had said that far twisted cruelly for a moment.

[And when that day finally comes, bear the consequences alone in a place where no one knows.]

Ah, is that a blessing or a curse?

If the voice is extremely sweet, why does it give such an eerie feeling?

Grrrr... ..

While Dasha was shivering from an unknown cold, the boy slowly got up and looked back at Dasha. He had a very detached expression that was not appropriate for his age.

"Now that's enough. "He'll probably be self-reliant for a while."

"you... excuse me... .."

"Bart."

"Yes, Bart."

Dasha, who intuitively realized that he had completed all his business here, quickly confessed what he had wanted to say earlier.

"My name is Dasha. And I was actually born in the Empire. "It's not Warsaw."

"Yeah, I see."

He nodded without much change in expression and gently patted Dasha's messy hair.

Although it was only a very light gesture, it felt kind and comforting, making Dasha feel a little strange.

"... .."

"Now, let's go back to your room. "I'll take you back so you don't get caught."

From then on, the two moved to the bedroom where the orphans were sleeping without much conversation.

Just before entering the room, Dasha turned to the boy and asked.

"Hey, are you going back now?"

"okay. I'll be back soon with some people. So, from now on, you won't have to sneak out at night anymore."

The boy, Bart, left those words and suddenly disappeared before our eyes.

"... ..!"

Dasha stared at the empty hallway for a moment, then returned to her bed and closed her eyes, as if possessed by something.

I wondered if I had ever dreamed with my eyes open. That's because the events of that day were strange and unrealistic.

But soon thereafter, Dasha became convinced that the encounter that night had not been a dream. From that day on, just like her lies, her orphans no longer disappeared without a word.

And at some point, there was a rumor that Abbot Mathieu was so anxious that he retreated deep into his prayer room.

466. Remarks (6)

"I apologize, sir."

Masain was embarrassed and bowed his head to Seongjin. He had returned to his usual upright appearance, as if he had never been angry.

Of course, it was already too late, and his fierce talk had swept through the inn.

"I must have lost my mind for a moment to make such a mistake. "I will gladly receive punishment for this disrespect when I return."

"... no it's okay. "Never mind."

Seongjin answered hesitantly.

I didn't really feel like blaming him. In the first place, he was the one who left the escort knight aside and wandered around all over the place.

The only strange thing was that, no matter how angry he was, Lord Martha was the type of person who would go so far to abuse the prince he served.

"But, Lord Martha."

Is it because of my mood?

"For some reason, your face seems to have cleared up more than before. Are you feeling okay now?"

Masain then tilted his head and traced the side of the boat with a very relaxed expression.

"... You mean that? After listening to the words, I somehow felt very refreshed inside. Does it feel like a long-standing congestion has disappeared all at once? "I have heard rumors, but Priest Bart's healing power is truly amazing."

"No, it's healing power...""

It must have been amazing as always. Because that's what my father did.

'What happened?'

Sir Masain seemed to be purely impressed by the priest's abilities, but Seongjin sensed a subtle gap in his behavior and couldn't help but feel nervous.

But fortunately, Seongjin was soon able to understand the reason. Because a young man came into the inn with unsteady steps.

He was wearing an assassin's unique stealth suit, and when he spotted Seongjin, he smiled an uncharacteristically wide smile.

"We are here. Mores."

"It's finally here. Mores."

The man, who repeated words with similar meaning twice, walked towards Seongjin with somewhat unsteady steps, as his feet were not aligned.

"Let me tell you a little bit: it's all because of my father."

"okay. "His father made a light hint while waking up his brother."

suggestion?

"huh. "It's a light suggestion that doesn't linger for long and doesn't put a strain on the soul."

"It's a kind of epilogue. "I told you not to keep what you say inside."

When the suspicious person he saw for the first time approached in a very innocent manner, Masain, startled, blocked Seongjin's path and growled.

"Stay back! "What kind of guy are you?"

"Sir Martha."

"Just looking at him, it seems like he knows his status, but how dare he disrespect his status..." ... !"

Seongjin raised one hand to reassure Masain, who was wary.

"are you okay. "That is the prisoner we captured last night."

"... yes?"

Masain's pupils shook violently at the man's unexpected identity.

"Captivate? A prisoner? I am being rude, sir. The author just walked into this place on his own feet... ... ?"

"Uh, well. "There is such a thing."

That thing is actually a soulless living doll created by 'Kaya's Breath'. I thought I needed to leave at least one sample, so I brought it with me. My twins personally helped me with valet parking on behalf of myself, who didn't have time.

"... yes?"

While Masain was dumbfounded by Seongjin's unkind explanation, the man slumped down on a nearby wooden chair. Then he stretched out his arms forward and made a request with a calm expression.

"Now that the transport is over, can you tie this guy up somewhere properly?"

"If we leave, the souls that ran away might come back."

"We have to go soon."

"I have to take care of Joe who stayed up all night."

"... ... ?"

Masain still had a suspicious look on his face, but there was no need to decline when the other person said he was willing to be detained. He took the rope at lightning speed and began wrapping it around the assassin's body around the chair.

Meanwhile, Seongjin pulled out a nearby chair and sat down across from the assassin.

"It took longer to arrive than I thought?"

The biological doll, which still showed traces of precise neurosurgery, was well worth investigating.

The only problem was that when the twins left and control of the body was taken over by Kaya's breath again, it was impossible to know what kind of unexpected situation this doll would encounter.

Also, Dasha's condition was quite serious at the time, so she left the doll with the twins and returned to the inn first.

but-

'If I had known this would happen, would I have carried it with my own hands, even if it was a little too much effort? I guess the two kids had a hard time waking up all night...'

As if he had guessed what Seongjin was thinking, the assassin chuckled with a mischievous expression.

"are you okay. "We played around a bit and took turns."

"Later, it got a little annoying so I started arranging for him too."

"Arenja?"

"Yes, of course Rebekah absolutely hated it."

"What can I do if we complain?"

Seongjin felt a little relieved.

Great job, kids. I don't have much to teach you. At least it doesn't look like you guys will easily get stabbed by others somewhere.

"Anyway, here's the problem."

How do you keep this biological doll safe? I have a feeling that if the soul from over there comes back, there will be quite a bit of trouble.

When Seongjin frowned, the assassin nodded and answered.

"Mores guessed right. "This doll has a light message of [self-destruction] engraved on it."

"Once they regain control of the body, they will probably destroy this doll to destroy evidence."

"It's not that difficult. All you have to do is quietly stop your heart and stop your brain."

"That alone will cause tissue damage quickly and the doll will lose its value as a specimen."

Right.

"Then, while I'm at it, shall we pamper myself a little more with Arenja? "I'm asking them to take turns guarding the doll."

Instead of answering right away, Herna and Kadesh stared at Seongjin playfully for a moment.

"Or there is a simpler way."

"I don't need help from Arranger or anything like that."

His mouth was so itchy that he looked like he was about to die.

Although he felt like he was being caught up in something, the twins' passionate eyes made Seongjin have no choice but to ask this.

"... what is that?"

"Mores is writing a new message."

"It's like putting a new saying on top of a saying."

Seongjin blinked.

A congratulatory message?

"I know that? "I can't tell you exactly, but the guy who engraved the saying on this doll is bigger than I thought."

"So even if it's Arrange, it's not easy to resist. "There is no way to get rid of this saying."

"It would have been quite dangerous if we weren't there to watch last night, right?"

"that's right. "My body would have been taken away in the blink of an eye or I would have easily died."

There is no room for guessing. He's probably the guy who engraved a congratulatory message on his bare eyebrows.

At the time, the Demon King guessed this guy's identity.

-lets think. Such restrictions are usually only applied to beings lower than oneself. But even this great Fire Demon can't read it properly, right?

-Maybe. No, this is almost certainly true, but it means that the eyebrowless woman may be a member of one of the high-ranking demon lords.

Then another question arises.

'How could Herna and Kadesh resist that abbreviation...? ... ?'

Their gazes intersect deeply as if searching for each other. A young, somewhat eerie purple glow in the eyes of an assassin with an innocent expression.

At that moment, Seongjin felt that somehow the twins and he were thinking similar things.

"okay? That's why we need Mores' congratulatory message even more."

"Mores would be able to overwrite that command."

"You understand, right? "Because Mores is Mores."

"that's right. "Mores is none other than Mores."

Well, at least I know one thing for sure. Let's leave our suspicions about each other aside for a while.

"... .."

Anyway, it was an embarrassing thing.

In fact, Seongjin has accidentally engraved something similar to a congratulatory message a few times. For example, the former Countess Sigismund, and what she did to her bare eyebrows last night.

But isn't that something that happened unintentionally at the border between consciousness and unconsciousness?

Moreover, how on earth is such a thing possible to engrave a message on an empty vessel that has had its soul drained out of it?

"I know that? Sometimes, some sayings are engraved on the bayon."

"Avoiding aeon, the essence of the soul, it only imprints on the surface of the soul."

"So the same thing is possible with Dacion."

"Because Dacion, like Bion, corresponds to the outer surface of the soul."

"Usually we use that method to avoid damaging Aeon. Just like the hint Father Seonghwang gave to Brother Masain a moment ago."

"Sometimes I use that method to avoid getting caught by Aon. Just as her grandmother once 'branded' her father, His Majesty."

"... stigma?"

for a moment. I feel like I just heard something I shouldn't have heard?

"... .."

Seongjin and the twins closed their mouths at the same time and looked at each other blankly. And after a while, he naturally changed the topic, as if he had made a promise.

"good. I'll give it a try. So what should I do to engrave that saying on the surface of my soul?"

"It probably won't be much different from what you did before."

"Just try to be less sincere and lighten your attitude."

"Don't let your strong intentions become a dagger and cut into the essence of your soul."

"Don't let those blunt words ruin your empty decision."

Hmm, somehow I feel like I know.

In order to overwrite the already engraved words, it would probably have to be stronger than the curse placed on Lord Martha's soul. But at the same time, it seems like it should be much weaker than the one carved on bare eyebrows.

When Seongjin inadvertently looked back at Masain, he was listening to their story with a slightly confused expression. Perhaps Lord Massaine will need some explanation for this conversation later.

"Whoa... .."

After catching his breath for a moment, Seongjin looked straight at the assassin and slowly opened his mouth.

[From now on, I will not allow any hasty actions. In the future, I will do my best to preserve the current state as long as I want.]

Then, I felt the wind of cause and effect that started from the corner of Seongjin's mouth, lightly enveloping the body of the assassin tied to the chair.

Was it successful? Probably so. Because the assassin - the twins - smiled mischievously, as if satisfied.

"Haha, look at this. "Mores is, after all, Mores."

"That's right. "Mores is none other than Mores."

The twins muttered playfully, waving their heads in place of their tightly tied arms and giving a clumsy farewell.

"Then the work has been completed well, let's go."

"Don't cause any more trouble and return to Regina quietly."

hmm? I have a feeling they were in a hurry from earlier.

"Are you going as soon as you arrive? why? "Is there something urgent?"

"It's urgent. "It's already late afternoon."

"It's almost time to wake up."

weather? What kind of lazy person in the world wakes up at this hour?

"Uh-huh! It's rude to say that. "For our group, this is like dawn."

"I have to go quickly and give him food. "Otherwise, you'd be rolling around the room starving all day, right?"

Do you feed me? Do you guys raise any animals at home?

The twins looked somewhat confused at Seongjin's question.

"Well, considering that we take care of Joe every day, it's hard to say that's completely wrong."

"Of course we like Joe a lot, but we're still a little embarrassed to put him out there."

"Anyway, Mores. Good luck to you in the future too."

"Don't forget the hint you gave Brother Masain."

Seongjin was momentarily taken aback by the unexpected request.

"suggestion? "Why is that?"

"Well, didn't Seonghwang's father tell Brother Masain not to endure any more upsetting things?"

"Dad, Your Majesty was just giving some light advice, but you saw the huge results that came from it, right?"

"Be careful, Mores."

"Be careful, Mores."

"... .."

The twins left after asking Seongjin some big questions.

Of course, this was the question that caught Seongjin's nerves the most.

'... So guys. 'Who the hell is that 'Joe?'

Meanwhile, time in Dasha's dream was passing quickly.

When Director Mathieu hid in the prayer room and never came out, the atmosphere at the orphanage completely changed.

Occasionally, priests would gather in groups of two or three and bow with anxious looks on their faces, and sometimes people with a scary look would come to visit the abbot and then go away empty-handed.

However, there were no more orphans going missing.

'Bart said that. I think the director will take care of himself for a while.'

Dasha was relieved. Everything was going as he said.

-I'll be back soon with people. So, from now on, you won't have to sneak out at night anymore.

okay. Now you don't have to struggle to stay awake and gather evidence. There is no need to cover your face with hair in case others notice you!

For the first time since coming to this orphanage, Dasha was like any other child and could feel at ease.

The environment was still poor and the hunger had not improved at all, but life could become much more livable simply because the anxiety of being sold off somewhere without a word disappeared.

It was probably around that time that the Dunstan estate became disorganized.

"You know what? Priest Ellison. "It is said that a powerful demon species appeared in the Primrose entertainment district not long ago."

"Ah, I heard that too. "Horribly, people were torn to pieces and died, right?"

Primrose Entertainment District is administratively located on the outskirts of Asin Territory, but considering its distance from the actual city center, it could be considered closer to Dunstan Territory. As the living areas of the territory residents greatly overlapped, the disaster that occurred there was also bound to become a big topic of discussion.

"What a devil servant, not long after the Feast of St. Bastian! "Could it be the work of those vicious devil worshippers?"

"I heard it might be the work of a demonic contractor. "He snuck into the red-light district as casually as an ordinary person, and unleashed the devil in the middle of a crowded street."

"Ah, how could such a scary thing happen...?" ... !"

"Grand Duke Asin is also taking this incident very seriously. "He said he formally requested that the Holy Knights be sent to Del Cross."

As it was an incident that resulted in numerous casualties, the Dunstan estate was not completely safe either.

Funerals were held one after another for the residents of the territory who died in the incident, and the number of people visiting the monastery to wash away their uncleanness gradually increased.

As Dasha looked at those scenes, the words the boy mercenary muttered to himself that night suddenly appeared in Dasha's mind.

-It seems the priest's decision was a little late.

-Collapse... I will wake up. And there... Numerous screams and shadows of death... ..

It was a time when Dasha was shivering from an unknown cold.

"uh? That lady... .."

Ramira, who was chewing the hard crust of bread next to her, quickly pointed somewhere.

When Dasha looked up, Peter's mother, who had not even seen her nose in the past few days, was standing there awkwardly.

"What's going on with that lady? "She's been nowhere to be seen these days, so I thought she'd completely given up on finding her son?"

"okay? however... .."

Dasha trailed off, trailing off her words. Because her appearance gave her an eerie feeling that was difficult to explain.

"... .."

Meanwhile, the woman had become noticeably emaciated. The complexion had turned black somewhere, and the expression was very distorted and grotesque. Even the strange black smoke surrounding her body.

"what?"

"who is this?"

The other children who saw her also hesitated and backed away.
Because she felt an instinctive fear from that ominous sight.

It was right then.

"Mathieu... .."

The woman lifted her head crookedly and glared at the children with shining eyes.

"Director Mathieu. "Where is that damn son of a bitch now?"

467. Remarks (7)

Rumbling...

Dark clouds roll in from afar, covering the sky.

Beneath the gloomy air, the gravedigger's wife stood alone, as if she were a tombstone announcing the end of the world.

"Hey, you! "Why are you doing this again?"

At that time, a large man approached holding an axe. He was a man named Braddock, who was the gatekeeper of the monastery and was in charge of various chores. He seemed to have spotted the woman while he was chopping firewood and rushed over to her.

His habit of recklessly hitting on orphans was no longer going away, so he pushed the gravedigger's wife and shouted at her.

"How many times do I have to tell you to understand? Your kid isn't here! "If you don't go away right now, I'm going to give you a really stinging taste this time!"

But that ugly momentum did not last long. Just as Braddock was about to grab the woman by the collar-

"big... "Wow!"

On the contrary, I was caught helplessly in her grasp and ended up clinging to him.

"... ... !"

The children looked in horror at the strangled man struggling helplessly. Where on earth does that skinny woman's arm get that strength?

"... Dead bodies of children come into Dunstan Cemetery every day. "Aren't you curious about where these kids end up dying like that?"

The woman, holding a large Braddock in the air with one arm, spoke casually as if she was passing by and asking how I was doing. Of course, there was no way he could answer this because her throat was completely clogged.

"Off... .."

"Most of them are corpses washed up from the Primrose entertainment district, which is adjacent to the estate. "If you have to keep those poor things and bury them in the ground every day, all sorts of unholy thoughts will come into your head."

The gravedigger's wife, who had said that, glared at Braddock with eyes filled with resentment.

"The things in the entertainment district are clearly demons disguised as humans. Otherwise, how could you do such a miserable thing to children? "Seeing the devils walking around just fine, it occurred to me that the Lord may have already completely abandoned this world."

"Off... ..!"

"okay. This world is already a hell full of demons. Anyone would have no choice but to think that way. "Looking at the terrible traces of abuse and exploitation engraved on that small body."

"... ..!"

"So I thought. "If this is hell, and I also become a devil, who can blame me?"

Ttuduk!

Braddock's neck was eventually unable to withstand the woman's grip and broke completely. His body collapsed to the floor helplessly and soon began to turn black. It was a strong erosion phenomenon caused by Magi.

"Caw! Mr. Braddock!"

At that time, Priest Ellison came running from afar. Embarrassed by the strong magical energy she felt out of nowhere, she grabbed Braddock's already dead body and began pouring out divine power frantically.

"Mr. Braddock? Ah, come to your senses, Mr. Braddock! What is this all of a sudden... ..!"

But that futile effort did not last long. This is because the woman's arm, which swung like lightning behind her back, pierced Priest Ellison's torso as if it were a sharp spear.

Phew!

"Huh... ..!"

The gravedigger's wife slowly raised her head toward the sky, hanging the limp Ellison priest by her arms.

"No, maybe I too was one of the demons who turned this world into hell. Even though I knew all the facts, I kept quiet until now. "It's been a long time since I realized that those poor children were in fact orphans with no connections who were given away cheaply to the red-light district!"

Grumbling.

Black, discolored tears flowed from the woman's eyes.

"And yet I have never been able to say a word about it. I couldn't help but worry that bad rumors might spread about Abbot Mathieu! why? Why do you think I did that? huh?"

The gravedigger's wife shook Father Ellison's body as if urging him to answer. In response, red blood spurted out of Ellison's mouth.

"Because I thought Mathieu might harm my child!"

"Big... .."

"I thought that if the village gravedigger found out that I had spread the rumor, he might give my baby to the red-light district this time!"

Priest Ellison's eyes, staring blankly at the black hand sticking out of his chest, are slowly losing their light. Subsequently, her flesh also became contaminated with demonic energy and began to turn black and crumbly.

Passsss... ..

"iced coffee! What a foolish worry! The real Mathieu probably didn't know anything! "I bet the manor's gravedigger didn't even remember that he had left her child in her orphanage!"

Ttuduk. Pop.

Raindrops began to fall like tears from the sky. The cold rainwater soaked the bodies of the orphans frozen in fear, the bodies of the dead priests Braddock and Ellison, and also the bodies of the poor mothers who had lost their children.

"... "In the end, I probably paid the price for my foolishness."

No matter how long I had been standing in the rain, a woman's depressed voice came out through the humid air.

But why? To Dasha, her voice felt even more desperate than her blood-soaked screams.

"Peter... . The body of my baby who died after being abused and insulted in a red-light district... .."

"... .."

"I had to send my baby away from my arms without being able to feed him a warm meal... .."

Ssssss.

The black smoke surrounding the gravedigger's wife is becoming thicker.

'... Dangerous!'

Dasha swallowed dry saliva. This is because she instinctively sensed extreme malice from the demonic energy she exuded.

Yes, perhaps the gravedigger's wife hates the children at the orphanage as much as she hates Director Mathieu. Her own son, Peter, was an abominable orphan who would have stayed alive and well instead of being sold to the red-light district.

Fortunately, the children were frozen in place now, not even daring to think of running away. The scene unfolding before your eyes is so shocking that you may not feel reality.

Perhaps it would be better than hastily provoking a woman. However, this standoff with a clear balance of power will not last very long.

Dasha, having decided that, unconsciously took a step towards the gravedigger's wife and opened her mouth.

"Abbot! Abbot Mathieu is now in the prayer room in the east building! These days, I stay there every day and pray earnestly."

Then the woman's eerie eyes turned and stared at Dasha.

"... pray?"

"Yes it is."

As Dasha said that, the contents of the congratulatory message that Bart had whispered to her the other day were vividly emerging in her mind.

-Listen. Sooner or later, the worst consequences of your sins will come upon you.

It was clear. The price of sin he was talking about probably refers to the gravedigger's wife. then...

-So hurry and run away. Hide alone in a place where no one can find you. Please pray earnestly to God to forgive your sins.

It is unlikely that he really gave instructions for the director to be saved. Driven by such a strong intuition, Dasha eagerly reported to the gravedigger's wife in a clear voice.

"Priest Mathieu wants to be saved by God!"

"Salvation... .."

"Yes it is! I dare to pray to the Lord for forgiveness of my sins, and my intention is to finally go to heaven alone! "The poor orphans were sold to red-light districts and left to die-"

"Salvation? "Bake it?!"

The gravedigger's wife no longer listened to Dasha's backstory. She raised her head with bloodshot eyes, and then she let out a long scream that flowed through the air, pouring out her bloody tears like a waterfall.

"Mathieuuuuu!"

Shuuuuk-!

The divine form of the woman, engulfed in black magical energy, shoots out as if it were the wind. His anger toward the abbot had reached such a peak that he no longer cared what happened to the other children.

-And when that day finally comes, bear the consequences alone, in a place where no one knows.

Pow!

In the distance, you can see the roof of the monastery's east building being completely destroyed.

Black demonic energy soared into the sky, and soon a black and elongated figure slowly rose up from within.

An ominous thing that should never exist in this world. It was a demon species.

Dasha watched in fascination as it swung its long arms like a whip and destroyed the monastery building.

"Ugh!"

At that time, a small moan was heard from next to me. Turning her head absentmindedly, Dasha was horrified to see Ramira's hands discolored black.

"Lamira!"

It seemed that Ramira was standing in the path where the gravedigger's wife passed by. The girl let out a dumbfounded moan as she looked at her right hand, which was discolored black by demonic energy.

"ah... ah... ... !"

'You can't leave it like that!'

Dasha intuitively realized this. Didn't she see with her own eyes what happened to Braddock and Priest Ellison? Their bodies turned black and dried out as if they had been scorched by fire.

If you let that black thing spread through your body, Ramira will end up like them!

"... ... !"

When I came to my senses, Dasha was already holding a large ax in her hand. It was an ax used to chop firewood that had been thrown on the floor with Braddock when she died.

"Hold on a moment, Ramira!"

Dasha gritted her teeth and raised the ax above her head.

"... uh?"

Ramira belatedly looked back at Dasha, but by then the ax had already been swung with force.

Kwasik!

Fortunately, the clumsily struck ax blade easily cut the slender girl's forearm in two.

Ramira's eyes widened and she looked down at her forearm, which was now a stump.

"... "What the fuck?"

A ridiculous curse came out of her mouth. She seemed so caught up in fear and shock that she couldn't even feel her pain.

"crazy? Get this Barca! you... you! Have you been chopping firewood with my arm? This is crazy... ... ?"

Ignoring her nonsense, Dasha tore the hem of her skirt long and tied it around her arm, which was bleeding profusely.

Meanwhile, the disaster of the demonic species was rapidly encroaching on the entire monastery.

Geek, geek, geek!

Hahahahaha!

The eerie laughter of low-level demons spreading from the east wing-

"Ugh!"

"Aaaah!"

The desperate screams of priests struggling in fear.

And soon, the entire monastery was completely covered in thick darkness.

visor! Cheaeng!

Dasha faintly twitched her eyelids. This was because the loud noises coming from around her pierced her ears harshly.

The sound of weapons clashing.

The sound of people using evil words.

"Stop it! "A devil jumped out that way!"

"Bart, you crazy bastard! What on earth are you asking? "There was no mention of a devil species appearing!"

"How do you know that a newbie who just came in will suddenly summon a demon? "Shut up and focus, Captain Justin!"

"profit! Don't you know? Everyone is being fooled by this guy! Did Bart ask a priest to consecrate his weapons for no reason before coming here? "That bastard must have known it would turn out like this!"

"No, anyway, isn't that an excessive assumption?"

... Bart? Ah, yes. Bart.

You said you'd bring people here. You really kept your promise.

While Dasha was feeling relieved, she felt someone suddenly lift her body.

"kids! Mr. Paula! There are living children here! The erosion response is still weak!"

"okay? What about priests? "Are there any priests alive?"

"shit! In fact, all the priests who could stop the erosion have died! "What is all this about?"

"Then quickly gather the kids here! Bring me to Priest Gustav! hurry!"

After hearing that, Dasha completely lost her mind.

When she faintly came to her senses again, it was when someone's warm hand touched her cheek. Then she felt cold water droplets falling on her face.

"... 'I'm sorry."

Someone was stroking her face and crying.

"Hey. I am so sorry. I... I should have listened to you earlier. If that were the case... ... !"

Diasa recognized his voice and smiled faintly even in her daze.

'Ah, don't cry, Father Gustav. I know. You've already done the best you can...'

Feeling a faint divine power flowing into her, Dasha fell into sleep with a much more relaxed mind.

When the Astros mercenaries were struggling against the devil species-

The boy who brought the mercenary group here was in a slightly odd place, facing the wrong person.

"Stop."

A low hill overlooking the monastery.

The woman dressed in black priestly robes slowly turned around when she suddenly heard a command from behind her. She then stared straight at the pale boy who emerged from the bushes.

"... Who are you? Why are you suddenly threatening an innocent priest?"

"You're not asking because you don't know, right? 'Summoning a demon species is a serious crime for which anyone can be punished on the spot."

"her! What kind of nonsense is this, summoning a demon species? "Do not arrest a living person without evidence."

As the woman continued to flirt, the boy's eyes, glaring at her, shed a cold silver-grey glow.

"So, are you going to claim that the illiterate gravedigger's wife drew a complicated summoning circle and summoned a high-ranking demon? Come up with a proper excuse before you get your throat cut right now. "You disgusting devil worshipper."

468. Remarks (8)

A vivid scene from the past that would have been impossible to observe was passing through the eyes of the boy, Nate.

The gravedigger's wife screams while hugging her son's body. A woman in black robes approaches her and whispers her sad words as if to comfort her.

The grandiose demon summoning ritual they carried out in the Primrose entertainment district, and the deaths of countless people caught up in it.

Yes, because of the woman right in front of me. That woman completely corrupted the soul of the poor mother who lost her child, causing her to accumulate heavy karma from which she could not be saved.

Slurp.

Nate slowly pulled out his old longsword.

Unfortunately, it was impossible to change the future, which was completely fixed. However, it would be possible for him now to at least condemn the culprit of this situation and that passionate subordinate.

"No way, you..." ... ?"

At that time, the woman seemed to realize something and muttered.

"Those mysterious eyes! Ah, you are the boy the archbishop was talking about! "Because he had a disadvantaged childhood, he imagined himself as a much smaller and weaker child."

In an instant, the atmosphere changed. The woman, who had erased the tension that had wrapped around her body, took a step towards her Nate, neatly adjusting the hem of her black robe.

"Let me formally introduce myself. My name is Taiara Hao, and I am the parish priest of Dunstan Territory. Could you please take away that sword? "Our devoted brothers are by no means your enemies."

"... .."

"I don't know if you believe it, but the Archbishop of Love has been saying for a long time that you would visit this place. And I have prepared quite a few things to welcome you as a brother."

It was an unpleasantly friendly demeanor.

When Nate frowned and raised his sword straight, Taia stopped and smiled awkwardly.

"I repeat, I am not your enemy. Just following the archbishop's wishes, I went back and forth from time to time at the orphanage, eagerly waiting for you to show up here. What do you think? "Did you like the gift I prepared for you?"

They were a tribe that would have been unpleasant to cut down with a single sword, but even Nate couldn't help but react to those words.

"... gift?"

"That's right, it's a gift prepared for you by the Archbishop himself."

"... .."

I thought it was just one of the evil things that devil worshipers do on a daily basis, but was there really another hidden story?

Nate concentrated his mind and looked at Taia carefully. Then, the strange journey of her life that she has been through so far quickly passes before her eyes.

The ability to fully insight into human life was the power of the oracle.

Meanwhile, she had just become bishop of Dunstan and had just welcomed a new archbishop.

Crackling-!

Suddenly, there was a faint noise and Nate's vision became blurred. It was a sign that it was sensitive information that directly affected his future.

"... ..!"

Nate quickly looked away from the scene. It wasn't that difficult for him to just peel off that thin veil.

but-

-Remember, Nate. The most effective way to purify sewage is to simply leave the impurities to settle down on their own. If you hastily put your hand to correct it, the water will turn into even more muddy muddy water due to your light gestures.

okay. Mama always said that.

Nevertheless, if you try to look into it without thinking, at that moment you will attract even worse possibilities and become a powerful wedge that fixes the future.

Blink.

He blinked once to distract himself and chose the most basic way to get the information he needed. It was to hear the story directly from the person involved.

"Explain. "What do you know about me?"

Then Taia responded obediently with a happy face.

"I just received some information about you from the archbishop. They say he is a descendant of a secret clan and a valuable key to preparing the future of the underground sect."

"key? "What does that mean?"

"I don't know the details either. All I can say is that your presence is more important than anything else in order to welcome the person the underground church is waiting for."

"... "Then why is the passionate archbishop trying to drag me into an underground cult?"

"To protect you at all costs. The Archbishop said that it was all about [Payment]. So put away your sword and come with me. "We will protect you wholeheartedly."

I don't even know exactly why. Is he just doing what the passionate archbishop tells him to do?

A feeling of discomfort crept inside me.

"Then what is the 'gift' you prepared?"

"It's over there, right? As you can see, a great high-ranking demon is having fun destroying the monastery. Aren't you truly a minister?"

"How can summoning a devil and disrupting the world be a 'gift'?"

Then Taia's face became filled with deep joy.

"It is a gift beyond doubt! Strictly speaking, it's a gift for everyone here, including you. iced coffee! "It is also the utmost love of [passion] for this world full of worldly desires!"

As Nate's face faintly distorted, she urgently poured out an explanation.

"Of course, I completely understand the confusion you feel. Ordinary people do not easily understand the deep meaning of sorrow, and sometimes seriously misunderstand Him. But I can assure you that [Payment] is no different from all the love in the world."

"... .."

"So he responded to us, as he always does, in a loving way. He responded with love to the human longing for his life, and he also responded with love to the sorrow of a mother who lost her child."

"... So she sold her soul to the devil and led him to commit massacre?"

"That is a misunderstanding. All of this was going to happen someday anyway. It's just that Ae-yeol personally intervened to advance the time a little and greatly reduce the number of people who would be caught up in the fate of holocaust."

"... .."

"The archbishop said you would probably understand everything."

okay. That was the strange part.

Originally, most people in the monastery, including orphans, would not have escaped death.

However, in that certain fate, there was a cause and effect that I could have a little bit of insight into. How on earth?

As soon as a question arose, the oracle's intuition immediately picked up the answer in his head. It was Dasha's face smiling brightly at him.

-Priest Gustav! Priest Gustav sent you here!

In fact, the only person who would survive until the end in that orphanage was the Barsha girl I met during the preliminary investigation.

'Ah, did you say it wasn't Warsain?'

But the moment he met that girl, Nate was able to realize that she had somehow deviated from his predetermined destiny and was twisting his future in a dangerous way.

If it were not for this incident, Dasha would have left the orphanage after about a year and joined the assassination organization.

It is a well-known fact that until then, the abbot would have continued to sell poor orphans to the red-light district.

Then, the gravekeeper's wife, who finally figured out how to make a contract with the devil, attacks the monastery, and everyone there loses their lives to the devil at once. That was exactly what should have happened one year later.

"Do you understand now? "That the response Aeyeol sent was nothing else but 'love'?"

Taia asks with a strange smile.

"... .."

okay. At least Nate had no choice but to admit that one fact.

The future changed by [Aeyeol]'s intervention is more positive than expected. By encouraging her to summon a demon in advance, she saved the lives of countless orphans who would have been sold to her entertainment district in the future.

So, what happened to Dasha?

It is true that she also has a significant stake in this changed future. Thanks to the girl's struggles alone, Priest Gustav found the guild, and he invited himself, who happened to be a new mercenary, here.

And by engraving a simple congratulatory message on the abbot's soul, he was able to create a gap that could save the lives of the orphans.

"Then maybe that girl named Dasha is also among you... .."

"Dasha?"

"... "No, it's nothing."

Nate, who was deep in thought for a moment, nodded.

"good night. "If the gift your archbishop has prepared is the lives of orphanage children, then I will gladly accept it."

"Ah, is he finally understanding our true meaning? "This is such a joy!"

"Isn't it too early for that? If we allow the erosion to continue like this, those children will all die sooner or later. "It's a gift in its own way, and if you prepared it, you would have come up with a proper way to purify the children's erosion, right?"

In order to save the life of someone who should have died, you have no choice but to make them go through an experience equivalent to death instead. That was the reason why Nate could not hastily evacuate the children far away even though he had predicted today's tragedy.

'Besides, if things continue like this, the damage will grow uncontrollably. 'Because the strength of me and the Astros mercenaries alone will not be able to stop that high-level devil.'

A well-trained group of Holy Knights, or equivalent priests, are required to have divine power.

However, causality did not allow Nate to make any further adjustments, and for some reason, Nate's intuition also felt that that level of preparation was sufficient.

'why?'

As Nate looked down at the ruined monastery grounds with worried eyes, Taia, who noticed that his vigilance was not the same as before, took a step closer and said,

"There are plenty of ways to save them. The Archbishop of Love will be happy to give you an answer. So, come quickly and go to the church with me."

"... .."

"It seems incredible. Well, the archbishop said it won't be easy to convince you. So, if you don't feel like it, I told you to tell me this as well."

Taia approached with a somewhat eerie smile and whispered in Nate's ear, her voice a little muffled.

-The stigma that is oppressing you is engraved in a place you can never see.

"... ... !"

Whick!

A sharp sword touches the back of my neck like lightning. At the same time, Taia, facing the boy's sharp eyes, flinched in surprise and raised both her hands.

"Wait, wait! Don't be angry with me! "I am merely a messenger conveying the Archbishop's words!"

"Say what is right. "Where did you hear that information?"

"So, you've been saying it since a while ago, right? "These are all words that the Archbishop of Joy ordered me to tell you!"

Nate frowned.

stigma. There are only a handful of people who have even a vague guess about its existence. At least the people who know the exact nature and location of the stigma are all dead and no longer in this world.

'Passionate Archbishop...'

What on earth is he? How is it that we can't easily get a glimpse into that woman's past, and now we know things that no one should know?

Trying to keep his cool as much as possible, Nate gently applied force to the tip of the sword pointed at her.

"okay. "What other nonsense did the Archbishop of Love talk about?"

"No, that's bullshit...""

"If this is not nonsense, how on earth can a person engrave a stigma on a place that cannot be seen?"

Nate's increasingly sharp momentum was quite threatening. Because of this, Taia lost her composure for the first time since she faced him and panicked.

"What I conveyed is absolutely not empty words. The Archbishop spoke clearly! "The reason you have not been able to find the location of the stigma until now is because it is engraved on your soul, or Bion, not your body!"

"... ..!"

"So, come to the Underground Church and become our brothers. "Only the Archbishop of Passion can lift the heavy restrictions engraved on your soul and unleash your true power!"

... Bayon.

Yes, that was it.

Nate fell silent with a complicated expression. And after a while, a soft laugh came from his mouth.

"Ha ha ha ha ha... .."

Taia was confused by the sudden reaction, but Nate withdrew his sword from her and let out a sigh.

"Yes, not the lives of orphans. "I guess this is what the archbishop meant as a gift to me."

"... ..?"

"You were used by him."

Nate finally realized it fully.

That woman's mission was not to take her to the Love Church. She was merely a means of conveying the location of the stigma hidden within her.

[Ayeol], who intervened in the future in a subtle way, would have already known. The fact that Nate would never spare someone who mentioned 'stigma' in front of him.

So even with his insight, he cannot see the future of that devil worshiper. Because that woman has no future left anymore.

'It is probably true that the stigma is engraved on the bayon.'

Nate knew it intuitively.

The only thing that concerns me is how the Archbishop of Love knew that fact and for what purpose he approached me.

'But at least this much has become clear.'

Who should clean up the erosion and save those children? Who should punish the superior demon who is destroying the monastery?

Why did his premonitions whisper that everything would work out just like this, despite his obvious lack of preparation?

"... "I don't really like this method."

There is no time to find another solution.

After making his decision, Nate held his sword backwards and raised his arms high.

"... ... ?"

Taia, who had been watching the scene blankly but not fully understanding it, belatedly realized the meaning of the action and slowly opened her eyes.

"wait for a sec? What are you doing now... ... ?"

But before she could finish speaking-

Phew!

A sharp sword loaded with aura pierced Nate's solar plexus and came out from behind his back.

469

469. Remarks (9)

One of Nate's greatest misfortunes was that the Oracle's power prevented him from forgetting any of his painful memories.

He remembered all the sounds he heard around him right after birth. Even though he had not yet learned to speak, he had stored the syllables of incomprehensible sounds in his head.

So in the future, he was able to reconstruct the cold voice of Bethsheba that whispered to him as a newborn.

-Don't blame me too much, baby. This is all for you. For you now, this power is nothing short of poison. If people discover your divine power, you will become a living icon of the Holy Emperor's family and be exploited and treated as a fountain from which divine power gushes for the rest of your life.

Perhaps the 'stigma' was engraved right after that. The only reason Nate couldn't remember its location was because he immediately lost consciousness due to the excruciating pain that cut through his soul.

On the other hand, one of Nate's greatest fortunes was that, thanks to the power of the Oracle, he was able to remember even the faintest auditory hallucinations he had glimpsed.

On the day the stigma was engraved, Nate remembered someone's voice urgently calling out to him.

-wait for a sec! do not do that! There might be another, better way! therefore... ... !

It was a fleeting moment.

However, amid all the thoughts that poured out through the decision to make a decision, the clear voice that particularly caught his ear remained in Nate's memory for a long time afterwards.

After learning the language and fully understanding its meaning, I understood that the owner of the voice was trying to stop Bethsheba with all his might for his own sake.

So sometimes I wondered who he was. Because it was almost the only warm memory left in the dreary period before and after his birth.

From then on, I would hear that voice once in a while if I could forget it. Most of the time, it was the moment when Nate faced her desperate crisis, like when she was branded.

-You have to be careful with that new escort. I remember. Never find yourself in a situation alone with that guy!

-Use that portal. Leave the rest to me. I am now stronger than I was back then. I'll take care of everything, so don't worry about anything, just trust me!

And now-

In this situation where he was thrusting his sword into his own stomach in front of a passionate agent, Nate unexpectedly heard the same voice as before.

[What are you doing? You idiot! Are you crazy now?!]

A strange sound that makes one feel like an adult, but also like an innocent child.

It was a moment of pleasure to hear a thought that had been heard for the first time in a long time, but Nate could no longer concentrate on that voice for long. Because she felt an excruciating pain that went beyond her body and ripped through her soul.

[No, why are you doing that? Why is everything you do so different?]

The voice was mad as hell, but the only emotions conveyed there were worry and affection. Even as Nate broke into a cold sweat at her pain, she was making excuses for him without even realizing it.

'Even if you can see through everything with your spiritual eyes, you cannot see your own soul until you die. In other words, while I am alive in the flesh, I will never be able to determine the location of the stigma. But I need to get rid of the stigma attached to me right now.'

[So you were going to die first? Does that make sense? yes?]

'No, that's not it. If I were to die like this, wouldn't it really mean nothing? I was simply trying to remove the stigma that was engraved somewhere in my soul, by finding its likely location and cutting it out entirely. Just damaging part of the stigma will be enough to loosen the constraints that are constricting the soul.'

At the very least, if he could pinpoint where the obstruction was in his soul, then Nate could create a detour to avoid the stigma. Moreover, there must be a force strong enough to fill that detour!

[...] No, that doesn't make sense. her... This guy is really hitting the nail on the head...]

The voice that mumbled in a lost manner for a moment finally spoke to Nate as if it had made up its mind.

[Shit! great. I understand! There is no other way for me either. It is impossible for me to change the self-harm event that you have already observed and confirmed. In the first place, the direction of time we run in is very different!]

'then...'

[But at least I can help you end this madness a little faster.]

The voice tried to calm down its agitated emotions and began to convey the information it had gathered to Nate as quickly as possible.

[The stigma engraved on you is very large. It covers everything from the back of the neck to the lower back. In addition, the structure is extremely complex, so even a significant amount of damage will not stop it from functioning.]

To some extent, Nate also guessed the identity of the stigma. The worst punishment handed down by the Heresy Tribunal. It is a terrible stigma that represents a 'devil worshiper'.

I heard that the complex pattern was designed based on the laws of the normal world. Therefore, once the brand was engraved on the body, even a healthy priest lost his divine power in an instant.

Perhaps it was the best way to prevent his enormous divine power from flowing out into the real world.

[Of course, there are some weak points in that stigma. Right nearby, there is a pattern with 9 layers of concentric circles tightly wrapped around each other. The codes are so sensitive that it would be possible to shatter all 9 codes with one sword, right? All you have to do is rip just one span from where the sword pierced through to the upper right room.]

span.

Considering that the internal organs along the same path will be cut together, the distance cannot be said to be short even with empty words.

Still, it was quite encouraging news for Nate. Originally, she had planned to relentlessly attack her body until the stigma lost her power.

'span... ... '

Nate gritted his teeth and strengthened his trembling hands.

Quad deuk!

There was tremendous bleeding and pain that was so intense that it made me lose my senses.

However, amid the pain, his mind became sharper than ever before, and his rapidly expanded field of vision allowed him to simultaneously grasp many things he had never seen before.

"What the hell are you... ... "

The powerful divine power that had been suppressed for a long time is released, and bright beams of light burst out in all directions as if exploding.

In that dazzling light that seemed to blind her, Taia lost her soul and shed tears.

"... Ah, Bethelah!"

How can I describe that scene in words? Holiness that goes beyond the limit is a violence that devastates the soul.

Would it be like this if the great saints of old, or even another incarnation of the main god, returned to the world?

"My love! God incarnate! "This lowly servant has finally seen with his own eyes the evidence of your presence and presence in the world!"

For the first time in her life, Taia, the parish priest of the Affectionate Church, sobbed as she felt the fullness of faith welling up from her soul.

But that happiness is short-lived.

Sigh!

Soon after, her head was blown off by Nate's long sword, which was swung like lightning.

* * *

Rattling rattling.

"..."

When Dasha came to her senses, the whole situation was already over. They had been cleansed and placed on a wagon heading to Asin.

As I lay dazed, feeling the vibration of the shaking carriage, I heard the sound of mercenaries bickering in front.

"Oh, let go of this! Don't stop me, Paula! This time, I won't leave that guy alone, Bart! How dare you fool Justin Astros!"

Despite his thick voice, he was a man whose manner of speaking seemed extremely frivolous.

And then a calm woman's voice is heard scolding him.

"What kind of crazy talk is that? "Why does the captain say something like that even after seeing with his own eyes what kind of performance our rookie rookie has done?"

"Of course, he contributed to some extent in exorcising the devil... ... !"

"You have to say it right away. The newbie did it all by himself. "Are we so afraid of erosion that we dared to go near the devil?"

"... ... !"

"And who was it that cleaned up all the poor children caught up in the erosion?"

The man was silent for a moment, as if he had been caught off guard, and then protested in a weak voice.

"But we've suffered a lot of damage because of that guy! How can you save lives and exorcise high-level demons for such a small commission fee? What kind of wasteful effort is this without any reward? If only he had properly reported the results of the investigation to me... ... !"

"Of course, the new employee did a thorough preliminary investigation and submitted a neat report. "We proposed several special provisions to prepare for unexpected situations, so we reflected them in the contract, but have you read the contract?"

"Oh, I read it. I read it roughly... No, wait, Paula. "What kind of weirdo would put such a complicated special contract into a simple, low-level request?"

"Then you must be happy. Fortunately, our new recruit was a strange guy who put such a thing in, and if the contract was properly fulfilled, our mercenary group would get a huge amount of money for free."

Then the man looked surprised and asked.

"what? we... "Did you make money?"

"yes. You earned a lot, Captain Justin. If you were being picky, you were going to formally request the Holy Knights from the Empire, but you just brushed it off in favor of our mercenary corps, right? Perhaps there will be money left over even after collecting all the rescued orphanage children? "Our newbie is really an object."

The man looked taken aback for a moment by the outpouring of praise from the woman called Paula.

"... So, you're saying it would be a good idea to sign a formal contract with Bart?"

"I feel like I want to do that. But the new team refused to sign a formal contract with us."

"what? Why again!"

"Bart doesn't want to treat someone like Captain Justin so deferentially as his boss."

"... "No, what?"

I can feel the man huffing and disappearing somewhere. I'm probably going to argue with that friend named 'Bart'.

At the same time, on the other side of the same carriage, another conversation was heard in a low, muffled voice.

"Father Gustav. "Are you out of your mind?"

In response to the woman's soft voice, the man, whose throat was locked, stammered a question.

"... Oh, the kids... What happened to the children?"

"Everyone is safe. The erosion phenomenon disappeared and stability was found. "It's all thanks to the priest's hard work."

"Ah, Lord!"

The sound of a man sobbing was heard along with a small prayer.

"I couldn't do anything. Yes, it was no problem. With just my meager divine power, I would have lost my children helplessly! "It is truly the Lord's guidance to send us great mercenaries like you at the right time."

"Shh. Don't worry too much about the past and get some rest. "The priest has used up too much of his divine power."

"Thank you. Thank you so much!"

After hearing that, Dasha slowly closed her eyes, feeling a deep sense of fatigue.

Bart...

Priest Gustav...

These are people who originally would have had no contact whatsoever in her life. Maybe that's why her names were somehow familiar, but strangely felt infinitely vague.

... Cool.

As her consciousness faded, the familiar names faded from her mind, leaving behind a faint reverberation.

470

470. Remarks (10)

Dasha, along with other orphans, was moved to a temporary shelter on the outskirts of Asin.

"Now, you can rest here as much as you like until you decide where to go, little ones! Our Astros mercenaries will gladly look after you! Hahaha!"

Justin, a man who identified himself as the leader of a mercenary group, confidently assured the children and patted his chest.

Dasha couldn't help but be impressed. Isn't this a rare and kind mercenary group that would go out of their way to buy a new building for orphans?

'Special deal! If a temporary building is provided by the estate due to the collapse of monastery facilities, a special agreement allows you to purchase the building first at a low price in the future!'

That wasn't all. The orphans were provided with clean clothing and quality food by the mercenaries, and for the first time in a long time, they were able to fill their bellies.

'Special deal! If you perform some of the functions on behalf of the monastery, a special agreement is made to transfer a significant amount of donations received during the period!'

What was most surprising was that the erosion that had invaded the children's bodies had completely disappeared. I heard that to properly cleanse the erosion, you have to ask for a high-ranking priest and pay a huge fee to the church for it.

'Special deal! A special contract that allows you to charge the lord for all cleaning and treatment costs for erosion at market prices! But Bart purified it in one fell swoop, right? 'This is so bad!'

The sight of the man grinning frivolously seemed a little suspicious.

But no matter how smart he was compared to his peers, Dasha, who was much younger than him, had no way of knowing what was going through Justin Astros' head.

As they enjoyed unprecedented abundance, the orphans gradually began to forget the aftermath of the accident.

There was just one thing that I couldn't understand: none of the children at the orphanage, including Dasha, had any proper recollection of the accident that day.

The same was true for Ramira, who lost part of her right arm.

"... 'A building pillar collapsed on my arm?'"

"Yes, Paula from the mercenary group said that. They say you were trapped under the monastery building. I think my arm was probably cut off at that time..."

"okay. I see..."

Ramira looked at her shortened right arm with a slightly depressed expression. Perhaps because she had received divine power treatment for purification, the girl's severed arm had healed and new skin was growing.

"But they say it's fortunate that the amputation is below the elbow. 'If the upper part of your elbow is blown off, it will be much more difficult to use a prosthetic hand, and your daily life will be much more inconvenient.'"

Dasha carefully offered consolation rather than consolation. Of course, it is unclear how much comfort those clumsy words would have been to the girl who suddenly became a one-armed girl.

Fortunately, Ramira smiled at Dasha with a calm expression on her face.

"Heh, I see. I heard that a very strong demon appeared in the monastery, right? "You're saying it's a miracle that we survived there?"

"Yes, I did."

"Then that's enough. "At this level, I was very lucky."

"huh... .."

Dasha trailed off and avoided eye contact. She became short, and as she continued to look at Ramira's arm, she felt strangely strange.

Anxiety and emptiness, as if I had somehow forgotten something important. Frustration and embarrassment that seems impossible to grasp. And, a little longing that I can't understand... ..

However, even after thinking and thinking for several days, Dasha could not figure out anything about what happened that day.

As a result, the selective amnesia was a very fortunate thing for the children of Dashana Orphanage. Not long after, the Holy Knights dispatched from Delcross visited the temporary residence.

They were a pair of inquisitors, a man and a woman dressed in stiff uniforms, who called the orphans into the room one by one and interrogated them in detail about the day's events.

"so. "Are you saying you don't remember anything either?"

"Yes, I remember the building in the east building suddenly exploded. At the same time, my eyes were covered with black fog. "I don't remember anything after that."

Dasha was quite nervous as she answered. It has to be that way. If you make a mistake, you might be taken to the infamous Heresy Tribunal.

"okay. Well then, let me ask you one more question. "Tell me everything you know about Abbot Mathieu."

"... yes?"

Dasha paused for a moment.

Is it because of my mood? I felt like I had some complicated feelings about the abbot.

But strangely enough, when I try to bring it out, I end up feeling completely dazed, as if my mind is wrapped in fog.

"well... I don't know? We rarely got to see Director Mathieu in person. "He was the person in charge of the monastery, so he must have been very busy."

"But didn't we meet every week during mass?"

"well? The orphanage children were not allowed to attend formal mass because they were dirty. So, Father Ellison, who mainly cared for us, celebrated a simple Mass in the kitchen."

"... .."

The male inquisitor who was interrogating Dasha looked quite dissatisfied.

But when there was no room for more information to come out, he turned to the female Inquisitor leaning against the wall, as if asking permission. Then he quickly turns to Dasha and nods her head.

"Okay, I understand. "You can go now."

Dasha stood up and bowed her head politely to the man.

And as he left the room, he also said hello to the young woman standing in the doorway. I was thinking that compared to her smiling face, she had eyes that had a strange coldness to them.

widely!

When the door closed like that -

"This doesn't come out too well, so it's rather suspicious. "What do you think about taking all the surviving children to the Inquisition?"

The male Inquisitor asked the female Inquisitor who was deep in thought. Although he was already approaching middle age, he was showing an extremely polite attitude towards the Inquisitor who was much younger than him.

"Please, please. Inquisitor Sophia."

Why not-

The red-haired Inquisitor with a carefree face was actually a master of cruel torture and a hidden powerhouse of the Inquisition.

"... .."

The Inquisitor called Sophia looked at the man for a moment and then smiled brightly. Of course, her cold eyes did not have the slightest hint of laughter.

"That is impossible. We have come here to uncover the truth about the demon summoning. "The Inquisition's mighty power should not be poured into the useless task of torturing children."

"then... .."

"Orphans are released like this. "It didn't seem like he was lying."

The man was not very pleased, but he did not dare to disagree with her.

On the surface, Sophia was an ordinary Inquisitor, but she was someone who received orders directly from the Cardinal, not the Knight Commander. Considering the real power she possesses, it is safe to say that her status is equivalent to that of the Knights of St. Marsyas.

"... "What about the priest?"

"A priest?"

"yes. "He is the one who first asked the Astros mercenaries to investigate the abbot."

"Ah, that low priest."

Sophia remembered the priest she had interrogated not long ago. He was a man with a rapidly withered body and dark eyes.

It wouldn't have been unreasonable. He is said to have unleashed divine power beyond the limits of a lowly priest to prevent the encroachment of his orphans.

"It won't be of much use. I've seen someone like that a few times before. Those who borrow divine power from the Lord at the cost of burning their own souls. "There is no way the Lord would allow such power to someone associated with the devil, right?"

"But other than that, there are no clues..." ... !"

"If we tortured them further, they wouldn't be able to endure it for long and they would die. "He doesn't have much time left to live anyway, so just leave him alone."

Unbeknownst to Dasha, a gruesome fate narrowly missed her and Father Gustav.

After a short period of time in their temporary home, the orphans were moved to a new orphanage run by Grand Duke Assin.

Dasha and several children were excluded. This is because he happened to be noticed by a man looking for talent and joined the assassination group 'Hand of Oberon'.

The person who selected them was Breman, famous as the 'Tiger Instructor', and at the time, some hair still survived around the ears and the back of the head.

"Goodbye, you black Barça catch. "I often contact you whenever I have time."

"You're doing well too. Now stop digging and eating the dirt. "You miserable Anatolian ground dog."

"Hey, Mr. Lee! Who said they dug up the dirt and ate it? who?"

Dasha, who had a rather affectionate farewell to Ramira, devoted herself to learning assassination skills from Oberon.

And soon, she discovered that the job of an assassin was a better fit for her than she thought.

A technique to hide one's presence and sneak away. A murderous technique that annihilates people with a single blow... . The time spent refining them was a very desperate and precious opportunity for the once helpless orphan girl.

First of all, the large amount of information they handle.

Secret and powerful information that ordinary people are not easily aware of and that can sometimes influence the way the world is governed.

For Dasha, handling them was like sticking her neck out above the stuffy surface and taking in a handful of air.

And, once a creature can breathe properly, it can never return to the dark bottom of the water again.

Ten years passed by so quickly.

Most assassin groups had quite strict rules, but despite this, Dasha enjoyed her great freedom and happily roamed under the night sky.

Thanks to that, I gradually built up my performance, and was the only one among the same jockeys to be given a 'number'.

"You should not be conceited just because you received a number at a younger age than others, number 13. I think this is just the beginning, and I need to continue to hone my skills and work hard...
... ."

"Puh-ha! There's no need to act solemn, Breman. In fact, you think I'm a genius. "Right?"

"... .."

Then, sometimes, a faint voice, unknown to who left it, would appear in her mind.

- Dasha. Remember clearly the scent of death. And entrust your fate and all the missions that fate has entrusted to him.

But Dasha would ignore that voice and ignore it. She was so young that she doesn't remember much anymore, and when she heard it, she thought she had no idea what it was talking about.

Then one day it happened. Dasha received an unexpected call from Breman and visited the monkey watchtower.

"... Exclusive informant? "So suddenly?"

"okay. "A request from His Majesty Mores has been received."

"Then there are many other jockeys under me. "Why do I have to do this?"

Of course, Dasha also understood that she could not send someone away. The imperial palace's invisible security system was famous for being very strict even among assassins.

Besides, isn't it a job to assist the royal family right by their side? It was clear that it was a task that a person of considerable skill could not handle.

"Still, Breman. "I'm too talented a person to be tied down to one person all day!"

"Is that so? But it seems that the excellent staff is at its most leisurely here right now. "Can't you move to the imperial palace right away before you get hit for the first time in a long time?"

"Ugh... ..!"

Dasha had no choice but to reluctantly get up from the tiger instructor's words, which were still being corrected. Because it is Monkey Watchtower's rule to immediately assign an informant when there is a request from the prince or princess.

'Still, I don't really want to go full speed...'

Once you become someone's exclusive informant, you have to be tied to that person until you die.

Look at our seniors who are still wandering around the world and have not been able to return to the imperial capital. What about No. 9, who was stuck in the southern region with his nose pierced by 1st Prince Owen?

Unlike them, Dasha wanted to work more properly at the center of the organization and handle information.

'And then...'

Whoever sees me now, doesn't he look like Barçain? No matter what his abilities were, there was no way that people as high as the royal family would welcome his presence.

Dasha, who touched her smooth brown cheeks for a moment, put on a mask and meticulously covered her face just before entering the Pearl Palace.

Until then, Dasha had been negative about meeting Prince Mores.

From what I heard, you take after Empress Lizabeth and have a temperament even at a young age, right? Perhaps, the moment he sees her face, he will get annoyed and demand to change his informant right away?

But Dasha had just landed lightly on the balcony of the Pearl Palace. She was completely lost in her strange scent that stimulated her sense of smell.

'Good scent...'

okay. A faint scent of roses wafts from the prince's room.

At the same time as she recognized it, fragments of memories that had been forgotten for a while in her mind came back vividly to the surface of her consciousness.

-Don't worry. Let me give you a little congratulations. So that one day you can safely reclaim your name.

iced coffee. The elegant gesture of her hand stroking her own cheek, and the rich scent of roses that wafted out as if her flowers were flowing.

As if possessed by something, Dasha opened the window and entered the prince's room.

"... ... !"

Prince Mores was there.

The young prince noticed Dasha's skillful auror concealment like a ghost and was staring at her with his nutcracker aimed straight at her.

"uh? "The knight commander said he was especially careful, but I never thought the prince himself would find out."

His attitude is so sharp that it's hard to imagine that he's a boy who just turned 15.

Dasha was inwardly impressed and raised both hands up.

"Don't worry. "I am not the enemy."

"Do you think it would be persuasive if you said something like that while wearing a mask?"

"Haha, that's right."

Dasha showed an overly bright smile and pulled on her mask. Just moments ago, she was afraid of revealing her face, so she carefully wrapped her mask.

"..."

Surprisingly, Prince Mores was not very surprised when he saw Dasha's face. I'm just calmly observing what she does and gauging who she is.

Beneath the seemingly fierce eyes, light gray eyes shine with intelligence.

But those sharp eyes felt strangely familiar to Dasha. So Dasha finally took off her mask and greeted me warmly without even realizing it.

"Hello, prince. "I brought you Breman's reply from Monkey Watchtower."

And instead of using the code name No. 13, he gave this introduction.

"My name is Dasha. "I am the prince's exclusive informant sent by Breman."

The young prince, who was observing her with mysterious eyes, called her name as if it was natural.

"okay. Hello, Dasha."

It was a greeting to welcome a seed that had wandered around for a long time, deviating from its designated orbit, and had finally settled safely in its new home.

471

471. Remarks (side story) - Gustav

"Brother!"

Quang!

Gustav looked back at his younger brother, who violently opened the door, with a calm face.

"Tobias."

"What does that mean all of a sudden? Atrium ministry? "Brother, are you out of your mind now?"

Tobias Gustav.

He was a brother slightly older than Gustav, and was a young man currently attending the Theological Academy. His natural divine power is great, and his personality is also active and sociable.

Thanks to this, Gustav always thought about this every time he saw Tobias.

'I ended up being an insignificant low-level priest, but this guy could probably rise to an important position in the Orthodox Church. Maybe I'll be hired by the lord on good terms.'

He is a proud younger brother who has a pretty solid future ahead of him.

However, he was now very excited and was raising his voice at Gustav.

"When are you talking about visiting ministry? Is your brother some kind of saint Grazie? "Who these days provides such old-fashioned service?"

It was not unreasonable for Tobias to react this way.

'Visiting ministry' refers to the act of a priest wandering around the world aimlessly to serve the Lord.

Since I don't have a church in particular, I have no way of receiving much protection even if I walk around naked. In other words, it meant sacrificing one's life and serving for one's faith.

"It's not your fault the devil was summoned in the first place! Rather, it played a big role in resolving the situation. But why are you willing to take such a dangerous path?"

"Shh! Kill your voice, Tobias. "What are you going to do if someone hears it?"

"under! Is there anyone here who doesn't know about Dunstan's Incident? Everyone is hissing, but there are already rumors all the way to the imperial capital about what that damned Mathieu did! But what does that have to do with you?"

Gustav kept his mouth shut for a moment, then opened his mouth, waiting for his younger brother's wild excitement to subside a little.

"No matter what, you can't fool your conscience. Tobias, it was my fault."

"Oh, kinda! Wake! "Why is it because of you that that crazy gravedigger's wife sold her soul to the devil?"

"Because the church had to save her first before that happened. And then I was definitely in a position to help her."

".....!"

Gustav spoke calmly to his wide-eyed brother.

"Tobias. "At that time, the person who summoned the devil was just a poor woman who had lost her child."

"Do not be ridiculous! That woman is a devil worshiper. "She is a criminal who killed people!"

"I wasn't a devil worshiper from the beginning. He just had no other way to endure the extreme sadness and anger. Because all she could do to get her revenge was to summon her demon. Then, who actually gave her up to her devil?"

Tobias was speechless. I wasn't influenced by Gustav's distorted self-blame. I just read the deep-rooted guilt in the brother's detached eyes that would not disappear for the rest of his life after he had finished organizing his mind.

"Do you understand? Tobias. "It is all my mistake for ignoring the opportunity to prevent that tragedy, and it is the church's fault for appointing someone like Mathieu as abbot."

"brother... .."

"So, if you have any sympathy for that poor woman, please pray with me that she can reach God even in death."

"....."

After a while of silence, Tobias spoke in a depressed voice.

"okay. I understand why my brother is blaming himself. But nothing changes now. Even if my brother commits a useless penance now, a person who has already sold his soul to the devil will never return."

"Yes, it's inevitable now."

"But why would you make that choice?"

Then Gustav's expression became subtle. Coincidentally, I had recently heard this same question from someone completely different.

-Why would you make that choice?

That day, Dunstan's historic monastery was destroyed by the devil.

In a desperate situation where children were dying from erosion and mercenaries were trembling because they could not reach the upper-class devil, a boy miraculously appeared and cut down the devil with a single sword.

Then I suddenly asked Gustav, whose eyes were wide. Why do you make that choice?

-... yes?

When Gustav did not understand and asked again, the boy stared at him with deeply sunken eyes and asked again.

-No matter how hard you struggle, your efforts will not bear much fruit in your lifetime. But why do you want to push yourself into such hardship?

How crazy is this? Gustav thought so for a moment.

However, as I looked at the boy's absolute presence and the mysterious light in his eyes, I unconsciously became polite.

-excuse me... I'm not sure what that means...

But the boy kept his mouth shut for a moment, then nodded as if he had heard an answer from him.

-Yes, I see. i get it.

-yes?

But the boy didn't respond any further, but slowly stretched out his hand and touched Gustav's forehead. As he was sitting on the floor from exhaustion, he looked strange, as if he had been baptized by a boy.

And finally, the boy opened his mouth.

-I hope that your feelings will return as a great reward someday.

-.....!

It was a voice with strange power. A magnificent sound that shakes your head, mind, and soul.

As Gustav was reeling from the sudden shock, the boy withdrew his hand and continued speaking casually.

-I regret that I ended up neglecting you. However, if you continue to heal your soul wounds like this, you will be taken straight to the Inquisition and you will not escape his death.

-Do you heal the soul? No, wait! The Heresy Tribunal... ..

-For your information, the children in the orphanage won't remember anything. While purifying them, I hinted them to forget all the problematic things.

-Oh, a hint?

-So, it would be a good idea for you to be careful about what you say in front of the Inquisitor. If you make a mistake, your life will end in the Heresy Tribunal before your heart even sees the light of day.

The conversation with the boy ended there. This is because Gustav, who was already showing severe symptoms of exhaustion, was unable to overcome the shock and fainted.

And now, Gustav was facing his younger brother in an intense sense of déjà vu. He felt a strange sensation, as if he had just been asked a question by the boy that day.

"I know, Tobias. Her pity for that woman, her desire to atone for her, are nothing more than the self-satisfaction of her own circumstances."

"then... ..!"

"But if I don't do this, I won't be able to live in this world anymore."

Gustav slowly cupped his face in his hands. It was to hide the expression that was about to distort at any moment.

"Yes, I know. Even if I had moved a little faster, the result wouldn't have changed much. "Nevertheless, the reason I suffer so much is probably because in the past, I was so busy looking after myself that I abandoned my conscience and turned away from the poor."

"....."

"That's why, Tobias. From now on, I will live according to what my conscience tells me."

Tobias felt the determination in his brother's eyes. The sad fact that I can no longer stop him.

"I will be able to see your face by the time you graduate. You said you wanted to go to Sigismund Territory later, right? "I heard it's a very cold place there, so if possible, I recommend that he change his mind and settle in the imperial capital."

That was the last conversation the Gustav brothers had while alive.

As a result, Gustav's 'visiting ministry' ended without any results.

Not long after he went to serve, he was captured by Rohan bandits who attacked the village.

'... 'I'm embarrassed.'

I decided to spend the rest of my life helping those in need. But now I'm being dragged around by bandits who are preying on people, and I have to help them?

-No matter how hard you struggle, your efforts will not bear much fruit in your lifetime.

okay. It really happened as the boy said at that time.

Fortunately, Gustav had a colleague in a similar situation to himself.

"What is this? The completion of my thesis is just around the corner, but I came to look for a precious herb that grows deep in the mountains..."

Alvin Seymour.

The talented pharmacist, who claimed to be the rising star of the Adelheit Plague Society, lamented that he was dragged away by bandits while preparing a thesis that would shock the world.

"I promised to return with lots of presents, but my little Jibril must be waiting for me so desperately right now... .."

The two sat down together and exchanged deep disappointment. If things continued like this, it was obvious that I would be exploited in a den of bandits for the rest of my life.

However, even for two people whose lives were completely messed up, as the years passed, one joy arose.

It was to take care of young Aslan.

Aslan was a kid who had been living with a bandit group for some time. He was so gentle and smart that it was quite rewarding to teach him.

Thanks to this, Seymour, who had been immersed in the role of a teacher for the first time in a long time, was so excited that he would pass on all his knowledge to the child.

"Just wait and see! "This kid will one day become the most famous pharmacist on the continent!"

However, Gustav had no skills to teach the child for his future.

So instead, he told Aslan various stories. About the main god they serve, about correct religious life, and about the natural conscience that people have.

"Do you understand? Aslan. "A person must always live according to his or her conscience."

"Conscience?"

"okay. So, you too, stop imitating bandits. Don't even swear. "There is nothing you can learn from them."

Then little Aslan grumbled, rubbing his red cheeks from the cold.

"But Gustav. What would I do if I knew that? "Anyway, I will be living in this mountain with bandits for the rest of my life."

"Well, Aslan. "No one knows what will happen later in a person's life."

At such times, Gustav would think of the intelligent Warsaw girl who had once offered him a piece of old cloth.

okay. Those people are the ones who can carry out their will toward the world. Driven people who never let go of their goals and values and never turn away from what needs to be done, even in difficult situations.

So Gustav spoke to Aslan as if he were praying every day. I sincerely hope that this child's life will be different from my own.

"Aslan, I hope that one day you will get out of here and live a proper life."

Gustav's life came to an end not long after that. In the end, Rohan's punitive force came and cut off his head along with the bandits.

It was truly an unremarkable life. He didn't achieve anything much, and his life was full of regrets.

So when Gustav opened his eyes after death, he was not surprised by the desolate scene that unfolded before him.

'okay. Was my place ultimately hell?'

While I was bitterly convinced, I suddenly heard a soft mocking sound from above my head.

[Hell. It's a fairly normal feeling. Someone told me this nonsense, that this was heaven...]

voice. No, it wasn't exactly a voice, but a thought.

That thought, full of authority and coercion, had complete control not only of Gustav's soul but also of this endless space.

Feeling an instinctive awe at that terrifying presence, Gustav cautiously asked him a question.

[Who are you? Are you by any chance my god?]

[I have no intention of impersonating God. Even after all this, there is a separate church in Delcross that serves me.]

this! Is this a heresy served by an underground cult?

Gustav quickly bowed his head towards the thought. Rather than succumbing to his power, I placed a glimmer of hope in his strangely innocent attitude.

[If you do, please send me. I am a person who serves the will of the Lord. Even after death, I have no intention of committing myself to an underground cult.]

[hmm... ..]

In response to Gustav's plea, the Master of Thought instead of getting angry sent a subtle wave.

[But that's difficult. The moment you leave this place, your soul will end in an instant, right?]

[...] yes?]

I can feel the gaze of the being looking down at me moving away somewhere.

Gustav followed him with his spiritual eyes and soon saw terrible scenes unfolding far away on the far side of the universe. Souls that constantly scream and terrifying evil beings that gleefully prey on them.

[.....!]

As Gustav's soul froze in shock, thoughts spoke softly as if to soothe it.

[If there is a place called heaven in the world, I want to send you there too. But as you can see, it's all like that outside.]

[.....]

[Of course, if you choose to disappear on your own, I will not particularly stop you. But I hope you don't do that as much as possible. At best, it's not worth getting up and bringing you back.]

Gustav felt the waves of truth coming from his thoughts.

Did that powerful being really bring him here himself? Naturally, this question could not help but arise.

[...] Why?]

[That's right, there's a rather familiar saying engraved on your forehead.]

[A quick speech?]

[okay. Can't you feel it yourself now?]

True to his words, Gustav was able to detect a flash of white light on his forehead. His spirit, freed from the limitations of the body, immediately realized where the exhortation came from.

-I hope that your feelings will return as a great reward someday.

iced coffee! That time... ... !

Gustav's soul is in shock, and his distant gaze returns to this area. Even though he was just staring at himself, Gustav felt a heavy spiritual pressure, as if his soul was being crushed flat.

[...] Well, I think I know why you came here.]

What are you looking at? After some time had passed, the spirit turned its gaze away from Gustav and said so.

[reason... You mean?]

[okay. Now that I have a general understanding, I will gladly make a place for you here. From now on, you can rest comfortably here. As you may have seen just now, it is dangerous to leave this area.]

[...] Why are you trying to be so kind to me?]

Gustav eventually had no choice but to ask him.

[I am neither your believer nor your servant. Even if I stay here, my soul will never praise your presence. But why... .. !]

[I'm not saying you should abandon your faith.]

Sadyeom responded calmly.

[There is no need to do anything more there. Because I just believe that your life itself is valuable enough to exist in this world.]

[value... yo. this?]

[okay. I'm very happy to see it.]

After responding like that, Sasyeom paused for a moment and continued speaking.

[For a person to achieve this position with his bare body, he must overcome the filth of the world. In that case, it is easy for everything such as morality and humanity to be lost somewhere. In that sense, I probably won't be much different from my friends over there.]

... person?

[But sometimes, when I look at people like you, I get the feeling that it wouldn't be a bad idea to respect the virtues that everyone says they value, right? Just by causing me to feel that way even for a moment, it means that your life has enough value.]

[.....]

[Or you can think of it as a simple reward. I feel like your life is a little messed up because of people who are important to me. Because you are one of the few victims of the world we have changed.]

victim? A world that has been turned upside down?

Even though Gustav was free from physical limitations and found mental freedom, it was difficult for Gustav to understand what he was saying.

But at least Gustav could sense that he was telling the truth. Because it was a conversation between souls that could never tell lies to each other.

[...] thank you I'm not sure about my own value, but I feel like I'm feeling a little more at ease.]

[Yes, thank me profusely.]

He seemed unusually smug.

[Okay, now the conversation is over. I need to rest a little more, so you should try to get some sleep too.]

Now no one will disturb your rest. After those whispers, the presence that seemed to be pressing down on her head disappeared without a trace.

[.....]

Only then was Gustav able to look around with greater ease.

This was a cold, dreary, gray world. The endless rows of tombstones reached all the way to the horizon, and at their feet, unknown people were sprawled out, lifeless.

'also... 'This must be hell, right?'

But why? All of them had a peaceful expression on their faces.

Gustav was a little relieved by this, and soon he quietly laid down on the handful of land given to him.

472. Loser of the North (1)

Seongjin, who had been looking through documents until late, stretched and turned his head. The day had already set, and there was a red sunset outside the window.

Dasha, who thought she would wake up soon, is still in a deep sleep. It looks like she really suffered from severe aftereffects.

'I guess it would be impossible to leave today?'

So, Seongjin roughly finished the documents and gave instructions to No. 21, who looked somewhat nervous.

"My father is probably away now, so let's stay at Tere for one more day. "Be prepared to leave for Regina tomorrow morning."

Then No. 21 looked at Seongjin with a puzzled look. A rough interpretation of his expression was as follows.

-Why bother waiting for them to wake up? Wouldn't it be okay to just put it on the wagon and go?

Seongjin was dumbfounded. How dare this child treat his father like a burden just because he is a homunculus and not his real self?

"I'm not pressed for time, so why should I bother someone who is well-rested? Anyway, I don't have any sympathy. "Even if I don't see how you usually treat your father, it's nice to see."

"... .. !"

Number 21's face is distorted with resentment. He opened his mouth to protest anything.

However, his expression soon became serious and he closed his mouth, because the incredible deeds he had committed in the past quickly flashed through his mind.

The thing about roughly picking up a homunculus and carrying it around. It was something that was stored carelessly in a coffin and walked around. He even threw it to the bandits as bait and ran away!

'what? 'Have I served Your Majesty properly so far?'

Number 21 was greatly shocked by this new realization.

"What are you doing? Why don't you go and have a look?"

"... "Yes, I understand, sir."

Number 21 stumbled and left the inn.

The wagon prepared by guild leader Greta was still standing there.

After untying the mules to one side and feeding them fodder, No. 21 worked hard to tidy up the interior of the wagon.

'It's not enough to serve Your Majesty. Should I at least make a cot in the corner?'

Then, something strange caught my eye.

Four dots in a triangle. Under the sign of the free underpass engraved on the corner of the carriage, there is a small note that was not there before.

Number 21 felt a strange sense of discomfort and tore off the note.

-Isn't it time to relax? You should never forget where your hometown is.

No. 21's eyes darken after reading the short message written on the note.

okay. At this point, it was time for his news to reach the human's ears. This is why he wanted to open this place as quickly as possible...

'Of course I don't forget where I come from. But I'm not going to do it the way you want me to. never!'

Quack.

The small note was crumpled under my tightly clenched fist.

When Dasha came to her senses, it was after complete darkness had fallen on the inn.

"... here is?"

"senior! Are you okay?"

"Ah, Dasha! "Are you out of your mind?"

Seongjin, who came to check on her at the right time, looked pleased and snatched the bowl of stew that No. 21 was holding.

"Then get up and listen to this. "You didn't eat or sleep all day, right?"

"Lowering..."

But Seongjin could no longer recommend food. This is because Dasha, who had staggered out of her seat, kneeled down in front of him.

"Lowering! please... Please forgive me!"

"Dasha?"

"I was unable to die in time and was captured by the enemy and became a burden to my family. "For making such a big mistake, I am no longer worthy of serving you!"

Number 21 slowly took a step back, feeling shaky. Somehow she felt as if an impenetrable air was forming between them.

Percussion.

When he heard the sound of the door closing behind him, Seongjin put down the bowl of stew and opened his mouth.

"Raise your head, Dasha."

"... .."

"The bare eyebrows were brushed off. "You disrupted the information network of 'Breath of Kaya' and lured most of the main forces towards you, causing great confusion."

"... Yes, lowly. "That was my intention."

Then Seongjin crossed his arms and looked crookedly down at Dasha.

"I thought you were following me well, but why did you suddenly do something I didn't order?"

"that... This is because I felt that their number was rapidly increasing and their movements were becoming more and more organized. Therefore, we decided that it would be difficult to stay close to the Emperor without being detected, so we thought that it would be more helpful to interrupt their communication-"

"In other words, it was purely your own opinion."

"... ..!"

In response to Seongjin's cold response, Dasha lowered her head with a sad expression.

"Then just one more thing. Although it is said to have caused great information confusion, it would probably have been impossible for you to disrupt such a wide information network on your own. This would mean that a specific line was selected, but by what criteria was that selection made?"

"... The assassins led by the woman with the bare eyebrows you mentioned seemed to be exchanging information from three directions."

Dasha continued her explanation, trying to control her trembling voice.

"The first was the far northern region where the 'Breath of Kaya' headquarters was probably located. "I was aware of the rare comings and goings of Jeonseo-gu, but I judged that it would not have a significant impact on their movements right now."

So Dasha left the Jeonseo-gu alone. If she clumsily tried to block all information, there was a possibility that their existence would soon be discovered.

"The second was direct communication in a roughly southwest direction."

The reason Dasha expressed it as 'approximately' was because the direction and time interval of their movement was constantly changing. Seongjin could easily guess that they were probably the ones chasing Seonghwang and No. 21.

"They just left it alone. Since I came and went so frequently, there was a high risk of my presence and location being discovered the moment I blocked the information. Above all, we had no idea what their purpose was, and we thought it was highly likely that their actions had little to do with our group."

"Right."

"And the third is Verdrón, the old brewing city where your Majesty first used the express carriage."

When Seongjin met Giovanni in Verdrón, Dasha could not get close because of the assassins tightly guarding the city. So, I had no idea that Jayu Underground had already guessed the identity of Seongjin and his group.

However, a short time later, the wagon carrying the prince left the city under the guard of assassins, and separately from them, an additional messenger was captured running straight south from Verdrón.

Even to Dasha, who knew nothing, their movements did not seem to be a very good sign.

"So I mainly targeted that line... .."

"Yes, it is."

"Rather than half-heartedly knocking on the entire wall, they decided to knock down just one pillar supporting the roof."

Seongjin nodded. That's why the Minja Eyebrow gang belatedly figured out the movements of Seongjin and his group and became confused.

"There wasn't much basis for judgment, but he did something quite reckless. Besides, that was entirely your opinion."

"... .."

Dasha quietly bowed her head. Although she seemed quite calm on the outside, Seongjin's keen gaze did not miss Dasha's slightly trembling shoulders.

"Well, it was a pretty bold and clever strategy. In the end, it is true that it was a great help to me."

Seongjin continued speaking in a slightly softened voice.

"But that wasn't a judgment or action that an exclusive informant would make. "You know that better yourself, right?"

"Lowering... .."

"Dasha. There is one thing I realized while going through this incident. "I've been using people wrong all this time."

"... ..!"

Has it finally come?

Dasha closed her eyes tightly. She finally found someone worth serving, and she was finally getting recognition for her abilities, but she ended up being thrown away like this?

However, contrary to her despairing predictions, Seongjin's next words were completely unexpected.

"Dasha. Don't you plan on quitting your undercover work at the Monkey Watchtower and just get a full-time job at the Pearl Palace?"

For a moment, Dasha did not understand properly and asked back.

"... yes?"

"At this point, you're going to be my secretary. I'll treat you the best! I will create a proper rank and lower the status to semi-nobleman along with the last name."

"yes?"

"Your salary will also be provided comfortably as long as Jinju Palace's budget allows. Once the business is on track, we will set proper performance bonuses."

Looking at Dasha, who had an unusually blank expression on her face, Seongjin suddenly thought. Perhaps she had been predicting this day would come from the moment she publicly introduced her to Sir Martha In and her Captain Bruno?

In Seongjin's opinion, Dasha was a person whose presence could not easily be hidden, no matter how much she buried it in the dark. She is a great jewel-like talent who should shine brightly in the center of the crown, not just decorate the outskirts.

"So from now on, don't waste your time doing inefficient stealth work. I commute to Jinju Palace while taking a proper rest. Or, I'll give you a nice room, so you can just stay at Jinju Palace like Sir Martha."

"... .."

"The secretary's job will probably mainly be managing and gathering information. In order to do that, it would probably be better to continue cooperation with Monkey Watchtower, right?"

"... .."

"Oh, so, I'm thinking of requesting a new dedicated informant there and putting it under you to manage it. What do you think about that?"

Dasha couldn't answer anything. Because her Seongjin proposal was a possibility she had never even thought of in her dreams.

Maybe it's because it's so unrealistic, but his voice and each word seem to be vividly stuck in my head.

"If I achieve a bit, I will ask my father to give me a succession title instead of semi-noble. "There will be times when you have to act as a face for me at public events, so I think Dasha needs a certain level of status as well."

"B-but you! I am... ..!"

Dasha looked up at Seongjin with violently shaking eyes.

"As you can see, I am Barshain! "Everyone will ignore me, so how can I become the face of the royal family?"

"hmm?"

This time, it was Seongjin's turn to tilt his head at an unexpected possibility.

"What the hell is the problem? Dasha is talented and makes a great impression. "Is there a better talent to bring to the forefront as my representative?"

"... .."

"Oh, didn't I tell you before? Dasha is a rare beauty with an impressive smile. "I'm already half way through my first impression of her, so who on earth would dare to disrespect Dasha?"

Seongjin answered confidently, and in the end Dasha's eyes became slightly red.

"Thank you, sir. Instead of kicking me out for making a big mistake, he gave me a new opportunity... .."

Dasha could not continue speaking and quickly lowered her head. Seeing that she was very touched, Seongjin scratched her cheek, overcome with a slight sense of guilt.

'Well, since he's capable, I was going to keep him by his side and give him a proper pat on the back, but is this really something to be happy about?'

I'm worried that you might resent me later. There's so much work to do in the future...

"Olivier."

Dominic Scarzapino opened the door and walked in, calling out to the woman who was lying helplessly on the sofa.

It was his fiancée, no, it was the name of his collaborator who was disguising himself as his fiancée.

"Dominic."

Then Olivier stood up and panicked.

"Oh right! We decided to go to the logistics relay station together! wait a minute! First, draw some eyebrows..."

Dominic sighed softly.

"Arthur. "You can't go out like that, right?"

As he said, Olivier's face was currently swollen and in disrepair. This is because, after being beaten by a ghost armed with a club, he hurriedly fled to Regina as soon as he came to his senses.

"Is it really like that?"

"There will be rumors that the Archduchess of the Scarzzapino family regularly assaults his fiancée."

"Tsk... ... !"

Dejected, Olivier sat back down and buried his face in the cushion.

"Dominic, comfort me like a fiancé. "She barely saved her life, but instead she heard a terrible curse from a cute boy!"

"Useless talk... .."

Dominic's eyebrows twitch. It meant that I felt very uncomfortable.

"But will you be okay without me? What we decided to discuss with Branch Manager Schmidt was mainly the dry goods area. Even after all this, I am the owner of 'Lamari Clothing Store', which leads Rohan's dry goods business?"

"I can easily manage the volume of such a small business on my own."

"hmm. okay... .."

Olivier tilted his head and looked up at Dominic. The sharp eyes beneath his glasses seemed cold at first glance, but strangely enough, there were times when Olivier felt that he was kind.

"... Dominic."

"What else?"

"As expected, out of all the people we have prepared, I trust you more than anyone else. So please be a great king."

"... ..?"

"got it? "Do you have to survive until the end no matter what happens?"

Olivier faced the man's hard face and smiled.

473

473. Loser of the North (2)

The next day, Seongjin prepared to leave Tere early in the morning.

"Here, take this. "Oliver."

"... "What is all this?"

"Documents to be submitted to the imperial palace. "This is a report on the first sale of Teosinte and a detailed future business plan."

Seongjin's meticulously worked out business plan was flawless.

Not only does it involve sharing profits proportional to the initial investment amount with the imperial family, but it also includes a plan to rent out fields owned by the imperial family at a high price.

Perhaps the administration will be the first to adopt it? Because it can be seen at a glance that the national treasury will increase significantly.

"And here, this is a letter of recommendation to Branch Manager Schmidt. "It will be difficult for you to start a big business on your own from the beginning, so go to him and get introduced to trustworthy personnel."

"and... ! "You're the branch manager of a logistics relay station, so you have such amazing connections?"

A simple young man was shuffling through complicated documents with a curious expression.

Well, this guy doesn't know much. In fact, this is actually Branch Manager Schmidt's 'great personal connection'. You should be truly blessed to meet me here.

It was at a time when Seongjin's arrogance was reaching its peak. Oliver asked Seongjin with a somewhat stupid expression on his face.

"Hey, but... What is this? "Is there a strange guard here?"

What Oliver pointed to was an expense statement with 'security expenses' written on it.

"Uh, that's it... .."

That's because you really have a dedicated person protecting you. Last night, Dasha urgently requested assistance.

I had no intention of leaving the plump goose, who was going to lay golden eggs every day, alone in this desolate northern area teeming with hungry animals.

Be grateful? No matter what anyone says, they are high-quality personnel dedicated to the affairs of the imperial family. Of course, I was the one who received all the security expenses.

"Besides, what is this...?" Business consulting fees, free tasting fees, promotional event fees? What are these and do they account for most of my expenses?"

Uh-huh, write! If you give too much detail, you will get hurt.

After saying goodbye to Oliver, Seongjin and his party boarded a small wagon pulled by two mules. It seemed like No. 21 prepared in a hurry last night.

The wagon was simple, with no separate seats, but it felt cozy as the group sat together.

No. 21 and Edith were placed in the carriage seats, and at the end of the luggage compartment were Bartosa, Giacomo Milo, and the biological dolls taken from Kaya's breath.

On one side, there is even a soft bed for Priest Bart, who is very weak(?).

Tap, tap, tap.

So the group headed to Regina in a fairly peaceful atmosphere.

Of course, it was a problem for a while that the Homunculus left behind became excessively peaceful while the Emperor was away for a morning political meeting -

"excuse me... Are you really sure that Priest Bart is okay? I can't sense any Aura activity from that person? Moreover, there was no breathing or vital signs... .."

"Oh, you don't have to worry, Brother Masain. It's not like it was yesterday or today that he was sleeping like he was dead. I'm always surprised every time I see it."

"yes... .."

"But when you wake up again, you wake up fine? Ha ha ha ha ha!"

As Owen boasted that he had seen him for several years in the South, Martha couldn't help but nod hesitantly.

So the group sat in a circle and chatted while forgetting about the food Owen had provided. It was the perfect time to share and gather information from each other.

"So, newbie, what you're saying is that in a place called 'Kaya's Breath', you're randomly chopping off people's heads? And then you put some suspicious rocks in it and sew it back up?"

Owen looked back at the biological doll with a bewildered expression.

"No, how can you be alive if you split your head open?"

"So, it's a wicked act that borrowed the power of the devil. We must properly investigate the inside of their organization and, if necessary, thoroughly punish them."

The reason why Seongjin can say this with confidence is because he was an official inquisitor who was granted the right to investigate and prosecute by the Seonghoe.

If he points out something that is suspected of being the work of the devil, it is considered to be the work of the devil until it is proven innocent through a heresy trial. And heresy trials rarely result in acquittal.

Oh, that's really good! Public power that can be controlled by hand. Of course, Dasha will take care of all the detailed research.

"If you do it, you will be degraded. If that's what you said, at least we don't have to worry about the medicine cart spreading through the Freedom Underground's base anymore, right? "It means that there is a more reliable way to plant a salt crystal directly into the head."

"That's not necessarily true. Lord Masaine."

All of the living dolls Seongjin saw had flame crystals of similar size. The same was true for the soul stones of the head tower that No. 21 destroyed.

However, as written in Dacian's secretary, it is not easy for flame crystals to grow to a certain size.

If so, that is.

"They might be harvesting a large amount of flame crystals somewhere, enough to be able to pick out some that are of moderate use. "Whether those seedbeds were livestock or people."

That was the reason why Seongjin tried to greatly expand the teosinte business. If medicinal teas were spread throughout the North in any form, it would not be easy to find and eradicate them in a short period of investigation.

"We have to search even remote areas where there is not much traffic. And we supply teosinte to all of them."

Dasha will also take care of selecting and managing such areas.

"There is another problem. Wouldn't it be difficult to secretly distribute certain goods in large quantities without the eyes of local lords? So, regardless of whether they know the truth about Yakcha or not, we must respond by considering them to be tentatively accomplices."

Fortunately, there is a solution for this as well. Under the pretext of searching for the whereabouts of the criminal Giacomo Milo, they are ready to turn the northern territories upside down.

Of course, Dasha will also do the work of concealing Giacomo Milo's new recruits, which have already been secured, and manipulating his false actions to attack the territory. Because our Dasha is capable.

"..."

Then Dasha's expression becomes somewhat subtle. It seemed like she was finally starting to realize the enormous task she was about to undertake.

[Lee Seong-jin, you evil employer...]

shut up! Everyone tells people to do it because they are capable!

"Anyway, there is something a little surprising, sir."

After gathering her thoughts for a moment, Dasha cautiously opened her mouth.

"It's about the leader of the assassins."

"Uh, bare eyebrows."

"yes. Why did you just let go of those bare eyebrows? "If you completely neutralized it, it would have been better to capture it and get more information."

"hmm. That's a bit difficult to explain..."

In fact, some immoral devil had buried something similar to a pellet mine in her soul. I didn't think it would be a good idea to touch it hastily, so I had no choice but to take simple measures and then release it.

But since he couldn't explain everything straight away, Seongjin just explained it like this.

"Wouldn't it be better if the other person was someone you knew even a little bit about? Don't worry, Dasha. She'll have to meet that woman again soon. "I have a strong feeling like that."

"Yes, I hope so."

A gentle spark flashed in Dasha's eyes as she clenched her fists. As she remembered all the hardships she had gone through because of her bare eyebrows, her resentment towards her deepened.

"Olivier, you owe her a debt. If we ever meet again, if I don't show up properly this time... ..!"

"... what?"

Olivier? As Sungjin blinked her eyes, Dasha quickly added an explanation.

"Oh, of course that doesn't mean that's your real name. "Once upon a time, that woman introduced herself to me like that, so I inadvertently-"

"ah!"

Rattling!

The wagon shook violently. This is because Seongjin suddenly screamed and jumped up from his seat.

Thanks to this, No. 21, who was driving the mule, looked back with puzzled eyes, but Seongjin ignored everyone's gaze and once again expressed his admiration.

"ah!"

"... Lowering?"

"I get it! Now I know who the straight eyebrows are! "I've only seen it once on the imperial capital!"

Then Dasha's eyes widened.

"Is that true? "Who on earth is that?"

But what actually came out of Seongjin's mouth was the name of a completely different person.

"Dominico. Dominic Scarzapino!"

"The Archduke of the House of Scarzzapino? Why did he... .."

"That bastard's suspicious fiancée's name was Olivier!"

For some reason, I kept thinking I'd seen it somewhere before!

I couldn't recognize him because his eyebrows were completely gone, but now that I think about it, he's the same person, just with a little powder on his face! Why did I only realize that now?

I never knew before that the presence or absence of eyebrows had such a big impact on a person's impression.

Where is that? As an assassin, he proudly runs a business, and even fools veteran hunter Lee Seong-jin! There was truly nothing to be ashamed of.

So, as soon as Seongjin arrived at Schmidt's villa, he shouted loudly at him out of urgency.

Jump up!

"Schmidt! Branch Manager Schmidt! Get all the information about Dominic Scarzapino right now! It's all about his fiancée Olivier! hurry!"

"... yes? Are you here now, sir? But this suddenly?"

Branch Manager Schmidt, who was dazed for a moment, hurriedly summoned a low-level devil and started cracking down on the employees.

[Come on, everyone, look into my eyes. You guys are happy. Prince

Mores has been in this villa the whole time, so I'll forget everything I just saw...]

Then, the eyes of the employees who were whispering to Seongjin suddenly turned hazy.

good. You're doing your job well, Meemee.

"Oh! And now that I'm thinking about it, I'd like to tell you, please be happy, Branch Manager Schmidt. I hired a very talented secretary this time, right? So, your workload will be significantly reduced in the future."

"yes yes. All right. I understand everything, so please do something about their clothes first! Even now, the number of people who need to be hypnotized is increasing in real time!"

"ah."

Once Seongjin had roughly completed his return, Branch Manager Schmidt finally took a breather and loosened control of the mansion.

"I will prepare the materials you mentioned right away, sir. In the meantime, why don't you first visit the annex in Huwon? "Director Bruno and the resident knights have been waiting there for a few days."

"okay?"

"yes. "As people's speculations about my whereabouts have become more and more severe, I have invited all of my companions to come here as well."

Seongjin nodded in satisfaction.

okay. Well done, branch manager. Sharp as always.

"Well then, while I'm leaving, I have one more favor to ask of you."

"yes. "Please speak."

"Actually, among the group that came with me, there is a famous person named Priest Bart... .."

As soon as the word 'priest' came out, Schmidt, the devil with numbness in his feet, tensed up and listened.

"I'm just letting you know, but he is actually my father, right?"

"... yes?"

"Oh, of course it's not my father's true body. "It simply means a homunculus, an artificial life form in which the father's spirit resides once in a while when needed."

Then, the color slowly drained from Branch Manager Schmidt's face as he slowly pondered Seongjin's words.

"... omg?"

"So, I don't need to tell you how well you should treat him, right? First, give me the best room in this villa, and take special care to ensure that nothing is neglected."

Schmidt's eyes shook violently as if they had been hit by a storm.

"yes? "Yes?"

Seongjin could fully understand his reaction.

Why not? Right in front of the devil, who had succeeded in taking over a human body, he brought in the best priest who could defeat the devil species in one fell swoop.

"Hey, uh... Lowering?"

Schmidt begins to tremble like an aspen tree -

"Ah, there he comes."

Just then, No. 21, who had finished organizing the cart, carefully picked up the homunculus and carried him on his back, entering the mansion.

"he... .."

A holy reverberation felt from it.

Although it was now an empty shell, the mid-level demon sensed the overwhelming divine power remaining in the doll and let out a shrieking cry.

"Heeeeeeeek!" help me!"

474. Loser of the North (3)

Although he fairly(?) took over a human body according to a contract, Schmidt's true form is a mid-level demon called Glumgos. In other words, it means that there is no way to withstand even a moment in the face of powerful divine power.

So, even if there was an important event such as a birthday party, they did not go near the imperial capital at all.

'Lord, I'm dying! I'm really going to die this time!'

Glumgos felt a strong urge to escape to the demon world right away. If I were to abandon my human body and run away even now, wouldn't the Holy Emperor come after me all the way?

If it were like before, I wouldn't know. The current prosperity, which is heavily constrained, has no good reason or necessary cause and effect.

'iced coffee! But now I have a wife like a rabbit and a child like a fox!'

For demons, 'family' was a rare relationship that could only be achieved by acquiring a human body. It is difficult to give up on them easily now.

In addition, Prince Mores, whom the Emperor loved, was also a big variable. Even if he manages to escape safely, what will happen if this innocent yet evil prince makes this request to the Holy Emperor?

-father. One of my subordinates, whom I used well, ran away to the demon world without fear. I'm annoyed. Could you please scold me?

-Okay, I got it.

This is enough to satisfy the reasons and causes.

And then comes the prosperous descent into the demon world!

'Aaaah! shit! 'There's nowhere to run to!'

Rattling.

When Schmidt, who was usually cool-headed, fell into a state of panic and gritted his teeth, Sir Martha, who was nearby, looked at him with puzzled eyes.

But as soon as he lost his composure, there was someone who did not miss the opportunity: the devil sitting on the old lamp. It flew into captivity like a wet swallow and fizzled before Schmidt's eyes.

[haha! Have you seen this ugly guy? You're scared of everything! So, this guy is a half-penny!]

After experiencing a series of recent events, the Demon King had overcome, to some extent, his fundamental fear of success, half of his own accord. So it hovered over Schmidt's head a couple of times and shouted triumphantly.

[Mmm hahaha! If you are so afraid of him, then this great demon lord himself will take care of you! So offer me a precious plate in return! hurry!]

"plate... .. ?"

[okay! plate! I ask for a porcelain plate with a nice picture on it, or a pretty glass plate with colorful work!]

Since Seongjin had been cosplaying as a poor man, he seemed to be dissatisfied with having to rest in a shabby lamp.

After barely soothing Schmidt, who was in a panic, Seongjin headed to the annex where the group was staying. There, the resident knights, including leader Bruno, were waiting for Seongjin with a rich dinner in front of them.

"Lowering!"

"Hey! "Are you here now?"

"oh! Edith, you're safe too!"

Sir Claudia and Sir Kurt come running out with joy. Behind him was Lord Calmen, who looked somewhat embarrassed.

Seeing everyone's faces glowing brightly, it seemed like they had a good time in Regina and had a good rest.

[Idiot!]

The Demon King shouted happily and flew towards Leader Bruno. He seems happy to have met someone he can communicate with other than Seongjin after a long time.

"Red is Niei!"

Director Bruno also welcomed them with open arms. He had been so worried all this while that he was the only one in the group whose complexion had worsened.

[We've only been away for a few days, but why am I so happy to see you, idiot! But how many times do I have to tell you that I'm not red for you to understand? huh?]

"I thought you and Red were dying because I was worried about you! But just for your information, my name is not Idiot! Ha ha ha ha ha!"

Forgetting Dekaron Knight's pain, Leader Bruno danced in the restaurant with a small flame.

"... .."

Seongjin, who felt ashamed on his behalf, glanced at Dasha, who was standing behind him.

Somehow I feel a bit shameless. Director Bruno isn't really that kind of personality, Dasha.

After chatting amicably for a while, they sat together in front of the table. And soon, Seongjin was able to hear various updates from Manager Bruno that he had not previously received.

"Subdue Cyprus' maritime demons? 'It's already over?'"

"Yes, I heard that. It is said that control of commercial ships has been lifted and fishermen have resumed fishing."

Seongjin blinked at the unexpected news.

No, of course, this is the work of our 70-year-old Sword Master Logan, but I wonder if he can handle it all on his own, but isn't the work finished too early than expected?

"It is not unreasonable for you to think so. For various reasons, the departure itself was delayed, and I heard that the sea magicians' base was in the distant sea beyond the Cravat Islands in the first place."

"okay. 'I thought so?'"

"But when we actually set sail, we heard that there were more sea monsters concentrated in the coastal waters than expected. Moreover, for some reason, they all lost their senses and went on a rampage, so it looks like they were easily eliminated with a single secret weapon prepared by the Navy."

Manager Bruno added the explanation while playing with the tip of his mustache.

"hmm... .."

Seongjin furrowed his brows slightly.

"okay? That's right... .."

If that's true, it's a good thing that Logan and Sisley will return to the imperial capital early.

But why do I feel so uncomfortable? It doesn't feel like anything has been resolved at all?

Seongjin, who was lost in thought for a moment, muttered inadvertently.

"I guess it's about time I stopped by there."

"... yes?"

Director Bruno asked back in confusion.

"I stopped by, where do you mean?"

However, Seongjin did not answer him, but just stared somewhere in the distance with slightly unfocused eyes.

A dark morning before dawn.

A stablekeeper entered the council building with a long yawn.

Hairy hair.

He was pulling a small cart with one hand, which was filled with raw, bloody meat that at first glance had nothing to do with stable work. It was food for a wolf dog that had been living with the horses for some time.

The Delcross Imperial Family's pet dog, Max.

When the dog first appeared in Cyprus, the council's guards were greatly embarrassed. This is because the dog's appearance resembled a huge wolf raised in the wild, rather than a pet dog of noble people.

Wong wong wong!

Perhaps knowing that people were terrified whenever they saw me, the dog happily ran around the council without any hesitation.

-Can you please do something about that dog? There have been more than one occasion when the guards mistook it for sea water and almost attacked it!

The commander of the security guard made a desperate appeal.

Then, His Majesty's noble paladin, Blue Lily, leader of the Liliium subjugation force, Logan said:

-Is it difficult to distinguish them from wild wolves? If you do that, you can just keep tying the imperial insignia around Max's neck. Maybe he won't be so hard to recognize anymore.

The security guard was shocked. What are you going to do with the imperial insignia, which is so beautiful that you even dare to look straight at it?

No, when I asked what to do with that damn dog, he elevated me to a status where I couldn't even touch it! Let alone the dog wandering around randomly, who and where will take care of it? Where do you sleep?

Then, as a small grace bestowed by the Lord, the saint who possesses the soul of St. Marsyas spoke with sparkling clear eyes.

-Brother Logan. Wouldn't it be okay for Max to stay in the stables with Roxana? I think their relationship has become quite good, perhaps thanks to their shared joys and sorrows in the Sigismund Territory.

This time, it was the stablekeepers' turn to take charge.

Wait a minute, take care of the dog in the stable? What on earth are you asking us who have lived our whole lives to eat only horses? Isn't it impossible to feed that dog the fodder that is given to the horse?

Then, this time, didn't Councilor Ambrose, the son of Chryses and a rising star on the council, give a bold order?

-In that case, our family will provide good meat! Is that meat a problem for the people who saved my life? Please take as much as you want!

Holy shit! Why are high-ranking people so thoughtless!

So the poor stable keeper was forced to take the best meat from the kitchen and take it to the stable every day. The more I think about it, the more angry I become.

'If it's the dog raised by the imperial family, it's Danya! Well, he's just a bastard, but I can't believe I have to give him such good meat that even humans can't eat!'

He arrived at the stable grumbling, pulled a cart and moved to the largest stable in the stable. This was where Prince Logan's beloved horse, Roxana, lived.

Purung!

As soon as you open the door of the stable and enter, a white horse as beautiful as a picture comes into view. This noble and gentle horse was standing against the wall on the right side of the stable as always, glanced at the stable keeper and immediately looked away without notice.

And on the other side, on the left wall of the stable, a large wolf dog is sitting in a comfortable position on a soft straw mat.

If you look closely, it doesn't seem like the two are on such bad terms, but I thought it was unusual how they subtly kept their distance.

Sniff!

The wolf dog sniffs the meat and looks at the stable keeper. However, he didn't run straight away like other dogs; he seemed to know that the stable keeper would automatically bring food right in front of him without him having to do anything.

'이놈의 개새끼가 아주 상전이지, 진짜!'

Seeing that relaxed appearance, the stable keeper suddenly became grumpy.

'okay. Let's see if you have the same attitude even after having your meat stolen from me!'

It is a beast that cannot speak anyway. If that damn dog hasn't been fed for a day, how would the higher-ups know that fact? Even if you steal the meat home like this, no one will care.

After thinking that far, the stable keeper quietly pulled the cart back while looking at the dog.

It was right then.

Purr!

Suddenly, he felt a strong snort from above and something bit his hair hard. It was Roxana, the owner of the stable.

"Aaaah!"

The stable keeper, who was suddenly shaking his hair back and forth, screamed in panic. I couldn't figure out why the noble horse, which had been ignoring his comings and goings until now, was suddenly acting like this.

"Let go! "Let go of this!"

The stable keeper struggled for a long time, swinging his arms like crazy, and was only able to get away from the horse after losing a handful of his hair.

'Hey, you damn beasts!'

The very angry stable keeper huffed and picked up the horsewhip hanging on the wall.

Even though it was a precious horse owned by the imperial family, it could not be allowed to go on like this, being humiliated by the animals it cared for.

So I thought I would hit a few horses as an example. As long as you take care not to get seriously hurt, the higher-ups will probably not notice.

But as soon as he raised his whip upward-

Wow!

When he got closer, this time the wolf dog bit him hard on one of his legs.

"Kwaaah!"

Due to the unfamiliar pain of the long fangs digging into him, he foolishly lost sight of his only weapon, the whip. As he looked down in astonishment, he saw bright yellow, wild eyes glaring at him, emitting a colorful light.

Growling!

"Huh!"

Of course, for Max, this would have been nothing more than a light bite.

Isn't this the guy who freely runs around the demonic world full of demonic beasts? If Max had decided to bite, the stablekeeper's humble shin might have been ripped out of his knee in one fell swoop.

But just that bit was enough to scare the stable keeper, who had lived in the city all his life.

"Save people! "Wolf bites people!"

He rolled on the floor and screamed. When Max finally let go of his legs, the stable keeper kicked the ground with his limbs like an animal and ran wild.

"Aaaah!"

"What?"

"What's the fuss!"

The guards heard the commotion late and rushed to the stable, but-Purung! Mumbling.

Tsk tsk tsk.

What they found was a stable door wide open, and beyond it a peaceful scene of horses and dogs eating side by side.

"... "Why is the door open?"

After finishing the plentiful meal and drinking a bowl of cool water, the wolfdog looked at the still dark western sky. A distant direction where the owner's presence can be faintly felt.

[Max.]

At that time, a welcome voice came from inside my head.

Wong!

The wolfdog vigorously slapped its tail and jumped up from its seat.

475. Loser of the North (4)

Tap, tap, tap!

The sound of lightly hitting the stone floor echoes through the cool morning air.

The owner of the footsteps was a majestic wolfdog, with a noble imperial insignia draped around its neck. Its shiny gray fur gently waves in the salty sea breeze.

He occasionally stopped and looked up at the sky. Instead of the yellow eyes typical of wolves, they were strange eyes, like the gray sky that had just dawned.

After running for some time, the wolf-dog arrived at a training ground with a clear view of the sea. Coincidentally, there, the Inquisitors who had recently returned from a short voyage were engrossed in morning training.

"Rear type 2, turn around!"

"Huh!"

Boom!

A heavy piece of iron creates an intimidating cracking sound.

"Left bottom, second meal, take a picture!"

"Hey!"

Kuaang!

As the flails struck all at once with the command, thick dust rose and the soil of the training ground was deeply dents.

The wolf-dog stopped and looked closely at the little white girl who did not fit into the hideous sight.

Sisley was an amazing girl who created a particularly wide and deep crater even among sturdy Inquisitors.

"Good work! Group 1, take a break! Group 2 is preparing the land in the meantime!"

At the declaration of his adjutant Lumiere, a white teddy bear, as if waiting for him, toddled over to Sisley holding a bowl of water.

The doll, equipped with a high-performance growth-type AI, had lived with the little saint and had learned quite a lot of information to take care of the child.

"Al~la~view."

"ah! Thank you, Labyu."

Sisley smiled happily as he hugged the small teddy bear. She had a bright and innocent smile, befitting a girl of that age, without any trace of her serious training.

Then, she noticed a familiar wolfdog staring at her from a little distance away.

"Oh, Max? "What's going on here this morning?"

The wolf dog's tail wagged happily as I greeted him with a friendly smile.

"... huh?"

But at that moment, Sisley felt a strange sense of discomfort and tilted his head. Doesn't her wolf dog, who usually runs up to her and rubs against her body when he meets her, look particularly dignified today?

'Max... Something has changed in the atmosphere?'

Sisley, who was puzzled, put the teddy bear down on the floor and approached the wolf dog. Then, as always, he reached out his hand and tried to lightly stroke the wolfdog's head.

However, just as the small hand was about to come up to her head, the wolf dog lightly twisted its neck to avoid her hand. And then-

-Uh-huh, where!

He proudly placed his front paw on the girl's arm, as if he was reprimanding her.

chuck!

Thanks to this, the wolf dog's gray mud paw prints were clearly visible on the girl's white training uniform.

"huh? "What's wrong with you all of a sudden, Max?"

Okay.

"... "You don't want me patting your head today?"

Okay.

"Um, okay..."

As Sisley obediently withdraws his hand and sits down on the floor, the wolf dog also gently puts his front paws together and faces the girl.

The corners of the mouth were slightly curved upward as if smiling, and the sharp eyes shining with intelligence had a noble dignity, like a king with his own territory in front of him.

"egg! la! View!"

At that time, the teddy bear toddled over to their side, emitting a short electronic sound. The child seemed uneasy about having a large animal near him.

The wolf dog, who had been watching the movements of the doll as if alert, was-

Lightly.

After clapping its tail as if to say hello one last time, it turned and quickly ran towards the council building.

"hmm? "Max, you're really strange today, aren't you?"

Sisley tilted his head for a moment and looked at the wolfdog's back, then immediately hugged the teddy bear and returned to the training ground.

After that, the wolf-dog continued to wander around the council, pounding the ground diligently.

For example, next to Deputy Lumiere, who was scolding the young Inquisitor during a training break.

"Didn't I warn you, Inquisitor Boris? "How many times have I warned you to do things in moderation?"

"But I swear to the Lord, I didn't do anything wrong."

As the young man called Boris protested like that, Lumiere's beautiful eyes flashed behind his glasses.

"That's shameless. "Are you saying that the move to create factions within the Knights is not wrong?"

"When you say faction, you misunderstand. I simply wanted to better serve Saint Sisley, who received the title of [Apostle] at a young age, so I gathered people who were like her..."

"If that's not a faction, then what is? Are you really planning to create a second [Lilium] within the Knights of Saint Marsyas? "Why do you try something like that while watching what those idiots in Bastian are doing around Prince Logan?"

Then Inquisitor Boris narrowed his eyes and spoke passionately.

"That's exactly what I want to say! How disgusting it was to see those Bastian bastards condescendingly praising Logan as a blue lily. But, doesn't we have Saint Sisley, who is as blessed as a white peony, no less powerful than His Majesty Logan?"

"What's wrong?"

"So, at this point, we're making one too! The peony that surpasses Lilium, its name is [Peony] Punitive Force! How are you feeling?"

"ah! "Peony, that damn peony!"

Inquisitor Boris. The wolf-dog gave the eager young Inquisitor a glance, then quickly walked into the council building.

"Lord Sharon. "Wasn't the movement of the sea monsters strange?"

At that moment, two Holy Knights were walking in the hallway. Behind the slowly moving, crow-like exorcist, a sharp-looking paladin dressed in Saint Bastian's livery is following behind him and impatiently urging something.

"His Majesty Logan is also very concerned about this. "Have you reported this fact to His Majesty separately?"

"Hmm? No, Sir Ely. I am just a knight who happened to join the punitive force. This means that we are not in a position to officially report to the imperial palace. But why are you asking me that?"

"Lord Sharon!"

"The person in charge of the punitive force is Logan. If it were the imperial palace's position, it would have already been properly addressed to His Majesty Logan. "Hehe."

Then a faint look of concern appeared on Sir Elie's face.

"Lord Sharon. I am not asking for the official position of the Imperial Palace through the Holy Assembly and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. "I just want to know His Majesty's true feelings."

"So why did you tell me that... .."

"Isn't this a fact that everyone already knows? "Sir Sharon is His Majesty's direct line, receiving orders directly from him."

"Huh. Yes... . That's right, but..."

The exorcist, who was sleepy and half-hearted, suddenly notices a wolf dog passing by and his eyes widen. This is because I recognized the auspicious silver energy in his eyes.

"... Ugh?"

Wow!

-If you're here, do your job properly!

The wolfdog barked briefly at her as if scolding her, then lightly turned around again and this time ran to the restaurant where food was being prepared.

At that moment, the chefs there were struggling with the imperial saint in front of them.

"excuse me... "I don't know what kind of food you're talking about, Seo Yi-seo."

Then the saint narrowed her golden eyes and gave them an order.

[It is a food ingredient called rice cake. Go ahead and make it and offer it to me! I said that all you had to do was cook the grains until they were soft and grind them into powder.]

"that... "Are you saying to boil the grains with water?"

[okay. Cook it well to create a chewy texture. Then, you can make it long, put it in a sauce called red pepper paste, and boil it.]

"chili pepper paste... What else is that..."

[It is a red and spicy sauce. Make sure to make it red and spicy. That is the core of the food called tteokbokki!]

"float... Poppo... key?"

It's a pitiful act to make trivial demands on powerless subordinates.

The wolfdog howled its neck softly as if uncomfortable, and then barked fiercely at her head.

Growling! Wow!

-Ah, do it in moderation, man!

[...] hmm?]

Seo Yi-seo, or rather the gluttonous Cadmus, looked back one step later, but by then the wolf-dog had already completely disappeared.

Crack, crackle!

After running for a while again, the last place the wolf-dog arrived was a large conference room.

There were two people there who had been struggling with the chart open since early morning: Prince Logan, who led the Delcross punitive force, and General Lysander, the commander of the Cypriot Navy.

"It's the second departure. "Do you really think this is not the end?"

"Yes, that's right, sir."

"However, the Cyprus Council's opinion seemed to be slightly different."

In response to Logan's question, the old man looked at the chart with dark, sunken eyes. As fishing has already resumed, the prevailing opinion among the council members was that the punitive force, which costs a huge amount of money to stay even for one day, should be sent back quickly.

However, they were unable to let down their maritime alert posture because General Lysander, the head of the Navy, continued to strongly advocate for a second departure.

"I beg your pardon, sir. "The sea monsters will definitely come back soon."

"Do you have any basis for thinking so, General?"

"I'm sorry. There is no clear evidence yet. However, the feeling of an old man who has dealt with sea monsters for a long time tells me that this is definitely not the end."

Logan slowly nodded at the wise old man's words.

"Since the general says so, there is one thing that bothers me too. It's a little further southeast from the point where we fought earlier... ..."

"Are you talking about the Cravat Islands?"

"Yes, right there. Actually, when the subjugation of demonic beasts was in full swing, I sensed a strange energy there... hmm?"

Logan couldn't finish his sentence. This is because the wolf dog suddenly rushed into the conference room, jumped up from the floor, and landed easily on the chart spread out on the table.

The delicate chart, filled with small islands and reefs, was instantly ruined by the dog's muddy paw prints.

"Oh no, Max!"

Prince Logan quickly grabbed the wolfdog and pulled him under the table. Then, the wolf dog, unable to avoid the Sword Master's quick touch, was trapped in his arms and snored as if dissatisfied.

king!

"Your name Logan. "What about that dog?"

"Ah yes. Sorry, General. "This is a wolf dog named Max raised by the Delcross Imperial Family."

"Hoo. A wolf dog... Are you a northern hunting dog? "This guy looks very dashing."

"haha... .."

Logan smiled sheepishly at the old man, then silenced his voice and lightly scolded the wolf dog in his arms.

"You guy, what are you doing all of a sudden?"

In fact, Logan had already sensed the sign of a wolf dog running from afar. The only reason the response was a little late was because the dog's movements were fast enough to catch the Sword Master off guard, but most of all, it was because the dog's presence was different from usual and he was very confused.

'Is it an illusion...? ... '

However, no matter how much he looked, the guy he was hugging was Max, the wolf dog. I guess it's just my mood that makes me feel that the subtle magical energy emanating from him is unusually stronger than usual.

Struggling!

At that time, the dog that was being held in the air by Logan began to twist its body wildly as if its posture was uncomfortable.

Logan, who put the dog down on the floor, unconsciously reached out and tried to scratch the wolfdog's neck as usual.

I did-

chuck!

Suddenly, the wolf-dog puts out its front paw with a serious expression and stops Logan. A solemn attitude, as if he would politely refuse to be treated as a cute pet anymore.

Thanks to this, the large dog's muddy paw prints remained dark on Logan's white sleeves, which had been stiff and spotless.

"... .."

I guess something is strange? Logan searched for the wolfdog with slightly deepened eyes and carefully called out its name.

"Max?"

Then, wow! A short sound returns, as if in retort. Logan opened his eyes wide at the clear waves vibrating through the air.

'... lie?'

I never would have thought that such waves could be felt not only by humans but also by animals. No, but now even more than that... ... !

"wait for a sec. You, Max... "No?"

Again, wow!

The wave felt this time is the echo of undeniable truth.

'You're saying it's not Max? No, that can't be possible...'

Logan was extremely confused. But as he tried to stay calm and thought about it, it wasn't really the first time he'd experienced something like this. Hasn't there been a time before when someone you knew well gave off a sense of discomfort as if the person had changed in an instant?

okay. For example, he once saw the soul of the Holy Emperor come into the body of another person. At the time, the target was Sir Sharon, a paladin, but if something was possible for a human, there would be no reason why it would be impossible for an animal.

'Especially those eyes...'

Logan, who was suffering intensely as he looked into the wolfdog's strangely silvery eyes, called out to the person who came to mind with a quiet feeling.

"... By any chance, do you drink Abama?"

Then the wolf-dog's face became distorted to the point where it could be seen at a glance. The guy was snoring loudly, as if he was reprimanding Logan.

king!

-Are you out of your mind right now?

Logan continued his thoughts, trying to ignore General Leander's puzzled look. but. If this place was truly prosperous, Logan would have been able to sense his powerful divine power from afar.

'But I just feel the familiar magic energy from Max, as always.'

Magi...

Then, naturally, the name of another person he knew came to mind.

No, no way. I don't think that will ever happen though.

"... Seongjin Lee?"

Wow!

Fortunately, this time a quite strong answer came back. Carrying an infinitely stronger wave of truth.

"... Seongjin Lee? really? No, but how..."

With a puzzled face, Logan looked at the wolfdog's tail, which was swinging in satisfaction.

476. Loser of the North (5)

Although the waves Logan sensed were quite accurate, they did not always indicate the truth. This is because the subject of the wave is information that has been distorted through one's own perception and subjectivity.

In that sense, he couldn't believe the wolf dog's confident answer. It may be that he simply reacted pleasantly to the name of his owner, 'Lee Seong-jin'.

To make an accurate judgment, a more thorough verification process is needed. So Logan sat the wolfdog in front of him and began a serious conversation.

"First, let me ask you some questions that would be difficult for you to answer if you were Max. "Can you answer this?"

Twisting?

"As you well know, there is a famous passage in the Gospel of St. Bastian that goes like this. 'Forgiveness is the fifth finger of the Lord. How can He not renew your heart and be generous when you ask for it?' "How many chapters and verses is this verse?"

Then the wolf dog's expression becomes somewhat mysterious. Logan, who misunderstood the meaning, quickly added an explanation.

"Of course, I know that it is not convenient for you to answer right now. "Could it be possible to express it by barking as much as the number?"

Kyung!

Instead of answering, the wolf-dog snorted and turned its head. Only then did Logan suddenly recall an important fact and was greatly embarrassed.

"ah! sorry. In my haste, I forgot for a moment that you don't read the scriptures at all. "Then let me ask you another simple question."

Kiing.

"Do you remember when you first decided on the stake in 'Bertrand & Lee' with me? You can answer that right away, right? Now, what was the total amount of my share specified in the contract?"

Kiyiing.

"... Oh, is the unit too big? "It will take half a day for you all to bark and respond."

The conversation between the two could not continue from there. General Lysander, who was listening from the side, looked increasingly strange. If this continues, sooner or later the rumor that the 2nd prince of the Holy Empire is crazy may spread throughout Cyprus.

"General. Isn't it time to attend the meeting? "Let's talk about this again next time."

After roughly organizing the chart, Logan hurriedly fled the scene, taking the wolf dog with him.

And now -

Logan was sitting on a high cliff overlooking the sea with his wolfdog. Because it is not easily accessible to the public eye, it has recently been often used as a secret training place.

slam!

Along with the cool sound of the waves, Logan's eyes caught the view of the lively Port of Cyprus.

The early morning sunlight becomes a long twinkle that extends to the horizon, and fishing boats that have resumed fishing are busy chasing schools of fish.

Because it is so everyday, it is a sight that comes with an even more extreme sense of reality. These questions naturally flooded Logan's mind.

'... 'What am I doing with a dog that can't speak?'

A look of deep agony appears on Logan's neat face.

Gael Bertrand in his previous life was a person who always pursued logical thinking based on facts.

However, for some reason, ever since he was reincarnated in the Holy Emperor's family, his once extremely rational world has been falling apart. It was the fault of the Holy Emperor, the representative of God, and his brother Mores, who was surrounded by all kinds of irrationality.

Miracles and contradictions beyond human understanding constantly occur around them. As I continue to encounter them, I am now able to accept it even if my normal brother suddenly turns into a dog.

'Maybe my brain was broken somewhere long ago... ... '

Sniff.

Even in the midst of his agony, this guy, confused as to whether he is Lee Seong-jin or Max, is looking around the cliff while making a pleasant nasal noise. Perhaps because he became a wolf dog, his expression looks particularly brighter than usual.

Logan was caught in a slightly complicated mood and called his name again.

"Lee Seong-jin."

Wow!

A wave of truth that can still be felt.

"Is it really Seongjin Lee? How on earth did you... .."

However, Logan, who was about to ask something in detail, immediately kept his mouth shut.

After all, dogs have no means of communication other than barking. I probably won't be able to get a proper answer from him.

'Well, it might not mean much to ask now.'

The strange things happening around Lee Seong-jin, or Mores, definitely included the problem of this wolf dog. Unlike other dogs, it naturally exchanges auras with its owner, and when it receives auras, it grows like a bear.

For this reason, it is known in the world that this wolf-dog is a divine beast that helped Saint Bastian, and that everything is a miracle caused by him.

However, Logan knew better than anyone else that this guy was not some kind of 'divine beast' given by the main god.

Magi.

This guy exchanges auras with his owner and often emits a weak magical energy, just like Mores did when he was young.

Logan had a complicated expression on his face, but the wolfdog nudged his arm with the bridge of its nose, as if urging him to do something.

"huh? what's the matter?"

Wow!

"I'm not asking you to hang out like usual. "Are you hungry now?"

Kkkkkkkk!

"Oh, isn't that it? Then, let's play... .."

Whoa!

"Oh, sorry, sorry. Don't be so angry. "Honestly, right now I'm not sure if you're really Seongjin Lee, and I have no idea what you want to say to me."

As Logan becomes discouraged, the wolf-dog also snores softly with an expression of frustration.

Wow-

But after a while, something surprising happened. The wolf dog suddenly got up and looked like it was picking at the dirt, but then it put its front paws on the floor and started scratching out something resembling letters.

Scrunch-

".....!"

Logan looked at the sight in fascination. Because the wolfdog seemed to perfectly understand the meaning of the elaborate work he was doing.

Whimper.

The dog seemed to be having a lot of trouble, perhaps because it was a movement that the dog's body was not used to. However, after patiently scraping the dirt, the letters that were finally completed were-

-as. case.

Although it was a little crooked, it was clearly Logan's own name written in the Imperial language.

"... Seongjin Lee!"

This time, Logan called his name with confidence.

"You are, of course, Lee Seong-jin!"

But after a moment of apprehension, Logan suddenly came to his senses and looked around. If someone saw this scene, even from afar, they might report him to the Heresy Tribunal as a dog possessed by a devil.

'Besides, this guy really has demon energy!'

Of course, it was so weak that it was difficult to notice unless you were a fairly high-ranking priest. But now that he has become Lee Seong-jin(?) and emits even more distinct magical energy... ..

But, perhaps aware of Logan's worries, the wolf-dog raises its muzzle high in the sky in a very proud manner.

Logan, who felt strong pressure from that unspoken request, opened his mouth in a daze.

"okay. well... I did it."

Wow!

The wolfdog responded excitedly and confidently started scratching the dirt floor again.

As some time passed, another clear sentence was engraved under Logan's name.

-Tell me.

"Speak... "What?"

Scrunch.

-You keep worrying.

The sentences the wolfdog made were all overly concise. Apparently, it is not that easy to make letters with a dog's front paw muscles.

In the end, the wolf-dog, who struggled to create the third sentence by using his demonic aura, sat down on the floor with a slightly exhausted face and quietly licked his front paw.

Tsk tsk tsk.

But that was enough to convey what he wanted to say.

"Lee Seongjin, you... "Do you want to tell me that you came to ask me because I seemed to be worried about something?"

Then, wow!

The wolf-dog slaps its tail violently and looks up at Logan.

"okay. I see... .."

Logan was silent for a moment and played with Arjuna's handle. I felt dumbfounded and a little moved at the same time as to why this confusing situation occurred.

Above all, my heart was heavy at the fact that Wolfdog Lee Seongjin's comments were not informal.

"... Actually, you are right, Seongjin Lee. "There has been one thing that has been on my mind ever since this voyage ended."

Kiing-

"haha. okay. "To the point where it was clearly visible to you, I guess I still have a long way to go."

In reality, Logan's concern itself was very simple. Should the punitive force be withdrawn to the empire like this, or should a second departure be forced?

Of course, General Lysander continues to insist on setting sail. However, as most of the council members' opinions were already focused on disbanding the punitive force, Logan understood that his opinion would be more important than anything else in making this second departure a success.

"The previous subjugation of the sea monsters was very successful. Maybe we wouldn't have to ask the Empire for help. Contrary to expectations that they would attack their home base, they were gathered in large numbers in the coastal waters where ocean currents meet."

The fleet, which was moving smoothly eastward on the cold current, was able to naturally reduce its speed when it reached the point where the Cravat warm current mixed.

There, we found demonic beasts who had lost their senses, and as planned, we sent a ship loaded with 'ancient fire' to them.

Hahahaha!

The fire spread at an incredible speed. The sea monsters were engulfed in the 'ancient fire' that covered the sea in an instant, and they died helplessly without even having a chance to escape.

So everyone was happy and celebrated the victory. Aside from the one ship gifted to the demonic beasts, there was virtually no damage to the fleet.

"By the way, Seongjin Lee."

To the wolfdog, who was concentrating and pricking his ears, Logan, with some difficulty, revealed the secret he had been hiding.

"Actually, I encountered a huge, unidentifiable monster at that time and there."

At the time, the distance between it and the fleet was so great that no one noticed its existence.

But Logan was different. He could feel its enormous size through the vibrations of the rocking ship. From the sound of the waves crashing against the boat, I could hear the turmoil its wings were causing in the abyss.

And above all-

That powerful presence that made the Sword Master's senses tense up, even if only for a moment.

'It's dangerous for him to encounter the fleet like this!'

Logan instinctively realized that fact. The fact that the fleet might suffer damage close to annihilation by this guy.

So, keeping completely silent about its existence, the fleet returned to Cyprus.

"I didn't even discuss a word with General Lysander. Because I couldn't delay even for a moment. "If we hadn't left immediately, the fleet would have come face to face with the thing circling towards us."

If he had tried his best at that time, maybe Logan could have taken him down. However, it was impossible for him to protect the entire fleet behind him with his strength alone.

"I don't regret my decision back then."

Whip.

"But I can't help but wonder these questions. Was it okay to leave that mysterious, ominous monster wandering the waters off Cyprus as is? "Couldn't my hasty judgment have put the people here in even greater danger?"

Kiing.

"However, it is also problematic to reorganize the fleet and set sail according to General Lysander's wishes. "There is a high probability that you will run into him on the road to the Cravat Islands."

After saying that, Logan grabbed Arjuna so hard that the blood drained from the back of his hands.

"But if I still want to plan a proper strategy and go after him, if I want to sacrifice the fleet, isn't that just a pointless greed on my part?"

Logan has never hesitated to put himself in danger for the sake of people.

However, operating a small detachment and operating an entire fleet were very different in terms of the number of lives taken. Since he cannot protect the entire fleet alone, he will not be able to avoid great losses for his allies.

Perhaps this concern may be a topic that encompasses even his past life. Wasn't Logan himself the one who had once become one of the pillars of the civil war, drawing in countless Orthonains like moths to fire?

"Besides, as you know, simply maintaining a punitive force for a long time is a waste of budget and national power."

So, is there a need to endure a lot of loss for a risk that has not yet been visualized?

Wouldn't it be better to disband the punitive force right away and move only a separate force to subdue Hae-su?

Even as I am wasting my time like this, the poor refugees of Ortona must be suffering from the sea creatures.

"What am I...""

At that time, the wolf-dog suddenly stood up from his seat and started writing new letters on the dirt floor.

-Logan.

The wolfdog, who had painstakingly engraved his name again, this time began to create longer sentences than ever before.

-What will happen will definitely happen someday.

"What happens happens..."

As Logan looked at the words with shaking eyes, the wolf-dog snorted lightly and carefully wrote another sentence.

-And what needs to be done must be done sometime.

What needs to be done must be done at some point. Logan asked with a trembling voice, feeling as if that sentence was stuck in his heart.

"Lee Seongjin. "You think I should set sail there?"

Wow!

"Even if my decision results in great sacrifice for the punitive force."

Wow!

The wolf-dog agrees with Logan's words by striking its tail vigorously. It was an extremely powerful answer, filled with strong waves of truth.

"ha ha ha... .."

Logan, who felt much at ease, let out a soft laugh.

"okay. "I think you're right, Seongjin Lee."

It was truly amazing. With just that simple sentence, all your worries can melt away like snow, and new resolutions and plans can take their place.

"Still, I think I should discuss it with General Lysander first. "I'll think about it a little more."

Wow!

"okay. If we are to set sail again, we will have to make thorough preparations this time. "It would be a good idea to ask around to see if there is anyone who knows about this guy's identity."

Wow!

"ha ha ha."

Logan looked down at the blue, undulating sea and raised his hand in a friendly way toward the wolf-dog. And then-

chuck!

Suddenly, I was pressed by the front paw of the guy with a straight face, and dark dirt paw prints were left on my sleeve again.

477. Loser of the North (6)

It hasn't been that long since I got to know Logan properly.

However, in Seongjin's opinion, he was overly accustomed to carrying other people's burdens. Your past life must have been so different.

So sometimes, you have to have someone beside you to ask you what the problem is. Otherwise, that foolish bastard would willingly sink into the sea, carrying all the suffering of the world on his shoulders.

"Anyway, Seongjin Lee, how are your front feet? "It seemed like you were overdoing something."

So, seeing Logan looking much more relieved than before made me feel a little relieved.

"No, there's something a little strange about me calling you a paw... .
"But I'll treat you first. Will you show me?"

Seongjin willingly put forward his front paw and received a share of divine power. And while enjoying the enormous amount of information provided by the dog's sense of smell, I felt the cool sea breeze for the first time in a long time.

'As expected, I think it was a good idea to postpone training and come take a look.'

It would have been nice to have talked to Logan a little more like that. However, Seongjin's concentration could no longer be maintained. This is because someone nearby called Seongjin.

"Lowering."

When it seemed like I was waking up unusually late, it was Lord Masaine who came to the room in person.

"Get up now, sir. Everyone is waiting for the degradation."

"uh..."

With that voice, the view of the peaceful port disappears, and the bedroom ceiling with its colorful canopy comes into clear view.

Seongjin rubbed his eyes with a disappointed look on his face.

'Oh my, I didn't even say I was going yet.'

I was worried about Logan, who must have been embarrassed by Max, who suddenly came to his senses(?).

Max seemed to want to show off his charms to Logan earlier. Anyway, I guess we should do it in moderation.

I wanted to say hello properly, but the accumulated fatigue made it difficult to fully concentrate on my subordinates again.

"... Okay, I have to get up now."

Seongjin stood up and stretched greatly.

'Well, I'm sure it will end well on its own. 'Logan is such a ghost that he can detect changes in presence.'

The reason Seongjin attempted to contact Max through connections within his family was because of a strange experience he had recently.

I can't remember now how it started. But at the time, Seongjin felt a strange sense of unity, as if he had become Max, and did what he had to do.

As if possessed by something, I dug into the ground and found something very important - unfortunately, I don't even remember what it was. And I handed it to Logan in a half-asleep state.

Only later, after I completely came to my senses, did I realize that it was a miraculous harmony that occurred through 'connection between clans.' Then naturally this curiosity followed.

'As I became more familiar with this connection method, I became able to exchange Auras with Max more easily. Then, wouldn't it be possible to practice in a similar way and induce that sense of unity myself?'

In the end, it was half a success. First of all, since there was no resistance from Max at all, Seongjin was able to move the wolfdog as freely as his own body. I was able to see the world through his eyes and obtain information using all of his senses.

But unfortunately, it was impossible to shoot out thoughts at others like Louise did. I guessed that this might be because Seongjin's flame crystals are usually in an inactive state and asleep.

Thanks to that, I ended up using the wolf dog's front paws for no reason just to talk to Logan. I still feel like my arm is throbbing.

"Hmm... .."

As Seongjin carelessly massaged his arm, Lord Masain asked worriedly.

"Lowering. "You took a break from your morning practice. Are you feeling unwell?"

"no it's okay. "It's just my mood."

Actually, it's probably Max who really has sore feet, but hey, since Logan's with him, he'll probably take good care of Max, right?

"Sir, are you here?"

Upon arriving at the reception room after a quick bite to eat, Dasha and Branch Manager Schmidt greet Seongjin. For now, it would be safe to say that these are the core working-level staff controlled by Sungjin.

Squeak.

Oh, and Manager Bruno, who follows Melbourne from the side.

"Today, I prepared flavored Melbourne, a specialty of Anatolia, Your Majesty."

Seongjin drank top-quality Melbourne with a happy expression. I've had a hard time drinking Edith's bile tea these past few days.

-Why do you insist on drinking that tea even though it doesn't taste that good?

Even though Owen asked that. Do you guys understand? Now that I'm completely used to living in Delcross, I can't even imagine life without Melbourne cars.

As he was feeling the feeling of his polluted tongue being completely purified, Dasha brought a stack of well-organized documents in front of Seongjin.

"Sir, I have selected the items you would like to consider first."

Dasha took off the stealth suit that was her identity and put on a neat everyday gown. The sight of her with her long hair styled up neatly gives off the air of a professional office worker.

"The document on the front page is Giacomo Milo's search plan. "I think it would be a good idea to start from the nearby Marquis de Benso and slowly move north."

"Hmm, good."

Dasha was already organizing the things Seongjin had done one by one. Ah, how much easier life becomes with just one such talented assistant by your side.

"And the back page is about Baron Brodiskaya's sergeant major. "All the necessary documents have been completed, and now we can send it to the imperial palace and await His Majesty's official approval."

Dasha looked a little embarrassed as she explained it that way. Why not? This 'Baron Brodiskaya' is the name that refers to Dasha herself.

From the moment she decided to accept Seongjin's offer, things went smoothly. On her own, she prepared her employment documents for the imperial palace, and later even came up with a fancy new identity as 'Darina Brodyska.'

What did they say? Are you a collateral descendant of a fallen nobleman in Carthage?

Of course, since it is an identity purchased with money, there is no proper right to inherit the title, but the resistance people feel between becoming a nobleman from a commoner and receiving a new noble title as a relative who already has noble blood will be different. Perhaps Dasha could more easily blend in among the zodiac leaders?

In particular, Carthage is said to have had a lot of mixed blood with southerners since ancient times, so Dasha's slightly exotic appearance would not be a big problem.

After completing the rough approval and looking into the Ortona economic reconstruction project, Dasha opened her mouth with a somewhat serious expression.

"Oh, and there is one matter I need to report to you separately."

"huh? What?"

"Actually, there's a strange rumor going around Regina these days."

"rumor?"

"yes. 'It's still just a rumor, but-"

After a brief pause, Dasha glanced at Branch Manager Schmidt before continuing.

"There is a rumor spreading among some leaders, including the Merchant Union, that the third prince of the empire is plotting a terrible plan to devour the entire North."

... huh? stratagem?

"why?"

"That is... I think it may be because of the economic reconstruction project you are pursuing... .."

Seongjin looked back at Branch Manager Schmidt with an expression demanding an explanation. Then, Branch Manager Schmidt, whose face had become increasingly depressed over the course of a day, opened his mouth in a hushed voice.

"Maybe it's because of the clause on payment. There may be detailed agreements for each territory, but the main gist of the project is as follows. 'Aren't you planning to import food from the South cheaply through the 'Bertrand & Lee' merchant and receive the payment in imperial currency or precious metals of the same value instead of the existing currency?'"

"It did."

"For this, northern lords must melt down the Ortona currency they hold and create new gold or silver bars. Or you have to sell them to Hayden Bank and receive the remaining amount in Tessa notes or Payka currency after deducting a large commission."

Of course it is. Delcross's currency, Tessa and Payka, are all issued by Hayden Bank.

"However, the lords and merchants seem to have accepted that clause as an ambition to subjugate the entire northern economy to the empire."

"... .."

Seongjin was dumbfounded.

No, what kind of bullshit is that? So are you telling us to take Ortona's money, which has already gone bankrupt? Why are you so anxious that you can't argue with these fair conditions?

"Furthermore, the construction of mines owned by several fiefdoms is also a problem. "You said you would send a working-level officer from the top to the area where you made the transaction and receive continuous reports on the amount and purity of metals mined, right?"

Isn't that obvious? You should keep a close eye on factors that can have a significant impact on the empire's currency supply, such as gold or silver mines.

"Doesn't that mean you're going to keep the North in economic subjugation?"

"Uh-huh!"

Branch Manager Schmidt! What do you think of people?

"This is business, not charity, right? "It is just a basic provision that needs to be presented in order to take care of our common interests."

If the northern economy becomes active, the situation and economy of the entire continent will likely fluctuate. So shouldn't we provide basic safety measures to prepare for this?

Of course, the value of the existing Ortona currency may plummet, and the value of the empire's currency may rise slightly. The economic position of the northern lords will be greatly weakened, and their authority as a long-standing indigenous power will also fall. There may also be a side effect in which northerners prioritize transactions with 'Bertrand & Lee' over other merchants.

But these are only extremely minor problems that must be endured for the economic revival of the North.

"... "Have you already guessed it all?"

"No, whatever. I wonder if it will go that way someday... .."

Then, Branch Manager Schmidt's mouth fell open. Judging by the expression... ..

-The devil! That person must be the devil!

It was obvious that he was having such ungodly thoughts.

Hey, be careful, branch manager. If you even say something like that out loud, our Lord Masain will never leave you alone.

"Why are you looking like that, branch manager? "Is something uncomfortable these days?"

"... "No, it's nothing, sir."

"I guess it's nothing? I happen to know a great priest. What do you think? At this point, if you ask Priest Bart to take a look at you-"

"Hehehe!"

While I was happily berating Branch Manager Schmidt, Dasha seemed to have suddenly remembered something and added something.

"Oh, and you."

"huh?"

"Actually, Prince Leonard of Rohan has expressed his intention to visit."

"... Why is that bastard all of a sudden?"

"I heard he's staying in Regina on a sightseeing trip."

Seongjin's expression crumpled.

No, when I was in the imperial palace, I was very concerned about what my father would think, but now that I'm outside, I have nothing to worry about anymore, is that it?

"Oh, I hate it! "I'm busy right now, so I'll see you later when I have time!"

"But I received word that we had already left here."

... what?

* * *

Leonard, the damned bastard I hadn't seen in a long time, was still the same. A truly exemplary(?) kind of brat, dressed sloppily and smelling of foul perfume.

As soon as that guy sees Seongjin, he smiles and says hello.

"Bethelah."

"... .."

Seongjin was dumbfounded. Does this guy have no intention of hiding his relationship with the Dark Church? What kind of guts do you have?

But this guy was said to be next.

"I already heard everything. "You're trying to become the loser of the entire North?"

"... what?"

"Everyone is not making a fuss about that now. Oh, I'm really sorry. How can we, Rohan, who has recently exerted great influence over the northwest, including Regina, try to devour the North all by himself?"

I was so dumbfounded that I stared at him in silence, and Leonard smiled meaningfully and lowered his voice.

"So what do you think? If possible, let's share that good thing with me. huh? "Let's rule this vast northern region together."

Seongjin's face inevitably rotted away.

Why are we suddenly in the northern part of the country? What about Rohan? You bastard, don't you have much to do when you're a royal?

478. Loser of the North (7)

2nd Prince of Rohan, Leonard Donard Verdia.

Seongjin was currently treating him as a useless person, but at least his status in his country was a little different.

Leonard was known as a person born with particularly strong blood in the Verdian royal family, which had a long history of murdering relatives.

A neat appearance that perfectly resembles the previous kings, a strong body that contrasts with the first prince, and even a lethal charisma that literally captures the people around him.

Therefore, he had already been predicted as the next king among the rulers of Rohan for a long time.

However, contrary to this public perception, there were several difficulties in Leonard's installation as crown prince.

First of all, the biggest problem was that Lucas, the weak first prince, was monopolizing the current king's love.

Alessandra, King of Rohan, very much cared for her son, who had a soft temperament that was not like Verdia's. So, fearing that his younger brother might harm his older brother, he hid Lucas deep in the palace and surrounded him with knights to protect him.

It was also problematic that some high-ranking nobles were strongly supporting the first prince. Having lived through the Verdian royal family for so many years, causing bloodshed for generations, it might have occurred to me at this point that I would like to elect a gentle king rather than a powerful tyrant.

Lastly, it was also problematic that one of Leonard's secret safe houses was recently discovered by the public. The shabby safehouse where he committed a clumsy murder and buried the body secretly when he was still young.

Romain quickly took action to prevent the rumor from spreading widely, but rumors were already secretly circulating among a number of wealthy circles that the second prince might be a murderer thirsting for blood.

- Leave it alone. Killing someone without raising a word would be an ability that a royal should have.

Fortunately, the current king did not make much of an issue with the agenda, because she was also a typical 'Verdia' who murdered all of her brothers and sisters and ascended to the throne.

Of course, it goes without saying that because of that incident, the current king's overprotection of the first prince became even more extreme.

For these reasons, Leonard desperately needed a successful church. Just a few generations ago, there was a time when the life and death of all royal families on the continent was in the hands of the Emperor.

By the time the current emperor was in power, his mild foreign policy had made him fall into disrepute, but the power of the empire, which once controlled the internal affairs of all countries, was still intact.

'But, I didn't know that Seonghwang would hate me so much... ..'

At first, while I was attending the birthday party, I planned to flatter him in front of me and get some church information. However, for some reason, he was repeatedly denied an audience, and even when he occasionally met Seonghwang in public, he only received cold stares.

Didn't we have no contact whatsoever before? Leonard could not understand at all where the strong hostility of Seonghwang came from.

'I won't keep getting hung up on something that doesn't work.'

So Leonard next turned his gaze towards Princess Amelia. Until last year, she was that innocent and beautiful girl who had been looking at herself with longing.

If he succeeds in capturing her heart and marrying her, Seonghwang will have no choice but to lend his support to his son-in-law. It was such a shallow calculation.

but.

-If it's okay, would you please dance the next song with me?

When he met Princess Amelia again, she turned out to be a completely different person than he expected.

How can the sweetness of a rose and the strength of a steel sword coexist in one person? Despite her extremely young age, she already exudes a strong presence that surpasses that of the wise king of Rohan.

Strangely enough, the red dress the princess was wearing looked as if it had been completely stained with the blood of the enemies she had defeated.

'This won't be easy... ... '

If you continue to live like this, your own blood will soon be spilled all over the place. That sense of crisis came over Leonard strongly.

-How about Princess Annette of Brittany? She is a virtuous and seasoned politician, so she will definitely be a worthy companion for Leo. Marry her with her and borrow that power from her.

Even though Romain encouraged him to do so, Leonard could never give up on Amelia. By any means necessary, somehow, she wanted to get that beautiful girl into her own hands.

So the final target for Leonard's attack was Prince Mores.

A bastard prince who receives a lot of affection from the Holy Emperor and Princess Amelia, but at the same time clearly has antipathy towards the empire.

-He is someone who is effectively hiding his identity, and he is someone who will one day reveal his sharpest teeth to the Empire.

Romain said so.

Also, one day, he told me about the prince's true identity.

-Leo, that person is probably not the real Prince Mores.

--- what?

-The real prince must have died for some reason. In any case, what is currently occupying his body is an evil spirit imbued by the Dark Church.

Romain said that he was clearly an evil spirit that had attached itself to the prince through a ritual called 'Baptism of Rest.'

-Baptism of rest? what is that?

-It is said to be a ritual that semi-separates the soul from the body. It is said that if believers perform this ritual, they can see the dead with their own eyes. Not only is it possible to separate a soul, but it is also possible to transplant a completely different soul into that body.

Leonard couldn't quite understand, but Romain's point was this anyway.

Prince Mores is a vessel that the Dark Church has been preparing for a long time. The person currently in possession of the vessel is an evil spirit prepared by the Church of Rest, and he will slowly eat away at the empire from within.

-Anyway, it's surprising. Holy shit, that scary guy is letting evil spirits into the imperial palace.

-That means he is quite a useful horse.

-Still, he's your son?

-In other words, wouldn't it mean that he was pushed into such a corner that he even had to use the evil spirit that had taken over his son's body?

okay? Anyway, Prince Mores is an undisputed member of the Dark Church, right?

'In that case, I will first try to maintain my friendship with the prince and continue to find a way to meet Princess Amelia through him.'

Thus, while sitting on the ecliptic, Leonard began sending gifts and letters to Jinju Palace. In other words, it can be said that Prince Mores, who had only received gifts without any special response, had contributed greatly to his becoming a helpless person.

In any case, thanks to Leonard's unusual efforts over a long period of time, he and Prince Mores were currently exchanging greetings on a regular, albeit dry, basis.

Well, as for the contents of the letters they exchanged so far, roughly-

-When will I be able to see your face? If possible, I would like to have a place together with Princess Amelia.

-Oh, I have something to do this time, sorry. I'll find some time soon, so just wait a little longer on the ecliptic.

It can be summarized to that extent.

And at this point, Leonard also couldn't help but notice Prince Mores's shameful intentions, who were poisoning him and causing him to continue wasting time.

When I realized that fact, rather than being immediately angry, I started to have doubts.

'Does Prince Mores hate me? 'Why on earth?'

And now-

Leonard, who entered the drawing room after being guided by an attendant, was able to confirm that fact again as soon as he met Prince Mores' face.

'Look at this, you really hate me, right?'

Leonard has seen Romain's incredible abilities for a long time, and is still reaping the benefits.

However, even so, the statement that Prince Mores was not the real son of the Holy Emperor could not be trusted, because Prince Mores' eyes, which stared straight at him with a cold hint of hostility, were exactly the same as the Holy Emperor's.

"Bethelah."

In any case, Leonard was not very discouraged. Since he wasn't really interested in people's hearts, the other person's intentions weren't that important. He just cares more about what he wants from the other person and what he can get from them.

"I already heard everything. "You're trying to become the loser of the entire North?"

If that's true, we can't just let it go like that. Didn't Romain say that once too?

-Leo. I gave you everything I have. You will one day become the true loser of Rohan and the entire North. And finally, he will collapse the empire and become the last emperor to rule the continent.

okay. This vast northern region was Leonard's future territory. So, if you're going to sneak in there like a thief, you should at least do it with your permission and in front of yourself.

"If possible, please join me, okay? "Let's rule this vast northern region together."

However, when Prince Mores heard those words, his face became strangely distorted.

"I wonder what kind of nonsense everyone is talking about from earlier... . "I'm just trying to do some business, so why are you coming up with such wild ideas?"

"exactly? "Aren't they using business as an excuse to lay the foundation for governance?"

"Absolutely not!"

"Is that so... .."

Seeing the strong denial makes me feel like I need to interfere even more. So Leonard proposed to him with a coy smile.

"Then how about this? "Couldn't I invest at least part of your business?"

"... .."

Leonard thought the prince would be disgusted and refuse. But the prince, who was looking at him blankly as if he was assessing something, suddenly asked this in a blunt voice.

"okay? "Do you have a lot of money?"

There is no sin in money. I really don't like Leonard, but I'm not so narrow-minded that he even hates his money. No problem.

"This is a wasteland reclamation project."

Seongjin spread out the map he received from Dasha on the tea table.

"It just so happened that we needed a new base connecting Sigismund and Rohan. As a side note, they also settled Ortona refugees here. However, it was quite far from the major territories in the north, so it was difficult to find new investors. How about this business?"

"It's reclaiming wasteland. It doesn't seem like a business with particularly high profits compared to the investment... .."

"Don't worry about that. 'Bertrand & Lee' will build basic roads and security, all you have to do is spoon in there. "In fact, you will be able to dramatically save your initial investment."

"Anyway, isn't this land too close to the western mountain range?"

"And he's very close to Rohan. "As the top goes up, the sea subjugation will become more active, so it will be a big benefit to Rohan in the long run, right?"

"hmm..."

Leonard looked deeply troubled.

Why not? The main purpose of this is to work for civilians, not a business that seeks extreme profits.

"I have one question. "If we share the profitable portion, what benefit will 'Bertrand & Lee' gain from this business?"

"I don't have anything in particular."

"What? "But why are you pursuing it?"

"You said it before, right? "We are not in business to make a profit."

okay. Because the top player in 'Bertrán & Lee' is Logan. He would probably get down to business without hesitation.

Why not? He was already pouring his pocket money endlessly into the North, but now he can help them by pursuing proper profits through business.

The money earned can be reinvested to continue employing Ortona refugees, maintain business expansion to some extent, and make a big profit in the long run?

"Then what does this business have to do with your plan to rule the North?"

"Oh really! As I said before, the purpose of this is not governance."

Seongjin frowned and added an explanation.

"Well, I don't think you will believe me, so I'll tell you this. A person's economic influence also corresponds to his or her governing power. "If you want to properly control the North, as you said at the beginning, there is no other way than to invest more money here."

"Why is that so?"

"Think simply. Whose words are closer to the people? Is this a ruler whose face it will be difficult to see for the rest of his life, and who sometimes gets beaten up when he is unlucky? Or is it a ruler who will make a living today by putting a piece of bread in his mouth?"

"hmm..."

Although he looked a little puzzled, Leonard seemed to understand Seongjin's logic.

"how is it? "Do you want to invest?"

"As long as the benefit is clear, yes. "Good."

He nodded with difficulty, accepted the business investment plan presented by Seongjin - which he had planned to forcibly hand over to Margrave Sigismund - and began to read it carefully.

"... Anyway, it's surprising. A rule that rules over money. "I thought you were the same type as me."

"..."

"Don't you think so too? "There is no faster way to deal with people than violence."

The two are of the same type. In a sense, what Leonard said may be true. Ever since they first met face to face in the living room, their minds were full of thoughts of killing each other.

While explaining the business, Seongjin continued to worry.

'You bastard. Should I just cut it down right here and now? If Dasha and Branch Manager Schmidt take good care of themselves, I think we can bury them like this...'

If Branch Manager Dashana Schmidt had found out, he would have been shocked.

However, even if it is a pile of dirt where not a single blade of grass grows, it can become a stepping stone for someone to step on and fill the ocean. Seongjin had a premonition that there were still gaps left for Leonard to fill in the distant future.

And Leonard had been thinking about this as well.

'You may have gained a lot of fame recently, but you are still a child. Don't you think you could easily twist that neck with just one hand? If only Romain had been by my side at least once... ..'

If Romain had known, he would have been furious and stopped him. Leonard, who was not a warrior, had no way of properly understanding the prince's strength.

Moreover, the moment he exposes his murderous nature directly, it will end up giving the Holy Emperor the cause and effect to eliminate him.

Seongjin thought as he held up the contract.

'You bastard. I saw blood recently too. Why does Rohan let someone like this become a member of the royal family? 'Are you crazy?'

Leonard thought as he accepted the contract.

'Prince Mores knows the taste of blood. He is a man who already has a lot of blood on his hands in ways that others do not know.

That bloody dream continued even when I signed the contract.

'I really want to destroy that guy with one sword. If I do that, I think my heart will feel relieved.'

Seongjin thought so as he kindly held out a quill.

'I really want to strangle that neck. The blood of the noble royal family on these hands, it must be truly enchanting.'

Leonard thought the same thing as he obediently filed the documents.

And the two smiled broadly at each other, as if celebrating a successful contract.

'I want to kill him.'

'I want to kill you.'

479. The Loser of the North (8)

Leonard didn't stay long. This is because the more we came face to face with him, the more uncomfortable the air became.

Seongjin, who had kicked him out without any kind treatment, narrowed his eyes as he watched the carriage moving away.

'It's strange... ..'

There are many cases where people have taken their lives involuntarily, both on Earth and here. However, in Seongjin's own opinion, he did not have a tendency to prefer killing compared to other people.

If it doesn't threaten your own safety, you don't necessarily want to hurt others. Because I didn't have a special sense of justice like someone else who would eradicate evil and correct the world.

but.

"Leonard of Lohan."

What a strange thing. I hadn't even met him in person before the birthday party, so why did such a strong killing intent rise up from deep within my heart?

Why is that like that?

I'm curious.

I would like to know.

I'm really curious... ..

Rustling.

At that moment, Sungjin's consciousness, which was about to deepen, was quickly pulled to the surface. This was because he sensed a small sound coming from afar.

The best room in this villa was where the Holy Homunculus was currently staying.

'... father? 'Isn't it time for a political meeting?'

I listened carefully, just in case, and the presence became quiet again, as if it were a lie. Because it was such a subtle sound, Seongjin began to become confused as to whether it was a real presence.

'Was it just an illusion...?'

Sungjin's thoughts turned back to Leonard. However, perhaps because he had already lost focus once, the strange feeling of foreboding from before had completely disappeared from his mind.

hmm.....

"Is it because my eyes look bad? "When I look at that bastard, I feel like even normal people become psychopaths."

While I was muttering that, I heard a small snort from next to me. It was the devil who had been sitting at the tea table pretending to be an ordinary lamp from earlier.

[You're funny. Who said you were sane? Don't worry, Lee Sung-jin. You're already a great natural born psychopath.]

"What, Inma?"

[Think about it carefully. Don't you secretly enjoy seeing others suffer? Otherwise, you wouldn't have teased the branch manager like that, saying you'd bring his father.]

"no..."

Seongjin couldn't deny those words.

[Cynical, only moves for profit, but that's not all. Once a decision is made, it is pushed through without mercy, regardless of the outcome, and the mind is always busy calculating or analyzing something. Wow, he is a typical example of a psychopath.]

"Oh, shut up!"

Seongjin got angry and shook the lamp around. Then the devil clings to the bottom of the lamp and screams in horror.

[Oh, be careful! Handle with care! This is my favorite lamp!]

It was a beautiful lamp that Amelia had given her as a gift, and after returning to Regina, the Demon King had been staying inside this lamp as if he was having a hard time.

As Sungjin's hands slowed down a little, the demon king, who was riding on his momentum, began to whimper sadly, his flames fluttering.

[Sniff! Stop shaking me like that, you psychopath! My precious plate collection is already completely destroyed... ...!]

"uh....."

[Sniff!]

Seongjin quietly put the lamp down on the floor. Then, the crystal decorations hanging from the lampshade began to jingle, casting a beautiful reflection of light onto the tea table.

As if the brilliant movement of light had stimulated his nerves, the Demon King's whimpers grew louder.

[Sniff!]

"Well... Calm down for now, Demon King. I'll buy you another plate... .."

[Whew!]

"Ah, really! Hey, stop crying! You're the Demon King of a certain dimension, and you're talking so shamelessly!"

In the end, Seongjin, unable to bear his prickly conscience, ended up stealing an expensive plate for the devil.

In the process, poor Branch Manager Schmidt suffered once again, so in a sense, the devil's analysis may have been accurate.

[Hehehe!]

Anyway, after acquiring the new collection, the Demon King stopped crying as if it were a lie and sat down on the plate.

'This bastard, isn't he secretly acting pitiful these days and taking various things from me?'

Isn't it? Is it my imagination?

Seongjin took a copy of Leonard's contract with a slightly uneasy feeling. Then the Demon King, who was looking at the documents from the side, asks.

[That contract. Wasn't that what you originally said you were sending to Margrave Sigismund?]

"Oh, right."

[But why? Why did you give it to that guy earlier? Didn't you say that it was the most boring business, and that you would definitely pass it on to the Count?]

"hmm. I was like that... .."

I never thought there could be a child in this world more disliked than a changeling count.

As Sungjin swallowed his words, the Demon King stretched out and flattened himself on the plate.

[Well, what if he gets ripped off a little too much? That guy seems to be quite rich. He has a bunch of magical items on his person that most people would struggle to even have.]

Seongjin blinked at those words.

...huh?

"Magic items?"

[Yes, magic items. Ah! In other words, items that have the laws of the sphere world? Why, you have those, right? Things like the fireplace stone or the flare stone you have.]

Eh?

Seongjin was embarrassed and lifted the demon king's plate.

"wait for a sec! "Why didn't you tell me that earlier?"

Then, the Demon King, with a puzzled expression, fired a small spark.

[Why do I have to say that? It's not that unusual.]

"Isn't that unusual?"

[huh. It's the same in the ecliptic and the Sigismund Territory. Most nobles usually have at least one magic item for self-defense, right? I thought he had too much, but maybe he was just too worried about his health.]

"....."

[And that kid, he's a prince? Then he must have grown up preciously. But seeing as he came here alone without any proper escort, I wonder if he was wearing some kind of security gear all over his body?]

Ah, somehow!

'I feel like I want to get rid of it, but I'm strangely reluctant to use my hands... ... '

Seongjin felt very uneasy and stared for a while towards the empty garden where Leonard had already left.

Slowly, slowly.

Same time. Like Seongjin, Leonard, who was sitting in the carriage, was contemplating some uneasy feelings.

'Am I caught up in Prince Mores' rhetoric? I guess I was in too much of a hurry to sign the contract... ... '

After thinking for a moment, he took out an old metal plate from his pocket. It was an emergency communication port left by Romain to contact in case of emergency.

"Romaine! Romain, are you there?"

I tapped the board and shouted, and a human voice came out from there as if it was a lie.

[Yes, there is. What's the matter, Leo? Is something troubling you?]

Oh, Romain!

Leonard responded without hiding his joy.

"No, just. "I called you because I was curious how you were doing these days."

[...] Since this is a technique that the Orthodox Church considers taboo, I have repeatedly told you to use it in emergencies. What are you going to do if someone sees it? No matter how royal you are, you cannot avoid the Heresy Trial.]

"So you came out like this without any escort. "The driver also happens to be deaf, so you can rest assured about that."

Then, Romain's deep sigh was heard.

[I'm not saying that you should go out alone and risk it, but...]

"Oh, okay, let's just skip over it. By the way, how are things going? Is everything going well in Cyprus?"

Romain had recently left Leonard behind in the Zodiac and traveled to Cyprus alone.

Did Sigurd Sigurdson say that he would intercept the previously prepared items before he made a full-fledged move? He said hopefully he might get something important called a [key]... ..

but.

[Unfortunately, I am a little late, Leo. When I arrived, the head tower was already completely dismantled, not a single stone left.]

"Oh! Did Sigurd Sigurdson's last doll get tampered with?"

[I think that's probably the case. But it's strange. The 'controller' of the buried tower is nowhere to be seen. I thought it would take him a while to find it on his own.]

"Then it's all over?"

[Don't worry, that's not necessarily the case.]

In any case, Romain added that no matter how Sigurd Sigurdson was, he would not be able to use the tower's controller without his help.

Of all his previous puppets, only Romain was able to truly understand and control the controller's code.

[So instead, I'm going to try using the remaining artifacts on the Krabat Islands. It'll take some time to arrange a ship to get there, though...]

"Right. First of all, there's no problem there, right?"

Leonard, who skimmed over the progress report, told Romain the story of his recent meeting with Prince Mores.

[...] You invested money in a new business?]

"okay. According to the prince, it is a completely profitable business."

[You were hasty, Leo. You know, we don't have much money to operate.]

"I know, Romain. I've got all the money saved up for emergencies! And in the long run, we need another source of income, right?"

As long as the crown prince's appointment was delayed day after day, there was a limit to the wealth that Leonard could draw from the Rohan royal family. ... If I had known this would happen, I should have made the An family a little more moderate.

"In that sense, what other source of income could be as solid as the business guaranteed by the Delcross Imperial Family?"

[Yes, it is a barren land in the north. It doesn't seem like wasteland reclamation is a very profitable business.]

"no way! Still, it is more profitable than putting it in Hayden Bank and only receiving interest. Besides, Prince Mores said this to me."

Leonard frowned and traced his fading memories.

"What... is that? Economic power is power? Money power is more important than violence? If you want to control people, first give them bread... .."

[.....]

Roman was silent for a moment.

"Anyway, as you said, I will one day become the conqueror of the North. If that's the case, Romain, wouldn't it be better to make my name known in the North and gradually exert influence over the people?"

[...] Hey, Leo.]

After a while, Romain opened his mouth cautiously.

"huh?"

[So the business is being carried out in Leo's name?]

"... "Wow!"

Leonard gaped blankly.

When I thought about it, it was like that. No matter how much investors cling to it, what good is it all? Anyway, 'Bertrand & Lee' will be the ones to do all the superficial saving of face.

[But how on earth do people imprint Leo's name as a ruler?]

That was when Romain spoke up to that point.

"Huh?"

Suddenly, Leonard stumbled and dropped the communication device on the floor. This is because the carriage suddenly shook violently and then stopped.

Shake!

[Why are you doing this all of a sudden, Leo? Leo! Leo... ..!]

Leonard slowly got up, leaving the noisy communication port alone. When he opened the carriage door and stepped out, he saw the coachman lying on the ground, bleeding, and a group of poorly armed bandits.

"See, didn't I tell you? "This is definitely a carriage belonging to a rich family!"

When a young man dressed in classy clothes appeared, the thieves started flirting with excitement.

"That's true. But why aren't there any escorts?"

"Well, I don't know either. Are you from a poor, rich family?"

"Idiot. What about the poor rich family?"

"Ah, fuck! What does it all matter? "If we just take off those clothes and sell them, we'll make a lot of money!"

As much as they were delighted with the sudden appearance of easy prey, Leonard was also very pleased with their appearance.

Is this how a monk must feel after escaping from a time of bone-chilling asceticism and finally facing the corrupt world of the world?

"Whoa-!"

When Leonard suddenly let out a cool breath and smiled brightly, the bewildered thieves soon became angry.

"what? Is this kid smiling? "What's so funny now?"

"Kill him! Let's see if he can still laugh like that even if a knife is stuck in his stomach!"

But it was just as the one in the lead was swinging his sword.

Empty!

When the sword reached Leonard's chest, it stopped in midair as if it had been blocked by something invisible.

"ok? Uh oh... ... ?"

The thief's eyes widened in confusion.

He felt that his arm was still moving, the sword still swinging downwards with great force.

But why does this sword seem to reach that young man, but cannot?

When the thief opened his eyes, Leonard, who was looking at the sight with amusement, explained cheerfully.

"Haha, you were surprised, right? "I was quite surprised when I first experienced it."

"this... "What is this!"

"My friend said that the laws of the world of rules are always like this. No matter how strong a person is, he or she can never force open a space that is closed by conditions. Every phenomenon has a condition that goes with it. If it's right, it's right, and if it's not, it's not."

"Iik?"

"That means unless you know the password to unlock my [protection], you can't attack me no matter what. "Because the space between you and me will not last forever like this."

"... Well, what kind of crazy thing is that... ... !"

But unfortunately for the thieves, the result was a little different the other way around.

Leonard lightly swings his arm -

Crack!

With a loud crash, the thief's neck snapped back.

The thief, who had suddenly been slapped, blinked his eyes with a blank expression.

"Oh, by the way, my attack has the [Ignore protection] and [Increase indirect damage] options. So even after [Protection] is activated, it is possible for me to hit you like this."

As soon as the explanation was over, Leonard's fist struck the thief's face once again.

Bam!

"Ugh!"

The thief's face was completely crushed by that blow. The thief died instantly and fell to the ground, blood spraying everywhere.

dump!

".....!"

When one of their comrades suddenly lost his life, the confident thieves turned pale and retreated.

"What the heck? What the hell is that guy?"

"How is it? Does the power look a bit good? Haha, it has to be that way. These include [High-Speed Movement], [Focused Attack], and again, what did they say? Oh yeah! [Weight charge] is also attached, right?"

Paat-

Leonard, who moved his body lightly while explaining, was already blocking the thieves' escape route.

"omg... ..!"

"That's why it's difficult for an opponent to follow you with their eyes, and even if they see you, it's difficult to avoid them."

The thieves simply could not understand the current situation.

But there was no time or space to think any further, as Leonard's fists continued to strike the thieves' bodies.

Bah! Wow!

"Oops!"

"Ugh!"

"Plus, once you hit an opponent, they won't be able to move for a while! There's also a [stiffness] effect attached. Haha! Isn't this option really cool? Isn't it?"

After that, it was truly a one-sided assault.

Boom! Bam! Crack!

Blood splatters and bones break. The despairing gaze exploded along with the eyeballs, and the desperate screams were crushed along with the vocal cords.

When most of the bandits had been reduced to flat pieces of meat, Leonard finally let out a satisfied sigh and closed his eyes.

"Haaaaaah... .."

Ah, it feels like all the desires I had suppressed while staying in the ecliptic are being relieved all at once.

This thrill! This elation! This omnipotence!

"Hey!"

The last surviving thief crawls on the ground, struggling with his weak limbs.

Leonard looked back at the bastard with eyes sparkling with joy and thought absentmindedly.

The last one... Yes, I'm going to strangle you. Thinking back to the unfulfilled desires of that time, which Prince Mores couldn't bear to try.

So Leonard took a long time and a lot of effort to strangle the thief.

"Ugh... .."

But after some time, his body started to cool down.

".....!"

Suddenly overcome by a strong sense of foreboding, Leonard looked down at his hands, which were shaking slightly.

"It's strange. I clearly remember strangling someone like this at some point... .."

A simple and plain room. The soft warmth that wrapped around both hands. And the clear gray... .. looking up at you.

"What is that... "When was it?"

Leonard stared blankly at the sky.

A heart-poundingly sweet and ecstatic memory-

Who on earth was it when they strangled it?

480. Departure (1)

Meanwhile, Romain, whose communication with Leonard had suddenly been cut off, stared blankly at the communication port.

"... "Leo?"

It seemed like he was walking around alone with such vigor, but I guess there was some kind of accident?

"....."

But I wasn't particularly worried about Leonard's safety. Romaine was the one who plastered all kinds of self-defense codes all over his body, but wasn't he himself?

There are probably not many people on this continent who could directly threaten Leonard's life.

'okay. Unless the Holy Emperor himself comes forward, or a powerful being at the level of a high-ranking demon king... ... '

But they don't really have any reason to harm Leonard.

Romaine, whose thoughts had gone up to that point, put his mind at ease and grabbed the communication port. What was important to him now was not Prince Leonard, but the whereabouts of the Cypriot Tower and its 'controller'.

'The storyteller, Sigurd Sigurdsson, does not deal with code as directly as I do.'

Roman thought, looking up at the now empty hill where the tower once stood.

The storyteller probably also has a rough understanding of how the tower works and how to control it. Since he had once treated himself as a puppet, it was not unexpected that that level of knowledge would flow to the station.

However, to properly activate the codes that lost their functionality long ago, more detailed tuning and supplementation by experts are required.

'That's probably too much for a storyteller. Perhaps, rather than controlling the head tower, the purpose may have been greater to intercept it before it gets into my hands.'

But there was something that didn't seem right to me when I just thought about it that way.

If he had found the controller first, would there have been a need to completely destroy the head tower like this?

Isn't this an extremely crude action for Sigurd Sigurdsson, who values methodological 'aesthetics'?

'... This is definitely strange. Did something go wrong with the thing taking over the doll's body?'

If so, it's not a bad thing. Now, in this world, only you can fully understand and control the code of the normal world. A confidence that I had never felt before rose within me.

'ruler. Look, senior. This ability that you said was not the least bit interesting has now become such an important power.'

Romain slowly walked towards the Port of Cyprus, bragging to someone who could no longer hear.

"You're here."

When Romain arrives at the port, an old man with a pipe greets him. She was a shipowner who was willing to sell her fishing boat at the generous price offered by the stranger.

Although fishing has only recently resumed, there are some ship owners who have been unable to endure the gap. The old man was one of those people. He had already let go of the sailors under him and was now managing the ship alone.

"Did you bring the money?"

"Here it is. I'll give you an additional fee when you reach your destination."

But when Romain paid the balance, the captain's attitude suddenly changed.

"As I said before, it will take a considerable amount of time to reach the archipelago on this ship."

"I know very well."

"Besides, my boat is too small to go out to the open sea. "If you are unlucky, you may encounter a storm and sink along the way, or you may run out of food while drifting in a windless area."

"... I don't know about the storm, but at least I don't have to worry about food. I don't need to eat separately."

In this case, it was convenient because it was the body of a homunculus rather than the original body. Although he has the disadvantage of being somewhat dulled, his soul and body are safely protected elsewhere even if he is in danger of death.

"And the problem is that there are no sailors to join us. Even though it is a small fishing boat, it basically requires two navigators and an assistant helmsman who will take turns at the helm."

... wasn't there anything like that said when you gave the deposit?

But Romain didn't bother asking again, because soon he felt the ominous atmosphere surrounding them.

As he realized what was going on, his long, half-masked eyes narrowed even further.

"... Well. Are there really no sailors who would go with you?"

The captain smiled wryly at Romain's point.

"haha. "Did you notice?"

"....."

"Then it will be easier to talk. Now, masked stranger. Leave all your money behind and get out of here."

As the captain spoke, men with fierce expressions and clubs in their hands slowly approached us.

But Romain wasn't at all flustered. He was so grateful that they had gathered within earshot of his voice.

[In that place-]

As Roman's mouth opened again-

[Stop!]

Jjing-

A strong wave spread through the air. The eyes of the captain and crew, swept away by the force, suddenly become blurry.

[Everyone, lower your weapons and slowly kneel down.]

Tuk! Fight!

One after another, clubs fall to the floor, and the sailors slump down in their seats as if possessed by something. There are at least seven or eight of them, so they are more than enough to set sail.

After looking around at them for a moment, Romain leisurely took the pipe out of the captain's mouth.

"From now on, smoking is prohibited, old man. What would you do if a fire broke out on the ship in the open sea?"

Romain, who had been blandly teasing the captain, smiled wryly and patted his shoulder.

"But the truth is, even if we reached our destination, I had no intention of just sending you back. I should have at least one way to return, right? That means you were going to die anyway, even if I didn't do this."

But other than that, I didn't want to cause any unnecessary casualties. So I tried to save as few people as possible...

It seems like things have to work out this way for the generous assistant navigators to come to me on their own.

"So, accept the consequences. You were the ones who tried to attack me first, so this is the retribution you deserve."

Tuk-tuk.

Romaine, who had shaken off all the tobacco leaves on the floor, handed the empty pipe back to the captain and gave an order.

[Okay, then shall we all go to the Krabat Archipelago together?]

While staying at Branch Manager Schmidt's villa, Sungjin had some free time for the first time in a long while. That means he focused all his energy on his swordsmanship training and Auror training that he had put off for a while.

Sir Kurt, who was worse off, asked irritably.

"Don't you go sightseeing separately?"

"What are you talking about? "We are here to work, Sir Kurt."

When I told him that we would soon all join together in the search for Giacomo Millo, Sir Kurt beamed and said:

"Hey, are you finally able to move your body? My body has become very sluggish from playing and eating in Regina while waiting for Hae-hae to arrive. "This will be my chance to sharpen my skills!"

At those words, Seongjin blinked his eyes in confusion.

"huh? "Why are you looking for such an opportunity outside?"

"yes? Well, didn't Lord Maria become stronger that way too? So, in order for me to build my skills properly like that friend... .."

"What are you talking about? To build your skills, you need to practice consistently. "I came here and already created a new Auror floor."

Then Sir Kurt asked again.

"... yes?"

"I made it, Auror 9th floor."

"yes?"

"9th floor."

Sir Kurt, who did not understand those words for a moment, soon let out an inappropriate scream.

"Huh?"

No, what's the fuss about? This guy has been getting along well with Lord Haven, but has Lord Haven moved?

"No! When on earth! How did that happen?"

It was no wonder that Sir Kurt was so excited. If you are a 9th level Auror, you can be considered a high-level knight in name and reality.

In other words, should I say that I am on the same level as Sir Marsain or Sir Maria in terms of the Auras I possess? Oh, of course, if we really fight, I will win.

"Lowering! When did you practice like that? "You were sick until recently, and even after leaving the imperial capital, you didn't have time to properly practice!"

"Um, well... .."

Yeah, we had a bit of luck. The amount of aura increased dramatically when we burned down the Furiano sewers.

Also, I recently practiced sending Aurors to Max in Cyprus, and my Auror proficiency increased quite quickly.

In addition, the unique nature of Seongjin's aura also played a part. If you don't control it even for a moment, Gehenna's fire will continuously burn your body and try to burn the surroundings.

As a result, it seems that stacking Aura has become relatively easier.

"Oh no! This is, this is a scam aaaaaaa!"

"Stop complaining and start training, Sir Kurt."

Even while Sungjin was resting, a plan to conquer the North under the guise of searching for Giacomo Milo was being prepared under Dasha's direction.

Of course, the real Giacomo Milo is well and truly imprisoned in Schmidt's villa. The living environment is quite comfortable, and the three meals are delicious.

So, it's definitely not my fault that Giacomo ended up like that.

"Ah, I have received His call. With these eyes I have seen His holy countenance, with these ears I have heard His stern command. All the iniquities of the world shall be consumed before Him, and His grace shall at last save my soul. On that glorious day when He shall come as Judge, I will gladly be a martyr and do His will. Bethelah! His glory alone is my purpose, His salvation alone is my hope... ."

As Giacomo continued to mutter with unfocused eyes, Branch Manager Schmidt looked back at Seongjin with a suspicious gaze.

"What on earth have you done to the author, Your Majesty?"

"I didn't do anything in particular."

"....."

"Oh, it's true!"

Seongjin felt very wronged for the first time in a long time.

"That bastard, there's been something strange about him ever since I met him in the underpass. "It just got worse on the way back!"

"yes yes. "I guess so."

""

Seongjin's eyes became fierce. Schmidt, aren't you getting more and more disrespectful towards me these days?

"Anyway, I will be taking good care of him, so please take care of the lords safely, my lord."

Schmidt was quite active in this plan. Those northern lords were the biggest obstacle to the Ortona economic reconstruction project he was leading.

Of course, his subordinate, Mememe, also played a huge role in secretly confining Giacomo. He was busy capturing every single servant coming and going from this room and hypnotizing them.

[Okay, everyone, look into my eyes. What you see here will be forgotten the moment you leave the room. There is no one in this room... ..]

Awesome, meeme! Are you secretly useful?

"By the way, your Majesty."

While Sungjin was happily looking at the goat demon, Schmidt opened his mouth with a serious face while looking through a folder.

"As you said earlier, do you really expect the Cypriot fleet to go ahead with its second departure? As far as I know, the majority of council members, including Elder Chryses, are calling for the disbandment of the punitive force."

Cyprus is the largest maritime trading nation where all the merchant ships of the continent gather. So, depending on their movements, the entire continental economy will certainly fluctuate greatly.

As Branch Manager Schmidt is the head of this logistics relay station, he has a duty to prepare various economic plans in advance to prepare for it.

But at the same time, he is also a scapegoat who must be criticized if Sungjin is to blame. Since most agenda items require prior approval before moving forward, Sungjin's expectations and intentions are more important to him than the situation on the continent.

Fortunately, Seongjin was able to give a cool answer to his worried gaze.

"Yes. The Cypriot fleet will be sailing soon. So let's make all future plans accordingly."

"....."

Perhaps sensing something in Seongjin's words, Branch Manager Schmidt's eyes, which had been looking anxious, hardened.

"Yes, I understand, Your Majesty."

"huh."

"But you. Having listened to you, may I ask one more question? "This is an essential question for the future Ortona reconstruction project and the long-term operation plan of 'Bertrán & Lee.'"

"okay. what? say it."

"What on earth are you looking at? How far does your plan go? How long will it take for the empire to completely engulf the north?"

In the end, Seongjin got angry at him.

"Oh, no! Seriously!"

481. Departure (2)

-I don't want to rule the North.

Seongjin denied it several times, but most people did not believe him at face value.

The Ortona economic reconstruction project is a large-scale plan involving numerous merchants affiliated with the Merchants' Union, in addition to Bertran & Lee.

So, all of those upper echelons wanted to meet the Third Prince, the commander-in-chief of the plan. And they tried to give meaning to every word and action of his.

- Hey, how was it meeting the prince in person? Did he give you any hints about the future course of the empire?

-Wearing the Knights Templar uniform even in private? Could it be that Prince Mores is indirectly expressing his will that even commercial activities should be conducted within the doctrines of religion?

They also did not believe the explanation that they had come to search for Giacomo Milo. It was widely interpreted as an intention to use force to pressure the northern lords who did not listen to their instructions. Surprisingly, it was an inference that was quite close to its essence.

-Berseus Dashiano, I thought that arrogant bastard would taste bitterness at some point!

-You will be able to have quite a bit of fun in the County of Castile, sir. The Andres Plain near the county is the only granary in the northeast.

Everyone thought that the Third Prince would threaten the northern lords and extort money. At this point, the desire to really cause trouble was welling up in them.

But that wasn't all. As time passed, strange followers also began to appear.

-Ha Hae's insight into the overall economic trends is truly amazing! So, the rapid growth of 'Bertrán & Lee' is already overwhelming the market. Of course, it is a bit surprising that the overall business you are currently pursuing is not pursuing profits as efficiently as expected... ..

-No, I am just following the wishes of Logan, the owner of the merchant. Because he wants to help Ortona refugees in the long term.

-aha! Are you prioritizing the growth of the market itself and taking into account the large returns in the distant future? indeed!

-Besides, you gave up your place as head of the upper class to Prince Logan and gave credit to him! All of your actions are truly admirable. Ha ha ha ha ha!

I treated them roughly whenever I had time, and it seemed as if a strange admiration and desire was growing in the merchants' eyes.

Accordingly, Seongjin's dissatisfaction grew.

"Why hasn't there been any news from Dominic yet? The person who asked to come didn't come, so why are useless flies hanging around and looking at people?"

In fact, there were two main reasons why Seongjin took time out of his training to meet merchants.

One was because he felt a sense of responsibility as the person driving this huge plan, and the other was so that he could naturally face Dominic Scarzapino. Since I found out that his fiancée 'Olivier' was a member of an assassination group, I couldn't let things go like this.

Of course, I also told the working staff to investigate Dominic.

However, neither Branch Manager Schmidt nor Dasha seemed to find anything particularly unusual about his past. All they knew was that he had studied abroad in Brittany when he was young, and that he met his current fiancée there.

No matter how broad the staff's reach, there must have been limitations in investigating events that occurred in other countries in the past.

'Okay. Then I can just meet him face to face and tell him what happened.'

So, I deliberately sent an invitation to Dominico asking him to come with his 'fiancee' Olivier -

-It seems difficult to change the schedule for leaving for Rohan on business, Mr. I am truly sorry, but I will come and greet you as soon as I return from work.

All I got was this polite rejection letter back.

'Dominico, you know the identity of your fiancée. 'It's awkward to confront me, so you're avoiding me on purpose!'

Even while dealing with various things like this, time passed steadily, and before we knew it, the day we were to depart for the Benso Marquisate had arrived.

There is no other reason why Seongjin chose the Marquis de Benso as his first destination. Not only because it was quite close to Regina, but more importantly, because I could no longer endure Sir Valerie's anger asking me to catch the 'mad sage'.

Sir Valery, who is in the middle of a church audit in Cyprus, has been sending letters to Seongjin literally every day.

-Lowering! Please hurry and investigate that 'wise man'! If you don't punish that apostate as soon as possible, you will have no honor standing before the Lord as an Inquisitor who upholds the Lord's will!

Originally, I had planned to ignore it until the right time came. However, arresting Giacomo turned out to be easier than expected.

The guy who was expected to be hiding deep within the Penitent Church was surprisingly wandering around the refugee camp, plotting to harm the continent.

'If we had been just a little bit late in finding him, we could have been in big trouble.'

It was a truly fortunate thing for Sir Valerie. And for the citizens of Regina, who were on the verge of being struck by an unprecedented disaster.

And the evidence of the enormous conspiracy planned by Giacomo Milo was now safely in Sungjin's hands.

"So you brought this to me? "Proof that Giacomo Milo is in cahoots with the devil?"

Sir Robert asked while looking at the black elixir that Seongjin held out.

"No, rather than evidence... .."

Actually, I didn't know how to handle this. You can't just throw it away or bury it in the ground... ..

If by any chance they seep into the water or soil and contaminate the surrounding creatures, there is no way to know what kind of danger they will pose to the continent in the future.

"So before we leave, I thought we should somehow deal with this. I think we'll probably have to [purify] it. If even a single drop of this elixir leaks out, it'll be a disaster for the city."

"Does this elixir have such evil power? I can sense a bit of magic, but I don't think it's that strong."

"Owen and Lord Martha have seen the results together. Creatures exposed to this elixir literally become walking corpses. They say that the soul will be bound to the body forever without being able to die properly."

"Is that so... .."

Sir Robert's face became serious.

"Well, it's possible that my divine powers are so weak that I can't properly sense danger."

He carefully took out the gyro compass from his pocket.

"If we find out from this-"

But it was no use at all.

Whirling-

The top's needle returned straight toward Sungjin with a slight wobble, just as before.

"... .."

"... .."

Hmm.

Sir Robert was so embarrassed that he threw away the gyro.

"I... am ashamed, Your Majesty. I have been a bit negligent in consecrating my tools recently... .."

"Uh, it's okay. "You just have to be careful in the future."

Seongjin accepted his apology with a nonchalant expression.

"... Then, we will begin the purification."

So Sir Robert hurriedly set about purifying the place.

First, they carefully sweep the surrounding area with the blessed branches, then they create a sacred circle with signs inscribed with scriptures.

After carefully placing the elixir in the center, Sir Robert recited a final prayer and sprinkled holy water on it several times.

but-

"... For some reason, it doesn't seem to be purified well."

Sir Robert frowned as he looked at the bottle that still exuded magic energy.

"Maybe it's because there's some kind of magical treatment there."

"Magic... right?"

"huh."

Of course, the 'magical processing' that Seongjin meant was the laws of the normal world. When I looked at the elixir through my spiritual eyes, this text would inevitably appear in the air.

□TY□E_o_po□i□n_no73□4□

□err! Unable to confirm appropriate object!□

□err! ge□Ah!$2┘The server cannot be confirmed.□

□err... ... □

The laws of the world of rules have always been like this. Because they always go against the laws of the real world and cause problems.

For example, like the dinosaur statues that the Seonghoe gave to Seongjin to prove the power of [Destruction].

Still, there was at least an option called [Delete]...

'I don't know how to do this. 'It's so damaged that you can't even read the text.'

What on earth was the identity of the magician in the underpass who mixed the laws of this unstable world with magic to create a potion?

"Lord, please cut off the root of evil and purify it with your righteous blade."

Sir Robert did not give up and once again sprinkled holy water on the elixir.

But that was then.

Pipit-

A faint noise was heard from somewhere.

Seongjin, who had a bad feeling, quickly tried to dissuade the exorcist.

"wait for a sec. You'd better stop being conscious, Sir Robert. "Why does it seem like the bottle containing the elixir is cracking little by little?"

"ah! It really is. "It was damaged during the purification ritual. Isn't this container also just a glass bottle?"

However, Sir Robert was just about to take the bottle out of the sacred barrier.

Crispy!

Suddenly, the glass bottle shattered into pieces, and its black contents spilled out onto the table.

"... ... !"

The thick, viscous elixir spreads strangely quickly and covers the table.

It seemed to hesitate for a moment as it touched the sacred boundary, then soon began to emit a hissing sound and a black mist.

Heheheehehe!

For a split second, Seongjin seemed to see distorted faces waving in the black fog.

"I, your Majesty! The magic is getting stronger... ...!"

Swoosh!

As Sir Robert said, the magic increased in an instant, completely melting the symbols forming the barrier and finally being released freely.

The black smoke that turns everything around into undead just by touching it spreads out in all directions without hesitation.

"Damage, Sir Robert!"

Seongjin quickly pushed Sir Robert back and unleashed a dark red aura. It was a powerful fire shield that expanded the range of defense as much as possible, using the trick of 'opening a small sword screen' that I had learned from Logan one day.

Grumble!

The flame of Gehenna released from Seongjin's body soon began to burn with excitement, engulfing the demonic energy.

* * *

"... huh?"

Branch Manager Schmidt felt an unfamiliar demonic energy and raised his head.

"What? There's no way another demon would show up in my area."

He rose carefully from his seat.

The situation was already uncomfortable, with not only the Homunculus of Seonghwang but also the Exorcist staying at his villa recently.

So I was on edge trying to avoid encountering them as much as possible, and it was killing me.

but.

'This magic is clearly coming from the abode of the Lesser Mores.'

After contemplating for a moment, Schmidt eventually walked reluctantly towards the place where he could feel the magic energy. If something were to happen to Prince Mores, then he might have to face the pure anger of the Holy Emperor head-on.

"Lowering!"

And what he soon discovered was a very absurd situation. The sight of the young prince blocking the path of Sir Robert, who was unable to protect himself, and doing his best to block the demonic energy.

"Your Majesty! You must get out of here!"

Sir Robert belatedly shouted at the prince while emitting divine power, but even to Schmidt, a mid-level demon, the amount was truly insignificant.

Since all the exorcism tools were left behind in the black smoke, it seemed like there was nothing he could do to help.

'No, what on earth is all this about...''

It was when Schmidt was in a state of mild confusion that a sacred aura sent shivers down his spine, and he turned his head away, creaking as he turned pale.

'Hee... Heeeeeeeek!'

There it stood.

Homunculus.

The prosperous homunculus who has been lying quietly until now-

"... "Stay back."

With the soft Ortona language that follows.

Hwaaaaaak!

A divine power so powerful that I couldn't even open my eyes burst out in all directions like a storm.

482. Departure (3)

The sacred pure white energy surges like a tidal wave. The excessively strong force is not so much 'purification' as it is a primal violence that enforces order in the world.

Gulp!

Branch Manager Schmidt was unable to overcome the mental shock and fainted on the spot. Fortunately, a clear sacred barrier was surrounding his body.

Kiyi...

Thanks to this, the black fog that had spread beyond Seongjin's shield was swept away by the storm of divine power and evaporated in vain.

"Father...! Father Bart!"

Seongjin gathered his aura and ran towards the homunculus, delighted.

"You're here! "Thanks to you, I survived!"

"....."

"I almost got into big trouble, right? "I was so lucky to have a priest here, hahaha!"

Then, Seonghwang opened his mouth for a moment as if trying to tell Seongjin something.

However, he could not speak easily because Sir Robert and some other servants were watching them with wide eyes.

Plus-

"Oh my god!"

"It's a newbie!"

"Your Majesty, what is the matter! Are you okay?"

Sir Masain, Owen, and the resident knights were also running frantically from the other side. The entire mansion was suddenly engulfed in white light, so even those who couldn't sense demon energy immediately noticed the anomaly.

Finally, Seonghwang let out a soft sigh and answered Seongjin in Ortonian.

"It seemed like we were racing against time, so I intervened. Mores, if you had had enough time, it wouldn't have been impossible for you to be purified."

"uh..."

Seongjin blinked. What came out of Seonghwang's mouth was an extremely unfamiliar foreign language, but somehow he was able to understand what he was saying.

That unique way of speaking, the hint of concern hidden in the calm tone, and even the faint enthusiasm as if he wanted to teach me something, it was all there.

"Is that so? But no matter how much I try to burn it with Aura, it doesn't work."

When Seongjin obediently asked a question, a detailed answer came back as if he had been waiting.

"That demon energy was protected by the laws of the normal world. The reason the first purification ritual didn't work properly was because it was like hitting a solid castle wall with your bare hands."

"I see. so..."

"But it's not like there were any loopholes that could be explored. As you may have already guessed, the laws of the normal world that protected the demonic energy were incomplete. In other words, it was a sturdy outer shell with lots of holes here and there."

By then, Sir Martha and Owen had arrived nearby and looked at each other with bewildered expressions. Because I witnessed the strange sight of two people who had no contact at all before, talking amicably in different languages.

'Brother Marsain. Did New...Mores ever learn Ortona before?'

'No, as far as I know, there is none. Lowering.'

Meanwhile, Seonghwang's explanation continued.

"Of course, even if it is an imperfect outer wall, if the inside is already filled with other energy, it is difficult to invade it easily. However, what would have happened if you had not tried to burn the demonic energy from the outside from the beginning, but had confined them in one place and poured out a strong force all at once like I just did?"

"yes? then..."

"When the difference in density between inside and outside becomes significantly larger, the two energies will naturally mix without you forcing them."

"aha!"

Following Seonghwang's explanation, Seongjin created a brief image in his mind and immediately understood the principle.

"So, the method you used earlier is a kind of high-pressure injection?"

A method of quickly replacing the internal material by applying strong pressure to a specific structure with an outer shell.

"Yes, what you understood is correct. Of course, depending on the compatibility of power, it may have taken a bit more time at first than with divine power..."

"But once it got mixed up, it must have accelerated. "The place where my auror burned would have become a complete vacuum, which would have even more strongly attracted external aurors."

"okay. That's right."

Seonghwang, who was slowly raising his hand as if he was satisfied, soon put his arm back. It seems like he wanted to pat Seongjin on the head and praise him, but there were too many people around him, so he just gave up.

"But Priest Bart. "There is one problem with that."

He completely understood the method. However, Sungjin still felt strong doubts about whether he could have solved the accident on his own.

That's because the auras they had were insufficient to cover the rapidly spreading fog with the trick of 'opening a small screen.'

Before the magic of the elixir became widespread, when it was still contained in small bottles, let's say you could do something about it.

However, like before, I still did not have the confidence to immediately contain the rapidly spreading magical fog.

"Besides, there's also the problem of confining the magic like that. Also, don't you have to pour out a large amount of aura all at once to fill up that area?"

How many Aurors do you have to beat up? It's not the 9th floor Auror, and even if I were to become a Dekaron Knight tomorrow, I'm not sure if that would be a possible feat.

Of course, I don't know if Sungjin can bring out all the 'potential' he has... ..

"okay... .."

Seonghwang, who had been silent for a moment, slowly nodded his head. It seemed as if he had already guessed what conclusion Seongjin's thought process had ultimately led to.

So he answered a little cautiously.

"Then don't be too hard on yourself and bring everything to me. Whatever it is, it will be purified."

"....."

Seongjin shut his mouth and looked up at the tall silhouette of Seonghwang that was way above his head.

Even though he was covered by a thick hood, would it be too much of an assumption to feel that there was a hint of loneliness in his gaze as he looked at himself?

"... Yes, I will never overdo it."

So Seongjin nodded more vigorously and answered.

He desperately hopes that the small promise he is making now will relieve him of some of the burden on his mind.

"I will definitely bring the magic that seems difficult to handle on my own to the priest. "Of course."

After resolving the situation, the successful homunculus soon returned to his room and fell into silence.

But that brief commotion also had some positive results for Sungjin and his group.

First, let's look at Sir Robert's case. He was very discouraged because all the exorcism tools he normally used were consumed by magic.

But soon after, he was quite bewildered when he discovered tools that radiated divine powers of a different dimension than before.

'... what?'

Contrary to expectations that he would be busy with purification and consecration work for a while, his tools were now perfectly prepared.

No, it doesn't just radiate divine energy, it even gives off a subtle glow!

'Maybe it's because I was exposed to the divine power of Priest Bart earlier? No, no matter what...'

Sir Robert picked up a shiny token and quietly broke into a cold sweat.

'Wait a minute. But is it possible that all of these have become sacred relics? No way? No way?'

And the same was true for Branch Manager Schmidt. When he came to his senses shortly after everything was over, he was startled to find a faint halo surrounding his body.

Now, a new demon was born, following in the footsteps of the Demon King and surrounded by a sacred barrier.

"Rejoice, Branch Manager. Now that you have the Holy Boundary, you can freely travel to and from the Imperial City, unlike other demons."

However, even with Prince Mores' congratulations, Branch Manager Schmidt and Glumgoss could not simply rejoice. Not only was he unable to fully exert his demonic powers, he was now in a state where he could not even return to the Demon World at will.

'If other demons see me wearing the Holy Seal of the Holy Emperor... ...!'

Ah, it's over. It's all over!

As I was wrapping my head and feeling deeply frustrated, the prince tilted his head and asked.

"What's the problem? Why don't you just continue working under me instead of going back to the Demon World?"

"... How long, Your Majesty?"

"well? "Forever in the future?"

"What do you mean by that?""

"So maybe forever?"

"....."

Glumgos looked at the prince, who casually said 'eternity' in his human body, with a slightly strange expression.

Same time.

A suspicious guest visited the castle of the Marquis of Daciano, a place rarely visited by outsiders.

"... what? Wizard?"

"Yes, Marquis."

"Kick them out."

Berseus gave an order nervously. The entire territory was already in turmoil due to rumors that the imperial prince was planning to conquer the north, and there was no time to deal with such a rabble.

"But Marquis, he was truly a strange man. At first, I thought he was a fraud and tried to send him away, but he quickly overtook the guards and entered the castle walls. He seemed to be possessed by something."

"....."

Hearing the butler's unusual report, Berseus ended up walking down the corridor with reluctant steps. If he dares to engage in petty tricks in old Dacia, he will have to be killed with a single blow with his own hand.

As Bertheus arrived in the reception room, a woman wrapped in thick robes bowed her head respectfully to him.

"I meet the renowned Marquis."

He looks very shabby in his old robes. Nevertheless, her gentle movements gave off a strangely aristocratic impression.

"You found me all the time, right? why?"

"Because you are qualified to obtain the mysteries of the world. Dacianus, a direct descendant of the greatest lycanthrope in the world."

"....."

Berseus felt a somewhat contradictory feeling in her words.

Until now, every time I saw Nebraska's bloodline showing off, I was filled with jealousy.

But when he actually meets someone praising his ancestor Dacianus right in front of him, he is overcome with a feeling as if some twisted desire has been fulfilled.

but-

"Let me introduce myself first. I am the great Dacian-"

"gibberish!"

That doesn't mean you can say whatever you want in front of him.

Wood crack!

Berseus' thick hand firmly grasped the woman's slender neck.

"Ugh!"

"It's absurd. Did you think you could control this Berseus Dashiano with such low-level flattery? Know your subject, you lowly swindler!"

Yes, he probably would have just strangled her, if it weren't for the extremely unfamiliar sensation he felt in his hands.

Kwak! Kwak! Kwak!

Berseus, who heard a hard cracking sound like a piece of wood crunching, threw the woman to the floor and asked.

"You... aren't human?"

"Hoo hoo hoo."

The woman stood up unsteadily. Her half-broken neck hangs upside down in the air, drawing a grim smile.

"What sad words. "I am just a pitiful human being struggling to escape the cruel shackles of fate."

"Even after doing something like that?"

"This is because I happened to come across a precious mystery of the world. Do you, Marquis, know about the 'Immortal Secretary'?"

"....."

"You don't know much. I recommend that you read it as much as possible. "It is one of the most famous books written by Dacianus."

What kind of immortality is that? Damn immortality.

The original Berseus would have dismissed it all as nonsense and immediately kicked her out of the castle.

However, the self-proclaimed 'wizard' proved the truth of those words by surviving intact even after having his throat half torn off.

If you do that, it won't be that difficult to find some time.

"... First, let me hear what your business is."

483. Departure (4)

In this way, Berseus and the wizard were finally able to establish a proper dialogue, although one of them was clutching a sharp axe, while the other was looking strangely anxious, trying to keep his dangling head upright.

Eventually, the wizard gave up trying to maintain his balance, ripped the head completely off his body, and hugged it to his chest.

"My name is Sobie. Sobie of the Black Forest. But Lord Dacianus has always nicknamed me 'the Wise Owl.'"

She introduced herself as 'Dacian's last disciple.' It was a sound that could easily be dismissed as a bluff, but the other person was a real wizard who showed the ability to move unharmed even when his head was cut off.

Berceus asked after staring at the cross section of Sobier's shattered cervical vertebrae, torn muscles, and neck without any blood flowing at all.

"Then you must actually be from a long time ago. You don't look that old, but what era are you from?"

"well. The Black Forest is such a remote place that I was ignorant of its history and situation even while I was growing up there. "After I properly entered the mysteries, I didn't really count my age."

"... .."

"But even after I went underground to conduct research, it seemed like the empire had changed rulers for at least seven generations."

Since the era of Dacian goes back at least to the reign of the 4th Holy Emperor Constantine, this meant that the wizard was an old monster who had been at least hundreds of years old.

"So, you succeeded in creating the 'Soul Wall' based on the secret recipe left behind by your ancestors?"

"Yes, Marquis d'Arciano. "It was a long and arduous process, but it was well worth it."

The answer came from the cradled head, but the wizard's severed head also shook back and forth in response.

The sight was so unpleasant that for the first time, Berseus regretted his cruel hand.

"Then what happened to your ancestors who taught you?"

"Unfortunately, Dacianus did not stay by my side for very long. "Before I could complete 'The Wall of the Soul,' he suddenly left one day, leaving behind all my research materials and legacy."

Sobi touched her head in her arms in a somewhat sorrowful gesture.

"But I believe that he still lives somewhere on the continent. Just as this insignificant disciple did, the great wizard has finally achieved immortality by forming the 'Wall of Souls'."

Well, guess what.

Berseus did not completely believe her when she said that she alone had perfected the secret to immortality. From the sight of her holding her fallen neck, she was far from being in a normal living state, and above all, a weak magical energy had been detected in her from the beginning.

And that feeling became complete certainty when I saw the item that Sobier had brought out, saying it was the 'elixir of immortality.' That black potion bottle was apparently oozing ominous magical energy.

"Wizard. "You borrowed the power of the devil."

"... .."

"There is absolutely no way to explain this magic otherwise."

Berseus radiated ferocious energy and tightly gripped the ax on his lap.

"I don't know how you manage to keep your soul alive after your death without being dragged to the Demon Realm. But you didn't obtain 'immortality' in the way your ancestors sought. Didn't you?"

Hahaha.

Sobiye let out a soft laugh.

"As expected, I cannot fool the descendants of the great Dacianus. Yes, that is correct. My secret arts are still imperfect, so I have barely managed to extend this worthless life through irregular means."

"But how can you help me, when you barely survived thanks to the power of the devil? "For what reason?"

"My secret art is very powerful even though it is not yet perfected. And based on the research left behind by Dacianus, we are still continuing to develop."

"... .."

"Oh, you asked why I want to help you? It's simple. In order to perfect my secret art, I absolutely need the help of his descendant, the Marquis."

Swish.

Sobi, who had been speaking up to that point, brushed back the hair covering her face and smiled with a charming smile.

"Marquis D'Assano. Do you happen to know the whereabouts of the dragons that were defeated by the Demon Dragon at the end of the Age of the Three Dragons?"

[...] The dragons defeated by Typhon fled to the ends of the world.]

That day, Seongjin had a strange dream.

As I floated in the air, feeling a light floating feeling, I heard someone's voice reciting an old story echoing in the air.

The moment he absentmindedly listened to the sound, his consciousness automatically shot towards the place where the story was coming from.

[Dragon of the Earth, Schwarzwald. He dragged his dying body to the edge of the continent, in the frigid land, and buried himself there. As time passed, large coniferous trees covered the land, and his grave became, as its name suggests, the 'Black Forest.']

I don't know how far Seongjin flew, but he arrived at the border of a shabby level. No, it was an extremely fragile curtain made up of vague images that was embarrassing to even be called the boundary of a dimension.

Let's slowly push our consciousness into it, and the small salt dimension accepted Seongjin's consciousness without any resistance.

[And the dragon of the sea, Galazia Thalassa. He hid himself in one of the deepest trenches, nursing his wounds. No one seeks the abyss beneath the vast ocean, and no one has seen him since that day.]

As I entered the interior, my vision suddenly became brighter and the sight of a gorgeous living room came into view. Fluffy curtains, quaint bookshelves, and a beautiful tea table with delicious refreshments... ..

On the other hand, one wall is filled with modern home appliances such as a TV, coffee pot, and oven. It was the perfect place to spend time alone.

[Finally, the dragon of time, Duser Parbat. He was so scared that he flew over and knelt down in front of the Lord. And he desperately prayed that his life would be spared. It was a truly unsightly little creature that could not be considered an ancient dragon that dominated an era.]

And there were two people sitting there, a man with a handsome appearance and a woman dressed in white. Among them, the woman had a face that Seongjin was familiar with.

'Saint, Seo Yi-seo...'

In that case, that guy is probably-

Seongjin crossed his arms and carefully observed the man's appearance. A shiny face, old-fashioned clothes, dark blonde hair that resembles Lord Martha, and the eyes of a wild beast that radiate brilliance...

It was true. That bastard was the thousand-year-old carnivore who couldn't even die, Cadmus.

[So the Lord ultimately told this body to slay the demon dragon, Typhon. My side was much more trustworthy than the ancient dragons that supported the world.

In other words, this body is the true hero who ended the age of myth and opened the age of humanity, the age of the millennial kingdom...]

... This is my first time seeing someone brag about himself so grandiosely.

It seems that Seongjin was not the only one who felt that way. Seo Yi-seo, who had been listening patiently until then, finally let out her long yawn and grumbled.

[Oh, Mr. Cardmos. Please be more moderate! Whenever you get drunk, you start talking about that again and again. If that isn't drunkenness, then what is it?]

[what? No, what did this insignificant creature say to the great demigod just now? Drunk? Such arrogance... hmm?]

Cadmus, who finally sensed Seongjin's presence, growled and turned around.

[What kind of guy are you, trespassing here without permission!]

Although he had a rather ominous demeanor, Seongjin raised his hand in a relaxed manner to let him know that he had no intention of attacking.

[It's okay. I'll do it, Ancestor.]

[...] you!]

Kayak! Darkness 2 has appeared here!

Leaving behind Seo Yi-seo's meaningless scream, Cadmus glared harshly at Seong-jin. The elongated pupils are constricted to the limit, ready to attack at any moment.

[This is wrong! How did you find out about this place?]

[Well, somehow... ..]

[Then get the hell out of here before I kick you out! As the king who rules this dimension, I can no longer allow people like you to pollute this space!]

It's a shame that you discriminate against people so much.

Seongjin, who was feeling sorry, ignored him and walked briskly towards the tea table.

'Oh, there's all the ice cream here? Did Seo Yi-seo imagine it and create it?'

I haven't seen it since the Gehenna Gate opened. How many decades has it been since then? This winter, I wonder if I should try making shaved ice and start a big ice cream business.

Yum Yum. As I was thinking about that while tasting the ice cream, ugly scale patterns began to appear here and there on Cadmus' body as he glared at Seongjin. It was proof that he was extremely upset right now.

[How dare you ignore my warning! You guys until the end... ..!]

But there was a part of Sungjin that believed in everything. He put the ice cream bowl down on the table and snorted softly.

[I don't really have anything to say if you hate me that much. Aren't you embarrassed to be yelling when you're not even the landlord?]

[...] what?]

[If you want to expel him, then try it. Anything is possible for the King of Dimensions. But, Ancestor, isn't that impossible for you?]

That would be the case.

[You're not the master of this dimension anyway, right? So where are you acting like a king right now, huh?]

[... ..]

You're clinging to Seo Yi-seo's weak temple and making a fuss, and now you're talking so loudly about something so great. It's ridiculous.

Cadmus became dumbfounded by Sungjin's sharp remark. Only Seo Yi-seo, who created the salt dimension without knowing anything, was bewildered as he listened to the conversation between the two.

[Huh? Huh? Huh?]

okay. Surprisingly, the owner of this clumsy flame level was Seo Yi-seo. As soon as I came here, I could tell that fact at a glance.

Seeing her create such a realistic environment and edible foods, she must have been a very imaginative person.

'But we still don't have enough control.'

Perhaps it is because the overall understanding of dimensions is poor.

And as he was unable to completely control his own thoughts, there was a high possibility that other people's consciousness would intrude into them. Like right now.

[This is wrong. I really want to see the end here!]

Krrrrrr... ..

The scales on Cadmus' body stand upright, and a brilliant golden aura flickers.

However, if it is a world of images that clearly reflect people's imagination, Seongjin also had his own appropriate way to respond.

Grumble!

As soon as a crimson flame appeared and circled around Seongjin, Cadmus flinched for the first time and looked at Seongjin.

Why not? The destructive power of this Demon King No. 2 is enough to make even the goddess Justitia of the Pangea Chronicle bow down.

[Now, what would you do? Are you going to have a fight with me like this and burn your soul? Or will you just get along well with me without causing trouble?]

[that... ! Wow, what a mess!]

Cardmos slowly backed away with a tired look on his face. Then, realizing belatedly that he was scared, he suddenly got irritated at Seo Yi-seo for no reason.

[Ah, you rascal! What are you just staring at so stupidly? If you have time, hurry up and get me that 'ramen' food!]

However, even the seemingly stupid Seo Yi-seo had ears that could hear everything.

[No, wait, wait!]

Yeah.

She frowned and waved her hand at Cadmus.

[So now, in this dimension... In other words, I am the owner of this space, right? Then don't tell me to do this or that anymore, Mr. Cadmus!]

[What... ...!]

[And the same goes for you, Mr. Black Curtain 2.]

Seo Yi-seo placed her hand on her waist and made a request calmly.

[You are not invited. So, can you please get out of here?]

But Seongjin had no intention of just leaving like this. He had a special purpose, and he came all the way here to confirm it.

so.

[Don't be so hard on yourself. It seems like you've been suffering from Cadmos for a long time. Should I make you something delicious?]

[...yes?]

[This is salmon cream pasta, and it has a lot of spinach in it, so it's good for your health. And this is salmon papillote. It's a new product made for a limited time at our salmon specialty store. Just try it.]

The characteristic of the world of salt painting is that it reflects strong images as they are. This means that it is possible to perfectly implement food from memory into reality.

[oh...]

Seo Yi-seo's eyes lit up as she saw delicious dishes she had never seen before.

Maybe it's because I've met only the worst men since I arrived in Delcross, but for some reason that kind prince's face seems to glow brightly!

[They say that if you do well, you'll become the best Benz man, and it really is!]

Well, I'm glad you like the dish.

... But what is a Benz man?

484. Departure (5)

I don't know why Seo Yi-seo suddenly called Sung-jin a 'Benz man'.

However, once he received her recognition as the Dimensional King, he felt the spiritual pressure that had been secretly oppressing Sungjin's consciousness begin to decrease. This world no longer rejected his existence.

On the other hand, Cardmos, who had become a relative 'shit car', had no choice but to quietly shrivel up in a corner of the room under the sudden strong pressure.

[What the...! You damn thing! Why did you suddenly show up and ruin everything!]

Well, isn't it that you've solved it rather than ruined it? How dare you think of eating the King of Dimensions? You should know shame, you thousand-year-old carnivore!

Anyway, Sungjin thought as he leaned back comfortably on the sofa he was occupying.

'While I'm at it, should I try to get along with Seo Yi-seo from now on? I have a feeling that I'll be needing help from here from time to time in the future.'

So Sungjin made Seoyi Seo a few more dishes. From the most basic salmon steak, to salmon salad, and salmon rolls that could be eaten easily.

[Wow... ... !]

Seo Yi-seo's mouth became agape. She tasted various foods, and soon she was dancing with happiness, shaking her shoulders.

'Hmm, is this enough food?'

Next time, I thought about making some flowers to go with it. But Seongjin couldn't help but hesitate...

Because, although it was attempted with confidence at first, the flower image only flickered like a faint illusion and then simply disappeared into the air.

'... Huh? Why?'

Seongjin, who had been pondering for a moment, realized that there was no specific image of the flower in his head. He had received so many flowers from Lady Chloe, but why were their shapes and scents so vague? In the case of the salmon dish, he could vividly recall even a single piece of parsley.

Perhaps, because he tasted each one and adjusted the taste before taking it to the king, it seems to have remained in his memory more clearly.

'Then what about things like weapons? Like a nutcracker or... . . . '

As soon as I thought that, I felt a heavy weight on my waist, as if it were a lie.

Seongjin laughed as he touched the handle that had become his own body. Wow, Yeomsang is really amazing.

[Hey. Thanks to you, I had a nice meal for the first time in a while. But what are you doing here? How did you get into this space? Mr. Benz, the black curtain.]

Seongjin blinked at Seo Yiseo's sudden question.

Oh, right. This isn't the time for me to be practicing making salt.

[Actually, I came here because there was something I wanted to see.]

[What is that something?]

[I don't really know. I just had a strong feeling that I would see it if I came here.]

[...Eh?]

Leaving the bewildered Seo Yi-seo behind, he took a good look around the living room, and somehow his eyes were drawn to the large TV placed in the corner. As he was drawn to pick up the remote control, Seo Yi-seo stopped him.

[Oh, that would be useless. I tried several times and couldn't get any channels. And since there's no Wi-Fi, there's no OTT service either...]

Blink.

Seo Yi-seo was startled when the TV screen lit up as if by magic along with the power button.

[What, what is this? How did this happen?]

It must be a characteristic of the world of salt images that reflects the mind as it is. It seemed to be a phenomenon that occurred due to the combination of the TV's characteristic of picking up invisible signals and a certain salt image created by Seongjin.

slam!

The TV screen showed a dark night sea scene. Looking at the deep blue sea with no trace of land, it seemed like it was probably a deep sea far from land.

In the center of the screen, a small sailing ship with only one mast was sailing along the constellations. It's hard to see on the screen, but judging by the taut sails that were being blown by the wind, it must be gaining speed quite quickly.

[Wow. Is this a documentary?]

Seo Yi-seo was glued to the screen with food in her mouth. Even though it was just a dull scene with her stomach moving, it seemed like it was fun to see the TV screen after such a long time.

[...]

Seongjin, who had been staring at the sight for a moment, changed the channel again.

Click.

Then the night seascape disappears, and this time, pitch-black darkness covers the entire screen.

For a moment they thought the TV had gone off, but soon they could see a faint glow in the corner of the screen. Upon closer inspection, they saw that it was a small deep-sea fish with glowing antennae on its forehead.

[What a strange looking fish. I think this is National Geographic.]

Perhaps because Seo Yi-seo was distracted, Cardmos, who had escaped the heavy pressure, slowly approached the TV. After secretly checking Sung-jin's expression, he sat down next to Seo Yi-seo and began to watch the TV screen intently.

[...]

Seongjin stared at the dark shadows hidden beyond the dark screen and changed the channel again.

Click.

This time, dozens of dolphins washed up on the shore. The soft moonlight was gently flowing down on the skin of the pitiful, dying animals.

Click.

There is also a view of a bare hill. Judging by the brightly lit council building in the distance, this is probably the coast of Cyprus.

Click.

The back of a large man passing by, pouring a glass while looking out at the night sea. At first glance, he seemed to be a sailor, but the hand holding the glass was covered not with human skin, but with blue scales.

Click.

A dark stable, with horses and wolfdogs fast asleep inside, flash by.

Click.

Click.

Click...

And finally, Seongjin found the sight he wanted, stopped changing channels and stared at the screen.

[Huh? That guy... ...!]

Seo Yi-seo blinked when she recognized the man's face on the screen.

He was a man with light blond hair that was tinged with gray. He was a very handsome young man with sharp features, except for the distorted burn marks on his neck and chin.

[Ambrose of Helios...]

As expected, Cadmus' pupils constricted vertically as he recognized him.

[What the hell is that thing doing?]

Elder Cruse returned to the mansion late at night, having been busy with council business.

But as soon as he opened the front door, there was a huge pile of rocks in the middle of the garden that had never been there before. He frowned and looked for his servant.

"Spiros! Spiros! What are all these?"

"The remains of a dismantled tower, Father."

Startle.

Cruses was greatly surprised by the unexpected voice that suddenly came out.

But soon, he skillfully pretended to be calm and looked at his 'son' who was slowly approaching him.

"... A tower? Why is it here... .."

"You didn't know? It's been quite some time since they started dismantling the head tower. Well, my father has been quite busy these days, trying to persuade the members of the National Assembly to gather public opinion against the departure."

"... .."

"But isn't it a shame that it's a landmark of Cyprus, and that it's left in such a shabby state? The majority of the members of the National Assembly agreed to the plan to repair the tower. So I didn't bring it up as a separate agenda item, and I quietly worked on it alone."

Elder Cruse glared warily at his son, who was already taller than him.

"... It wasn't even brought up as an agenda item? Then how was it possible to execute the budget?"

The council was already suffering from severe financial pressure due to the long-term suspension of fishing and the operation of the punitive force. Isn't that why Cruses wants to disband the punitive force as soon as possible?

Then Ambrose answered with a somewhat amusing expression on his face.

"Well, it wasn't hard to convince the council members. I had no intention of using up the council's budget in the first place. When we at Helios said we would share in the costs, they passed the work on to me without a word."

"what?"

Cruz burst into a roar.

"You should have told me about such important matters in advance!"

"I couldn't help it. I didn't get to see my father's face while he was being treated for his burns at the council."

"Oh, right! Since we're on the subject, I'll ask. Why didn't you immediately return to the mansion to recuperate after such a big accident? Do you even know what the other council members are gossiping about us right now?"

Then, Ambrose, who had been smiling brightly despite Chryses' strong reprimand, paused for a moment and answered calmly.

"Isn't that natural? I'm afraid that this time my father will kill me, so how can I return home with peace of mind?"

"...what?"

"You didn't plan on killing me naturally while you were at it? You've been really uncomfortable with [the puppeteer's] presence lately."

"... ..!"

"Or is it just that this unfilial son misunderstood his father's wishes?"

At the young man's answer, Elder Criss realized that one of the worst possibilities he had ever wanted to imagine had become a reality. He hesitated and stepped back, his face pale.

"...Ambrose!"

"Yes, that's right. That's right, Father."

"You... when on earth did you turn back into 'you' again?"

"Hahaha!"

In the desolate garden, illuminated only by pale moonlight, the young man's hollow laughter echoes loudly.

"I see. You already knew! Even though you knew exactly what would happen to me, you still sold me to that old bastard when I was little! Hahahaha!"

Ambrosius, who had been laughing for a long time while shaking his shoulders, soon completely erased his smile and glared at Chryses. In his ice-cold sky-blue eyes, a deep hatred that had been growing quietly for many years was surging.

"Because of that father, I have lived in hell all my life. You cannot even imagine. How horrible it is to be trapped in your own body, your mind still intact, and your body completely controlled by someone else."

"... .."

"I couldn't even dream of the future, and I didn't dare to think of having someone in my heart. I was so deeply despairing that all this suffering came from none other than my own blood relatives, and I just cursed and cursed everything in this world."

"Oh, son! I... ..!"

"So don't you dare call me son with that mouth!"

Ambrose growled for the first time, revealing his hostility in plain sight. His aura was sharp as a dagger, and the very air in the garden seemed to freeze.

"You've had some fun in return for selling me out. With the puppeteer's help, you've built a family, and with his power, you've defeated your enemies and enjoyed unprecedented power. But in all that success, there was no place for your poor son!"

"That, that is... .."

"But what can we do about this? Unfortunately, the puppeteer is not coming back anymore. He is completely under the delusion that he has met his death."

That day, the day the 'Ancient Fire' exploded in the Council Building-
The puppeteer's soul was caught in the explosion and suffered a great shock. Sigurd Sigurdson, who had been barely able to rise to the surface while suppressing Ambrosius's unusually strong ego, gave up control of his body due to the accident and fell into silence.

The puppeteer, who had been convinced that even the last doll had died, could no longer predict when he would wake up.

"You are a very foolish man, Cruses."

Damn it.

Ambrose slowly approached the unsteady-backed elder.

"You were swayed by the fanatic Galeno's words and tried to make me into a 'reserve'. And when that failed, you used my body as bait to lure the puppeteer into your family. And with that power, you dreamed of the family's revival and of power that was not befitting of your station."

Thud, thud.

"But look, what was the use of it all? Now everything you've accomplished will be mine."

Ambrose, having said this, looked down at the elder and smiled a deep, triumphant smile.

"In the end, I won over you."

485. Departure (6)

Perhaps the beginning was the sister of Grand Duke Assein, who had just married into Cyprus.

-Have you ever heard of the 'reserve'?

-A reserve? What is that, ma'am?

To Cruse's question, the young wife answered with her beautiful eyes sparkling like stars.

- He is said to be the true ruler that God has prepared for the new era. He will come like a comet, cutting through the darkness, uniting the divided religious groups and leading us to the new truth. All things in the world will kneel at his feet, and true harmony and peace will be found under his rule.

-... ..

At first I thought, what the heck is this?

But soon after, his wife introduced him to a man named Galen, and his wife's preconceived notions that he was a fanatic with bad taste melted away the moment they first met.

- It is impossible for all the conflicts in the world to disappear at once. However, we can solve the problems that are piling up before us one by one based on reason and wisdom.

The Galenus whom Cruses met was an extremely rational and wise man. His voice never rose, and his carefully spoken words were always imbued with the providence of the world.

- Our earnest desire for the 'prepared' is not simply due to our weakness in seeking salvation. Rather, it comes from our deep trust in the infinite potential of human beings. All of these things are nothing more than an effort to find a strong center that can unite human faith and will.

-Trust in humans?

- Yes, Helios' Chryses. We must not be mistaken. The power of the 'reserve' is our own power, and the mercy he shows is the sum total of good will in each of our hearts. What we wait for him for is ultimately to draw out our potential to the fullest and create a true utopia.

Ah, perhaps that is what a true fanatic looks like. A prophet with unwavering faith in his eyes and calm words guiding everyone.

Cruses soon became deeply attracted to his knowledge and character. Naturally, he also became very interested in the 'prepared ones' he spoke of.

So, he entrusted his firstborn son, born the following year, to Galen without any doubt, hoping that his son would become a kind of key to rule over all the world.

but-

-I'm sorry, but this child is not enough.

Despite a series of rigorous training courses, Ambrose ultimately failed to meet the criteria for what Galen calls a "prepared man."

Of course, Cruz was disappointed, but his wife, who had high expectations for her son, was also very disappointed.

- It's over now! The 'prepared one' will probably be born in the Principality of Asain. My brother is a meticulous person who can prepare all conditions without any gaps. In the end, he, who is greedy, will take over everything in this world!

Cruse's misfortunes did not end there, for not long afterwards the bitter retaliation of Grand Duke Assein returned.

Helios began to decline economically, and Chryses found himself on the defensive to the point where even his membership in the council was in jeopardy.

But at that time, a helping hand came from an unexpected place. It was Richelieu, the Brittany ambassador who happened to be visiting the Council of Cyprus.

Richelieu was a strange man who always wore a half-mask, but despite his suspicious appearance, he was able to win the hearts of the council members with surprising ease.

One day, as he was slowly blending into the Cypriot high society, he approached Chryses and made this secret proposal.

-Would you please hand over your son to me? I am looking for a disciple to whom I can pass on all my knowledge, and your son seems to be a good fit. I will help you solve the various problems you face, even if it is not your place.

The intention behind the proposal was questionable, but at least Richelieu's influence was certain. He not only brought back the departing merchants to Helios, but also calmed down his enemies who were desperate to attack Chryses.

The dumbfounded Cruz couldn't help but ask:

-You're going to all this trouble to have a disciple? And why my son of all people?

Then Richelieu smiled and answered like this.

-There's no particular reason. I just really like the child's 'name'.

-Your name... is that?

-That's right. Besides, I like my son's personality quite a bit.

Cruse couldn't believe it. He had been having a hard time with his son recently.

Ambrose, who had undergone Galen's extraordinary 'training' since birth, was now so eccentric that he was almost uncontrollable at home.

Do you really like that deep hatred and rebellion that can never be controlled by beating someone?

But Richelieu dismissed Cruse's worries with a laugh.

-Since ancient times, in order to easily accept new teachings, a 'deficiency' of equal magnitude is needed.

-... Deficiency? Are you saying that kind of thing really helps in teaching a child?

-That's right. You could think of it as a kind of free space where 'knowledge' can settle down.

It was only for a moment that he left his child in such a half-hearted manner, and the change that Ambrose showed in just a few days was extremely dramatic.

The hatred and venom that had been gushing from his eyes disappeared, and in their place was ancient wisdom and composure.

Instead of picking a fight with everyone with his childish rebellion, he became an ideal son who knew how to give them a calculated smile.

But at the same time, Cruz couldn't help but realize.

That 'that thing' was no longer his real son. That it was nothing more than a sullen monster, crouching in his son's guise.

* * *

"I, I really didn't know it would turn out like this, Ambrose."

Cruz continued to stammer his excuses in a trembling voice.

"Richelieu, I never imagined at the time that he was a [puppeteer]. And when I found out... everything was already irreversible."

Yeah. I thought it was already beyond my control and gave up on everything.

And the consequences of that cowardice were now before his eyes, with the deep-rooted hatred that had been building up over the years.

"At that time, I had no other choice."

But the eyes of Ambrose looking down at such a crusade were cold.

"No, that's not it. You had the opportunity to kick Richelieu out several times later. But you didn't."

"that....."

"Because the puppeteer's assistance was so sweet. You knew very well what he would do in the future to solidify 'my' position."

"... .."

"You must have expected that he would continue to give you political power. You must have also guessed that he would prioritize the prosperity of Helios over any other city."

After saying that, Ambrose paused for a moment, then lowered his head and looked straight into Chryses' eyes, baring his teeth.

"So you had no regrets at all. By that time, you had two more sons to take my place."

"... ..!"

Ambrose's voice was cold and calm, but that did not diminish the murderous glint in his eyes in the least.

"Hey, hey! Is there no one around? Spiros! Thasos!"

The terrified Cruses backed away and called out the servants' names. He had been having a bad feeling since a while ago.

but-

[Come out.]

Soon, with Ambrose's soft command, those he had been desperately searching for appeared behind him. Chryses' eyes widened.

"...Spiros? Thasos?"

"Were you looking for these guys?"

"Why are they following you?"

"It's nothing. The long memories of my life as a puppeteer are still intact within me. It's just that freely displaying his abilities isn't that easy."

Thanks to that, I needed time to get used to the power. Otherwise, I could have gotten back here a little sooner.

Ambrosius muttered as he slowly approached Chryses, accompanied by his loyal servants, whose expressions had completely disappeared, like dolls.

Damn it.

"Wait a minute! Let's talk... let's talk, son!"

Damn it.

"I will give you everything I have! This mansion! The seat of the Council Elders! Even Helios! Everything!"

"No. Even if you don't, it's all mine already."

chin.

Ambrosius, who had finally come close to them, put his hand on Chryses' shoulder and smiled brightly.

"Your presence is now nothing but a nuisance to me. You continue to block the second departure by manipulating public opinion in the council. What kind of atrocity is that?"

"Second... departure? Why is that... ..?"

"Why? Because I need to get the people out of Cyprus as soon as possible. Only then can I have time to properly explore that 'top'?"

Ambrose, who had kindly added an explanation, patted the elder on the shoulder and gave a soft order.

[So now please shut that useless mouth of yours, Father.]

Jjing-

A powerful wave that shakes the soul.

Cruse, who had a blank expression for a moment, soon fumbled with his neck with a puzzled expression. What kind of harmony is this? No matter how hard he opens his mouth, no sound comes out!

"ugh.....!"

Ambrose, who had been leisurely looking down at the pitiful sight for a moment, soon nodded his head at the expressionless servants.

[Catch him.]

The image on the screen finally came to a complete end, with Elder Cruz being dragged along helplessly.

Crackle! Crackle!

Seo Yi-seo swung her sword fiercely at the screen that was now not receiving anything.

[I, I! I'm such a bad son of a bitch!]

It didn't seem like I had really empathized with Elder Cruz. I guess I just felt like I was watching an exciting soap opera.

As evidence, she had even made popcorn and was munching on it.

[... ..]

On the other hand, Cardmos' reaction was a little different. He spoke with a complicated expression, unable to take his eyes off the noisy screen.

[... Every time I looked at it, I felt something was off, but it turns out that Sigurd Sigurdsson failed to completely take over the doll's body.]

Seongjin looked down at him coldly.

[You really didn't know?]

[Yeah, I didn't know. Am I trapped in that woman's body right now?]

Cadmus made an excuse, groping for food on the table.

[The only way I could tell Sigurd Sigurdson's doll apart was because of the peculiar, sinister aura his soul gave off. However, that alone was no way to tell whether his soul was active or asleep.]

And yet, before he knew it, he was eating each and every one of the salmon dishes that Seongjin had made.

Seongjin had noticed it long ago, but he pretended not to notice it for the sake of Cardmos, who was already at a loss. He didn't even bother to refill the empty plate of salmon papillote.

[So, does this confirm everything you wanted to see?]

[Maybe.]

Ambrose of Helios.

To be honest, the fact that the puppeteer was pushed out and his ego was revealed to the surface was a completely unexpected outcome for Sungjin.

An unexpected turning point that would never have occurred originally, caused by the clash between the two oracles, Seonghwang and Seongjin.

[But why is your expression like that? You're not going to sympathize with that guy's situation now, are you? After all, they're all the same guys. They're just cold-blooded people who won't hesitate to harm their own flesh and blood for their own desires.]

[No, isn't that at least not something you should be saying?]

Seo Yi-seo, who had been listening to their conversation, suddenly interrupted and raised an objection.

[The one who incited his descendants to bloodshed? And that's not all. Even these days, whenever he gets a chance, he's always trying to take over Sisley's body!]

[What? What is this insignificant thing saying to this great demigod?]

[Oh, don't yell at me! If I, the owner of this place, am a small thing, then what kind of bug are you? A cockroach? Or a water flea?]

[I really want to see this crap!]

Leaving them behind while they bickered, Seongjin sat silently lost in thought.

Do you sympathize with Ambrose? I still couldn't quite figure that out myself.

It's just frustrating to think about how it must have been for him to not have a single blood relative in this world that he could trust, and to have even his father, who was supposed to be his strong shield, betray him.

If by any chance I were in that situation, just imagining it would make my heart ache.

[... Hey, what a weird place, you're a sloppy guy.]

Cadmos glanced at Seongjin as he pushed away the raging Seo Yi-seo with one hand.

[By the way, I think I know why you guys came all the way here.]

This was a small space created within Delcross, barely existing based on Seoyeo's delusions.

But even so, the fact remains that it is a new dimension with minimal conditions.

In other words, for Seongjin, this was the place where he would be least affected by the karma.

[Besides, you didn't see the things you wanted to see with your own eyes. Didn't you just 'accidentally' catch a glimpse of everything through the objects created by that little creature?]

[Yes, well...]

[... Such a clever thing. There were really various ways to avoid the causal reaction.]

Cadmus muttered under his breath. But his expression as he spoke was not as grim as before.

[Yes. That kid keeps calling me son, son, and he definitely takes after his father in terms of cleverness.]

[...what?]

Seongjin, who was usually able to tolerate most things, eventually lost his temper at those words.

No, who is this millennium-old carnivore calling clever now? Yes?

486. Departure (7)

[No, where in the world is there a person with such noble character as our father who would make such a rash remark? Please show proper courtesy to the representative of the Supreme God!]

[You rascal! What kind of character can you find in a brat who only knows how to fight around like you! And who was the one who ate the food first? I am the distant ancestor of Seonghwangga!]

[You're funny! You didn't even treat me as your descendant before, and now you want to treat me as your ancestor? People, have some shame!]

[What? Let's see if this is real... ... !]

Cardmos, who had another heated argument with Seongjin, quickly backed down when he saw red flames rising around Seongjin. It seemed like he was afraid that Demon King No. 2 might be summoned again.

Oh, but don't be too discouraged. You have to be a strong shield that protects Logan and Sisley.

So before leaving, Sungjin prepared a few more plates of raw salmon for him. Since ancient times, there is nothing better than food to appease a carnivore.

He also didn't forget to warn Seo Yi-seo, who was becoming increasingly arrogant.

[Even after I leave here, try not to clash too violently with Cardmos. If that human gets really angry, this world of flames will probably disappear without a trace.]

There must be a reason why he calls himself a 'demigod' without hesitation. Despite having such power, he is surprisingly quiet and reserved, which is strange.

Perhaps the reason Demon King No. 2's threat works so well is because he's worried that this small salt world will burn down completely. That carnivorous insect seems to have some affection for this place.

[In fact, Cardmos is the one who can protect you the most. So, even though his personality is a bit strange, don't hate him too much and try to get along well.]

The world of Seoyi Seo's salt chamber is a place that can be used usefully in the future. So, if possible, we should preserve it so that it doesn't get damaged.

But Seo Yi-seo's reaction to hearing those words was unexpected.

[Well, it's not that I particularly hate that guy, Mr. Benz. Mr. Cardmos is handsome.]

Uh...what?

As Sungjin was dumbfounded, she playfully rolled her eyes and glanced at Cadmus.

[Of course, sometimes I get so arrogant that I get upset. But then, when I look at that face again, my anger goes away without me realizing it.]

[... ..]

[Oh, by the way, isn't that guy pretty cute even when he's angry?]

... What is this? This ultimate lookist.

[Ahem.]

But what Cardmos did was even more amazing. He pretended not to hear their conversation, coughed in vain, and brushed his hair back in a fancy way.

'That's a strange combination that goes well with anything... .. '

But is there no need to worry about the survival of this world anymore? Sungjin concluded hesitantly and tried to wave his hand at the faint dimensional boundary to slowly leave this place.

But that was then.

[...Look here.]

Cardmos awkwardly calls out to Sungjin, avoiding eye contact. He doesn't call him by his name properly, but it seems like he's made great progress since he no longer criticizes him as something bad.

[What is it?]

[So, what are you going to do now? What are you going to do with that Ambrose of Helios?]

[I don't do anything in particular. I have other things to do right now.]

In fact, I'm not even sure how much of it I'll remember when I wake up.

[Then why on earth did you come here?]

[At least you've confirmed his identity, right? So I'm hoping you won't be fooled by someone pretending to be Sigurd Sigurdsson, and that you'll take good care of Logan and Sisley.]

Maybe those sights were meant for Cadmus and not for me.

At Seongjin's calm answer, Cardmos frowned for a moment, then took a step closer while narrowing his widened pupils.

[That's only natural. Those children are my precious descendants.]

Oh, right. So I'm still not your descendant.

[But, you know.]

[yes?]

[I'm asking because I don't feel any impure intentions from you yet, but you know very well, don't you? This state of anxiety can't continue forever.]

As he spoke, Cardmos looked straight into Seongjin's face for the first time. He had an unusually serious attitude for a mediocre carnivore.

[Sometimes, there are things in the world that can never be overcome with willpower alone. No matter how much you care for each other, there are definitely relationships in the world where your intentions are toxic to the other person. And that's just your nature.]

[...]

[Do you understand? Your meaningless efforts will only make the child who is barely holding up the world more anxious. So you can't acknowledge and accept this reality?]

Seongjin clenched his fist without realizing it.

No, that will never happen. I won't let that happen. Because.

[It's okay. I'll help my father well.]

Although there was no reason for my throat to become sore as I was not being restrained by the flesh, what came out were murky thoughts that seemed to be split somewhere.

Then Cardmos suddenly got angry at Seongjin.

[Helping? That's ridiculous! How can the work of a Dimensional Guardian be easily shared? And even if it were possible, it would be a problem! If you try to exert your power in the gap while still a spirit, you will eventually... ... !]

[...]

[at last.....?]

Cardmos, who had been shouting in an upbeat manner, found something and his eyes widened. Before he knew it, a dark gray landmark had appeared in Seongjin's hand and was emitting a brilliant light.

A mysterious bridge that bridges the gap between ideals and reality.

Another possibility created by the will of the Oracle.

[That, that is... ...!]

He could guess what Seongjin was trying to say without even having to listen, but he couldn't overcome the shock and stammered.

[Now... Are you really crazy? Are you going to do something with that?]

Why? There's no way you can't do it, right?

It was all thanks to this milestone that Sungjin was able to separate his consciousness from his body without much noise. With this, he could connect reality to the world of ideas at any time.

So, if you use this well...

[You think you can interfere with the world of ideas while possessing a real body? You dare say that you will bear the limitations of a human body and fight against threats coming from the gap? That is ridiculous... ... !]

However, when Seongjin did not respond, Cadmus' eyes darkened.

[... You, you're serious.]

Now Cadmus' gaze had changed from seeing something unpleasant to seeing a great madman.

He bit his lip for a moment as if he was displeased, then quickly turned his head away.

[Ah, that's enough! Now this body really doesn't know! You rich people who just leave can do whatever you want!]

Yeah, that's what it was like anyway.

So, I'm telling you to mind your own business.

Seongjin left the small world of salt and flew into the dark night sky.

As I flew through the sky for a while and returned to my body in Regina, I heard the familiar voices chattering in my ears.

[Mores, are you coming now?]

[Mores, where have you been?]

But Sungjin didn't have the presence of mind to answer that question. As his consciousness began to return to reality, memories from the night began to flow out like an ebb tide. It was a feeling that wasn't so unfamiliar anymore.

Blink.

Seongjin opened his eyes in a dazed state. Judging from the dimness outside the window, it seemed to be still early in the morning.

'My head feels a bit heavy. Did I have a nightmare or something...?'

Most of the memories had already been washed away, but at least some of the intense memories left some traces in my mind.

'Ambrose of Helios... . And, the head tower... ... ?'

What the heck? What the heck was I dreaming about?

Seongjin stretched and got up. Then, suddenly, he realized that he wasn't the only person in the room and opened his eyes wide.

"...father?"

When I came in, there was a homunculus of the Holy Spirit sitting on one side of the room as if it were a lie.

He nodded slowly at Seongjin's call.

"Yes, Mores."

Since the Homunculus of the Holy Emperor had no aura activity at all, it had the characteristic of not making much of a sound. So, if he stayed still and didn't move, it was quite difficult for even Sungjin to sense his presence.

"When did you come?"

"I just got here. I stopped by for a moment before preparing for the state council meeting."

...just now?

Seongjin looked at him with a sense of discomfort. It was not that he was not feeling it, but rather that he felt a strange sense of time from the way he was glued to the chair as if he were a piece of furniture.

[It's all Mores' fault. He just disappeared somewhere without warning.]

[Your presence suddenly fades away, so Dad Peha can't help but be startled and run over.]

If Sungjin's salt crystals were active, he would have been able to hear the twins' thoughts circling around his bedside.

But since that wasn't something that would happen often, I just thought that maybe Seonghwang had some urgent business.

"Why didn't you just wake me up instead of making me wait for nothing?"

Seongjin, who was just about to get out of bed, suddenly realized that he was holding tightly in his hand the milestone he had made himself a while ago.

Seongjin quickly threw it into the bedding. For some reason, he felt it would be a bit awkward to show it to Seonghwang.

"... .."

Of course, there was no point in hiding it, and the gaze of the saint followed the milestone exactly.

'Oh, yeah. I thought Dad would know anyway. But this is just a matter of feeling.'

Seongjin glanced at the demon king who was holding his breath while clinging to the lamp, then slowly approached the Seonghwang.

"Well, that's a good thing, Father. You haven't been here for the past few days, have you? There was something I wanted to confirm with you before I left for the Marquisate."

"check."

"yes."

Seongjin pulled up a chair across from him and sat down, speaking in a gentle tone.

"Don't follow me this time."

"... .."

"Anyway, it's not like Father can enjoy his trip comfortably. He'll end up spending most of his time lying down, so there'll be rumors that the prince is forcing the priest, who is too sick to even get up, to come along."

Seonghwang stared blankly at Seongjin without answering.

"I've secured Giacomo Milo's new recruits, so you don't have to worry about me anymore. I'm not going to fight anywhere, right? And Sir Marsain and Captain Bruno are with you."

"... .."

"First of all, Father, if things continue like this, I feel like your identity will be revealed soon."

Lately, people who know Seonghwang well seem to be feeling a little uneasy. In particular, Sir Marsain is said to be looking at Priest Bart with suspicious eyes whenever he meets him.

Above all, this situation was not good for the Emperor himself. It couldn't be easy to randomly force a sane soul into the laws of the world of rules.

But these days, isn't this guy going back and forth between his true self and homunculus as easily as eating?

However, Seonghwang, who had been silently listening to Seongjin's lengthy explanation, tilted his head and then pointed out the main point.

"You're not going to fight?"

"Um... yes, well... .."

Seongjin avoided his gaze as his feet started to feel numb. However, even in this situation where he was at a loss for an answer, Seongjin knew one magic word that could stop him.

as soon as.

"Anyway, what I'm trying to say is that I can handle the business trip on my own. Or is it that you don't like me that much, Father?"

"... .."

Well, I guess it's a little lethal.

Fortunately, the emperor, who had been silent for a moment, nodded obediently.

"Yes, I will. If that is your decision, then perhaps it means that I need to stay in Regina a little longer."

"then....."

"I'll wait here. Please be careful on your way back."

As he spoke, Seonghwang slowly got up. Watching his light, silent movements, Seongjin felt a strange sense of anxiety as if he might disappear into thin air at any moment.

"It may be my greed to keep you in my sights. Everyone has been leaving the palace one by one, leaving me with a lot of free time to meet you, so I guess I've been feeling a little lonely lately."

"... .."

And then suddenly this question occurred to me. I had taken it for granted so long that I wondered why I was only thinking about this now.

therefore-

Since when have you been my father?

Seongjin left for Benso Marquisate with his party early that morning.

"Have a safe trip, Your Majesty. Your Majesty... I will be by your side to assist you in every way possible, Father Bart."

As he said that and saw him off, No. 21's face strangely brightened up more than before. That bastard, the more I look at him, the more I hate him.

Then, Seongjin saw his dedicated maid boarding the carriage carrying a large warhammer on her shoulder.

"Edith, what is that?"

The geometric patterns carved into the handle, and the shape of animal tendons wrapped around the wedges, are quite familiar.

Come to think of it, didn't that guy have that since we met at Terre?

"Ah, it was given to me by Prince Owen."

"Owen?"

"Yes. It's loot I acquired in the South a while ago, but I don't think there's any use for it."

But when I actually held it, it felt good in my hand. It's also good for leveling the ground before making a campfire, and for making drainage when pitching a tent.

"Besides, when I hold this, somehow Mr. Bartoza becomes more docile."

"... .."

Seongjin glared at Bartoza for a moment, who was glancing over at him with a timid face.

'A son of a bitch who gives nothing for nothing.'

Yeah, it's a bit too much of a hassle to just hand it back to him.

I think it would be better to let Edith play around with it. Although I do feel a sense of crisis that she is moving further and further away from her normal dedicated maid appearance.

In this way, Seongjin and his party embarked on a smooth journey for the first time in a long while.

And two days later, just as he was arriving at the Marquisate of Benso, Seongjin heard from Dasha the news of the death of Chryses, the elder of Cyprus.

487. Departure (8)

The death of Cruses shocked Cyprus.

He was a politician who was very active at the time. People could not easily believe that he, who was young and healthy even among the elders, had passed away so suddenly.

"Assassination?"

"They said there were no external injuries."

"Any traces of poison?"

"We need to investigate further, but according to the congressman, that too is unlikely."

The cause of death of Cruses was shrouded in mystery. No wonder, for who in the world would have guessed that he had been ordered to 'hold his breath' and had voluntarily closed his airway until he died?

With no trace of the conspiracy known, people's attention turned to his political legacy. Chryses was the leader of Helios, the greatest city in Cyprus, and a politician who enjoyed power rivaling that of a king.

Naturally, his son, Ambrose, who was called the 'Prince of Cyprus', was considered -

"I am still recovering from the aftermath of the fire. On top of that, I was so busy taking care of myself that I didn't take care of my father's health. The sadness and guilt still weigh heavily on my heart."

He respectfully declined the position of elder, hiding his sadness with dignity.

"It is unworthy for someone like me, with such shortcomings, to become an elder. I ask that you, the members, deliberate carefully and elect an excellent member who will continue my father's legacy as an elder."

In this way, Ambrose was able to avoid the suspicious gaze of some who thought he was the one who instigated the murder.

The Cyprus Council was in a state of unprecedented excitement over the sudden election of its elders.

A fierce public opinion war raged among several promising candidates who were being pointed out as potential future elders, and the council gradually recovered from the shock of losing a big name in politics.

On the other hand, there were some who were not happy about this situation at all -

"I really didn't know things would turn out this way."

It was none other than the elder Teresilla, known as Chryses' political opponent.

The sultry woman moaned and tossed her hair in front of Logan and General Lysander.

"How could it be so twisted! The more I think about it, the angrier I get and I can't stand it!"

Teresilla of Rhodes. A capable elder who is said to have led Rhodes, which was in decline, to a second revival.

Recently, she had been in a tense standoff with Elder Crises in the Council over the issue of the second departure. To this end, she often made time for conversations with Logan and General Lysandros.

But now that Crises is dead, the meeting that was supposed to emphasize the importance of the second expedition has now degenerated into a place for Teresilla to lament her fate.

"I don't want to blame the deceased, but why did that author, Krystes, have to die at such a crucial time?"

"... .."

"What a terrible author! To continue to block my path like this until the very end... ..!"

General Lysander looks back at Logan with an anxious expression. It seems that he is secretly embarrassed that a prominent politician of his country is bowing down before the prince of the empire.

"Calm down, Lady Teresilla. This will help to ease the council's opposition to the second departure-"

"That's the bigger problem, General Lysander! There are those who suspect me of being behind the assassination, having opposed Chryses on every issue up until now! And if we push ahead with the departure like this, what will become of my position?"

"no....."

Logan looked at Elder Teresilla with a slightly complicated expression.

Although she was a seasoned politician and quite easygoing, the fact that she lamented her situation to that extent was proof of how dire her situation was.

Elder Teresilla has been consistently advocating for a second expedition in the Council, assisting Prince Logan and General Lysandros.

However, she did not truly think that it was necessary to set sail, as she expected that if she fought Crucis and stalled for time, the punitive force would naturally disband.

There was only one reason she insisted on re-launching: to directly oppose Cruses's opinion.

The council members will strongly perceive her as the second-in-command of the council, for daring to raise her voice against Cruses.

Politically, there was no burden at all. If the sea demons ran wild again in the future, then all the blame could be placed on Elder Crisses.

But now that he has died, it has become difficult to push hard for a second expedition. If things go wrong this time, they will have to shoulder the full responsibility for the failed expedition and the worsening financial situation.

"Now that we've come to this, I'll be honest with you. Your Majesty Logan. General Lysander. Let's end our meeting here. The political risk I have to take is too great to continue to lead the way and create public opinion for a second expedition."

"No, Lady Teresilla! If you say something like that now... .."

General Lysander looked back at Prince Logan with a trembling look.

But contrary to his expectations that he would be greatly disappointed, the prince's face remained calm. That was understandable, because Logan had seen from the beginning that Elder Teresilla did not truly sympathize with them.

"Lady Teresilla."

Logan opened his mouth calmly.

"Rhodes is the most remote island city in Cyprus."

"Yes. It's a fact that everyone on the continent knows."

"It is also the final port of call for the punitive force heading out to the open sea."

Teresilla, sensing something unusual in the prince's words, raised her head, straightening her disheveled hair.

"...What on earth are you trying to say?"

"If the seaborne demon subjugation continues like this, the fleet will have to travel between Rhodes and the Krabat Islands to receive a steady supply of supplies."

"... .."

"If another ship is damaged, its repairs will also take place at the port of Rhodes. The movement of goods and people between the mainland and Rhodes will become more active than ever. Perhaps Rhodes will go beyond its second revival and become a stepping stone to become a city that surpasses Helios."

Teresilla looked at the imperial prince with new eyes. She had thought of him as just a young man burning with a sense of justice, but his attitude of never losing his composure was closer to that of an experienced politician.

"And I may have to request technicians from Rhodes to secure a steady supply of Helios' secret weapon, [Ancient Fire]. Unfortunately, there may be an accidental leak of technology during the manufacturing process, but I think the council members are willing to tolerate it for the safety of Cyprus."

"... ..!"

"Well, what do you think? Isn't this something worth pushing forward while taking some political risks?"

General Lysander looked at Prince Logan with wide eyes.

And perhaps Teresilla's expression was not much different from his. She swallowed, moistening her dry throat, and asked the prince in a slightly trembling voice.

"You said it was a bit of a political risk, Your Majesty Logan. As you know, if this expedition fails... .."

"How can a mere human being predict all the events that will happen in the future? We can only do our best in each situation and wait patiently for God's answer."

Logan continued speaking calmly with a faint smile.

"So no one will dare hold Elder Teresilla responsible. The reason you predicted the success of the second expedition is because the current situation is such that it is likely to happen. With the renowned Liliu and the youngest sword master on the continent together, who would easily predict the failure of the punitive force?"

"... .."

The youngest sword master.

Prince Logan was now admitting with his own mouth what had been secretly heard only as rumors. In other words, he was saying that even if the second expedition failed, he could take full responsibility for it.

Elder Teresilla's eyes fluttered slightly.

"Why on earth are you like that... .."

"The subjugation of the maritime demons is a task that must be accomplished for the safety of the people. Seonghwangga does not hesitate when faced with a task that must be done."

"... .."

"And my position in the Empire is not so narrow that I cannot afford to fail at just one or two expeditions."

Teresilla stared blankly into the prince's eyes, which were as calm as the deep sea. It was too much to think of it as just the childishness of a young boy, and even she, a mature politician, felt overwhelmed by his confident demeanor.

Elder Teresilla, who had been lost in thought with a complicated expression for a moment, finally let out a long sigh.

"... Good. I will continue to support your opinions. In fact, I have been so excited about the second departure so far that it doesn't seem right to change my mind now."

She looked back at Lysander, roughly ruffling her messy hair.

"Please keep one thing in mind, General Lysander."

"What are you saying, Teresilla?"

"The fleet's movements only go as far as the Krabat Islands."

Elder Teresilla gave Lysander a stern warning, emphasizing each word with sharp eyes.

"No matter what happens, never, ever, go beyond the [horizon of perception] that the Lord has allowed you."

As discussions about a second departure gained momentum, another unexpected development was approaching Cyprus.

It was a sign of a typhoon that was out of season.

"Mr. Sisley, you should probably go back to your accommodations now. A typhoon is coming."

At Inquisitor Boris's words, Sisley looked up at the darkening sky. As he had said, the waves were higher and rolling than usual, and the wind was getting stronger.

"Typhoon....."

Large and small fishing boats hurriedly returned to the port. The merchant ships were busy quickly moving their loaded cargo to the warehouse, and some had their sailors hide it under the holds.

Sisley naturally had these concerns.

"Inquisitor Boris. We may be setting sail again soon, but will the fleet be able to go out to sea in this weather?"

"It will probably be fine. The people here say that typhoons aren't that strong during this season. It will probably clear up completely tomorrow, my lady."

Meanwhile, the rain starts to get heavier little by little.

Eventually, Sisley had no choice but to stop his volunteer work and hurriedly return to the inn with his party. It was a large inn where he had recently been staying with the Inquisitors.

"You worked hard today. Now get some rest, Sisley."

Inquisitor Boris felt sorry for the soaking wet girl as he handed her a large blanket.

I would have liked to immediately send a maid to take care of various things, but Adjutant Lumiere's gaze was not kind.

The adjutant didn't particularly dislike Saintess Sisley. On the contrary, recently, there were many times when he couldn't hide his expression that he thought she was so cute.

However, since the saint was no ordinary girl, it seemed that he intended to wait and see how far she would keep her oath to live like a normal Inquisitor.

"Thank you, Inquisitor Boris."

Fortunately, Sisley was already quite accustomed to the life of wandering around foreign lands while visiting the atrium.

She sorted out the armors on her own and changed into clothes soaked in the rain. She bravely lit the fire in the stove and hung the wet clothes out to dry. At first glance, it was a life force that you would never guess was that of a precious princess of the Holy Empire.

'I saw Sister Ursula do it before and remembered it all. This is easy.'

Looking around the cozy and neatly arranged room, Sisley wore an unexpectedly confident expression.

Although she hadn't noticed it herself yet, Sisley had recently found herself unconsciously mimicking the facial expressions of one of her brothers.

"huh.....?"

But when I cautiously looked out the window to see how far the typhoon had come,

Sisley spotted a suspicious figure sitting on the roof of the building across from him, getting rained on. He was a large, distracted man, holding a large bottle of liquor in one hand.

Bam!

Sisley opened the window through which rainwater poured in and shouted at him.

"Hey! A typhoon is coming soon! What are you doing out there instead of taking shelter?"

Could it be because of the strong wind? Even though she had transmitted the sound using her aura, the man's body did not move at all as if he had not heard her voice.

No, is it possible to hear sound in the first place?

Although it was obscured by the heavy rain, a closer look revealed that the man had no body part that appeared to be an ear.

A face visible beneath two sharp eyes staring intently at the sea. A snout too sharp for a human, and blue-green scales. And what is waving beneath a long cloak? Could it be... .

'tail?'

... Is he really human?

For a moment, such a question occurred to Sisley, but he soon leaned out of the window. For some reason, he had no idea that he was a dangerous person.

WHEEK-!

As she kicked the window with her aura-laden foot, the saint's small body was soon carried by the wind and flew lightly into the sky.

Knock knock.

Sisley, who had jumped over the building so easily, reached the suspicious man and called out to him once again.

"Look here."

His body, seen up close, was much larger than I had imagined. He was so tall that he could look down on Sisley even when he sat with his back bent.

"... .."

"It's dangerous. Hey, are you listening?"

As I spoke again and lightly touched his cloak, he finally met Sisley's gaze with a somewhat embarrassed expression.

"you.....!"

The man, or rather the last Draconian left in this dimension, scratched the scales around his two eyes awkwardly and asked.

"No way... Little Miss, can you see me right now?"

488. Departure (9)

... can you see me?

Sisley tilted his head at the man's absurd question.

"What do you mean? Of course I can see it. Or are you saying that you are a ghost?"

"... ..!"

Then, Draconian panicked and rummaged through his clothes in a panic. He was checking to see if the 'amulet' was damaged.

The amulet he had was an item from the psychic world known as a so-called 'magic item'.

The main purpose is [isolation].

It is an item that protects the wearer from all kinds of external environments, including bad weather. As proof, even in this fierce wind and rain, the hem of Draconian's clothes did not get wet at all.

Moreover, the 'isolation' was not limited to physical things. It distorted the perspectives of others and strangely hindered their perception, making it impossible to detect anything strange.

So, originally, it was normal not to recognize him properly even when you saw him. This is because you wouldn't normally imagine someone sitting peacefully on a beach during a typhoon.

But how?

"... Are you okay?"

Draconian, who had been looking back and forth between the amulet and the girl with a blank expression, adjusted the amulet to greatly expand the range of [Isolation]. He could no longer sit by and watch the little girl get soaking wet again in the heavy rain.

Shuyung-!

Then a transparent curtain covers Sisley's head and the pouring rain stops.

In the midst of the increasingly violent typhoon, the two faced each other in an unprecedented silence.

"... That's amazing. Is that a magical item?"

As the barrier blocking his perception disappeared, Sisley was finally able to examine the Draconian's appearance in detail.

He looked more like a bipedal reptile than a human.

A long, lizard-like face, and sharp, shark-like teeth in layers. Dark blue-green scales like rusted bronze... ..

Moreover, its size was so large that if it were to straighten out its hunched body, it would be estimated to be about 3 to 4 meters tall.

In the first place, I couldn't understand why I thought he was a 'man', or why I was confused about whether he was human or not. Of course, that was also the effect of the 'talisman', but there was no way Sisley would know that.

"... You're quite a reckless kid. As you can see, I'm not human. But aren't you afraid of me?"

Draconian looked down at the girl who was examining his appearance with clear eyes, as if he was curious.

"You're a heterodox, aren't you? I read that in a book once."

"book?"

"Yes. I have read that somewhere in this world, there exists a race of aliens with a much more advanced civilization than Delcross, which is not well known."

Sisley looked with interest at the exotic cloak he wore and the beautifully crafted jewelry he wore.

"We, the Draconian race, have a book here? No way... I haven't heard of it yet."

"Because it's not a book that anyone can easily read."

"The Chronicles of Delcross' is a book that exists only in Sisley's dreams.

"That would be true. Even if such things actually existed in Delcross, wouldn't the closed-minded theologians have banned them all? I have no idea how a young lady like you came into contact with such a book."

Gulp, gulp.

Draconian turned his gaze away from Sisley, took a few sips from the bottle, and looked out at the distant sea.

"And kid. Anyway, you need to be a little more careful from now on. Even if you have knowledge of the alien race, you shouldn't approach them like this. Aliens are usually not very friendly to humans."

"... .."

"The same goes for me. I'm pretty full right now, but if I were starving, I would've swallowed you in one gulp."

Sisley looked up at the Draconian, who was baring his sharp teeth and snarling.

Is he scary? Should we be on guard?

Well, if you look at the fact that he pretends not to care and blocks the rain and even gives advice, you can say that he is quite polite and kind by nature.

Above all, the Draconian's gaze toward the sea was stained like a scar with age-old sadness and loneliness. So, somehow, Sisley felt that he should not leave him like that.

"I'll think about that later. For now, I'm much more scared of typhoons than you are. If I stay here any longer, I might be swept away by the winds sooner or later, and we might fly away to the distant sea together."

"... .."

"Are you very drunk? If you have trouble walking, I can help you. I'm still very strong."

The Draconian looked at the girl with bewildered eyes as she clenched her slender arms into fists.

"It's okay. I have a magic talisman. No matter how strong the typhoon is, it won't blow away or anything."

"Oh, I see."

The girl surprisingly easily convinced him and sat down next to him.

"But don't drink too much alcohol. It's not good for your health."

"... .."

Draconian looked down at this strange girl with bewildered eyes. Just a moment ago, he had threatened to eat her, and now she was approaching him so calmly?

But the girl's delicate face, which I glanced at out of the corner of my eye, seemed full of good intentions, but by no means reckless or foolish.

In any case, it would be difficult to separate them right away. Draconian decided this and took another sip of his alcohol, sighing.

"This is different from the alcohol that humans drink, child. The moonshine brewed by the Draconians is very precious and not good for your health."

"Where in the world is there a drink that is good for your health? And it smells so bad?"

"It will feel different if you actually drink it. This is a very sweet liquor made with honey."

"Is it sweet?"

"okay."

He noticed Sisley's curiosity and winked playfully, handing her a glass.

"Why, are you curious? Would you like to have a taste?"

Sisley obediently accepted the glass. He admired the rippling golden waves for a moment, then carefully brought it to his lips.

sniffing.

"Run... .."

Surprisingly, his words were true. After the sour and bitter taste, you can taste the sweet flavor of honey. It is not a strong sweetness like sugar, but a subtle and complex taste with a floral and fruity scent.

gulp.

As I roll it in my mouth and down my throat, a moderately warm heat slowly flows down my esophagus.

"It tastes strange."

Sisley blinked.

"Do you like it?"

"I don't know, but it's not as bad as I expected."

"Then you can drink more. Since you're soaked in the rain, it might be a good idea to warm up your body a little with some moonshine."

When the Draconian poured another glass of moonshine into his empty glass, Sisley drank it down in one gulp this time.

Gulp.

The girl's cheeks turn red.

However, this did not mean that Sisley got drunk, because her abundant aura and gushing divine power immediately blew away any intoxication.

'Well, it feels moderately pleasant.'

Sisley felt curious and held out a glass in front of him again.

"... .."

Draconian hesitated for a moment this time, then took a few deep breaths and poured only half of the drink.

One by one.

sniffing!

"... .."

One by one.

sniffing!

After a while of snatching and drinking the liquor like that, the Draconian's large bottle of liquor was eventually more than half empty.

"Ha ha ha ha ha!"

He looked at the remaining alcohol for a moment as if he was dumbfounded, then burst into laughter, revealing his teeth.

"Wow! The little girl already knows how to enjoy alcohol! I think you'll grow up to be a better drinker than anyone else."

...drinker?

Sisley looked up at him with a trembling face.

"Is that... a compliment?"

"Well, that's a compliment! It's the best compliment!"

He shouted cheerfully for the first time in a long while, then quickly suppressed his laughter and added with slightly hazy eyes.

"At least for our people... .."

"... .."

Sisley looked at the Draconian, who was quickly sinking into deep sorrow, and covered his scaled hands with both of her own. Soon, a bright light poured down from the girl's hands like a waterfall.

Hwaaaaaak!

"...Divine power?"

The Draconian blinked his transparent veil.

"It's okay. This divine power will help you, even if only a little. I will relieve your pain a little."

"what?"

The girl's words seemed very unexpected to him. But the promise of treatment was not completely empty words, and his heart, which had been tingling, strangely felt relieved!

Such a miracle would not be possible for an ordinary person. Draconian, who had thought that far, looked at the little saintess carefully again.

Clear gray eyes filled with divine power and able to see through some of the laws of the celestial world. Delicate facial features that seem to have been painstakingly created by a god...

Naturally, the face of someone he knows flashes through his mind.

"Wait a minute! Are you perhaps... ..!"

The Draconian lowered his toothy jaw as he considered the gruesome possibility.

"Hey... Hey?"

"yes?"

"By any chance. It's a one in ten chance, but your father... of the... Holy Empire... ."

"Oh, do you know our dad and mom?"

"... ..!"

Ouch! This is a big problem!

The last Draconian felt a life-threatening crisis. He looked around carefully and stepped back, then stammered a request to Sisley with a trembling voice.

"Well, so... little miss. The fact that I gave you some strong moonshine as a child... um, would you at least keep it a secret from your father?"

"... ..?"

Please save me.

Cyprus was completely affected by the typhoon.

Wheeeeeee-!

High waves roar and crash against the shore. Fishing boats rock up and down with the waves, and broken trees and light objects are blown here and there by the wind.

But that enormous natural disaster had no effect on the two sitting on the roof. Draconian and Sisley occasionally glanced at the poles and objects flying past their heads as they drank together.

"You travel around the world on a ship? So, is Mithra a sailor?"

The two had already finished exchanging their names.

"No, that's not true. Actually, my main occupation is a blacksmith. And a very famous blacksmith at that."

The Draconian now had a look of resignation on his face. He knew what would happen if Nate got really angry. If he were a person, he would sweat so much that his clothes would get wet.

However, as a cold-blooded animal, he had no other way to relieve his tension, so he would only occasionally raise the scales on his body.

"Really? I guess Mitra is quite skilled."

Slurp.

When Sisley asked, filling the glass with wine, he took the bottle back and filled the girl's glass halfway again.

Choke.

"Good. At least I am the best blacksmith in existence in the Delcross dimension. I even forged the strongest sword in the world with my own hands."

Having explained it up to that point, he felt a little relieved. Perhaps it was because he was thinking that he might soon be killed by the hardest sword he had ever sharpened.

"Then this time, your timing wasn't good. You happened to encounter a typhoon as soon as you arrived."

"No, it doesn't really matter. I'm not here for sightseeing."

Mitra looked down at the rusty statue-like face reflected in the tinkling goblet.

"... I hope we can see clear skies soon. I plan to stay here for a while to mourn my friend."

"Are you sorry?"

"okay."

Mithra, who had been mumbling slowly, turned his head towards the distant sea that was now barely visible due to the veil of clouds and rain.

"My old friend is dying now, probably with a poisonous substance that is killing him from within, struggling alone beyond the [horizon of perception]."

489. Departure (10)

[Perceptual horizon].

This curious name comes from the sayings of the ancient theologian Granius.

He traveled the world on adventures in his later years, and is said to have said this while writing his representative work, 'Exploring the Strange Continent'.

- Go on an adventure. And explore! As we learn more about the world, our senses and thoughts will develop rapidly. Through the advancement of perception, humans will be able to rediscover new worlds that they have never seen before. A new horizon of perception is opening!

However, his words, which were intended to overcome the limits of perception, are now, absurdly, being used as words that clearly indicate the distinct limits of perception.

As a result of the adventurers' diligent exploration and navigation over the past hundreds of years, surprisingly, there really is a space beyond this world where human 'perception' becomes meaningless.

The boundaries of the world that were known to be unexplorable until now were as follows:

The Northern Magical Realm beyond the Black Forest and the Snowfields.

The western mountain range is so rugged that it almost pierces the clouds.

The southern rainforest teeming with all kinds of poisonous insects and sea creatures.

And finally, there is the tectonic horizon that divides the eastern ocean into long sections.

If you sail about half a day further east past the Krabat Archipelago, you will come across a deep sea where the water suddenly turns a dark color.

But for some reason, if they cross that boundary even just a little bit, the ships immediately lose their bearings and are never able to return.

The needle is broken, the wind is wild, and most of all, the sense of space and time itself is turned upside down.

Also, among sailors, there was a secret rumor that the [Perception Horizon] was the birthplace of sea demons. That was understandable, because colonies of demons that had not been seen before would suddenly appear as if they had moved from somewhere.

And those guys tend to be clustered around the horizon of perception.

so-

"My old friend is dying now, probably with a poisonous substance that is killing him from within, struggling alone beyond the [horizon of perception]."

In response to Mithra's heavy lament, Sisley could not help but naturally raise this question.

'I wonder if that guy is a sea demon?'

Of course, she had the courtesy to not ask that question out loud. However, Mitra, who was quick-witted, saw the girl's awkward expression and immediately read between the lines.

"Oh, you want to know if my friend is a demon? No, absolutely not. He is another species that humans do not know much about. He is a rather gentle and elegant sea tribe."

"I didn't think of anything so rude."

"....."

"Really."

"hmm....."

Mitra let out a soft groan, picked up the bottle and drank the moonshine like water. It seemed like he wanted to forget his stuffy feelings through alcohol.

"Well... in reality, it might be meaningless to distinguish him from the devil. He was losing himself so quickly that now I'm not even sure what he's turning into."

The pain that cannot be hidden in the Draconian's eyes is evident.

Sisley again held onto one of his scales as if to console him, and poured divine power into him. He guessed that his dying friend must have suffered from a serious illness.

"Is there any way to cure him?"

"It's not like it doesn't exist at all. It's just that the person involved doesn't want it."

Mitra calmly confessed that his friend had accepted his fate, and that those who loved him were also ready to accept reality.

"But I'm not. I'm angry at the absurd fate my friend has to bear alone for the sake of the species, and I'm also angry at the fact that everyone else takes it for granted. At the same time, it feels like I'm the only one denying the reality I'm facing, and it's a little confusing."

"....."

"Well, that's not something you should be telling a little girl."

Having said that, Mitra pulled out the scales that had been caught by the girl and stood up. The Draconian, who was over 3 meters tall, stretched out his body, and it seemed as if the already dark sky had suddenly become dark.

"But it's already too late to turn back. I've been talking nonsense. Drinking this much moonshine would probably make even a drinker like me a little drunk."

He turned the bottle upside down and emptied it. The large bottle that seemed impossible to empty was emptied so easily just by a little girl joining in.

"Let's stop talking, kid. It takes a special magic to share your innermost feelings with someone who doesn't know you very well. But we're out of that magic potion."

"Where will Mithra go now?"

When Sisley asked, handing him back the empty glass, he nodded, tucking it into his cloak along with the bottle.

"We need to find a place to rest while the typhoon is blowing. So you should hurry back to your lodgings. It seems like someone is coming to pick you up over there."

When I looked up at Mitra's words, I saw that there was indeed someone standing under the building. It was a young exorcist with a completely black appearance like a crow.

"... Sir Sharon?"

Sisley blinked at the appearance of an unexpected figure. An exorcist from the demon squad, why was she here now?

"Okay, go ahead and take a look."

Mitra gently pushes Sisley's back.

As the girl took a step outside the talisman's boundaries, the exorcist looked straight up at Sisley as if he had been waiting for her.

"Mr. Sisley. Are you in a place like that? It's dangerous, so please come down."

It was a voice that felt much calmer than usual. It seemed as if a faint silver light had passed through his black eyes.

I looked around just in case, but she didn't seem to notice Mitra standing next to me. Perhaps the 'magic item' he had was working properly.

Sisley felt a little relieved. It would not be good for the knight to have discovered the existence of a foreign race.

"Then I will go, Mitra. It was nice meeting you."

The girl whispered a goodbye and jumped down from the roof with her aura on both feet just as she had when she came.

But that was then.

WHEEING-!

A sudden gust of wind knocked Sisley out of balance and she was hurled into the air. The wind was enough to roll even the large rocks on the beach, so the small girl's body was not equipped to withstand it.

"uh?"

In the blink of an eye, Sisley flew to a height three times higher than the building, then was soon enveloped in another movement of alien air and stopped in place as if by magic.

".....?"

It felt as if the girl's surroundings had become a completely different space. Sisley was enveloped in a calm and warm air and fell down gently.

And then, Sir Sharon, who had been waiting below, lightly embraced the girl.

widely.

"The wind... how did it suddenly come about?"

The exorcist explained in a calm voice, lowering the bewildered Sisley to the floor.

"That's fortunate. It seems we got caught in the eye of the typhoon at just the right time."

".....?"

No, isn't that wrong? Sir Sharon, even now there are all kinds of things flying around us... ..

"Anyway, I'm really glad you're safe."

The exorcist added as he soon spread out the hem of his black uniform and covered the girl's head to keep her from getting wet from the rain.

No matter how I look at it, Sharon is so different from her usual self.

When Sisley looked up at her with strong suspicion, to her surprise, the exorcist had returned to his usual, relaxed appearance.

"Hehehe."

A strange laughter flowing out slowly. It was an extreme change, as if the person had changed in an instant.

But Sisley never got a chance to ask her anything, as the exorcist lightly patted her as he led her to the dormitory.

"What on earth are you doing out in this weather? Sir Sisley, the smell of strong alcohol is everywhere."

Sisley blushed. No matter how caught up in the atmosphere, it was not a good attitude to engage in a grand performance with a stranger on the street. As a saint, and as an Inquisitor, it was not a good attitude at all.

"Fortunately, the other Inquisitors haven't noticed yet. Now, let's go back to our quarters and rest. I've already told the innkeeper to prepare a warm bath for you."

"... I will. Thank you for your concern, Sir Sharon."

Sisley followed her lead and walked obediently to the inn. And before the inn door closed, he took one last look at the building across the street.

On the roof, the Draconian's figure is still visible, somewhat blurred under the influence of the amulet.

'Hello, Mitra. I hope we meet again someday.'

When Sisley gave a small nod, Draconian, who had somehow noticed the greeting, quickly raised his hand.

After the girl disappeared into the building-

"....."

The Black Exorcist's mood shifted once again. Now her bright grey eyes were staring straight at the Draconian on the roof.

[Mitra.]

A gleaming silver light that instantly sees through any obstacles, even talismans.

[Would you like to talk to me for a moment?]

The frightened Draconian bowed his head flatly before him, forgetting even his dignity.

"I was so wrong, Nate! I deserved to die!"

I was worried that he might start a nutcracker fight at any moment, but surprisingly, Nate didn't get too angry at Mitra.

He simply emphasized several times that his daughter was still a young girl and not at an appropriate age to be exposed to the debauched tastes of adults.

And after a while, he started saying some surprising things.

[Draconian moonshine is a special drink. They say that just tasting it once will bring good luck, so maybe good things will happen to Sisley soon.]

"That, that's right... ..?"

[First of all, the child really liked the taste of moonshine. It might not be such a bad thing to have this kind of experience once in a lifetime.]

"Well, of course that's true... .."

[It may be the right responsibility of parents to lead their children to a good life, but it is not right to force them too much. If you want to develop the ability to judge good and evil on your own, wouldn't it be okay to just turn a blind eye to such minor deviations?]

"....."

The atmosphere was flowing strangely. Mitra, feeling uneasy, frantically moved her eyes around.

'Hey, Nate. I'm really scared. Not only are you not as angry as I thought you'd be, but why do I feel like you're defending me from someone I can't see? Huh?'

In any case, it seems unlikely that he will die immediately from the sword he made.

Mitra, who had made that judgment, asked the god's representative whom he was meeting for the first time in a long time a favor that he would not have normally made.

"Nate, can't you save that guy right now? Nothing is impossible for you, right?"

If this guy can take the position of Dimensional Guardian in a human body and perform various miracles with ease... ..!

Then Nate stared at him for a moment with unreadable eyes and slowly shook his head.

[Of course it is not impossible. But you know better than I that that is not what Lord Manta meant, right?]

"Yeah. I know. I know that, but... .."

[Then stop it. What you are about to do will instantly render meaningless all the effort and suffering she has endured so far.]

"....."

Draconian bowed his head gloomily, torn between wanting to save his friend and wanting to fulfill his friend's wish.

[The typhoon will die down soon.]

The exorcist, who had caught a glimpse of Mithra with a gloomy expression, turned his head and looked out toward the distant eastern sea for a moment.

The rain was weakening as the typhoon quickly lost strength, and the outline of the once hazy horizon was gradually revealed.

[If you find it difficult to make up your mind, why not try following the Cyprus fleet for now? You won't be able to decide your own future, but at least you'll be able to stay by Lord Manta's side at a crucial moment.]

The Draconian, who had guessed his intentions, let out a hollow laugh.

"Haha, look at you. Are you telling me to help your children right now? Unfortunately, as a member of the Council of Six, I also have a duty to preserve a certain amount of causality."

But the answer that came back was resolute.

[No. This is purely for your own safety, Mitra. At least you wouldn't want to end up in a bad mood getting hit by a sword you made, right?]

".....!"

Mitra felt a cold chill run down his spine.

Oh, right. As expected, the nagging from earlier wasn't the end. Are you hiding something from me now? Are you?

490. Departure (11)

"...Lowering."

Seongjin, who had been taking a short nap, woke up to someone's call and frowned without realizing it. This was because he could smell a faint scent of alcohol in the air.

"Your Majesty, please wake up."

When he opened his eyes, Sir Kurt was looking down at him.

"The messenger I sent to the Marquis has returned. Shall I bring him into the room?"

"Huh? No. I'll go down. Is everyone gathered here?"

"Yes, your Majesty."

Seongjin got up and went out into the hallway with Kurt. He slowly walked a few steps, then suddenly turned around and asked.

"But, Sir Kurt?"

"yes?"

"You sure you didn't drink while on duty?"

"... .."

Kurt carefully observed Seongjin's expression.

Of course, it was true that I had a light drink with lunch. But wasn't that something I'd always done? Auror users don't get drunk anyway.

Moreover, despite his laid-back impression, Kurt was actually quite serious about his duties. That's why he never drank too much while on duty, and he would lightly dispel the hangover by turning on his aura the moment he finished his meal.

'You probably won't be drunk at all now, so why are you saying that? Oh, can you really smell the aftertaste of alcohol? Well, if you have such keen senses, you shouldn't be unable to detect the faint scent of alcohol on your collar...'

Still, it was too sudden a point. Most of the resident knights of Jinju Palace are drunkards, and Your Majesty has never said anything about drinking alcohol before. Why are you suddenly making an issue of this?

"Answer me, Sir Kurt. Have you drunk?"

Kurt, sensing that Sungjin's mood was not normal, quickly tucked his tail between his legs.

"Yes. I'm sorry, Your Majesty."

"Yes. I'll let you off easy, Sir Kurt. Starting today, you're not allowed to drink for three days."

"... ... !"

Sir Kurt's eyes widen at the unexpected punishment.

Seongjin kept nagging at him.

"You know, drinking alcohol at every meal is an addiction. You know that?"

"Addiction... right?"

"Yes. Addiction. It's a lethargic mental state that you must absolutely guard against as an unmanned being. Why don't you try making dopamine in your brain in a healthier way than alcohol? There are many more novel and fun entertainments in this world."

"What's wrong with my brain?"

"Dopamine in the brain. If nothing comes to mind, consult me. I think I can help you train and feel a fair amount of thrill."

"... No, no. Down!"

Kurt responded hurriedly. That Dopa... I don't know what it is, but somehow the prince's help didn't sound very good. His survival instinct, honed through years of subduing demons, was now sounding the alarm like crazy!

"I'm sorry! I'll fix it right away!"

"Yeah. That's a good attitude. I'm saying this for your health."

"Of course, there is a possibility!"

Seongjin glanced at the sharp-tongued Sir Kurt, then muttered softly enough for him to not hear.

"Anyway, drinkers don't know the limit, the limit... .."

Seongjin and his party were currently staying at a large inn in the Benso Marquisate.

Contrary to initial expectations, the Marquisate was not such a closed territory, as it was relatively close to Regina and there was frequent trade between merchants.

The problem is that I haven't been able to meet Marquis Benso for several days since I entered the territory. I sent messengers to the mansion to ask about the Marquis' whereabouts, but I just kept getting replies saying that he was inspecting the outskirts of the territory.

"Well, what if they didn't stop us at the entrance to the territory? There's no rush, so let's just wait for the Marquis to return to his quarters. In the meantime, let's do some things that need to be done in advance."

Seongjin divided the group into two teams.

Owen, Sir Robert, and Bartoza were instructed to gather as much information as possible about the rumored 'wise man'.

And the resident knights, including Captain Bruno, ordered a public investigation into the whereabouts of Giacomo Milo.

Of course, he is currently living a comfortable life as a prisoner in Regina, so this was simply a measure to pressure Marquis Benso.

After dividing up the work like that, Sungjin shut himself in his room alone. And for the past few days, he spent his time quietly, staying in his room except during meal times.

The resulting concern for Masain was considerable.

"Edith. Don't you think you've been taking a lot of naps lately? Are you feeling unwell?"

"Well? There didn't seem to be any major abnormalities when I looked at him from the side. Oh, he would occasionally snore during his naps... .."

"sleep talking?"

"Yes. Every once in a while, he would mutter in pain, 'Ugh, raw meat... I really hate raw meat.'"

...you don't like raw meat? What kind of nightmare is that?

In any case, considering the prince's usual lifestyle, it is not something to be overlooked.

"Sir Kurt. You were guarding the lower body yesterday, weren't you? What do you do during the day?"

"Oh. Nothing much. She was either taking a nap, talking to the fire fairy, or looking through the papers she brought."

"okay....."

Then, this morning, Masain's worries finally reached their peak. The prince, who skipped his morning training, which he rarely missed even while traveling, was sleeping all the way until daybreak!

"Something is strange, Commander Bruno! Something must have happened to you! Otherwise, you wouldn't be taking a break from training like this... ..!"

Captain Bruno, who couldn't stand to watch, reassured him.

"Don't worry too much, Sir Marsain. I've been keeping a close eye on your condition for the past few days, but I haven't noticed any major abnormalities in your aura's activity."

"Is that so... .."

"Yes. It will soon be time for His Majesty to have tea, so I will take a closer look while I bring in Melbourne."

But despite Bruno's repeated urging, Martha's worried gaze could not easily leave Sungjin's room.

"It's really frustrating. If I had known this would happen, I would have brought Father Bart with me, even if it meant going to great lengths... .."

Same time.

Dozens of sailing ships were gathered in the port of Cyprus, waiting for the signal to set sail. As Teresilla of Rhodes began to voice her opinion, public opinion in the council quickly turned in favor of pushing ahead with the second voyage.

In the midst of all this bustle throughout the harbor, a man holding a club quietly snuck into the council stables.

"Damn you! I will never leave my damn beasts alone!"

He was a stable keeper who had recently been severely punished. He had been caught daring to harm animals raised by the Imperial Family of the Holy Empire, and was kicked out without receiving even a single penny of allowance, let alone medical expenses.

"Damn it! I'll kill you. I'll kill them all!"

With his eyes blazing with resentment, he walked towards the largest stable. He planned to take advantage of the confusion to dispatch the insolent animals, then steal a horse and ride off north.

But, just as he was about to grab the crossbar of the stable.

Krrrrrr...

With a soft growl, sharp fangs pierced his leg. It was the healthy leg that had not been bitten before.

"Ahh?"

He had only planned a surprise attack, but had never imagined that he would be counterattacked. The stable keeper was greatly surprised by the wolf dog's attack, and jumped back, unable to bear the shock and pain.

But unfortunately, my back got caught on a loose beam, and I ended up falling over upside down.

"Ugh!"

And soon, what appears in the reversed view is a beautiful white horse emitting strong breath.

Hehehee!

A pair of strong hind hooves, accompanied by a fierce roar, came crashing down in front of my eyes. These were the merciless hooves that had always stood at the forefront of the punitive force, trampling on the sea creatures.

Boom!

The man who had been kicked so hard in the chest was thrown out of the stable without even being able to scream briefly.

"What!"

"what's the matter?"

The guards who came running to the sudden commotion exchanged awkward glances when they found the man convulsing slightly.

"Why is this guy here? Didn't he get cut off a while ago?"

"I've been completely taken by the military horse. I can't do anything about this... .."

"Oh, what bad luck! This kind of accident happened on the day the fleet set sail. They're just going to cause trouble for us up there!"

The two, who had completely dealt with any possible aftereffects, looked into each other's eyes as if they had made a promise. The golden eyes of the wolf dog looking up seemed to be bidding her a quiet farewell.

-I'm going now.

Roxana also looked down at Max gracefully. Her deep eyes seemed to convey a silent request to the wolf-dog.

-Please take good care of my master on my behalf.

Boom!

After barking loudly as if to confirm this, the wolf-dog turned around and quickly left the stable.

Ding ding ding ding!

At that moment, along with the loud sound of brass bells, the sailors' shouts could be heard from afar.

"Departure!"

"Let's set sail! Raise anchor!"

About 20 sailing ships begin to slowly accelerate.

Among them, the flagship "Wings of Glory" located in the center of the fleet was the latest sailing ship of the Cypriot Navy.

A huge sailing ship with an unusually long bowsprit, a sleek, streamlined body, and three masts glides through the waves.

From the stern of the beautiful ship, Prince Logan quietly gazed out over the distant harbor.

"... .."

General Lysander, who had just come out of the cabin to find him, forgot his business for a moment and stared at the prince as if he were entranced.

A gentle yet well-organized prayer, befitting the reputation of a 'Knight given by God'. Especially, the side profile soaked in deep sorrow is like a painting, and it is understandable that the knights who fanatically follow the prince live in groups.

Moreover, strangely enough, the old General Lysander sometimes felt that this strong and noble prince was like a friend of his own age.

"... Ahem."

He cleared his throat and shook off his thoughts, then slowly approached Prince Logan and spoke.

"Are you still worried about that 'monster', Your Majesty?"

"General Lysander."

"Don't worry, Your Majesty. I have inquired among the sailors as Your Majesty instructed, but no one has yet seen such a gigantic monster. Of course, I don't think Your Majesty would be mistaken."

"... .."

"By the way, would you like to go to your cabin for a moment? I have something to discuss with you about the route... .."

But then, Prince Logan's expression suddenly changed, and he turned his head and stared at the cliffs on the distant shore.

"Your Majesty? Why are you doing this?"

"... Max?"

"yes?"

But soon, General Lysander also realized what the prince had sensed.

Woof woof woof!

Because the sound of dogs barking in the distance was approaching them at a fast speed.

"...dog?"

Soon, a large wolfdog wearing the insignia of the palace appeared on the cliffs by the seaside. It was a dog that was quite familiar to Lysander, as it sometimes ran around the council building alone.

"Isn't that the royal dog? What is that dog doing there so dangerously?"

"... .."

But Prince Logan just looked at her with a stern face.

"Huh? Wait a minute!"

Soon, the other punitive force members and sailors also noticed the dog and began to grumble.

"Look over there! A dog is jumping off a cliff!"

"Dangerous!"

As he said, the dog took a few steps back, but then ran fearlessly towards the edge of the cliff. For a moment, it seemed as if a faint flame was flickering on the dog's hind legs.

Phew!

"ah.....!"

"It's falling!"

But contrary to everyone's expectations that he would fall straight into the sea, the dog leaped an incredible distance, kicking the air and flying straight towards Prince Logan.

"Max!"

Taat!

The wolfdog, who had lightly landed on the deck, wagged its tail with a proud expression and barked at Prince Logan.

Boom!

"Max. Why are you here... .."

Woof woof!

"Wait, you're lying? No way... You're Lee Seong-jin?"

General Lysander, who had been blankly staring at them, suddenly came to his senses.

"Your Majesty, I think it would be best to send the dog back. Isn't it a precious dog raised by the royal family? It's still close to the shore. If you lower the boat now... .."

"No, wait! Please wait a moment, General Lysander!"

Prince Logan stopped him with an urgent voice that did not respond.

"Before that, there's something I need to check."

"yes?"

"This guy, he might not be Max. I know a way to easily tell who this guy is, so could you just wait a moment?"

"...yes?"

Prince Logan, who let out such an incomprehensible sound, slowly reached out his hand towards the wolf-dog's head with a face full of tension.

OK-

chin!

The wolf dog strikes the prince's arm with a serious expression. The prince's neatly ironed uniform is imprinted with a black wolf's footprint like a stamp.

"... Haha! Then that's right."

Prince Logan, who had been blankly staring at the footprints, soon burst into a refreshing laugh.

"General Lysander. I don't think we need to disembark the boat. I'll take the dog with me."

"Yes? Your Majesty... .."

Leaving the dumbfounded general behind, Prince Logan headed to the captain's cabin with the wolfdog.

Then he pointed to the area where, as expected, there was a large, muddy mark of a dog's paw on the map spread out on the table.

"It looks like he's already set his course, General. We're stopping briefly in Rhodes, and heading straight for the Krabat Islands as planned."

491. Stranding (1)

The fleet sailed for two full days and arrived at the port of Rhodes.

"This is Rhodes... .."

Sisley leaned over the railing of the ship and looked out over the exotic harbor.

The sudden appearance of a large fleet has caused the docks to be busy and chaotic. Merchant ships are hurriedly loading their cargo, and fishermen are hastily unloading their nets and pulling out their fishing boats.

The port of Rhodes was not that small compared to the port of Cyprus. Because it was an island so far from the mainland, the development of a port was essential for survival.

However, it was not enough to accommodate the dozens of sailing ships that suddenly appeared. As a last resort, small boats were busily going back and forth to transport water and sailors.

While at anchor, the expedition force was not permitted to disembark, except for some of the crew, since most of the supplies had already been filled up on Helios. After replenishing some water and food in Rhodes, the fleet was scheduled to depart for the Cravat Islands.

'If we had arrived during the day, we could have seen the port in more detail... '

Sisley felt a little regret as he swept back his silver hair.

Now the sun had completely set, and the wind had changed direction to a land breeze. Sometimes, sailors carrying water jugs would come and go, and they would be startled when they saw a white girl standing on the deck.

"Poem, poem, poems..."

At that moment, Seo Yi-seo, who was almost dying, crawled out onto the deck and called the girl. She had been lying sprawled on one side of the cabin due to severe seasickness, but it seemed that she was finally coming to her senses.

"I... I really feel like I'm going to die like this..."

No, am I still a long way from coming to my senses?

"Ms. Seo Yi-seo."

Sisley quickly ran to her and poured divine power into her.

Motion sickness is a perfectly normal reaction of the balance organ, so even divine power cannot relieve the symptoms. It can only slightly improve the condition of the body that has been exhausted from not eating properly for two days.

Thanks to that effort, Seo Yi-seo's pale complexion seemed to improve a little. Then, she held onto Sisley's sleeve tightly and complained with a pitiful face.

"Uh, can't we ride on the 'Wings of Glory' like before? Maybe it's because the ship is small, but it seems to be rocking back and forth more than before..."

Sisley and Seoyis were currently aboard the warship 'Judge'.

The Judgement is a small, old sailing ship that doesn't live up to its grand name, and the comfort on board is the worst of any ship. As a result, half of the Inquisitors on board are suffering from severe seasickness.

Unlike the first time he set sail, General Lysander tried to evenly distribute his forces throughout the fleet this time. Since the purpose of the expedition was to thoroughly subdue the Krabat Islands, it seemed he was considering the possibility that he would have to split the fleet later.

"If you can't stand it, board the 'Wings of Glory' alone. General Lysander will be happy to welcome you, a saint, aboard."

"I will never be separated from you, Sisley!"

"But I can't leave the Knights and act on my own, Seoyeo-ssi. Or how about asking Cardmos-sama to take over for me for a while?"

"Ugh! I asked you earlier! But you only run away at times like this and don't even pretend to listen to me!"

Seo Yi-seo trembled at the betrayal that had been creeping up on her for a long time. Forgiving someone by tearing at their face was only for a day or two! That person, as a cohabitant living in the same body, doesn't have the basic attitude!

"If I had known this would happen, I would have just pretended not to accept that son of a bitch's offer."

"Huh... what?"

"This is Ambrose of Helios."

Recently, while all the council members were busy electing new elders, Ambrose, the son of Chryses, showed an unexpected behavior. As soon as his father's funeral was over, he tried to contact Seoyseo.

It is said that he met Seo Yi-seo just before departure and made this secret proposal.

-Maritime demons have already been mostly eradicated in the first expedition. The second expedition will also be successful without any problems. So, how about the saintess just staying in Cyprus?

-You want me to stay... alone?

-Yes. I'm sure the others will understand. It seems General Lysander is taking his time to thoroughly search the open seas, which will be a tough schedule for an inlanderer unaccustomed to sailing.

So Ambrose said that he would invite Seuss to his mansion - which had until recently been the mansion of the elder Chryses - and that he would treat her as an honored guest until the punitive force returned.

Of course, the reason he made this suggestion was because the process of exploring the tower alone with his incomplete memories was extremely tedious. So he intended to trick Cadmus and borrow his strength and insight.

Seo Yi-seo couldn't guess what Ambrose was thinking. Fortunately, perhaps the incident that happened recently had made her a little wary of him.

So she flatly rejected the offer.

-That'll be hard. I have to stay by Sisley's side.

But Ambrosius still did not lose his relaxed attitude. He smiled and stared at Seo Yi-seo.

- Then, what is the intention of His Majesty the First Emperor?

-...yes?

- He who is with you. Is he willing to undertake that lowly and arduous voyage? Or is he willing to be treated with the utmost honor in the grandest palace of Helios?

-Cardmos? No, how could you... ...!

- The saint received a blessing at the ceremony of the Holy Emperor's coronation. If so, it means that she has clearly seen the true appearance of His Majesty the First Holy Emperor and is still with Him. Now, what does the greatest Holy Emperor, who founded the thousand-year-old Holy Nation, say to you now?

The expression on Ambrose's face as he asked that question was confident, as if he had no thought of Cadmus' rejection.

No wonder, Sigurd Sigurdson is one of those people who has known the longest, a personality-dead demigod who cares nothing but his own glory and comfort.

So, Ambrosius, who was once his puppet, could not help but know Cadmus' wayward personality.

But Seo Yi-seo, who had been rolling her eyes for a moment, answered Cardmos's answer after a while and replied to him like this.

-Um... Mr. Cadmus told me that he has nothing to talk to you about, other than Sigurd Sigurdsson.

-... .. !

For the first time, a crack appeared in Ambrose's relaxed expression.

-What? No, but I... .. .

-Oh, and you want me to tell you this too? If you bother me again, I'll take out all the grudge I've had for 700 years locked in a coffin on you?

-... .. .

So, he coldly rejected Ambrose's offer and boarded the ship with the punitive force.

And this was the result. After vomiting to death, I was lying helplessly on the deck. I belatedly regretted not having just pretended I couldn't win and accepted his offer.

"Yeah, that's it... .. ."

On the other hand, Sisley's mind became complicated after hearing that story.

'Ambrose of Helios... .. .'

Sisley also felt an indescribable awkwardness when he first met him. Even though it was our first meeting, he strangely felt like someone I had known for a long time, but that wasn't a very good feeling.

Moreover, one day, when she was overcome by a strong premonition and her mind became unstable, Ambrose deliberately lured her to the tower and tried to do something to her.

'Seo Yi-seo handled it well. He is an untrustworthy person.'

But despite such a strange antipathy, there are basic lines that a saint must uphold. A bastard? Is that something that someone who has been canonized as a living saint by the Orthodox Church should say?

So Sisley gently rebuked Seoyiseo.

"Mr. Seo Yi-seo. Senator Ambrosius recently lost his father. You shouldn't insult someone who has gone through such a difficult time."

"Why? I don't even want to call someone a son of a bitch who hurt their own parents!"

"The rumors of his involvement in Elder Crises' death are nothing more than groundless suspicions. If a saintess of the Holy Empire were to openly talk about such suspicions, it would surely cause big trouble later on."

But for some reason, Seo Yi-seo was confident.

"It's not an entirely baseless claim, Sisley! I saw with my own eyes that Ambrose was dragging Elder Chryses somewhere a while ago. The rift between them seemed quite deep, so it was clear that he had harmed the elder!"

...you saw it?

"If it weren't for that incident, I would have pretended I couldn't win and stayed in Cyprus! Eight! It's just that Mr. Benz's black curtain showed me that... Ugh!"

Seo Yi-seo, who had been sighing and vomiting like that, spoke to Sisley with a face that seemed to be dying after a while.

"I guess I can't do this. I'll go down and lie down for a little longer...
... ."

Sisley didn't have time to ask anything. Seoyi-seo, with a pale face, crawled back down to the cabin.

"... .."

Sisley, who had been looking at the pitiful back for a moment, leaned against the railing again and looked out at the darkened sea.

slam!

With the sound of waves crashing against the ship, possibilities that had been ignored until now slowly rise to the surface of consciousness, armed with a sense of reality.

'...Ambrose of Helios killed the elder Chryses.'

Why? Although he had not heard a detailed explanation from Seo Yiseo, Sisley had a strong feeling that her words were true. Even though he knew full well how foolish it was to believe groundless rumors.

Woof woof!

A dog barks in the distance. It feels as if it is affirming him at the right time, and Sisley is suddenly overcome by a strange feeling.

'Max, huh? I wonder if that guy gets seasick? Of course, Logan, who's with him, will take good care of him... '

In any case, Sisley renewed his vigilance against Ambrose.

'First of all, I have never read anything about him in the Chronicles of Delcross.'

[The Chronicles of Delcross] has provided Sisley with a lot of information about the future so far. Although it has been twisted here and there by Mores Oraboni, the basic value of the information that is fundamentally laid out in the background of the novel has not faded.

As evidence, Logan Oraboni is here to subdue the sea monsters, even though it is a little late.

But nowhere in this thick chronicle, spanning three volumes, is there any mention of Ambrose, which is strange, considering that he was such an important figure, called the "Prince of Cyprus."

'Does that mean that he, like Mores Oraboni, will become a huge variable that will change the future? Could it be that the death of Elder Crises, which was not recorded in the Chronicles, was also something that happened because of his involvement?'

Woof woof!

Then the sound of a dog barking is heard again.

Sisley smiled faintly as he felt that Max had been answering his inner questions for some reason.

But maybe it's my imagination, but somehow I feel like the barking is closer than before...

Sisley tilted his body towards the sea, which was heading towards the port, to find the 'Wings of Glory' where Max would be.

But it was just then.

'...huh?'

The girl's eyes caught a strange sight. Far away, on a ship anchored midway between the Wings of Glory and the Judgement, she saw something strange yet familiar.

A draconian three times larger than the average sailor, sitting on the deck of the ship and drinking carefreely.

'Mitra?'

Even though I'm looking at him with my eyes, I can still feel his presence vaguely, so perhaps the amulet he has is working properly.

As expected, the sailors seemed completely unaware of his presence and did not even glance at the forecastle deck.

'How long has it been there?'

Why is he here when we had already parted ways at the port of Cyprus?

Naturally, I had such a question, but then I suddenly remembered the story of his friend who was dying alone in the distant sea. Maybe he was going to follow the fleet to the [Perception Horizon] and meet his friend.

'I don't particularly feel like he's a threat to the fleet. Still, he's an unauthorized stowaway, so I'll have to warn Brother Logan about him when I get the chance.'

It was just when Sisley had that thought.

Woof woof woof!

The sound of dogs barking is heard closer.

This time, it really wasn't Sisley's mistake. When he turned his head to follow the sound, he saw that in the distance, a really large wolf-dog was getting closer and closer.

The wolf-dog ran across the deck and jumped over the stern railing of the 'Wings of Glory', landing on the small whaling ship anchored in front of it with its four paws wrapped in fiery aura.

Dadadadada!

After running at such a fast speed across the deck of the whaling ship, he leapt up again and this time stepped onto the large ship, the Sea Lion, which was no less than the Wings of Glory.

Taat!

"It's a dog! It's the royal dog!"

"How can a dog jump farther than a knight?"

The sailors' commotion grows louder.

Sisley, too, could not take his eyes off Max's strange movements.

'Max, where the hell are you running off to?'

The wolf-dog clearly seemed to have a clear destination in mind, as it ran in a straight line, jumping over the ships as if they were stepping stones.

Blame! Dadadadada!

Meanwhile, Max jumped down onto the small whaling ship in front again. He jumped over the 'Mighty Tail' and the 'Blood Dawn' one by one, and-Grorrrrrr... ... !

Finally, when they reached the 'Harpoon of God' that Mithra was riding, he growled loudly, baring his sharp fangs.

"... ... !"

Until then, Mitra had been living leisurely, relying only on the effects of the amulet. Only after meeting the silver eyes of the wolf, glaring with hostility, did he finally sense something ominous.

Draconian stood up awkwardly with a puzzled expression. But it was already too late.

Eww! Woof!

The wolf rushed at Mithra like lightning, sinking its fangs into his struggling arm and shaking its head mercilessly.

As if the flimsy protection of a talisman was nothing. So easy, so natural.

Thud!

As the sharp teeth of the wolf wrapped in aura brushed past, the hard scales covering Mithra's arms fell helplessly to the ground.

"Huh? Kyaaaaak!?"

Because of that, the great leader of the race, who had been in pain for the first time in a long time, forgot all about his dignity and screamed for the ship to sail away.

"Eww! Let go of it! Hurry up and let it go!"

492. Stranding (2)

"... General Lysander. What is all this?"

Logan, who had disembarked for a while and returned, could not help but be astonished at the sight before his eyes.

He was on his way to the port of Rhodes to get food for Max. Since the boarding of the Wolfdog was entirely his own decision, he thought it would be difficult to deplete the fleet's food supplies.

But just as I was returning with high-quality raw meat and preserved meat, the wolf-dog caused a huge accident. It was running wild through the entire fleet on the bridge carrying the auror, startling the sailors.

Plus, he caught a suspicious stowaway!

This is what happened the moment Logan's powerful controlling power disappeared.

Logan was at a loss for words for a moment, looking back and forth between the large man - the amulet was still taking effect - and the wolfdog dangling from his arm.

"....."

At that moment, the stowaway, looking very embarrassed, held out his left arm, which was hanging from the dog.

"Excuse me... Could you please do something about this dog?"

You might wonder how someone of such an imposing size could possibly be so incompetent at handling a dog, but Logan, who was sensitive to Aurors, could quickly sense the problem the current stowaway was facing.

'I guess I can't move the auror rashly.'

First of all, the smuggler was a considerable Auror user. He was so skilled that it made you wonder why he wasn't well known on the continent. If it had been a normal dog, he would have been able to take him out easily with his abilities.

But the problem was that the wolf-dog hanging from his arm was also Lee Seong-jin, whom Logan recognized as a genius in Auror operations.

Grrrrrr...

Although it looked like it was hanging still, the werewolf was currently moving its aura densely inside its body. It was ready to explode with aura if anyone touched it.

At the same time, the outside air is densely permeated into the stowaway's body, centered around the forearm that was inserted. By interfering with the stowaway's natural aura flow, it is like a fuse has been entangled in his body.

"We tried to pull it off, but even the slightest touch caused hot flames to burst out from the dog."

The knights cautiously elaborate from behind. That was the reason why they could not even properly capture the stowaway and barely brought him to the flagship.

'Yes. Considering the nature of the aura that Lee Sung-jin possesses, it's not unreasonable.'

Logan naturally wondered:

'Why are you so wary of the author?'

So he carefully caught the wolf-dog and asked.

"Lee Seong-jin, why are you doing that?"

"...omg?"

The knights instinctively stepped back in panic, expecting Prince Logan to be engulfed in flames just as they had been.

".....?"

But surprisingly, nothing happened. The wolfhound simply stared at Prince Logan with meaningful eyes, then glared at the stowaway again and growled.

Grrrrrr... ..

"Okay, I get it. You're telling me to be wary of the author?"

Logan nodded and slowly began to expand his gaze.

Then his thoughts began to extend to all the places his perception could reach. The air flow gradually slowed down, and even the smallest dust particles floating in the air sank to the deck under his control.

".....!"

The power Logan wielded was completely invisible. Nevertheless, it was so powerful that everyone in the vicinity felt his will and were overwhelmed by his presence. It was the Sword Master's ability to control the breathing of surrounding creatures and even the flow of air at will if he wanted to.

After wrapping his thoughts tightly around the stowaway's son-in-law, Logan finally gave the wolf-dog a gentle nudge.

"Okay. It's okay now, Lee Sung-jin. I'll keep a good eye on him."

"....."

Only after hearing Logan's confirmation did the wolf-dog finally release its jaws and fall away.

And then-

Kekeke! Kekeke!

He sat on the floor and retched several times. He had been biting Mithra's forearm for so long that he had accidentally swallowed a few of his scales.

"But what are all these scales?"

General Lysander looked at the large scales the dog had spat out on the deck, and made a face of bewilderment.

Meanwhile-

Mitra, the unlucky stowaway, was distraught at his worsening situation.

I was bitten by a strange dog and was completely controlled by it, but when I finally broke free, I was suddenly controlled by a little kid, down to my every breath!

'... This boy is Nate's son!'

He knew it the moment he laid eyes on Logan. Even if he didn't know that the son of a Dimensional Guardian was leading the fleet, the two of them looked so alike that he would have recognized him at a glance.

Moreover, unfortunately, his son also had the same ability to manipulate his thoughts as Nate.

The cold thoughts that extended from the boy reached the tip of the scales like sharp awls. Thanks to this, Mitra was now feeling a terrible pressure as if his entire body was touching the tip of a sharp weapon.

'Ah, Nate! Why on earth did you tell me to follow this fleet!'

In any case, it was his own fault for accepting the Oracle's words without any doubt.

Mitra rolled his eyes urgently, trying to figure out a way to escape.

'Key! If I could even manipulate the key, I could jump to the elder's space right now... ...!'

But when he tried to move one hand slightly-

Sreung!

Arjuna's sword blade is pulled out in an instant and lands precisely on the tip of Mithra's chin.

Considering that the power of the 'talisman' prevented his true form from being properly recognized by outsiders, it is surprising that the boy aimed so precisely at his weak point.

"Don't even think about talking nonsense."

Logan's sunken eyes cast a cold glare.

The appearance also resembled someone he knew very well, so Mitra felt his will to resist gradually disappearing.

'Oh, I don't know anymore! If there's a problem between me and his son, wouldn't Nate intervene before that happens?'

In the end, Mitra had no choice but to be taken to the interrogation room after a thorough body search.

In the midst of all this, it's a blessing in disguise that the amulet that fell off my body is still functioning.

"Then let's hurry up and talk before we set sail. I have to decide whether I should kick you out to the port, execute you here, or drag you on like this."

Logan said, sitting across from him.

In the hastily constructed interrogation room in the cabin, only Mitra and Prince Logan were present. Everyone else was having a hard time withstanding the sharp aura the prince was emitting.

Keying.

Oh, come to think of it, there's one more thing. The prince had a dog.

The wolf-dog lay stretched out in front of the pile of Mithra's belongings on one side of the interrogation room, guarding them - precious bottles of wine, small hatchets, amulets, even the clan keys.

Mithra had new doubts.

'What the heck is that dog?'

How did he penetrate the power of the talisman, see through his presence, and draw people's attention to him, making his presence known to the outside world?

How did he know that he had a secret escape route and how did he bind the Auras so that they could not be manipulated?

How on earth could a representative of a great race be so helpless...?

"You really have a great dog."

As he muttered that absentmindedly, Logan glanced at his arm, where there was a clear scar, and said.

"Yeah, that's great. But it seems like he's been pretty forgiving. If Lee Sung-jin really wanted to hurt you, there wouldn't be a trace left on his arm by now."

".....!"

When Mitra turned around with a surprised expression, the wolf-dog bit his lip in displeasure and snorted softly.

Keng!

If that sight somehow feels annoying, is it just my imagination?

"Okay, then let's look at them one by one."

Logan asked, dipping the nib of his pen into the inkwell.

"First of all, who are you? What is your name and age?"

"My name is Michel. I haven't counted my age lately, but I think I'm around 50. I'm just a lowly wanderer, wandering the world without a destination."

Then Logan's eyes sharpen. He immediately realizes that it is a hasty lie.

"What is your real name?"

"... That's... I'm sorry. Actually, my name is Bart-"

"What is your real name?"

"... Mithra."

"good night."

Four-legged race.

Prince Logan writes the first line of the interrogation report in neat handwriting.

"Age is?"

"So, probably mid-50s... .."

"age."

"....."

"age."

"... 189 years old."

"... Hmm? Well, okay."

Prince Logan tilted his head for a moment, then raised his voice slightly and wrote down his age again.

'No, I told you an age that is absolutely impossible for a normal human, so how do you know that's true?'

The Draconian felt a spine-chilling tension for the first time in a long time.

"What is the purpose of smuggling?"

"Ahem! I just heard that the fleet rarely goes that far, so I thought I'd go take a look... .."

"purpose."

"....."

"purpose."

The prince asks again in a calm voice. Without a hint of impatience, without raising his voice at all.

But Mithra felt vividly on his skin that there was a cool anticipation hidden in that calm, sleep-like prayer.

Eventually, he could not overcome the pressure and ended up revealing the truth without realizing it.

"I thought... I'd like to meet an old friend... .."

"....."

Logan furrowed his eyebrows for a moment, but then nodded and filled in the next line of the interrogation report. He didn't seem to doubt the sincerity of her answer, even though she said she was going to the ocean to meet a friend.

Mithra was now beyond nervous and almost bewildered.

'Nate, what the hell is this boy! Why aren't any of your children normal?'

So Mitra was thoroughly exposed to Logan's interrogation for a while. He could not tell a single lie. Whenever he tried to cover it up, the prince would dig into it like a ghost, so he could not hide anything.

Eventually, Mitra was forced to confess that he was a member of a different race called the Draconians, that he was currently hiding his true form with a magical item, and that he was the only one of his kind left.

"I see. You lost both your people and your country... .."

Logan nods and begins filling out the interrogation form.

But was it just Mitra's illusion that the boy's spirits softened slightly as he said those words?

"Do you believe everything I just said?"

"Of course, I still keep in mind the possibility that you are either insane or a delusional person who believes his own lies. Personally, I hope that the story about losing all of your kind is not true."

"....."

"But at least I believe that you are sincere in your words. That you have no intention of harming the fleet."

Mitra felt a strange sense of comfort. The boy had not said anything comforting to him, but he felt that his serious expression and orderly speech deeply sympathized with his pain. It was truly strange.

"So, can you remove the effects of that 'amulet'? If I'm going to believe you're a different race, I guess I'll have to see you in your true form."

"Oh, that's possible. So, over there... .."

But before he could finish speaking, the dog guarding the belongings rummaged through the items, picked out the exact 'talisman', and brought it back to him!

Mitra accepted the amulet with a dumbfounded face. That dog is really, really strange... ..

So Mithra hesitated for a moment, then removed the amulet and revealed his true form.

"You really are a different species. The scale that fell off earlier is also yours."

"That's true... .."

It would be quite surprising to see a foreign race for the first time, but the prince showed no signs of being disturbed. Could there really be something in this world that could shake up that deep and calm sea?

"By the way, the wound is bigger than I thought. I can't just leave it as is, so I'll treat it for now."

"....."

Mitra was possessed by something and was treated by the prince.

Then, after a while, the situation was resolved in an unexpected way. Sisley, who had witnessed Mithra being taken away, came to the Wings of Glory himself with a worried look on his face.

"Logan, brother. I know Mitra."

"so?"

"Yes, he is a member of a different race called Draconian, and it seems that he is well acquainted with Your Majesty."

"I see. I understand."

With those words, the air begins to melt like ice melting in the spring breeze.

"Very well. I hereby authorize your temporary embarkation to the Krabat Islands, Mitra."

"What, what... ..?"

"But I cannot just take out the resources stored in the fleet as I please. So at least get the food yourself."

"....."

He was a prince who was strangely loose and strangely old-fashioned.

493. Stranding (3)

Prince Logan allowed Mitra to remain hidden, as he did not want the sudden appearance of the Draconians to throw the entire fleet into chaos.

"Surprisingly, you accept other races easily. Aren't you also a knight who believes in the Lord?"

Logan's eyebrows furrowed slightly at Mitra's question.

"The existence of a different race doesn't seem that strange to me. There was once an archaeologist in Ortona who only studied traces of the different race."

"... Ortona?"

"Yes. Not only that, but heterodox races often appear in Orthona's classical literature. I'm talking about the exquisite fantasy literature set in the era of the Three Elder Dragons."

"....."

Even so, aren't you an imperial person?

Even if some of the cultural heritage of the fallen nation remains, it has long been designated as banned books, so how on earth... ..

Mitra naturally had doubts, but he did not dare to speak them out loud. This was because he felt a strange sadness in the calm expression of Prince Logan.

The age and sadness in this serious boy's eyes may have been even deeper and heavier than Mitra's. That's why Mitra secretly treated him as someone of similar age to himself, and he didn't feel any discomfort about it.

In any case, Mitra was promoted from a stowaway to a guest, and all of his stolen belongings were returned to him: his precious bottle of moonshine, his hatchet, and various magical items, including amulets.

"There is still some time before departure. Would you like to go to the port to get some food?"

"No, it's okay. I have a magic bag stocked with food."

The only exception was the 'Race Key', because the moment Mitra reached out for it, a wolf-dog quickly intervened, bit it, and ran away.

".....?!"

As if the dog's initial fierce wariness of Mithra had been an illusion, its mind was now completely focused on the key.

Could it be that he had guessed that the moment he got his hands on the race key, he would be able to escape to another dimension?

"Lee Seong-jin."

When Prince Logan, unable to stand watching, called out, the wolfdog came closer, hesitantly. Then, he gently placed the shining silver disc on the prince's hand, not Mithra's.

Then he stands between the two and growls loudly, as if he will never let this thing be taken away from him.

"....."

Prince Logan, who had been watching the scene for a moment, quickly guessed the dog's intentions. He said as he put the tribal key inside his coat.

"It seems like it wasn't you that this guy was wary of, but this thing."

When things turned out this way, Mitra was quite bewildered, as there was no way to seize the key from the powerful Sword Master with his own strength alone.

"But that thing is very important to me and to the world. I must get it back."

"I will keep it for you only while you are on board. I will return it to you as soon as this voyage is over."

Prince Logan, who had responded strangely, looked down at the wolf-dog and cautiously asked for consent.

"Is that okay, Lee Seong-jin?"

OK-

Boom!

As if he understood what was being said, the wolfdog responded vigorously and wags its tail.

"Okay, I understand."

All these sights seemed so strange to Mithra. The wolf-dog who had sensed and stolen the most important belongings like a ghost, or Prince Logan who, as the highest commanding officer of the fleet, was asking the opinion of a mere dog.

Whether he was aware of the strange gaze or not, Prince Logan spoke while straightening his flawless uniform.

"It's late at night, so you can rest now. I'll give you my cabin as your accommodation first."

The logic was that he could not demand others to vacate their cabins on his own. As a result, General Lysander ended up giving up the captain's cabin to the prince.

So Mitra was assigned a fairly spacious cabin.

Of course, given the Draconian's natural physique, it couldn't be said to be comfortable, even in vain. Still, considering that he had been hiding in a narrow whaling ship warehouse until then, it could be seen as a great improvement.

The problem was that, unfortunately, it wasn't a place I could use alone.

"Oh, Logan, while you're here, would it be okay if I leave Seo-seo here? She got really seasick on the referee's boat."

"Yes, I understand. Take it to my cabin for now. I will ask General Lysander for permission to board."

"Thank you, brother. Then, Mitra, see you later."

After waving absentmindedly to the little saintess who greeted him warmly, Mitra was left alone in the cabin with a human woman.

Ugh! Ugh!

Mitra muttered blankly, looking at the woman who was vomiting like crazy.

"... How did things turn out like this?"

Meanwhile, the final outcome faced by the wolf dog, the mastermind behind all this, was not so easy.

I followed Logan into Captain Talletalle's cabin, and there, in the middle of the room, was a pile of fresh raw meat.

Beef slaughtered that day, still emitting a faint smell of blood. It was a generous gift prepared by General Lysander for the wolf-dog.

"General, what is all this?"

Logan stood in his way and stopped him, but-

"You can't feed the food on board the fleet to dogs."

... The wolf dog, no, it didn't seem to sympathize with the concerns that Seongjin felt.

And unfortunately, the old general Lysander knew how to gently persuade the old-fashioned prince.

"Your Majesty. This is a just reward for a dog."

"A reward... you mean?"

"Yes. Didn't this smart dog catch a smuggler on his own when no one knew about it? As an admiral leading the fleet, if I don't give him an appropriate reward for this, discipline will be shaken."

"Oh, I see. In that case... .."

Ironically, Logan was too easily persuaded by the idea that he had to uphold fleet discipline.

"What a great piece of meat. It turned out really well. Isn't that right, Lee Seong-jin?"

The wolfdog looked up at Logan's brightly smiling face. Then, as if he had given up, he slowly brought his snout to the food bowl.

Swish... swish swish... ..

"Hoo... .."

General Lysander was impressed. Compared to the energetic and energetic people who were running around stirring up the entire fleet, the wolf-dog's meal looked very tame.

Is it true that noble dogs raised in the royal family are different no matter what?

It was only natural that Prince Logan looked upon the sight with great delight.

"How is it? Is it delicious?"

Ugh... ..

The wolf-dog didn't really answer the question, but as the main body's mood rapidly deteriorated, its wagging tail couldn't help but droop a little.

"Ugh... .."

And that reaction directly affected the state of the main body.

"... raw meat... really not good... ugh... .."

Prince Mores, who had been asleep since early evening, frowns and mumbles in his sleep.

Edith turned around, neatly straightening the disheveled bedding.

"Now, look, Sir Marsain. Am I right?"

"... That's true."

Masain, who had been watching the scene with concern, stumbled with a very serious expression on his face.

"Your Majesty, you hate raw meat so much that you have nightmares like this every day. Without even knowing it, we must have been too careless in serving you undercooked steaks."

Then, Captain Bruno, who was nearby, also pulled at his mustache and chimed in.

"Don't worry, Sir Marsain. I will tell the cook to pay more attention from now on."

So, only the poor chef ended up getting the warning to 'cook the meat properly.'

After leaving Rhodes, the fleet slowly sailed northeast.

This was a slightly off-course route, as attempting to sail in a straight line to the Kravat Islands would have meant sailing head-on against the turbulent current.

"It will take too much time considering the distance."

As Logan kept looking at the map in frustration, General Lysander burst into laughter.

"Haha. It's just that the weather has gotten colder and the wind direction has changed a bit, my lord. If it were summer, I would have been pushed around by the current and couldn't overcome the headwind."

So they slowly moved northeast for five days, then turned south-southeast and sailed for another three days. Until then, all they could see was the horizon, an endless horizon.

Then, on the eighth day, there finally began to be a slight change in the surrounding scenery. The flow of the ocean current seemed to change subtly, and faint dots began to appear beyond the horizon.

It was the Krabat Islands.

"I can see the island!"

"That's Cosmima Island!"

The Krabat Islands, which stretch from north to south like a crescent moon, jut out from the sea like the spine of a giant dragon.

Among them, the northernmost island was called Cosmima, and was a fairly large island with dense bushes and small shrubbery.

The fleet advanced slowly across the vastly shallow sea.

"...There's a port?"

"Haha, can you see everything from this distance? As expected, the Sword Master's eyesight cannot be fooled."

General Lysander smiled as he folded up his telescope.

"But it would be difficult to bring the flagship close. Let's send a couple of small whaling ships to procure water and food."

Cosmima Island, like the other islands in the Krabat Archipelago, had a base of basalt.

The submarine volcanoes that created the archipelago have long since ceased activity and fallen asleep, and the cliffs, eroded by waves and wind over the years, form gentle curves that blend in with the sea.

The shrubs that covered the black cliffs in thick layers were shining a vivid blue even in this season, perhaps due to the influence of the turbulent currents.

"How is it? Your Majesty. At first glance, it looks so beautiful that it's hard to believe it's a den of sea demons."

But just as the fleet passed the harbor and rounded the corner of the island, Logan's eyes suddenly narrowed into a serious expression.

"But, General. What is that...?"

General Lysander lifts his telescope and looks in the direction he is pointing, and sure enough, he sees a row of black masses stretching along the island's coastline.

At first he thought they were parts of rocks or cliffs, but General Lysander soon realized what they were and his face immediately turned pale.

"That's... ..!"

"... I think they are whales that have come out onto land, Your Majesty."

The navigator standing nearby answers on behalf of General Lysander, who is unable to continue speaking.

"Whales can't survive long out in the ocean. Their skin dries out quickly, and they can't breathe properly because of the weight. If we leave them like this, they'll probably all die."

Logan, who had been looking more closely at the shoreline at the navigator's urgent explanation, soon shook his head with a regretful expression.

"It seems too late. I can't detect any aura from them."

The sailors exchanged glances with anxious faces.

It was a strange and gruesome sight, the likes of which they had never seen before in their long voyage. Why were there dozens of whales lying dead on land, right in front of the sea where they could breathe easily?

"What the heck?"

"Surely you were chased by a sea monster... .."

There were only two people in the fleet who were calm.

Saint Seo Yi-seo, who just barely escaped seasickness-

"Oh, that's it! Isn't that the scene that Mr. Benz Black Curtain showed on TV a while ago?"

It was a wolf-dog that stood with its front paws on the deck and stared intently at the island.

Kiing... ..

The wolf-dog, whose sharp gray eyes were shining, sniffed softly as it smelled a pungent smell carried by the wind.

494. Stranding (4)

The group completely abandoned their plan to replenish their water supply at Cosmima Island. After confirming the mass death of whales, they could not just set their boats out into the sea.

A situation where you can't even guess what kind of serious danger might be lurking around you.

"I don't feel any particular presence of the sea demon... .."

Despite Logan's assurance, the cautious General Lysander shook his head.

"It doesn't have to be this island, Your Majesty. If you go a little further south from here, you will come across Peridero Island, the second largest island in the archipelago."

Peridere Island was a place where naval forces patrolling the open seas would sometimes stay, as it was a good location for observing the movements of sea monsters.

Given the circumstances, the island has a small port, as well as simple outposts and basic facilities. It was thought that there would be no better place for a fleet to stay for a day.

"But General, isn't that place too close to the den of sea demons? It seems dangerous to move with such a large fleet."

"It'll probably be okay now, Your Majesty. The number of demons seems to have decreased considerably."

This was a route that would have encountered sea monsters many times. However, since nothing has happened so far, most of the monsters were probably killed in the first expedition.

So the fleet reorganized its formation a bit and headed south again.

After passing a row of large and small islands, we proceeded for some time until the sailor hanging from the masthead announced loudly:

"...Ah! I can see the island, General!"

Soon, the thick, half-folded pancake-like shape of Peridereo Island could be seen with the naked eye from the deck.

It was said to be the second largest island in the archipelago, and indeed, it was so large that the opposite end of the island could not be seen at a glance.

however-

"The whales..."

General Lysander, who had been looking straight ahead for a moment, muttered with a slightly dejected expression as he folded up his telescope.

"There are dead whales over there too..."

As he said, the situation at Peridereo Island was not much different. On the long sandbank shaped like a crescent moon, there were many more whales stranded in a row than before.

Most of them were small dolphins, but occasionally there were large humpback whales and young sperm whales mixed in.

Skins dried out and tattered from exposure to the sun. Deep scars from the scraping of waves and rocks.

The various marks carved into the black hide made us guess at how horrific and desperate the series of processes the whales had to go through before they died were.

"It seems like quite some time has passed since that happened. There are no living whales left."

Logan shook his head with a serious expression.

Then, suddenly, he noticed Mitra looking at the beach with a very serious face. At that moment, a strange intuition flashed through the Sword Master's mind.

"Mitra? Do you have any idea?"

"... I'm not entirely sure, but I think so."

Draconian hesitated for a moment and then answered truthfully. Even if he hid something, Prince Logan would find out everything anyway.

"Then tell me. What is all this about?"

"hmm....."

Then Mithra glanced at General Lysander and whispered to Logan in a low voice so that he could not hear.

"Actually, somewhere among these volcanic islands, there exists an Ionian relic from the era of the Three Elder Dragons. My guess is that it may be an influence of that... .."

Ionia.

Logan had heard vaguely about his destroyed home world during his recent interrogation of Mitra.

The fact that the great legacies of civilization that came from that world were spread across the continent under the pretext of 'magic items'.

"Relics? What purpose could they serve to have such an effect on whales?"

"It's just my guess, but it's probably something that interferes with the minds of living things within a certain radius, causing them to lose their senses and wander."

Mitra briefly explained to Logan what he knew.

At one time, the Ionian races used the Delcross dimension, inhabited by inferior humans, as their prison. A prime example of this is the Northern Magical Realm, which is used as a prison for lycanthropes.

And the area around the Krabat Archipelago was said to have been used as a prison by the Manta Tribe, a superior marine race.

"But banishing them from Ionia was not the end. We could not let dangerous elements run free in this world. What if they entered the continent and harmed the poor, poor humans?"

So, except for the lycanthrope prisons where natural hallucinogens grow naturally, the Ionian races usually installed some kind of 'device' in their prisons.

It was a vicious device that delved into the minds of living things, tempting them while at the same time constantly disrupting their ability to think normally.

So that the prisoners never leave a certain area, and so that they cannot gather together and plot anything.

"But now the guards who manage the prison no longer exist."

Squeak...

As if he understood Mithra's explanation, the wolf-dog pricked up its ears and listened to his voice. Mithra glanced at the strange wolf-dog and continued speaking.

"And the Ionian engineers who knew about the device are no longer around, so it wouldn't be surprising if those delicate artifacts malfunctioned somewhat, affecting not only the Mantas but also the creatures of Delcross."

"..."

Logan looked serious and thoughtful.

Somewhere in the Krabat Archipelago lies a magical artifact that can cloud the minds of creatures. If that is true, doesn't that mean the artifact can have the same effect on the crew of the fleet?

"...I guess I have to find it and destroy it."

Logan decided that he had to disembark and find the artifact, even if it meant going alone.

"I'll go and take a look. Mithra, do you happen to know the exact location of the relic?"

"I don't know. But if you have the key, it's not that hard to find your way around by looking at the map. All of Ionia's major facilities are registered on the key."

"A map?"

"Yes. If it's okay with you, could you give me back the 'key' for just a moment?"

But as soon as those words fell out-

Grrrrrr...

The wolf dog that had been quiet until just a moment ago suddenly started showing its teeth and growling. I couldn't even guess why.

Finally, Logan looked closely at the wolf-dog's appearance and answered.

"That might be a bit difficult. Or how about this? If you just tell me how, I will personally verify that it is the key."

"It's impossible. The Delcross dimension is essentially a realm with its own laws. So, unless you are the rightful owner of the key, you cannot easily access the functions of the realm provided by the key."

"Then what should I do to become the owner of the key?"

As Logan took the silver disc out of his bosom, Mitra shook her head with a determined expression.

"It's impossible for you. You must formally receive the position of the race representative from the owner of the key."

"Then, if you could temporarily hand over that representative position to me... .."

"That's not right."

Mithra's attitude was more stubborn than ever.

"I am a member of the council of six who protect the world, and the last leader representing one race. There are certain lines that I absolutely cannot compromise on."

"... .."

"If you force me to hand over the keys, I will fight to the end. If you still want to take the keys away, then kill me here and now."

But that was then.

Squeak... ..

Suddenly, a wolfdog bites Logan's uniform hem and gently pulls him towards it.

"What's wrong? What's going on, Lee Seong-jin?"

Logan obediently bowed down to the force, and the wolfdog gently placed its snout over the disc in his hand.

OK-

sparkle!

Suddenly, the disk started flashing a faint light. I wasn't sure, but it was clear that some of the key's functions were being activated without permission.

"what?"

Mithra jumped back in shock.

"Wait! That...! What is that dog? How on earth did it get the keys without permission... ..!"

"... Well, well. It's hard to explain, but he's a guy with quite a few talents."

After responding like that, Logan looked down at the wolfdog, who was concentrating intently on something, with concern.

It was only a fleeting moment, but I thought I saw a faint red light in the wolfdog's pupils.

"There's a map... there's a map... ... ' "

Sungjin was extremely focused. It was much more difficult than he had expected to exercise his spiritual eyes through his distant relatives.

Fortunately, the effort is not in vain, and soon numerous text windows appear before your eyes.

Unlike the lycanthrope key that was formally handed over to me by my elders, the menus on this key were extremely blurry.

Fortunately, it wasn't to the point where it was impossible to identify, and Sungjin was able to confirm that the menus were the same as the previous key.

It seems that the representative of this race has much greater influence over his own race than expected.

Of course, these functions are now useless to Mithra. You called yourself the last Draconian, right?

Seongjin lowered his gaze and scanned the menus, which were so detailed that they were almost messy.

Unlike the key he had received, there were also many properly activated portal menus here.

As I selected the menu, a small map suddenly appeared before my eyes.

Image of Peridereo Island with a simplified coastline and contour lines, and a single red dot shining at the southern tip of the island.

I looked up at the sky just in case, and saw a red streak of light rising clearly in the far southern sky.

An effect similar to augmented reality or a game screen. The location shown on the map was correct.

'Probably somewhere over the cliff over there...'

Seongjin, who took some time to get a rough map in his head, pushed the silver disc towards Logan again.

"Lee Seong-jin? Did you find out something here?"

Boom!

To Logan's question, Sungjin answered vigorously and wagged his tail.

Meanwhile, on the cliffs south of Peridereo.

There was a man hiding behind a rock, sweating profusely. It was Romain, who had just been comfortably handling the relics.

He rarely concealed his embarrassment and clutched the hem of his robe tightly.

"What is this? Why is the Cypriot Navy suddenly flocking to this island?"

495. Stranding (5)

Dozens of sailing ships approach, circling the coast of Peridero Island.

The emblem on the trireme is the red weather vane, the symbol of the Federation of Cyprus Cities. And fluttering next to it is the proud emblem of the Holy Empire.

It was true. They were a punitive force comprised of the Cypriot Navy and the Knights of the Holy Empire. As soon as he realized this fact, Romain immediately had this question in mind.

'Why on earth did they come here?'

Of course, it's not that I didn't consider the possibility that the punitive force would invade the Krabat Islands. But I didn't think they would force a second departure so quickly.

Given that Helios had to shoulder a significant portion of the financial burden, Elder Chryses would not have backed down so easily, would he?

'Besides, if you really came to subdue the sea monsters, why didn't you set up a base on Cosmima Island like you always do? Why did you risk getting caught on the reefs and force your way all the way here?'

Meanwhile, the fleet finally reaches the appropriate depth and anchors its ships. Soon, a small boat is seen lowering from the flagship.

I don't know why, but they really want to come to this Peridero Island!

'What should I do? They probably don't know about the relic, but if they come this way... ... '

Romain looked back at the artifact he had just been working on with a puzzled expression.

An Ionian relic. It was a metal pillar about waist-high, its surface covered with tiny patterns that were impossible to discern with the naked eye.

At first glance, it looked like just an elaborate piece of craftsmanship. However, within those beautiful and dynamic patterns, a tremendous secret that humans could not even dare to imagine was hidden.

This was the essence of the brilliant science of old Ionia, a kind of worker's console left behind by a great civilization that was at least centuries ahead of Delcross.

'I thought I was finally getting the hang of it... ... '

As I ran my hand over the gently vibrating surface of the pillar, memories of the hardships I had endured so far naturally crossed my mind.

Controlling this console was more difficult than expected, as the artifact had not been maintained for a long time and was already malfunctioning frequently. During his voyage here, Romain had also seen dead whales scattered all over the archipelago.

There were quite a few moments that were dizzying. I accidentally pulled in a pod of whales that were passing by, and once I got caught up in it myself and almost lost consciousness.

One time, the environment around the island was suddenly disturbed. The water temperature temporarily rose, causing a sudden low pressure, and as a result, a typhoon suddenly struck the coast of Cyprus. Of course, even Romain had no idea about that.

Anyway, after going through a lot of trial and error, I was finally able to get the console to work stably...

'Should I avoid the seat? But I can't give up now, the time and effort

I've already put in is too much of a waste.'

Roman's worries deepened.

But when the time came to make a choice, someone's image appeared in his mind as if it were a lie. It was a face from a memory he had tried to erase for a long time.

-By the time you become convinced that something is truly dangerous, it is usually already too late.

One day, a senior who had cut off headquarters' communication without permission said something like that to Romain.

He quickly prepared his gear and then wiped away the traces of the campfire with his feet. Romain followed him and asked, packing his gear hesitantly.

-... Then what should I do?

-What should I do? I have to run away quickly and get out of here.

-What are the orders from headquarters?

- It's just a measure taken based on on-site judgment. Want to bet? Those gentlemen will probably be very grateful if we just come back alive.

Even though the situation was extremely urgent, he had a mischievous smile on his face. I had no idea where he got such composure.

-Do you understand? It seems like you lack the ability to sense danger, so if something feels off, develop the habit of running away quickly.

Ah, yes. Thinking about it now, I guess I was just a tasteless person who lived in a world where everyone was full of their own tastes.

But honestly, I don't think there was anything wrong with what that senior said. As a result, they were the only reconnaissance team to survive that day.

'Let's run away for now. It won't be too late to come back and bother them later after they leave.'

Once he had made up his mind, he acted quickly. After quickly hiding the relic under a rock, Romain slid down the cliff with his legs shaking from nervousness.

'At least we had to secure some food on this island! If we were to return to Cyprus like this, more than half of the sailors we brought with us would probably die.'

Well, does it matter? I was planning on killing everyone and destroying the evidence once we got to the port of Cyprus anyway.

It was just as Romaine reached the bottom of the cliff that he had that thought.

Bam.

Suddenly, a squishy lump steps on me, interrupting my train of thought.

I looked down in surprise and saw something that looked like a rolled up black sack.

'This is... ..'

Manta? Judging by its size, it's probably a younger one. Perhaps it was unlucky enough to get caught up in a test piloting the console.

""

I briefly considered taking this. If I couldn't get my hands on the Manta this time, I thought I should at least show Prince Leonard a sample.

But looking at his breath that was so rapid it seemed like it would stop and his skin that was completely cracked, I thought he wouldn't live long.

After making his decision, Roman passed the Mantas without a care and walked towards the fishing boat anchored below the cliff.

The Manta tribe that Amelia remembered was a very strange race. With their large eyes and small facial features, they looked similar to humans.

But despite their wide nasal passages, they breathed mainly through water rather than air.

They also had a separate black, long fin on their backs. On land, it looked like they were wearing a cloak, but underwater, it was said to spread out like large wings. I heard that they could use those fins to swim faster and more gracefully than any other sea creature in the world.

'Romain... When and how did he get his hands on those strange aliens?'

As Amelia was deep in thought, someone knocked lightly on the open study door and came in. It was William, the Earl of Bathurst.

"Your Majesty. This is a summary of the deliberation process."

"Oh my... Did you bring that yourself? You could have just asked the administrator to do it."

"There is a strange trend that wasn't recorded in the minutes, so I'd like to report that as well."

William Bathurst was currently working with Amelia to reorganize the commercial laws of the Empire.

Despite its long history, imperial law was very weak in many ways. Much of the judicial process depended on statutory and customary law, and officials rarely touched the law books.

Because of this, many merchants have been exploiting loopholes in the law to gain unfair advantages. Amelia and William Bathurst have been working to improve the law among these merchants, especially those that travel between Rohan and Brittany.

"I see. Could you please wait a moment? Let's quickly review the minutes and have a leisurely discussion."

The Earl of Bathurst obediently took his seat on the sofa in his study, for he knew from experience that the Princess would not keep him waiting very long.

Click.

As the servant quickly brought out the tea, William took a sip of his high-quality Melbourne and leisurely looked around the princess's office. Then, absentmindedly, his eyes fell on a bundle of papers on the table, and his eyes widened when he saw what was written on it.

"...Laws related to different races?"

It looked like a doodle the princess had scribbled down while taking a break. But the content was nothing special.

Inter-ethnic cultural exchange regulation law, inter-ethnic commercial exchange regulation law, inter-ethnic rights protection law, establishment of specialized organizations related to inter-ethnicities... ..

In case an unknown race not mentioned in the scriptures is encountered, various devices are put in place to provide a kind of social buffering effect so that society can adapt to new environments while maintaining stability...

"...ah."

Amelia noticed William's gaze, raised her head, and smiled slightly.

"What do you think? It's quite interesting, isn't it?"

"Your Majesty, what the heck are these... ..!"

"Don't worry about it too much, Count. I was just making some assumptions for fun. If I had a decent draft, I think I could apply a similar method to the Barshins or the minor tribes in the outback."

"....."

William Bathurst looked at the princess's green smile with suspicious eyes. It had not been long since he had served her, but from what he had learned so far, she was not the type to waste time on trivial matters.

Whether she knew his complicated mind or not, Princess Amelia buried her head in the papers again and added.

"Who knows? One day, a race of aliens from fantasy literature might suddenly appear before our eyes. No one knows what the future holds."

But, surprisingly, the meeting happened sooner than Amelia expected.

Logan and his party, who had headed straight for the southern cliffs following the wolfdog's lead, discovered a suspicious creature on the shore covered with black rocks.

".....!"

Before he could even figure out what it was, Logan rushed forward, releasing his divine power in a panic. The creature's aura seemed to be on the verge of breaking at any moment.

Crunch!

Logan grabbed the mass that was being tossed around by the waves and urgently poured his divine power into it.

Squeak...

Meanwhile, Seongjin was looking out at the distant southern sea with a somewhat uneasy feeling. The emerald sea with small islands and reefs clustered together.

'I just had a feeling that someone, something very important, was here...'

What on earth was that?

I lifted my snout high and sniffed the wind, but there was nothing I could guess. All I could smell was the faint scent of people moving away from the distant southern sea.

'It's not that far. Should I chase after it now?'

I don't think it's impossible.

But Seongjin couldn't move from that spot, because a strong premonition was somehow holding his feet.

It's not the time yet. If we move rashly now, we'll ruin everything... That's the kind of strange feeling I have.

"...Your breathing has calmed down a bit. But your aura is still unstable."

At that moment, Logan let out a soft sigh of relief. Only then did he have some time to look closely at the creature he was holding.

'It's not human. But there's something human about it... ..'

The creature's entire front was covered in pale gray-white skin, and at first glance, it looked like a bloodless human. Not only did it have human-like facial features, but it also had intact limbs with hands and feet.

On the other hand, thick fins covered with a black membrane hang from the head and back, reminiscent of the fins of whales or rays.

"ah.....!"

As I thought about it that way, the next step instinctively came to mind.

'I think the problem is that my skin is very dry.'

As expected, Mitra, who arrived at the cliff a step late, gave a lecture.

"It would be best to immerse him in deep sea water as soon as possible. He may not be unable to breathe air, but it is not good to leave him with his gills dried out."

"Mitra."

Logan took his advice, picked up the little creature and asked,

"Do you know what this creature is?"

Then, the Draconian, who had been silent for a moment, nodded.

"That's right. They are a foreign race that uses this area as a prison, the Manta Tribe."

496. Manta Tribe (1)

'Manta tribe... ..'

Logan felt an uneasy ripple in Mithra's explanation, a subtle ripple that people often emit when they want to hide something.

But he put aside his doubts for the time being and began to cautiously walk towards the water, holding the small creature in his arms. Even though he had poured so much divine power into it, its breathing was still faint.

The coastline that borders the cliffs is extremely steep. Thanks to this, the water comes up to my waist in just a few steps.

Logan decided that the water was deep enough and lifted the manta ray into the water, taking great care to ensure that its gills were fully submerged.

Pogle... Pogle... ..

One by one, small air bubbles leak out from the manta's nasal passages. This must mean that water is filling up its dry lungs again.

The aura that had been stagnant and fading finally begins to circulate. Even the skin that had been completely dried up begins to gradually take on a watery sheen.

With that urgent matter taken care of, Logan's mind began to wander back to the many issues he had been putting off.

'... It was a good thing I said I would go and check it out on my own. If I had brought the Cypriot Navy here, it would have been a real headache.'

It wasn't just the fact that an alien race not mentioned in the scriptures existed in the world. Logan sensed from the somewhat anxious expression on Mitra's face that there was a more fundamental problem with the existence of the Manta Tribe.

Above all, this magic. A faint magic energy was felt from the aura of the Manta Tribe, which was becoming more and more active as it regained life.

"... Mithra."

Logan opened his mouth to Mitra, who had been fidgeting and twitching her snout since a while ago.

"Do you have something to say? If so, please tell me before it's too late."

"... .."

Then Mitra stared at Logan with wavering eyes.

"Actually... you know. The Manta Tribe has a very unique characteristic that sets them apart from other races."

"Are you saying they are in league with the devil?"

"What?!"

The Draconian was startled and quickly shook his head.

"No! Absolutely not!"

"Don't even think about hiding it, Mitra. I can definitely sense the magic coming from this Manta Tribe."

"Ugh... Yeah, that would be a problem. But I swear it's absolutely not like that. It's just a little bit of magic mixed in with the aura, and in Ionia, it's considered just one of the characteristics of a certain race."

It is said that the Ionian races first acquired their primordial racial essence about tens of thousands of years ago. It was from that time that the birth of a new race was recognized, and the Magi were ultimately nothing more than the characteristics of the primordial creatures that formed the basis of that birth.

A good example of this is the lycanthrope race. They too are a race that exudes a weak magical energy from birth, regardless of whether the individual is good or evil.

"Of course, this concept may be completely foreign to the Delcross people. But the Mantas are not the clan associated with the 'demons' you speak of."

"You are directly denying the doctrine of the Lord. Are you saying that this magic is not evidence of evil?"

"Oh, don't bring up your troublesome doctrines! Of course, I don't deny that there are extremely evil people among the Manta tribe. But that is just the nature of some people, just like any other social group. It is not a uniform characteristic of the entire race!"

"...Is that so?"

Contrary to Mitra's expectations, Logan nodded in agreement. It was a remarkably plain attitude considering that he was praised as the most ideal paladin on the continent.

So Mitra didn't notice at all that Logan had briefly glimpsed the wolf-dog.

"Well, more than that... .."

But it seems that Mithra's business was not limited to that.

"What else is there?"

"hmm....."

Mitra, who had been rolling her eyes impatiently despite Logan's urging, soon bent down to the water's edge and began to writhe.

"But... but... there's something you should know first. Among the races of Ionia, there are some who possess very unique characteristics."

"Speciality? Is there anything greater than magic?"

"Ahem. Perhaps... that's true. So listen to what I have to say. I am saying this because I am very worried that someone like you, who holds an important position among humans, might have a great misunderstanding about the Manta Tribe."

"misunderstanding?"

Logan looked at Mitra with a serious face. Seeing him hesitate and not get to the main point, he began to think that this might be a more difficult problem than he had imagined.

"As I said before, there are races in Ionia that occasionally have unique characteristics. While there are races like us Draconians that were born as complete heterosexuals from the beginning, there are also those that are not like that at all."

After forming their race, these beings acquired new traits of intelligent life forms. A representative example of this was the lycanthrope, who could freely move between human and beast forms.

"Therefore, such people have two appearances depending on the situation. However, the original appearance of the Manta Tribe is a bit misleading to humans-"

But before Mithra could finish speaking, a dramatic change suddenly occurred in the Manta Tribe that was submerged in the water. Its body began to expand rapidly sideways, as if it was being inflated by water.

Swish-!

The skin that covered its back like a cloak spreads out widely on the water. I thought it was just a limp, hanging membrane, but when it was fully formed, it was a large fin supported by cartilage.

"... ..!"

The facial features that were initially thought to be similar to a human's are quickly lost in the swelling nape of the neck. On the face that has suddenly become flat, only a large nostril and a small mouth remain as traces.

And that's not all. The arms and legs are hidden in the fins that spread out like a kite, and a long, straight tail sticks out from under the remaining body.

Swish, thud!

And so, what finally appeared beneath the rolling waves was a giant stingray.

The only things that remain of its previous appearance are its unusually large nostrils and the gills symmetrically arranged between the sternum.

And Logan couldn't help but recognize the sight.

"Ocean... Demon... ...?"

That's right. The form that the Manta Tribe had transformed into was unmistakably that of a sea monster.

A thick-skinned monster that cannot be easily wounded without firepower or aura. An old enemy of the sea that destroys ships and drowns fishermen.

"... So what I meant was, if you're not careful, you might mistake the Manta Tribe for a sea monster."

Mitra added belatedly, in a tone of uncertainty, but his words fell on deaf ears.

"The Manta Tribe...were marine demons?"

He became very confused.

Wait a minute, are you saying that the beings we've been thinking of as demons and subjugating up until now were actually another intelligent being? A race from another world?

No, but if that's true, then why have the demons treated humans so badly up until now... !

Twinkle.

Just then, the young Manta came to his senses and opened his eyes. The round eyes looking up at Logan were clearly those of an intelligent being, not a beast that had lost its reason.

"... ..!"

Thud! Thud!

The startled manta writhed and splashed the water with its fins. When Logan let it go, it quickly swam away, seemingly out to sea.

"... .."

But the creature stopped dead in its tracks after only a few meters, then slowly popped its head out of the water to look at Logan.

Twinkle twinkle.

The wet guy's eyes glow with a keen light. Surprise, curiosity, and a faint sense of doubt and gratitude rush toward Logan in familiar waves.

To his surprise, it was the same type of wave he felt from other people.

"you....."

As Logan opened his mouth, the manta lifted its head out of the water as if listening to his words. Then, on its completely flat face, the traces of the facial features we had seen at first appeared faintly.

"At least you're not the kind of devil I used to know."

Then, as if responding to those words, the young Manta opened his mouth towards Logan.

"Beep beep-"

"... ..?"

Logan was confused. It felt like something was talking to him, but he couldn't understand it at all.

On the other hand, when Logan seemed to be focusing his attention on him, Manta started making loud noises at him even more vigorously.

"Squeak! Kkirik. Beep-"

"Um... sorry, sorry. I can't understand what you're saying... .."

"Bam! Bam!"

Meanwhile, Sungjin, who had been watching them with some boredom, was bewildered for a slightly different reason. Surprisingly, he was able to understand all of Manta's words. That high-pitched howling sound was really their language.

Roughly speaking, what the guy said was as follows.

-Did you help me? If so, I appreciate it, but I don't have time to leisurely say thank you.

-I'm telling you this for your own good, this place is dangerous! Run away!

-It's almost time for the prison's defense system to sound the alarm! We have to hurry!

Even though Manta cried out so desperately, Logan only received desperate messages from him and became increasingly confused.

Seongjin yawned loudly and thought.

'Well, I guess there's no other way since they're such annoying guys. I guess I'll have to interpret for them.'

Boom!

So, Sungjin confidently called Logan and then lifted his front paws powerfully toward him.

Then, soon, he flinched and stopped moving, realizing too late that the entire coast was covered in hard basalt.

'Wait a minute, but where on earth should I write this?'

It was a truly difficult situation.

Fortunately, it seems that there was someone who saw through this whole situation.

"Oh my god!"

Not long after that, a dark exorcist came running towards them from afar.

"Sir Sharon? What brings you here to stand by the fleet?"

Then Sir Sharon smiled at Logan with an embarrassed expression.

"Hehehe. Please, Your Majesty. But I have permission to disembark from General Lysander."

Woof woof!

Seongjin greeted her with a bark, because this solved all the problems.

'I heard that all creatures in Ionia have salt crystals!'

So, Sir Sharon could have interpreted the two of them well through her thoughts. After all, she was our father!

"iced coffee....."

Sir Sharon, who had been listening to the manta's cries for a while, soon nodded and explained.

"So this child is warning us to get out of here, Your Majesty."

"Running away from what?"

Beep-! KiriKiriRik!

"Yeah, yeah. What? Oh... defense system? Defense system? Yeah, down. We have to run away from the threat that that thing is giving off. Especially in the past few days, a lot of whales have been caught up in it."

Kyaak yak! Peep!

"It always happens at similar times, so it will happen soon."

"Whales got involved? Could this be the relic Mithra spoke of...?"

Logan tried his best to detect danger around the cliff, but to the Sword Master's dismay, he could not find anything unusual nearby.

"... .."

On the other hand, in Sungjin's case, the clear signs of abnormality could be detected right away, because a strange text window suddenly popped up before his eyes.

'Oh, what is this all of a sudden... ..'

A text window from the sphere world. Perhaps it emerged from an Ionian relic hidden nearby.

And soon everyone realized what was happening. After a few seconds of text appearing, a loud siren suddenly started blaring from the bottom of the cliff.

Beep beep beep beep beep!

"This is... ..!"

Although it was a high-frequency sound that was beyond the audible range of humans, everyone present could hear it without difficulty.

A sword master with senses far beyond the limits of human perception, two outcasts, and half a Khorne.

Of course, it goes without saying that Sungjin was borrowing the wolfdog's hearing.

Kirik! Beep! Beep!

The manta ray, greatly embarrassed, flapped its fins desperately.

"Ah, my lord. This is the alarm! It's telling me to hurry up!"

Beep! Beep! Crack! Crack!

"Um... Engineer? Technician? Well, they say that since there is no such person, no one can do anything about it anymore. They say that there is no way for them to stop it."

Meanwhile, in front of Seongjin's eyes, the text window was steadily displaying a message.

□The countdown will begin soon.□

As the countdown begins, the sound of the siren also grows louder.

The Manta tribe's actions became more and more urgent. There was a deep despair in their round eyes, and it was surprising that they were so scared and yet managed not to run away on their own.

Beep! Beep! Beep!

- Hurry up! There's no time left! If you don't hurry, we'll all be Sir Sharon gave a final warning through the blaring sirens. Then she closed her eyes and covered her ears.

Gulp-

The manta rays also began to dive quickly under the water.

Stop.

But nothing happened. As if by magic, the siren stopped, and suddenly the son-in-law was enveloped in a heavy silence.

"....."

While everyone was confused, only Seongjin calmly licked his front paw and thought.

What, it's easy?

I pressed 'Unlock' as it told me to, but is this really the end?

497. Manta Tribe (2)

"...Is it over?"

Mitra carefully removed the hand that had been covering his ear. Draconian hearing was extremely sensitive to noise, and he still felt the hallucination of a shrill siren blaring in his ears.

The young manta floated back up to the surface and looked around, as if it couldn't believe that the resonance broadcast had ended without any incident.

"What on earth happened... .."

Then, by chance, Mithra's gaze fell on the wolf-dog that had been maintaining a dignified posture since a while ago.

'Wait a minute... No way?'

Am I being overly speculative if I think that dog just did something again? No, but that attitude of his is so carefree all by himself... ..

He couldn't help but ask.

"It may be a bit of a new question to ask now, but what on earth is that dog? It used the race key without permission, and now it seems to be freely manipulating Ionian relics as well."

Then Logan answered calmly.

"This guy is a member of the Seonghwang family and is a great divine being who is also mentioned in the scriptures."

"God... water? What is that?"

"Well, for now, I can only describe him as an unusual dog. From now on, treat him like a human being, Mitra."

".....?"

Although it was a rather bland ending, the commotion just now did not end without any results. When the emergency protocol was unexpectedly terminated, the system in charge of it revealed the operator console on its own to receive further instructions.

Wheeing... ..

With a small mechanical sound, a pillar emitting a strange light slowly pops out from between the black columnar joints. It was a discovery so absurd that it made Romain's efforts to hide it pale in comparison.

"This is... .."

Logan approached the pillar cautiously.

It was a pillar made of dark metal. Its surface was densely covered with intricate patterns, and it reflected a strange light like waves under the sun.

Even to Logan, who knew little about craftsmanship, the sophistication of the item far surpassed Delcross's skills.

"Mitra, is this the otherworldly relic you spoke of?"

In response to Logan's question, Mitra looked at the pillar carefully and nodded.

"I think so. If you give me back [the key], I might be able to figure it out more clearly... .."

"....."

"... No, I'm sorry. Forget it."

Logan slowly brought his hand to Arjuna's handle.

In the end, nothing happened, but the sense of crisis and desperation that I had just felt on my skin was definitely not something to be ignored. For the safety of the fleet, and to avoid any future troubles, it would be right to destroy that relic right now.

Boom!

But Logan couldn't draw his sword right away, because the wolf-dog was barking softly and moving towards him as if to block his path.

"Lee Seong-jin? What's wrong?"

Ouch! Creak... ..

"Don't? Are you trying to tell me not to touch this?"

Boom!

As Logan easily figured out his intentions, Sungjin answered vigorously and wagged his tail loudly.

'Yeah. You shouldn't break it. I have a feeling that this is a very important item.'

Besides, maybe it was because of his mood. Seongjin had been having a bad feeling since a while ago.

An uneasy feeling that this isn't the end, that there's still something left...

And unfortunately, it wasn't a coincidence.

'.....!'

Sungjin soon sensed something very strange. Something was approaching from the distant sea. At an unbelievable speed and with an incredibly ominous momentum.

Sungjin raised his head and met Logan's gaze. Although they didn't express it, the brothers immediately realized that they had sensed the same movement at the same time.

"Sir Sharon, Mitra!"

Logan sat up and shouted urgently.

"Please protect that young outcast! For a moment, it might be better to take him to land!"

"Huh? Your Majesty, why all of a sudden... .."

Before Sir Sharon could even ask anything, Logan and his wolf-dog were already flying towards the shore where the fleet was anchored.

* * *

"...hmm?"

The first to notice the change was a certain navigator. He stood on the starboard side of the ship, tilting his head as he looked around at the fleet floating calmly on the calm waves.

"What just happened?"

Did you feel a sudden wave as if the deck was floating?

Phew-!

At that moment, a strange vibration was felt underfoot again. At this point, the other sailors also felt it one by one, and together with the navigator, they turned their gaze to the distant southern sea.

".....?"

And soon they saw a series of unusual waves crashing toward the fleet, waves that were not like the waves that were rolling in on the shore, but strange waves that were rolling in from the south in a perfect vertical grid.

Was it an illusion? For a moment, the color of the southern sea seemed to have darkened significantly.

Crunch!

Just then, a grid-like wave crashed into the fleet, unusually high waves pounding the bows of the ships without mercy.

"Ugh!"

"what's this!"

The ship rocks violently as if it might sink at any moment.

The sailors were struggling to hang on the deck, soaked by the waves. Some were hurriedly pulling the rope and wrapping it around their waists. If they made a mistake, they could have fallen straight into the sea.

".....!"

And by that time, the sailors were finally able to witness the cause of the strange phenomenon for themselves: the movement of a black fin that created strong waves in succession.

Chomp!

The water splits long and a fin so large that it is hard to believe even when seen with the eyes sticks out. No, its dull surface, covered with small sea anemones and barnacles, gave the illusion that it was not a part of a living thing, but rather the ground deep under the sea was alive and moving.

And the results of that simple movement were enormous. Waves several meters high crashed in at once, causing the entire fleet to sway up and down as if it had been hit by a typhoon.

"Sea, ocean demon?"

"Oh my God! How can such a large evil exist in the world?"

Even just a small part of the fin that was revealed at first glance was already comparable in size to the largest ships. The faces of the sailors looking at it gradually turned pale.

Ding ding ding ding!

Bells ring out madly here and there throughout the fleet.

"Emergency! Emergency! A giant sea demon has appeared!"

"If we continue like this, the ship will sink! Raise the anchor!"

"Spread out! Get the ships as far away as possible... ...!"

Boom!

Just then, a demon charged straight towards the island and hit the cliff with its fin with all its might.

Thud, splash! Splash!

The hexagonal stone pillars that formed the columnar joints broke and fell into the sea without any strength, and the impact shook the entire island as if an earthquake had occurred.

And at the same time, people could hear the ear-piercing roar of the sea monster.

Piriaaa#2oa𠮟Brya%o2we𠮟ララック!

A high frequency sound that vibrated so violently that it seemed as if it were scraping the entire auditory nerve. The tremendous power of the sound was enough to send tingles through even the most well-trained knights' entire bodies.

But there was no time to be surprised. The demon, who had turned around with difficulty from the cliff, began to charge straight towards the fleet this time.

"Ouch! It's coming this way! Get out of the way!"

"Knights! Sword barrier! Quickly spread the sword barrier in front!"

"Damn it! Stop him!"

The knights hurriedly spread out their small swords, and the navigator hurriedly grabbed the wheel, but it was all a futile effort. The sea monster that approached, cutting through the high waves, was so terrifying that it seemed as if a large island was being attacked in its entirety.

The moment it collided with that thing, the fate of this small whaling ship was obvious. The sailors instinctively shut their eyes tightly as they offered their last prayers to the Lord.

But just then, a loud prayer was heard above their heads.

"Lord, protect your children!"

Followed by-

Boom!

The ship shook wildly with a violent impact.

".....?"

But it wasn't the shock they had initially imagined, that of the ship completely collapsing. The sailors slowly raised their eyelids and were shocked at the unexpected sight before their eyes.

When they arrived, Prince Logan stood there, holding up a brightly glowing hemisphere with both arms.

He alone created a huge sacred barrier that could easily protect two small boats. It was a sight that was nothing short of miraculous.

"Ah, my lord... ..!"

As the captain unconsciously made the sign of the cross, the prince turned around and gave a fierce order.

"It's not over yet! Come to your senses! Captain! Knights!"

Prince Logan, who had just completed the sacred barrier, quickly gave them instructions.

"It only collided with the barrier for a moment and sank into the sea, but it will return soon. So gather all the personnel you can, whether it be Aura or divine power, and deploy a shield around the ship."

Then the sailors, realizing that the savior was about to leave for another place, desperately held on to him.

"Ha, but low!"

"We're going too far! If we leave the ship like this, the next time we encounter that demon, our ship will definitely sink!"

"I'm not saying you should confront it head on."

Those who were only concerned with their own safety might have seemed like a sly sight, but Prince Logan did not bother to scold them.

"Because it's a small and light boat, it'll be able to ride the waves and avoid them rather easily. Before that sea monster attacks, there's always a big wave that comes first."

Logan, who had gently comforted the sailors, immediately turned around and headed to the other end of the fleet.

As it turned out, Logan's judgment was correct. The demon that had dived deep and cut across the entire fleet appeared this time in the far northern seas.

And anchored at the northernmost point was the fleet's flagship, the Wings of Glory.

"Your Majesty?! What the heck is this... ..!"

General Lysander suddenly sees Logan running onto the deck and lets out a gasp of delight. However, Logan doesn't have time to respond.

"Lord, protect your children!"

Kwaaang!

Logan, who arrived at the flagship almost at the same time as the demon, once again deployed a sacred barrier to block the demon's charge.

Choaack!

The waves that came in late with a great impact lose their strength as they hit the translucent membrane.

Knock knock...

As the ocean demon sank beneath the sea again, Logan finally managed to break the barrier and gasped for breath.

"Lilium!"

"I, my lowly self!"

"lowering!"

The knights of Lilium, who had been stunned by the sudden disaster, woke up with a start at the prince's voice.

As they were the spiritual pillars that they had truly believed in and followed for a long time, the knights instinctively moved their bodies and rushed to the deck at Logan's call. Logan looked around at the trustworthy figure and gave instructions.

"Otto Sir!"

"Yes... four! Down!"

"I want you to take control of the center of the barrier here. I want you to spread the Type 1 barrier under the ship, and completely surround the bottom of the flagship!"

"Oh, I understand!"

"You don't have to fight back against the demon. Leave the rest to me, and all of you, just focus on making sure the flagship doesn't sink!"

"Yes! I will keep that in mind!"

Logan saw the strong determination in Otto's eyes and pulled Arjuna out from his waistband.

"Sir Eli and Sir Dusang will follow me. Track the movements of the demons and protect the small whaling ships that are not yet well-defended."

"Yes, sir!"

As Logan and his entourage of knights headed for the ship's railing, General Lysander was hanging from the crack of the captain's cabin door, shouting desperately.

"Wait a minute! Your Majesty Logan! The Crimson Dawn! The Crimson Dawn is in danger! She is currently carrying a large quantity of unstable ancient fires!"

".....!"

The Bloody Dawn was an old battleship that was soon to be scrapped. And now, the old ship is in a state similar to a bomb, loaded with highly flammable materials.

If by any chance you happen to collide with a sea monster, it will definitely cause a huge explosion. And the fire that spreads from there will spread uncontrollably, burning the entire fleet.

'Ancient fire... ...!'

Logan looked up and saw an old ship in the distance.

But it wasn't a look of concern at all. As he was running towards the flagship, the wolf dog that had disappeared somewhere was heading in a certain direction.

'Lee Seong-jin!'

As expected, the wolfdog was now sitting proudly on the worn-out bow of the Bloody Dawn.

Beneath his feet, the activated aura ripples like a crimson flame, and his silver-gray eyes calmly stare down at the sea. He can unleash his aura whenever he needs to.

Perhaps those calm eyes are not missing a single moment of the movements of the sea monsters that have sunk deep into the ocean.

'Leave it to me! I already learned how to use the sword from you!'

Logan read a strange confidence in the wolfdog's face, and a smile came to his lips without him knowing it.

'Besides, Lee Seong-jin's aura is a bit special.'

Unlike regular auras, this aura, which had a distinct flame shape, could actually attract other flames and control them as if they were its own aura.

So, even if by any chance that dangerous ancient weapon were to catch fire, Lee Sung-jin would be able to control the fire before it exploded.

Logan felt a little relieved and jumped off the ship with the knights.

"Ugh!"

Meanwhile, Inquisitor Lumiere, who had come out to check the situation due to the sudden commotion, was startled by the tremendous shaking and grabbed the mast with all his might. The Judgement ship was swept away by the large waves and almost sank.

"this.....!"

Lumiere barely managed to regain her balance and sit up. But then she was left speechless by the sight that unfolded before her eyes.

"Are you alright, Inquisitor Lumiere?"

Before she knew it, a small saintess wearing a simple suit of armor was standing in front of her. Holding a flail in one hand, she was barely able to keep her balance on the rocking deck.

"That speed... ..!"

Lumiere couldn't help but feel inwardly amazed. Perhaps, as soon as the commotion broke out, the saintess had prepared according to the Knights' manual and gone out onto the deck.

An unprecedented situation where a giant demon that we didn't even know existed is swarming the fleet at will. But a young saint who just joined the Knights Templar is ready and waiting faster than anyone else!

There isn't even a hint of bewilderment in those calm eyes.

"Ah, Saintess! Adjutant Lumiere!"

Then Inquisitor Boris came running in, panting, and sat down next to the little saintess as if it were a given.

"Uh... What is this?"

Soon after, the other Inquisitors also rushed out onto the deck. Then, after glancing around the deck, they naturally approached behind the little saint and began to line up.

The youngest member, who I thought would be a headache for the Knights Templar, has become the team's focal point without me even knowing it.

"All assembled. Please give your orders, Adjutant Lumiere."

Lumiere, who was deeply fixated on those calm gray eyes, gave instructions that she would never have given normally.

"Your Majesty. Could you please create a barrier... a Granius 1-type barrier?"

"Yes, I am well aware of the method."

In the calm girl's voice, Lumiere felt an utmost trust.

"Then, Your Majesty, would you please hold the center of the barrier here? I will take half of the knights and chase after the sea demon."

Then Princess Sisley nodded slightly and immediately unleashed her divine power over a vast area. It was the axis of a powerful divine barrier that dared not be compared to others. And the knights surrounding the girl joined in one by one and added strength to the barrier.

Soon, a powerful barrier that shone brighter than any other barrier began to form around the Judgement Tower.

498. Manta Tribe (3)

The fleet was thrown into great confusion by the appearance of the giant demon.

While some ships, such as the Judgement-Ho and the Wings of Glory, managed to build their own defenses, others panicked and had to disembark from their escape boats.

But such small boats often capsized before they could even reach the shore, unable to withstand the waves.

The biggest problem was that the command structure that controlled the fleet was of no help in this situation. It was no wonder that there was no proper countermeasure that the fleet could take against a demon that had never been imagined to exist before.

Although General Lysander hurriedly raised the blue flag, which meant "spreading," none of the captains were able to properly carry out the order. How could they move the ship when they didn't even have time to properly spread the sails?

In the end, the captains of each ship had no choice but to deploy their defensive shields as much as possible and do their best to keep their ships from sinking.

"Hey! It's Logan!"

In such a desperate situation, there was someone who was running around alone to protect the fleet, and Prince Logan was truly a ray of hope for them.

"Ah, the Lord's knight has finally boarded our ship!"

"We are saved!"

Sir Ellie, who had followed behind, gave a sharp warning to the sailors who were shedding tears of joy.

"Everyone, wake up! Everyone, brace yourself for shock!"

It was as she said. If Prince Logan was here, that meant the sea demons were heading straight for here.

Kwaaaaa-

The sailors, who had been cheering with their arms outstretched, soon found themselves blushing at the sight of the mighty sea monster speeding towards them, cutting through the sea.

"Lord, protect your children!"

Kwaaang!

Once again, the sacred barrier and the demonic beast collide violently. The impact causes the ship to rock wildly and sprays of water spray from all directions.

"Ugh... ..!"

"The ship, the ship didn't sink? How could... ..!"

"How? What? It's the grace of Logan! If you understand, then stop muttering and gather on deck! Are these all the Auror users?"

While the rear guard was checking the condition of the ship, Logan, who had put out the fire in a hurry, lifted the sacred barrier and looked around. Then, he noticed a strange phenomenon occurring on one side of the fleet and his eyes caught something.

"That's... .."

The Judgement Ship was anchored relatively close to the shore. An incredibly powerful sacred barrier started from that ship and spread out to the sides, enveloping the surrounding ships.

Its size was so great that it was enough to protect even those who fell into the sea and swam to land.

'... Sisley!'

Logan sensed a familiar divine power coming from the barrier, and a faint smile formed on his lips without him knowing it.

"Okay, throw all the available buoys into the sea!"

"You guys over there! Don't waste your energy swimming and get swept away by the waves. Hang on to the boat and save your energy!"

Not only that. The other knights of the punitive force gradually came to their senses and began to act independently. The Knights of St. Marsyas, led by Inquisitor Lumiere, were a prime example.

"Are these the only Auror users on this ship? It'll be hard for them to set up a barrier on their own."

"Then, quickly steer the boat towards the Judgement Tower you see over there. Right there, our Lady of Sisley, a little grace of the Lord, is standing!"

Only then was Logan able to find some peace of mind.

In the meantime, the ocean demon had disappeared from sight, having sunk deep into the sea again. Of course, Logan could clearly sense its movements as it swam across the seabed.

"This time we're headed back to the northern reef fields?"

If the ships are in that direction, there is no need to rush after them since they have just undergone maintenance.

Thinking that far, Logan's hand naturally reached out to Arjuna.

'If I were to take this opportunity, I might be able to aim for his weak point... ... '

But there were many things that were holding me back from taking action rashly.

First, I had to find a way to put the guy to sleep with one blow. If the wounded demon started to really go crazy, the ships that were struggling against the waves and holding on precariously would sink helplessly.

Even for Logan, a sword master, killing a creature the size of an island with a single blow was not an easy task.

'furthermore.....'

Logan had been chasing the sea monster for a while now, and he had a constant feeling that something was off.

If you think about it, the guy was more likely to just mindlessly crash into cliffs or roll around on reefs than to directly attack the fleet. The more I see him, the more I think about this.

'Is it just me? I have a feeling that it wasn't their intention to attack the fleet from the beginning... . . . '

Come to think of it, the guy has been running wild between the reef and Peridero Island so far. Compared to that, the damage to the fleet was less than expected. No matter how hard Logan and the paladins tried.

'Perhaps, just a tiny possibility, a fleet just happened to be in his path by bad luck?'

Kwaaang!

Then the giant demon slams its head into the reef for the third time.

Logan was finally able to confirm this when he sensed the powerful waves emanating from the creature. The creature, that beast that occasionally let out a high-pitched scream that seemed to rupture eardrums, seemed to be in great pain.

@KegqmView$ar'lRarak!

Ah, perhaps his bad habit had kicked in again. Logan, who was keenly able to sense the aura waves that originated from emotions, often found himself suddenly sympathizing with the subject of those waves, rather than understanding them.

That was probably why Logan suddenly came up with an odd solution.

'If I could ease the pain it feels even a little bit... then maybe... ... !'

If he had been Gael, he would not have considered it at all. The lives of countless people were always on his shoulders, and those heavy chains would never be released even at the moment of his death.

But fortunately or unfortunately, here Logan was no longer the last bastion supporting everyone.

'... Sir Sharon is here. That means Abamama's hand is also present here.'

I don't know exactly how he'll do it, but if necessary, the Holy Emperor can take over her body again, just like he did with Sigismund.

'There is also Sisley who can protect the fleet in my stead.'

The huge barrier surrounding the coastline shows no sign of collapsing. He thought he knew it better than anyone else, but the potential of his youngest brother surprised him once again.

'And finally...'

Boom!

Atop a dangerous bomb loaded with ancient fire, a wolf-dog barks at him and wags its tail, as if it knows what Logan is thinking right now, its expression uncharacteristically serious.

Logan made up his mind.

'Yeah. Now that everyone's here, I guess I can handle it if I do something crazy once in a while!'

Just then, the demon that had destroyed the reef came rushing towards the island again.

Zuke^&Jaebeolreum irdkaeah#Kyaayaak!

Kuaang!

Logan deployed a sacred barrier and sent the bastard back under the sea, then leapt towards the long tail of the demon rising above the water.

"Huh! Hey, you?!"

with a plop!

With the last look in his eyes at Sir Ellie's bewildered face, Logan's body sank deep into the water along with the water.

Hwaaaaak!

A powerful divine power was released from under the sea without restraint. The enormous power that completely wrapped around the tail of the demon began to slowly rise upward toward its spine according to Logan's will.

'This place is too far. We need to go a little further up, toward the head.'

The rapidly increasing water pressure squeezed his body. Logan endured the pressure solely through his aura, grabbed the skin of the sea monster, and slowly began to climb.

Using the barnacles that cling tightly to the creature's back as support, he sometimes grabs onto the corals that rise up here and there with his hands.

Kwaaang!

Meanwhile, the demon slammed its body against the cliff of the island once again. Logan, who was almost thrown back by the impact, quickly clung to the creature's spine and desperately held his breath.

".....!"

The divine power he was pouring out to the limit was now enough to cover most of the giant demon's body. Since he still hadn't figured out the exact problem with the creature, he could only blindly pour out the divine power here and there.

The problem is that the amount of divine power required is enormous. If this continues, Logan will soon be completely exhausted.

But despite his efforts, the devil's momentum showed no signs of abating.

Boom! Kwaang!

After hitting the rocks a few more times, Masu, still not satisfied, turns his head again in the direction of the Binggle fleet.

'Did I... do something wrong?'

Logan felt a little disappointed. He had poured out so much divine power so quickly that he was doubtful whether he would ever be able to properly cast a divine barrier again.

Meanwhile, a giant stingray enveloped in bright light moves its fins toward the water without hesitation.

'Are you planning to head west with the fleet? I hope Sir Eli and Sir Dusang will respond well... . . . '

Logan gritted his teeth as he grabbed the kelp stalks jutting out from the bastard's back.

But at that very moment, I felt like the eyes of the half-turned-over sea monster were slowly coming back into focus.

'Is there... a response?'

Was it a mistake? Logan blinked and looked into the demon's eyes.

But it really wasn't an illusion. The aura of the guy that had been tangled up in a mess was slowly stabilizing, and the speed of the demon was also gradually slowing down!

Degururu... ..

The demon turns his sharp eyes and stares at Logan.

Kkumbuk.

The fleeting moment when the whitish curtain covered and disappeared felt like an eternity to Logan.

And then the sea monster that had been staring at Logan for a moment-

Gulp!

Instead of the sharp noise of before, he shook his body gently, almost like a strange vibration. As if he wanted to shake Logan off without hurting him.

".....!"

As Logan meekly let go of the bastard's hide and fell away, the sea monster took one last glance at him before slowly sinking beneath the sea.

Then he began to swim leisurely towards the other side of the island. His movements were so different from when I first saw him, almost majestic.

"....."

Logan stared at the back of the guy walking away for a moment, feeling as if he was in a dream. Then, feeling his breath hitch, he turned around and quickly kicked his feet back into the water.

Chomp!

When Logan finally popped his head out of the water, the fleet cheered in unison.

"Whoa! Logan!"

"Your Majesty is safe!"

"His Majesty Logan has defeated the sea beast!"

Not only the knights, but even the ignorant sailors of the whaling ships who had been forcibly mobilized praised the Lord and chanted Logan.

Perhaps unaware of this, they thought that Prince Logan had used his divine powers to drive away the evil sea beasts.

But the knights who had been closest to Logan were different. They knew exactly what he had done to the sea demon.

"lowering....."

"Why on earth... ..?"

Sir Ellie and Sir Dusang looked at Logan's complex face with somewhat confused eyes.

The fleet quickly began to repair the damage, repairing the punctured hulls and rescuing sailors who had fallen into the sea.

But one sailing ship could not avoid sinking. By some coincidence, a large hole was created near the waterline.

Water began to rise like crazy from a hole that was right at sea level.

"Damn, I can't stop this!"

There was no time to do anything. The sailors, who were momentarily confused, had no choice but to pull themselves out of the rapidly sinking ship.

"Still, fortunately, the damage was less than expected."

General Lysander gathered the reports of each captain and sighed in relief.

"First of all, I am very grateful that the Bloody Dawn is safe. This is truly God's grace."

As he said, it was a stroke of luck that the demon avoided the ancient fire-laden ship. A part of the fleet that had been huddled together almost got engulfed in flames.

The damage was ridiculously minor compared to the disaster that had befallen them. It was all thanks to Prince Logan's quick response.

"Ugh... What is this? I thought I was finally getting used to seasickness, but why is even the Wings of Glory shaking like this... Ugh!"

Although Saint Seo Yi-seo belatedly crawled out onto the deck with a face that seemed as if she was dying, no one cared about such a trivial matter.

499. Manta Tribe (4)

Mithra stood there in shock.

He already thought he knew what Lord Manta was planning. He also greatly resented the Mantas for forcing his old friend to make such a harsh choice.

But understanding a friend's pain with your head and seeing that pain writhe with your own eyes were two entirely different matters.

"Beep, squeak... .."

He was barely able to come to his senses by the cries of the young manta ray. Looking down, he saw the poor little thing fidgeting and groping along the transparent spherical wall.

A talisman of the barrier. A useful item that can [isolate] the user from all external environments if desired.

It was all thanks to this talisman that they were able to survive under the pulverized columnar joints. Lord Manta had repeatedly slammed into the cliff where they were gathered with all his might.

"Okay. I'll let you go now. I think it's all over now."

As Mitra removed the amulet, the young manta quickly moved its fins and escaped outside the barrier.

But that was then.

[Wouldn't it have been nice to have used that feature earlier?]

Mitra flinched and turned his head at the sudden familiar thought.

[If that were the case, at least I wouldn't have been bitten by that child and my identity wouldn't have been discovered.]

Surprisingly, the atmosphere of the exorcists who had been trembling together just a moment ago had completely changed.

Silver-gray eyes that shine calmly, and the air that aligns with a strange density.

"... Are you here? Nate."

Well, now I'm not so surprised when this guy suddenly shows up. He's a ridiculous guy who uses his incredible abilities, which even he, a representative of a certain race, can't fathom, to take care of his children all the time.

Mitra scratched the scales around his eyes and answered awkwardly.

"Unfortunately, that was impossible. We had to hide in a small whaling ship."

In a ship with a narrow radius of movement, you want to create a physically impenetrable barrier? Even if the amulet obstructs perception, the sailors will notice right away.

"No, but why would you say something like that in the first place? If you think about it, the reason I ended up like this is because you coaxed me into following the fleet!"

"....."

"And you could have come here any time, yet you didn't mediate between your son and me at all! Are you really doing this? Huh?"

Naturally, Nate lightly ignored Mitra's protest. It was truly infuriating.

"Kkiryeok, kiryeokryak!"

At that moment, a manta ray that had been swimming far away made a splash, hitting the surface of the water with its fin and making a crying sound.

"Beep beep!"

Looking at the guy's gaze towards Mitra, it seems like he wants to tell him something.

Mitra, who was listening to the sound in confusion, soon grumbled with an embarrassed face.

"Now, look at this. There are more than a few inconveniences after having your key taken away. You can't communicate with other races at all... .."

[The child thanks you for your help. He also says it was nice to meet another Ionian race after such a long time.]

"Is that so?"

"Ki-ryak, Pira-rak!"

[And he said goodbye. He said that he would now return to his people.]

Nate's interpretation was accurate. After two slaps of its tail against the surface, the young manta ray disappeared completely.

Mitra, who had been staring at the southern sea where the guy had disappeared for a moment, looked down at Nate with a slightly bewildered expression.

"Why is the strongest guardian of Delcross acting as an interpreter for this old man? Why not just tell your son to return the key and everything will be resolved?"

But Nate's attitude was firm.

[Nothing will be resolved. So just accept the situation. There must be a good reason why my son took the keys from you.]

"... Don't you know the reason? And yet you believe your young son's immature judgment?"

[There is a bit of a misunderstanding in that statement. My son is not a very short-sighted boy. I can see some of that, too.]

"Ahem! Well, he was definitely a boy who was above average in terms of momentum alone... .."

Perhaps the 'son' Mitra speaks of is a completely different person from the 'son' Nate thinks of. Although that mistake didn't really interfere with their conversation.

"Tell me the 'pointing point.' Why on earth did you take the keys from me?"

[Well, how can I, who has given up on getting involved in the future, fully understand the child's thoughts? If you only change your mind a little, perhaps your son will be willing to return the key.]

"Change your mind? What do you mean?"

Then, the silver eyes with a strange light stared into Mithra's eyes. It was a sharp gaze that dug deep into a person's heart and even his soul.

[For example, using the key to escape through the gap where the old person is right now.]

"omg!"

[Or use the key to disrupt the clash between the Manta and Cypriot fleets.]

"....."

[Or maybe you're thinking of using the key to thwart Lord Manta's plans.]

"Ugh, ugh... ..!"

Draconian could no longer bear his gaze and slowly turned his head away, for it seemed as if Nate was truly seeing right through his mind.

[or not.....]

Nate, who had been speaking at that time, paused for a moment and then added heavily.

[Using the power of the key to manipulate the relic, the Manta tribe's determination at the end of the war is rendered meaningless.]

"S, really... .. ?"

From Nate's words, Mitra realized a new possibility she had not anticipated.

"Are you trying to say that the Mantas intentionally destroyed that artifact? They themselves are at great risk of being caught up in the resonance broadcast, just like they were just now?"

[If not, why would the prison system, which had been functioning just fine until recently, suddenly malfunction? The Ionian engineers have built a system more sophisticated than you might think, Mithra.]

"....."

[Perhaps it was a reflection of Lord Manta's will to some extent. With her gradually losing control over her own kind, she would have no other way to prevent the prisoners from scattering into the sea.]

This is what the Oracle of Kornsheim says. It may seem like a frivolous guess, but his words are probably close to the truth.

Mitra looked down at Nate, or rather the exorcist who contained Nate's soul, with renewed eyes.

Kornshim. Presumably, they are the first Ionians to have secured the essence of the race.

The salt crystals they possessed showed distinct differences from those of other races in terms of their genesis process and function.

Ionian races usually share emotions and information through salt crystals. However, this is an imperfect form of information exchange that is only used within the race, and the characteristics of the salt crystals that connect them are not much different from those of other group monsters.

If they had not established a separate race for systematic information processing, it would have been impossible for them to have achieved such a dazzling civilization in the past.

But the Kornsim were different. They were born with complexly structured salt crystals, which were sophisticated processing devices that transformed vague mental processes into organized information.

Therefore, they can easily accept the thoughts of other races in the form of language, and also convert their own thoughts into clear information and convey it to other races.

Look, even that half-Kornshim can freely converse with the Manta tribe without any restrictions. It was an advanced communication ability that even representatives of a race like Mitra could only demonstrate with the help of the Key.

'No, maybe that's just natural... ..'

If you think about it, wasn't this 'race key' also actually designed based on the laws of the world of rules created by some oracle?

[... but Mithra.]

Mitra, who had been lost in her own thoughts for a moment, raised her head at Nate's extremely serious tone.

"hmm?"

[Actually, there's something I've always wanted to ask you.]

"Th-what is that?"

What are you talking about now? Did you perhaps find out something new through the Oracle's insight?

But to the tense Draconian, the Exorcist shot out a somewhat blunt thought.

[I have a question about your attitude.]

"...attitude?"

[Yes. Why do you keep talking down to me while you speak so politely to my son?]

Mitra was shocked for a moment.

... Wait a minute, you. Is that the problem in this situation right now?

Seongjin heard someone singing in his sleep.

It was the humming of an old manta from the deep sea. The monotonous, high-frequency melody gently swayed like waves, enveloping my consciousness.

Boooooo- koooo- boooooo-

It's so peaceful that it actually sounds pitiful.

'Hey, are you just singing along leisurely?'

Sungjin thought about it without thinking. And his absent-minded mind made the mistake of spitting out exactly what he thought.

"... Stop it. I know what your situation is like right now..."

"Oh, your Majesty?"

Then Edith called him over with a smile. It seemed that she had just come in to tidy up the room.

Thanks to that, Sungjin woke up completely and slowly raised his eyelids.

"You woke up earlier than I expected? You said you were going to sleep late today and not to disturb me until dinnertime, right?"

"... Oh, well. That's what happened."

The fleet had arrived at the Krabat Archipelago, so they planned to stay late today. They also had a feeling that something unusual was waiting for them.

But things ended sooner than expected, thanks to Logan's bizarre actions against the sea monsters.

'What on earth is Logan thinking, suddenly pouring out divine power?'

Besides, after the commotion died down, it seemed like Logan was going to personally prepare Max's dinner. So I just threw him out early.

'That's right. That old-fashioned guy probably believes that there is nothing better than raw meat for a dog's taste buds.'

Seongjin let out a small sigh, then got up from the bed and stretched deeply.

At first, I thought about asking Logan for the food I had cooked. But I soon changed my mind, because even though Sungjin's spirit had intervened, Max's consciousness did not disappear completely.

And Max really likes the quality meat Logan gives him.

"Are you hungry, Your Majesty? You've been sleeping all morning. Shall I serve you dinner right away?"

"No. Rather than a meal, I'd like something to nibble on... .."

Actually, the taste of the raw meat I ate for breakfast still lingers in my mouth.

"What would be good... Oh, right! Melbourne would be good."

Then, Edith, who had been asked to serve tea for a long time, cheerfully brought up the Melbourne. She was already receiving a salary without doing anything, but it seemed that she was quite bored because Captain Bruno had taken over the tea service.

At that moment, Captain Bruno was not there. While Sungjin was shut in his quarters and taking a nap, he was busy assisting Sir Marsain, who was going in and out of the Benso Marquis' residence.

'Sir Marsain. Are you doing the work you asked me to do?'

Seongjin thought as he lifted the teacup, which was an unusually dark color for Melbourne.

"Uh... Your Majesty. Are you really going to eat that?"

Sir Carmen, who happened to be on guard duty nearby, asks with a frown. It seems that just smelling Melbourn's scent brings back old trauma.

Seongjin ignored his reaction and took a sip of the terrifying poison.

Horok.

Then, the bitter taste of Melbourne, like gall, appropriately numbs the senses of smell and taste. Seongjin felt his tongue tingle and raised the corners of his lips in satisfaction.

"Hmm, it's nice to drink Edith's tea after such a long time. It somehow feels refreshing."

Huh?

Carmen backed away with a scream, not really a scream. She's actually a bit more rambunctious than she looks.

"By the way, how far will he go to embrace that foolish guy?"

Sungjin sighed as he recalled the last time he saw Logan's face. Why did that guy always seem to have such complicated thoughts after meeting the young Manta?

Surely you're not starting to care about the plight of the sea demons beyond your compatriots from your previous life? I hope not.

500

500. Manta Tribe (5)

To Seongjin, the Manta Tribe was a very strange existence.

They had a strangely annoying side. I don't have any particular grudge that comes to mind, but I guess you could say they were annoying without giving anything in return.

'No, maybe it's not just their problem. I have a feeling that if Logan gets involved with them like this, the problems that will arise in the future will be even more of a headache... '

Oh, I care. I care!

Because of that, Sungjin couldn't shake off his thoughts about Logan and the Manta Tribe even while eating dinner.

"You look strangely tired. Should I just go to bed now?"

So, the words that Sir Carmen casually said struck me quite nicely.

Logan, who knows what else he might be doing by himself right now? That's why I'm going to stick right next to him and keep an eye on him today...

'No, it's not.'

Seongjin shook his head.

Returning to the Kravat Archipelago was easy. Thanks to the frequent attempts to connect, even to the point of eating raw meat, I was now able to transfer my consciousness to Max as naturally as breathing.

But since a while ago, a strange feeling had been tugging at Sungjin's ankles. An ominous feeling that if he went there now, it wouldn't turn out well.

So Seongjin shook his head.

"Okay. I missed the whole day of practice because I was taking a nap today. So I'm going to meditate from now on. I'm going to meditate twice as much as usual!"

Then Sir Carmen made a tired face.

"No, is that the damned cultivation again? You've already built up nine floors, so isn't it time you took a break?"

No, what are you talking about, Sir Carmen? There is much work ahead of me. That is why I must become a Dekaron Knight quickly!

If Sungjin was worried about Logan in the Benso Marquisate, there was someone in the distant Krabat Archipelago who was having similar concerns.

"Whew..."

Late at night, Sisley stopped meditating and raised his head.

Today was a very eventful day. After a long voyage, we finally arrived at our destination, but then a giant sea monster suddenly appeared and started destroying ships.

Fortunately, there were no deaths thanks to the quick response of Logan and the Knights, but there were many people who suffered major and minor injuries.

Here the little saint's activities stood out, as she was already accustomed to serving in remote areas without any infrastructure.

Sisley took care of the injured until late at night, surprising those around her. Not only did Inquisitor Boris, who had been obsessed with the girl from the beginning, feel burdened by the gaze of his adjutant, Lumiere.

But it didn't stop there, the girl returned to her cabin late and diligently completed her evening meditation.

'Mores Oraboni said that training should be a habit that builds up every day.'

And it was also said that habits that are familiar to the body never betray a person even in a crisis. Sisley smiled as he felt the aura layer moving actively in his danjeon.

'Well, at least with this level of progress, wouldn't it be something I can brag about to my brother when I return to the capital?'

The girl felt a little proud and crawled into bed. Then, as if waiting for it, a soft electronic sound was heard from beside her.

[Ala~la~view.]

A teddy bear named Labu approaches him, holding a rabbit eye patch. After learning that his owner sleeps with an eye patch on every day, he diligently moves to help with anything.

Sisley was a little moved and hugged the doll tightly.

"Thank you, Loveu!"

[... Love.]

"But I don't plan on using it tonight."

[Qyuu?]

The white teddy bear tilted its head in disbelief. After wrapping a scarf around the boy's neck, Sisley hugged the teddy bear and pulled the blanket up to its chin.

"I'm going to dream today. I think I'll have to find out more about what exactly happens to Logan Brother through the Delcross Chronicles."

Sisley has been having prophetic dreams from time to time these days. Just as he promised Sungjin the other day, he is trying to get at least one more piece of information about the future.

"Mores Orabeoni said that I shouldn't believe everything the writer of dreams writes. He's a nasty trickster called [the Puppeteer], and he said he was showing me an unfortunate future on purpose to harm Seonghwangga."

But even so, Sisley could not completely ignore the events and backgrounds in the Delcross Chronicles. Not only do they feature real people, but the events that occur in the time period are also meaningfully related to reality.

"But isn't it strange? As far as I remember, there was no mention of the giant demon we saw today in the Delcross Chronicles. It may be because the author didn't describe Logan Brother's subjugation in detail in the first place."

In any case, the sea monster had already attacked the fleet. And according to Sisley's guess, there was a high probability that he would cause Logan trouble.

I couldn't imagine any other possibility. If it weren't for such an out-of-spec monster, how could a strong paladin like Logan lose his cherished confidants so meaninglessly?

So, I had to have more precognitive dreams while I had the time. Among the countless tragedies that would unfold in the future, there might be important clues about the current situation hidden.

"The problem is that the story has progressed too much. Isn't that right? Loveuya. In the recent Delcross Chronicles, several years have already passed since the subjugation of the sea demons."

The half-masked man in the dream has been describing the recent descent of high-ranking demon lords in a grand manner using all sorts of fancy words. He is also excitedly recording the cruel tragedies that result.

To be honest, it was just information that didn't really interest Sisley.

-The five stars will break, and their time will finally come. The city will be reduced to ashes, and the people's cries will form a great river. Ah, amidst the despair and screams of all, they will sing a song of eternal victory.

But unfortunately, in the precognitive dream, Sisley was unable to interact with the writer in any way. He could not even talk to him or look back at his previous records. He could only sit at his desk like a doll, helplessly watching the unfortunate records he showed him.

Sisley, who had a gloomy expression for a moment, soon muttered while rubbing his cheek against the soft teddy bear's face.

"It's frustrating. Is there really no way to reread the chronicles that have already passed?"

[Qyuu... ... ?]

"Or at least... a way to... ask... the author of the chronicle... directly... or something... ."

[...]

Sisley's eyes, which had been blinking slowly, soon slowly close.

During that time, the teddy bear did not move at all in case the girl woke up, and only occasionally made small electronic sounds.

Beep, beep-!

In the silence, the doll quickly reflected on the information it had acquired so far.

Unfortunately, the guy still couldn't fully grasp the meaning and context of Sisley's mumblings, so he had no idea what he could do to help her solve her problem.

But even so, the teddy bear stored Sisley's mutterings in one corner of its memory without fail.

Although we cannot solve the owner's problem right now because of the lack of information, if data continues to pile up like this, we will eventually be able to build an appropriate decision algorithm based on the accumulated data.

If you do that, you will have a clear answer as to what you should do to help your master. So, don't neglect to collect information even for a moment.

The black mechanical eyes, occasionally flashing a faint light, stared at the girl's face, which was slowly beginning to breathe evenly.

The flagship 'Wings of Glory' was kept alight late into the night. This was because the ocean demon subjugation campaign had entered a completely new phase as of today.

"Your Majesty's words were all correct!"

General Lysander pounded the waves in a state of unprecedented excitement.

"Everyone has been accusing me of trying to move the fleet without any proper basis. There was even pressure to prepare to resign as soon as the punitive force returned, as it would be a huge waste of money!"

General Lysander had insisted on a second expedition more strongly than anyone else. However, even though he seemed strong on the outside, he seemed to have been suffering mentally without knowing it.

Why not? I couldn't blame the popular prince who came to the empire to help, so I had no choice but to harass the poor General Lysander.

"Even the elder Teresilla of Rhodes, who had supported us, could not hide her glare that we were buying useless things. But now, Your Majesty, look! The grave threat from the sea was very real!"

"General, the marine demons are actually... .."

"Yes, Your Majesty! As expected, the first expedition wasn't the end. There was an even bigger problem that was hiding under the surface and hadn't yet surfaced! So now it's clear what we have to do!"

"... .."

"It is the ancient fire. We must use this ultimate weapon to completely destroy their lair!"

The old general was excited about what he believed would be the greatest battle of his life.

However, Logan's face, who was the one who warned of the potential danger, was not very bright.

"... It's late at night. Let's talk about the details tomorrow morning."

Logan finally responded like that and left the captain's cabin with a slightly subdued expression.

Kiing-

As soon as Logan stepped onto the deck, Max came running towards him, tail wagging. The wolfdog was showing increasing affinity towards him, as he had recently been personally feeding him raw meat.

"... Max?"

Wong!

"Yes, Max. If it were Lee Seong-jin, there was something I wanted to discuss."

Whioooo!

"Well, I guess it would have been difficult to have a conversation in this condition anyway."

Logan lightly patted the wolfdog's head - it seemed like Lee Sung-jin wouldn't be coming anymore today - and walked slowly toward the boat.

When he reached the port side of the ship, he stood with his back to the railing and looked at the long shadow of the mast under the moonlight. It wasn't just Max who was waiting for Logan outside the captain's cabin.

"Sir Sharon, what do you want with me?"

Sir Sharon, who had been standing there as if melting into the shadows, slowly emerges from the darkness and bows to Logan.

It was the same old Sharon, but Logan didn't miss the familiar silver-grey glint that flashed across her eyes.

"...Abama?"

"I'm sorry, but it's time for me to step down, Your Majesty."

The Exorcist grinned at Logan, his sinister face glowing pale and ghostly in the moonlight.

"Of course, my coming here is entirely due to Your Majesty's will."

"What does Abamama mean?"

"Yes. He told me to help him."

There was no need to ask what he was asked to help with, because soon Logan could sense a secret disturbance slowly approaching the fleet from a distance.

slam!

Against the waves that were pounding the hull, black ripples slowly rolled toward the ship. And as they got closer, the movement of the waves grew larger.

Growling... ..

The wolfdog bared his teeth in nervous anticipation.

The sound of well-groomed auras rushing in from the sea. And the unseen magic blooming within it.

"They... ..!"

As soon as I realized their true identity, black waves rose from the surface of the water all at once, slowly revealing their faces.

They had unusually large noses compared to humans, and round eyes that shone brightly under the moonlight. They were definitely Mantas.

"... .."

Their numbers were so great that they completely surrounded the 'Wings of Glory'.

Although this horde might have seemed threatening at first glance, Logan didn't feel the need to pull out Arjuna's belt, because he didn't feel the slightest hostility from them.

and-

Beep-!

Soon, a voice that is far beyond the audible frequency of humans, that you can never get used to no matter how many times you hear it, hits your eardrums.

Kkieeee- beep beep beep!

Sir Sharon nodded after listening to the sound for a moment.

"Indeed. They came all the way here to see you."

This confirms why the Holy Emperor sent her to Logan. I don't know how it was possible, but Lord Sharon could understand the Manta language.

"Me? Why on earth... .."

"He said he wanted to talk to you directly."

...conversation?

"They say they are deeply grateful for what happened today, and they ask that you please help their great leader."

501

501. Manta Tribe (6)

The southern side of Peridereo Island is a high cliff with black volcanic rock exposed. And to the southeast of the cliff, there is a large sea cliff formed by the winding ocean current.

The concave coast, beyond a promontory jutting out to the south, was an ideal place to avoid the eyes of the fleet anchored on the west side of the island.

Logan, under the guidance of the Mantas, held his first informal meeting with the alien race at that secret location.

'It's surprising that they rejected Mithra.'

At first, Logan thought that he should bring Mithra to this meeting. The old Draconian was the only other race that Logan knew of, and from what he heard, he had been interacting with the Manta tribe for quite some time.

But surprisingly, the Manta tribe did not want any interference from other races in this meeting.

Even they looked displeased at the sight of the wolf-dog wagging its tail at Logan. The reason was that the dog, who clearly had the blood of an Ionian wolf, might already be a lycanthrope.

So in the end, only Logan and Sir Sharon were left to follow the Mantas.

As they sneaked onto the escarpment, avoiding the sailors' eyes, the manta rays that had been waiting there before finally emerged from the water.

Slurp...

The body exposed to the air naturally shrinks. The flat face develops distinct facial features, and the wide fins also shrink, changing into the shape of a person wearing a cloak.

As their appearance changed, their volume and mass, which should remain constant for all living things, also began to decrease rapidly.

"....."

Logan had already witnessed the transformation of the young Mantas with his own eyes. Nevertheless, their transformation was still a wondrous sight, for no matter how you looked at it, it was a phenomenon that so far escaped the normal laws of physics.

Crackle, crackle.

The five or six mantas in the lead then walked out onto the shore after transforming into completely human-like forms.

At first glance, their appearances all look similar. Perhaps because they are closer to fish than mammals, it is difficult to even tell the sex of an individual from their dim silhouettes under the moonlight.

However, the leader standing at the very front was particularly noticeable, as his black fur was uniquely covered with dark blue stripes evenly distributed.

'...mackerel?'

Although the thought crossed his mind, Logan dared not voice the rude thought.

"Piririk. Giririririk. Bubbururur..."

Then the mackerel manta, who had been staring at Logan with sparkling eyes, opened his mouth. It was a low voice, like the sound of a long wind instrument, rather than the one he had heard from the younger manta.

"He says he is the temporary leader of the Manta tribe, Buubur...?"

Sir Sharon chewed her tongue as she interpreted the tricky pronunciation.

Yes. Since they are a race with intelligence, they each have their own names. Unfortunately, it's confusing even when you hear how they are pronounced.

"He said that he felt deeply grateful to you for accepting all of his demands, which could be considered unreasonable, and allowing him to meet with you alone. He said that he had not expected humans to be so open to other species."

"....."

Logan nodded, feeling uneasy.

In fact, the reason Logan followed them without any escort was purely out of confidence and no other reason.

Even now, if he could just pull out Arjuna, Logan would be able to single-handedly wipe out these races. Of course, that mackerel pattern, the so-called temporary leader, seemed like a fairly strong Auror user.

Logan looked around at the countless other manta rays still staring at him from the water.

"Let's end the greetings here. I can't leave the flagship for long because of the eyes of others. I would like you to tell me what's going on as soon as possible."

"Boooo, gurgle-."

"Before we get to the main point, he said there is one thing he would like to confirm with you."

"check?"

"Yes. These are the ones in the fleet that Your Majesty brought, by any chance, that... .."

But after saying that, Sir Sharon frowned for some reason and hesitated to interpret.

"... Sir Sharon?"

"....."

"Sir Sharon, please translate properly. For your information, I can tell the moment you hide something."

Sir Sharon, who was under Logan's strong gaze, reluctantly confessed with a slightly displeased expression.

"They are asking if there is one among our party, the one who is prepared... If he is in the fleet, they would like to pretend this meeting never happened... ."

"... The reserved one? What is that?"

Logan asked back, but this time she shut her mouth with an uncomfortable expression.

'I know, but it's hard to explain... ... '

Logan didn't press any further, but thought for a moment and shook his head.

"I'm not sure, but at least I'm not one of those 'reserves.' I've never heard of anyone in the fleet being called that."

"They say that they already know that Your Majesty is not that... You are already well known among the Manta tribe. As I have heard, you resemble the Guardian of Delcross very much."

"....."

Guardian of Delcross.

It was a name he had never heard before, but this time Logan felt like he knew who it referred to.

Holy Emperor Nathaniel Klein. Who else in the world, other than his father, could be called the protector of the Holy Empire?

"Also, Your Majesty used His divine powers directly to help their 'Lord'. It is said that such a person... could not possibly be the One Prepared. Above all, it is said that no magical energy... is felt from You."

Magi.

The moment he heard those words, the face of the brother he had seen since childhood flashed through Logan's mind. If what he had guessed was true, it was understandable why Lord Sharon was so reluctant to interpret.

But Logan tried hard to shake that ominous thought off his mind.

"But Magi? Why is that a problem for them? Aren't they the ones who actually have the magic? Why do they dislike the 'one who is prepared' for having the same magic?"

Even as he asked that, Logan suddenly thought that it might be fortunate that Lee Sung-jin had not come back here again.

"He is an uncontrollable variable, a causal storm that swirls everything around him and throws it off course."

"....."

"That is why they are very afraid that someone who is prepared might show up here and ruin all their arrangements."

Logan decided to stop asking about the 'reserve' at this point, because the already pale complexion of Lord Sharon only grew worse as the interpretation continued.

"So, what is it that you are trying to tell me while being so careful?"

Then, the gaze of the mackerel-patterned manta ray facing Logan deepens a little.

"Please, I request that you move the fleet from here. This is the old prison of the Manta Tribe."

"Get out of prison... .."

"This request is not only for themselves, but also for humans. Many creatures have already died due to malfunctions in the prison system."

"I don't think you need to worry too much about that. As you've already seen, we have a way to stop the artifact from malfunctioning."

Logan answered with Lee Sung-jin in mind, but the faces of the Manta tribe became even more serious when they heard those words.

"That's the problem. They say that they broke the device, even though they were prepared to get involved, just to relieve the suffering of their beloved leader."

... you broke it on purpose?

Towards the bewildered Logan, a soft, wind instrument-like voice added:

"Kklarak. Kirik, Kiririri... .."

"If we stop the device again, what happened this afternoon could happen again. The Lord, clouded by pain, could attack the fleet again."

When Ionia was destroyed, the only ones who were able to escape the disaster were the 'border tribes' living near the Delcross border. Even they barely managed to escape with their bodies, and half of them lost their 'essence' of their clan.

Fortunately, the Tree People and the Giant People had already prepared to migrate by stealing the essence following the Oracle's long-standing warning.

But the case of the lycanthropes and the mantas was completely different, as they had to flee to their prisons in a panic without even having the time to collect their race essence.

And the situation of these races that originated from the devil was truly miserable.

The lycanthropes quickly lost their senses and began wandering the demon realm. In this way, they ended up becoming demons who were regularly subjugated by humans.

Perhaps the Manta Tribe would have suffered the same fate, if it had not been for Lord Manta leading them.

"It is said that their lord had to make a very difficult decision at that time."

Lord Manta realized that there was no future for his people unless he created a new race essence.

So she made the sacrifice and pledged to become the living essence of the race herself, because she already knew of a living essence that was already doing that.

It was the Oracle of Kornsheim.

"Cornshim... .."

Once again, a name Logan knew came up.

He had heard before that his grandmother was from a strange tribe called the Kornsheim, although today he had only just learned that they were a race that had migrated from Ionia.

"Pirurururu, boooooooooong-"

"They desperately wish that until their Lord completes the essence of the race, they could not be by his side to care for his suffering like today."

Logan couldn't easily answer that request.

'You want me to look after you? That giant sea monster?'

Regardless of whether such a treatment would be possible again today, it was clear that such an act would cause extremely difficult problems for Logan's position.

Even his closest aides, Sir Ellie and Sir Dusang, couldn't hide their bewilderment at what happened today. If Logan wasn't known as a faithful knight of the Lord, there would have certainly been voices within the Cyprus Navy questioning Logan's actions.

"....."

After Logan hesitated for a while, the Mackerel Manta Tribe stopped complaining, as if they knew that it was a very difficult request. Instead, with a heavy expression, he conveyed another request to Logan.

"If that is not possible, please do not disturb our relics any more, and lead the fleet away from here immediately."

Those who have unwillingly taken the fate of their clan into their own hands, what choice must they make between the safety of their clan and their own happiness? Should they willingly sacrifice themselves, thinking that this is the proper duty of those with power?

Originally, Sungjin hated having to worry about this kind of problem. But at least he knew for sure what choices some people he knew had made regarding this issue.

Gael Bertran, who died shouldering the fate of the Republican Party, and Lord Manta, who is risking his own spirit to become the living essence of his clan.

And here was another leader who came up with a similar answer.

Sungjin had a vivid dream for the first time in a long while. A group of lycanthropes were gathered in front of him, and unlike the demons he had seen in Sigismund's territory, they were talking to each other with a fairly sane mind.

"These days, the Coratla is being caught quite easily. Should we use its bones to build a new tent?"

"But, hunt moderately. Soon, all the koratlas around here may dry up."

Seongjin couldn't tell for sure where this place was. Whether it was the Delcross dimension, or another main world similar to Delcross.

No, maybe it's not the real world at all.

Anyway, the lycanthropes were gathered together in the damp grass, excitedly grooming the crocodile-like creature they had just killed.

"By the way, Bazra. How long are we going to have to stay in this swamp?"

"That's right. I want to live on dry land. How about we ask the Lord to move our camp to the southern plains right now?"

Then the one called Bazra laughs. Surprisingly, he is the very same Bazra who was manipulated by Berseus and eventually met his death at the hands of Seongjin.

"Come on. These guys will only come to their senses if they are properly hit by the horns of the angry Nurmachi."

Is this a dream?

'Oh, right. Of course it's a dream. But... ... '

Seongjin slowly looked around, feeling a strange feeling.

The tents were crowded together, and the meat was being smoked neatly on one side. It was a peaceful sight that made it hard to believe it was the home of the lycanthropes he knew.

And that wasn't all, on one side, young lycanthropes were playing with something that looked like a balloon. It was a ball made by blowing air into the bladder of a coratla they had just killed.

"Ah, it's Lord!"

Then they stopped playing when they saw a long, new figure approaching from a distance.

"Look over there! Our Lord has arrived!"

What they were looking at was, surprisingly, a being in the shape of a real human. Seongjin also followed the lycanthropes' gaze and looked at that strange yet familiar figure.

He is much taller than before, his wheat-colored hair has grown out haphazardly. On one side of his cheek, a long scar appears that wasn't there before.

What on earth happened to the time zone in this world? Her appearance, which had seemed like a pretty boy, had already become that of a mature woman in just a few months.

".....?"

At that moment, as if sensing something strange, her pitch-black eyes looked up at Seongjin. It was a strange sensation, as if they were looking at each other face to face, transcending time and space.

Of course, that magic didn't last long either, as a swarm of baby lycanthropes swarmed over, grabbing her arms and screaming.

"Lord! I just caught a huge coratla!"

"Come play with us here while the adults prepare the meat!"

Children who were clearly pure-blooded lycanthropes smiled broadly at the half-blood lycanthropes whom they should have ignored.

"Yes? Lord Louise!"

Following her, who raised the corners of her lips brightly toward the children, Sungjin also unconsciously had a bitter smile on his lips.

502

502. Manta Tribe (7)

Time in the dream passed quickly, and night fell on the swamp. The lycanthropes each went to their tents, and at some point, a quiet silence descended on the once lively camp.

'Why on earth am I here? I was going to take a quick look at the fleet, but I fell asleep... ... '

Seongjin floated above the camp and looked up at the darkening sky.

'By the way, doesn't it seem like time passes quite quickly here? It seems like this isn't Delcross after all.'

If not, Edith would have woken Sungjin up a long time ago. She had told him to wake her up right away so that she could report to Sir Marsain when he returned.

'... ... ?'

But soon after, Sungjin was able to discover a crucial clue about this dream world. As the sun completely set over the horizon, a text window opened, clearly glowing beyond the darkening sky.

☐Regional Area Debuff Notification!☐

☐A regular wide-area debuff has been activated in the Solan Swamp area. HP will continuously decrease by 0.01% per minute until the sun rises tomorrow morning.☐

☐Tip! Want to resist debuffs? Then try making an easy natural debuff prevention agent! Dry wild chrysanthemums, rose geraniums, or cinnamon to make a sachet to prevent area-wide debuffs!☐

'Ah, this is the world of rules.'

Well, I guessed that it might be so, seeing that the already dead Bazra was moving around normally. It seems that Louise had done something to his soul stone.

But 0.01% per minute... What is this vague and insignificant damage?

After a moment of doubt, Sungjin was soon able to figure out what the wide-area debuff was. Soon, the lycanthropes' screams could be heard all over the camp.

"Eww! Mosquitoes! There are swamp mosquitoes in the tent!"

"Damn it! How on earth do these mosquitoes eat? How do these tiny grains of rice manage to pierce through this thick fur?"

Oh... If it's a regional wide-area debuff, then it means that you're guaranteed to get bitten, right? I hope there aren't any mosquito-borne diseases like malaria here.

Seongjin shook his head and turned around, flying towards the largest tent in the center of the camp. It was the tent of Louise, the lycanthrope's lord. Seongjin had a feeling that the reason he had come here was not unrelated to Louise.

As Sungjin seeped into the tent like fog, Louise was having a serious conversation with Bazra.

"You've been away for quite some time this time, Lady Louise."

"I'm sorry if I made you worry, Bazra. I have plenty of water, so I went to explore the desert area."

Despite the clear hierarchy, Louise's attitude toward Bazra was polite. Her obsessively polite attitude seemed to have not changed at all since her childhood.

"But there was no trace of the Kornsheim clan there either. Instead, I managed to find a few useful crystals on my way back."

Louise took out large stones from her bosom. They were strange, translucent-colored minerals, and at first glance they looked like large salt crystals or empty soul stones.

"I got lucky while hunting a herd of Nurmachi. If I just have this, I'll be able to have some free time for a while."

"...Lady Louise."

A pitiful light flashed in Bazra's eyes. He shouted urgently, not even paying attention to the decisions Louise had made.

"I told you over and over again that it was all pointless! So why are you still chasing Kornsim?"

"Because the traces they left behind are the only clues to finding the new 'essence'."

Lycanthropes need the help of their race essence to maintain a clear mind. So Louise is currently temporarily performing the function of race essence.

She unites the minds of the lycanthropes around her own salt crystals, and continues to awaken the rationality of her kind, which is easily clouded by even the slightest stimulation.

But that was only possible because the number of surviving members of the same clan was not large.

"As you know, this situation cannot last long. So shouldn't we take the time to secure a more stable race essence?"

But Bazra's thoughts seemed completely different from hers.

"You must preserve your sanity even more, since you are the only alternative to the essence of your race! Lady Louise, it is difficult enough for you to maintain a connection with your kind right now!"

Grrrrr... ..

As emotions ran high, their sharpened momentum clashed in the air like invisible fangs.

"Don't you know? The moment we become even a little lax in our decision-making, the overflowing madness will eventually consume your mind, Lady Louise."

"But Bazra. I believe in the arrangements the Kornsim clan left for us. It was thanks to them that I was able to save the souls of my compatriots, even if only a little."

"I repeat, it is all coincidence. The future of our people has nothing to do with them!"

"Do you think that what happened that day was a coincidence? The soulstones of my people were just waiting for me where I happened to arrive, and right next to it, there was a portal leading to this world?"

"Lady Louise... ..!"

"What about this world that we have come to with such difficulty? This wonderful world where you can easily obtain crystals that clear your mind just by hunting. Do you really think that all of this is just coincidence?"

The air inside the tent suddenly became heavy. In the dark space without any lights, only the sharp gazes glaring at each other crossed, carrying more meaning than a thousand words.

"...Kornshim, I do not deny that they at least had some good intentions towards us."

After some time had passed, Bazra finally opened his mouth with a gloomy expression.

"It is true that they warned us before the disaster struck. They were willing to tell us how we could escape to a safe world while still maintaining our sanity. But we refused their offer of help. Do you know why?"

"... .."

"Because, except in some special cases, only pure souls can cross the boundaries of dimensions. So, in order to migrate my kind to another dimension as they instructed, their deaths had to come first."

So on the day of disaster, the Guardian of Delcross urged Bazra to make a decision.

-Will you kill yourselves? Or will you die by my hand?

Yes, he even made a cruel yet kind offer to take my life himself.

Of course, Bazra, who could not choose either one, ended up committing the folly of handing the fate of his entire clan over to Berseus.

"So, there's no way that the arrogant Kornsim would have prepared another arrangement for us, who had already refused help once. What Lady Louise discovered that day was nothing more than a trace of the tragedy that my indecisiveness brought about."

Bazra bowed his head toward Louise, overcome by a heavy sense of guilt.

"So please, don't waste your precious mental energy on hopeless things any longer. Only Lady Louise is our last hope."

"Bazra..."

And Seongjin, who had been listening to their conversation without missing a single word, was finally able to realize why he had come there.

'I came here to understand Louise's situation. To find out for sure what options are left for the race that has lost its racial essence.'

As I thought about it, the image of a giant stingray singing as it sank into the deep sea came to mind.

At the same time, Sungjin learned one more truth that he was not sure about.

'Besides, there was something I didn't want to know about the Manta Tribe.'

It must have been that he never wanted to remember the truth about them, or what might come out of their mouths.

At the same time, I had to leave behind memories that would allow me to indirectly understand their situation. That's why I had to borrow the form of a dream and come to this unfamiliar dimension.

'I think that pretty much concludes the reason I came here... ... '

But contrary to my expectations, my feet didn't move easily. Perhaps it was because Louise's slumped shoulders, as if she was carrying a heavy load, particularly caught my eye.

Even after night fell and Bazra left the tent, Sungjin did not leave his spot for a while and spent his time circling above Louise's head.

'Hmm... I guess so? It doesn't seem like it'd be worth it to go back now, considering the effort it took to get here.'

Yeah. I feel like it! Since we're here, should we help Louise out a little?

Once the decision was made, the implementation was simple. The simple yet powerful idea that Sungjin had created was easily realized in the psychic world and soon transformed into a small flame.

Hurrruk!

"...huh?"

Louise was quite startled by the small flame that suddenly appeared before her eyes.

It suddenly burst into flames out of thin air, dancing and moving around as if it had its own will.

At first I thought it was a firefly. But when I reached out and grabbed the flame-

WHEEK!

It eluded Louise's quick grasp with astonishing ease.

Then it moved away and started blinking rapidly, as if telling her to 'follow me'.

Louise followed the flames out of the tent in a daze. It was the strangest thing she had ever seen, but somehow she didn't feel ominous or threatening.

Rather, I felt like I was smelling a familiar and nostalgic scent from the flames.

Blink!

The flames led Louise out of the camp. Then, suddenly, she flew up in a whoosh and soared toward the swamp. Then she stopped in place again, rapidly blinking her light.

Louise ran after the flames as if possessed, crossing black, sloppy swamps and stepping on tree roots that tangled like giant snakes.

The skilled leatherworker who had made her shoes that fit her perfectly since she was a child was no longer in this world, so Louise ran barefoot over the slippery moss as if she was flying.

Just like in the snowy fields of Sigismund's lands in the past, with the strong Schneesche wrapped around both feet.

How long did it run like that? The flame finally stopped moving completely in the middle of a grassy swamp.

"... ..!"

At that moment, Louise forgot the existence of the small flame for a moment, because she was completely overwhelmed by the magnificent sight unfolding before her eyes.

On a mysterious hill where colorful mushroom clusters shine like stars, there stood a huge tree that seemed to have forgotten the passage of time, towering toward the sky.

"I didn't know there was a place like this in the swamp... ..!"

If I hadn't chased the flame, I would never have come this deep into the swamp.

Louise looked around, feeling a little curious. Then she noticed a flame that had been sitting on a large rock for a while, not moving at all, and she slowly approached it.

"Huh?"

But then, Louise, who had discovered something, quickly scratched the rock with her hand. Then, the rough surface of the rock that had been hidden under black moss for a long time was revealed.

"This is... ..!"

Although the sky was dark, the lycanthrope's eyes could not miss its opaque milky white glow.

A crystal that clears the mind. And it was a crystal of the largest size I had ever seen.

"With this... .."

Louise felt the surface of the rock with trembling hands. The presence of the strange flame in her head was no longer important.

"With this, I can keep my people's spirits safe for a while!"

'Okay, so now you don't have to suffer alone.'

Louise's shoulders, hugging the rock, shook slightly. The flame that had been staring at her for a moment blinked one last time, sending a faint signal before slowly fading out from that spot.

As soon as he realized that he had finished all his work, Sungjin's mind was suddenly sucked somewhere.

He was shot out faster than light. The flow of time froze, and countless spaces folded and unfolded.

After flying for a while, the chaotic world suddenly disappeared and a familiar landscape appeared in its place. It was the Delcross dimension.

The moment he realized that he had returned, he heard a lively thought welcoming him from beside him.

[Mores! Where the hell have you been?]

[Mores! How far have you gone that it's hard to keep up?]

And, as expected, the usual calm thoughts can also be heard from above.

[You worked hard.]

Although it was only a brief compliment, Seongjin felt proud and smiled brightly.

503

503. Manta Tribe (8)

Even after returning to the Delcross dimension, Sungjin couldn't wake up right away. This was because the spirit of Sunghwang had told him this.

[Mores, if it's okay with you, I'd like to talk to you for a moment.]

Seongjin was immediately transported to a temporary dimension that Seonghwang had hastily created.

Thanks to that, for the first time that day, Seongjin was able to vividly witness the moment when a new world of salt was born from nothing.

Srrrrrr...

At the gesture of the saint's hand, a blurry lattice pattern appears around them.

The regularly spaced patterns that gave off a faint glow looked like the grid lines of a perspective drawing, or the rebar grid of a construction site.

Then, the Holy Emperor clenched his fist. Then, the patterns that had been stretching out infinitely in all directions disappeared from sight, and only the small rectangular structures surrounding them remained, materializing into distinct walls.

[Wow...]

This must be the work of creating the boundary of the salt world. It seems that the Holy Emperor is trying to create a small, single-room dimension like before.

As the walls began to take shape, vague remnants of furniture began to appear inside the room.

At the same time, a red wave of disaster surged from somewhere outside, thickly covering the perimeter of the dimension. It was the work of strengthening the border so that no one other than those permitted could invade.

[Mores, you're deadly! Are you going to have a secret conversation with just Seonghwang's father again?]

[Mores, I'm jealous. You have to tell us what happened later, right?]

As it is a space surrounded by layers of disasters, it seems that Herna and Gades will have difficulty invading it at will.

But even though they grumbled in words, the guys didn't seem that upset. They clearly fully understood the reason and justification for Seonghwang's actions.

Beyond the increasingly distinct boundary, the twins' soul terminals fluttered and moved away as if waving hands.

[Hello, Mores!]

[See you again, Mores!]

In this way, the dimensional boundary is completely divided and the surrounding scenery changes in the blink of an eye.

With the new gravity pulling his body, Sungjin looked around, feeling a strange sense of familiarity.

"This place is... ..!"

What unfolded before my eyes was clearly the sight of a simple room I had seen a few months ago.

Plain pastel-colored wallpaper and a shabby bed. On one side of the small desk is a thick history book that once exploded in front of Seongjin's eyes, reproduced in its entirety.

Naturally, this question arose.

'What is this space? What does this place mean to my father?'

But I couldn't ask him rashly. Of course, I thought that the intense memories of such a strange space probably didn't have a good meaning for Seonghwang.

[I knew you'd find it someday, but this timing feels a little sudden.]

Seonghwang opened his mouth in a calm voice, patting the desk, not knowing whether he knew Seongjin's thoughts or not.

[Well, since no one expected your move, now might have been the perfect time.]

Before answering him, Sungjin reflexively glanced at his own appearance in this world.

Fortunately, he was now not Hunter Lee Sung-jin, but a young Mores. He was wearing the Exorcist uniform that he had been wearing recently, and even the nutcracker was recreated on his waist.

Only then did Seongjin feel a little relieved, and he sat down on the bed opposite him with a smile.

[As expected, the dimension I just visited was the problem. I also had many questions I wanted to ask my father about that place.]

It was a really strange dimension. It felt like a more suitable place for a spirit like Sungjin to reside than the lycanthropes that had already settled in there.

First of all, even things like 'regional wide-area debuff notifications' and 'game tips' didn't seem like information that lycanthropes would actually see.

Even Sungjin could easily open a map of the land. It was a map that contained detailed information about each region's climate, habitat, and major geographical features.

Thanks to that, Sungjin was able to easily guide Louise to the place where the 'decision' was, even though it was his first time there.

'And then, the text stuck at the very top of the map was probably... ...
'.

□Pangaea Ultima - World Map□

Anyone who looks at it will see that it is a name that is definitely not unrelated to the Pangea Chronicles.

So, to put it simply, that world is an 'upgraded version of the Pangea Chronicles'.

[I somehow felt like the interface was familiar. It must be a game world built on the Homunculus Engine, just like Pangea Chronicles, right?]

In addition to the area named Solan Swamp, there were several unique climate zones on the world map. These were not naturally formed climate zones, but rather appeared to have been inserted just for show. This was also not much different from the world map of Pangea Chronicle.

[I once heard from Dexter that Impulse Software, the company that created the Pangea Chronicles, collaborated with Ionian engineers to create the Homunculus Engine.]

At that time, Dexter said this.

- It was only a few years ago that Ionia was completely destroyed. And it had been showing signs of collapse for some time. The Ionian engineers on the development team worked with the Earth company to safely evacuate the inhabitants from the disaster.

And those Ionian engineers, as soon as they completed the homunculus engine, created a safe spherical world and left forever.

However, Dexter never once mentioned the appearance of the Ionian engineers, which means that in Dexter's eyes, they looked no different from Earthlings.

'Among the Ionian races, the only ones who do not show any great discomfort when meeting Earthlings are the Kornsheim clan.'

In other words, all the Ionians Dexter met were Kornsheim clan members.

Then, Seongjin had no choice but to naturally come to this conclusion.

[Pangaea Ultima. That was the 'safe' spherical world created by the engineers of Kornsheim.]

This also explains why that world had a more familiar interface to the Holy Ones than to the Lycanthropes. The Kornshim were a clan more accustomed to using their soul terminals than their own senses.

[Then it is somewhat understandable why Father is so cautious. He must be worried that the existence of Pangea Ultima might be known to the high-ranking Demon Lords.]

Then, the Seonghwang looked at Seongjin blankly and then slowly nodded.

[Yes. That is a new dimension named Amasia.]

[Amasya dimension... ..]

[As you might have guessed, this is a temporary refuge prepared by the Kornsheim clan for all the races of Ionia, who foresaw the coming disaster.]

Ready for all... races?

The moment he heard those words, Sungjin couldn't help but recall the conversation between Louise and Bazra.

-But Bazra. I believe in the arrangements the Kornsim clan left for us. It was thanks to them that I was able to save the souls of my compatriots, even if only a little.

Louise definitely said that. And boy, was she right!

Seongjin shouted with delight.

[Then, Father, it seems like we have another alternative! Even if the worst happens and the Delcross dimension falls into the hands of the high-ranking Demon Lords, we can still migrate the people here to Amasia like Louise! If we can do that... ..!]

But Seongjin couldn't finish speaking because Seonghwang, who had been listening quietly, had a faint smile on his lips.

That somewhat sad smile he gets every time he gives a wrong answer.

[uh.....]

Seongjin quickly thought about it and was soon able to guess the reason.

Why not? Just now, in the Amasia dimension, didn't you hear Vazra lamenting like this?

-Because, except in some special cases, only pure souls can cross dimensional boundaries.

Yes. Normally, movement of the material that makes up a body cannot occur between dimensions.

So, if you want to move people to another dimension, you have to first return them to their spirit state.

The answer to that was, of course, 'death.'

'... I have to kill them? With my own hands, the people I must protect no matter what?'

Seongjin tightly clenched his fingertips, which were beginning to tremble slightly.

There's no way I could do something like that. Just imagining the possibility makes my blood run cold... ..

[...mores.]

Seonghwang, who noticed Seongjin's stern expression, opened his mouth as if to persuade him.

[Don't worry about it. Didn't I tell you this before? At least in this world, you won't be forced into such a crossroads.]

Seongjin felt a subtle nuance in his words and answered a beat slower.

[...yes.]

[The worst thing you can imagine will never happen. Isn't that why you've been working so hard?]

At his repeated assurances, Sungjin blinked blankly.

Why is it? Aside from the vague premonitions that came over me, Seonghwang's voice had the power to make people want to believe in it forever.

So Seongjin nodded vigorously towards him.

[Yes, that's right.]

[So for now, let's just focus on protecting the boundaries of the Delcross dimension.]

[yes!]

At Seongjin's cheerful answer, Seonghwang smiled and continued his explanation.

[Currently, our Delcross dimension is protected by the power of the 'race barrier' guarded by the five races of Ionia.]

The Holy Emperor briefly explained the members of the Council of Six and the five-layered barrier they were maintaining. He even mentioned that the barrier was currently somewhat weakened due to the absence of the representative of the Lycanthrope race.

[That is why we must help the alien races of Delcross as much as possible. If even one of the six main members of the council collapses, the dimensional boundary protecting Delcross will inevitably become weaker.]

Naturally, the Manta tribe, one of the borderline races, came to mind. Their current crisis had led Logan and the Cyprus fleet to the Krabat Archipelago.

That was also why Seonghwang had told Seongjin that it was 'the most appropriate time'. Currently, all the demon lords targeting Delcross were focusing all their attention on the survival of the Manta tribe that was guarding the barrier.

[Father, can't we at least migrate the Manta Tribe to the Amasia dimension? There exists something called a 'crystal' that can replace the race's essence.]

That too must have been arranged by the Kornsim clan.

[Or, you could just send some of your race there. That alone would greatly relieve the Manta Lord of his mental burden.]

But the king slowly shook his head.

[Lord Manta has strong objections to the idea of her species being relocated there. The engineers have tried to match their biological characteristics to the best of their ability, using all the laws of the spherical world, but she is never sure if it is truly 'alive'.]

Well, it's not that I don't understand. Who else in the world besides Korn would make such a choice so easily, killing their own people who are alive and well and throwing them into a game?

[Then what about Louise...]

[That lycanthrope child had encountered his compatriots who had become soulstones from the beginning. That's why he was able to head straight to Amasia without much trouble. However, Lord Manta is said to have a more delicate personality than he looks. That's why he decided to sacrifice himself rather than drive his entire clan onto an uncertain path.]

[...]

From his lonely voice, Sungjin sensed Lord Manta's irreversible end. He also learned that Seonghwang was more affectionate toward Lord Manta than he had thought.

So, Seongjin spoke comfortingly without realizing it.

[Don't worry, Father. Lord Manta will find a happier rest than anyone else.]

[... Is that so?]

Seonghwang responded in a calm tone, but Seongjin did not miss the look of relief that passed across his face.

'Yeah, I guess this will be okay.'

If I can be of help to everyone in this way, wouldn't I be able to think positively about my role?

Seongjin absentmindedly thought about that, and then smiled brightly at Seonghwang, who was tapping his forehead.

Martha, who returned to her lodgings late at night, headed to the prince's room with tired steps.

Recently, he has been visiting the Marquis of Benso's residence on the orders of Prince Mores. Instead of the Marquis running away under various pretexts, he is meeting with his son Alberto and discussing business in earnest.

The problem was that Prince Benso was unusually timid. Whenever I tried to talk about business, he would always hesitate and change the subject, so it seemed like our conversations would go on forever.

'No matter how I look at it, it seems like a useless thing to do, but what on earth is His Majesty thinking...?'

Marsain pondered for a moment. Could it be that he was making a fuss without fully understanding the intentions of the lower class?

But when he returned to his quarters, he found Prince Mores sleeping on the sofa with a relaxed expression. After giving all sorts of difficult instructions, he couldn't possibly look this comfortable.

"... .."

Even chuckling occasionally!

As Marsain looked down with a bewildered expression, Captain Bruno whispered next to him.

"Your Majesty, it seems you are having a good dream."

"... .."

Masain, who was staring at the strange jewel the prince was holding in his hand, quickly stopped the dedicated maid who was trying to wake him up.

"Let's just let him sleep like this. You can report back tomorrow."

He loosened the collar of his uniform and asked Carmen, who was standing ceremonially beside him.

"Sir Carmen. Has anything happened to you while we were away from your quarters?"

"How could anything happen? You've been napping or meditating all day."

"Meditation... .."

"Yes. I heard you were very confident that you would soon become a Dekaron Knight?"

"... .."

In response to Sir Carmen's answer, Marsain and Captain Bruno kept their mouths shut as if they had made a promise.

Why not? One is that he is the swordsmanship teacher of Prince Mores, but he is soon to be caught up by his disciple, and the other is that he once reached the level of Dekaron Knight, but his Aura accumulation is slower than that of the prince.

"Ahem!"

"Well, thank you for your hard work, Sir Carmen. We'll take our leave now... .."

The two people, feeling a strong sense of pressure, left the place in a hurry. They didn't say a word to each other, but it was clear that they would probably stay locked up somewhere and practice all night.

"Huh? Where are you guys going all of a sudden?"

"Tsk ts."k."

As Carmen was dumbfounded, Edith, who was tidying up the prince's bedding, clicked her tongue loudly.

"Sir Carmen, haven't you ever been told that you're usually tactless?"

To think that I would be criticized by Edith, who is known for being clueless!

"No, what am I saying!"

"The person who is said to be the least bright among us says such things without any sense."

"...What did you say?"

Carmen shouted in anger. Even without Prince Mores occasionally looking at him and clicking his tongue, Carmen had been feeling a bit stressed by the word 'brightness' lately.

"This is driving me crazy! What is this 'brightness' that Your Majesty has been talking about?"

"Well, do you know? But I do know one thing for sure: Sir Carmen has the lowest aura activity among our group."

"... ..!"

Carmen's face became blank as if she had been hit in the back of the head. Did she feel something at that time?

After a while, when Sir Claudia came to change shifts, Carmen barely managed to greet her and grabbed his sword before running down the hallway. It was in the direction of the open space that the knights used as a makeshift training ground.

Of course, Edith was there behind him, cheering him on.

"Train hard, Sir Carmen!"

"Profit! It's noisy!"

504. Manta Tribe (9)

It's still dark in the early morning.

Logan looked out over the fog-covered island of Peridereo from the empty deck. His face was soaked with exhaustion, perhaps the aftereffects of the informal meeting that had lasted the night.

Of course, it wasn't a big deal for a Sword Master to stay up all night for several days. However, the mental fatigue that came from a problem that couldn't be easily answered was something he couldn't help but feel.

'We have to come to a conclusion before noon, whatever it may be.'

This will either convince General Lysander to help the Mantas, or withdraw the fleet before the artifact is activated again. Neither of these will be easy tasks.

In fact, there was a third option, which was to stop the relic's operation completely and subdue Lord Manta, who was running wild in pain, as a demon. However-

'It's impossible after all.'

If you didn't know at all, you wouldn't know. You should have known that they have reason and emotions just like humans.

They were in such dire straits that they even sought help from Logan, who had come to subdue them. I could not bear to commit such a cruel act against them.

'Lord Mantara... ..'

Logan thought carefully about the stories he had heard from the Mackerel Manta Tribe.

In fact, the meeting between him and the Manta Tribe itself was not that long, as the tedious process of exploring each other's intentions was completely unnecessary.

Logan could not understand the Manta language, but he could discern the truth from the vibrations of their vocalizations.

Also, the Manta Tribe can sense the general truth and lies through the interpretation of Lord Sharon. It seems that the communication method they exchange, called 'thoughts', is very difficult to hide the emotions that accompany it.

So the truth that Logan heard from the Manta tribe was all things that were hard to believe even after hearing them.

The Manta tribe has had the unique characteristic of sharing a group consciousness since birth. This characteristic has led them to higher spiritual achievements, but the side effects that come with it are also considerable.

An exchange of emotions and memories that happens without pause, even if you don't want it. A violent storm of madness that spreads and amplifies like lightning to the entire species the moment one individual loses their senses.

Because of these characteristics, they inevitably had to rely on external processing devices to maintain mental stability.

"So when they learned that they had lost their race's essence, the Mantas accepted their fate of extinction. It is said that most of them would rather face death with a clear mind than lose their wits and become beasts that harm the Delcross people."

However, their leader, Lord Manta, had a different view. If death was unavoidable, wouldn't it be better to sacrifice just one life to save the whole group?

"So, after much thought, Lord Manta decided to make himself an 'external processing device', a 'race essence'."

There was a model to refer to: Oracle.

Of course, it was impossible for her, a Manta, to create a well-developed salt crystal like the Kornsheim clan. So, in order to perform a similar role, the size of the salt crystal itself had to be extremely large.

So Lord Manta used every means at his disposal to expand his salt crystals. He continued to prey until his body grew to its limit, and he even took in the turbid consciousness of the prisoners he had previously been incarcerated with.

It was, for example, the process by which an oyster holds a pearl: a foolish method of constantly applying physical and mental stimulation to an already completed salt crystal, and then adding another solid layer on top of it.

Fortunately, thanks to Lord Manta's efforts, the salt crystal grew in size as it dug into his head.

"It was a process that involved extreme pain. However, despite the Manta tribe's earnest attempts to dissuade him, they were unable to break Lord Manta's strong will."

Somehow, just hearing it, Logan felt like he could understand how he felt.

If you think about it, haven't you had similar experiences? Running wild in a battlefield you didn't like, spreading propaganda you didn't mean to, and emphasizing the values of the republic.

All of these actions were done to make himself a symbol of a staunch republican party. He wanted to completely hide Prince Benicio and his companions, who would be left behind after his death, from the eyes of the Empire.

"... .."

As Logan's expression became more complicated and subtle, the mackerel, Boubreu?, who had been observing him closely, continued speaking.

"Kkirak, burr, hoo... giririri..."

"But they say that an unexpected problem arose during the process."

It was okay to reconnect the exiled prisoners to the collective consciousness in order to stimulate the salt crystals.

The problem was that, with the pain increasing day by day, Lord Manta would occasionally lose control of them.

Eventually, there were cases where prisoners who had been incarcerated partially regained their senses and escaped from prison.

"Then, there have been frequent sea monster attacks in the Cyprus area recently..."

"Yes, they are all former convicts who escaped from prison."

The Manta Tribe leadership, unable to stand by and watch, tried everything they could to control the prisoners. One of the methods was to induce malfunctions in the artifacts to strengthen the mental control of the prison system.

"But if that happens, wouldn't the Manta tribe, who are not prisoners, also suffer similar damage?"

Logan thought of the countless whales stranded on the shore, drying up. Even the young mantas with weak mental defenses were almost swept away by them!

"Thanks to that, they were able to detain the escaped prisoners near the prison perimeter."

"... ... !"

Only then did Logan feel that one question that had been nagging at him for a long time had been resolved.

The sea monsters that gathered and ran wild near the point where the cold current coming from the north and the warm Krabat current mixed.

"They were all held captive by the relics!"

Thanks to that, the first ocean demon subjugation ended so blandly. Those who were running around in confusion under the control of the prison system were swept away by the [Ancient Fire] and turned to ashes.

Unfortunately, in the process, some innocent Manta tribe members who were caught up in the control also lost their lives.

"... .."

Logan's face darkened as he listened to that. Sir Sharon, who knew the prince's gentle and upright nature well, paused for a moment to whisper comfortingly.

"They are people who will end up as mere demons if they fail to obtain the essence of their race anyway. There is no need for Your Majesty to mourn their deaths now."

Of course, there were also positive effects created by the malfunction of the relic. As the prison's mental control became stronger, the frequency of Lord Manta's seizures, which occasionally went berserk due to the pain, decreased significantly.

Although the exact mechanism is unknown, it is thought that the system's mental control dulls the sensation of pain itself.

"So if you're not going to help Lord Manta, you're telling me to just leave the relic alone and go back."

As Logan muttered, the mackerel-patterned manta slowly nodded its head.

"Pirrrrrrrr."

"This is a truth known only to a few leaders, including Lord Manta. Most of the Mantas simply believe that there are no engineers capable of repairing the malfunction."

"... That part is a little hard to understand. If you're hiding the truth because you're afraid of your own people's backlash, wouldn't it have been better to just let the prisoners go free?"

From the Manta tribe's perspective, wouldn't it be better to banish the dangerous elements to protect their innocent compatriots?

Of course, from the human perspective, there would be no such thing as an unexpected disaster, but even if there had been some damage, it would have been eventually swept away by the punitive force.

"Kiririk, boooooo... .."

"They say they cannot allow the innocent Delcross people to suffer so much because of them. They are sorry for the deaths of some of the humans, and they hope that at least they will know that it was in the best interest of the people."

"... .."

As Logan looked up into the serious face of the Mackerel Manta, its dark blue eyes also looked straight at Logan.

"Some humans, some Mantas, and some nature have suffered equally. Boubre believes that this is the only way to prevent the extreme destruction of one side and create a balance in which everyone can survive in the long run."

Phew, ugh!

A familiar figure approaches and I yawn loudly.

Logan woke up from his flashback and turned his head to find Max stretching beside him, having woken up at some point.

The guy wagged his tail happily at Logan, then sat down under the capstan and began to crunch the beef bone he had received yesterday. Even without patting his head, you could tell that this guy wasn't Lee Sung-jin.

'Lee Seong-jin... Are you not planning on coming today?'

Logan leaned against the bow and thought.

'Regarding the treatment of the Manta Tribe, or how to persuade General Lysander, Lee Seong-jin would have definitely thought of a good method... ... '

It may not seem like it, but you actually have good insight.

"...Brother?"

At that moment, a clear voice called him. Logan looked down at the sea and saw Sisley standing on a small boat, looking up at him. It seemed that he had been diligently checking on the wounded since early in the morning.

"Why are you there? Is something bothering you?"

Before Logan could even answer, the girl looked at his face for a moment, then jumped out of the boat without fear. Then, she jumped up onto the anchor rope and landed lightly next to Logan!

"... ... "

Logan was amazed again.

The more I looked at him, the more I was amazed at his talent. He had only been training in Aura for so long, and he was already showing movements that were no less than those of other knights.

"Huh, Sisley?"

Inquisitor Boris, left alone on the boat, panics and calls out to the girl.

"I'm sorry, Inquisitor Boris. Would you mind returning to the Tribunal first? I'll be back in time for the morning assembly."

After waving at him affectionately, Sisley turned to Logan with a serious face.

"Come on, Brother Logan. Brother, you're not easily tired. What's going on that makes your face look like that?"

Ironically enough, there was a hint of fatigue on Sisley's face as he asked that question. He had not been able to sleep well all night, having spent his night reading the Delcross Chronicles, which were full of shock and horror in his dreams.

"... .."

Logan hesitated for a moment, fiddling with Arjuna's handle.

'Is it really okay to confide everything to young Sisley? Aside from Mitra, she's the only one in the fleet who knows about the existence of the xenomorph... . . . '

Logan's act of helping the Mantas rendered meaningless the very purpose of the second expedition that the Cyprus Council had poured a huge budget into.

General Lysander may be convinced, but the Council will never let this matter go unchecked. If not careful, it could easily cause a major diplomatic problem between the Empire and Cyprus.

But that wasn't all. Even after persuading the punitive force, the problem still remained. Would the people, especially the Holy Assembly, readily accept the existence of a different race that did not even appear in the scriptures?

Although their appearance was different, the biggest problem with the Manta Tribe was that they were born with magical energy.

Even the royal family, Mores, looked down on this holy gathering. It would be fortunate if they didn't start making a fuss about forming the third punitive force right away.

'Yes. There's no need to involve Sisley in such a sensitive issue. I am the one who makes the decisions, and I am responsible for the consequences.'

Logan, his mind made up, shook his head slightly.

"I just thought for a moment that the world is just a frustrating place. As people live, aren't there times when you have to somehow convince someone of something they absolutely cannot accept?"

"Something you absolutely cannot accept?"

"Yeah. It's such a sad thought, isn't it?"

"Yeah, okay... .."

Sisley tilted his head, then looked at Logan with a somewhat subtle expression.

"Why is that?"

"What should I say? It may be a little embarrassing to say this, but I think I know why Mores Orabeoni always complains about his brother being foolish."

"... ..!"

Logan felt a huge hurt in his heart for a moment. Wait a minute, aside from Abamama and Lee Sungjin, why is Sisley saying that to me?

"But think about it. Brother, you already expected that the other person would reject you. Then why bother worrying about that? It's clearly impossible from the start."

"Oh, no. But-"

Logan stuttered in embarrassment.

"Still, Sisley. If it is something that must be done... .."

"No, you missed the point. This is your problem, Brother. No matter how much you put the truth in front of the other person, it won't work. Then, isn't there only one way? It's to hide the truth."

"... ..!"

Logan looked at Sisley with a bewildered expression.

Just then, the sun rose over the horizon, casting a mysterious golden backlight over Sisley's silver hair. And so, looking like a holy lion from a sacred painting, the girl whispered to Logan her subversive thoughts.

"What is needed at this time is agitation and fabrication."

"Incitement and... fabrication?"

"okay."

A faint playfulness appeared on the girl's white cheeks. It was a mischievous expression that I had never seen before, and it reminded me of Mores.

"Why do we have to tell the truth to those who won't accept it anyway? If we just say something pleasant to them, wouldn't it be better for us and would they feel a lot better?"

"... .."

"Just tell them what they want to believe and carry out your will. That's the most efficient way to benefit everyone."

Logan, who was speechless for a moment, turned his head towards Max without realizing it.

Then-

Huh?

Max, who was happily chewing on the bone, pricked up his ears as if he was curious.

'... As expected, Lee Seong-jin isn't coming. You didn't expect something like this to happen, did you? Yeah, I don't think so... ..'

Logan unconsciously grabbed Arjuna's handle.

Lee Sung-jin... When you come back, let's have a serious talk. What on earth did you teach little Sisley?
